——Arts. 60 and 145—Suit for delivery of gold mohurs or value—Recovery of pictures.

The petitioner bailed some gold mohurs and deposited a few pictures with one C. On demand being made delivery was refused:

Held*, that so far as the mohurs were concerned the suit was one for money deposited and Art. 60 governed the suit. 41 All. 643=17 A.L.J. 888= 1 U.P.L.R. (A.) 95=55 Ind. Cas. 45.

——Arts. 60, 89 and 106—Money advanced for joint purchase—Suit to recover—Applicability.

A suit to recover money paid to defendant to be used in a joint purchase of property, is governed by Art. 89 and not 60 or 106, as the defendant was acting only as the agent of the plaintiff. 33 Ind. Cas. 438 (Lah.).

——Arts. 60 and 59—Distinction between deposit —Money lent.

Where money was deposited with a bank on condition that interest would be payable and the banker would pay the money on demand, Art. 60 of the Limitation Act applied and not Art. 59. Art. 59 deals with the case of money lent under an agreement that it shall be payable on demand. Art. 60 refers to the case of money deposited under an agreement that it shall be payable on demand. 37 All. 292=13 A.L.J. 402=28 Ind. Cas. 949.

——Arts. 60, 66, 115 and 120—Money deposited payable on happening of an event—Period of limitation for suit to recover—Applicability of Arts. 60, 66 and 115.

A suit for the recovery of money deposited with another and repayable on the happening of a future event and brought after the happening of the event, is a suit for "compensation for the breach of any contract not in writing registered" within Art. 115 and is barred if not instituted within 3 years from the date on which the event happened. Neither Article 60, nor 66 nor 120 governs such a suit. (1914) M.W.N. 264=22 Ind. Cas. 60.

——Arts. 60, 64—Agreement to receive money and to pay lender's agents—"Deposit."

Where the agreement was that B should receive money from time to time from A and pay A's servants as much as they wanted and return the balance, and a balance was actually struck, a suit brought by A against B for the balance is not necessarily governed by Art. 64, and in the absence of a finding that B was only A's agent, Art. 60 may apply. (1900) 28 C. 393.

2. Banker and customer.

——Arts. 60 and 59—Where money is deposited with a banker and is payable on demand, a suit for the recovery of the same is governed by Art. 60 and not by Art. 59. 38 P.L.R. 1025=A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 718=17 L. 481=165 Ind. Cas. 699.

——Arts. 60 and 59—In the document which was the basis of the suit, promissory note executed by the defendants to the plaintiff, a Nattukottai Chetty, the first defendant, stated as follows: "We have credited to your account Rs. 4,500 on the 6th. Rs. 500 on the 27th. amounting in all to Rs. 5,000. As agreed between us the said amount of Rs. 5,000 is credited for 12 months' thavanai, the rate of interest being one anna less the current new rate. So, the said amount of Rs. 5,000 and interest will be paid to your order in twelve months' thavanai:"

Held, (i) that if there was no evidence whatever as to the terms upon which a transaction of this nature was made with a Nattukottai Chetty, there was a presumption that the Chetty is in the position of a banker and the person transacting business with him was in the position of a customer and that account was on the demand basis:

(ii) that the true construction of the document was that the plaintiff was depositing with the 1st defendant as banker a sum of Rs. 5,000 for a fixed period of one year, thereafter that deposit to be repaid to the plaintiff and it was thereby agreed that after the year the deposit with interest was payable on demand, and that the case was covered by Art. 60 and not by Art. 59.

(iii) consequently, as no demand was made earlier than three years from the date of the suit note, the suit note was executed at a time within the period of limitation and, therefore, it was executed in payment of a non-barred pre-existing debt and being so executed by a manager of a joint Hindu family, it was binding on the joint Hindu family and judgments should be given, not only against the manager but against the sons, brother and nephews as well. 41 L.W. 536=(1935) M.W.N. 559=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 734=157 Ind. Cas. 274.

——Arts. 60 and 57—Where the dealings between the plaintiff and the defendants started by deposit by plaintiff and subsequently there were many items of deposits and withdrawals by the plaintiff in his own handwriting:

Held, that the defendants acted as the bankers of the plaintiff, and that the transaction in question commenced, and continued to the end as between customer and banker. To such a case, Art. 57 did not apply but Art. 60 applied. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 42=37 P.L.R. 56=151 Ind. Cas. 712=15 L. 242 (D.B.).

——Art. 60—Banker and Customer.

In order to create the relation of banker to his customer there is no necessity that the banker should carry on only the trade of a banker. It suffices, if with regard to the particular transaction, he was a banker as regards the particular customer. 102 Ind. Cas. 408=29 Bom. L.R. 423=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 362.

——Art. 60—Banker—Who is.

Under Art. 60 it is not necessary to prove that the borrower was carrying on business only as banker. A man might become a banker or place himself in the position of banker, with regard to a particular customer, and if the dealings between the lender and the borrower are such that the Court is satisfied that it could be said that the borrower is in the position of a banker to the lender, then the money so lent could be considered as a deposit. 93 Ind. Cas. 215=28 Bom. L.R. 73=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 168.

3. Construction—"So payable".

——Art. 60—Construction — "So payable," meaning of.

The words "so payable," in Art. 60 mean payable on demand. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 338=164 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 60—Oral demand.

Under Art. 60 an oral demand is sufficient. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 841=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 558=200 Ind. Cas. 357.

——Art. 60—Waiver of demand.

In the case of a deposit made with the banker, the necessity for a demand may be got rid of by special contract or by waiver. A repudiation by the banker of the customer's right to be paid any particular sum would no doubt be a waiver of any demand in respect of such sum. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 129=6 B.R. 153=185 Ind.C ·Cas. 339.

——Art. 60—Demand, what is—Essentials of, stated.

The demand contemplated by Art. 60, must be a legal demand. It must be made by a person capable of giving a valid discharge in the event of payment being made. If the deposit is payable to more persons than one, the demand must be made by them all or at least by one of them duly authorised by the others and in a position to give a legal discharge on behalf of himself and the others. In the same way, the demand must be a demand made directly on the party with whom the deposit lies in his capacity as depositee. The starting point of limitation under Art. 60 is the date when the demand is made. Such a demand must be an unqualified demand for the whole sum due. A claim to deposit not addressed to depositees but put forward in written statement in a suit in which both the claimant and the depositee are co-defendants is not a demand of the nature contemplated by Art. 60. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 173=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 602=182 Ind. Cas. 718.

——Art. 60—Claim in insolvency—If "demand".

Where a banker with whom money is deposited on current account is adjudged insolvent, tender of proof of debt by creditor and claim made by him in insolvency is not a demand within the meaning of Art. 60. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 335=1938 Rang. L.R. 468 =179 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 60—Demand—Demand for partial payment.

The demand contemplated by Art. 60 is clearly a demand for the re-payment of the whole amount of the deposit due, and not a demand for partial payment. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 335=1938 Rang. L. R. 468=179 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 60—Demand, meaning of.

——Art. 60—Demand.

Demands properly so called should be distinguished from requests for money on account. 63 Ind. Cas. 759=25 C.W.N. 981=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 644.

5. Deposit.

——Art. 60—Deposit—Onus.

The burden of proving that a particular transaction was one of deposit is on the person alleging the same and the answer to the question whether that burden has or has not been discharged must depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. A.I.R. 1939 All. 378=1939 A.W.R. 304=184 Ind. Cas. 559.

——Art. 60—Interest on deposit.

The ordinary rule is that the cause of action for recovery of principal and of interest accruing due on it is a single cause of action and where the claim is a single claim for principal and interest, two periods of limitation are not applicable. Thus, in a case falling under Art. 60, that article applies to the principal as well as to the interest. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 129=6 B.R. 153=185 Ind. Cas. 339.

——Art. 60—Deposit—Effect of family settlement.

Certain amount stood as deposit in the name of A with a banker firm. There was a dispute regarding this amount which was settled by a family settlement whereby a portion of the money was to go to A and was payable to the banker firm and the rest of the money was to go to B. A subsequently sued the firm and B, for recovering the amount of the deposit still standing in his name:

Held, that the nature of the deposit did not change after the family settlement and it still remained as a deposit payable on demand to A. The suit was, therefore, governed by Art. 60. (1937) M.W.N. 1 M.L.J. 56=176 Ind. Cas. 617.

——Art. 60—Deposit — Insolvency of depositee and subsequent annulment of adjudication—Effect of.

Where a deposit is made with a person who is subsequently adjudged insolvent and later on the adjudication is annulled and the property is handed back to him, the deposit does not lose its character as such and assume that of a mere loan. 1938 Rang. L.R. 468=A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 335=179 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 60—When the defendant admits the deposit of money and issue of Pass Book and the plaintiff has been operating on account, a suit by plaintiff for balance of amount due on deposit is governed by Art. 60. 1936 M.W.N. 948.

——Art. 60—Deposit—Tests.

For the purposes of Art. 60, in ordinary and popular language, the money of a customer standing to his credit in the accounts of a banker is money deposited although for certain other purposes, the term 'deposit' is limited to goods which are placed in the custody of a person with a view to their being returned in specie. For determining if the money has been deposited within the meaning of Art. 60, it ought to be seen whether what happened between the parties was of the nature of that sort of current account which a customer keeps with his banker. The use of any specific form of words in the hathchitha to state in express terms that the money was money deposited is not necessary if the course of business between the parties establishes that in fact it was so. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 539=3 B.R. 59=15 Pat. 709=18 P.L.T. 79=165 Ind. Cas. 593.

——Art. 60—Deposit — Construction of transaction.

The plaintiff deposited in 1899, with defendants, a firm consisting of her brothers, a certain sum of money which had been given to her by her father's family as stridanam for investment in the firm. A suit was filed by the plaintiff for recovery of the amount in 1925:

Held, that the transaction was in the nature of a trust and attracted application of Art. 120. But assuming there was no trust, the money was clearly deposited under an agreement that it should be payable on demand within the meaning of Art. 60 and in either view the suit was within time. 63 M.L.J. 232=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 685=(1932) M.W.N. 915=36 L.W. 514=139 Ind. Cas. 164.

——Art. 60—Deposit.

The mord "deposit" in Art. 60 covers all payments of the customer's moneys made to the banker which make up the credit balance in favour of a customer in the banker's hands. 102 Ind. Cas. 408 =29 Bom. L.R. 423=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 362.

——Art. 60—Deposit with banker — Suit for recovery—Limitation.

Where the deposit is in the nature of a banking deposit the depositee stands in a fiduciary relation to the depositor, and a suit to recover it, is governed by Art. 60. 1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 13=52 Ind. Cas. 25.

——Art. 60—Deposit repayable on demand—Money deposited on the understanding that it was to be paid on demand after a certain time.

Money deposited on the understanding that it was to be paid on demand after a certain period does not cease to be a deposit within Art. 60 of the Limitation Act. Where money is deposited with a firm in the name of a maral B, the maral man B is neither the trustee in respect of the money nor has he any right to operate on it. The firm remains and is liable to A alone. 24 M.L.T. 264 =(1918) M.W.N. 564=8 L.W. 221=47 Ind. Cas. 948.

——Arts. 60 and 145—Deposit — Returnable on demand.

A suit to recover money left by plaintiff with defendant to be repaid on demand and to be kept in deposit till then, is governed by Art. 60. S. 10 or Art. 145 of the Limitation Act do not apply. Art. 145 cannot be applied to a deposit of money except in the case of coins which are ear-marked and where it is the intention of the parties that the identical coins should be returned to the depositor. 65 P.L.R. 1918=4 P.R. 1919=166 P.W.R. 1918 =47 Ind. Cas. 592.

——Art. 60—Deposit—Third persons.

Where money has been given to the defendant by a third person on behalf of the plaintiff, a suit to recover the money from the defendant is governed by Art. 60 as it amounts to a deposit. 19 B. 352 and 28 Ind. Cas. 688, Followed. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 206 =19 M.L.T. 237=34 Ind. Cas. 347.

——Arts. 60 and 59—Deposit, meaning of—Non-banker trader—Nature of relationship.

Money in the hands of a trader, who is not a banker, will be a deposit within Art. 60 if the circumstances point to the conclusion. 39 Mad. 1081 =30 M.L.J. 245=19 M.L.T. 129=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 186=3 L.W. 168=32 Ind. Cas. 965.

——Art. 60—Deposit for investment—Limitation.

A person entrusted his nephew who was carrying a money lending business with some money for investment and the latter accordingly first deposited the amount with the third party but subsequently withdrew it and invested it in his own firm. There was no evidence as to the exact terms on which the money was handed over.

Held, the presumption in the circumstances was that the money was deposited on terms that it should be payable on demand and as such the claim for its recovery was governed by Art. 60 of the Limitation Act. 28 M.L.J. 372=17 M.L.T. 266=28 Ind. Cas. 688.

——Art. 60—Deposit — Meaning of—Demand.

Deposit is not confined to dealings with bankers and has no technical meaning. Limitation for recovery of a deposit of money with a private money-lender runs from the date of demand. Absence of express words for payment on demand is insufficient to take a case out of Art. 60. (1913) M. W. N. 218=19 Ind. Cas. 3.

——Art. 60—A transaction by which a sum of money is lodged with a person as dowry for a young girl of four years under circumstances which indicate that all the parties intended that the money was to remain with the lodgee for an indefinitely long period is a deposit and the article applicable is Art. 60 of the Limitation Act. (1903) 5 Bom. L. R. 511.

——Arts. 60 and 63—Deposit with trustee—Thavanai — Suit for recovery of principal and interest.

A suit to recover a deposit with a Nattukottai Chetty on Thavanai terms, is governed by Art. 60, both as regards principal and interest. The next reversioner of a Hindu can successfully bring a suit against the trustee to recover a certain sum with interest deposited with him for the deceased widow's maintenance, by the family members of the deceased, even if the widow did not claim any more. Because the widow's silence amounts to acquiescence in the interest being treated as part of her husband's estate. This suit is governed by Art. 60 of Limitation Act, as the interest is an increment to the deposit according to the agreement of the parties. 43 Mad. 629=11 L.W. 418=(1920) M.W.N. 248=38 M.L.J. 437=58 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Art. 60—Deposit — Thavanai — Limitation.

In the absence of evidence as to the terms of the loan, deposits made with Nattukottai Chettiers who are Indian Bankers on thavanai are deposits payable on demand and suits for their recovery are governed by Art. 60 of the Limitation Act. On the facts of the case held that the money was payable at the end of thavanai period and was not a deposit payable on demand. 10 L.W. 67=52 Ind. Cas. 456.

——Arts. 60 and 115 — Deposit — Thavanai — Suit for recovery of money — Nattukottai Chetties.

The article applicable to thavanai transactions, if they realy mean that the deposit amount is to be repaid whenever demanded, is Art. 60. But if the money is to be repaid at the end of the thavanai period which is current when the demand is made, they are governed by the residuary Art. 115. 1918 M.W.N. 242=7 L.W. 330=43 Ind. Cas. 972.

——Arts. 60 and 115—Deposit — Thavanai.

A certain amount was deposited at two months thavanai interest. The terms of the deposit showed that interest was to be calculated at Thavanai interest at two months rest. It was repayable either on demand or after the current Thavanai year. In the former case Art. 60, Limitation Act, applied. In the latter Art. 115 applied. 6 L.W. 687=(1917) M. W.N. 858=42 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Arts. 60, 115 and 57 — Deposit — Thavanai account — Meaning of—Limitation.

The relationship between the parties to a Thavanai account is that of lender and borrower. The money is to be paid at a fixed period after two months and unless the lender demands it the loan is taken to be extended for next two months. It was held that Art. 57 and not Arts. 60 and 115 applied to a suit brought on Thavanai account. 8 L.B.R. 526=10 Bur.L.T. 53=36 Ind. Cas. 497.

6. Deposit and loan.

——Art. 60—Deposit — Trust — When created —Deposit in confidence and not as loan—Nature of—Liability to account.

Where one person deposits money with another in confidence, and not because the latter was in need of money and therefore borrowed it from the former the deposit is one made in trust and the depositee stands in a fiduciary relation to the depositor and is liable to render an account to the depositor. I. L. R. (1947) Bom. 162=48 Bom.L.R. 795=A. I. R. 1947 Bom. 255.

——Art. 60—Deposit and loan.

When A hands over money to B and it is agreed between them that A should take back from B as much money as might be required by him from time to time and that he should receive payment according to his needs from time to time and there is no agreement that the whole money would be payable within a certain period, there is no obligation on B to seek out A and repay him; he is to keep the money until asked for it. The transaction in such a case is a deposit and not a loan. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 101= 1944 N.L.J. 83=I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 462=212 Ind. Cas. 76.

——Art. 60—Deposit and loan—Distinction.

The terms, "a loan" and "a deposit payable on demand" are not mutually exclusive. A deposit of money is not confined to a bailment of specific currency to be returned in specie. As in the case of a deposit with a banker, it does not necessarily involve the erection of a trust, but may involve only the creation of the relation of debtor and creditor, a loan under conditions. The distinction which is perhaps the most obvious is that the deposit not for a fixed term does not impose an immediate obligation on the depositee to seek out the depositor and repay him. He is to keep the money till asked for it. A demand by the depositor would, therefore, be a normal condition of the obligation of the depositee to repay.

One R was a minor when his father died and relied very much on A subsequently. He had claims against certain firms of which his father had been a partner, and he recovered certain amounts from them from time to time with the help of A and handed them over to A who put them into his bank account and credit them to R. The evidence showed that whenever A paid any of these moneys to R, it was because R had asked for them. There was nothing in the evidence to suggest that A ever "sought out" R to repay him:

Held, that this was not a case disclosing any duty on the bailee of the moneys to seek out his bailor and repay him, but only a duty to repay if and when the bailor requested repayment. These bailments being deposits, the suit by R to recover the amounts on A's failure to pay them on demand was governed by Art. 60, Limitation Act and not by Arts. 59 or 57. A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 132=1940 A.W.R. 138= 1940 O.W.N. 778=44 C.W.N. 1041=6 B.R. 852= 52 L.W. 388=(1940) A.L.J. 612=72 C.L.J. 435 =(1940) M.W.N. 1000=I.L.R.(1940) Kar. (P. C.) 277 Sup.=42 Bom.L.R. 971=189 Ind. Cas. 444 (P.C.).

——Art. 60—Desposit or loan—Test.

The true test to determine whether a particular transacton is one of loan or one of deposit is to ascertain whether the money paid or deposited was in the nature of an advance of loan so as to create the relationship of creditor and debtor between the parties or was merely a deposit without bringing into existence such a relationship. A.I.R. 1939 All. 376 =1939 A.W.R. 304=184 Ind. Cas. 559.

——Art. 60—Deposit—Construction.

Where a certain amount is deposited with a firm and a memorandum evidencing the depoist addressed to the firm and executed by the depositor, is to the effect: "The sum of Rs. 1,000 that you have deposited (jama kiya hai) with me will be handed over to you whenever you demand the same and I will pay you interest at the rate of 12 annas per cent. per mensem", the transaction is one of deposit and not of a loan. A suit for the recovery of the amount is governed by Art. 60. The fact that there is an undertaking to pay interest does not convert the transaction into a loan. A.I.R. 1939 All. 378= 1939 A.W.R. 304=184 Ind. Cas. 559.

——Art. 60—Deposit and loan—Distinction.

The distinction between a loan and a deposit is that in the case of a loan, it is ordinarily the duty of debtor to seek out the creditor and to re-pay the money according to the agreement. In the case of a deposit, it is the duty of the depositor to go for the money to the banker or the depositee and to make a demand for it. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 81=39 P.L.R. 377=171 Ind. Cas. 506.

——Art. 60—Deposit and loan—Distinction.

The two terms "loan" and "deposit payable on demand" are not mutually exclusive. A deposit of money is not confined to a bailment of specific currency to be returned in specie. As in the case of a deposit with a banker, it does not necessarily involve the creation of a trust, but may involve only the creation of the relation of debtor and creditor, a loan under conditions. The distinction which is perhaps the most obvious is that the deposit, not for a fixed term, does not impose an immediate obligation on the depositee to seek out the depositor and re-pay him. He is to keep the money till asked for. A demand by the depositor would, therefore, seem to be a normal condition of the obligation of the depositee to repay. A.I.R. 1936 P.C. 171=44 L. W., 23=40 C.W.N. 997=(1936) M.W.N. 660=17 P. L.T. 513=38 Bom.L.R. 739=2 B.R. 588=63 C.L. J. 541=(1936) A.L.J. 986=17 L. 557=1936 A. W.R. 931=71 M.L.J. 712=38 P.L.R. 1006=63 I. A. 275=162 Ind. Cas. 454 (P.C.).

——Art. 60—Deposit and loan—Distinction between.

It is not clear what the Legislature meant by the word "deposited" in Art. 60 but there must be some difference between "money lent" and "money deposited" and one can only assume that a plaintiff relying upon Art. 60 must prove that something took place between the parties at the time the money passed which would constitute the handing over of the money "a deposit," and "not a loan". Ordinarily when A hands over money to B on the understanding that it is not a gift, but was to be re-paid when demanded, that would be considered in law "a loan"; and when the plaintiff seeks to prove that the money so handed over was a deposit, the onus would lie upon him to prove that there are additional circumstances which turned the "loan" into a "deposit',' there is no distinction in the Act between the money lent and money deposited with regard to the agreement to re-pay. So that it is not the agreement that the money should be payable on demand that distinguishes a deposit from a loan. There must be something further proved, and it is not possible to define exactly what that something further must be. It has sometimes been suggested that facts must be proved which create a sort of fiduciary relationship between the lender and the borrower. It cannot be said that that is always necessary. 73 Ind. Cas. 978=25 Bom.L.R. 503=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 28.

——Art. 60—A suit to recover money alleged to have been deposited by the mother of the plaintiffs with the defendant is governed by Art. 60, and not Art. 59, the transaction being a deposit and not a loan in the ordinary sense of the term. (1932) A. L.J. 261=140 Ind. Cas. 96.

——Art. 60—Deposit, what is—Relationship of Banker and customer essential.

Where a partner opened a separate account in his daughter's name in partnership books, and the account had been made up every year and interest added to it and the balance carried forward to the new years and there were payments of small sums of money from time to time and a withdrawal of Rs. 100,

Held, that the account was not merely a loan to the firm but comes within the definition of a deposit under Art. 60 being moneys of a customer in the hands of his banker payable on demand, Really there is no distinction between a deposit and a loan because they are both moneys lent by customer to the bank, but it is necessary for the purpose of considering whether Art. 60 applies to see whether the relationship of customer and banker arose between these parties. 102 Ind. Cas. 145=29 Bom. L.R. 427=A. I.R. 1927 Bom. 433.

——Art. 60—Deposit or loan—Duty of Court.

If the plaintiff's witness took a mistaken view as to the nature of the transaction and misdescribed it as a loan, that would not, in law, prevent the Judge from determining whether the money in question represented a deposit or a loan, nor would it alter the legal rights of the parties. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 261 =20 P.L.T. 84=5 B.R. 836=182 Ind. Cas. 831.

7. Fixed Deposit.

——Art. 60—Fixed deposit.

The plaintiff, after the death of her father, obtained a succession certificate and brought a suit to recover her shares in the deposit alleged to have been made by her father with the defendant. It was contended that the money which was in dispute represented a loan and not a deposit and reliance was placed on the statement made by one of the witnesses for the plaintiff in a previous suit to the effect that the plaintiff's father had lent the money to the defendant. The trial Court held that the money was deposited for a fixed period:

Held, that after the expiry of the fixed period, the amount deposited must be deemed to be payable on demand to the depositor and therefore, the claim for such money was governed by Art. 60. A. I. R. 1939 Pat. 261=20 P. L. T. 34=5 B.R. 836=182 Ind. Cas. 831.

——Art. 60—Where an amount of Rs. 800 was deposited and it was stipulated in the document evidencing the deposit that the money would not be withdrawn for three years and that after three years it could be withdrawn by the six persons jointly, that interest would be paid periodically in the meantime and that if an amount up to Rs. 100 be required for the minor, it would be withdrawn by these specified depositors:

Held, that the transaction was a deposit on the stipulation that it shall carry interest at a specified rate and shall be payable to the depositors on demand and with a further stipulation that a demand shall not be made within three years and Art. 60 applied to the transaction. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 81 =39 P.L.R. 377=171 Ind. Cas. 506.

——Arts. 60, 66 and 115—Fixed Deposit.

Where a deposit is for a fixed period, the money is payable at the specified time viz., at the expiry of that fixed period and the articles applicable is not Art. 60, but either Art. 66 or Art. 115. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 338=164 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 60—Fixed Deposit.

The money invested in fixed deposit in a bank is not money payable on demand but money payable at a specified time and consequently Art. 60 cannot apply to a suit to recover the same. 1930 A.L.J. 1157 =128 Ind. Cas. 772=A.I.R. 1931 A. 59.

8. Implied agreement.

——Art. 60—Implied agreement.

The agreement that the money shall be payable on demand within Art. 60 need not be an express agreement. It can be an implied agreement, and often is implied from the circumstances of the deposit. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 42=180 Ind. Cas. 300 (D.B.).

——Art. 60—Implied agreement to repay on demand.

Where it is alleged that the plaintiff deposited certain amounts with the defendant and on his refusal to re-pay them when demanded, filed a suit, on the finding that there was a deposit with the defendant, in the absence of anything to the contrary, an implied agreement to repay on demand must be presumed and the suit is governed by Art. 60. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 179=35 P.L.R. 91=147 Ind. Cas. 338. See also (1913) M.W.N. 218 under Note 5.

——Art. 60—Implied agreement.

In order to make Art. 60 applicable, it is necessary that the agreement to pay the amount due on demand must be "expressed", and its provisions are not attracted even if the agreement is to be "implied" from the course of dealings between the parties or the other circumstances of the case. 15 L. 242=A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 42=37 P.L.R. 56=151 Ind. Cas. 712.

9. Registered agreement.

——Arts. 60 and 116—Limitation.

Where the claim for refund of money deposited is based on a registered agreement, the limitation of three years from the date when the demand is made under Art. 60 may be extended to six years under Art. 116 from the date of such demand. A.I.R. 1944 All. 241=(1944) A.L.J. 339=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 175=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 252=I.L.R. (1944) All. 554.

——Art. 60—Under a registered agreement it was agreed that M should deposit Rs. 600 with A and that A should pay an annuity of Rs. 36 to M for life. On the death of M, the annuity of Rs. 36 was to discontinue but A was to refund the deposit to M's heirs. In case A failed to make the refund, he was to continue to pay Rs. 36 to M's heirs so long as the refund was not made. On M's death, neither the refund was made nor was the annuity paid. His heirs, therefore, brought a suit for refund of the deposit and for annuity for a period of 12 years prior to the suit. The claim for refund of deposit was held to be barred by limitation under Arts. 60 and 116:

Held, that as the claim for the refund of the deposit was barred and the annuity could not be claimed separately, the plaintiffs had no right to claim the annuity. A.I.R. 1944 All. 241=(1944) A.L.J. 339=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 175=I.L.R. (1944) All. 554=1944 O.W.N. (H.C.) 252.

10. Starting point.

——Art. 60—The period of limitation prescribed in Art. 60 is three years and not six years, and the terminus a quo is not the date of the last balance but the date "when the demand is made." A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 42=15 L. 242=37 P.L.R. 56=151 Ind. Cas. 712.

11. Suit without demand.

——Art. 60—On the finding that there was a deposit with the defendant, in the absence of anything to the contrary, an implied agreement to repay on demand must be presumed and the suit to cover the deposit is governed by Art. 60. Even if no demand has been made, the plaintiff should not be non-suited on that ground as the bringing of the suit would itself constitute a demand, and the only thing that the Court can normally do is not to allow the plaintiff his costs because of the absence of demand. 35 P.L.R. 91=A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 179 =147 Ind. Cas. 338.

——Art. 60—Under Art 60, the period of limitation for a suit to recover money deposited under an agreement that it shall be payable on demand, is three years from the date when the demand is made. The making of the demand is entirely dependent upon the volition of the plaintiff and the period of limitation may be indefinitely prolonged and a suit may be instituted without even a demand being made in which case no question of limitation arises. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 701=147 Ind. Cas. 1094.

1. Applicability and Scope.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Applicability—Suit to recover money advanced for minor's necessaries.

Art. 61 applies to a suit under S. 68, Contract Act. A suit, therefore, to recover money paid for minor's necessaries is governed by Art. 61 and not by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 106=50 L.W. 323=(1939) M.W.N. 798=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 27=190 Ind. Cas. 101.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Payment by third person—Suit for compensation under S. 70 of the Contract Act—Article applicable.

Art. 61 can be applied to cases under S. 70 of the Contract Act where the payments made by the plaintiff produced an immediate benefit to the defendant as in cases of Government revenue or of decree amounts, but the article will not apply when the benefit will only arise at a subsequent stage and plaintiff's cause of action will not be complete till the subsequent stage is reached. To such cases Art. 120 applies. 45 Ind. Cas. 786 (Mad.).

——Arts. 61 and 120—Plea of set-off in defence—Limitation..

Certain property was held jointly by plaintiff and defendant. In a suit for mesne profits by the plaintiff against the defendant, the defendant claimed to set off certain amount due from the plaintiff to him, towards the costs of certain constructions made by him The claim to set off was made by the defendant within six years of the commencement of such constructions:

Held, that Art. 120 was applicable to such a claim and not Art. 61, as the defendant's claim was not for money that the plaintiff should have paid to a third party, but for money spent by the defendant on behalf of and for the benefit of the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 394=1937 O.W.N. 831=13 Luck. 323=168 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Art. 61—Scope.

Where a person has two causes of action, one when a contract is broken and another arising when he pays money which defendant is legally bound to pay and he sues on the second, the suit is governed by Art. 61, though the suit for damages arising out of the first cause of action is barred. 20 N.L.J. 73=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 152=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 437=169 Ind. Cas. 298.

——Arts. 61, 96 and 120—Scope.

In February 1919, R and N borrowed Rs. 5,000 on a promissory note from J and M. A few months later J realised Rs. 5,000 on account of this promissory note from R and N by means of a draft on them. In 1925, J and M instituted a suit for recovery of Rs. 7,700 alleged to be due from R and N on the basis of the promissory note. The defence of the defendants was that the promissory note had been discharged by the payment in 1919. The case of J and M was that the payment on account of the draft in 1919, was on another account. This, however, was found by the Court to be false and it was held that the payment had been made on account of the promissory note. It was also held that J had no authority to receive payment on behalf of M. Consequently, the suit by J was dismissed to the extent of half the claim. It was decreed in favour of M for half the amount in suit. The decree by the trial Court was on 10th April, 1926. An appeal was preferred by R and N and on 11th December, 1928, it was remanded and finally the High Court dismissed the appeal on 29th January, 1931. In consequence, the decree which had been awarded against R and N was executed by the decree-holder M and Rs. 1,200 was recovered by him in February, June, July and October, 1932. A suit was then instituted by R and N for recovery of Rs. 1,200 from J on the ground that the payment of the share of M due under the promissory note to J had been found to be illegal by the Courts and the plaintiffs had been made to pay Rs. 1,200 twice over and were, therefore entitled to a decree against him for that amount:

Held, that if Art. 96 did not apply to the case, then probably it was Art. 120 that would apply. It was doubtful if the case was covered by Art. 61; but in either case time would begin to run either from the payment of Rs. 1,200 or from the date of the decree of the High Court, which was passed on 29th January, 1931, and under neither of the articles was the period of limitation less than three years and consequently the suit was within time. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 747=168 Ind. Cas. 446.

——Art. 61—Applicability — Suit for money spent by Receiver in instituting suit to recover amounts due to estate.

When a Receiver or Manager is appointed by the Court, he is appointed on behalf of all persons interested in the property. Consequently, the expenses incurred by the Receiver of an estate in instituting a suit to recover money due to the estate are incurred for and on behalf of the person who owns the estate and they come within the meaning of 'money payable to the plaintiff for money paid for the defendant" within the meaning of Art. 61. A suit for recovery of such amounts is governed by Art. 61. The fact that the Receiver was also benefited by the suit does not make it any way the less a suit on behalf of the owner of the estate. (1935) M.W.N. 598=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 594=69 M.L.J. 539=42 L.W. 680=157 Ind. Cas. 746.

——Arts. 61, 52 and 83—Scope.

The plaintiffs instituted a suit against the defendants alleging that the latter had purchased certain goods; that the defendants wrongly got the transaction entered in the plaintiff's name: and that in consequence had suffered a decree to be passed for the price of the goods against the plaintiffs. As the decree was the result of the defendant's wrongful action, the plaintiffs claimed to be entitled to realise from the defendants the amount of the decree, for which they had become liable:

Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 52 or Art. 83 of the Limitation Act, but by Art. 61 A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 404=147 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Art. 61—Applicability — Redemption by purchaser—Purchase set aside — Suit for reimbursement.

A suit for reimbursement by a purchaser, whose purchase has been set aside as a sham transaction, of the sum of money he had paid for the redemption of an undisclosed mortgage on the property is governed by Art. 61. 128 Ind. Cas. 907=32 Bom.L. R. 1376=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 39.

——Art. 61—Supurdar—Money expended to protect property—Claim for.

There was a dispute between A and B, and C was put in charge of the property as a supurdar pending the determination of the right of A and B. After these rights were determined and C had restored possession, C was sued for their wages by two watchman whom he had appointed to watch the standing crop. C paid up the decrees and instituted a suit against A and B for recovery of the money he had to pay to the watchmen,

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 61 or Art. 120 and not by Art. 102. C was entitled to be reimbursed by A and B. The cause of action in favour of C arose when he paid up the decrees, and suit by him within three years of payment was in time. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 420=7 O.W.N. 760= 128 Ind. Cas. 66.

——Art. 61—Puisne mortgagee paying prior mortgagee.

Where the subsequent mortgagee himself pays the amount of the prior mortgage which the mortgagor is bound by law to pay, the case is governed by Art. 61 being money payable to the plaintiff for money paid for the defendant. A suit brought more than three years after such payment is barred. 1930 A. L.J. 57=A.I.R. 1929 All. 943.

——Art. 61—A suit by a puisne mortgagee against the mortgagor to recover personally from him the amount paid by the puisne mortgagee to discharge a decree on a prior mortgage is governed by Art. 61 of the Limitation Act. 63 Ind. Cas. 604= 44 All. 67=19 A.L.J. 840=A.I.R. 1922 All. 153.

——Art. 61—Suit to recover deposit under O. 21, R. 89, C. P. Code.

Until a sale is confirmed it does not transfer the interest of the judgment-debtor to the auction- purchaser and, therefore, a deposit under O. 21, R. 89 by a purchaser an equity of redemption after sale has been effected in execution of a mortgage-decree saves the right of redemption from coming to an end. A suit therefore to recover such amount deposited from the mortgagors is not covered by Art. 61, Limitation Act. 116 Ind. Cas. 297=51 All. 606= 1929 A.L.J. 419=A.I.R. 1929 All. 309.

——Art. 61—Money decree satisfied by another—Suit for reimbursement.

The discharge of a money-decree, which might be realized in execution by the sale of immovable properties of the judgment-debtor does not give a person making the payment a charge. The claim is personal claim and Art. 61, Limitation Act is applicable when the case cannot be brought under Art. 132. 110 Ind. Cas. 613=[illegible]28 M.W.N. 393=28 M.L.W. 182=51 Mad. 815=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 820=55 M.L.J. 436.

——Art. 61—Mortgage debt paid by another.

Where a person having no interest in the property pays money to liquidate a mortgage decree against the property, his claim to recover the amount is governed by Art. 61. 78 Ind. Cas. 738=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 132.

——Arts. 61 and 132—

L purchased an oil-well subject to a mortgage in favour of B and right of pre-emption in favour of N. He made payments to the mortgagee B in part satisfaction of the mortgage-decree on the oil-well, such payments being necessary to save the oil-well,

Held, that L had a charge for the amounts paid, as against N who exercised his right of pre-emption as well as against person claiming through N,

Held, further that Art. 132 applied and not Art. 61. 79 Ind. Cas. 766=1 Rang. 714=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 204.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Fine for mis-use of land by another—Suit to recover.

Where the defendant used the plaintiff's land without his permission for non-agricultural purposes and in consequence thereof the plaintiff had to pay fine to Government and the plaintiff sued the defendant for recovery thereof,

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not 61. A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 257.

——Arts. 61 and 81—Surety.

Where in a suit for recovery of money paid by plaintiffs on defendant's behalf the plaintiffs come into Court asserting that they had been obliged to pay the money as sureties and their whole cause of action is that they had been treated as sureties for defendant, Article 81 and not Art. 61 will apply 67 Ind. Cas. 365=35 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 335.

——Art. 61—A was bound under an award to clear a certain canal and was entitled to recover a part of the expenditure from B at the beginning of the work. The suit by A to recover the amount from B is governed by Art. 61 as the clearance expenses were money paid by A for B. 60 Ind. Cas. 971= 14 S.L.R. 219.

——Art. 61—Husband and wife — Divorced wife Arrears of maintenance.

A claim by a divorced Mahomedan wife to recover arrears of maintenance for the child is governed by Art. 61. 21 Bom.L.R. 713=51 Ind Cas. 968.

——Arts. 61, 81 and 120—Execution of bond in discharge of decree.

If a third person executes a bond in discharge of a decree against A, the cause of action for him to recover the amount of the bond from A arises on the date of execution of the bond, and not on the date on which he actually pays off the decree-holder under the bond. Such a suit would be governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 61 or 81 and the period of limitation is to be computed from the date of the bond. 146 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 1041.

——Arts. 61 and 131 — Cash allowance—Tasdik —Arrears of cash allowance, suit to recover—Periodically recurring right.

The plaintiff the manager of a temple, sued the managers of another temple to recover from them the arrears for six years of a cash allowance (tasdik) due to the plaintiff's temple from year to year from the defendant's temple. The defendants admitted the plaintiff's claim but pleaded the bar of limitation with respect to two out of the six years. The lower Courts, held that Art. 131 applied to the case and decreed the plaintiff's claim in full. On appeal

Held, that the claim was governed by Art. 131, and it was rightly decreed. The important question in all these cases is, who is the person sued and what is it that is sued for? If what is sued for is the establishment of a title to the right itself, then Art. 131 applies, whether the defendant is the person originally liable to pay or is a co-sharer who has received payment from that person. If, on the other hand, what is sued for is the amount of arrears, which has become actually payable to the plaintiff, then there is a distinction between the person originally liable to pay and a co-sharer of the plaintiff, who has actually received payment from that person. Art. 131 applies in that case to the person originally liable to pay and Art. 62 applies to the co-sharer who has received the payment. A cash allowance of the nature such as we have in the present case is according to Hindu Law, nibhanda or immovable property. Where is is annually payable, the right to payment gives to the person entitled a periodically recurring right as against the person liable to pay. The right to any amount which has become payable stands as to such person on the same footing as the aggregate of right to amounts which are to become payable and which have become actually due. But where there are more than one person entitled to the payment as co-sharers and the payment is made to one of them by the person liable to pay, the co-sharer receiving the amount holds it, minus his share on behalf of the rest, as money had and received for their uses, though as to him, with reference to the aggregate of rights, it is nibhanda or immoveable property in the nature of a periodically recurring right. (1910) 12 Bom.L.R. 157=34 B. 349=5 Ind. Cas. 869.

——Arts. 61 and 83—Limitation — Suit on bond to recover money of which a third party has in fact had the benefit—Compromise of suit by heirs of obligor — Suit to recover money paid under compromise.

U. S. borrowed money on a bond from U. R. The sole obligor of the bond was U. S. but the money was in fact borrowed for the use of, and was paid to one, M. From time to time the original bond was renewed, and ultimately U.R. sued upon the last bond and obtained a decree for a large sum of money against the heirs of U.S. The defendants appealed to the High Court, but pending the appeal entered into a compromise with the plaintiff on the 2nd of January 1900, whereby they agreed to pay to the plaintiff the sum of Rs. 51,000 and costs of the High Court. On the 5th of November 1902 the heirs of U. S. paid to the plaintiff decree-holder in pursuance of this compromise Rs. 40,000 and on the 17th of July, 1903 they instituted a suit against M to recover the amount so paid, and their costs.

Held, that on the facts U.S. was not a surety for M, but the principal debtor, although the money was borrowed for M's benefit; that the payment made on the 5th of November, 1902, in pursuance of the compromise referred to above was not gratuitous, and that the heirs of U. S. were entitled to recover from M the sum of Rs. 40,000 so paid with interest, but not the costs of the High Court, in respect of which the suit was barred. 1907 A.W.N. 214=4 A.L.J. 501=29 A. 627.

2. Contribution.

——Art. 61—Applicability.

Suit by sadar lambardar against some co-sharers of patti—Satisfaction of decree by one co-sharer only—Suit by such co-sharer against others including co-sharers not impleaded in former suit, for contribution on principle of subrogation or re-imbursement brought within 3 years of payments made by plaintiff co-sharer—Suit held, was governed by Art. 61, Limitation Act and was within time. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 111=1942 N.L.J. 267=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 393=201 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Suits for contribution.

A claim for contribution in respect of a share of the amount spent by the plaintiff for purchase of stamps for a sale certificate issued in respect of properties jointly purchased by him and the defendant is not governed by Art. 61 but by Art. 120. (1940) 2 M. L. J. 494=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 96=52 L.W. 508=(1940) M.W.N. 982=193 Ind. Cas. 823.

——Art. 61—Article 61 is applicable to a suit for contribution by a partner of a firm who has paid the whole or more than his share of the amount due from all the partners. 72 Ind. Cas. 385=5 L.L.J. 310=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 112.

——Arts. 61 and 115—Where plaintiff and defendant were jointly interested in redeeming a mortgage and plaintiff himself filed a suit for redemption and redeemed the mortgage and then sued the defendant for his share of the costs of the litigation and the redemption money,

Held, that in the absence of a finding of a contract to pay at the conclusion of a litigation, defendant's liability to pay cannot be postponed till the conclusion of the litigation. The suit for the recovery of a share of costs and money due for redemption is barred under Art. 61 or 115 if brought more than three years after payment. 70 Ind. Cas. 289=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 79.

——Art. 61—Starting point — Words "money is paid" mean actual and not notional payment.

The expression "when the money is paid" means actual payment and not merely a notional payment which a renewal implies. Thus, where a member of a Hindu joint family renews a promissory note for a family debt and pays it off ultimately, the limitation for a suit for contribution from the rest of the family begins to run from the date when the debt is paid off and not from the date of the renewal. A I. R. 1946 All. 142=(1945) All. L.J. 488=(1945) O.W.N. (H.C.) 318.

——Arts. 61 and 99—Starting point of limitation.

Where a co-sharer pays off arrears of rent or revenue to avert sale of the estate, the payment in excess of his share will be considered to be for others and the limitation for a suit to recover the same personally from others runs from the date of payment. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 782=44 L.W. 135=(1936) M. W. N. 658.

——Art. 61—Contribution.

Under Art. 61 the period for recovery of a sum paid by the plaintiff for the use of the defendant is three years from the date when the money is paid. Therefore in a suit for contribution by a co-mortgagee against his co-mortgagee, plaintiff has to establish the date when payment was made by him towards the mortgage and thereby to satisfy the Court that his claim for recovery of that amount was within limitation. 99 Ind. Cas. 271=3 O. W. N. 968.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Plaintiffs and defendants were joint owners of a tank in a Municipality. As the tank was in an insanitary condition, the Municipality ordered the tank to be filled up. Plaintiffs filled up the tank,

Held, that the liability of the defendants to contribute did not arise in successive fragments as plaintiffs paid money to the contractor from day to day; the liability arose when the tank was filled up and the contemplated benefit conferred. In such circumstances Art. 120 and not Art. 61 was applicable, and the time ran against the plaintiffs from the date of completion of the work. 62 Ind. Cas. 615=25 C. W. N. 813=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 93.

——Art. 61—Joint liability — Excess payment by plaintiff—Suit for contribution.

Where, of two persons under a joint liability to pay a sum of money to a third, one of them paid more than what was legally due for his share and brought a suit for contribution in respect of the excess payment, the suit is governed by Art. 61. Limitation began to run from the date of the last payment made by the plaintiff and any later payment made by the defendant towards the joint liability would not enure for the benefit of the plaintiff or save limitation. 25 M.L.T. 295=9 L.W. 82=(1919) M.W.N. 429=52 Ind. Cas. 243.

——Art. 61 — Limitation — Starting point — Deposit—Appropriation.

Limitation under Art. 61 for contribution begins from the date of appropriation by the Court and not from the date of deposit of costs agreed to be borne equally between the plaintiff and defendant in a litigation. 48 Ind. Cas. 336 (Oudh.)

——Arts. 61 and 99—Joint decree—Payment by third party against plaintiff and defendant—Suit for contribution.

A payment, under Art. 61 must be made by the plaintiff and not by a third party. Where a third party pays off a joint decree against the plaintiff and the defendant and afterwards realises the whole amount from the plaintiff by sale of his properties in execution of the decree obtained against him, the limitation for a suit for contribution against the defendant commences on the date of the realisation of the third party's decree against the plaintiff by sale of his properties. 18 C.W.N. 480=20 Ind. Cas. 24.

——Arts. 61 and 99—Suit for contribution—"When the money is paid".

Art. 99 mentions a special kind of suits of which the general class is comprised in Art. 61. Each time a joint debtor pays more than his share of the debt, a case of contribution arises, and a suit in respect of each payment by plaintiff is governed by Art. 61. The words 'when the money is paid' in Art. 61, do not mean when the whole debt is paid. 13 O.C. 23 =5 Ind. Cas. 440.

——Art. 61—Co-sharer's suit for contribution—Starting point of limitation—Date of last payment.

The article applicable to a co-sharer's suit for contribution when he has paid the whole of the rent due on the land is Art. 61 and the starting point is the date of the last payment in respect of which contribution is asked for. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 903.

3. Guardian and Ward.

——Art. 61 and 120—Applicability.

Certificated guardian spending money out of his own pocket for benefit of minor—Minor attaining majority and Court ordering guardian to deliver possession of property to minor—Amount spent by guardian for benefit of minor still due—Suit for recovery of that amount—Article 61 held, not applicable and Art. 120 applied. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 394=41 Bom. L.R. 585=184 Ind. Cas. 611.

——Art. 61—Starting point — De facto guardian —Suit.

Where a de facto guardian spends money for the ward and sues for the same, he is only in the position of a person advancing monies on behalf of another and therefore, Art. 61 applies to the case. There is no valid reason for holding that limitation must commence from the date of the ward's attaining majority. The time runs from the date of payment by the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 437=37 P.L.R. 246=17 L. 78=159 Ind. Cas. 203 (D.B.).

——Art. 61—Guardian and ward—Suit for recovery of money spent for ward's marriage.

For a suit by guardian for recovery of money from ward spent on his marriage, time runs from the date of marriage and not from termination of guardianship. 50 Ind. Cas. 306 (Lah.).

4. Landlord and Tenant.

——Arts. 61 and 120—Landlord and tenant—Payment by landlord — Suit to recover from tenant—Madras Local Boards Act, S. 73.

Under S. 73 of the Local Boards Act, the tenant is liable to the landlord only for the amount of cess actually paid by the landlord to the Government. The tenant is not himself liable to the Government for the cess. Suit by landlord paying the cess to Government against the tenant for recovery of the amount so paid is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and not by Art. 61. 9 L.W. 287 =(1919) M.W.N. 365=52 Ind. Cas. 468.

——Art. 61—Landlord and tenant—Suit to recover cess paid by landlord from tenant—Statutory liability.

A suit by a landlord to recover from the tenant a moiety of the road cess paid by him under the Local Boards Act, is governed by Art. 61. The Limitation Act does not make any difference between common law and statutory liability. 6 L.W. 227=22 M.L.T. 146=33 M.L.J. 369=(1917) M.W.N. 710=42 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Art. 61—Landlord and tenant—Suit by plaintiff for recovery of revenue paid by him in respect of property of which he has been dispossessed.

A suit to recover revenue paid by plaintiff while in possession of immoveable property, but of which he subsequently relinquished possession is governed by Art. 61 and the period commences from the date on which the last payment was made. 42 All. 61=17 A.L.J. 1025=1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 194=52 Ind. Cas. 632.

——Art. 61—Payment into Court—Landlord and Tenant.

Under Art. 61 payment means payment to the person to whom it is to be made or into Court on behalf of such a person and in such case limitation runs from the date when the amount is accepted by the Court and not on which it is deposited in Court.

A suit by tenant depositing the amount of a rent decree against the co-tenants and preventing the sale of tenancy, against the co-tenants, for contribution joining the landlord as a defendant in the suit with a prayer that a decree may be made against him for the refund of the amount which he might have received from the co-tenants as rent payable by them is governed, in so far as the landlord is concerned, not by Art. 61, but by Art. 120. 36 Ind. Cas. 392 (Cal.)

——Arts. 61 and 85—Suit by agent against principal.

When a commission agent purchases goods for his principal and on the principal refusing to accept some of the goods, the agent resells them, a suit for damages is not governed by Art. 61 but Art. 85. 34 Bom. L.R. 1268=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 593=140 Ind. Cas. 624.

——Arts. 61 and 83—Principal and agent.

A suit by an agent to recovery money due to him from the principal on transactions entered into on behalf of the latter is governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 61 of the Limitation Act. 31 P.L.R. 666.

——Art. 61—Principal and agent—Unauthorised borrowing by agent—Payment of principal's creditors—Suit to recover amount.

Where an agent borrows moneys without the principal's authority and pays the same to the principal's creditors the transaction falls within Art. 61 and a suit for the recovery of the amount paid is barred, if brought more than three years after the date of payment. 10 L.W. 33=52 Ind. Cas. 414.

——Art. 61—Principal and Agent—Liability.

In a suit for contribution the cause of action for principal and agent is not the same. It comes in operation only when the plaintiff was compelled to discharge and actually discharged not only his share of liability but also the defendant's liability. In such suit the nature of defendant's obligation to the plaintiff is different from that of his obligation to the principal and though the defendant might have a valid defence against the latter the same defence may not be available to him against the former. (1910) M. W. N. 839=9 M.L.T. 212=8 Ind. Cas. 1102.

——Art. 61—Principal and agent.

The article is not limited to cases of legal disabilities and covers cases of recoupment between principal and agent. Under the Article an agent appointed under a power of attorney must bring a suit within three years to recover moneys spent by him in the business of agency. 34 Mad. 167=(1910) M. W. N. 316=8 M.L.T. 194=20 M.L.J. 989=7 Ind. Cas. 399.

6. Vendor and Purchaser.

——Arts. 61 and 83—Scope — Vendor and purchaser — Direction to pay prior mortgage—Default—Suit against vendee—Limitation.

The plaintiffs sold certain lands to the defendants' predecessors in 1921, directing the latter to pay certain mortgages. The latter did not pay and a decree for redemption was passed in June, 1930. In December, 1930, the plaintiffs sued the defendants for a decree on the security of the property sold, and against the other property of the defendants for the amount they had to pay to the mortgagees. The claim was as unpaid vendors and also because plaintiffs had to pay:

Held, (i) that the claim, so far as it related to enforce the charge on the properties sold, was governed by Art. 132;

(ii) that so far as it related to the personal relief and relief against other properties of the defendants, it was governed either by Art. 118, read with Art. 83, under which the plaintiffs could bring their suit within six years from the date when they actually sustained the loss, or Art. 61 under which they could sue within three years from the date of the payment and in any case the suit was not barred. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 109=34 P.L.R. 156=14 L. 380=141 Ind. Cas. 435.

——Art. 61—Starting point—Vendee undertaking to pay creditor—Failure to pay.

Part of the consideration in case of purchase of a property was a sum of money to be paid by the vendee to the creditor of the vendor. The vendee failed to pay. On being sued by the creditor for the debt the vendor had to pay double the amount principal and interest included. In a suit by the vendor for compensation.

Held, the plaintiff's cause of action accrued to him on the date he was obliged to pay to his creditor the sum of money which the defendant was himself under an obligation to pay. 70 Ind. Cas. 582 =A.I.R. 1922 All. 409.

——Art. 61—Rent and taxes paid by vendor.

In the absence of a contract to the contrary the liability of a vendee of property or the transferee of a lease to pay rents and charges arises only on the date of sale or transfer of the lease and not the date of contract of transfer. There is no distinction between the sale of immovable property and the transfer of a lease in this respect but where the transferee enters into possession on the date of contract, he is bound to pay the charges of such property in his possession, and if the transferor pays the same, he can recover them from the transferee. Section 69, Contract Act applies to such a case. The article of Limitation Act applicable to such a suit is Art. 61 and time runs from the date of payment. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1060.

——Art. 61—Land Revenue—Vendor and purchaser.

Where a registered sale-deed provided that the purchaser should pay the revenue on the land sold, but the vendor paid the revenue on behalf of the purchaser, and sued him for revenue paid.

Held, that Art. 61 should apply and not Art. 116. 94 Ind. Cas. 1046=1926 M.W.N. 291=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 633=51 M.L.J. 159.

7. Starting point.

See also NOTES 2 TO 6.

——Art. 61—The plaintiff's cause of action, in cases where he seeks to recover the money paid by him for the defendant arises only when he has made the payment. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 404=147 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Art. 61—Starting point of limitation—Money deposited in Court.

For the purposes of Art. 61, in a case where money is deposited in Court, limitation under the article runs from the date of appropriation and not from that of deposit. Where deposit is made on a particular date but there is no appropriation and it is subsequently found to be insufficient and invalid, limitation does not run from date of deposit. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 222=8 Luck. 79= 9 O.W.N. 414= 138 Ind. Cas. 137.

——Art. 61—Starting point of limitation — Payment need not be accepted.

Under Art. 61, time begins to run from when the money was paid and extends to a period of three years. There is nothing in Art. 61 which requires that the payments on behalf of another should be accepted or adopted by the person on whose behalf they are made. 33 P.L.R. 1090=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 344=135 Ind. Cas. 177.

Where a mortgagor leaves a specific portion of the consideration money with the mortgagee to pay off certain creditors, and the mortgagee, fails to make such payments, in consequence of which the mortgagor to save his property, makes the payments himself, he can sue for damages. In the absence of proof that he has suffered any more damage, he is not entitled to any more than the amounts paid by him. A suit to recover such damages must be brought within the period prescribed by Art. 61 of the Limitation Act, and time commences to run from the date of actual payment and not from the date of mortgage. 63 Ind. Cas. 87 (All.).

——Arts. 61 and 120—Cause of action — Taking over liability.

Quaere.—Where A takes over the liability of a debt due to C by B, does the period of limitation for a suit by A for the recovery of the money from B commence from the date of payment of the debt by A to C from the date of A's taking over the liability? 204 P.L.R. 1911=231 P.W.R. 1911= 11 Ind. Cas. 60.

——Art. 61—Decree-holder and judgment-debtor —Suit to recover loss sustained by J.D.—D. H's failing to certify payment.

Where a D. H. failed to certify to Court the payment made towards the decree out of Court and the J. D. was compelled to pay the amount to a third party, held, that the J.D. could bring a suit for damages within 3 years from the date of payment. 21 M.L.J. 518=10 Ind. Cas. 462.

——Art. 61—Payment by third person—Money payable under compromise.

Suit by plaintiff to recover money from defendants is governed by Art. 61, where the defendant was liable to pay the money under a compromise but the plaintiff paid it off for the defendants. Time runs from the date on which the plaintiff paid the money. 7 A.L.J. 585=6 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Arts. 61 and 69—Suit to recover money paid for another—Suit on a pronote.

The plaintiffs borrowed on 14-11-1898 money on a hundi drawn by them, and paid the money to the defendants. The hundi was due 57 days after date, i.e., 10th January, 1899 or, adding the days of grace, 13th January, 1899. The defendants having failed, the plaintiffs on the 24th December 1898 paid the money to the drawer of the hundi, which fell due on 13-1-1899 as above stated; the hundi, however, was not endorsed to the plaintiffs. This suit was filed on 4-1-1902 against the defendants to recover the money paid on their behalf. Held—That the suit was barred under Art. 61, as it was for money paid on 24-12-1898 on behalf of the defendants; and that Art. 69 of the Act had no application to the case. (1903) 5 Bom.L.R. 725.

——Arts. 61 and 69—"Money paid."

"Money paid' in Article 61 or 69 includes "money voluntarily or involuntarily paid." (1900) 13 M.L. J. 83=26 Mad. 686. (F.B.).

1. Applicability and Scope.

——Art. 62—Article 62 is applicable to cases where the defendant has received money which, in justice and equity, belongs to the plaintiff but in circumstances where the receipt by the defendant would be regarded in law as a receipt to the plaintiff's use. Where the receipt by the defendant is on his own account and is not or cannot be regarded to be on behalf of the plaintiff, this article would have no application. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 386=1942 M.W.N. 129=55 L.W. 90=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 274=206 Ind. Cas. 539.

——Art. 62—Applicability — Test.

A test for the applicability of Art. 62 is whether when the money was paid it was recoverable immediately by the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1942 Sind. 37=I.L. R. (1941) Kar. 495=199 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 62—Suit to recover surrender value of Insurance policy.

For the applicability of Art. 62, the money for the recovery of which the suit is instituted must, at the time of its receipt by the defendant, belong to the plaintiff. This could hardly be applied to a surrender value of an insurance policy which grows from year to year and does not even begin to accrue until a certain number of premia have been paid. It cannot be said to be money belonging to the insured when it is received by the company. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 9= 1942 N.L.J. 380=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 253=203 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Art. 62—Money recovered by transferee of decree.

If a man receives money which, at the time he receives it, he is legally entitled to receive, he cannot be said to be receiving it for the use of some one else who may subsequently be declared to be entitled to the money by some judicial decision.

Where a decree-holder is adjudged insolvent after he has assigned his decree and the assignment is annulled and the Official Receiver files a suit to recover from the assignee whatever money he has actually collected in execution of the decree which has been assigned to him, the suit is governed by Art. 62 even in respect of the money recovered between the date of the assignment and the date of annulment. No distinction can be made between the period from the date of assignment to the date of annulment and the period subsequent to that order. (1938) M.W.N. 290=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 682=47 L.W. 557=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 532=178 Ind. Cas. 448.

——Art. 62—Article 62 governs cases where a definite sum of money has been received by the defendant and which the law says he must hold for the use of the plaintiff, and is not applicable to cases where the defendant is asked to account for properties and moneys when the person managing or collecting them is entitled to just allowances. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 139=182 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Art. 62—Article 62 cannot be appropriately applied to a case where the plaintiff is not entitled to the money when it was received by the defendant, but contemplates a suit in which the plaintiff is entitled to obtain the whole of the money received as soon as it is received. (1933) M.W.N. 368=64 M.L.J. 574=37 L.W. 631=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 524=143 Ind. Cas. 496.

——Art. 62—Article 62 only applies when the defendant has received money as distinct from profits into his hands. It has no application where a suit is to recover profits. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 181=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 92=1941 N.L.J. 184=201 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Art. 62—Article 62 applies to suits to recover money actually received and not to a suit where plaintiff's only possible case is that the money ought to have been received and invested on his behalf and he claims payment of the value of his share out of some other fund. 39 Bom.L.R. 277=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 217=169 Ind. Cas. 232.

——Art. 62—Article 62 can have no application where the suit is not only for recovery of money but also for recovery of plaintiff's share in immovable property. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 491=36 Bom.L.R. 1068=154 Ind. Cas. 680.

——Art. 62—Condition for applicability—Legal relationship essential.

Although privity of contract is not necessary for teh purposes of Art. 62, there must be some privity of a legally recognizable nature such as some knowledge of particular facts in the man who received the money or some mistake or ignorance of facts on the part of the man who paid the money or some relation of trust and confidence between them on which the Court could fasten as creating the relation of principal and agent (though by fiction) between the plaintiff and defendant. 41 Mad. 923, Foll. 118 Ind. Cas. 444=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 290.

——Art. 62—Money should be due to plaintiff on the date of receipt—Legal relationship.

The phrase "when the money is received" in the third column of Art. 62 of the Limitation Act shows that Art. 62 applies only to those cases in which on the date of the receipt of the money by the defendant, the receipt is by him, for the plaintiff's use, and does not apply to cases in which the money received by the defendant becomes by subsequent events, money received for the plaintiff's use; in an action for money had and received, there must be, as shown by the English decisions, some privity of a legally recognizable nature between the plaintiff and the defendant. 101 Ind. Cas. 322=A.I.R. 1927 All. 437.

——Art. 62—Suit by decree-holder to recover his share of the amount received by the Court for rateable distribution comes under S. 73 (2), Civil P. Code and is governed by Art. 62. 1944 N.L.J. 391=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 313.

——Art. 62—Suit for recovery of money voluntarily paid to Official Liquidator to save property wrongly attached and for damages is governed by Art. 62. 11 O.W.N. 398=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 158=9 Luck. 577=148 Ind. Cas. 448.

——Art. 62 and S. 18—Fraud—Effect of.

Art. 62 applies to a suit for the recovery of money payable by the defendant to the plaintiff for money received for his use. When knowledge of the plaintiff's right to sue has been kept from him by the fraud of the defendant, limitation will, under S. 18, run only from the date when the plaintiff, first became aware of the fraud. 40 Ind. Cas. 37 (All.).

——Art. 62—Suit to recover deposit. See S. 10. 1 A.L.J. 422.

——Art. 62—Official Receiver, suit by.

An application by an Official Receiver, to a Court which had attached the property of the insolvent at the instance of a creditor, praying that the property may be treated as property vested in the Official Receiver and as therefore not available to the attaching creditor to satisfy exclusively his claim under the decree, is not claim petition which falls within the class of claims under the C. P. Code. His claim (when the vesting in him was after attachment) is a statutory claim which he is entitled to make under S. 34 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, when the claim is disallowed and the Official Receiver brings a suit to enforce the claim neither Art. 11 nor Art. 13 of the Limitation Act apply to such a suit. The suit is clearly within time under Art. 62. 69 Ind. Cas. 326=45 Mad. 70=30 M.L.T. 77=14 M.L.W. 334=1921 M.W.N. 775=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 189=41 M.L.J. 334.

——Art. 62—Sale of goods by Railway—Suit to recover surplus sale proceeds.

Where the Railway Company has sold the goods in exercise of the powers conferred by S. 56 of the Railways Act, a suit by the consignor to recover the surplus sale proceeds from the Railway Company is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 31. Such a suit is entirely different from a suit for compensation for non-delivery of the goods. 62 Ind. Cas. 742=44 Mad. 823=13 M.L.W. 693=1921 M.W.N. 422=30 M.L.T. 21=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 362=41 M. L. J. 205.

——Arts. 62, 48 and 49—Suit for value of goods delivered—Limitation.

An action for the value of goods delivered is one in detinue or conversion and is governed by Art. 48 or 49 and not by Art. 62. 33 Ind. Cas. 661 (Mad.)

——Arts. 62 and 85—Mutual dealings.

Where there are transactions between two merchants on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and the balance is shifted from one side to the other, the account is a mutual, open and current account. The proper article to apply to such a case is Art. 85 and not Art. 62. 121 Ind. Cas. 581=53 Bom. 652=31 Bom. L.R. 1187=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 5.

——Arts. 62 and 87—Assignment of mortgage of immoveable property by unregistered instrument —Receipt of mortgage amount by assignor in fraud of assignee—Suit by assignee for the money within three years of the receipt of the money.

By an agreement in writing, but not registered, dated 21st August 1895, defendant assigned his mortgage right to plaintiff. In 1898 the mortgagor sued to redeem them, and a decree was passed, in which the court refused to recognise the plaintiff's title, as the agreement was unregistered. The defendant received the money. Within three years from the date of such receipt plaintiff sued for the money. Held, that the suit was not barred. The defendant by receiving the mortgage amount from the mortgagor, in fraud of plaintiff's right, received it for plaintiff's use. The suit was governed by Art. 62 and was not barred as it had been instituted within three years of the receipt of the money by defendant. (1901) 25 M. 396.

——Arts. 62 and 96—If the facts of a particular case fall within both Art. 62 and Art. 96, the latter must be applied as it is the more specific and less general of the two articles. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 742 =1941 M.W.N. 484=200 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Patni sale — Sale set aside by suit—Affirmance on appeal—Suit for compensation by purchaser.

A patni taluk was sold for arrears of rent due to the Zemindar and purchased by plaintiff who paid the purchase money into Court for payment to the Zemindar and others entitled. In a suit by darpatnidars, the sale was set aside on 24-8-1905, and the decree was affirmed on appeal on 3-8-1906. The plaintiff who had been a party to the suit was not indemnified as provided by S. 14 of Beng. Regn. 8 of 1819. On 28-8-1906 plaintiff surrendered possession to the darpatnidars. On 14-9-1908 plaintiff sued for recovery of so much of the purchase money as had been paid to the Zemindar. Held, that the proper Article applicable to the suit was Art. 62; that even if Art. 97 applied as the Lower Courts thought, limitation began to run against plaintiff from 24-8-1905, the date of the decision in the First Court; that the affirmance of the decree on appeal did not give a cause of action; and that the suit was therefore barred by limitation. 46 Cal. 670=17 A.L.J. 514 =36 M.L.J. 557=23 C.W.N. 721=21 Bom. A suit to enforce covenant of indemnity in a mortgage deed is not governed by Art. 62 but by Art. 116. (1932) A.L.J. 317=A.I.R. 1932 All. 358= 16 R. D. 373=136 Ind. Cas. 829.

——Arts. 62, 116 and 120—Suit for recovery of money under S. 68, Transfer of Property Act.

Limitation for a suit for recovery of money under S. 68, T. P. Act is governed by Art. 116 or Art. 120, Limitation Act, and not by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 80=161 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Arts. 62, 111 and 116—Failure of defendant to pay.

The plaintiff had to satisfy a mortgage. The defendant undertook by writing registered to pay the mortgage amount to the mortgagee and to procure an indemnity or freedom of the mortgaged property from all liability and the plaintiff sold to him in consideration of that contract and of the promise to pay a house and kotha. The defendant did not fulfil his undertaking and consequently the mortgagee sued for and obtained a preliminary decree. The plaintiff induced the mortgagee to accept a renewal of the mortgage and include in the consideration thereof the decretal debt and thus discharge him from the liability and sued defendant for compensation for breach of the contract.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 111 or Art. 62. 97 Ind. Cas. 185=9 N. L. J. 107=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 429.

——Art. 62—Applicability — Suit for recovery of a certain sum of money said to represent the plaintiff's share of the sale proceeds of a site purchased in the name of the defendant by the defendant and the plaintiff's father. See LIMITATION ACT (9 OF 1908), ARTS. 120 AND 62. ——Arts. 62 and 120—Scope and applicability of —Suit by company to recover money due to it which had been realised by one who had obtained a decree against it—Realisation pending winding up of the company—Starting point—Time spent by liquidators in prosecution of application under S. 227 of the Companies Act—Exclusion of.

A suit by a company for the recovery of money due to it, but which had been realised by a decree-holder against the company during the pendency of an application for the winding up of the company is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Art. 62 of the Act is clearly not applicable. Art. 62 provides for a case where money payable to the plaintiff is paid to the defendant and is recoverable on that account. It contemplates cases of payment to servants and agents. And as there is no other article specifically applicable to such a suit, Art. 120 is the only article applicable. As the company could not have claimed refund of the amount realised by the decree-holder before the order for winding up, the cause of action arises only on that date and not on the date of payment to the decree-holder. Further the time spent by the liquidator in prosecuting an application under S. 227 of the Companies Act, can be excluded in computing the period of limitation for the suit. I. L. R. (1947) A. 203=228 Ind. Cas. 609=1947 A. L. J. 319=1947 O.W.N. (H.C.) 29=A.I.R. 1948 All. 75=1947 Comp. C. 87=1947 A.W.R. (H.C.) 210=1947 A.L.W. 56.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Applicability — Decree in favour of several persons—Realisation of amount by some—Suit by others for recovery of share—Limitation — Suspension of limitation — General principles—S. 15.

Art. 120 of the Limitation Act can apply only when the case does not come under any of the other articles dealing with the specific cases. On 16th August, 1926, defendants 1 to 3 obtained a decree for a sum of Rs. 6,000 against a third person. On 16th December, 1928, defendant No. 4 assigned to the plaintiff a half share in the decree, to which he claimed to be entitled. On 15th April, 1929, defendants 1 to 3 filed a suit against defendant No. 4 and plaintiff for specific performance of a contract of sale of the half share of the plaintiff in the money decree, and it was decreed on 2nd January, 1930, and defendants 1 to 3 were declared to be entitled to the entire amount of the decree. In execution of the decree the property of the judgment-debtor was put up for sale and sold on 26th January, 1932. On 21st July, 1931, defendants 1 to 3 realised the full amount of Rs. 6 000 in full satisfaction of the decree. Meanwhile, in appeal, the decree for specific performance was reversed on 2nd October, 1935, by the High Court which dismissed the suit of defendants 1 to 3 and held that plaintiff was entitled to a half share in the decree as a purchaser of the half share of defendant No. 4. On 19th November, 1935, the plaintiff sued to recover Rs. 39,991-9-0 from defendants 1 to 3, towards the half share of defendant No 4 in the decree. Defendants 1 to 3 raised the plea of limitation among other pleas.

Held, (1) that Art. 62 and not Art. 120 of the Limitation Act applied to the case;

(2) that S. 15 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case, so as to entitle the plaintiff to exclude any time;

(3) that, however, the Courts did recognise general principles of suspension of limitation or right of action, and that as in the present case, the plaintiff could not institute a suit till 2nd October, 1935, when the High Court reversed the decree of the original Court in the suit for specific performance, because the decree of the original Court stood in his way, although there was no specific order of the Civil Court debarring him from suing, the right of action must be held to have been suspended from 21st July, 1932 (when defendants 1 to 3 realised the decree amount) till the date of reversal of the decree in the suit for specific performance; and

——Arts. 62 and 120—Money stolen—Suit for recovery.

A person who has suffered from the tortious act of another can always waive the tort and if money has been stolen from him, he can sue for the recovery of money on the basis that the money has been received to his use. Hence the suit must be framed as one for money had and received, in which case it is governed by Art. 62, as this article expressly relates to suits for money had and received. Of course if he likes, he may sue for the recovery of damages by way of compensation but here again the period of limitation will be three years. Article 120 has no application to such a suit. ——Arts. 62 and 120—Subscription — Suit for recovery.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Counter-claim by the defendant in a suit for rent for money paid by him as premium under S. 8, Bom. Rent (War Restrictions) Act, 1918, is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 120. 33 Bom.L.R. 1563=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 86=135 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Applicability — Mortgagor's suit for amounts received by mortgagee.

Article 62 contemplates a suit in which the plaintiff is entitled to obtain the whole of the money received as soon as it is received. Where a mortgagor receives a certain sum from Insurance Company, the property mortgaged being destroyed by fire, a suit for accounts by mortgagor is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62 inasmuch as the mortgagee has a lien on the moneys he received and is entitled to retain those moneys until his mortgage is satisfied. ——Arts. 62 and 120—Undertaking to pay lawful charges during management.

Article 62 does not apply to transactions, in which the defendant is not under a mere duty to hand over the money which he received, but has other duties as well in respect of it. Where, therefore, under a partition deed it was arranged that the senior co-parcener and the minor should enjoy their share of the property jointly and as manager it was the duty of the senior co-parcener not merely to account for the money received, but to pay the kist and the other expenses as well, as to maintain the minor:

Held, that Art. 62 does not extend to such transaction; the article applicable is Art. 120. 40 Mad. 291, Foll. 61 Ind. Cas. 762=13 M.L.W. 260=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 553.

——Arts. 62 and 120 — Mortgage money—Land acquisition—Substitution of proceeds—Suit for by mortgagee.

Where mortgaged property is acquired compulsorily and the mortgagee sues to recover the compensation allowed for the mortgagor the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. 22 O.C. 342=2 U.P.L.R. (O.C.) 25=54 Ind. Cas. 535.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Suit to enforce equitable claim.

Suit to enforce equitable claim is governed, not by Art. 62 but by Art. 120. 1941 N.L.J. 665.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Equitable claim.

An equitable claim against trustee for account does not fall under Art. 62, but falls under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 9=60 M.L.J. 1=35 C.W.N. 145=33 L.W. 30=8 R. 645=33 Bom.L.R. 168

——Arts. 62 and 131—Suit to recover arrears under periodically recurring right is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 131. A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 189=33 Bom.L.R. 127=55 B. 193=131 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Arts. 62 and 132—Money charged on immoveable property.

A suit to recover from a benamidar money charged on immoveable property is governed by Art. 132 and not Art. 62. 37 P.R. 1909=50 P.W.R. 1909=38 P. L.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 732.

2. Claim against benamidar.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Applicability — Claim against a benamidar in respect of moneys received and held by him for the benefit of the real owner —Art. 120 applies.

It is now settled law that Art. 62 of the Limitation Act cannot be applied where the claim is on an equitable basis. On 29th September, 1933, K, father of plaintiff, conveyed immovable property to the defendant benami. On the 25th January, 1937, the defendant sold the property to one A for Rs. 750. On the 30th December, 1938, K died. On the 5th October, 1942, the present suit was instituted by the plaintiff to recover from the defendant the Rs. 750 which he had received from A. On the question whether the suit was within time.

Held, the plaintiff's claim against the defendant was an equitable one being a claim against a benamidar, a person in the position of a trustee, in respect of moneys received and held by him for the benefit of the real owner and as such the case fell within Act. 120 of the Limitation Act. I.L.R. (1946) Mad. 306 =225 Ind. Cas. 164=1946 M.W.N. 117=59 L.W. 109=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 248=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 140.

——Art. 62—Benami transaction—Money received by benamidar.

The money which the benamidar realises in the decree in his favour is money had and received for the beneficial owners. The mere fact that the defendant (the benamidar) could recover rent for a longer period by reason of his minority does not affect the question. Where the money could not have been realised for the full period claim if the suit had been brought by true owner;

Held, since the defendant chose to bring a suit for rent which was in reality payable to the plaintiff and could obtain a decree for that rent by reason of his minority that does not disentitle the plaintiff from getting the money which has in fact been received by the defendant for the use of the plaintiff. 74 Ind. Cas. 939=45 All. 410=21 A.L.J. 345=4 L.R.A. (Civ.) 519=A.I.R. 1923 All. 532.

——Arts. 62 and 115—Benamidar — Suit for moneys realised by—Limitation.

Plaintiff alleged that a mortgage was executed benami in the name of the defendant on the understanding that the latter should have nothing to do with it and that the plaintiff should conduct all necessary proceedings in the name of the defendant and that after the amount is collected and got into the hands of the defendant he should hold it at the plaintiff's disposal. Held, that Art. 115 of the Limitation Act did not apply to a suit for the money. The defendant was not entrusted with the money for any specific purpose and that there was an express trust; and the suit was not against the agent, Art. 62 of the Limitation Act applied to the case. (1915) M.W.N. 215=28 Ind. Cas. 495.

Rent received by a benamidar is money payable by the benamidar to the real owner; and Art. 62 applies to a suit by the real owner against the benamidar and not Art. 120. 21 M. 373; 25 A. 62, foll. 17 M.L.J. 224=30 M. 298=2 M.L.T. 332.

3. Claim against legal representative.

——Art. 62—Running account — Suit to recover amount from sons of deceased—Karpardaz brought within three years from his death—No liability to pay over sums received by karpardaz directly on receipt—Article 62 not applied. ——Art. 62—Legal representatives.

Read in the light of S. 2, Art. 62 would include a claim against the legal representatives for money received for the plaintiffs used by them or their father through whom they derived their liability to be sued. A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 499, Foll. 71 Ind. Cas. 916=5 P.L.T. 355=2 Pat.L.R. (Civ.) 205=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 259.

——Art. 62—A suit to recover frfom the defendant as son and legal representative of the plaintiff's late pleader, a certain sum of money received or alleged to have been received by the plaintiff's pleader out of Court for paymnt to the plaintiffs is governed by Art. 62. 67 Ind. Cas. 943=35 C.L.J. 330= A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 499.

——Arts. 62, 89 and 120—Pleader drawing money from court for client —Action against pleader's representative — Limitation — Starting point.

The article of limitation applicable to a suit to recover money collected by a pleader for his client from the representative of the pleader after his death is not Art. 62, because the defendant was not the person who received the money, nor Art. 89, because the defendant cannot be said to be plaintiff's agent, but Art. 120. The starting point of limitation as against the defendant is the pleader's death; but it it was the date of receipt of money by the pleader, the suit was still in time having been brought within six years of that date. 1902 A.W.N. 191=25 A. 55.

4. Joint interest.

——Arts. 62, 89 and 120—Co-owners—Suit for accounts.

A suit for account by one co-owner against another who has received more than his share of the income of the property is not governed by Art. 62 but either by Art. 120 or Art. 89. Whether one or the other applies depends upon the circumstances of each case. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 216=45 Bom.L.R. 424=208 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Suit by co-owner for partition—Decree not executed—Suit for share of subsequent mesne profits—Article 62 not applicable as none of the co-owners was entitled in respect of undivided land to any specific part—Article 120 applied. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 150=131 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Arts. 62, 89 and 120 — Suit for accounts by one co-tenant against another.

An action for accounts by one co-tenant against the other not being an action for money had or received is not governed by Art. 62 or Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 363=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 110=189 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 62—Tenants in common—Money received by one—If money had and received.

Money due to tenants in common which has been received by one or more tenants to the exclusion of the rest is not money had and received within the meaning of Art. 62. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 28=168 Ind. Cas. 41.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Suit to recover excess collection by a co-tenant.

Where there has been no division of shares between tenants, they must be regarded as tenants-in-common and where one tenant-in-common sues another tenant-in-common for the recovery of money received by him in excess of his share, the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. 40 Mad. 291, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 99=4 Luck. 265=5 O. W. N. 1122=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 83.

——Arts. 62 and 89—Co-sharers — To recover share of rent.

Where by virtue of an arrangement some of the co-sharers have been realizing rent of joint immovable property for division among other co-sharers, the relationship between the latter and the former is that of an agent and principal; and a suit for realisation of the share of rent by the co-sharer is governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 62. 111 Ind. Cas. 635=10 L. L. J. 355=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 688.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Co-sharers — To recover share of rent.

Article 120 and not Art. 62 or 48 or 49 or 109 applies to a suit by one co-sharer against another for a share of the rent collected by the latter, the rent being due in respect of land held by the co-sharers not separately but jointly. 66 Ind. Cas. 876 =34 C.L.J. 508=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 77.

——Art. 62—Suit by lessor against co-lessor.

Where one lease is executed in favour of two persons reserving separate rents for their separate fields and one of the lessors recovers rent due, a suit by the other lessor for the recovery of his share against the co-lessor is governed by Art. 62 as the rent received by the lessor was received to the use of the plaintiff. 16 N.L.R. 182=59 Ind. Cas. 455.

——Art. 62—Joint creditors — Collection of debt by one—Suit for recovery of share.

When after partition one brother is recovering outstandings originally due to the joint family there must be an implied contract of agency between one brother and the other and a suit by the other brother for rendition of accounts and recovery of his share of the joint outstandings is governed not by Art. 62 or Art. 120, but by Art. 89. 116 Ind. Cas. 327=30 P.L.R. 275=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 407.

——Art. 62—Collection by one—Suit for share by another.

Where certain money bonds remained joint property even after the partition in a Hindu joint family and one of them was realised by the defendants who were some of the separated members, five years before the plaintiffs, the other members, filed a suit for their share of the money realised.

Held, that Art. 62 and not Art. 127 applied as the latter does not apply to a family which has separated prior to the suit and that the suit was barred by limitation. 75 Ind. Cas. 953=A.I.R. 1924 All. 812.

——Arts. 62 and 89—Joint dealings.

Where two divided families have joint dealings managed by the eldest member, a suit for account against the manager is governed by Art. 89 and not by 62. 32 M.L.T. 86=27 C.W.N. 725=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 31 (P.C.).

——Arts. 62 and 89—Collection of debt by a tenant-in-common—Suit for recovery of share by another.

Where at a partition immovable property is divided, but the debts due to the family are kept joint in the name of one of the members to be realised by him and divided among all the members, all the members become tenants-in-common with respect to the debts. The member realising the debts must be considered as the agent and a suit by the members for the recovery of their share of the debts after their realisation would be governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 62.

Time would not begin to run until a demand was made and refused, or the member realising the debts showed his intention to hold the fund which he had collected against the other members. 59 Ind. Cas. 357=45 Bom. 313=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 384.

——Arts. 62 and 95—Article 62 and not Art. 95 applies where one member of a family which has become divided collects a debt due to the family and keeps the amount and another member files a suit to recover his share. 6 Mad. 402; 25 M.L.J. 531; 32 Mad. 191 and 37 Mad. 381, Foll. 69 Ind. Cas. 274=1921 M.W.N. 539=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 283= 41 M.L.J. 274.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Co-sharers—Suit for accounts—Jaghir — Suit by a sharer.

A suit for account brought by a sharer against co owner of a Jaghir who has been appointed by the Government as the manager in which capacity he is entitled to collect the rents and revenue of the Jaghir and bound to account finally for the collections and disbursements, is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. 40 Mad. 291=30 M.L.J. 341=19 M. L. T. 134=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 188=3 L.W. 192=32 Ind. Cas. 899.

——Art. 62—Co-sharers — Applicability of suit —Suit for money realised by co-sharer.

Art. 62 applies to all cases where the claim is made against the defendant for money received by him which ex aigno et bono he has to refund to plaintiff.

Where one of two brothers realised a joint debt without the knowledge of the other, Art. 62 applies to a suit by the other for his share. 14 M.L.T. 325=(1913) M.W.N. 836=25 M.L.J 531=21 Ind. Cas. 394.

——Arts. 62 and 127—Co-sharers — Suits for recovery of a share of moneys—Realisation of joint debt after separation—Applicability of.

A claim to recover the share of one member of the family of a joint debt already realised by another member of the family is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 127 when the family was not joint at the date of the realization of the joint debt. 15 O.C. 397=16 Ind. Cas. 882.

——Arts. 62, 49 and 120—Co-sharers — Suit by Karnavan against junior member for money realised by latter.

For a suit by a karnavan of a Malabar Tarwad, against a junior member thereof for money due to the tarwad which had been received by the latter, Art. 62 will apply. Art. 49 will not apply, as money cannot be said to be specific moveable property and Art. 120 will apply only if no other article is applicable. 37 Mad. 381=11 M.L.T. 325=(1912) M. W. N. 516=22 M.L.J. 485=14 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Art. 62—Co-sharers—Profits.

In a suit for an account of the profits of joint property managed by one co-sharer where the sum due to the plaintiffs can only be ascertained after taking account not only of the rent received but of the expenses incurred in the management, there is no particular sum "had and received" on plaintiff's behalf by the manager within the meaning of Art. 62. 13 Bom. L.R. 1014=12 Ind. Cas. 586.

——Art. 62—Co-sharers — Debts realised by one member.

If a member receives all debts of the family after partition, a suit by another member for his share in the debts is governed by Art. 62. (1911) 2 M. W. N. 467=12 Ind. Cas. 704.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Co-sharers — Land Acquisition—Suit for recovery of compensation money.

A suit for a share of a compensation money for the house acquired by the Government within 3 years of the date of final award is not time-barred. 2 Lah. L.J. 353.

——Art. 62—Co-sharers — Debt realised by one member.

A suit by a member of a joint Hindu family to recover back his share of a joint debt realised by another member after division in status is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 127 of the second schedule of the Limitation Act. 32 Mad. 191=5 M.L.T. 49 =19 M.L.J. 94=1 Ind. Cas. 408.

——Art. 62—Money recovered by one heir — Others suing for their share.

On the death of a Mahomedan his son, the defendant No. 1 obtained a certificate under the Succession Certificate Act for collection of debts due to the estate of the deceased. It was alleged on behalf of the plaintiffs, also the sons of the deceased that the defendant No. 1 realised all the debts due to the estate of the deceased but has not accounted for the moneys so realised and has not, paid to the plaintiffs their share of the same. The plaintiffs therefore prayed for an account of these moneys and for recovery of their share thereof.

It was found that the moneys in question were last collected by the defendant No. 1 in December, 1909, and suit was not instituted till the 19th July, 1916.

Held, that Art. 62 applied and the suit was time-barred. 74 Ind. Cas. 1010=27 C.W.N. 941=50 Cal. 610=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 142.

——Sch. I, Art. 62—Co-heirs.

Art. 62 of the Limitation Act does not apply to a claim for a share of the cash forming part of the estate to be divided between co-heirs. 21 C. 157 P. C. Foll. 92 P. R. 1917=40 Ind. Cas. 374.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Co-heirs—Debt received by one of the heirs—Suit by other heirs to recover share.

A suit by an heir of a deceased person to recover his share or the debt due to the deceased which had been realised by another heir holding Succession Certificate is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 110. 37 All. 434=13 A.L.J. 686=29 Ind. Cas. 347.

——Art. 62—Decree in favour of some heirs — Property purchased by them under the decree—Right of other heirs to realise their shares.

On the death of a certain Mahomedan leaving his wife and some others as his heirs, the heirs excepting his widow sued on a mortgage debt due to the deceased, making his widow a defendant to the suit. They obtained a decree and in execution purchased the properties themselves; a subsequent suit by the widow against his other heirs to recover her share of the debts was held to be governed by Art. 62. 37 All. 233=13 A.L.J. 255=27 Ind. Cas. 712.

——Art. 62—Suit for recovery of money collected by heir.

Where a person was appointed to sell the stock-in-trade of a deceased, to realise debts due to him, and pay debts due to others by the deceased and he accordingly realized certain assets and paid certain debts, in a suit by the plaintiff, a sister of the deceased to recover her share of the inheritance. Held, that the plaintiff was only entitled to recover the money as money had and received by the defendant for her use and as the suit was instituted more than three years after the last item was received, it was barred by Art. 62 of the Limitation Act. 37 All. 40=12 A.L.J. 1256=27 Ind. Cas. 533.

5. Money had and received for plaintiff's use.

——Art. 62—When money is payable forthwith to plaintiff.

Article 62 applies to suits falling under the category well known in English Law as "suits for money had and received." Such suits arise where money paid into the hands of the defendant is payable forthwith to the plaintiff. 40 Mad. 291, Foll. 120

Ind. Cas. 902=7 Rang. 540=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 21.

——Art. 62—Money received by another—Principle.

The form of suit indicated by this article is applicable where the defendant has received money which, in justice and equity, belongs to the plaintiff, under such circumstances as in law renders the receipt of it a receipt by the defendant to the use of the plaintiff. In the words of Sir Lawrence Jenkins, the article most clearly approaches the formula of "money had and received by the defendant for the plaintiff's use if read as a description and apart from the technical qualifications imported in English law and procedure." A.I.R. 1918 P.C. 151; 32 Cal. 527; 2 Cal. 393; 37 Mad. 381, Foll. 68 Ind. Cas. 94=49 Cal. 886=36 C.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 157.

——Art. 62—Money had and received — Meaning of.

Oldfield, J.:—The action for money had and received is still to be regarded, as it was originally based on an implied or fictional promise. But such promise could not be deduced from the aequum et bonum, as it may appeal to the sympathy of the Court in the particular case, or from circumstances, in which the defendant having no privity with the plaintiff when the money was received need not be supposed to have given and had no duty to give any such promise. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.:—The scope of the action for money had and received ought not to be extended. While privity of contract between the parties is not necessary to sustain such an action there must be what might be called some privity of a legally recognizable nature such as some knowledge of particular facts in one man who received the money and some mistake of ignorance of fact on the part of the man who paid the money or some relation, trust and confidence between the person who received the money and person claiming the money or a portion thereof on which the Court could fasten as creating the relation of principal and agent though by fiction between the plaintiff and the defendant. 41 Mad. 923=35 M.L.J. 581=(1918) M. W. N. 796=48 Ind. Cas. 756.

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use.

Art. 62 applies to every case where defendant at the time, of receipt, in fact or by presumption or fiction of law, receives money to plaintiff's use and is not confined to cases where defendant intended to receive the money for such use. 85 P. R. 1919=52 Ind. Cas. 580.

——Sch. 1, Art. 62—Money had and received for plaintiff's use.

The article applies to a suit for money payable by the defendant to plaintiff for money received by defendant for plaintiff's use though with no promise at the time to repay, as it is repayable to the latter in justice, equity and good conscience. 40 Ind. Cas. 173 (Cal.).

——Art. 62—Money had and received —Implied trust.

The article applies to cases where money is received or retained under circumstances which create an implied trust in favour of another. (1913) M. W. N. 218=19 Ind. Cas. 3.

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use, money received for.

Art, 62 applies whenever a person actually or constructively receives money for another. 16 P.L.R. 1913=36 P. R. 1913=17 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Art. 62—Unregistered association — Suit for return of subscription.

Where an association consists of more than 20 persons but is not registered and the members bring a suit for the return of subscription money paid to the promoter after conversion of the property of the association into cash into which the said money is changed such suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62 for such money is not received by the promoter for the use of the members. 120 Ind. Cas. 902=7 Rang. 540=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 21.

——Art. 62—Mutawalli.

A mutawalli or custodian of the endowed property of the temple may, in a general way, be described as a "trustee"—a person in a position of trust with respect to the administration of the temple properties—but no property is vested in him upon trust for any specific purpose. Therefore his position is not that of the express trustee referred to in S. 10, Limitation Act. Whatever sums, therefore, he has received for and on behalf of the idol installed in the temple can be treated only as sums received to the use of the idol, and a suit to recover the money so received is governed by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 123, Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 452=50 All. 265=25 A.L.J. 1047 =A.I.R. 1928 All. 134.

——Art. 62—Shebait.

Where the defendants collected rent and profits for the benefit of an idol in a Hindu temple which was a religious endowment and of which defendants were shebaits, and the money received by defendants belonged to the idol and was payable to him,

Held, that to suit for accounts against a shebait Art. 62 applied. A.I.R. 1928 All. 134, Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 734=1929 A.L.J. 229=A.I.R. 1928 All. 689.

——Art. 62—Uncertified payment.

Where there is a mortgage decree, a payment made out of Court after the preliminary decree and before the final decree should be brought into account when the final decree is passed. But if this is not done that money becomes money in the hands of the mortgagee to the use of the mortgagor. 104 Ind. Cas. 419=25 A.L.J. 823=A.I.R. 1927 All. 710.

——Art. 62—Suit against Bank.

Where a Bank holding Government Paper held in trust for the plaintiff of which trust it had constructive notice, sold it and parted with the sale proceeds, and the plaintiff sued the Bank for recovery of the sale proceeds with interest.

Held, that the suit is either one for conversion (Art. 48), or for money had and received to the plaintiff's use (Art. 62). 67 Ind. Cas. 761=24 Bom. L.R. 513=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 155.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Art. 62 is intended to apply to cases which in English law are described as suits for money had and received. Where after the sale of a putni under Bengal Regulation 8 of 1819 is cancelled by the Trial Court but pending an appeal by the zamindar, the purchaser of the putni pays rent to the zamindar to prevent a further sale under the Regulation and the appeal by the zamindar is subsequently dismissed, Art. 62 applies to a suit by the purchaser of the putni against the zamindar for the sum paid as rent to him. Article 97 does not apply because at the time the money was paid

——Art. 62—Money had and received.

A sum due for rent by mortgagee to the mortgagor is not money had and received. 41 Mad. 488=22 M.L.T. 543=(1918) M.W.N. 98=34 M.L.J. 193=8 L. W. 118=43 Ind. Cas. 625.

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use—Limitation for recovery of money paid.

A payment of money made to a person with a view to its reaching the party entitled to it, is a payment for the use of the latter, and limitation for a suit to recover the money is three years from date of payment. 17 Ind. Cas. 351, Foll. 20 C.W.N. 983 =1 Pat. L.J. 374=2 Pat. L.W. 401=37 Ind. Cas. 30.

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use—"Received for use of" —Explained.

The test of what is "receiving for use of" is not the intention of the defendant to receive it as such or otherwise. If money to which another is entitled is received without any valuable consideration, that is receiving for the use of that other. A suit to recover money paid to a defendant under S. 73 of the C.P.C., is a suit for money paid to him for plaintiff's use and must be brought within three years from the date of payment and not within six years under Art. 120. 37 M. 381, Foll. 39 Mad. 62=16 M.L.T. 509=27 M.L.J. 640=I.L.W. 952=26 Ind. Cas. 219.

——Art. 62—Money had and received—Suit for, when lies—Evidence Act, S. 91.

If money is paid for consideration which wholly fails, the person paying the amount can recover it as money had and received. If money is advanced under a document inadmissible in evidence a suit for money had and received may be maintained. In such a case, there is no distinction between cases when the document is taken for an antecedent debt and when it is taken for money paid at the time. 16 Ind. Cas. 33 (All.).

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use, money received for.

Only when the money realised by the defendant, has been actually or constructively received by them for plaintiff's use the case comes under Art. 62. Art. 120 and not Art. 62 applies where plaintiff was legally barred from collecting the money due on a decree assigned to him, and the assignors decree-holders received the amount and entered satisfaction, as the money received by them was not received for the plaintiff's use. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 220=9 M. L. T. 465=21 M.L.J. 705=10 Ind. Cas. 658.

——Art. 62—Plaintiff's use, money received for —Right to sue—Quasi contract—Money deposited in Court and withdrawn illegally.

Money deposited in Court in usum-jushabentis and withdrawn by a person not entitled to it may properly be held to be received for the use of the person entitled. 33 All. 450=8 A.L.J. 230=10 Ind. Cas. 730.

——Arts. 62 and 2—Money realised by the defendant over and above the amount due—Money had and received—Taxes imposed without jurisdiction—Legality of. 7 A.L.J. 496=32 A. 491=6 Ind. Cas. 401.

——Arts. 62, 120—Suit for money had and received —Invalid assignment of debt—Money received by assignee from debtor—Suit by assignor.

A suit by an assignor for recovery of money received by an assignee of mortgage-bond from the mortgagor under an assignment ab initio void is a suit for "money had and received" and is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 120. (1907) 17 M. L. J. 452=30 Mad. 459.

——Art. 62—'Money received for the plaintiff's use'.

It is not necessary for the application of Art. 62 that the defendant should have intended to receive it at the time for the plaintiff. 5 C. 597 diss. from. In all cases where the defendant has received the money used for which exoe quo et bono he ought to refund, even though he might have received it wrongfully, Art. 62 applies. Consequently a suit for recovery of money received by defendant as co-mortgagee is governed by Art. 62. (1905) 1 C. L. J. 167=32 C. 527.

6. Refund of consideration.

(a) General.
(b) Execution sale.
(c) Void contract.

6. (a) Refund of consideration—(General).

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—T. P. Act, S. 55—Suit by vendee for refund of purchase-money on failure to obtain possession.

Provisions of Art. 62, Limitation Act, might have been applied, before the enactment of S. 55, T. P. Act, to cases where there was no covenant and the suit was merely on the allegation that the vendor has purported to transfer some property to which he had no title. That would have been in the analogy of the English Law an action for money had and received. Now that S. 55 has imported into all transfers, unless the parties agree to the contrary, a covenant warranting the title of the vendor, it would seem that a suit to recover the consideration would be on the basis of that specific covenant and time would begin to run from the date of the deed after it had been established that there never had been any title. In the case, however, where there is an express covenant, that covenant must be construed according to the intention of the parties and no general rule can be laid down about the date when the cause of action arises. Such suits, however, would be on the basis of a covenant and the provisions of Art. 97 would apply if there was no registered deed and the provisions of Art. 116 if there was a registered deed. (1945) A.L.J. 473=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 310=1945 O.W.N. (H. C.) 295=A.I.R. 1946 All. 159 =224 Ind. Cas. 52.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Sale by father of minor son's property—Indemnity bond by third party—Purchaser's possession disturbed by decree of Court—Indemnifier, held liable to indemnify for whole amount agreed—Father, held liable under S. 65, Contract Act to return of consideration received—Suit, held was not governed by Art. 62, Limitation Act, but by Art. 97. 1944 M.W.N. 350=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 645 =I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 663=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 211 =216 Ind. Cas. 120.

——Art. 62—Money paid as consideration or part consideration in a contract of sale is not money paid for the use of the payer, except perhaps when the contract is of such a nature that it is void in law ab initio. Article 62, therefore, does not apply to suit for the refund of such consideration. A. I. R. 1942 Sind 37=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 495=199 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—The plaintiff sued for possession of land on the basis of 4 mortgage deeds but alleged that he had cancelled the fourth mortgage which was executed in 1919 while he was a minor as it was not for his benefit. It was held that he was entitled to possession on the basis of the first three mortgages but not on the fourth mortgage as plaintiff himself had cancelled it by notice. In 1925, he brought another suit to recover from the defendants certain sums which he said had been advanced out of his estate when the mortgage deed was written:

Held, that the second suit was not one for breach of contract and was governed either by Art. 62 or by Art. 97 according as to whether the contract was void or voidable and that Art. 116 was inapplicable. 34 P.L.R. 96=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 581=145 Ind. Cas. 186.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Starting point of limitation.

Where a sale is void ab initio and possession is not given to the purchaser, a suit to recover the purchase-money would be governed by Art. 62. Where, however, the title is imperfect and possession is not handed over and it is subsequently discovered that the contract of sale became void, Art. 97 would apply to a suit to recover the purchase-money on an existing consideration which afterwards failed, from the time when the purchaser endeavoured to obtain possession of the property and being opposed, found himself unable to obtain possession; but where possession has been handed over by the vendor to the vendee, the cause of action would not arise till the vendee is dispossessed. 33 Bom. L.R. 1092=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 36=55 B. 565=134 Ind. Cas. 1157.

——Art .62—Refund of purchase money.

If there is covenant express or implied indemnifying party suffering against loss caused by defect in title of executant of document, Art. 116 applies, otherwise Art. 62 or Art. 97. A.I.R. 1930 All. 785.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Vendor failing to make out clear title.

When after payment of the purchase money to the vendor, the vendor was unable to give title and the purchaser found himself unable to obtain possession,

Held, that from the time when he found himself unable to obtain possession, he had a right to sue for his purchase-money upon a failure of consideration and that the case fell within Art. 97 and that in any case it must fall either within Art. 97, or 62. 19 Cal. 123 (P.C.) and 30 All. 402 and 38 Mad. 1171, Foll. 103 Ind. Cas. 165=25 A L.J. 841=A.I.R. 1927 All. 734.

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—An action for breach of duty declared by S. 108 of the Transfer of Property Act is regulated by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act if the lease is in writing registered, the obligation being deemed to be embodied in the contract and not by Art. 62 or Art. 97. 101 Ind. Cas. 707=6 Pat. 606=8 P.L.T. 590=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 248.

——Arts. 62 and 97—A sale-deed contained a clause that if the minor nephew of the vendor on attaining majority raised any objection to the sale of his share the vendor would make over to the vendee an equal area out of his own land. Mutation of the minor's share of the land was refused in 1907 on objection by the minor's mother; plaintiff sued for declaration that he was owner of the whole land purchased by him. His suit was dismissed, so far as the minor's share was concerned in 1911. In 1917 the minor, having attained majority mortgaged his share to one G, who dispossessed the plaintiff from the land in 1919. Plaintiff brought a suit to enforce the indemnity clause contained in his deed of sale in the alternative for Rs. 1,000, being the value of the minor's share:

As regards the claim for recovery of the purchase money, it was governed either by Art. 62 or 97 of the Limitation Act. If the claim was governed by Art. 62, it was barred by time inasmuch as limitation began to run from the date of the sale. If the claim was governed by Article 97, it was equally barred by time, inasmuch as limitation began to run when the plaintiff's title was first denied in 1907 or at the latest when it was declared in 1911 that he had no title. 62 Ind. Cas. 953 (Lah.).

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Rent.

A suit instituted by a purchaser to recover the rent paid to the landlord after the sale is set aside, after three years from the day of last payment of rent is barred by limitation under Art. 62 or 97. The suit in the case to recover rent paid or purchase-money, did not lie against the landlord. 24 C. W. N. 617=58 Ind. Cas. 741.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Purchase money—Suit by dispossessed vendee.

A suit by a dispossessed vendee for return of the purchase-money is governed by Art. 97 and not by Art. 62. When the money received by the defendant is not in fact or law received for the plaintiff's use. Art. 62 would not apply nor would the fact that subsequent events had the effect of making the money received for plaintiff's use, render that article applicable. 55 Ind. Cas. 93 (Nag.).

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Premium — Suit for recovery of premium—Lessee not put in possession of portion of the premises by lessor.

A suit by a lessee for a refund of a part of the premium paid for a lease, proportionate to the portion of the land of which possession could not be obtained by him, is governed by Art. 62. 49 Ind. Cas. 258 (Cal.).

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—Refund — Purchase money—Failure of title—Suit for refund of purchase money.

It is only where a sale is void ab initio that Art. 62 can apply to a suit by the vendee for refund of the purchase-money. If, however, the vendee has actually obtained and held possession of the property, Art. 97 may be applied even if the sale turns out to be void ab initio, for otherwise, the claim for refund might be barred although the vendee had been given no occasion to sue. The same article is applicable where there is a subsequent failure of consideration. Where the vendor has no title to convey, the article applicable to a suit for refund of the purchase-money is Art. 116, and time begins to run from the date of the execution of fraud. 47 Ind. Cas. 886 (Nag.).

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Purchase money—Vendor and purchaser—Deprivation of possession—Suit by vendee—Limitation.

Where a vendee sues to recover the purchase-money paid by him on being deprived of the possession of the land sold to him by the vendor, limitation begins to run from the date on which the vendee is dispossessed from the land and the suit is governed by Art. 97 and not by Art. 62. 44 Ind. Cas. 719 (Cal.).

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund — Earnest money—Sale of land.

Where the plaintiff failed to enforce specific performance of a contract to sell land, a suit for the recovery of advance paid by him is governed by Art. 97 and not by Art. 62. 6 L. W. 44=(1917) M.W.N. 447=40 Ind. Cas. 893.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Contract to sell — Suit for spceific performance of contract or return of purchase money.

A contract to sell a village was made on the 27th of April 1908 and part of the consideration was paid as earnest money at once and the balance was paid on the 18th of June 1908. The sale was not completed. The plaintiff sued for specific performance and in the alternative for the return of the purchase-money in April 1913, Held, that the suit was time-barred. 32 Ind. Cas. 49 (All.).

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—Declaration of title — Possession not obtained by vendee—Failure of consideration—Cause of action.

Plaintiffs, purchasers of certain property from recorded owners, had mutation of names effected in 1906. In 1907 certain persons in possession brought a suit for setting aside the sale-deed and a declaration of their rights. The suit was decreed. Held, that the consideration failed either in the very beginning when the plaintiffs could not get the possession of the property or very soon afterwards, and a suit brought more than three years after that date was barred either by Art. 62 or 97 of the Limitation Act. Held also that Art. 116 of the Limitation Act did not apply. 13 A.L.J. 669=30 Ind. Cas. 410.

——Sch. 1, Arts. 62, 97 and 116—Damages—Covenant for title, breach of—T. P. Act, S. 55 (2).

A breach of a covenant for title under S. 55 (2) of the T. P. Act is a breach of a contract in writing registered within Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. A suit for compensation for such breach is governed by Art. 116 and not by Arts. 62 or 97. (25 M. 587; 15 M.L.J. 396; 11 Ind. Cas. 337; 21 M. 8; 21 M. 242; 23 Ind. Cas. 570, Foll.) 38 Mad. 1171=1 L. W. 849=27 M.L.J. 517=16 M.L.T. 397=25 Ind. Cas. 618.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Purchase money—Sale voidable at the instance of third parties—Suit to recover consideration moneys—Cause of action, when arises.

Where under a sale, voidable only at the instance of third parties, possession is taken, the cause of action for a suit to recover consideration money, arises only when the possession is disturbed. 38 Mad. 887=15 M.L.T. 240=(1914) M.W.N. 376=23 Ind. Cas. 570.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Purchase money—Purchaser deprived of possession by paramount title—Suit for.

Where a purchaser, who was put in possession of the property purchased, is subsequently dispossessed by a person with paramount title, a suit by the former for refund of the purchase money is governed Art. 97 and not Art. 62 of the Act. 37 Bom. 538=15 Bom.L.R. 559=20 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Art. 62—Money had and received for plaintiff's use.

Where the mortgagee in execution of a mortgage decree had purchased a portion of an entire estate and subsequently the entire estate is sold for arrears of Government Revenue, a suit by him to recover the money representing the portion purchased by him from the mortgagor to whom the entire surplus has been paid is governed by Art. 62. 17 Ind. Cas. 351 (Cal.).

6. (b) Refund of consideration—Execution sale.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Applicability — Suit by auction-purchaser for refund of purchaser money—Judgment-debtor having no saleable interest in property—Allegation of fraud against decree-holder—Limitation—Starting point. See C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 91. I.L.R. (1948) 1 Cal. 479.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Applicability—Court sale—Rateable distribution of purchase money—Subsequent decision in suit by third party that judgment-debtor had no title to property sold—Suit by purchaser for refund—Limitation. See Limitation Act, Art. 120. 228 Ind. Cas. 479=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 129.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Failure of consideration in execution sales—Limitation.

Where an execution sale is confined and the objections to the sale are consequently allowed and also confirmed in revision, a suit by the auction-purchaser for recovery of the purchase price on failure of consideration for sale does not fall under Art. 62 but under Art. 97 and the cause of action arises either from the date of the order allowing the objections or from the date of the order in revision confirming the objections. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 41=194 Ind. Cas. 565.

——Arts. 62, 97 and 120—A suit by auction-purchaser for refund of purchaser money on its being found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property is governed by three years' rule of limitation either under Art 62 or Art. 97 and not by Art. 120. 1937 O.W.N. 83=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 286=13 Luck. 138=166 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 62—Defendants Nos. 5 to 10 sold in execution of a decree obtained by them against defendants Nos. 3 and 4 certain properties which were purchased by the plaintiff on September 25, 1918. A stranger brought a suit for recovery of possession on the ground that the properties had already been sold to him and the sale was set aside in this suit. The plaintiff, thereupon, on April 30, 1920, applied unsuccessfully for refund of the purchase-money which had been paid to the decree-holders in July 1919, and finally instituted a suit on July 6, 1925, for recovering the said money:

Held, that the suit being one for money had and received fell within Art. 62 and was time barred. (1935) M.W.N. 338=68 M.L.J. 630=41 M.L.W. 305=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 354=159 Ind. Cas. 750.

——Arts. 62, 97 and 120—Refund of purchase money—Execution sale—Deposit by auction purchaser — Application by judgment-debtor to set aside surplus sale—Proceeds taken away by another decree-holder—Subsequent reversal of sale.

A suit brought by an auction purchaser to recover money from defendant who had after the sale and the deposit of the money in Court and before the sale was set aside on appeal, attached that sum in execution of his decree against the judgment-debtor as representing the surplus sale proceeds belonging to the original judgment-debtor after satisfaction of the decree obtained against the debtor by the decree-holder, is governed by Art. 120 (i.e.) six years from the date when the sale was set aside by the Appellate Court. Arts. 62 and 97 contemplate a suit brought by one of the contracting parties against the other to recover the money which has been paid at the sale which owing to default on part of the vendor has become infructuous. 16 M. 361, Foll. 40 Cal. 187=15 Ind. Cas. 707.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund—Purchase money—Execution sale.

Either Art. 62 or Art. 97 governs a suit for recovery of the price paid at an execution sale for property to which the judgment-debtor has no title. 14 O.C. 74=10 Ind. Cas. 716.

——Art. 62—Suit by purchaser—Judgment debtor having no saleable interest.

Suit by auction purchaser for the recovery of purchase money when a third person sets up his title to the property and the judgment-debtor is found to have no saleable interest in it is governed by Art. 62 as there is no consideration at all for the purchase money. 37 Cal. 67=13 C.W.N. 1080 =10 C.L.J. 558=2 Ind. Cas. 559.

6. (c) Refund of consideration—Void contract.

——Arts. 62, 97 and 116—Applicability — Suit for refund of consideration—Sale void ab initio.

Art. 62 of the Limitation Act is only meant to apply to suits for "money had and received" and not to a suit for a refund of consideration on the ground that a sale is void ab initio. To such a suit Art. 97 or Art. 116 of the Act would apply according to circumstances present. Where the sale was embodied in a registered instrument, the more appropriate article would be Art. 116. I.L.R. (1950), Nag. 467=A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 229=1950 N.L.J. 145.

——Art. 62—No doubt, in the case of a voidable contract, the transaction is good till it is avoided and that in the case of a void contract, the transaction is bad from its very inception but this distinction does not warrant the contention that when the contract is void at its very inception, then the price paid by the purchaser is retained by the seller for the use of the purchaser in the terms of Art. 62 as even in cases of void contract where actual possession of the property sold is handed over by the seller to the purchaser, the purchaser is entitled to the full use of the property even though the seller has no title in it while the seller receives the money on his own account and for his own use and not for the use of the purchaser who is actually in enjoyment of the property sold. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 164=47 P.L.R. 122 =221 Ind. Cas. 524.

——Art. 62—Where money is paid under a void agreement in the absence of any special circumstances, the date on which the money is received is the date of the discovery of the void nature of the transaction and limitation for suit to recover the money must be deemed to begin to run from that date. A.I.R. 1943 All. 294=1943 A.W.R. 122=(1943) A. L.J. 250=I.L.R. (1943) All. 604=209 Ind. Cas. 10.

——Art. 62—Where a transaction is void ab initio and a suit is brought for recovering the amount for consideration for that transaction, it must fall within the purview of Art. 62. A.I.R. 1943 All. 294= (1943) A.L.J. 250=1943 A.W.R. 122=I.L.R. (1943) All. 604=209 Ind. Cas. 10.

——Arts. 62, 97—Money paid under void contract —Commencement of limitation.

In the generality of cases, limitation in the case of a void transaction would run from the date of the deed, but exception is possible in cases where there are special circumstances showing that an agreement was discovered to be void at a later date. 1936 O.W. N. 489=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 280=12 Luck. 185=162 Ind. Cas. 362.

——Arts. 62 and 116—Registered contract—Void ab initio—Applicability of the relevant articles.

If the sale is by a registered document containing covenants as to title and quiet enjoyment and if possession has passed to the vendee the suit by purchaser for return of purchase money is governed by Art. 116 whether the sale deed is void or voidable. Cases of this nature fall under Art. 62, if the transaction is void ab initio and under Art. 97 if the consideration has failed wholly or partially and are covered by Art. 116 where the document containing covenant of title happens to be registered which has the effect of extending three years to six years. 118 Ind. Cas. 203=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 12.

——Art. 62—Refund of consideration—Void agreement—Starting point.

The period of limitation for a suit for refund of advance paid under a void agreement is three years from the date which the agreement is discovered to be void and ordinarily the time from which limitation will start is the date of the agreement in the absence of special circumstances. Where the agreement is one forbidden by law, the plaintiff must be deemed to have been aware of the fact when he entered into it. 88 Ind. Cas. 557=1925 M.W.N. 400=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 885=48 M.L.J. 598.

——Art. 62—Void agreement—Starting point.

Article 62 of the Limitation Act governs a suit for refund of consideration for the mortgage of occupancy land because the contract is ab initio void. Such suit must therefore be brought within three years of the date of the deed. 81 Ind. Cas. 873= A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 130.

——Art. 62—Refund — Money paid under void agreement—Suit for, recovery of.

A suit for recovery of money advanced under a void agreement is governed by Art. 62 of the Limitation Act and must be instituted within two years from the daee of the execution of the agreement. 5 O.L.J. 277=47 Ind. Cas. 214.

——Arts. 62 and 97—Refund — Purchase money where sale void ab initio.

If a contract of sale between two parties is void ab initio and is not merely voidable, then a suit brought by the vendee against the vendor for refund of the purchase money is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 97. 44 P.R. 1918=126 P.L.R. 1918=46 Ind. Cas. 26.

——Art. 62—Payment under an invalid mortgage.

A suit for money had and received under a supposed right of mortgage, ultimately found to be invalid, is governed by Art. 62 and should be brought within three years from the date of the mortgage deed. 40 Bom. 614=18 Bom.L.R. 773=36 Ind. Cas. 564.

——Art. 62—Refund—Consideration—Void mortgage.

Where a mortgage is ab initio void as affecting the unrecognised sub-division of a bhag, a claim for the refund of the money arises on the date of the mortgage and must be brought within 3 years of the mortgage as money had and received. 40 Bom. 614 =18 Bom. L.R. 773=36 Ind. Cas. 564.

——Art. 62—Money had and received—Mortgage void.

The mortgage of an unrecognised sub-division of a Bhagdari holding is void, the consideration fails ab initio and the money advanced by the plaintiff was money received by the defendant for plaintiff's use under Art. 62. The cause of action for the suit for recovery of the money arises on the date of mortgage. 39 Bom. 358=17 Bom. L.R. 259=28 Ind. Cas. 442.

7. Overpayment.

——Art. 62—A suit for overcharges against a Railway Company must be instituted within three years under Art. 62, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 141=1939 N.L.J. 124=185 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Art. 62—Overpayments—Suit for recovery of overpayments to contractor—Nature.

Under Article 62 a suit for the recovery of overpayments, made to a building contractor is a suit for moneys payable by the defendant to the plaintiff for moneys received by the defendant for plaintiff's use. 88 P.L.R. 1914=67 P.W.R. 1914=22 Ind. Cas. 592.

——Art. 62—Payment under mistake.

Article 96 should be preferred to Art. 62 in a suit to recovery money paid by the plaintiff to the defendant by mistake in excess of the amount legally due. 93 Ind. Cas. 129=4 Pat. 448=7 P.L.T. 431 =1925 P.H.C.C. 345=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 765.

——Art. 62—Overpayment—Suit by purchaser to recover money paid twice over by mistake.

A suit by a purchaser to recover money paid by him twice over, by mistake, is governed by Art. 62 of the Act and time runs from the date when the defendant received the money. 35 Mad. 45=(1910) M.W.N. 827=9 M.L.T. 467=8 Ind. Cas. 1087.

——Art. 62—Payment under protest — Bombay Land Revenue Code, S. 153—Starting point.

Although the fact that a demand for increased payment might give rise to a cause of action to enable the plaintiffs to seek for a declaration that that particular demand was unauthorised, it does not affect their right to file a suit in which the relief claimed is on a different cause of action arising from the payment under protest made by them on the demand under S. 153 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code. 89 Ind. Cas. 65=27 Bom. L.R. 645=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 435.

8. Principal and Agent.

——Arts. 62 and 89—Applicability—Suit to recover specified sum of money against legal representatives of deceased agent.

A suit for recovery of a specified sum of money against the legal representatives of a deceased agent is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. 35 C.L.J. 330 and A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 259, foll. A.I.R. 1950 Dacca 13 (2).

——Art. 62—Plaintiff deshmukh of villages entitled to fees and emoluments out of revenue—Defendants, gumastas appointed or recognised by Peshwas, making collection for plaintiff—Plaintiff having no power to remove or appoint defendants—Defendants making collection but not making payment to plaintiff—Suit by plaintiff to recover collection—Suit, held governed by Art. 62 and plaintiff could recover collections only for three years prior to suit:

——Art. 62—Suit for accounts.

A suit for accounts between principal and the agent is not governed by Art. 62. (1933) A.L.J. 1009 =A.I.R. 1933 All. 642=55 A. 814=147 Ind. Cas. 529 (2).

——Arts. 62 and 90—The defendant acted as agent of the plaintiff in the matter of the realisation of certain debts due to the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued alleging that the defendant had collected various sums of money from her debtors but had withheld the moneys from her. The suit was dismissed on the ground that it fell within Art. 62:

Held, that it was by no means clear that the plaintiff's case did not come within the purview of Art. 90 and that the lower Court erred in dismissing the suit without investigating the facts fully. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 738=133 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 62—Principal and agent.

One B and Co., were managing agents for two companies, J and U. It was no part of the business of any of these two companies to lend money or to act as bankers. There was at one time more money in J Co., and this money B and Co. employed to continue the business of the U Co. The directors of either company were ignorant of this transaction,

Held, that the U Co. is liable for the money so employed either for having received the money through their agents rightfully and applied to their purposes or for having received it wrongfully by secret and deceitful misapplication by their own agents. In the latter case the money is recoverable from them as money had and received to the use of the true owner and time begins to run from the date of actual payment. 49 All. 520=25 A.L.J. 277=A. I. R. 1927 All. 161 (F.B.).

——Arts. 62 and 90—Principal and agent—Agent carrying on business as principal.

Account of profits when an agent started a similar business in consequence of which his services were dispensed with and a suit was brought for the profits received by the agent, Held, that the defendant having carried on the same business as that of his principal, was bound to account for all the profits to the principals but the suit having been brought more than three years after the transaction, was barred by limitation. 41 All. 635=17 A.L.J. 805=52 Ind. Cas. 373.

——Art. 62—Principal and agent—Termination of agency—Suit to recover money from agent collected by him subsequently.

A suit to recover money received by an agent after the termination of his agency must be brought within three years from the time of the receipt as money had and received under Art. 62. 13 A.L.J. 494=29 Ind. Cas. 986.

——Arts. 62, 89 and 120—Principal and agent—Misappropriation by agent — Suit by principal — Cause of action against the agent and his legal representatives, if same.

A suit to recover money alleged to have been misappropriated by defendant's father while acting as plaintiff's agent is barred if brought more than three years after the termination of the agency. The cause of action against the legal representative is the same as against the deceased agent, if the suit would be barred against the agent, it is also barred against the representatives. Art. 120 is not applicable to a suit brought against the representatives of a deceased agent. Art. 89 applies to a suit against an agent for acts committed during the continuance of his agency. The article applicable in respect of money payable by an agent after the termination of his agency would be Art. 62. 16 M.L.T. 614=(1915) M.W.N. 23=27 Ind. Cas. 807.

9. Starting point.

See also NOTE 6.

——Arts. 62, 109—Mesne profits—Starting point.

Plaintiff, after he got a decree for possession in 1929, instituted a suit for mesne profits in 1932, for the period from 1916 to 1929. No claim was made for profits within three years of the suit:

Held, that the period of limitation was not suspended till the decree in 1929, as there is no provision in the Act suspending limitation in circumstances similar to those existing in the present case. The defendant had wrongfully received the rents and profits of properties from the year 1916 and time began to run against the plaintiffs from the date when he actually received the rents and profits. When the suit was actually brought, three years had elapsed since the receipt of the last profits claimed. Consequently, the plaintiff's claim was barred. A. I. R. 1937 All. 481=1937 R. D. 302=I.L.R. (1937) All. 628=(1937) A.L.J. 979=1937 A.W.R. 539=170 Ind. Cas. 657.

——Arts. 62, 123 and 89—Defendant undertaking to distribute sale proceeds among heirs of deceased—Suit by one of heirs for his share—Article applicable—Time, when runs.

Where the estate of a deceased Muhammadan was sold in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the heirs and the sale proceeds were kept with the defendant who had undertaken to distribute it amongst the heirs according to their shares, a suit by the plaintiff for his share cannot be regarded either as one for the administration of the estate or as a suit against a person legally charged with the duty of distributing a portion of it under Art. 123 or as a suit by principal against agent under Art. 89. To such a suit article applicable is Art. 62 and the time begins to run when the defendant had received the money. There is nothing in Art. 62 which even implies that the knowledge is a factor so as to render a suit brought within three years of the knowledge of the fact that the money was in the hands of the defendant in time. 1945 M.W.N. 671=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 422=58 M.L.W. 555=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 116=224 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 62—Money paid under judgment—Cause of action—When accrues.

The money paid under a decree obtained in the Revenue Court which is subsequently held to have been superseded and modified by a decree of the Civil Court can be recovered but the cause of action accrues, not on the date when the decree of the Revenue Court is superseded or modified but on the date when the money is actually recovered from the plaintiff. 1937 A.W.R. 539=A.I.R. 1937 All. 481=1937 R. D. 302=I.L.R. (1937) All. 628=(1937) A.L.J. 979=170 Ind. Cas. 657.

——Art. 62—Starting point of limitation.

Where certain money was paid by a person to another for depositing as security to obtain a contract, but the contract was not obtained and the money was not returned and in a suit for such amount, the defendant admitted liability to pay the same but said that he was willing to pay it to the person who will be found to be entitled for the same in a suit for dissolution of partnership among the parties:

Held, that the original agreement, under which the plaintiff paid the money to the defendant for deposit, was superseded by a subsequent agreement arrived at during the pendency of the suit and that limitation ran only from such date. 1935 A.W.R. 500=156 Ind. Cas. 970.

——Art. 62—Where one party to a compromise agrees to pay off a certain creditor but another party pays off on the failure of the former to filfil the term, then the cause of action to the latter arises when he actually pays the amount. Limitation runs from the date of the payment and not from the date of the breach of the agreement. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 307=156 Ind. Cas. 836.

——Arts. 62 and 116—Money paid by mortgagor on default of mortgagee.

Where a mortgagee bound to pay off a prior incumbrance, fails and the mortgagor being compelled, pays it off and sues the mortgagee for reimbursement, the suit is governed by Art. 62. Time would begin to run from the date on which the plaintiff paid of the prior encumbrance. 5 O.L.J. 263=47 Ind. Cas. 161.

——Art. 62—Starting point—Suit for money—Deposit of money in execution under a mistaken belief of liability—Suit to recover the same.

The plaintiff, believing that the property sold in execution of a decree against himself and the defendant belonging to him deposited the decretal amount on the 20th February, 1901. Then he applied for release of the property from attachment. It turned out that the property belonged to the defendants and the amount deposited was made over to the decree-holder on the 13th December, 1903. The plaintiff then brought the present suit for recovery of the amount.

Held, that time would begin to run against the defendant from the date the money was made over to the decree-holder. 1906 A.W.N. 288=3 A.L.J. 667.

——Art. 62—Starting point—Mukhi appointment of—Right to nominate, claimed by villagers, but liability to pay his salary not denied—Suit by the chief who has paid the salary against the villagers.

Where the inhabitants of a village were by custom bound to pay the salary of a mukhi and never denied their liability, but only claimed to nominate him, the cause of action of any person who had paid the mukhi not so nominated to be reimbursed by the villagers arose when it was finally decided that the villagers had no right to nominate. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 264.

——Arts. 62, 97—Vendor and purchaser—Sale—Failure of title—Limitation.

More than six years after the date of a sale by one who was not in possession, the purchaser brought a suit against the vendor and the person in possession claiming a decree for possession of the property or damages from the vendor if the property did not belong to him.

Held (Whitworth, J., dissenting) that the covenant for title, if it failed, failed on the date of the sale and that the suit was barred by Art. 62.

Per Whitworth, J.:—Art. 97 governs the case and the starting point in such cases is the date of the loss of possession or loss of expectation of possession. Time did not begin to run till it was found in suit that the vendor had not the title. (1901) 3 Bom.L.R. 190=25 B. 593.

10. Tax illegally collected.

——Art. 62—Tax wrongfully levied.

Art. 62 is intended to apply to all actions for money had and received to the use of the plaintiff whether they be actions which may be deemed strictly to be based on implied contracts or whether they be merely to enforce an equitable claim to the return of the money had and received, e.g., professional tax wrongfully levied by the defendant municipality. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 191=55 L.W. 783=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 663=1942 M.W.N. 714=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 521=207 Ind. Cas. 391.

——Art. 62—A suit to recover a certain amount of Municipal tax on the ground that it was illegally levied is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 96. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 252=42 Bom.L.R. 491=189 Ind. Cas. 678.

——Art. 62—Period of limitation for suit for refund of profession tax illegally collected is 3 years. 1932 M.W.N. 1089.

——Arts. 62 and 120—Money had and received.

A claim for refund of money illegally realised by municipality is in the nature of a claim for money had and received and not a claim for compensation or damages. Such a claim is governed by Art. 62. 123 P.R. 1886 and 65 P.R. 1886, not approved. 32 All.491=7 A.L.J. 496=6 Ind. Cas. 401.

11. Wrongful appropriation.

——Arts. 62 and 89—Wrongful appropriation.

J sued the son of one H for an account of the produce of certain fields for some years. He alleged that H retained the produce of the fields during these years on his behalf.

Held, that Art. 62 or Art. 89 would govern the suit. 112 Ind. Cas. 126=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 256.

——Art. 62—A suit to recover offerings of a shrine from their wrongful appropriator is governed by Art. 62. 41 Mad. 923; A.I.R. 1923 All. 532 and A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 157, Appl. 92 Ind. Cas. 731 =A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 228.

——Art. 62—Mortgage—Suit to recover rents due to the mortgagee but collected and wrongly appropriated by mortgagor.

A suit to recover rents due to the mortgagee but collected and appropriated by the mortgagor is governed by Art. 62 and is not barred, though rents for more than six years had accrued. 34 Ind. Cas. 173 (All.).

——Art. 62—Arrears of Jagir income—Suit to recover—Wrongfully recovered by defts.—Limitation.

A suit to recover from the defendants six years' arrears of jagir income, wrongfully received and appropriated by them, is governed by Art. 62, so that only the income for the 3 years immediately preceding could be recovered. 46 P.W.R. 1914=140 P. L.R. 1914=23 Ind. Cas. 445.

——Art. 62—Wrong payment.

Where, after assignment of certain G. P. notes, the creditors of the assignor attached those G. P. notes and in consequence the assignee instituted a suit to establish his rights, and obtained a decree in his favour in 1904 which was confirmed on appeal and which he had executed and where he obtained possession of the G. P. notes in 1905, and where the notes contained endorsement of payment of interest up to 1905 to the person in whose name the notes stood to C; a suit to recover the interest from C, is governed by Art. 62 and time is not extended by the fact of the pendency of appeal since the litigation was not really between the assignee and C though C might have been a party thereto. 16 P.L.R. 1913=36 P.R. 1913=17 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Art. 63—Scope.

Where there was no independent contract to pay interest, the interest is a mere accessory to the principal and if the principal is irrecoverable, so is the interest thereon. This principle, however, has no application if there is a special contract to pay interest at a specified rate. A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 85=204 Ind. Cas. 509.

——Art. 63—Interest on mortgage money.

Where a deed of further charge provided that the interest will be paid year by year; in case of default it will be added to the principal and compound interest will be charged; that the mortgagee might realise the interest every year by suit or might have it added to the principal and that at the time of redemption or foreclosure of a previous mortgage the total interest due would be deemed to be a separate time which the mortgagee would be entitled to recover from the person and other property of the mortgagees.

Held, that the deed gave the plaintiff an option either to sue for his interest year by year or to allow it to be compounded and to sue for it at the time of redemption or foreclosure of the previous mortgage, and therefore, the claim for interest at the time of a suit for foreclosure would not be barred by limitation, nor was a suit for the interest due along with a suit for foreclosure premature. 66 Ind. Cas. 687=8 O. L.J. 418=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 193.

——Arts. 63 and 60—Thavanai deposit—Suit for recovery of—Limitation.

Art. 63 of the Limitation Act is applicable only when interest is payable in cash and the starting point under that article is when the interest becomes due and payable. In cases of deposits on Thavanai where the agreement is that the interest is not to be paid until demanded but should be added to the principal as an increment, the whole amount being treated as a fresh deposit at the end of each Thavanai the proper article applicable to a suit for the recovery of the same is Art. 60 and not Art. 63. 43 Mad. 629=(1920) M. W.N. 248=38 M.L.J. 437=11 L.W. 418.

——Art. 63—Limitation—Interest—Suit for.

Where the agreement was to pay interest yearly, a suit for interest beyond 3 years is barred. 20 O. C. 152=40 Ind. Cas. 229.

1. Applicability of article.

——Art. 64—Applicability.

A suit to recover the amount secured by a balance struck after going into accounts which implies a promise to pay is governed by Art. 64. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 273=33 P.L.R. 213=138 Ind. Cas. 542.

——Art. 64—Partnership—Suit on accounts reciting defendant's credits and debits.

Plaintiffs and defendants were partners in certain transactions and all accounts relating to these transactions were entered either in the books of the commission agents or in those of defendants. After examining the accounts on 3rd August, 1920 an entry was made in the books of the plaintiffs in two columns. On the credit side was shown the plaintiff's share of the profits. On the debit side was shown the plaintiff's share of loss incurred. This was followed by a writing in defendant's own hand to the effect that the above mentioned accounts were correct as having been arrived at as the plaintiff's share of the profit after division.

On 15th June, 1925 the plaintiffs instituted a suit against the defendants for recovery of the sum due on foot of this entry.

Held, that the suit was within time, the Article applicable being 64 and Art. 106 had no application to the case. A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 425, Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 600=29 P.L.R. 219=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 459.

——Art. 64—Effect of adjustment of accounts.

Where an account stated comprises items on both sides and a balance is deducted thereon it being always in favour of one party and not shifting on one party or the other that balance represents the amount of liability for future and is recoverable within three years from the statement of account although some of the earlier items in the account may have been already time-barred. 106 Ind. Cas. 53=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 127.

——Art. 64—Stamped and signed Hatchita.

A suit on a Hatchita stamped and signed by the debtor, containing a statement of adjustment of accounts and consisting in itself a distinct and unqualified promise to pay the amount found due on adjustment is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 64. In every case where Art. 64 is made applicable there need not be always a reciprocity of demands. 76 Ind. Cas. 603=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 578.

——Art. 64—Money due on book accounts.

Plaintiff sued defendant for a sum Rs. 1,600 due as principal and interest on book accounts. It was alleged that defendant had struck a balance in favour of the plaintiff for Rs. 756-14-0 and that he had since taken a further sum of Rs. 57 and these items together with interest accrued due amounted to a total of Rs. 1,600.

The accounts on record were not mutual, open and current and there were no reciprocal demands between the parties.

Held, that Art. 85 does not apply but that the Article applicable is either 57 or 64. 4 L.L.J. 69=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 204.

——Art. 64—Essentials for applicability.

A settlement in order to constitute a fresh cause of action in law must be a settlement of a mutual, current and open account, i.e., a settlement in which both parties coming together set of their mutual rights and liabilities and arrive at a particular figures as the result of such set-off. Also, under Art. 64, the settlement must be in writing and signed by the defendant or his duly authorized agent. 86 Ind. Cas. 942=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1147.

——Art. 64—Applicability—Account kept in terms of grain.

Even if it were conceded that in order to bring a suit within the purview of Art. 64, it is not necessary to show that there have been cross or reciprocal demands between the parties, the article can only apply where the money found to be due is a definite sum entered in this account books and not where account is kept in terms of grain. 82 Ind. Cas. 91=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 645.

——Art. 64—Where there was a current account and a mutual one, and the plaintiffs had claims against the defendants for money advanced plus interest and the defendants could set-off, against those claims, their shares of any profits made in the transaction in which the parties had a common interest, but the account was not open and current at the time of the suit and the account had been closed and had been settled by the striking of a balance.

Held, the article applicable is Art. 64 which applies to a suit for money payable for money found to be due on accounts stated. 68 Ind. Cas. 815=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 182.

——Arts. 64, 120—Accounts stated by father—Divided son's liability—Hindu Law—Son's obligation.

An action on an account stated by a Hindu father against his divided sons who took his property on his death is governed by Art. 64. 23 A. 206; 1901 A.W.N. 34, diss. (1902) A.W.N. 199=25 A. 67.

2. Accounts stated.

(b) Essentials.
(c) Time barred items.

2. (a) Accounts stated—Effect of.

——Art. 64—Accounts stated—Effect of.

An "account stated" does not extinguish the original debts on which the account is based. Therefore, it is open to the creditor to base his suit for the recovery of debts either on the "account stated" or on the original contract.

The Limitation Act does purport to deal with causes of action. 63 Ind. Cas. 280 (Pat.).

2. (b) Accounts stated—Essentials.

——Art. 64—Hatchita.

Where hatchita is executed against the amounts borrowed from time to time as shown in account books and the parties have agreed to this setting off and have accepted the balance as correct, a suit for money due on hatchita is a suit for money found to be due on accounts stated within the meaning of Art. 64. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 595=197 Ind. Cas. 321.

——Art. 64—Account stated.

Plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of Rs. 246 based on an account stated between the parties on a certain date. It was alleged that the defendant used to have money dealings with the plaintiff and that on the date mentioned he went through the account and signed an acknowledgment of his liability to the extent of Rs. 200 in the plaintiff's lekha bahi and affixed a one anna stamp to the entry. The original debt was of Rs. 200:

Held, that the account in question was an account stated within the meaning of Art. 64 since the original debt being of Rs. 200 only and the balances struck being of the same amount, there must have been intermediate payments by the defendant. 1939 O.W.N. 176=11 R. D. 215=14 Luck. 478=A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 120=179 Ind. Cas. 931.

——Art. 64—In order to bring the case under Art. 64, there should be something in the nature of a fresh contract. A mere statement of the balance which is due on a particular date cannot be called an account stated within this article. 1938 A.W.R. 517=A.I.R. 1938 All. 504=(1938) A.L.J. 773=I.L.R. (1938) All. 741=177 Ind. Cas. 815.

——Art. 64—Account stated—Endorsement on pro-note.

On settlement of account in respect of a debt on a promissory note, a certain amount was found due on a particular date, on calculation of interest at a reduced rate. An endorsement to that effect was made on the back of the pro-note and was signed by the debtor:

Held, that the endorsement amounted to an account stated between the parties and a suit for recovery of the amount alleged to be due was governed by Art. 64. The suit was not one based on the pro-note and the cause of action for it arose on the settlement of the accounts as shown by the endorsement. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 470=64 C.L.J. 75=166 Ind. Cas. 543.

——Art. 64—Account stated.

A document containing an entry signed by a creditor that on making account on a particular day in respect of the old Sarkat and after deducting repayments, a certain amount is found due including the interest, and also an entry signed by the debtor admitting the amount to be due, cannot be regarded as, "account stated". A.I.R. 1935 Nag. 221=159 Ind. Cas. 447 (2).

——Art. 64—'Account stated', meaning of.

There can, in law, be a settlement of account as between banker and customer, and that this is the law, is constantly assumed and acted upon in practice: but in such cases the dealings are purely financial on each side and consist of money credits and debits, in the course of which one side may never be able to sue the other for a demand or claim because he is always in debt to the other, though, if sued for the whole debt, he could avail himself of payments he has made in partial reduction of the debt on running account, though merely by way of set-off or counter-claim. The customer in such cases may have had a continuous overdraft, and be in this respect in the same position as the banker on the account in question. But it would be an unfortunate restraint on legitimate and ordinary business relations if the law were to say that an account could not be mutually stated and agreed to between parties in such relationship. The same conclusion governs the meaning of the term "account stated" in Art. 64.

The essence of an account stated is not the character of the items on one side or the other, but the fact that there are cross items of account and that the parties mutually agree the several amounts of each and, by treating the items so agreed on the one side as discharging the items on the other side pro tanto go on to agree that the balance only is payable. Such a transaction is in truth bilateral, and creates a new debt and a new cause of action. A.I.R. 1934 P.C. 147=40 L.W. 71=11 O.W.N. 1003=36 Bom.L.R. 723=67 M.L.J. 110=38 C.W.N. 961=59 C.L.J. 535=61 I.A. 273=(1934) M.W.N. 786=(1934) A.L.J. 623=56 A. 376=4 A.W.R. 174=150 Ind. Cas. 6 (P.C.).

——Art. 64—"Account stated", meaning of.

The words "accounts stated" in Art. 64 refer to a bilateral and not a unilateral transaction, and contemplates mutual accounts, i.e., an account stated by one party and an account stated by the other party, that is, two accounts and not merely an account stated by a single party.

For an account stated under Art. 64, the account must be stated within the period of limitation, and the onus of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that his case is within the period of limitation on account of an acknowledgment and consequently, to show that the acknowledgment was within the period of limitation. (1932) A.L.J. 279=A.I.R. 1932 All. 461=54 A. 506=140 Ind. Cas. 783.

——Arts. 64, 85—Account stated.

The accounts between the plaintiffs and the defendants ran from July, 11, 1913, to February 5, 1914. On March 31, 1914, a balance of Rs. 823 odd was struck and this was followed by two items on each side. Interest ran on this amount and a second balance for Rs. 900 was struck on March 29, 1921. A suit was filed on April, 3, 1925 to recover this amount of Rs. 900 with interest:

Held, that the suit was not one on a mutual, open and current account within the meaning of Art. 85, Limitation Act but a suit on an account stated within Art. 64 and was, therefore, not time-barred. (1931) 130 Ind. Cas. 570.

——Art. 64—'Account stated', meaning of.

The expression 'account stated' in Art. 64 has a technical meaning. The signing of a balance after going into the accounts cannot amount to an 'account stated' where there are not sufficient materials on the record to show that the items for which credit was given to the defendant were due to the defendant from the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1931 All. 375=131 Ind. Cas. 867.

——Art. 64—Adjustment recorded in account books.

Credit account of one D with K was adjusted; balance was struck and the same was signed by D. In a suit by K for the recovery of the payment,

Held, the balance struck and accepted at the conclusion of the accounts was novation of contract and implies a promise to pay and therefore gave a fresh period of limitation under Art. 64. 115 Ind. Cas. 764=10 Lah. 745=30 P.L.R. 240=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 263.

——Art. 64—Accounts stated—Chithas—Separate debts.

Chithas having no reciprocal debits and credits but consisting of only one-sided debts taken by the defendants from the plaintiff cannot be said to be "accounts stated" within Art. 64. Each of the items is, a separate debt in itself and each of them will be barred on different dates. 120 Ind. Cas. 470=10 P. L.T. 169=8 Pat. 706=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 258.

——Art. 64—The entry in the plaintiff's bahi signed by the defendants ran as follows:—"We have struck a debit balance against ourselves of Rs. 4,017-5-0 on account of advances and losses of every kind; interest to pay at the rate of Re. 0-7-6 per cent.;

Held, the entry is an account rendered adjusting the relations of the parties and is a promise to pay, and the suit therefore falls under Art. 64, the time under which is enlarged to 6 years by Punjab Limitation Act. Article 106 does not apply to the suit as this suit is not for an account, i.e., an unascertained share of the profits of a dissolved partnership. 69 Ind. Cas. 502=3 Lah. 326=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 425.

——Art. 64—What constitutes.

An account stated implies cross demands and it is the mutual surrender of these cross-demands that creates the new contract when an account is stated between the parties. In the absence of any cross demands there is nothing to take the settlement of account out of the ordinary rule. 60 Ind. Cas. 514 =6 P.L.J. 121=2 P.L.T. 308=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 29.

——Art. 64—Entry of balance—Contract Act, S. 25—Promise to pay.

An entry of balance not containing a promise to pay within S. 25 of the contract Act cannot be relied upon to recover a time-barred debt entered therein. 9 C.L.J. 263=25 Ind. Cas. 89.

——Art. 64—"Account stated"—Meaning of—Limitation.

A mere statement of the balance which is due on a particular date cannot be called an account stated within Art. 64. An account stated is one where several cross items are set off, one against the other and the balance is struck off in favour of one of the parties, the law implying a new promise by the other party to pay the balance in consideration not merely of past debt, but also of the extinguishment of the old debts on each side and hence it is not necessary that it should be made within the period of limitation. 5 Pat.L.J. 371=1 Pat.L.T. 190=56 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Art. 64—Reciprocal demand.

Under Art. 64, it is not necessary to show that there were reciprocal demands between the parties. 26 M. 186.

2. (c) Accounts stated—Time barred items.

——Art. 64—Account stated — Time barred items.

Although the account is not of mutual claims but, on the one side, of sums advanced and interest payable and, on the other side, of repayments made, it can be an "account stated". In either case there is a contract for good consideration to pay the balance stated as due; it is not material that some of the items brought into the account were statute-barred. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 112=I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 21 =(1945) Nag. L. J. 464.

——Art. 64—Account stated — Time barred items.

An acknowledgment which forms the basis of an account stated so as to form the basis of a suit must be an acknowledgment within time. It is true that an account stated may contain some time-barred items and yet the account stated may form the basis of a suit. But where all the items are time-barred the principle cannot be applied. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 92 =1942 N.L.J. 248=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 369=201 Ind. Cas. 550.

——Art. 64—"Account stated"—Some of debts time barred.

An 'account stated' is an account which contains entries on both sides and in which the parties have agreed that the items on one side should be set aside the items on the other side and the balance should be paid. The items on the smaller side are set-off and deemed to be paid by the items of the larger side from which arises a promise for good consideration to pay the balance. A stated account is a promise for good consideration to pay the balance even though some of the debts were barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 595=197 Ind. Cas. 321.

——Art. 64—(—57 Bhopal)—"Account stated"—Essentials of—Some of items statute barred.

A document forming the basis of a suit, evidencing an account stated between the parties, need not contain the whole account in detail; a mere reference to an outstanding account which was settled mutually by striking a balance and by the admission of the debtor as to its correctness should be quite enough for the purpose. When an account has been settled, it is immaterial that some of the items were statute-barred.

In suits based on a stated account under Art. 64, Lim. Act (—Art. 57, Bhopal Lim. Act) it is always open to the defendant to challenge the document on various grounds such as fraud, undue influence, and want of proper knowledge. If he succeeds in establishing that the accounts were never understood by him and hence were never settled, the substratum of the plaintiff's suit will disappear. But on the other hand if it is proved that the parties went though the accounts and the defendant having fully understood every item of it on either side, had freely accepted his liability thereunder, the transaction would take the form of a new agreement legally known as account stated which is neither a simple acknowledgment of liability nor can it be called a new contract for want of an express promise to pay as contemplated by S. 25 (3), Contract Act. Therefore, the question of time-barred items, which came under consideration before a settlement was reached, does not arise. Just as a time-barred debt may be revived by an express promise to pay, in the same manner in settling an outstanding account, the debtor may accept liability as to the balance found due in respect of even time-barred items, and consequently, give rise to a new cause of action from the date of such acceptance. In the circumstances, it becomes possible to go behind such a mutual settlement so long as its integrity is beyond reproach. (1940) 189 Ind. Cas. 802 (Bhopal).

——Art. 64—Account stated—Some of items statute barred.

Where an account has been settled, it is immaterial that some of the items were statute-barred and if it is left in doubt whether all the items were so barred, it would be for the defendants to upset, if they could, the validity of the settled accounts.

Where the accounts between the parties used to be periodically adjusted and so, in support of his case, the plaintiff has filed certain accounts of the previous years also in the course of the trial, it is for the defendant to prove, that the dues brought forward from the previous years' accounts were time-barred and in any case, the mere fact that some of the items are statute-barred can be of no avail to him where the suit has been brought on account stated. 3 B.R. 308=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 348=167 Ind. Cas. 652.

——Art. 64—Account stated—Essentials—Time barred items.

Article 64 applies even when the account was between a creditor and a debtor and consisted of loan on one side and repayments on the other. The essence of an account stated is not the character of the items on one side or the other, but the fact that there are cross-items of account and that the parties mutually agree the several amounts of each and by treating the items so agreed on the one side as discharging the other pro tanto, go on to agree that the balance only is payable. Such a transaction is in truth bilateral and creates a new debt and a new cause of action. When an account is settled in this way, it will not matter even if some of the items were statute-barred. 37 P.L.R. 126=A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 877=159 Ind. Cas. 677.

——Art. 64—Account stated — Time-barred items.

Where an account has been settled, it is immaterial that some of the items were statute-barred.

Quaere—Whether the same principle would be applied if all the items were statute-barred. A.I.R. 1934 P.C. 147=40 L.W. 71=11 O.W.N. 1003=36 Bom.L.R. 723=67 M.L.J. 110=38 C.W.N. 961=59 C.L.J. 535=4 A.W.R. 174=(1934) M.W.N. 786=(1934) A.L.J. 623=61 I.A. 273=56 A. 376=150 Ind. Cas. 6 (P.C.).

3. Acknowledgment and Account stated—Distinction.

——Art. 64, S. 19—Account stated—Distinction between acknowledgment and account stated—Bhopal Lim. Act, Art. 57.

A line of distinction can be easily drawn between acknowledgment pure and simple on one hand, and 'account stated' within the true meaning of Art. 64 (—Art. 57, Bhopal Lim. Act) on the other. Acknowledgment is a wider term including account stated within its sphere, but differing therefrom in respect of the applicability of the provisions of S. 19, Lim. Act. Such an acknowledgment as is outside the scope of account stated is effectual only if made within the period of limitation, whereas an account stated is independent of this condition and takes effect in virtue of the provisions of Art. 64. Thus it becomes clear that S. 19, Lim. Act would continue to govern numerous, cases of acknowledgments for purposes of saving limitation, and its provisions would not become nugatory by the exclusion of such cases as properly fall within the accepted definition of account stated. (1940) 189 Ind. Cas. 802 (Bhopal).

——Art. 64—Statement of account—Mere acknowledgment.

A mere acknowledgment is not a statement of account. An endorsement expressed as follows:—"Will pay early next August" is not an agreement in writing as contemplated by Art. 64. It is nothing more than a proposal. 1 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 13=52 Ind. Cas. 262.

——Art. 64—Acknowledgment signed by debtor in account book of creditor.

A mere acknowledgment signed by a debtor in the account book of his creditor showing a balance standing against the debtor on an account which is not a mutual account, is neither an account stated, to which Art. 64 applies, nor is it evidence of a new contract which can be basis of a suit. 15 A. 148=22 B. 513, foll. (1901) A.W.N. 150=23 A. 502.

4. Principal and Agent.

——Art. 64—Principal and agent—Statement of account—Limitation—Starting point.

On termination of any agency, the agent submitted a statement of account to the principal stating that a certain amount was due from him to the principal and that the principal could have it from him on demand at any time. But there was no simultaneous agreement in writing between the parties that the amount so due was kept in deposit with agent and was made payable at future date:

Held, that for the recovery of such amount, the limitation was three years under Art. 64, from the date when the accounts were submitted by the agent in writing to the principal. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 535=174 Ind. Cas. 154.

——Art. 64—Principal and agent.

Even in a suit by commission agent, where the accounts were stated and balance struck, Art. 64 applies and not Art. 85. 100 Ind. Cas. 874=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 51.

——Arts. 64 and 83—A suit to recover the losses alleged by the plaintiffs to have been sustained by them in certain dealings in some articles of trade which they undertook as commission agents on behalf of the defendants is governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 64. 92 Ind. Cas. 595=7 L.L.J. 596=27 P.L.R. 32=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 152.

5. Reopening of accounts settled.

——Art. 64—Settled account—When to be reopened—Onus—Pleadings — Specific averment —Estoppel.

When accounts have been settled they are prima facie to be taken as a settlement of all valid items of debit and credit existing between the parties at the time of settlement, but the parties will not be concluded by such presumption as to matters which were not contemplated by them or which were not in fact included in the settlement, though they existed at the time, provided there is no element of estoppel or no obligatory agreement between the parties as upon a settlement and mutual compromises. The onus is always on the party having liberty to surcharge and falsify on the ground of mistakes and omissions. An account which has been settled may be rectified, if mistake is established, and it does not matter whether the error in the accounting was caused by accident or design, nor is it necessary that an error or mistake should be mutual. Ordinarily when the plaintiff impeaches accounts which have been settled, on the ground of errors, such errors ought to be specially stated. Where the plaintiff did not make specific averment of errors but asked for relief only upon the general ground that items of joint family property had been excluded from partition, but no objection was taken by the defendants to the frame of the suit, and after the preliminary question of the liability of the defendant to render account had been decided in favour of the plaintiff, the parties went into an elaborate examination of the accounts without objection and it did not appear that the defendant was in any way prejudiced by the omission in the plaint: Held—that the objection that the errors were not specified in the plaint could not prevail. 9 C.L.J. 133=13 C.W.N. 309=3 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Art. 64—Settlement of accounts—No fraud or undue influence used in settlement—Promissory note for the amount found due—Re-opening of accounts, not allowed.

Where two persons have mutual dealings and accounts, and one of them of his own free-will and accord and without any fraud practised or undue influence exerted by the other, waives his right to an examination of the accounts for the purpose of ascertaining the balance due, and agrees to treat a gross sum as due from him, and executes a promissory note for the amount, the promissory note must be treated either as a result of a settled account or as a settlement by compromise, and in neither case can it be reopened. (1908) 10 Bom.L.R. 281=32 B. 353.

——Art. 64—Accounts settled—When can be re-opened—Requisites of—Acquiescence.

The requisites for making an account settled depends on the circumstances of each case and the mode of dealing between the parties. Although acquiescence in accounts furnished may not, by itself, amount to settlement, when accounts have been delivered with opportunity for inspection, where they have been duly examined and no exception has been taken, and where they have been acquiesced in, they cannot be opened unless upon distinct and specific averment of errors proved or of fraud, mistake or collusion proved. If a settled account is impeached for errors, particular errors must be stated and proved, and the same rule holds even where the account is settled "errors excepted." (1907) 6 C.L.J. 580=12 C.W.N. 28.

——Art. 64—Settled, when can be re-opened—Surcharge and falsification — General words of release—What passes.

B and S, partners, had the partnership accounts strictly adjusted and Rs. 39,465-7-0 was found due to B. By a deed of assignment B in consideration of Rs. 34,000 assigned and released his share in the firm to S. By common mistake Government promissory notes for Rs. 7,000 were omitted from the accounts. On discovery of the mistake B sued for a share of the notes. Held:—Either the whole account may be re-opened or leave may be given to B to surcharge and falsify. The latter is the more proper course on the facts of this case. General words of release in a deed can only operate to pass what the parties had in contemplation and not something with which they had no intention of dealing. 4 A.L. 610 and 14 Ch. D. 829, foll. 11 C.W.N. 776.

6. "Signed by the defendant."

——Arts. 64, 85—Account stated.

Plaintiff sued on account of dealings had by defendant with plaintiff. The plaint was based on a settlement of account. The actual page of the account bearing alleged settlement entry was proved to be all in the handwriting of the defendant. The heading showed that it was the account of the defendant, and that also was in the handwriting of the defendant. Then followed a series of entries all in the handwriting of the defendant and a mere pencilled totalling and striking of the balance. There was nothing in the way of an authentication of this balance or an express indication that the writer accepted it as binding upon himself and authenticated it as accepted by the person whose name appeared at the head of the account:

Held, that the writing of the name at the head of the accounts could not possibly be regarded as an authentication of the balance finally struck approximately one year later, and hence Art. 64 did not apply.

Held, further, that Art. 85, however, applied to the case as there were a number of credit entries showing counter-claims for the defendant in the same account and the balance shifting and at times against the plaintiff. (1940) 2 M.L.J. 334=(1940) M.W.N. 882=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 887=192 Ind. Cas. 350.

——Arts. 64, 35—Signed.

The plaintiff sent cotton for sale to the defendants who were a firm of commission agents and the defendants made payments to the plaintiff on this account from time to time. Eventually, the defendant's munim gave to the plaintiff a document in his own hands containing a copy of the account and a statement at the end that a certain sum was due to the plaintiff. Below this entry there was the seal of the defendant's firm and the name of this firm appeared at the top in the handwriting of the munim:

Held, (1) that there was no mutuality in the accounts but there was an account stated and the suit was governed by Art. 64 and not by Art. 85 (2) that the affixing of the seal of the defendants firm was a sufficient signing within the meaning of Art. 64. 14 L. 14=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 12=34 P.L.R. 381=140 Ind. Cas. 187.

——Arts. 64 and 85—'Stated account'—Mere striking of balance in accounts not signed by deft.—"Settlement of accounts" whether always a "stated account"—Account not running up to date of suit—Applicability of Art. 85.

Mere striking of the balance due on a certain date in the unsigned account-books will not furnish a cause of action on an account stated under Art. 64. 10 M. 199, Foll. Settlement of a mutual open and current account is possible within Art. 85 without there being a stated account. Art. 85 applies though on the date of the suit there was no running account. 32 M.L.J. 536=5 L.W. 364=38 Ind. Cas. 227.

——Art. 64—Account settled—Signature, necessity of.

An account to be a settled account need not be signed, provided it is submitted to the party sought to be made liable on it and he has by words or conduct acquiesced in its correctness. (1940) 7 Bom. L.R. 151.

7. Starting points.

——Art. 64—Account stated—Commencement of limitation.

The defendants who were dealers in grain and other articles used to send their goods to the shop of the plaintiffs for sale and the latter, after deducting the commission and other charges, credit the balance of the price to the defendants in the account. On 15th February, 1921, the defendants struck a balance in favour of the plaintiffs for Rs. 2,071-1-9, and interest on the items borrowed by their firm was entered from time to time in the account which resulted in the balance. After the striking of the balance, there were only four items on the credit side aggregating Rs. 847-10-6 and the same number of items on the debit side amounting to Rs. 775-1-0. A suit for balance due on accounts was filed on 31st March, 1925:

Held, that when the defendants struck the balance on 15th February, 1921, in favour of the plaintiffs and they also agreed to pay interest on the sum found due by them, the account between the parties became an account stated within the meaning of Art. 64, and the period of six years commenced to run from the date of the striking of the balance. The plaintiffs were entitled to bring their suit within six years from the date of the balance and the mere fact that subsequently there were four items on each side of the account did not have the effect of converting that account into a mutual open and current account and of reducing the period of limitation from six years to three years. 32 P.L.R. 65=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 233=131 Ind. Cas. 292.

——Art. 64—Accounts stated—Surety liable for any amount on any account—Stipulation, if account stated—Starting point of limitation.

The plaintiff Bank agreed to allow the defendant an overdraft to the extent of Rs. 1,000 on a surety of a person to the extent of that amount. The surety agreement which was executed, was in the following terms: "in consideration of your allowing from time to time an overdraft in current account upto a maximum of Rs. 1,000 only to.....I hereby agree to hold myself responsible for the due repayment of the same or any unpaid portion thereof together with interest and I undertake to pay you the amount which may become due to you under this guarantee upon your demand. I further undertake to pay on demand any money for which he may become liable alone or jointly with any other person or persons to you on any account whatsoever and for interest, commission or other Bank's charges to the extent mentioned above exclusive of interest." The Bank continued to make advances to defendant from time to time and in June, 1929, the amount due was Rs. 1,867-4-0. For the advances of cash over Rs. 1,000 the defendant's 1st party provided a security. The suit was instituted on 24th July, 1930. It was admitted that with the exception of Rs. 100 which the Bank advanced on 27th July, 1927, there were no advances from the bank to defendant within three years of the institution of the suit. On 30th January, 1929, however, the Bank sent a statement of account to defendant showing the amount then due from him. Defendant signed the statement and returned it. A copy of the account was also sent to the surety who, however, declined to sign it. On 20th January, 1930, the Bank again sent a statement of the account to defendant. A copy was again sent to tthe surety who again declined to sign it:

Held, that the surety undertook not only to guarantee the overdraft to the extent of Rs. 1,000 but by the second paragraph, he agreed to hold himself liable for the dues of defendant "on any account whatsoever" to the extent of Rs. 1,000 and interest thereon and commission of the Bank's charges in respect thereof; there was an account stated as between the Bank and defendant which implied a liability on the part of the latter to pay the Bank the amount ascertained to be due to them. The second part of the letter of guarantee covered this liability and the defendant was therefore liable to the plaintff to the extent of Rs. 1,000 of the sum so ascertained, together with interest and commission or the Bank's charges in respect of it. The starting point of limitation for a suit to enforce this liability was not earlier than the date on which the account was stated under Art. 64. The suit was, therefore, in time. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 444=2 B.R. 404=162 Ind. Cas. 178.

——Art. 64—Starting point of limitation.

For money payable to the plaintiffs, for money found to be due from the defendant, the limitation, is three years from the date when the accounts are stated in writing signed by the defendant. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 535=174 Ind. Cas. 154.

——Art. 65.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of Article.
2. Starting point.

1. Applicability of Article.

——Art. 65.—Applicability.

Drawee of hundi, discharging hundi and suing drawer for money—Cause of action arises when the discharge is obtained and not on the date of the acceptance of hundi—Article 115 and not Art. 65 applied. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 668=38 P.L.R. 276=163 Ind. Cas. 928.

——Arts. 65, 182—Applicability.

Person to whom certain attached movables were entrusted executing surety bond and agreeing to produce property whenever called upon to produce by the Court—On failure, he and his heirs to be bound by any orders of Court—Application by decreeholder more than three years after date of decree for execution against surety:

Held, that the application was governed by Art. 182 and not Art. 65. (Cause of action when arose stated) 37 L. W. 127=(1932) M.W.N. 1296=A I.R. 1933 Mad. 219=142 Ind. Cas. 368.

——Art. 65—Applicability.

Art. 65 applies only where there is an agreement between the parties to pay the loss immediately on its being ascertained and in the absence of any specified time or specified contingency that article would not apply. 33 Bom.L.R. 1200=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 25=136 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 65—Registered bond—Bond debt—Debt due at once if default made—Creditor's option.

Where a debt incurred on a registered simple bond was to be paid within seven years, but on default to pay interest consecutively for two years it was to become payable at once and a default was made.

Held, that the bond was not a 'single' bond of that there was no 'specified day of payment' that therefore the article that applies for a suit on the bond is not Art. 66 but Art. 80. Where such a condition exists the question is not one of waiver but of pure contract and the creditor is entitled to adopt either of the two alternative expressly contemplated by the bond. The original promise to pay the debt within seven years, gave another remedy to the creditor to enforce at the end of that period. The failure to sue within time from the default does not bar the second remedy. 16 O.C. 45, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 85=9 O. L.J. 416=26 O.C. 121=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 19.

——Art. 65—Debt payable in kind.

A claim for recovery of a debt payable in kind falls under Art. 65 or 115 and not under Art. 120. 65 Ind. Cas. 691=4 L.L.J. 268=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 271.

——Art. 65—The limitation for a suit for recovery of a debt in kind payable in kind is three years and not six, and a claim for such debt cannot be combined with that for the money so as to make the longer period of limitation govern the whole claim by virtue of a mere conversion or valuation in cash entered in the plaintiff's account book. 41 P. R. 1918, Foll. 4 L.L.J. 64=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 122.

——Arts. 65 and 115—Letter of guarantee—Article applicable.

Art. 115 governed a suit by a creditor against a surety on a letter of guarantee executed by the latter in respect of a debt payable on demand on a promissory note and not Art. 65, and limitation runs from date of execution of the guarantee notwithstanding a stipulation in the guarantee that the creditor may look for re-payment to the surety if the principal debtor makes default. Art. 115 also applies to a case of liability on a simple debt due and is not limited to cases of damages for breach of contract. 25 C. L.J. 91=21 C.W.N. 479=39 Ind. Cas. 205.

——Arts. 65, 66 and 68—Mutual relation.

These articles of Lim. Act are not separate, arbitrary rules but concrete examples of two general rules., viz., (1) A plff. can file a suit to recover simple debt within three years only; (2) the date on which he has the right and is in a position to file a suit is the starting point of limitation. 9 S.L.R. 90=31 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Arts. 65, 115 and 120—Suit for—Compensation for breach of contract.

A suit may properly be described as one for compensation for breach of contract within Art. 115 although it may be a suit for recovery of a specified sum of money due under the contract. 6 B. 75 and 6 C. 94, Foll. 12 C.L.J. 423=8 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Arts. 65 and 115—Suit for recovery of grain.

A suit for the recovery of grain advanced with interest in kind or its value is governed by Art. 65 or 115 and not by Art. 52 or 57 of the Act. 41 P.R. 1918=49 Ind. Cas. 231.

2. Starting point.

——Art. 65—Settlement of liquidated damages—Starting point.

In suit for damages for breach of a contract where parties have settled the amount of liquidated damages, prior to the date of the performance of the contract, limitation runs from the time originally fixed for its performance and not from the date of the settlement regarding the liquidated damages. 99 Ind. Cas. 591=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 122.

——Art. 65—Further charge—Redemption of prior charge—Starting point.

Where money under a further charge was payable at the time of redemption of the prior mortgage and the mortgage was redeemed under a compromise leaving the right to recover the money under the charge unaffected, a suit for recovery of the money can be brought within three years of the redemption. 3 O. L.J. 714, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 466=3 O.W.N. 976 =A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 53.

——Art. 65—Starting point.

A co-sharer sold lands to the plaintiff pending partition proceedings, and agreed in the sale-deed itself that in the event of his not getting the land to his share in the said partition proceedings, he would pay compensation to the plaintiff. The vendor was allotted at the partition a less area than the area sold and the plaintiff sued for compensation.

Held, that Art. 65 along with Art. 116 applied to the case and that time began to run against plaintiff from the date when the vendors were finally allotted a less area. 72 Ind. Cas. 897=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 23.

——Art. 65—Where defendant agreed to give half of certain lands to plaintiff who was to help him in recovering the same from third persons, and the plaintiff sued the defendant, thereon after the recovery of the lands.

Held, limitation ran from the date of refusal of defendant to give the plaintiff half the land recovered. 71 Ind. Cas. 40=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 47.

——Art. 65—Subsequent deed executed in favour of mortgagee.

Where a subsequent deed is executed by the mortgagor in favour of the mortgagee agreeing that he would pay the amount under subsequent deed when the mortgage was redeemed, the subsequent deed was held to be a simple deed and not a deed of further charge and that the mortgagee would be entitled to a simple money decree in respect of it and the cause of action arose under Art. 65 on the date when the mortgage was redeemed in whole or in part. 3 O. L.J. 714=38 Ind. Cas. 480.

——Art. 65—Surety—When time runs against.

Time runs against the surety from the date of the loan; Art. 65 applies. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 41=9 M.L.T. 215=21 M.L.J. 457=9 Ind. Cas. 204.

——Art. 66.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of Article.
2. Starting point.

1. Applicability of Article.

——Arts. 66, 80—Single bond.

The plaintiff instituted a suit on September 1, 1936, for recovery of money on foot of a bond, dated September 2, 1926. The bond provided that the loan would be repaid within seven years from the date of execution of the bond. There was also a stipulation that interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid, the creditor would be entitled to sue for the recovery of the entire debt with interest. No interest was paid by the defendant in any year:

Held, that the bond such as one in question was a single bond notwithstanding the fact that there was what is called a default clause. Nor was it an instalment bond. The option given to the creditor was purely for the benefit of the creditor and did not make the money become payable. It merely gave the creditor a right, if he chose to exercise it, to have the money made payable. Neither of the Arts. 66, 74 and 75, were applicable to such a case. In such a case the period of limitation for instituting a suit for the amount due under the bond, ran from the date specified for payment as prescribed by Art. 66 and that it did not run from the date of the first default in payment of interest, nor did the whole amount of the bond become payable on that date so as there and then to induce the application of Art. 80. 1941 O.W.N. 361=1941 A.W.R. 108=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 210=16 Luck. 464=193 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

Overrules—(1) A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502=85 Ind. Cas. 280 and (2) A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 279=162 Ind. Cas. 459=12 Luck. 211.

——Art. 66—Suit against legal representative of executant.

Article 66 makes no reference to the person against whom the suit is brought. To attract the application of the article, all that is necessary to show is that the suit is based "on a single bond where a date is specified for payment," whoever may be the person against whom the bond is sought to be enforced. It is perfectly immaterial whether the defendants are the original obligors or their legal representatives, so long as the suit is on the bond itself. 1937 A.W.R. 396=(1937) A.L.J. 403=A.I.R. 1937 All. 559=168 Ind. Cas. 359.

——Art. 66—Personal covenant in mortgage.

Where upon a sale of the mortgaged property under a mortgage decree obtained in a suit on a registered mortgage-deed, there is a deficiency, the period of limitation to recover the same under a personal covenant in the said deed is six years under Art. 116 and not 3 years under Art. 66. 116 Ind. Cas. 817 =52 Mad. 105=29 M.L.W. 143=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 53=56 M.L.J. 10 (F.B.).

——Art. 66—Personal decree against mortgagor.

Where in a suit based upon a registered mortgage executed by the manager of a joint Hindu family, the mortgage prays for an alternative relief that in case the mortgaged property be not liable for payment of the mortgage debt, he should be given a personal decree the limitation for such a relief is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66. 113 Ind. Cas. 489=5 O.W.N. 836=4 Luck. 107=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 465.

——Art. 66—A suit on a personal covenant in a mortgage deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66 and the period of limitation is 6 years and not 3 years. 44 I.A. 65, Appl. 28 M.L.W. 624=1928 M.W.N. 873=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1124=55 M.L.J. 506.

——Arts. 66 and 116—Article 66 applies to claims based on a single bond. A single bond means a bond merely for payment of a certain sum of money without any condition in or annexed to it. A mortgage-deed which contains a covenant making the mortgagor personally liable cannot be considered to be a single bond within the meaning of Art. 66. Claim based on such a mortgage-deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66. 113 Ind. Cas. 489=5 O.W.N. 836=4 Luck. 107=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 465.

——Arts. 66 and 132—Suit for deficiency.

Where a mortgagee sues on a personal covenant for any deficiency in the realization of the mortgage debt out of the mortgaged properties, the claim is barred in three years, it being governed by Art. 66 and not Art. 132. A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 56, Foll. 4 O.W.N. 1049=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 567.

——Art. 66—Personal decree—Mortgage bond.

A personal decree for the balance of mortgage money not realised by the sale of the hypothecation can be allowed within six years from the expiry of the term provided for payment in the mortgage bond. 17 A.L.J. 14=50 Ind. Cas. 640.

——Art. 66—In pursuance of a mortgage-decree, mortgaged property was sold, but the net proceeds of the sale were found to be insufficient to pay the amount due under the decree. Steps were taken to get a decree prepared under O. 34, R. 6, for the balance of the amount decreed to be recoverable from the judgment-debtor otherwise than out of the property sold. The suit on mortgage was within time for the relief on personal covenant.

Held, that the proceeding was merely working out the mortgage-decree and no question of limitation arose. And even if governed by the Limitation Act the decree was merely supplemental and if the suit was in time there can be no plea of limitation. 114 Ind. Cas. 769=5 O.W.N. 1094=4 Luck. 237=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 59.

——Art. 66—Principal and surety.

Where a bond which was executed on by 2 persons one as debtor and the other as surety,

Held, that the Article applicable was Art. 66 the suit being certainly one on a single bond executed by 2 persons with a day specified for payment and that the suit was in time as the period of 3 years under Art. 66 is extended to 6 years by the Punjab Loans Limitation Act. 76 Ind. Cas. 150=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 534.

——Arts. 66 and 115 and 120—Deposit of money—Repayable at fixed date.

Where money is deposited with a person for certain expenses and the balance is repayable with interest at a fixed date, it is a loan repayable at a fixed date; and is governed by Art. 66 and if not, by Art. 115, and not by Art. 120. 37 Mad. 175=24 Ind. Cas. 852.

——Arts. 66 and 116—Mortgage bond, money due under—In substance a suit for compensation for breach of contract.

A suit in the form of a suit for money due under an invalid mortgage bond is in substance a suit for compensation for breach of contract and if the compensation for breach of contract and if the bond is registered Art. 116 applies, giving six years limitation. 38 Bom. 177=16 Bom.L.R. 20=23 Ind. Cas. 353.

——Arts. 66 and 115—Contract in writing registered.

A suit, for the recovery of money deposited with another and repayable on the happening of a future event, and brought after the happening of the event, for "compensation for the breach of any contract not in writing registered" within the meaning of Art. 115, is barred if not instituted within three years from the date on which the event happened. Neither Art. 60, nor 66 or 120 governs such a suit. (1914) M.W.N. 264=22 Ind. Cas. 60.

2. Starting point.

——Arts. 66 and 80—Suit on simple money bond with option to creditor to sue within the term of years fixed—Starting point of limitation.

Where a simple money bond gives an option to the creditor to sue for the whole amount due under the bond within the period of ten years' term fixed in it on default of payment of interest, it does not make it obligatory on the part of the creditor to enforce it. Whether the bond falls under Art. 66 or Art. 80, the starting point of limitation is the date when the term fixed in the bond expires. 1950 A. L.J. 666.

——Art. 66—Starting point of limitation.

Where the bond provides that the loan would be repaid within 7 years from the date of execution of the bond and that interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid, the creditor would be entitled to sue for recovery of the entire debt with interest, the limitation starts from the date specified for payment under Art. 66. 1941 A.W.R. 108=16 Luck. 464=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 210=1941 O.W.N. 361=193 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

Overrules—(1) A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502=85 Ind. Cas. 280 and (2) A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 279=162 Ind. Cas. 459.

——Arts. 66, 68—Single bond—Starting point of limitation.

Where a simple money bond provides that if the monthly interest is not paid or if the principal money lent is not paid at the end of the year, in either case the creditor may sue, even though there is a breach of the condition for payment of interest, still that is a matter over which a creditor has a right of waiver and limitation will only start from the period stipulated in the bond for payment. In such cases, the clause regarding the right to sue on breach of condition regarding interest is exclusively for the benefit of the creditor. The two Articles 66 and 68 must be read together in the case of the bond in suit and limitation runs either from the date specified for payment of the bond or from the date when the condition as regards payment of interest is broken. The two Arts. 66 and 68 read together are tantamount to Art. 132 and the expression "when the money sued for becomes due" would apply to either Art. 66 or Art. 68. 1935 A.W.R. 252=A.I.R. 1935 All. 405=(1935) A.L.J. 341=157 Ind. Cas. 409.

——Art. 66—Starting point of limitation.

A simple money bond executed on April 1, 1931, provided that interest should be payable six monthly and that the whole sum with interest should be paid within one year. The suit on the bond was brought within three years from the due date for payment, i.e., April 1, 1932:

Held, that Art. 66, applied to the case. It was open to the debtor to make a payment before the end of the period of one year fixed because the bond stated that it was payable on demand, that is, on demand of the creditor. Until the creditor made a demand, the bond was not payable. This clause, therefore, gave the creditor an option and it did not give any option to the debtor. Consequently, the suit was not time-barred. (1935) A.L.J. 381=1935 A.W. R. 205=A.I.R. 1935 All. 443=154 Ind. Cas. 521.

——Arts. 66, 80 and 116—Mortgage bond—Money repayable within fixed period—Payment of interest in instalments—Whole amount realisable on default.

A mortgage bond provided that money was to be repaid in five years, that interest was to be paid every six months that in case of non-payment of interest for four six monthly periods, the creditor would have power to realise the whole amount in a lump sum within the fixed period. On such default taking place a suit instituted within six years of the expiry of the period fixed for repayment but beyond six years of the non-payment of two years interest, was not time barred. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 102=18 All.L.J. 476 =58 Ind. Cas. 278.

——Art. 66—Bond — Payable within three years and interest payable monthly — Default—Article applicable.

Where a bond provided that the money was of interest, creditor would have option payable within three years from date of bond and that the interest was payable monthly but on the default of payment to sue forthwith or await the stipulated period, held, that a suit to recover principal and interest brought within three years of the stipulated date for clearing the bond, was not barred by limitation and Art. 66 applied to such a case, the creditor being presumed to have exercised the option given in the bond. 15 A.L. J. 313=39 Ind. Cas. 574.

——Art. 66—Fixed deposit.

When a deposit is for a fixed period, the money is payable at the specified time, viz., the expiry of that period and the article applicable is either Art. 66 or Art. 115. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 338=164 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 66—The day specified.

Where a mortgage-deed, dated February 13, 1894, recited a previous mortgage under which the mortgaged land was in the mortgagee's possession and contained a clause that the mortgagor would redeem the second mortgage at the same time when he would redeem the first mortgage:

Held, that the previous mortgage did not merge in the new transaction, and that the condition that he would pay the mortgage money at the same time when he would discharge the prior mortgage, did not amount to specifying a day for payment within the meaning of Art. 66, and that, therefore, the period of limitation for a suit to enforce the second mortgage expired on the expiry of twelve years from February 13, 1849. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 84=34 P. L.R. 37=140 Ind. Cas. 855.

——Art. 67—Void mortgage.

Where a house was mortgaged while under attachment, a suit by mortgagee to enforce the personal security is governed by Art. 67, the mortgage being void altogether. Art. 97 does not apply to such a case. 27 P.L.R. 801=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 101.

——Art. 67—Balances struck in accounts—Punjab Act 1 of 1904.

Balances struck mentioning that interest is payable at the Saucara rate are bonds and not mere acknowledgments and period of limitation for suit on basis of balances is six years. 84 Ind. Cas. 524=5 Lah. 406=6 L.L.J. 595=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 75.

——Art. 67—Book entry—Suit for recovery of money due on.

A book entry containing a promise to pay at a certain rate of interest and attested by witnesses is a bond and a suit for recovery of the money due thereon, comes under Art. 67. 56 Ind. Cas. 117 (Lah.).

——Arts. 67 and 66—Starting of limitation on a condition of happening.

When a condition is made in the bond that payment is to be made on the happening of certain future event, time begins to run from that date.

Neither Art. 66 nor 67 applies to such a bond. 30 P.W.R. 1916=32 Ind. Cas. 575.

——Art. 67—Security bond—Failure to produce judgment-debtor in Court—Consideration—Bond enforceable—Limitation—Security bond, hypothecating movable property, if to be attested and registered.

Where a security bond prescribes that the defendant would pay Rs. 500, if upon the dismissal of an application for insolvency he failed to produce the judgment-debtor when required by the Court.

Held. that the covenant was perfectly legal and enforceable by suit. Such a suit brought within three years from the date of the failure to produce was not barred by limitation. 16 A. 33, followed. A mortgage of movable property does not require to be attested and registered. (1910) 12 C.L.J. 419=7 Ind. Cas. 917.

——Arts. 68, 29, 48 and 49—Suit held governed by Art. 49 and not by Arts. 68, 29 or 48.

In the year 1935, D instituted a suit against K for the recovery of Rs. 99 alleged to be due by way of rent, D applied for the attachment before judgment of two brick kilns which he alleged belonged to K. The application was granted and the attachment effected. As it was not possible to remove the kilns, the amin left them in the custody of D on his entering into a security bond for the sum of Rs. 1,500. The bond was executed on 19th December, 1935. On 17th January, 1936, P filed a petition under O. 21, R. 58, obtaining to the attachment on the ground that the kilns belonged to him. On 25th January, 1936, P filed an interlocutory application asking the Court to direct delivery of the kilns to him. The Court passed an order cancelling the attachment and directing D to deliver the kilns to P. The delivery was effected on 26th January, 1936. P then discovered that all the bricks had been removed from one kiln and a quarter of the bricks from the other kiln. On 4th March, 1936, the Court dismissed D's suit and allowed P's petition under O. 21, R. 58. On 25th January, 1939, P filed a suit against D for recovery of the loss of the bricks removed by D:

Held, that the suit was governed not by Arts. 68, 29 or 48 but by Art. 49 and was within time being within 3 years from 26th January, 1936. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 33=I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 784=58 Mad. L.W. 108=(1945) Mad.W.N. 160=(1945) 1 Mad. L.J. 265.

——Art. 68—Applicability.

Article applies to a suit on bond and not to a suit for compensation for removal of the attached property. 58 M.L.W. 108 (2)=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 265 =1945 M.W.N. 160=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 33=I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 784.

——Art. 68—Bond subject to condition.

Where the bond provides that the loan would be repaid within 7 years from the date of execution of the bond and that the interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid, the creditor would be entitled to sue for recovery of the entire debt with interest, it cannot be said to be a bond subject to a condition within the meaning of Art. 68. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 210=1941 A.W.R. 108=1941 O.W.N. 361=16 Luck. 464=193 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

Overrules—A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502=85 Ind. Cas. 280.

——Art. 68—Suit for refund of purchase-money by auction-purchaser.

Where an auction purchaser loses portion of the property purchased by him under a decree passed in a suit by a third party, his suit for recovery of purchase money is governed by 3 years' rule either under Art. 68 or Art. 97 and Art. 120 does not apply. 1937 O.W.N. 83=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 286=13 Luck. 138=166 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 68—Applicability—Surety bonds.

Article 68 applies to suit on a surety bond. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218=22 Pat. 114=9 B.R. 260=206 Ind. Cas. 126.

——Art. 68—Guardianship—Surety bond—Suit by assignee.

In the case of bonds by sureties under the Guardians and Wards Act, the proper procedure is to get an order to pay against the guardian and if he fails to comply with the order, to sue the sureties in respect of the breach. The suit will be governed by Art. 68 except where immovable property is charged. 42 Mad. 302=36 M.L.J. 114=25 M.L.T. 229=(1919) M.W.N. 468=9 L.W. 278=49 Ind. Cas. 587.

——Art. 68—Probate and Administration Act (5 of 1881), S. 78—Surety's liability.

A suit to enforce a surety's liability under an administration bond is barred under Art. 68 of the Limitation Act if not brought within three years of the breach of a condition mentioned in the bond. 8 Bur.L.T. 59=8 L.B.R. 99=26 Ind. Cas. 505.

——Art. 68—Suit to recover money on a bond.

The suit to recover money on a bond having been brought after three years from the date of breach of its condition is barred by limitation. 5 L.W. 706=40 Ind. Cas. 235.

——Art. 68—Agreement for the performance of specified act—Damages.

An agreement for the performance of a specified act and in the event of non-performance to pay a sum of money by way of damages does not amount to a bond does not come within Art. 68. 171 P. L.R. 1915=107 P.W.R. 1915=30 Ind. Cas. 429.

——Arts. 68, 80—Conditional bond—Limitation starting point.

Bonds can be divided into two classes, single and double, or unconditional and conditional.

A bond by which a debt was secured contained "accounts have been made and Rs. 9,091-0-3 is due from us to you.....The following agreement has taken place between you and us that if we pay you Rs. 7,000 by 23rd May, 1930, and if we pay this amount by the date fixed, you will give up the balance, Rs. 2,091-0-3 and pass a receipt in full satisfaction of the bond, but if we do not pay you Rs. 7,000 by the date fixed, we shall be liable to pay the whole of the amount of Rs. 9,091-0-3, and we shall pay you compound interest at 10 annas per cent. per mensem on this amount from the date of the bond":

Held, upon construction that the bond provided that, if on or before 23, May, 1930, the person under obligation should pay Rs. 7,000, then the bond would become void, that is to say, no further sum was due to, and no further remedy remained in the creditor. That being so, this was not a single bond, and either Art. 68 or Art. 80, applied.

Held, further that whether Art. 68 or Art. 80 applied, the date when limitation began was 24th May, 1930. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 13=I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 399=173 Ind. Cas. 463.

——Art. 68—Administration bond—Starting point of limitation.

The suit by an assignee of the administration bond is a suit on a bond subject to condition within the meaning of Art. 68. The condition of the bond is broken at the latest on the death of the administrator and a suit brought by the person to whom the bond is assigned under S. 292, Succession Act, beyond three years of such death is barred by time. 7 B.R. 660=72 C.L.J. 497=53 L.W. 212=1941 O.W.N. 4=43 Bom.L.R. 346=45 C.W.N. 429=43 P.L.R. 138=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 88=A.I.R. 1941 P.C. 6=(1941) M.W.N. 321=I.L.R. ——Art. 68—Administration bond—Specific breach—Starting point.

Where an administration bond contains several conditions, a breach of each one of the conditions gives rise to a course of action and should therefore be taken to be the starting point of limitation in the case of a suit based on that particular breach. Ordinarily, the administrator's work may be said to be completed when he files his final accounts showing how he has dealt with the estate and these accounts have been accepted by the Court; limitation will then begin to run. But it very often happens that there is litigation pending against the administrator and, in such a case the administrator (and consequently his surety or sureties) cannot be absolved until the close of each litigation. 33 All. 414, Diss; 8 L.B.R. 99 and 17 M.L.T. 61, Foll. 76 Ind.Cas. 802= 1 Rang. 463=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 68.

——Art. 68—A suit on an administration bond is governed by Art. 68, but so long as the administration is incomplete, any breach of the bond gives a fresh starting point for limitation. 4 U.B.R. 22= A.I.R. 1921 U.B. 25.

——Art. 68—Suit on administration bond—Limitation—Starting point.

Art. 68 does not apply to a suit on administration surety bond as the bond is not a bond subject to a condition, i.e., a bond which becomes enforceable only when the specified condition is broken. The right to sue on administration surety bond accrues when the administrator either does not comply with any of the conditions of the bond or puts it out of his power to comply with them. 12 Bur.L.T. 225=56 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Art. 68—Suit by assignee of administration bond—Limitation.

A suit by the assignees of an administration bond executed by a Hindu widow in connection with a grant to her of the Letters of Administration to the estate of her deceased husband, for an account of the administration is governed by Art. 68 and therefore is barred if brought more than 3 years after the conditions of the bond were broken. If the bond contains successive covenants, each breach gives a cause of action but the date of the last breach is the starting point. 17 M.L.T. 61=27 Ind. Cas. 849.

——Arts. 69 and 80—Promissory note payable on demand—Contemporaneous agreement postponing date of payment.

In a suit upon a promissory note executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff bank, it appeared that the bank used to fix a period for payment and that the defendant in his application for the loan in a printed form added 'six months' period and the officer of the Bank accepted the application. Held, that the application form, and endorsement thereon, were admissible for fixing the date of payment and that the suit was governed by Art. 69 or 80, the starting point of the limitation being six months after the date of the note. 38 M.L.J. 70=27 M.L.T. 81=(1920) M.W.N. 75=11 L.W. 28=56 Ind. Cas. 384.

——Art. 72—Suit on pro-note — Subsequent deed by maker assigning decree to payee to satisfy loan by realization — Hundis.

The defendant had executed a pro-note to plaintiff. Subsequently the maker executed a deed assigning thereby some decrees standing in his favour to the payee (plaintiff) and binding himself at the same time to make good to the plaintiff separately the debt which may be left after deducting the amount actually recovered under the decree. The pro-note was not discharged or returned. Held, that the provision in the bond as to realization of the decree debt and the payment of the balance, if any, did not affect the right of the plaintiff to sue on the pro-note or create an independent right of suit in plaintiff's favour, and that if the claim on the pro-note be barred, the plaintiff was out of Court. (1906) 29 M. 205.

——Art. 73—Applicability.

Even though the sons may be under a pious obligation to pay their father's debt, a suit on a promissory note executed by the father brought after his death is governed by Art. 73 and not by Art. 120, Limitation Act. 41 Bom.L.R. 896=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 464=186 Ind. Cas. 66.

——Art. 73—Applicability.

Where a suit based on a promissory note accompanied by a security bond of the same date hypothecating immovable property for the debt was filed three years after execution of the promissory note:

Held, that the suit was within time by virtue of the security bond, but it was not open to the plaintiff to claim more interest than what was legally recoverable under the promissory note despite the security bond which was intended to be limited to the amount due on account of the principal and interest on the pro-note which could be legally recovered. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 286=9 O.W.N. 912=140 Ind. Cas. 460.

——Arts. 73 and 120—Applicability.

A suit on a promissory note executed by a Hindu father against his sons after his death, the liability sought to be imposed being in respect of the pious obligation of the son to pay his father's debts, is governed by Art. 73, and not by Art. 120. The cause of action against the father and the son is really the same, there is no fresh cause of action against the son on the father's death. 33 Bom.L.R. 1234= A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 542=135 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Art. 73—Exclusion of time.

So long as there was no legal impediment to the filing of the suit earlier, no time can be excluded under S. 14 and the third column of Art. 73 operates. 100 Ind. Cas. 776=50 Mad. 417=25 M.L.W. 426 =1927 M.W.N. 160=39 M.L.T. 116=A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 597=52 M.L.J. 396.

——Art. 73—Starting point—Promissory note payable at sight.

A promissory note that is payable on demand or at sight is governed by Art. 73 of Limitation Act and time runs from the date of the execution of the promissory note. 84 Ind. Cas. 475=40 C.L.J. 84 =A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 1065.

——Art. 74.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of Article.
2. Instalment bond with default clause.
3. Starting point.
4. Waiver.

1. Applicability of Article.

——Arts. 74, 75—Applicability.

Where the bond provides that the loan would be repaid within 7 years from the date of the execution of the bond and that the interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid, the creditor would be entitled to sue for the recovery of the entire debt with interst, the bond is not an instalment bond within the meaning of Art. 74 or Art. 75. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 210=1941 O.W.N. 361=1941 A.W.R. 108=16 Luck. 464=193 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

Overrules: A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502=85 Ind. Cas. 280.

——Arts. 74, 75—Distinction.

There is a well-defined distinction between Art. 74 and 75. Article 74 applies to an instalment bond which does not contain any default clause and therefore, in such cases, the plaintiff is entitled, by the very terms of his bond, to sue only for such instalment as remains unpaid. No question of waiver of default can ever arise in such a case. But where the document provides that in the case of a default (which may be due to non-payment of one instalment or more than one instalment as provided in the bond) the obligee has the right to sue for the whole of the sum then remaining due, it is obvious that the promisor has a right co instanti to pay the full amount and the obligee, a corresponding right to receive and recover it. 18 Pat. 459=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=5 B.R. 965=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

——Art. 74—Instalment bond.

Where a bond provided that the principal sum should be re-paid in certain instalments and interest at a certain rate was also provided for,

Held, that a suit to enforce the terms of the bond was governed by Art. 74 of the Limitation Act. 121 Ind. Cas. 891=4 Luck. 480=7 O.W.N. 230=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 539.

——Arts. 74 and 75—Where it was stipulated in a bond that the principal sum borrowed thereunder would be paid back within a period of certain years and the entire principal amount was divided into a number of instalments, each instalment to be payable annually and interest at a particular rate was also provided for,

Held, that it is bound payable by instalments and the proper article applicable to it is Art. 74 and not Art. 75. A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502, Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 655=4 O.W.N. 207=4 Luck. 480=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 539.

——Arts. 74, 75 and 80—Penalty attached to two consecutive defaults.

Art. 74, and not 75 applies when the penalty of the whole bond falling due is not attached to a single default but to two consecutive defaults. Art. 80 which deals with bond as a whole does not apply because the specific excludes the general. 95 P.L.R. 1909=107 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 956.

2. Instalment bond with default clause.

——Arts. 74 and 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Default in payment of one instalment—Creditor if bound to sue for the whole amount—Limitation.

In a suit on an instalment bond with a default clause Art. 75 will only operate if the plaintiff elects to enforce the default clause which it is always open to him to waive or forego. In such cases his right to recover the instalments as on an ordinary instalment bond within three years prescribed by Art. 74 of the Limitation Act remains unaffected.

Reading the two articles together, Art. 75 is no bar to a suit on the instalment bond itself either after or before the expiry of the instalment period for the recovery of the instalments which the debtor has contracted to pay and which have not become themselves time-barred under Art. 74. The two remedies are co-existent and open to the creditor and he has his choice either to wait and sue for the instalments in default under Art. 74, or to enforce the default clause in a suit contemplated by Art. 75. A suit falling under Art. 75 may be dismissed on the debtor proving waiver by the creditor of the default which entitles the creditor to file such a suit, in which case the creditor can still fall back on his right to sue for instalments within the time limits prescribed by Art. 74. He has also the other alternative of suing to enforce the default clause for a subsequent default which he had not waived within the period prescribed by Art. 75. 1949 M.W.N. 325=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 592=62 L.W. 100=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 112.

——Art. 74—Where according to the stipulation in mortgage-deed the whole debt becomes due on default in payment of instalment, a suit to enforce personal remedy with 6 years from the date fixed for the last instalment would be maintainable under S. 74 or S. 75 or S. 116. 1941 N.L.J. 649.

——Arts. 74, 75—Applicability — Instalment bond with default provision.

In the ordinary way when a debt is payable by instalments and there is no default provision, a new cause of action arises upon each default, and the plaintiff can recover in respect of instalments falling due within three years before suit, (vide Art. 74). But if there is a default provision, Art. 74 cannot be relied upon, and under Art. 75, if the plaintiff sues more than three years from the first default and there is no waiver, the suit is totally time-barred, that is, he cannot recover even those instalments which fell due within three years of suit. But facts should be so interpreted, if possible, as favouring the view that the creditor has waived the exercise of the option on the first instalment when he bases his suit on subsequent defaults which are within limitation and does not seek to found his cause of action on the earlier default. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 485=1941 A.W.R. 256=1941 O.W.N. 861=194 Ind. Cas. 744.

——Arts. 74, 75—Applicability — Instalment bond with default clause.

It cannot be said that Art. 74 provides a period of limitation for promissory notes or bonds payable by instalments both in those cases in which there is a default clause and in those in which default clause is absent, and that if the creditor chose to sue on the default clause for the full amount, then and then only Art. 75 came into operation. In the case of an instalment bond with default clause, the plaintiff's claim to recover some only of the instalments provided by a registered instalment bond after two defaults had occurred, is hit by Art. 75. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=18 Pat. 459=5 B. R. 965=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

——Art. 74—Instalment bond with default clause—Creditor's right to sue on each default.

A certain bond stipulated that the amount shall be paid by yearly instalments. It was further agreed that in case of default in paying three successive instalments, the whole amount shall become recoverable in a lump sum with interest:

Held, that the default clause did not take away the right of the creditor to bring his suit for instalments as they fell due before the expiry of three years. A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 31=176 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Arts. 74, 75—Applicability.

The bond gave the creditor the option to demand payment of three instalments if default was made together with interest thereon from time to time. It also gave the creditor the option to bring a suit for the whole amount due under the bond if the creditor chose to exercise his right to call in the whole amount:

Held, that in these circumstances it was open to the creditor to sue at any time for all those instalments which had become payable within three years of the institution of the suit. In view of the wording of the bond, the case fell within the purview of Art. 74 and not Art. 75. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 1=39 P.L.R. 110=169 Ind. Cas. 929.

——Arts. 74, 75—Instalment bond — Default clause — Limitation.

On September 5, 1927, the defendants executed an unregistered instalment bond for Rs. 540 stipulating to pay the amount with interest at the rate of 1 per cent. per mensem by instalments of Rs. 25 a month within one year and nine months. It was further provided that in case the instalments or the interest were not paid for any two successive months, the creditor would be authorised to realise the entire amount in a lump sum either within the stipulated period or after it from the person and property of the debtors. The 20 instalments of Rs. 25 (together with the last instalment of Rs. 40), would, if paid, have sufficed to discharge the entire amount due on the bond. The period of 21 months would have expired on June 5, 1929. Before, the expiry of that date the creditor served a registered notice on the defendants dated May 21, 1928, claiming that on account of more than two successive defaults, the whole amount of principal and interest had become due and was payable and should be paid within a week of the receipt of the notice. Later, on June 5, 1929, when the period of 21 months had expired, a fresh notice was served by the creditor on the defendants on April 11, 1930, demanding payment of the whole amount with interest. On July 25, 1931, the suit was instituted for recovery of the entire amount of principal and interest due on the bond:

Held, by the Full Bench (Mukherji, J., contra.)—By serving the notice of demand on the defendant, the creditor exercised his option and made the amount payable on that date and the claim having been brought more than three years after two consecutive defaults, was barred by time.

Per Mukherji, J.—The suit should succeed in respect of eleven instalments which are within three years of the institution of the suit. The notice does not adversely affect the present suit which is based on a stipulation other than the penalty clause. It was not a suit for the enforcement of the penalty clause. When the notice was given, it was the intention of the plaintiff to enforce the penalty clause. But he never brought the suit to enforce the penalty clause and there is nothing in the law to prevent him from not enforcing it if he so chooses. A.I.R. 1934 All. 661=(1934) A.L.J. 1035=3 A.W.R. 845=57 A. 108=151 Ind. Cas. 585 (F.B.).

3. Starting point.

——Arts. 74, 75—Starting point of limitation.

Where an ordinary money instalment bond with a default clause provides that if any instalment is not paid, the whole sum would be due, the limitation for claim to recover money due under the bond runs from the date of the first default which is unwaived. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=18 Pat. 459=5 B.R. 965=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

Overruling—(1931) 11 Pat.L.T. 866=132 Ind. Cas. 112.

——Art. 74—Starting point of limitation.

Where under an instalment bond, the money was to be repaid in ten instalments and the first two instalments were paid but nothing was paid thereafter and the plaintiff sued for the fourth and subsequent instalments within three years of non-payment of the fourth instalment though after three years of the first default:

Held, that the suit was not timebarred as the cause of action was non-payment of the fourth instalment. 1937 O.W.N. 336=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 288=167 Ind. Cas. 293.

——Arts. 74, 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Starting point of limitation.

A bond after setting out that the principal was repayable by yearly instalments of Rs. 100 after the expiry of three years, that is, at the commencement of the fourth year, went on to provide that interest was payable monthly. Thereafter came the condition, that if according to above conditions principal and interest were not paid, then the plaintiff could sue for the whole amount at once:

Held, that the whole amount became payable at once only if there was a default as regards the payment of principal and interest and that the cause of action in respect of the whole amount did not arise at the time of the first default of payment of interest. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 557=37 P.L.R. 242=157 Ind. Cas. 828 (D.B.).

Reversing—A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 548=142 Ind. Cas. 851.

——Art. 74—Starting point—Default clause—Option of creditor—When it comes to an end.

Where an instalment bond provided for full payment in case of default and the creditor sued for whole only when the last instalment fell due.

Held, that the claim for nine instalments was barred.

The plaintiff has an option till the last instalment falls due to claim the whole amount including the last instalment. But where the last instalment fell due the option was gone. Where the option is given to obligee to claim the whole amount on default of payment of an instalment without reference to subsequent instalments, the provision cannot be held to extend the period of limitation to three years from the date the last instalment fell due. On the making of a demand the whole amount becomes due and time would begin to run from the date of the demand. If no demand is made the option given to the plaintiff is gone and time begins to run in respect of each instalment as it becomes due. That which was optional on the part of the plaintiff would not affect right of the defendant. He might well consider the action as accruing from the time that the plaintiff had a right to maintain it. (1843) 4 Q.B. 419, Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 48=1923 M.W.N. 699=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 310.

——Art. 74—Where in a suit, mortgagee was empowered to sue on default of payment of the first instalment of interest.

Held, limitation began to run from the first default. 66 Ind. Cas. 171=44 All. 360=20 A.L.J. 140=A.I.R. 1922 All. 37.

——Arts. 74 and 75—Starting point—Instalment bond.

The starting of limitation is tested by the question "has the payee or obligee a right to file a suit forthwith for the principal remaining due, if he so chooses?" In the case of bonds and pro-note payable by instalments providing that whole becomes due if default is made in payment of one instalment, limitation runs from the time the default is made unless a waiver on the creditor's part is made out expressly or impliedly when it will run after fresh default. If there has been a waiver of right to immediate payment, limitation cannot run at once. 9 S.L.R. 90=31 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Art. 74—Two starting points.

Where a simple money bond gave the plaintiff an option in express terms to wait till the expiry of the term originally fixed for repayment or to sue earlier if the interest for the first six months was not paid, the plaintiff's claim cannot be barred because he chose to stick to the longer term. 16 O.C. 45=19 Ind. Cas. 738.

4. Waiver.

——Art. 74 or 75—Waiver, what is.

It is no doubt true that it cannot be laid down as a general rule that wherever a person omits to claim a particular amount it must be held to constitute a waiver. It is not necessary for a creditor to adduce affirmative evidence in support of waiver. In fact generally it is to be inferred from all the surrounding circumstances.

When the plaintiff does not take any action to recover the first instalment within three years or to sue for the whole amount of the bond on the basis of that default, it may be presumed that he waived his right in respect of it. 1936 O.W.N. 665=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 384=164 Ind. Cas. 431.

——Arts. 74 and 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Waiver.

An instalment bond provided that on any one default the creditor would be entitled to the full amount with interest or miscellaneous amounts in payments of full amount due with interest. There was default but the debtor voluntarily made miscellaneous payments which were accepted by the creditor who though actually sued for the balance urged that he was entitled to sue for the whole amount. The defence was that the creditor had waived such a right and was only entitled to the balance, together with interest from the last default:

Held, that unless and until the creditor took some action to enforce either of those penalties, it must be held that as the debtor continued to make payments as if he were acting under the original arrangement and the creditor continued to receive those payments, the creditor was undoubtedly acting as if the arrangement still subsisted, and must be held to have waived his right to renounce the agreement until he gave notice of that renunciation by taking the proceeding that resulted in the suit and that he was entitled only to the balance with interest from the date of the last default. A.I.R. 1934 All. 697=3 A.W.R. 828=153 Ind. Cas. 553.

——Arts. 74, 75—Instalment bond—Default—Waiver.

Where a bond payable by instalments provides that if default is made in the payment of one or more instalments, the whole amount would become due, and default is made, if there is nothing to show that the creditor has waived the benefit of the default clause during the period allowed by Limitation Act for a suit for the whole amount, he cannot subsequently sue for the instalments counting limitation from the day on which these instalments would have fallen due had there been no default clause.

Allowing the claim to recover the whole debt at once to be barred by time does not amount to a waiver of that claim. 14 N.L.J. 141=A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 1=28 N.L.R. 44=135 Ind. Cas. 414 (F.B.).

——Art. 74—Waiver.

Where the decree-holder accepts the payment of instalments even after the whole decretal amount has become payable by default, his act amounts to a waiver on his part. A.I.R. 1929 All. 881.

——Art. 74—Instalment decree.

In order to constitute waiver of the right to enforce a default clause of an instalment decree payment must be made towards the specific instalments in arrears. A mere acceptance of an amount towards a decree after defaults does not amount to waiver of the default clause. 113 Ind. Cas. 541=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 390.

1. Applicability and Scope.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default clause—Effect—Option of waiver—When to be exercised.

Where an instalment bond with a default clause provides that on default in payment of any instalment the agreement for payment by instalments shall be cancelled or invalidated, then on the happening of a default, the whole unpaid balance of the debt becomes payable, and unless the obligor sues within three years of such default, his remedy gets barred, and he has no longer any option to waive the default and treat each subsequent default as providing a cause of action, though he can of course rely on any payment made within limitation. 13 Cal. 73, appl. and foll. A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 447=30 P.L.T. 11.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Option of creditor—Limitation.

The proper article of the Lim. Act applicable to a case of an instalment bond providing that in case of default being made in the payment of one or more instalments, the whole money shall become due is Art. 75 and limitation begins to run from the date of default irrespective of the fact that the creditor was also given the option of suing only for the instalment in respect of which default had been made. 1943 A.L.J. 238=1943 A.W.R. 128.

——Art. 75 and S. 20—Instalment bond.

Default clause authorising creditor to sue for whole amount not unequivocal—Application of Art. 75 doubtful—First instalment defaulted—Part payment with endorsement made towards first instalment before expiry of limitation in respect thereof—Effect of—Subsequent default in instalments and suit for amount due at date of suit and not for whole balance—Waiver of default clause, held question of fact—Creditor, held entitled to recover amount due at date of suit—Payment, held extended limitation in respect of first instalment under S. 20. 1943 A.W.R. 15=A.I.R. 1943 All. 172=(1943) A.L.J. 28=I.L.R. (1943) All. 210=207 Ind. Cas. 53.

——Art. 75—Option of suing for whole sum on default of six monthly instalments—Waiver—Limitation.

In a case of an instalment bond payable in monthly instalments with a default clause giving an option to the creditor to sue for the whole amount on failure of six instalments, under the provisions of Art. 75 the creditor can institute that suit within three years of the 6th default, and in that suit he can claim not only the instalment still outstanding at the date of the suit and the instalments which had fallen due within three years of the suit but also the six instalments which constitute his cause of action. The principle which holds good in regard to the first exercise of the option under the default clause holds equally good in respect of a claim founded on subsequent defaults and accompanied by a waiver of the option which accrues to the plaintiff on the earlier default. In effect the plaintiff is in any case entitled to claim the instalments of three and a half years, that is 42 past instalments in addition to the instalments still remaining in the future at the date of the suit. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 485=1941 A.W.R. 256 =1941 O.W.N. 861=194 Ind. Cas. 744.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Waiver of option—Practice in Oudh.

An instalment bond provided that in case of default the creditor would have an option to recover the whole amount. In a suit on the basis of it, the plaintiff pleaded payment of the instalments which were time-barred but claimed to recover the whole balance on default in the payment of some of the subsequent instalments which fell due up to the date of the suit, basing his cause of action on those defaults. It was established that the plea of the payment of the first two instalments was false but that he had accepted the payment in part after the default of those instalments:

Held, that the general current of decisions in Oudh is clearly in favour of interpreting any facts which can possibly be so interpreted as favouring the view that the creditor has waived the exercise of the option on the first default when he bases his suit on subsequent defaults which are within limitation. 1940 O.W.N. 1081=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 74=1940 A.W.R. 451=16 Luck. 280=191 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default clause that in default of three instalments whole amount could be recovered by suit—Default in instalments—Suit brought more than three years after default and interest on whole amount from date of bond claimed—No waiver pleaded—Art. 75 applied—Waiver could not be inferred—Suit brought for whole amount could not be treated as one for instalments. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 863=176 Ind. Cas. 308.

——Art. 75—Chit fund—Instalment bond with condition to pay entire sum on default—Limitation.

The defendant's predecessor who had auctioned a ticket in a chit fund executed a bond undertaking to pay the future instalments within one month of their respective dates with the further provision that if default was made, all the amounts that are to be paid in future would be paid irrespective of due date. Default was made and the entire amount became payable on 23rd June, 1922. A suit was filed on the bond on 3rd January, 1927, and it was contended that provision relating to default was a provision in favour of the creditor which he was at liberty to waive and the cause of action arises at the end of each period when the money becomes due:

Held, overruling this contention that the suit was clearly time barred having been brought more than three years after 23rd January, 1922. 68 M.L.J. 244=(1935) M.W.N. 336=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 303 =41 L.W. 442=156 Ind. Cas. 443.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Limitation.

Where a suit for the whole amount is barred under Art. 75, the creditor cannot sue for instalments which would under the primary terms of the bond, have fallen due after the default. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 180=30 N.L.R. 314=151 Ind. Cas. 97.

——Arts. 75 and 74—Default clause—No waiver.

Where there has been no waiver of the benefit of the provisions of a default clause made by the creditor and owing to a default, the whole amount has become due and a suit is brought to recover either the whole of that amount or only a portion of it after the expiry of three years from date of the default (or six years if the deed be a registered one) then the whole claim is barred by time and the creditor cannot be allowed to say that he should get a portion of that amount because his suit should be treated as one falling under Art. 74. But waiver is to be pleaded and proved by the creditor. (1934) A.L.J. 1056=A.I.R. 1934 All. 1039=4 A.W.R. 966=57 A. 561=153 Ind. Cas. 205.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default clause—Waiver.

A bond payable in six annual instalments gave option to the promisee to realise the whole amount in default of any one instalment. The first two instalments were paid. The third was not paid. The promisee filed suit when all the instalments were due for the fourth, fifth and sixth instalments and no suit was filed in respect of the third instalment.

Held, that the right to realize amount by instalments as originally acted upon could not be lost by his failure to exercise option given by the forfeiture clause and the suit was not time-barred. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 849 (1)=149 Ind. Cas. 861 (1).

——Art. 75—Instalment — Default clause — Waiver.

Where, in a simple bond it was provided that the debt was to be paid in four years and interest half-yearly and in case of default in payment of interest for any period on the principal, the creditor had the power of realizing the entire amount in any way he liked:

Held, that the covenant in the bond, entitling the creditor to sue for the amount due on the bond before the stipulated period of four years was for the benefit of the creditor, and it was open to him to waive that option and time did not begin to run from the date of the first default. A.I.R. 1933 All. 235 =(1933) A.L.J. 550=55 All. 283=149 Ind. Cas. 181.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Whole amount falling due on default—Option to creditor — Time from the exercise of option.

Where an instalment bond provided for monthly payment of interest and in case of default in payment of instalments, the creditor was at liberty to recover the whole amount, principal and interest, without waiting for the whole period, the option is in the nature of a liberty reserved to the creditor and it is open to him to avail himself or not of that option. The creditor is therefore entitled to wait until the last instalment falls due. 11 Pat.L.T. 866.

——Art. 75—Applicability—Default clause—Creditor given option.

In an instalment bond with a condition of exigibility on one default the question as to when time begins to run really depends upon the construction of the document and the contract between the parties. When the contract confers on the creditor an option to treat or not to treat the default as enabling him to sue for the whole amount, Art. 75 has no application. 33 C.W.N. 275=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 399.

——Art. 75 and S. 20—Instalment bond with default clause.

An action was instituted to recover money on a bond payable by instalments with the proviso that default in payment of one or more instalments shall render the whole debt due forthwith. The plaint recited the payment of first two instalments and a default of the third. The suit was within time if the first two instalments, were really paid.

Held, that S. 20 had no concern with the case and that Art. 75 was applicable and that therefore oral evidence was admissible to prove the payment of the first two instalments. 35 P.R. 1913, Not foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 294=6 Lah. 163=26 P.L.R. 328=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 394.

——Art. 75—Applicability.

Article 75 of the Limitation Act will not only prevent a suit to recover the whole sum due under a bond but also a suit for later instalments which individually are not time-barred. The Article contemplates that, in the absence of waiver, an instalment bond is to be treated as a bond not permitting instalments for the purposes of limitation. 86 Ind. Cas. 918=12 O.L.J. 112=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 373.

——Art. 75—Applicability — Default for three consecutive instalments.

Art. 75 applies to a simple money bond providing for the repayment of money in instalments and also providing that in default of payment of principal for three consecutive instalments or interest for three consecutive months the promisee could recover the entire amount. 5 L.W. 514=38 Ind. Cas. 302.

——Arts. 75 and 116—Applicability—Payment by instalments—Article applicable.

Art. 116 applies to a suit on a registered bond providing for payment of money by instalments and the whole amount becoming due on default of one instalment and the time begins to run from the date of the default. 30 A. 400. 1 Ind. Cas. 570 (All.)

——Art. 75—Bond—Instalments—Power to sue for whole amount on default of payment—Limitation.

A bond payable by instalments contained a provision that in default of the payment of any one instalment it would be in the power of the creditor to sue for the whole amount due under the bond without waiting for the period provided for the payment of other instalments. Held, that this provision did not mean that the creditor should be compelled to sue for the whole on default of payment of one instalment nor did limitation in respect of the whole debt commence to run from the date of the first default. 31 C. 294; and 221 C. 542, diss. from. 1908 A.W.N. 36= 5 A.L.J. 72=30 A. 123.

——Art. 75—Bond — Instalments—Waiver of right to recover whole amount on non-payment of instalment—Limitation.

Where money secured by a bond is payable by instalments, with a condition that the whole amount secured will become due upon non-payment of any instalment. The creditor is not bound to enforce this condition, but he may accept payment of instalments after due date—thereby impliedly waiving his right to sue for the whole amount due—and he may sue upon a subsequent default in payment of any future instalment. 1907 A.W.N. 139=4 A.L.J. 336=29 A. 431.

——Arts. 75, 66—Instalment bond, suit on. 1906 A.W.N. 198=3 A.L.J. 463.

——Art. 75—Punjab Loans Limitation Act (1904).

In Punjab a suit on a bond payable by instalments and containing a clause that on default on two instalments the whole should be due is governed by Art. 16 of the Punjab Loans Limitation Act (1904) and not Art. 75 of the Limitation Act of 1908. 3 L.L.J. 522=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 280.

——Art. 75—Scope—Instalment bond with exigibility clause—Waiver.

The Limitation Act does not lay down substantive law and so the exception made in Art. 75, in favour of the creditor who waives, cannot be construed as conferring a right which does not exist under the ordinary law. The article refers to cases in which the creditor is entitled to exercise the privilege and it cannot apply when under the ordinary law, or by reason of a special contract, he is precluded from doing so.

An instalment bond contained an exigibility clause under which the whole amount was to be payable at once in the event of any two instalments remaining unpaid. Two defaults occurred and accordingly the plaintiffs became entitled to sue for the whole. Instead of doing so, they sued for the defaulted instalment and obtained a decree. Further defaults having occurred, they subsequently sued for the whole due relying on the exigibility clause. The defendants contended that the suit was barred under Art. 75, and O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C.:

Held, that the person in default should not be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong. The exigibility provisions in instalment bonds are primarily for the benefit of the creditor and unless the bond specially takes away the privilege to waive the benefit of exigibility clause, it must be taken to exist. It would, therefore, be wrong to turn what was intended to be a benefit into a handicap. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 138=1942 N.L.J. 296=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 630=203 Ind. Cas. 250.

2. Default—Meaning of.

——Art. 75—Default—Non-receipt of offered payment.

Art. 75 applies to a case of default in which a provision as to waiver may be material. If the plaintiff does not receive the offered payment, there is no default. Where there is no default there can be no waiver. 38 Mad. 374=((1913) M.W.N. 676=25 M.L.J. 264=21 Ind. Cas. 24.

——Art. 75—Default—Meaning.

Where a defendant has expressed his willingness to pay, there is no "default". 24 Ind. Cas. 507 (Mad.).

3. Instalment mortgage bond.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Instalment bond and mortgage instalment bond—Limitation.

There is an essential difference between an ordinary instalment bond and a mortgage bond payable by instalments. The latter is governed by Art. 132 and the former by Art. 75. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=18 Pat. 459=5 B.R. 965=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

Overruling—(1931) 11 P.L.T. 886=132 Ind. Cas. 112.

——Art. 75—Instalment mortgage bond—Option to sue for entire sum on default—Limitation — Successive causes of action — Waiver — Power to elect.

Where a mortgage bond provides that the amount due thereunder should be paid in certain instalments and contains a further clause that if any of the instalments due is not paid in time, the mortgagee would be at liberty to call in the entire money, the mortgagee has successive or recurring causes of action and it is left to his option to avail himself of any one of these causes of action and base his suit upon any of them. Article 132 will not bar his suit if acting on the terms of the bond, he refrains from bringing a suit on there being a default in payment of any of the instalments and prefers to sue on the expiry of the due date.

This principle applies not only where the parties expressly agree that it will rest with the mortgagee to decide whether he should sue as soon as there is default or on the expiry of the due date fixed, for the payment of the entire money, but also to cases in which on a construction of the deed it appears that the intention of the parties was to enter into such a contract. Such an intention can be implied in certain cases even without the use of any express words. A..I.R. 1931 Pat. 285=12 P.L.T. 755=11 Pat. 112=134 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Art. 75—Mortgage with default clause—Limitation.

Where a mortgage bond provided that the mortgagors should pay the amount after one year, that they should pay half yearly interest, failing which the same was to be added to the principal and there was a further clause that if there was default, the mortgagee might realise the entire amount:

Held, that the mortgage term was not cut down and that limitation commenced to run only afer the expiry of one year. A.I.R. 1931 All. 203=1931 A.L.J. 29=133 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Art. 75—Default in paying instalments converting bond to be payable on demand.

Where in a mortgage-deed the mortgagor promises to pay interest at the end of every month and the deed further provides that in case of default to pay such interest, the mortgagor shall return the principal as well as interest before the expiry of the mortgage period, whenever the creditor would demand the same, the cause of action arises on the day on which default in paying monthly interest is made and time runs from that day and not when the mortgage period expires. 116 Ind. Cas. 581=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 140.

——Art. 75—Where mortgagee is given an option.

Where a mortgage bond provided that in default of payment of instalments of interest, the mortgagee can recover the whole amount when required.

Held, that the stipulation in question gave only the mortgagee an option which is open to him to exercise or not as he chooses; and the time will not run against him unless he exercises the option. 107 Ind. Cas. 650=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 637.

——Art. 75—Mortgage bond—Principal to be repaid in two years—Interest to be paid monthly—Default in payment of interest entitling mortgagee to recover whole amount on demand — Limitation starts when demand is made. 99 Ind. Cas. 871=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 151.

——Art. 75—Under the terms of a mortgage deed the debt is to be paid by instalments of Rs. 100 each; on default of any one instalment the whole amount is to become due at once. In the year 1903-4 the mortgagors paid only Rs. 44 and in 1913 the mortgagees sued to recover the first two instalments and got a decree. In 1917 the mortgagees sued for the balance.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Limitation—Starting point—Mortgage—Instalment bond—Payment of whole in default.

A mortgage bond provided that interest shall be paid every six months and the principal on a fixed date and that on default, both the interest and principal shall immediately become due.

Held, that this created a right in the mortgagee to recover the whole amount at his option in case of default and since there was nothing to show that he exercised any such option, time begins to run only from the date fixed for payment of the principal amount. 24 Cal. 281, Not Foll. The words "whenever you require" in a mortgage bond are not equivalent to forthwith. 25 M.L.T. 154=(1919) M.W.N. 82=9 L.W. 479=51 Ind. Cas. 724.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Hypothecation—Instalments—Option to creditor to sue for whole with enhanced interest on default—Limitation.

A Hypothecation bond provided for payment by instalments and also contained default clause which gave the creditor an option requiring payment of the whole amount of the mortgage money at an enhanced rate of interest upon the failure of the debtor to pay any one of the instalments and the opinion was not exercised by the creditor; held, that the suit was governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 75, that the contract for payment by instalments would subsist and that no enhanced rate of interest will be allowed if no demand was made. (1918) M.W.N. 586=48 Ind. Cas. 191.

——Art. 75—Starting point—Provision for periodical payment of interest and for suit for recovery of entire amount on default—Alternative provision fixing dates for payment of whole amount.

When there are alternative contracts provided for in a mortgage bond, it is open to the mortgagee to forego one and sue to enforce the other. This option cannot be taken away by statute unless the grant of such an option is illegal or opposed to law. The option is for the benefit of the mortgagee and if he waives it, limitation will not run against him in spite of that waiver. 20 O.C. 132=4 O.L.J. 341=40 Ind. Cas. 232.

——Art. 75—Applicability—Instalment bond—Mortgage bond—Waiver.

Where the terms of a mortgage deed provided for payment of the mortgage money by instalments with a condition superadded that non-payment of three instalments on the due dates should empower the mortgagee to recover the whole money due at certain interest .

Held, that time and amount being the essence of the contract, non-payment of or deficiency in the payment of three instalments would, in the absence of proof of waiver on his part, enable the mortgagee to enforce the covenant. 3 O.L.J. 623=37 Ind. Cas. 442.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Instalment bond—Money due on default—Limitation.

A mortgage of the year 1890 was payable by yearly instalments of Rs. 625 in ten years. Interest was payable monthly.. In case of default of payment of interest or principal the mortgagor was to be at liberty to recover the whole amount. There was a further provision that if the mortgagee did not realise the whole amount, interest would go on running, up to the date of realisation.

Held, (Richards, C.J., and Tudball, J.) that as soon as default was made in payment of any instalment the money became due within Art. 132 of the Limitation Act and the suit having been brought more than twelve years after that date was barred by limitation. 30 M. 426; (1891) 2 Q.B.D. 509; 24 C. 281; Foll.

Held, (per Banerjee, J.)—Having regard to the terms of the bond that in case no money was paid, interest was to run to the date of payment and the money secured by the bond did not become due until the expiration of ten years from the date of the bond. Where a creditor is authorised to wait for the full period stipulated for the repayment the money does not become due, within Art. 132 of the Limitation Act until that period expires. 37 All. 400=13 A. L.J. 510=28 Ind. Cas. 910 (F.B.).

——Arts. 75 and 132—Applicability—Mutual relation of articles.

The principle of Art. 75 cannot be extended to cases under Art. 132. 2 Ind. Cas. 653 (Cal.).

4. Starting point.

See also NOTE 1.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Clause enabling lender to sue on default for instalment or whole amount—Further clause giving lender option to sue for whole amount after last instalment became due—Limitation—Starting point.

In the case of an instalment bond, if it is provided that in the event of a default in payment of one instalment the creditor can bring his suit for realising the entire amount of the bond, the whole amount must be considered to become due within the meaning of Col. 1, Art. 75 of the Limitation Act and Art. 75 will be applicable to a suit based on such a bond. Neither Art. 74 nor Art. 80 can have any application. By virtue of the provisions of Col. 3 of Art. 75 time will begin to run from the date of the first default which makes the whole money due, and if waiver is proved the date of a fresh default. Time will begin to run from the date of default no matter whether the creditor has been given the option of suing only for the instalment in respect of which a default has been committed. A stipulation in the bond that the creditor will also have the right to realise by filing a suit in Court the total amount due from the executant on account of principal and interest after the expiry of time for all the instalments that is at the time when the last instalment falls due cannot arrest the running of time when once it has begun to run on account of the fact that Art. 75 governs the case. Such a stipulation is nothing short of a contract or agreement between the parties for altering the statutory period of limitation, namely, three years as prescribed by Art. 75. Parties cannot by contract alter the statutory period of limitation nor can they alter the statutory 'starting point' of limitation. Such a covenant must be deemed to be void under S. 23 of the Contract Act. I.L.R. (1946) A. 711=A.I.R. 1947 A. 38=225 Ind. Cas. 122=1946 A.W.R. (H.C.). 418=1946 A.L.W. 324.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond providing for right to realise whole amount when default is made in payment of one instalment—Option to creditor to sue for instalment in arrear or at the end of period fixed—Effect—Failure to sue within three years of default—If a waiver of right.

In a case governed by Art. 75 of the Limitation Act, limitation for the whole amount of the bond begins to run when the first default is made unless the obligee waives the benefit of the provision. The mere fact that a suit is not brought within the time allowed (three years) would not amount to waiver of the right. Where in a bond provision is made for realisation of whole amount when default is made in payment of one instalment, the giving of an option to the creditor to sue on the default of one instalment or when the time fixed for payment of all the instalments has expired, cannot take the case out of the purview of Art. 75. Where there is no waiver, the suit should be brought within three years of the default in payment of the first instalment. 22 Luck. 33=228 Ind. Cas. 87=A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 128=1946 O.A. (C.C.) 232=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 232=1946 O.W.N. 347.

——Arts. 75, 74 and 116—Instalment mortgage-deed —Stipulation that whole debt would be due on default of instalment—Suit to enforce personal remedy, instituted within 6 years from the date fixed for payment of the last instalment is within time under Art. 74 or 75 and 116. 1941 N.L.J. 649.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond with default clause.

If a creditor keeps quiet and does not prefer any suit to enforce his right of realizing the whole amount under an instalment bond with a default clause, time begins to run against him from the date of first default. (1940) 187 Ind. Cas. 221 (F.B.) (Bhopal).

——Art. 75—Starting point.

The limitation under Art. 75 is three years from the date of default, unless the payee or pledgee waives the benefit of the provision. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 836=(1938) M.W.N. 671=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 251=180 Ind. Cas. 570.

——Art. 75—Deed—Starting point of limitation.

Bond—Debt payable in yearly instalments —On three successive defaults whole debt recoverable—Suit for each instalment falling due is within limitation if filed before expiry of three years from the due date of instalment. A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 31=176 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Art. 75—Suit for future instalments.

Where the suit for the whole amount has become barred by time, no suit for instalments which, under the primary terms of the bond, would have fallen due after the default, lies. (1935) 159 Ind. Cas. 96 (Nag.)

——Art. 75—Creditor's option.

A compromise decree provided that the decree-holder should get a certain sum in full payment of his decree, that the judgment-debtor should pay a sum of money orthwith and the balance in monthly instalments from October, 1924, and in default of payment of four instalments the decree-holder would realize the whole of the decretal amount with interest at a higher rate ; the last clause of the agreement was that the house belonging to the judgment-debtor should remain charged for the decretal amount and that the decree-holder should in default of payment realise the same by sale of the house with interest from the date of default of any payment. The initial payment was made and also the first two instalments and thereafter payment ceased. On the 10th of December, 1928, an application for execution of the decree was made. It was argued that under the terms of the compromise the whole debt became due in April, 1925, and that application was more than 3 years after that date.

Held, that when all the clauses of the agreement were read together, the intention of the parties was to leave it at the option of the decree-holder either to enforce the payment of the whole of the decretal amount at once or to continue to abide by the instalments and that he was entitled to recover the instalments which were due for 3 years before the application. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 615=11 Pat.L.T. 609.

——Art. 75—Option given to creditor—Cause of action—Demand.

It is a well established principle of law that a person cannot be compelled to take advantage of a forfeiture clause and Article 75 itself provides that an obligee can waive benefit of the provision giving him the right to recover the whole of the money in the event of default.

Where the bond provideds that in case of default being made in the payment of two instalments the whole amount would become due only if a demand for such amount were made and there is also a stipulation to the effect that even after the whole amount has become payable the creditor would have the option of recovering either the whole of the amount or only the instalments and arrears, the language of the document clearly shows that the intention of the parties was that unless and until plaintiff made a demand the whole of the money should not be payable by the defendant to him. The cause of action therefore arises in such case on the expiration of each of the periods fixed for the payment of instalments. 8 Bom. 561, Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 80=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 124.

——Art. 75—Starting point—Instalment bond—Waiver.

Where the plaintiff instituted a suit on an instalment bond and having waived his right to recover the whole amount claimed certain instalments.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 75 and not Art. 80 of the Limitation Act.

Held also that the cause of action accrued on each default and that if the suit was brought within three years of that date the suit will not be barred. 1930 A.L.J. 495=A.I.R. 1929 All. 812.

——Art. 75—Optional right to enforce payment may be waived—Waiver must depend upon definite act or performance—Where there is no waiver limitation runs from the date of first default. 33 C.W.N. 250=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 292.

——Art. 75—Liberty to claim whole amount on default of one kist.

In instalment bonds, a stipulation that on default of one kist the plaintiffs would be at liberty to claim the whole sum has the same effect as the stipulation that in such an event the whole sum shall become due. Such stipulation does not give the creditor a right to wait until after the period of limitation had expired, and limitation would commence to run from the first default under Art 75 96 Ind. Cas. 594=53 Cal. 277=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 789.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond allowing recovery of full amount on failure !to pay two instalments—Cause of action arises on the date fixed for payment of the second of the two instalments and Art. 75 applied. 92 Ind. Cas. 530=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 298.

——Art. 75—Suit in respect of instalments not barred.

A suit on an instalment bond which enables the creditor to claim the entire amount on default of any one of the instalments is not time-barred in respect of the instalments which fell due within the period of limitation, although the suit is filed after the expiry of the period of limitation from the date on which the earliest instalment n respect of which default was made fell due. 90 Ind. iCas. 249=1925 P.H.C.C. 215=4 Pat. 820=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 557.

——Art. 75—Parties stipulating that each default should constitute separate cause of action.

The covenant in the mortgage deed as to re-payments was to the effect that the mortgage money with interest would be paid by monthly instalments of not less than Rs. 20 plus interest the payment being made on the 1st day of November, 1899, and on the first day of every succeeding month provided that the entire advance together with interest thereon would be fully liquidated within ten years from the date of the mortgage. It was also agreed that defaults in payment of monthly instalments and interest as agreed should constitute separate causes of action.

Held, by providing that default in the payment of each monthly instalment should constitute a separate cause of action the parties clearly intended that prompt payments should be made and that the period of limitation should run from the date of default unless the payee waived the benefit of the provisions of prompt payment in case of default. Mere forbearance to sue would not stop limitation from beginning to run. 75 Ind. Cas. 1048=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 702.

——Art. 75—When the whole money is to be paid on the non-payment of two or three instalments the cause of action arises on the default of two instalments. 69 Ind. Cas. 237=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 184.

——Art. 75—Instalments bond.

Where the money due under an instalment bond is payable in three annual instalments and on default of payment of one of them the whole of the money due was to be immediately payable a suit by the creditor for recovery of the money more than three years after the date of the first default is barred by limitation under Article 75 of the Limitation Act. 13 C.W.N. 1010 ; 36 Cal. 394, Foll. 65 Ind. Cas. 257 (Cal.)

——Art. 75—Interest payable annually and principal after a definite time.

Where a mortgage-deed provides for the payment of interest annually and of the principal at the end of 10 years, and contains a condition that on default in payment of interest for any year, the mortgagee has the option of suing for the whole of the mortgage-money he is not bound to sue as soon as there is default in any year. He can wait for the full period of 10 years and if he chooses to do so, time will run only from the expiry of that period even as regards the claim for the personal relief. 63 Ind. Cas. 477=19 A.L.J. 406=A.I.R. 1921 All. 104.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default—Whole amount payable—Demand.

The provision for demand in instalment bonds is to anticipate the due date and to enable the creditor to call in all the instalments without reference to the dates fixed for their receipt. When the instalments had ceased to run there could be no question of demand or of exercising a right of option. When all the instalments have ceased to run, a suit brought more than three years after the last instalment but within three years from demand made afterwards is barred. (1918) M.W.N. 586, Foll. 10 L.W. 64=(1919) M.W.N. 550=50 Ind. Cas. 916.

——Art. 75—Default—Limitation.

An instalment bond provided for the money to be paid by five instalments and on default in payment of any of the instalments, the creditor would have the power to recover the entire amount in a lump sum. The bond was executed in 1909 and there was default in the first instalment. Plaintiff waited till the term provided in the bond had fully expired, and sued for all the instalments, except the first two, which had become barred. Held, that under the terms of the bond, the plaintiff had an option to waive his right to bring the suit at once on the happening of the first default and that therefore, his suit with regard to the last three instalments was not barred. 41 All. 104=16 A.L.J. 929=47 Ind. Cas. 926.

——Arts. 75 and 116—Limitation—Starting point—Bond—Interest to be paid every year—Money to be paid within a fixed period.

Where a bond provided payment of money with interest within a fixed period and further provided that in case interest was not fixed, the creditor could recover the entire principal and interest from the debtor. Limitation would not run from the date when default was made in the payment of interest if the creditor waived such default. Where a contract gives party an express option to sue on one occasion or another he cannot be compelled to sue on the first occasion. 4 O.L.J. 402=41 Ind. Cas. 423.

——Art. 75—Limitation—Starting point—Time runs from default.

Where a bond provided that the creditor was at liberty to sue immediately for the whole amount on default of payment of monthly interest, Held, that limitation began to run from the date of such default. 9 S.L.R. 90=31 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Arts. 75 and 120—Limitation—Starting point—Recovery of instalments—Period of limitation.

The period of limitation for the recovery of the instalments begins from the date on which each instalment becomes due, even where it is provided that on failure to pay three instalments the whole shall become payable Art. 74 applies to such a case. 24 Ind. Cas. 507 (Mad.).

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Limitation.

Where an instalment bond contained a condition that in default of payments on due dates, the whole amount with interest shall be payable, the creditor is not compelled to sue for the whole amount in deault of any one instalment but can sue for any instalment due within 3 years. 23 Ind. Cas. 830 (All.).

——Art. 75—Default—Limitation.

Where an instalment bond provided that on default of payment of any instalment the whole amount was immediately payable and a creditor brought a suit for the recovery of the whole amount more than 6 years after the date of the first default, and alleged in the plaint that the cause of action arose on the date of that default, he ld that the suit was barred by time. 35 All. 455=11 A.L.J. 664=20 Ind. Cas. 933.

——Arts. 75 and 116—Instalment bond—Default—Limitation.

Where a suit for the recovery of the amount on a registered instalment bond is brought after 6 years from the date of the first default without any allegation of waiver of the first default in the plaint, the suit must be dismissed as barred. 11 A.L.J. 89=18 Ind. Cas. 690.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default—Limitation.

An instalment bond provided that in case of defaul, in payment of any instalment the whole amount of the bond should be paid at once. None of the instalments were paid. The creditor more than 3 years from the date of the first default, brought a suit to recover some o the instalments ; Held, that in the absence of the waiver, the suit was barred by limitation. 15 Ind.Cas. 856 (All.).

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Default in payment of instalment—Limitation.

The period of limitation for a suit for recovery of overdue instalments upon a simple money bond providing for recovery of all the instalments on default of any one or all instalments, is in the absence of a waiver, three years from the date of the first instalment. 14 O.C. 129=11 Ind. Cas. 526.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Limitation—Starting point—Default to pay.

Where money was payable in instalments and by agreement the creditor could claim whole amount on default of any one instalment, time runs from the date of first default. 2 Ind. Cas. 653 (Cal.).

——Art. 75—Limitation—Starting point.

In the case of instalment bonds providing for the whole debt to become due on default of one instalment, limitation begins to run from the date of the default of first instalment unless there has been a waiver by acceptance of an overdue instalment. 31 C. 297, Foll. 36 Cal. 394=9 C.L.J. 226=13 C.W.N. 1004=1 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 75—Starting point—Instalment bond—Default—Waiver.

Where an instalment bond provided that the creditor "on the debtor's failure to pay any one of the said instalments, shall be at liberty to realize the amount covered by all the instalments immediately". Held, That limitation began to run from the time when the plaintiff first had the right to sue, unless it is proved that he waived his right to demand the whole on default by agreeing subsequently to accept the overdue instalments. Mere abstinence from suing after the right to sue accrued does not amount to a waiver. 13 C..L.R. 243, dissented from. (1904) 31 C. 297.

5. Waiver.

(a) Effect of.
(b) Plea of.
(c) Right of payee.
(d) Surety and waiver.
(e) What amounts to.

5. (a) Waiver—Effect of.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Effect.

Where the obligee is given the right to sue for the whole amount on the occurrence of default in payment of any instalment, it is open to him to waive the benefit of that provision on the occurrence of default in payment of an instalment and yet to avail himself of that provision when a similar default takes place in the payment of a subsequent instalment. 1936 O.W.N. 665=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 384=164 Ind. Cas. 431.

——Art. 75—Effect of—Waiver.

Where the plaintiffs waive the benefit of the provision as to recovery of the whole amount, they will not be able to sue in future for the whole amounts at once but they are entitled to sue for instalments as they fall due under Art. 75, the cause of action accruing on each default. The general Art. 80 does not apply in such a case. 121 Ind. Cas. 272=A.I.R. 1929 All. 812.

——Art. 75—Subsequent default.

A mortgagee who in the past has waived his right on the occurrence of a default, is not bound to give notice before enforcing his penalty on a subsequent default that the waiver will not be repeated. 69 Ind. Cas. 706=3 Lah. 285=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 416.

5. (b) Waiver—Plea of.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond with default clause—Waiver of default—Special pleading—Necessity—If can be raised in appeal—Waiver—What would constitute.

In a suit on a promissory note payable by instalments, which provides for the whole amount becoming due on default in the payment of anyone instalment, the starting point of limitation is the date of the first default unless there is a plea of waiver by the promisee. The failure to raise a plea of a waiver, would disentitle the plaintiff from raising it in appeal because, waiver, is a mixed question of fact and law, and unless facts establishing waiver have been pleaded and proved the legal effect of waiver cannot come into operation or be considered.

Mere failure to sue or inaction by the creditor is not a 'waiver' of the default. Something else must be established to show that the promisee has waived his rights. 22 Luck. 299=231 Ind. Cas. 27=1947 O.W.N. 162=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 154=1947 A.W.R. (CC.) 154=A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 235.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Specific pleading is necessary—It cannot be presumed—Plea of recovery of instalments—Plaintiff cannot in revision plead waiver.

In a case falling under Art. 75 the plaintiff trying to get over the bar of limitation by pleading waiver has to make his pleading specifically on the point and support it by cogent evidence. Waiver cannot be presumed.

Where a plaintiff has pleaded repayment of the first two instalments and stated that it was on account of the repayment of the first two instalments that his cause of action did not accrue at the end of the second instalment but accrued when the fourth instalment was defaulted, but hs failed to substantiate his case that the first two instalments were paid he cannot turn round for the first time in revision and urge that the failure to realise the first two instalments should be treated as waiver on his part and that the default took place when the fourth instalment was not paid. This would be allowing him to make out a new case altogether and one which was not pleaded. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 117=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 955=(1945) Nag.L.J. 473.

——Art. 75—Benefit of—Waiver—Obligee, when can claim.

In order to claim the benefit of Art. 75, it is necessary for the obligee to show that he has waived the benefit of the provision entitling him to sue an earlier default and that he bases his claim on the subsequent default in respect of which there is no waiver. No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to what would or would not constitute waiver. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 176=9 O.W.N. 250=137 Ind. Cas. 223.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Inconsistent plea.

In an instalment bond with the condition of exigibility on one default a plaintiff alleged that cause of action arose on the date of the first default and that the limitation was saved by payments of interest on subsequent dates, which the plaintiff failed to prove.

Held, that the plaintiff cannot be allowed to set up a plea of waiver. A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 85, Foll; 33 C.W.N. 250=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 292.

5. (c) Waiver—Right of payee.

——Art. 75—"Waiver"—Reason of the provision as to.

The provision as to waiver in Art. 75 of the Act is enacted only in favour of the promisee and it is open to him to waive its benefit. 24 Ind. Cas. 507 (Mad.)

——Art. 75—Waiver—Option of obligee.

Under the article it is open to the obligee to waive the benefit of the provision to recover the amount in the case of a first default. Each case is to be governed by the article applicable to it. 15 A.L.J. 313, Applied. 89 Ind. Cas. 383=23 A.L.J. 896=6 L.R.A. Civ. 532=A.I.R. 1926 All. 142.

——Art. 75—No right apart from Art. 75.

Article 75 is the only one which recognises the right of the payee to waive his right to sue on the expiration of the first term of payment. The right of waiver does not apply in other cases. 85 Ind. Cas. 280=27 O.C. 318=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502.

5. (d) Surety and waiver.

——Art. 75—Surety and waiver.

The advantage of the waiver described in Art. 75, can be taken by the creditor against the principal debtor because they are parties to the transaction viz., the payment of the sum and the acceptance thereof. The underlying principle is that the debtor is shown an indulgence and he cannot turn round and say that the creditor's remedy has become barred because he was kind to him. But the same cannot be said of the surety. It is his interest that the debt is cleared as soon as possible, and if he is no party to the payment which extends limitation, the cause of action to sue him for the whole money due under the bond arises on the date of the first default. A I.R. 1935 Pesh. 179=160 Ind. Cas. 134.

5. (e)—Waiver—What amounts to.

——Art. 75—Waiver of benefit—What amounts to—Waiver not proved—Right of creditor to recover instalments within limitation.

The following points can be taken to be well established; (a) that the exigibility clause in an instalment bond is for the benefit of the creditor and he has a right to waive that benefit even in the absence of a fresh agreement, a fresh consideration or a fresh bilateral arrangement; (b) that a mere inaction on the part of the creditor such as an abstinence to sue or a mere receipt of payment, does not amount to a waiver. What is required is some overt act on the part of the creditor, communicated to the debtor, by which a Court of fact can conclude that the creditor has waived the benefit; (c) that the payment by the debtor and the acceptance by the creditor specifically made towards the satisfaction of a particular defaulted instalment would amount to a waiver of that default and of the benefit arising out of that default; (d) that a waiver is a mixed question of law and fact. It has to be properly pleaded and proved. A choice left to the creditor in the default clause itself is inconsequential; and (e) that in the absence of proof of waiver the creditor cannot fall back on the primary terms of the bond regarding payment and claim to recover on that basis instalments which are still within limitation. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 947=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 225.

——Art. 75—Waiver"—What is.

Waiver must obviously be a mixed question of law and fact in each case. Mere failure to sue or inaction by the creditor is not a waiver of the default; something else must be established to show that the promisee has waived his rights. For instance his acceptance of an over due instalment would amount to waiver of his rights which accrued to him on that default and the starting point of limitation would be from the next default if not waived. But an acceptance of a portion of the instalment which was overdue or the acceptance of the interest only on the overdue instalment cannot be held to be a waiver of the default. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=18 Pat. 459=5 B.R. 965=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

——Art. 75—Waiver—Bond payable by instalments—Suit for last instalment alleging payment of previous instalments—Payment of previous instalment not proved—Effect.

The amount of the bond, Rs. 250, was payable by yearly instalments of Rs. 50 commencing from the end of May 1929. The plaintiff's case was that the first three instalments and Rs. 26 out of the fourth instalment were paid by the defendant and he sued for recovery of Rs. 89, that is Rs. 24 about the instalment that fell due on May 31, 1932, Rs. 50 the instalment of May 31, 1933 and Rs. 15 interest. The defendant denied the alleged payments:

Held that even if it be supposed that no instalment other than the first two was paid by the defendant, waiver under Art. 75 was evidenced by the fact that the applicant based his cause of action on the default made about the fourth and fifth instalments and the only effect of the fact that the plaintiff pleaded payment of the first instalment and was unable to prove it was that it was not possible to say that the plaintiff waived the benefit of the provision in respect of the first instalment. The suit, therefore was within time. A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 42=1937 O.W.N. 1073=171 Ind. Cas. 602.

——Art. 75—Waiver, what is.

The words "waives the benefit" in Art. 75 do not mean the same thing as availing oneself of the equitable doctrine of waiver for which either fresh consideration, a fresh agreement or something amounting to an estoppel is necessary. That doctrine is invoked against a creditor, whereas the waiver of the benefit spoken of in Art. 75 is something exercised for the benefit of the creditor and not against him. The waiver therefore may be a purely one sided act and need not be for consideration proceeding from the debtor. The waiver may be by expression of an intention to waive the benefit either by communication to the debtor or by any other overt act. Waiver is a mixed question of law and fact and depends on the circumstances of each case. A mere inaction or omission to sue within the prescribed period cannot amount automatically to a waiver within the meaning of the third column of this Article. (1934) A.L.J. 1056=A.I.R. 1934 All. 1039=4 A.W.R. 966=57 A. 561=153 Ind. Cas. 205.

——Art. 75—Waiver, what is.

Where a creditor had the right to recover the whole sum with interest if there was default on any instalment, or he could waive this right and sue for each instalment as it fell due and no instalment being paid he sued for the whole sum:

Held, that as the creditor sued for the whole amount there was no waiver and time ran under Article 75 from the date when default was made. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 283 (1)=149 Ind. Cas. 972 (1).

——Art. 75—An instalment bond provided that the defendant would pay to the plaintiff a certain amount every year and on default being made in the payment of any three instalments the whole amount would be recoverable at once. No payment was made at all under the bond. Plaintiff brought a suit to recover the amounts of the 7th, 8th and 9th instalments.

Held, that the plaintiff had waived his right to recover the whole amount at once which first accrued to him in default of the first three instalments, and therefore the suit to recover the 7th, 8th and 9th instalments was in time. 97 Ind. Cas. 554=22 N.L.R. 126=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 28.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Creditor accepting overdue instalment—When amounts to waiver—Suit for recovery of balance—Limitation.

Where a debtor agrees to pay the debt instalments and stipulates that in case of default in paying any one instalment the whole amount would fall due, the acceptance of an overdue instalment amounts to a waiver of the right to claim the entire debt provided that it can be definitely proved that the payment has been made towards the liquidation of that particular instalment and ex necessitate the whole sum due is paid. But a payment towards the reduction of the debt generally can on no account be considered a waiver because it is not an acceptance of a specified instalment. Consequently where a creditor waives his right to take advantage of the forfeiture clause with regard to the first three instalments and brings his suit for the recovery of the whole of thebalance within three years from the date when the fourth instalment falls due, his suit is within time. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 179=160 Ind. Cas. 134.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Proof.

In the case of instalment bonds payment and acceptance of overdue instalments cannot by themselves prove waiver, and the question whether there was waiver or not will depend on the attending circumstances of the act claimed as a waiver in each particular case. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 70=144 Ind. Cas. 211.

——Art. 75—Waiver, what is.

According to an agreement between the parties, the defendant was to pay to the plaintiff towards his debt, in instalments of Rs. 17 a month and in case of default, the whole balance was to become payable. The first payment was made on May 20, 1920 a week after due date. In all 19 payments were made at irregular intervals and there were gaps in June, 1930, October, 1930, December 1930, February 1931 and May 1931. No payments were made after June 24, 1931. The plaintiff brought a suit for balance on January 24, 1933.

Held, that it is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule as to what would or would not constitute a waiver In the present case the only reasonable view was that the plaintiff waived, for a considerable time his right to sue for the whole balance due to him. If the 19 instalments were considered to have been accepted by the plaintiff in payment of the amounts falling due in the first 19 months after June 12, 1929, the cause of action accrued five months prior to July, 1931. Alternatively, the cause of action my be taken to have accrued in the month of June, 1930, that being the first "gap". In either case, however, the suit being instituted on January, 1933, was within time. 11 O.W.N. 1191=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 455=151 Ind. Cas. 852.

——Art. 75—Mere payment of defaulted instalments in lump.

Where under the decree defendant is to pay the decree-holder by monthly instalments of Rs. 50 and the whole amount to be realised on default of any six instalments and there was default of six instalments upto August, 1916, and on April 9, 1917, a payment of Rs. 5, 500 was made, and on January 19, 1918, that is to say, eight months afterwards, a payment of Rs. 400 was made, i.e., eight times the instalments due under the decree.

Held, these circumstances are not alone sufficient to infer that the parties came to an arrangement that there should be an agreement for a new period of limitation. 72 Ind. Cas. 275=25 Bom.L.R. 153=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 207.

——Art. 75—Acceptance of overdue payments.

Where an instalment decree provided for payment of yearly instalment on the 16th February of every year beginning from 15th February, 1912, and the plaintiff accepted payments made later than the due dates.

Held, that from the moment of his acceptance the plaintiff was barred from enforcing the right which was his by reason of the defendant's default and that the defendant became barred from pleading that limitation ran from 15th February, 1912. 59 Ind. Cas. 607=14 S.L.R. 128.

——Arts. 75 and 132—Waiver—Meaning.

In instalment mortgage bond where on default of any two consecutive instalments the whole debt was payable, limitation would commence running in respect of the whole from the time of two defaults. Acceptance of part of overdue instalment is not waiver. 33 Ind. Cas. 606 (Cal.)

——Art. 75—Waiver—Meaning—Acceptance of overdue instalments.

Where an instalment bond provides that the whole amount of the bond would be payable in case of default of any instalment, the acceptance of a portion of an overdue instalment does not constitute waiver and limitation runs from the date of default of the first instalment. 20 Ind. Cas. 156 (Cal.).

——Art. 75—Waiver—Acceptance of overdue instalment.

If the creditor does not enforce the stipulation for payment of the entire amount on default of any instalment he must be taken to have waived the benefit of it and time will run only from the date of each fresh default under Art. 75. Waiver is a question of fact the proof of which cannot be defined to any particular mode of proof and when a man does not take advantage of a stipulation in his favour, that is very strong evidence of waiver. It is not necessary to a waiver under Art. 75 that there must be an acceptance of an overdue payment of instalment. 36 Mad. 66=10 M.L.T. 258=12 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Meaning—Overdue instalment—Acceptance of.

Acceptance of an overdue instalment may constitute a waiver, though omission to sue may not. But it does not prevent him from suing for whole debt, if a default is made at any subsequent instalment. 15 C.W.N. 10=13 C.L.J. 206=6 Ind. Cas. 138.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Acceptance of overdue instalment.

The waiver by a creditor must be express. Mere abstinence from suing does not amount to waiver. An acceptance of an overdue instalment may be evidence of waiver. 32 Mad. 284=5 M.L.T. 351=19 M.L.J. 372=4 Ind. Cas. 38.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Suit on instalment bond—Entire debt payable on demand—Acceptance of overdue instalment.

A bond was payable by instalments in default, all to be payable at once. Plaintiff alleged that the first two instalments were paid but not subsequent instalments and he sued for the rest of the money. Held, that Art. 75 of the Limitation Act applies and limitation runs from date of default or where the payee has waived the provision as to a default incurring liability to pay the whole at once, then from the time of the next default. Although the first two instalments were paid a little after due time, their acceptance should be held to constitute waiver. The third instalment fell due within six years of date of institution so the suit was within time. 2 Lah. L.J. 314.

——Art. 75—Part payment and acceptance of part of an overdue instalment—No waiver. 8 C.W.N. 66=31 C. 83.

——Art. 75—Payment should be of the specific instalment in arrear.

Where money is made payable by instalments but it is provided that on default in payment of any instalment the creditor is entitled to recover the entire amount and also to charge interest acceptance of any payments by the creditor subsequent to the default may be evidence of his waiver of the benefit of the clause entitling him to charge interest, but the payment must be on account of the specific instalment in arrear and not a mere payment in reduction of the whole debt, i.e., a mere payment on account generally will not suffice. 43 All. 38=A.I.R. 1921 All. 318.

——Art. 75—Mere laches.

Mere laches on the part of the mortgagee in not selling the mortgaged property or instituting a suit for the recovery of the amount due to him within the period of limitation, is not tantamount to waiver and then mortgagee has to prove express waiver. 5 Cal. 97, Foll. 116 Ind. Cas. 581=A.I.R. 1929 Sind. 140.

——Art. 75—Mere abstinence from enforcing a right at the time when the cause of action arose does not amount to waiver. 87 Ind. Cas. 162=47 All. 552=23 A.L.J. 424=6 L.R.A. Civ. 265=A.I.R. 1925 All. 499.

——Art. 75—Where whole amount due on default.

An unregistered bond provided for the payment of a debt in twelve monthly instalments these instalments including re-payment of the principal as well as of interest. The bond also authorise the plaintiff to sue for the unpaid balance either on default in payment of one of the instalments or on the expiry of one year fixed for payment of the entire debt.

Held, that omission to sue for the whole of the balance does not operate as a waiver and that Art. 75 of the Limitation Act applies to the case and that the default was made when the first instalment was not paid in full. 79 Ind. Cas. 848=11 O.L.J. 513=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 34.

——Art. 75—Mere inaction.

If a creditor simply sleeps on his rights and does nothing for three years it cannot be said that he had agreed to waive the right which accrued to him when the default occurred 82 Ind. Cas. 203=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 301.

——Art. 75—Where defendant executed a registered bond to plaintiff in 1911 providing for 12 regular half-yearly payments and that in default of any one instalment the whole was due with interest and notwithstanding no instalment was paid, the plaintiff sued in 1921 for recovery of principal only stating that as defendant was poor he did not claim interest.

Held, that the plaintiff cannot be deemed from the facts of his not suing for interest, to have waived the defaults and that the suit was barred. 66 Ind. Cas. 655=A.I.R. 1922 All. 113.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Forbearance to sue.

A mere forbearance to sue for the whole amount of a bound payable by instalments, is not a waiver within Art. 75. 47 Ind. Cas. 943. (Cal.).

——Art. 75—Waiver—What is—Instalment bond—Consent not to sue if waiver.

Waiver is consent to dispense with or forego something to which a person is entitled. When the plaintiff consented not to sue for the whole amount as he was entitled to do under the bond for default on the first two occasions but refused to consent on the third. Held, that this amounted to a waiver of the payment of the two earlier instalments. 19 C.W.N. 1172=31 Ind. Cas. 672.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Failure to sue.

Where an instalment bond provides that the total amount would become due on default and a default is made, Held, that it is governed by Art. 75 unless the creditor waived his right to enforce the default provision. Failure to sue is not a waiver so as to affect limitation. 8 S.L.R. 63=25 Ind. Cas. 938.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Meaning.

Mere abstention from suing does not constitute waiver within the terms of Art. 75. 2 Ind. Cas. 653 (Cal.).

——Art. 75—Waiver—Meaning—Omission to sue.

A mere omission to sue does not constitute waiver within Art. 75 of the Act but where the money is paid in, only a few days later and a large sum was paid and accepted in the following year, it is sufficient to establish waiver. 20 Ind. Cas. 329 (Cal.).

——Arts. 75, 116—Waiver—Meaning.

Mere omission to sue is not a waiver within Art. 75 of the Act. 15 C. 502, Foll; 13 C.L.R. 243; 11 C.W.N. 903, Diss. from. A waiver is affected not only by acceptance of a subsequent instalment, but in various ways and may be inferred from various circumstances. But it must always depend on some definite act of forbearance on the party of plaintiff. 13 C.W.N. 1010=4 Ind. Cas. 17.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Mere abstinence from suing, if waiver—Receipt of overdue instalment.

In instalment bonds with a provision for the whole debt becoming due on the failure of payment of a certain instalment, limitation begins to run from the date of the non-payment of that instalment unless there has been a waiver by the payee by the acceptance of an overdue instalment. Mere abstinence from suing, that is, merely allowing the default to pass unnoticed does not amount to waiver within the meaning of Art. 75; but subsequently acceptance of an overdue instalment operates as a waiver. 36 Cal. 394=13 C.W.N. 1004=9 C.L.J. 226=1 Ind.Cas. 49.

——Art. 75—Instalment bond—Whole amount to, become due on default of any one payment—Waiver, what constitutes—Mere omission to sue not constituting. 13 C.W.N. 1004=9 C.L.J. 226=36 C. 394=1 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Arts. 75 and 116—Instalment bond registered—Cause of action—Default—Waiver.

Where in an instalment bond it was stipulated that in default of payment of one instalment the whole amount of the bond shall fall due—Held, that mere omission to sue is not such a waiver as is contemplated by Art. 15 C. 502, foll. 11 C.W.N. 903, dissented from. Such a waiver is not limited to the case of a subsequent acceptance of an overdue instalment, but may be effected in a variety of ways and may be inferred from various circumstances. It must however, depend on some definite act or forbearance. (1909) 13 C.W.N. 1010=4 Ind. Cas. 17.

——Art. 75—Waiver—Award—Payment in instalments—Deduction of time.

Under an award in a business dispute, the defendant passed an instalment bond in plaintiffs favour. The bond, besides providing for monthly instalments, provided for the recovery of principal and interest, on default of three instalments. The defendant paid the instalments till May. The instalments for May and June were returned by the plaintiff. In August he sued to set aside award which was upheld on 26th February, 1908 and by the Appellate Court by 19th January, 1910. During the appeal, the plaintiff's Vakil applied for the decree of the unpaid instalments, but it was rejected. After the appeal the plaintiff, sued for the recovery of instalments due. Defendant pleaded Art. 75 as bar. Held there was no default on the part of the defendent, that there was waiver on the part of the plaintiff and that the plaintiff could not deduct under section 14 the period of previous litigation and also that the defendants could not plead the bar of limitation and that the plaintiffs were entitled to interest on the instalments due as there was no true legal tender of those instalments. 23 M.L.J. 335=(1912) M.W.N. 967=17 Ind. Cas. 513.

6. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 75—Applicability—Indul-talab bond.

There is no justification for giving a different meaning to the expression 'Indul-talab' from the one in which it is commonly used in bonds. It is well settled that whenever a bond is expressed as payable on demand the performance of the obligation is due from the instant at which the obligation arises. (1944) A.L.J. 251=A.I.R. 1944 All. 197=1944 O.W.N. 83=1944 A.W.R. 123=I.L.R. (1944) All. 274.

——Art. 75—Chit—Subscription—Default—Instalment bond—Cause of action.

A claim for the whole amount due for subscription payable to a chit fund on default of any instalment, can be based only on the bond and not on the orginal cause of action. The expression 'on demand' is not merely a technical one, meaning payable at once but denotes a condition precedent to the right to claim the whole amount. (1919) M.W.N. 185=37 M.L.J. 613=9 L.W. 427=50 Ind. Cas. 87.

——Art. 75—Option of limitation—C. P. Code, O. 2, R. 2.

Per Ramesam, J.—In cases in which the bond contains words like "when required" or "when you require"or "if you choose" or "the mortgagee will be at liberty to sue", it is easy to hold that there is strictly an option given to the plaintiff and in such cases there should be an overt act toshow intention to take advantage of the default clause but when the bond contains no such words, it cannot be assumed that the plaintiff has such option. 37 All. 400 (F.B.) and 24 Cal. 281, Appr.: 39 Mad. 981 and 9 M.L.T. 36, Diss. from. 112 Ind. Cas. 270=1922 M.W.N. 204=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 705.

——Art. 78—Payment by cheque or hundi—Dishonour—Limitation—Acknowledgment.

In a suit for recovery of money due on accounts, defendant sent to plaintiff a hundi and cheque which were dishonoured on presentation. Held, that Art. 78 of the Limitation Act did not apply to the case. 46 Cal. 168=27 C.L.J. 392=45 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Arts. 80 and 73—Applicability—Promissory note—Simultaneous agreement by debtor to pay the debt before the discharge of an existing usufructuary mortgage executed by him or in default on the date of the redemption of the mortgage—Limitation for suit on the promissory note.

On the same date as the suit promissory notes the debtors executed agreements reciting that if the debtor do not discharge the debt relating to the promissory notes before discharging the debt due under the usufructuary mortgage executed by the debtors previously in favour of the creditor, the debtors shall pay the promissory notes along with the debt due under mortgage document, cause the payment endorsed thereon, take back the same and take delivery of possession of the lands under mortgage. In a suit on the promissory notes filed beyond three years of their execution.

Held, the agreements and the promissory notes must be considered as part and parcel of the same transaction and the agreements have the effect of postponing the time for the payment of the amount due under the promissory notes, namely, to the date of redemption of the usufructuary mortgage. The agreements have the effect of bringing the promissory notes under Art. 80 of the Limitation Act and a suit filed within three years the discharge of the mortgage will be in time. Art. 73 does not apply to the case. 1950 M.W.N. 118=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 749=(1950) 1 M.L.J. 161.

——Art. 80—Applicability.

Where the bond provides that the loan would be repaid within 7 years from the date of the execution of the bond and that the interest would be paid year by year and that if it was not so paid the creditor would be entitled to sue for the recovery of the entire debt with interest. Art. 80 can have no application. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 210=1941 A.W.R. 108=(1941) O.W.N. 361=16 Luck.464=193 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

Overrules—A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502 and A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 279=162 Ind. Cas. 459=12 Luck. 211=85 Ind. Cas. 280.

——Arts. 80 and 68—Bond executed on July 1, 1930—Part-payment made on November 25, 1930—Writing endorsing payment containing promise to pay balance within four years—Bond fell due on November 25, 1934—Suit to recover balance filed on July 1, 1937, held, not barred.

A bond for a certain amount executed on July1, 1930, provided that the creditor should realize the principal and interest from the debtor by a suit within four years. On November 25,1930, the debtor paid a certain amount towards principal and also paid the interest accrued till then. As to the balance of principal the debtor by an endorsement on the bond promised to pay the same within four years. On July 1, 1937, the creditor filed a suit for recovery of balance of the principal.

Held that by reason of the endorsement the creditor could not sue within the period of four years and the bond, therefore, having fallen due on November 25, 1934, the suit was within time whether it fell under Article 80 or Art. 68. 41 P.L.R. 352=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 236.

——Art. 80—Bond payable in two years with default clause—Limitation.

Where a bond payable in two years contained a clause providing that the creditor could sue for the full amount either on the failure to pay the monthly interest or on failure to pay the principal amount and no interest had been paid.

Held that the clause gave an option exclusively in favour of the creditor, who was entitled to the benefit of the investment of the full term originally provided and need not sue until that term expired even if there is a default in the payment of interest. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 948=8 R.L. 659 (1)=160 Ind. Cas. 1068.

——Art. 80—Instalment bond—Principal payable in instalments after three years—Interest payable monthly—If principal and interest not paid creditor entitled to sue for whole amount at once.

Held cause of action for suing for whole amount did not arise on default to pay monthly interest but on default to pay principal and interest. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 557=37 P.L.R. 242=157 Ind. Cas. 828.

Reversing—A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 548=142 Ind. Cas. 851.

——Art. 80—Administration—Specific breach—Starting point.

Where an administration bond contains several conditions, a breach of each one of the conditions gives rise to a cause of action and should therefore be taken to be the starting point of limitation in the case of a suit based on that particular breach. Ordinarily, the administrator's, work may be said to be completed when he files his final accounts showing how he has dealt with the estate, and these accounts have been accepted by the Court; limitation will then begin to run. But it very often happens that there is litigation pending against the administrator and, in such a case the administrator (and consequently his surety or sureties) cannot be absolved until the close of each litigation. 33 All. 414, Diss; 8 L.B.R. 99 and 17 M.L.T. 61, Foll. 76 Ind. Cas. 802=1 Rang. 463=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 68.

——Art. 80—Mortgage-deed—Failure to pay instalments—Mortgage suit barred—Personal remedy.

The trial Court relying on a clause in the mortgage-deed which entitled the mortgagee to sue for the whole amount of principal and interest, on default of payment of annual interest, held that the claim to enforce the charge was barred by time under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act but it was however of opinion that the personal remedy based on the bond was not barred. It accordingly granted the plaintiff a simple money decree. The lower Appellate Court holding that the personal remedy also was barred, dismissed the whole suit,

Held, although the relief for recovery of money otherwise than by enforcing the charge would be governed by another article with a different period fixed, yet it would be startling thing to find that the time for recovery of the amount due by sale of the property has begun to run, while that for recovering it as a simple debt has not yet started; and that the bond does not fall either under Art.66 or Art. 68 or Art. 75, but falls under Art. 80 read with Art. 116, and that the time began to run against the mortgagee for both the reliefs claimed from the date of the first default, when the money became payable. 19 A.L.J. 406; 15 A.L.J. 315; 3 All. 600 (F.B.) Diss. 69 Ind. Cas. 981=20 A.L.J. 819=45 All. 27=4 L.R.A. Civ. 3 =A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.).

——Art. 80—Registered bond—Whole debt due on default of instalments—Creditor's option—Alternative remedy.

Where a debt incurred on a registered simple bond was to be paid within seven years but on default to pay interest consecutively for two years it was to become payable at once and a default was made.

Held, that the bond was not a single bond of that there was no 'specified day of payment' that therefore the articles that applies for a suit on the bond is not Art. 66 but Art. 80. Where such a condition exists the question is not one of waiver but of a pure contract and the creditor is entitled to adopt either of the two alternative expressly contemplated by the bond. The original promise to pay the debt within seven years, gave another remedy to the creditor to enforce at the end of that period. The failure to sue within time from the default does not bar the second remedy. 16 O.C. 45, Doubted but Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 85=9 O.L.J. 416=26 O.C. 121=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 19.

——Art. 80—Promissory note—Period of payment—Postponed—Limitation.

The executant of a promissory note on 13-6-1913 to a Bank wrote a letter asking the bank that the period of payment be postponed for one year. Held, that the promissory note became payable on the 13th June,1914 and a suit within three years of this date was not barred by limitation. 42 All. 55=17 A.L.J. 950=1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 132=52 Ind. Cas. 235.

——Art. 80—Writing fixing time for payment of money on a promissory note.

A promissory note payable on demand was accompanied by a writing fixing a period for payment, held, that the suit by the payee was governed by Art. 80 and time began to run on the expiry of the time fixed. 39 Mad. 129 =30 M.L.J. 51=19 M.L.T. 62=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 93=3 L.W. 38=32 Ind. Cas. 869 (F.B.).

——Arts. 80, 66 and 67—Bond providing for repayment on happening of certain contingency—Starting point.

Where a bond provided that the money due upon it would be paid at the time of payment of a certain sum of money due on two mortgage-deeds executed previously, the starting point of limitation is the date of such payment and Art. 80 of the Limitation Act governs the case. 30 P.W.R. 1916=32 Ind. Cas. 575.

——Art. 81—Applicability.

Where in a suit for recovery of money paid by plaintiffs on defendant's behalf the plaintiff come into Court asserting that they had been obligated to pay the money as sureties and their whole cause of action is that they had been treated as sureties for defendant, Art. 81 and not Art. 61 will apply. 67 Ind. Cas. 365=55 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 335.

——Art. 81—Mode of payment—Contract Act, S. 114.

Payment must be in cash or by transfer of property. 97 Ind. Cas. 185=9 N.L.J. 107=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 429.

——Art. 81—Payment—Meaning of.

The word "pays" in Art. 81 has the same meaning as in the Contract Act S. 145, and means payment in money or its equivalent and not in the incurring of a fresh obligation e.g., by executing a pronote or bond, etc. 15 N.L.R. 78=50 Ind. Cas. 611.

——Art. 81—Starting point—Date of payment uncertain.

After a suit by creditor against surety was decided against surety, the surety applied for review after depositing decretal amount in Court. Review was dismissed and the creditor withdrew the money deposited. In a suit by surety against the debtor,

Held, that the time ran not from the date of deposit and in the particular case the date of dismissal of review not being known, the date of withdrawal was the starting point. 82 Ind. Cas. 1011=5 L.R.A. Civ. 694=A.I.R. 1925 All. 164.

——Art. 81—Starting point—Payment into Court.

Under Art. 81 of the Limitation Act time begins to run from the time when the surety pays the creditor and the principal debtor remains liable to be sued for three years only after this payment has been made. Payment may be made in more ways than one and if moneys in Court deposit are placed to the credit of the decree-holder, limitation against the principal debtor starts from that date and not from the date when the creditor actually draws out the money. 60 Ind. Cas. 23=(1920) 3 U.B.R. 261.

1. Applicability.

——Arts. 83 and 90—Applicability—Embezzlement by municipal employee—Suit by municipal committee against surety.

Art. 83, and not Art. 90, of the Limitation Act applies to a suit by a municipal committee to recover a sum of money embezzled by its employee against his surety, and the suit has to be brought within three years from the date "when the plaintiff is actually damnified". A suit brought more than three years after the Municipal Committee had knowledge of the embezzlement by its employee is, therefore, barred by limitation. I.L.R. (1948). Nag. 350=1948 N.L.J. 594=A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 48

——Art. 83—Applicability.

A suit for recovery of expenses incurred by the Receiver of an estate in instituting a suit to recover money due to the estate is governed, not by Art. 83 but by Art 61. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 594=(1935) M.W.N. 598=69 M.L.J. 539=42 L.W. 680=157 Ind. Cas. 746.

——Art. 83—Applicability.

Held, on facts that the suit being in its nature a mortgage suit, Art. 132 applied and not Art 83 or 120. 38 L.W. 818=(1933) M.W.N. 486=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 1 =66 M.L.J. 4=57 M. 218=149 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Art. 83—Applicability.

Firm M got 10 bags of Unab attached in execution of their decree against H. A, plaintiff, filed objections against this attachment stating that the 10 bags of Unab belonged to him and were not the property of H, judgment-debtor. These objections were dismissed. A instituted a declaratory suit to the effect that the 10 bags of Unab belonged to him and were not liable to attachment and sale in the decree of M against H. A presented an application for the issue of a temporary injunction to the defendants forbidding them from getting the 10 bags of Unab sold. On the same day an order was issued to the defendants not to have the 10 bags of Unab auctioned. The firm M undertook indemnify A after the auction-sale for any damages suffered by him if it was proved that the bags belonged to A. The property was sold by auction by M. A's suit was subsequently decreed in his favour and it was declared that the bags belonged to him. A brought a suit against firm M to recover the price of the bags and damages for wrongful seizure:

Held, that the suit was not one for damages for wrongful seizure. The cause of action for the suit was the undertaking given by firm M and not wrongful seizure and the suit was governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 29. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 156=36 P.L.R. 948=175 Ind. Cas. 630.

——Art. 83—Applicability—Charge upon immovables.

Where a registered contract to indemnify contains a provision for a charge on immovable property. Art. 132 applies and not Art. 83 or Art. 116. 66 Ind. Cas. 554 =14 M.L.W. 99=1921 M.W.N. 472=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 514.

——Art. 83—Applicability—Indemnification not amounting to contract.

The article does not apply unless the obligation of the principal to indemnify amounts to a contract. If it does not amount, time runs from the date of payment of damages for the agent. 34 Mad. 167=(1910) M.W.N. 316=8 M.L.T. 194=20 M.L.J. 989=7 Ind. Cas. 399.

2. Contract of indemnity.

——Art. 83—Scope—Contract of indemnity.

Where A purchase goods wrongfully in the name of B without the latter's knowledge who is forced to pay the price to the seller, a suit by B to recover from A the amount which he has been compelled to pay is not governed by Art. 83 as there is no contract of indemnity between A and B. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 404=147 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Art. 83—Contract of indemnity.

The contract to indemnify within Art. 83 need not be by express stipulation and may be either imposed by statute or implied or inferred by virtue of the jural relations of the parties. 33 Bom.L.R. 1200=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 25=136 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 83—Express contract of indemnity.

Where the plaintiff's case was that there was an express contract by the defendant to indemnify him.

——Art. 83—Contract of indemnity—Money entrusted for payment.

Money left by A with B for payment to C—Money not paid and damages caused—B is liable and can be sued within three years of the damage. 95 Ind. Cas. 913=24 A.L.J. 550=A.I.R. 1926 All. 605.

——Art. 83—Contract of indemnity.

Purchaser of equity of redemption subject to a prior mortgage, paying only for the equity, impliedly covenants to indemnify the vendor against the mortgage debt. Art. 83 applies to such an implied contract. 16 C.W.N. 1040=16 Ind. Cas. 73.

——Arts. 83 and 116—Contract of indemnity—Vendee to discharge debts of vendor.

The question whether a promise by the vendee to pay off the debt due from the vendor is a contract of indemnity within Art. 83, purely depends on the wording of the document in each case. Where the property was worth more than the debt and the discharge of the debt was the only consideration for the transfer, the contract to pay the debt is a contract to indemnity. Where, however, the vendor leaves part of the consideration in the vendee's hand to pay off the debts of the vendor, the vendor may sue the vendee if he fails to pay the debts after they become due and the words of such a covenant would not amount to a contract of indemnity proper. A contract of indemnity may be one of a sale or a gift. 5 L.W. 228=38 Ind. Cas. 188.

——Art. 83—Contract of indemnity—Contract to pay rent, if assessed.

Where a vendor of land held free of rent makes a covenant in a sale-deed to pay rent if assessed and decreed against the vendee, a suit by the vendee to recover money paid as rent is a claim on a contract to indemnify and is governed by Art. 83 of the Act. 15 O.C. 25=13 Ind. Cas. 979.

——Art. 83—Contract of indemnity—Indemnity—What is.

Where in a deed of sale the vendors said "we are in enjoyment of the house as its owners; and if any one were to obstruct you in your enjoyment of the house, we would remove the obstruction so as to put you to no trouble."

Held, that it did not amount to a contract of indemnity and Art. 83 did not apply. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 571=26 B. 750.

3. Cause of action.

——Art. 83—Right of indemnity—Cause of action.

Where there is an undertaking by the vendee or other transferee to pay off a mortgage debt existing on the property, the covenant is not merely one to pay the purchase-money in a particular manner to the vendor's nominee, but one to relieve the vendor from the liability of the mortgage, and in that sense, there is a contract of indemnity which may be express or implied. In such cases a cause of action arises when the plaintiff-vendor is actually damnified by the sale of the property in the suit by the mortgagee, and under Art. 83, the plaintiff has three years from the time when he is so damnified. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 194=17 Pat. 751=5 B.R. 588=181 Ind. Cas. 459.

——Art. 83—Right of indemnity—Cause of action when arises.

The defendants mortgaged certain items of property to one P. Subsequently they purported to transfer certain items not covered by mortgage to D reserving of a part of the consideration to be paid to P and discharge the mortgage. They then sold a part of the property mortgaged to P to the plaintiff free from encumbrances and it was stipulated that the amount reserved would be paid by D but that in the case he failed to pay, the plaintiff would have the right to recover the amount, which he will be compelled to pay, from D. On D's failure to pay, the plaintiff paid it:

Held, that the payment made by the plaintiff was one made on behalf of the defendants (mortgagors) and the right of action by virtue of the right of indemnity arose on the date of payment by the plaintiff and Art. 83 applied. (1936) M.W.N. 350=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 655=44 L.W. 458=167 Ind. Cas. 157.

——Art. 83—Suit for indemnity—Cause of action,

A owed B a certain sum of money. As A was not able to pay C executed a promissory note to B for the said amount and after the amount due under the note was paid by C to B. C instituted a suit against A for recovering the amount thus paid:

Held, that the suit was not governed either by Art. 61 or Art. 65. Whether C was to be regarded as an agent of B or to have acted at the request of B, the suit was really based on A's liability to indemnify C, the proper article applicable was Art. 83 and the cause of action arose when C paid. 43 L.W. 503=(1936) M.W.N. 422=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 334=70 M.L.J. 537=163 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 83—Cause of action.

Under a contract of indemnity the cause of action arises when the damage which the indemnity is intended to cover is suffered. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 974=38 P.L.R. 126=159 Ind. Cas. 853 (1).

——Arts. 83, 113, 116—Suit on covenant—Exchange deed—Indemnity clause, suit on—No suit for specific performance—Cause of action—See Art. 181. 18 M.L.J. 477=31 M. 452=5 M.L.T. 211.

——Art. 83—Indemnity—Breach—Cause of action.

Where there is a covenant in the nature of an indemnity i.e. to discharge debts on property, the covenantor becomes liable only when the plaintiff actually suffers damages e. g., by loss of possession etc., and a suit brought within 3 years of that date is in time. 38 M.L.J. 470=57 Ind. Cas. 982.

4. Principal and agent.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Suit by agent against principal for indemnity.

The liability of a principal under S. 222, Contract Act, to indemnity the agent is one under a contract within the meaning of Art. 83. Article 83, therefore, applies to a suit to recover money spent by an agent acting within his authority on behalf of the principal. Time runs from the date when the payment is made by the agent. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 302=48 C.W.N. 317.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent.

A suit by a commission agent to recover loss on the transactions entered into on behalf of his constituents is governed by Art. 83. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 25=33 Bom.L.R. 1200=136 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent.

A suit by an agent to recover money due to him from the principal on transactions entered into on behalf of the latter is governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 61 of the Limitation Act. 31 P.L.R. 666.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent.

Suit by an agent to recover money due to him from the principal on transactions entered into on behalf of the latter is governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 61. 34 Mad. 167, Not foll; 23 P.R. 1915, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 767=30 P.L.R. 35.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent.

A suit recover the losses alleged by the plaintiffs to have been sustained by them in certain dealings in some articles of trade which they undertook a commission agents on behalf of the defendants is governed, by Art. 83 and not by Art. 64. 92 Ind. Cas. 595=7 L.L.J. 596=27 P.L.R. 32=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 152.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Suit for value of goods supplied by commission agent—Limitation.

A suit for the recovery of the money due on account of the value of goods supplied by the plaintiff as commission agent to the defendant is governed by Art. 83. 139 P.W.R. 1918=59 P.L.R. 1918=46 Ind. Cas. 541.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Right to be recouped—Loss by an agent.

A suit by an agent to enforce his right to be recouped by his principal in respect of losses sustained during the agency is governed by Art. 83 of the Act, the right being the direct consequence of the agency contract. 35 P.W.R. 1915=23 P.R. 1915=100 P.L.R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 415.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Starting point.

A suit by an agent to recover the amount due from his client must be brought within the period of limitation prescribed by Art. 83 of Sch. 1, Limitation Act. Limitation in such a case operates from the date of the payment on behalf of the principal. 23 P.R. 1915; 59 P.L.R. 1918; A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 167; A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 473; A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 152 and A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 826, Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 719=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 424.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Starting point.

Where a commission agent buys goods for principal and they are re-sold by the agent at a loss, a suit by the agent to recover the amount of the said loss with interest and other incidental expenses must be brought within the period of limitation prescribed by Art. 83, Limitation Act in such a case operates from the date of payment made on behalf of the principal and not from the date of the sale. 23 P.R. 1915; 58 P.L.R. 1918; A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 167 and A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 473, Foll. 106 Ind. Cas. 40=29 P.L.R. 61=9 L.L.J. 493=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 826.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Starting point.

Where a commission agent buys goods for a principal but through the latter's default in paying for the same they are re-sold by the agent at a loss, a suit by the agent to recover the amount of the said loss with interest and other incidental expenses must be brought within the period of limitation prescribed by the Art. 83, Limitation Act, in such a case operates from the date of the payment made on behalf of the principal and not from the date of the sale. 3 L.L.J. 65, Rel. 73 Ind. Cas. 143=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 473.

——Art. 83—Principal and agent—Starting point.

Plaintiffs who were commission agents purchased two kothas of gram at the request of defendants and paid the price out their own pocket. Subsequently they sold them at a loss and filed a suit for the recovery of the loss together with interest and certain incidental expenses.

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 83 (23 P.R. 1915, Foll.) and the period of limitation should be calculated from the date of payment by the agent and not from the date of his selling the goods. In the absence of a contract to the contrary the agent is damnified when he makes the payment. 34 Mad. 167, Foll. 66 Ind. Cas. 900=3 L.L.J. 65=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 167.

5. Registered contract.

——Arts. 83, 116—Suit on registered contract of indemnity.

Where the vendor agrees to indemnify the vendee in case any loss was caused to the vendee in any suit brought in respect of the property of the sale-deed, the mere filing of a suit would not give a cause of action to the vendee to recover damages on this agreement. Even if a third person succeeded in that suit, until the vendee is dispossessed, he would have no cause of action to bring a suit for damages for breach of this agreement. A suit to recover damages in such a case when the sale-deed is registered would be governed by Art. 83 read with Art. 116. 33 Bom.L.R. 1092=55 B. 565=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 36=134 Ind. Cas. 1157.

——Arts. 83, 116—Suit on registered contract of indemnity.

Claim on a registered indemnity bond is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 83. 50 Ind. Cas. 673 (Mad.).

——Art. 83—Registered contract.

A suit for compensation for the breach of a contract to indemnify falls within the purview of Art. 83 and when such a contract is in writing and registered, Art. 116 becomes applicable and by virtue of it the period is extended to six years. Obiter in 116 All. 3, Diss from. 64 Ind. Cas. 431=2 Lah. 316=3 L.L.J. 542=104 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 260.

6. Starting point of limitation.

——Art. 83—Starting point of limitation.

Cause of action for a claim against promisor accrues to the promisee when the latter is actually damnified and his suit is governed by Art. 83. 42 Bom.L.R. 175 =A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 161=188 Ind. Cas. 663.

——Art. 83—Applicability—Starting point.

Where claim was fully satisfied by agreement or decree of Court but the satisfaction was subsequently annulled by another Court:

Held, that a fresh cause of action accrued in favour of plaintiff when the first suit brought by him was finally decided. Article 83 applied and the time began to run when plaintiff was actually damnified. 40 Bom.L.R. 1169=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 26=I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 9 =179 Ind. Cas. 441.

——Art. 83—Starting point.

Where the claim is upon a contract to indemnify, then time would begin to run from the date when the plaintiff is actually damnified. A.I.R. 1936 All. 870 =1936 A.W.R. 1197=166 Ind. Cas. 908.

——Art. 83—Starting point of limitation.

Under Art. 83, time begins to run when plaintiff is actually damnified. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 25=33 Bom. L.R. 1200=136 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 83—Purchaser from widow suing for refund—Starting point of limitation.

Where an alienation was made by a purchaser from a widow, pending declaratory suit by reversioner, and in the sale-deed alienor expressly stipulated for refund of purchase-money with damages, and the Reversioners got the declaration sought for and after the death of the widow they sued and got possession.

Held, that Art. 97 did not apply and that limitation did not commence to run till the vendee were actually dispossessed and from the date of dispossession that suit was admittedly within time. 106 Ind. Cas. 804=9 L.L.J. 468=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 570.

7. Suit by vendor against vendee.

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor for loss caused by default of vendee.

A suit brought by the vendor against the vendee on the default being made by the vendee in paying off the creditors of the vendor, for the loss occasioned by such default is one for recovery of damages for breach of a contract of indemnity and as such, is governed by Art. 83, which must be read with Art. 116, where the sale-deed is registered document. The limitation runs from the date when the vendor is actually damnified. 43 P.L.R. 548=A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 321=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 353=192 Ind. Cas. 841.

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor for loss caused by vendee's dafault—Limitation.

Where there is an undertaking by the vendee to pay off a mortgage debt, there is an implied contract of indemnity, and the case, therefore, comes under Art. 83, when the vendor is actually damnified by the loss of his property by the failure of the vendee to pay it off. The limitation for suit for damages starts from the date of such loss and not from the date of the sale. A.I.R. 1938 All. 297=(1938) A.L.J. 455=1938 A.W.R. 354 =I.L.R. (1938) All. 500=175 Ind. Cas. 241 (F.B.).

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor for loss caused by vendee's default.

The plaintiff executed a sale-deed in favour of the defendants, the deed containing a covenant that they would pay a sum out of the sale price to a mortgagee of some other property. The defendants did not pay and the mortgagee realised a certain amount from plaintiff who thereupon filed a suit:

Held, that as the plaintiff has actually been damnified in consequence of a breach of agreement by the vendee to a sale-deed the suit will come under Art. 83. 1935 R.D. 75=(1935) A.L.J. 255=A.I.R. 1935 All. 463 =1935 A.W.R. 199=154 Ind. Cas. 305 (2).

——Art. 83—Suit by transferor against transferee—Limitation.

J, the father of the plaintiffs, sold a decree to the defendant-respondent on March 1, 1923, for a sum of Rs. 2,500. The entire consideration was left with the defendant for payment to one C who held a decree against J, the vendor. The defendant did not pay the amount left in deposit with him to C and J borrowed money from a third person by executing a mortgage-deed on December 10, 1926, for discharging the decree of C. The plaintiffs sued on December 9, 1929, for recovery of the amount left in deposit with the defendant for payment to C:

Held, that the suit by a vendor in such cases is not for the return of the unpaid purchase-money that the vendee failed to pay, but is to enforce the implied contract of indemnity the breach of which was committed by the vendee by failing to pay to the third party for whose payment the vendor had left a portion of the purchase-money with the vendee, and the suit would come within the purview of Art. 83. A.I.R. 1933 All. 386=(1933) A.L.J. 787=55 A. 490=143 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor against vendee—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit by a transferor against the transferee for the latters default to pay the money left with him for payment to a creditor to the transferor starts from the time when the transferor is damnified i.e., when he pays the money to his creditor. A.I.R. 1933 All. 386=(1933) A.L.J. 787=55 A. 490=143 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor for loss caused by vendee's default—Limitation—Starting point.

Under a registered sale-deed executed on February 28, 1919, by A to B a certain amount was reserved with B to be paid within a year. The sale-deed further provided that if the vendees were to part with the property before the period fixed, they had to pay to the vendor the above sum with interest out of the sale price realised by them. If this condition was violated the original vendor had the right to realise the money from the property sold or enforce his claim personally against the vendee's or the vendees transferees and their successors-in-interest. B sold the property to C reserving the amount payable to A. C did not pay. A sued B and obtained a decree and B paid Rs. 500 to A in settlement on December 19, 1926. B's heirs sued C in 1927, for recovering the amount they had paid to A:

Held, that Art. 116 read with Art. 83 governed the suit, and the starting point was when the plaintiffs were actually damnified, that is, when they paid off A. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 793=34 P.L.R. 734=14 L. 646=144 Ind. Cas. 362.

——Art. 83—Suit by vendor for loss caused by vendee's default—Starting point of limitation.

Where a portion of the purchase-money is left with the purchaser to be paid over to a mortgagee and in consequence of the failure of the purchaser so to do, the seller is obliged to pay the amount due to the mortgagee, a suit for damages against the purchaser is in time if brought within three years from the date of payment to the mortgagee. 12 P.L.T. 211=10 Pat. 451 =A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 271=132 Ind. Cas. 104.

8. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 83—Miscellaneous—Commission agent—When damnified.

When a commission agent allocates the cross-contracts to himself, it might be said that he is damnified on the day when the cross-contracts were entered into. If, on the other hand, he enters into cross-contracts with others, it cannot be said that the loss has necessarily occurred to the commission agent on the day on which cross-contracts were entered into. 33 Bom.L.R. 1200 =A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 25=136 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Arts. 84, 113 and 115—Applicability—Claim for recovery of Advocate's fees—Suit in which advocate was engaged ending in compromise—Scope of Art. 84—Claim after three years by advocate for his fees—Claim if barred by limitation.

An advocate was engaged by an estate to defend a case against the owner of the estate, and a memo. dated 18th November, 1935, mentioned the settlement of his fees. As money was not paid to the advocate, correspondence passed between the advocate and the party as a result of which, in 1937, the estate intimated paying up of arrears in the last week of April of that year. The suit had been compromised in 1936 itself. The estate then went under the management of the Court of Wards, and the advocate preferred a claim for his fees in 1941, which was held to be time-barred. In second appeal, Held, that Art. 84 of the Limitation Act was clearly applicable and the only question was as to the date from which the three years' period commenced to run. It could not be said that as execution proceedings were still pending the suit had not terminated. Though the word "suit" may include execution proceedings as well as an appeal also, this meaning cannot be imported into Art. 84 where the word "suit" seems to be used in its ordinary and not technical sense in which a layman would understand it. Further, from the correspondence between the parties, there was no room for holding that the matter of the suit continued, for the purpose of the present claim, after the compromise in the suit. Hence the claim was barred by limitation. Neither Art. 113 nor Art. 115 had any application to such a claim. 60 L.W. 166=1947 M.W.N. 151=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 457=(1947) 1 M.L.J. 173.

——Art. 84—Pleader's suit for fees—Starting point of limitation.

Suit for fee by Vakil based on contract—Client terminating Vakil's services and engaging another lawyer without repudiating contract—Suit filed within three years of determination of defendant's suit held to be within time. 1936 M.W.N. 395.

——Art. 84—Pleader's suit for fees.

Section 225, Madras Local Boards Acts does not apply to cases where the President of a Board engages a Vakil on behalf of the Board and there is a claim by him for fees but the ordinary law of limitation, namely three years, applies. If the Board is to sue as plaintiff it may be necessary for the President to obtain the sanction

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope.

Under Art. 85, the account between the parties must be mutual, open and current indicating reciprocal demands between the parties. It is sufficient if the dealings are such that the balance might have been in favour of either party : it is not essential that the balance should in fact have been in favour of the defendants at some stage.

Per Crump, J.— The words "where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties" in Art. 85 taken literally may no doubt give rise to some difficulty, but those words have been interpreted as meaning that the nature of the accounts is such as to create reciprocal demands. They are in fact words in the nature of a definition but are not intended to postulate that there should have been reciprocal demands in fact. 76 Ind. Cas. 115=47 Bom. 128=24 Bom.L.R. 1284 =A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 82.

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope—Mutuality and reciprocity.

The test of applying Art. 85 is mutuality and reciprocity ; therefore where there are entries on one side showing cash advances, price of cloth sold, payment made to third person on behalf of the defendants for things supplied and commission charged, for purchases made by plaintiff for defendants and on the other side there are entries showing that the plaintiff firm received various kinds of grains from the defendant and having sold them in the market credited the proceeds to the defendants, the suit comes under Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. 71 Ind. Cas. 259=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 338.

——Art. 85—Applicability—Where there are no reciprocal demands.

Plaintiff sued defendant for a sum of Rs. 1,600 due as principal and interest on book accounts. It was alleged that defendant had struck a balance in favour of the plaintiff for Rs. 756-14-0 and that he had since taken a further sum of Rs. 57 and these items together with interest accrued due amounted to a total of Rs. 1,600.

The accounts on record were not mutual, open and current and there were no reciprocal demands between the parties,

Held, that Art. 85 does not apply but that the Article applicable is either 57 or 64. 4 L.L.J. 69=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 204.

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope.

Where the balance claimed is due on a mutual, open and current account and there have been reciprocal demands between the parties the suit is governed by Art. 85 of the First Schedule of the Limitation Act and not by Art. 57 of the Punjab Loans Limitation Act. In order to bring the case within the latter article the plaintiffs have to make out that the claim, was for money payable for money lent. A mere striking of balance is no evidence of a new contract. 62 Ind. Cas. 898=4 L.L.J. 217= A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 188.

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope.

The test for the application of Art. 85 appears to be whether the dealings are mutual, that is to say, entered in an account consisting of mutual items of debit and credit and not whether they might give rise to independent obligations of reciprocal demands, or whether the balance might shift from one side to the other. Art. 85 contemplates mutual dealings, and it was intended that if there was a continuous account of mutual dealings, then for the purposes of a suit that period of limitation should be computed from the close of the year in which the last item admitted or proved was entered in the account. 63 Ind. Cas. 950=23 Bom.L.R. 540=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 451.

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope.

Although an account may be current and open, to render the Article applicable, however, it is also necessary that each party must have a demand against the other. It is not necessary that any demand should actually have been made. Both parties must, however, have been capable of making a demand. 67 Ind. Cas. 933=3 L.L. J. 362=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 256.

——Arts. 85 and 88—Applicability—Mutual, open and current account.

Where in the dealings between the parties something outside the mere entrusting of goods for sale is found such as for example advances from time to time by the plaintiff to the defendant and credit for the goods sold on defendants behalf, these elements are quite sufficient to bring the case under Art. 85 for the balance due on a mutual, open and current account and Art. 88 has no application. Where plaintiff advanced different sums at different time to the defendant which advances were treated under an agreement as a consolidated debt commencing from date of agreement and a pro-note was executed by the defendant the same day about the consolidated items, held, that a suit on the basis of the dealings fell under Art. 85 and not under Art. 88. (1915) M.W.N. 519=29 Ind. Cas. 462.

——Art. 85—Applicability—Balance not struck—Accounts not stated.

Where in an account no balance was struck nor account stated, the account is a current one. If the dealings were such as to create independent obligations in favour of one party against the other, the account is a mutual one. To such a case Art. 85 applies. 22 Bom. 606; 6 C.L.J. 158; (1896) 16 A.W.N. 186, Foll. 32 All.11=6 A.L.J. 921= 4 Ind. Cas. 261.

——Art. 85—Applicability and scope.

In the case of the plaintiff alone being the banker, advancing and receiving part-payments, without mutual accounts or demands but with a balance in his favour, Art. 85 of Schedule 1 of the Limitation Act is not applicable. 37 Ind. Cas. 300=103 P.W.R. 1916.

2. Essential for mutuality.

——Art. 85—Essential for mutuality.

Mutual accounts are accounts which show reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of credits and debits. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 711=126 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Art. 85—Essentials for mutuality.

To be mutual there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. 34 Mad. 513, Foll. 7 O.W.N. 420=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 287.

——Art. 85—Essential for mutuality —Lending or borrowing.

An account in which one party only borrows or lends is not a mutual account. It is not necessary that the balance should actually shift from one side to the other. An account which he is settled is not an open account. All that is necessary is that from the nature of the transactions it is capable of so shifting. 102 Ind. Cas. 225=29 Bom.L.R. 375=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 225.

——Art. 85—Accounts—Current and mutual—Essentials of mutuality.

Where an account does not indicate transactions creating independent obligations on both sides but there is sometimes a credit in favour of the defendant and that only for a few days.

Held, the account is not a mutual account, and in a suit on such an account the plaintiff is not entitled to the benefit of Art. 85 of Schedule 1 to the Limitation Act.

An account current is an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be ascertained from which it follows that such an account comes under the term of open account in so far as it is running, unsettled or unclosed. Mutual, accounts are such as consist of reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only, though made up of debits and credits.

The tests of mutuality is that the dealings between the parties should be such that the balance is sometimes in favour of the other. An account which consists of entries of payments made by one party in reduction of a debt to another and of payments made by the latter on behalf of the former, is not a mututal account. 66 Ind. Cas. 30=3 Pat.L.T. 492=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 364.

——Art. 85—Essential of mutuality—Each Party must have paid and received.

"To constitute mutual account it is not sufficient that one of the two parties should have received money and paid it on account of the other. The reason of that distinction is that in the case of proceedings at law, where each of the two parties has received and paid on account of the other what would have to be recovered would be the balance of the two accounts; and the party plaintiff would be required to prove, not merely that the other party had received money on his account but also to enter into evidence of his own receipts and payments, a position of the case, which to say the least, would be difficult to be dealt with at law. Where one party has merely received and paid moneys on account of the other it becomes a simple case, but it is otherwise where each party has received and paid." (1852) 9 Hare 471, Foll.

Thus where an account and the agreement upon which it was based provided for a loan by the plaintiffs to the defendants to be discharged by the proceeds of goods transmitted by the defendants to the plaintiffs the account is an account for the money paid and received by the plaintiffs and not an open mutual and current account. 120 Ind. Cas. 714=56 Cal. 575=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 641.

——Art. 85—Essential for mutuality—Independent obligations on each side is necessary.

The plaintiffs sued the defendants on accounts claiming Rs. 1,450. The suit was instituted on the 30th of August, 1918. The accounts showed a balance struck of Rs. 361-6 in favour of the plaintiffs on the 20th May, 1913. Thereafter the accounts continued for another year and ended with a total in favour of the plaintiffs of Rs. 832-9. No second balance was struck formally. Interest at 1 per cent. per mensem was claimed bringing the amount in suit up to Rs. 1,450.

Held, that the article applicable was Art. 57 for which the period is six years under the Punjab Loans Limitation Act of 1904, the balance being an acknowledgment starting fresh period of limitation under S. 19 of Act 9 of 1908. An account is mutual when there are transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and, where the transactions create obligations on one side only, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations, the account is not mutual. 79 Ind. Cas. 998=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 636.

——Art. 85—Essential for mutuality—Test—Intention of parties and possibility of balance on both sides.

The fact that the balance was always in fact in favour of the same party does not prevent the account from being mutual, open and current. The test is the intention of the parties and indeed it is quite probable that there may be times at which the balance stood in favour of the defendant though the accounts were never made up at any such time. 65 Ind. Cas. 881=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 108.

3. Master and servant.

——Art. 85—Master and servant—Salary credited in accounts—Drawings.

In order that accounts might be mutual there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligation on the other and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. 6 M.H.C.R. 142; (1852) 9 Hare, 471, Foll.

The defendant was in the employment of the plaintiff. A ledger account was kept in his house in which were debited against him certain sums he drew periodically in advance, credit being given to him periodically on account of the salary due to him,

Held, that such account cannot be called a mutual account. 103 Ind. Cas. 48=39 M.L.T. 365=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 819.

——Art. 85—Master and servant—Advance of salary from time to time.

The defendant was in the employment of the plaintiff and drew advance against his salary from time to time. His salary was fixed by the year. The plaintiff sued to recover the excess drawn by the defendant over the salary due to him,

Held, that Art. 85 applied and limitation began to run from the end of the year in which the last item is entered in the accounts. 87 Ind. Cas. 832=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 295.

4. "Mutual, open, and current account".

——Art. 85—Mutual account—Meaning of.

It is well settled that in order to constitute a mutual account falling under Art. 85, Limitation Act, there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. 12 B.R. 789=227 Ind. Cas. 36=A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 273.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—What is—Suit by Bank to recover balance.

Where the customer of a Bank is allowed to overdraw his current account, and the account is sometimes in credit and sometimes in debit, it is a mutual account and a suit by the Bank to recover the balance due to it is governed by Art. 85. 58 M.L.W. 361=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 120=1945 M.W.N. 415=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 467.

——Arts. 85, 57, 96—Mutual, open and current accounts.

The defendants who were merchants in a considerable way of business at various places and were anxious to extend and enlarge the premises at their headquarters approached the plaintiff bank with whom they had dealt for several years, and asked for an overdraft. The agent of the bank consented to their overdrawing the current account to the extent of Rs. 30,000 on condition of their mortgaging the land on which their business premises stood together with the existing buildings and any other buildings which they might subsequently construct on it. The bond stipulated for the payment of interest at 9 per cent. per annum to be compounded at the end of every six months. It further stipulated, that payments were to be made in instalments, and that the whole of the amount should be paid on or before December 31, 1931. The last advance made to the defendants was made as far as January 26, 1931. An action was brought on November, 1937, on the mortgage. It appeared that the sums actually advanced to the defendants amounted to Rs. 35,000 or Rs. 5,025 in excess of the overdraft for which he has asked. The suit for Rs. 30,000 on the mortgage was decreed.

Held, that the claim for the sum of Rs. 5,025 was barred by limitation. When the defendant drew a cheque on the bank knowing that the funds to their credit were not sufficient to meet it but expecting the bank nevertheless to honour, it, they impliedly applied to the bank for an overdraft of a loan. If the suit had been instituted within a period of three years from the date on which the earliest of the various sums amounting in all to this Rs. 5,025-15-9 had been paid out by the bank, the suit would undoubtedly have had to be decreed.

Held, also that the bank knew that the defendants had not mortgaged their property for more than Rs. 30,000. But inspite of this, it honoured the cheques in excess of that amount. The action could not, therefore, be regarded as one for the recovery of money paid under a mistake so as to be governed by Art. 96 and Art. 57.

Held, further that from the statement of account it appeared that various sums were paid by the bank to the defendants or to persons who presented cheques drawn on the bank by the defendants between certain period. During the period only two payments were made by the defendants to the Bank, both of them being credited towards the amount due as interest on the overdraft. In these circumstances, it was impossible to say that there were in fact mutual dealings between the parties. 8 B.R. 218=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 201=197 Ind. Cas. 449.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test.

For mutual accounts there should be reciprocity of dealings between the parties. Accounts having items on one side only are not mutual accounts, though such accounts are made up of debts and credits. The absence of a shifting balance is not fatal to the conception of mutuality. The phrase "reciprocal demands" in Art. 85, does not import that either party has made an actual demand in fact. But the dealings must be of such a nature that they might lead to reciprocal demands. Once a mutual, open and current account is started and there are reciprocal demands, it so continues so long as the amount remains open and current. If the account is closed then that account is finished and turned into a settled account as the case may be. Also if the account ceases to be current, clearly from that moment any other account between the parties would have to depend for its nature on its own qualities, not on the qualities of the old account. The fact that after a certain date the account was one-sided cannot turn a mutual, open and current account into a non-mutual, open and current account. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 113=1939 N.L.J. 109=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 222=184 Ind. Cas. 139.

——Art. 85—Mutual, current and open account—Test.

The real test in finding out whether a case is governed by Art. 85 is to find out whether the balance was shifting in favour of one party or the other. If that is the case and it is possible that one day the plaintiff can say that defendant owes him a certain amount and on another day the defendant can say that the plaintiff is indebted to him, then clearly it is a case of mutual, current open account. For determining the question of mutuality, it is not necessary that there must be a large number of transactions between the parties. There should be two sets of transactions. In one set one party should hold the position of a creditor and the other a debtor and in the other set the position should be reversed.

Consequently where a person deposits a certain amount in current account with a bank and he makes an overdraft of a larger amount which is allowed on account of his current account and executes a promissory note and a receipt in lieu of the overdraft, the transaction comes within the purview of Art. 85. A.I.R. 1940 All. 209=1940 A.W.R. 55=(1941) A.L.J. 51=I.L.R. 1930 All. 147=190 Ind. Cas. 356.

——Art. 85—Mutual accounts—What constitutes.

To constitute a mutual account, there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. The test of mutuality is that the dealings between the parties should be such that the balance is sometimes in favour of one party and sometimes in favour of the other. If the balance is always in favour of one party then the case is one in which there are not separate mutual dealings. On the other hand the mere fact that the defendants have been debtors throughout does not show that the accounts were not mutual. It is sufficient for an account to be mutual if the dealings are such that the balance might have been in favour of either party ; it is not essential that the balance should in fact have been in favour of the defendants at some stage. Article 85, applies where the nature of the business between the parties is such as to give rise to reciprocal demands. While the criterion of a shifting balance is not conclusive to show that on account did not start, as, or did not continue as, a mutual one, yet where an account has started as a mutual one, and thereafter one side is always indebted to the other and the course of dealing between the parties consists merely of partial repayments of that indebtedness and incidental and passing small transactions creating independent obligations on one side, but insignificant in account, and never such as would by their nature, be likely to result in that party being able to be in a position to make a demand on the other, then the account ceases to return to its character of mutuality.

Therefore, an account between the parties for a sufficient length of time merely showing repayments on account by defendant to the plaintiff to reduce indebtedness is not a mutual account at all. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 270=177 Ind. Cas. 442.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—What is.

To constitute a mutual account, it is sufficient if there be only one set of transactions, but that set should create alternately debts and credits which are to be set off against one another. Two independent sets of transactions are not necessary. If, however, an account starts with deposit to the credit of the customer and then consists of a series of alternate credits and debts, and then for a long period, consists merely in the debt in favour of the bank being reduced by payments by the customer, the account cannot be called a mutual one. Although the account started as a mutual one, it continues on a different footing and changes its nature, and to such an account which has long ceased to be a mutual one, Art. 85 does not apply and the article applicable would be Art. 57. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 340=1937 Rang. L.R. 254=172 Ind. Cas. 837.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—What constitutes.

Transactions to be one of mutual, open and running accounts within the meaning of Art. 85 must disclose reciprocal demands. Reciprocal demands involve transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other and not merely transactions which create obligations on one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 382=64 C.L.J. 513=166 Ind. Cas. 900.

——Art. 85—Current, open and mutual account—Test.

An open account is one which is continuous or current uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or otherwise consisting of a series of transactions. An account current is an open or running account between two or more parties or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be ascertained. Such an account comes under the term of an open account, in so far as it is running, unsettled or unclosed. Mutual accounts are such as consist of reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only, though made up of debits and credits.

Where the account between the parties was open and current, but there was no occasion when the balance stood in favour of the defendant, and it was clear from the nature of the dealings between the parties that there was no possibility of the balance standing in favour of the defendant :

Held, that although it was a open and current account, it could not be said to be mutual. A.I.R. 1935 All. 53=(1935) A.L.J. 33=4 A.W.R. 1335=155 Ind. Cas. 44.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test.

The question whether the dealings can be described as mutual, open and current depends upon the general nature of the account and not upon some casual entries. There may be some casual entries which do not imply a regular course of reciprocal dealings, and, on the other hand, cases may also be conceived where though the items giving rise to reciprocal demands are very few, yet the account possesses the essential attribute of mutuality.

There were sales of oil by the plaintiff creating obligations on the defendant's part. Payments were made from time to time by the defendants in discharge of the amount due by them. There were, however, two items that represented sales made by the defendants to the plaintiff's but though the dealings extended over several years, there was not a single items of sale by the defendant still the accounts were practically closed:

Held, that the accounts were not mutual. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 982=158 Ind. Cas. 429.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Tests.

Where the accounts show that the defendant firm was depositing money with the plaintiff Bank from time to time and the plaintiff Bank was allowing the defendant firm to draw money in excess of the deposits with the result that the balance was frequently shifting in favour of one or the other party and the pro-note which was taken by way of security for overdraft indicated that the overdrawing was not merely accidental, but it was understood between the parties that the defendants would be at liberty to borrow money from the plaintiff for the purposes of their own business by overdrawing on their account and the deposits made by the defendants were on the other hand often in excess of their liabilities, they cannot be looked upon as mere payments in discharge of the loans. If there are transactions creating independent obligations on both sides and each party can say to the other 'I have an account with you' and make a demand, thereon, there is a mutual, open and current account. 36 P.L.R. 325=15 L. 652=A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 358=152 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Meaning of.

Article 85 refers to a suit to recover the balance on a mutual, open and current account between the parties and time begins to run from the close of the year in which the last item admitted or proved is entered in the accounts. Whether an account is mutual, open and current so as to attract the application of Art.85 is a pure question of fact and depends on the nature of the dealings between the parties, nature of the entries and other relevant circumstances. In order that an account should be mutual, there must be dealings between the parties and such dealings must be capable of giving rise to independent obligations on each side of the account at any given period or stage. The test to determine if an account is mutual, open and current is to see whether the dealings between the parties are of such a nature that the balance might shift sometimes in favour of one party and sometimes in favour of the other. An account current means a running account, that is, an account which is continued and not stopped or closed. If the account it running that is, if it is unclosed, then it is open and current. Mere cessation of the dealings between the parties does not mean that the account is closed. The real question in each case would be what is the intention of the parties, and that must inferred from the surrounding circumstances.

In order to bring a case under Art. 85, it is necessary for the plaintiff to show that he is suing for the balance due on a mutual and open account. The account must be open down to the suit but if at the time the suit is brought the account was closed, Art. 85, will not apply. 35 Bom. L.R. 929=58 B. 200=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 450=145 Ind. Cas. 630.

——Art. 85—'Mutual, open and current account.'

There can be no mutual account unless each party has a right of action against the other party and has a right to demand the fulfilment of certain obligations. A.I.R. 1932 All. 38=132 Ind. Cas. 420.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Tests—Advances of money by plaintiffs and supply of tea by defendant to plaintiffs for sale—Accounts, whether mutual—Reciprocal demands, meaning of—Refusal to supply, effect of.

The applicability of Art. 85 does not depend upon the question whether the relationship between the defendant and the plaintiffs for this purpose should be described as that of principal and agent or must be described as that of consignee and consignor.

For an account to be mutual open and current, there must be cross claims arising out of a course of dealing which evidences or is referable to an intention to set off. The phrase "reciprocal demands" does not import that either party has made an actual demand in fact but it involves transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other and not merely transactions which create obligations on one side those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations.

The type of case where each party has received and paid on account of the other, is by no means the only type of case coming within Art. 85. Perhaps the simplest and commonest case of all is that of two merchants each supplying goods to the other.

The defendant, being in need of finance in connection with a tea business hypothecated to the plaintiff's the entire tea crop for the season 1920, and the produce thereof and agreed to send and transmit the said tea as soon as it was manufactured in order that it might be sold in Calcutta by the plaintiffs by public auction and for such price as the plaintiffs might consider reasonable. The plaintiffs alleged that, pursuant to this deed, they advanced moneys to the defendant and received from him consignments of tea proceeds of which after sale they credited to the defendant ; and that these dealings were carried on, on a mutual open and current account with the defendant, commencing from February 3, 1920, and ending on June 10, 1921. The suit was instituted in 1924, for the balance due:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff's liability to account to the defendant for the proceeds of the tea sold by them was as independent obligation and the circumstance that they were expected and intended to apply such sums as would be necessary in liquidation of their advances did not mean that this was an account in which the obligations were all on one side as distinct from an account in which there are cross-claims or reciprocal demands, and the suit was, therefore, governed by Art. 85;

(ii) that the fact that the plaintiffs had in September, 1920, refused to continue to make further advances did not take the case out of Art. 85, and the suit was not time barred.

Per C. C. Ghose, J.—For a mutual account, there must be a mutual credit founded on a subsisting debt on the other side or an express or an implied agreement for a set off of mutual debts. Where for instance, the dealings on either side are so independent of each other that neither party in giving credit to the other, relies on the debt which he has against him, there are no mutual dealings; in other words, each party must be able to say to the other some time or other during the period of account. "I have an account against you" i.e., not merely a shifting balance by reciprocity of dealing and the right to mutual demand which form the essential ingredients of a mutual, open and current account. An account is open when the balance is not struck or though struck, is not accepted or acknowledged to be correct by the parties concerned and an account is current when it has been going on as a continuous account between the parties. A running or continued account between two or more parties is an account current. A shiting balance may be a test of mutuality but its absence is not a conducive proof against mutuality. 34 C.W.N. 1175=52 C.L.J. 314=58 C. 649=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 359=133 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Tests.

It is of the essence of mutuality that each party to the account must extend credit to the other on the faith of admitted indebtedness, and it is necesary to show that the indebtedness of each party was the result of a course of dealing in which credit was extended on the faith of the indebtedness to him. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 241=12 L. 420=32 P.L.R. 954=134 Ind. Cas. 513.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test.

The question whether an account can be held to be a mutual, open and current account with reciprocal demand between the parties as contemplated by Art. 85, must depend upon the nature of the account in each case; it is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule of general application. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 233=32 P.L.R. 65=131 Ind. Cas. 292.

——Art. 85—Mutual account, what is.

Where there are transactions between two merchants on each side creating independent obligations on the other, and the balance is shifted from one side to the other, the account is a mutual, open and current account. The proper article to apply to such a case is Art. 85 and not Art. 62. 121 Ind. Cas. 581=53 Bom. 652=31 Bom.L.R. 1187 =A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 5.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open, current account.

The plaintiff was lending moneys to the defendant and debiting the same the defendant, in his accounts. The defendant was making purchases on behalf of the plaintiff and advancing moneys for these purchases. These amounts were credited by the plaintiff to the defendant in his accounts. The balance was sometimes in favour of the plaintiff and sometimes in favour of the defendant,

Held, that the account was a mutual, open, current account within the meaning of the Art. 85 of the Limi ta tion Act. 112 Ind. Cas. 715=1929 A.L.J. 73.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—Test and essentials of.

An account is mutual within the meaning of Art. 85 when there are transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other. But where the tranactions create obligations only on one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations the account is not mutual. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 636, Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 791 (Lah.).

——Art. 85—Mutual, open, current account.

In an account where credit and debit entries are carried over from time to time, from year to year from transaction to transaction, the account is a mutual, current and open account within Art. 85. 102 Ind. Cas. 225=29 Bom. L.R. 375=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 225.

——Art. 85—Mutual open, current account.

Is it well-settled that an open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or otherwise consisting of a series of transactions. A current account has been held to be an open or running account between two or more parties or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is or can be ascertained. Mutual accounts are accounts which show reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits. 73 Ind. Cas. 916=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 347.

——Art. 85—"Mutual, open, current account"—Price paid from time to time.

According to the allegations in the plaint business was conducted between the parties on condition that the defendants purchased grain from the plaintiffs' gumasta and paid the price thereof from time to time. The plaint alleged that the casue of action arose on various dates, these dates being the dates on which the different items were debited in the account,

Held, this is not mutual account even if there may have been occasionally a balance in the defendants' favour. 72 Ind. Cas. 135=1 Pat. L.R. 283=4 P.L.T. 424=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 242.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Mere totalling up of entries does not close the account.

The agent for both the parties lent money on behalf of one firm to himself as agent for the other firm. Each of those loans gave rise to a right of set-off or claim against the borrower, and as both plaintiff and defendant were on occasions the lenders, these transactions gave rise to reciprocal demands from time to time. The accounts were never settled.

Held, the fact that the agent for his own convenience totalled up the position and made entries of the result in each firm's books did not close the account. It was continuous and was therefore, an open and current account, and having regard to the mutual loans, it was also a mutual account. 68 Ind. Cas. 928=11 L.B.R. 369=1 Bur. L.J. 240=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 18.

——Art. 85—"Mutual, open, current account"—Striking of balance—Mere delay in suing—Character not changed.

The plaintiffs sued to recover the balance due on cross-transactions in which each side supplied the other with goods in kind. There were mutual dealings and though balances were struck from time to time these were merely acknowledgments and not agreements to pay.

Held, the case is one not of a stated account but of a mutual, open and current account, where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties. The case is, therefore, governed by Art. 85 and not by Arts. 64 or 57. The mere fact that the plaintiffs have allowed a considerable time to elapse before suing cannot in any way change the nature of the account; nor can it be held that an account becomes closed whenever a balance is struck. 66 Ind. Cas. 387=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 316.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account.

Where in respect of transactions between the parties no balance was struck and payments were made by one party not in respect of any particular transaction but in respect of the account generally and hundies were drawn from time to time by one party at a time when the albance was decidedly in the other party's favour,

Held, that the transactions constituted a case of mutual, open and current account with reciprocal demands within the meaning of Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 124.

——Art. 85—"Open, mutual and current account."

Where A sends goods to B for sale on commission, receives advances thereof from time to time and sett the sum due by him at periodical settlement of accounts, Held, that a suit for accounts by A against B after the dealings had stopped is not a suit on an "open, mutual and current account" within Art. 85 of the Act. 5 L.W. 375=37 Ind. Cas. 875.

——Art. 85—"Mutual, current and open account" what is.

To constitue a "mutual, current and open account" the account must not only be mutual, current and open but there should also be reciprocal demands between the parties. 6 T.R. 189, Foll. Per White, C.J., Oldfield, J., dissenting.—An advance by one person to another for carrying on business with him does not cease to be an item of debit against the other in the mutual open and current account by the fact of execution of a promissory note for the advance received. 24 Ind. Cas. 128 (Mad.).

——Arts. 85 and 64—Punjab Loans Limitation Act—Acknowledgment—Novation Mutual open current account.

Plaintiff and defendant had dealings early in 1904, and balances were struck in May, July and November, 1905. Entries had to be made sometimes to defendant's debit and sometimes to their credit. The last balance wound up with the words Baqi Dlone. Held, that the words were simply equivalent to the English phrase "balance due" and that an acknowledgment did not amount to a promise to pay and Art. 85 and not Art. 64 was applicable to the claim. The mere fact that accounts were kept by one side alone was not a sufficient reason for holding that the account was not an open, mutual and current account within the meaning of Art. 85. 16 P.R. 1916=178 P.L.R. 1915=118 P.W.R. 1915=30 Ind. Cas. 491.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Advance of money—Consigning goods on commission—Obligation, nature of.

Where the plaintiff advanced money and the latter consigned goods for sale on commission there were independent obligations and mutual account within Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. 14 M.L.T. 498=21 Ind. 773.

——Art. 85—Mutual open and current accounts—Test.

The test to find out a mutual, open and current account is whether there were mutual demands and not merely payments by one party to the other on account of a debt due by the former to the latter. Mere shifting of balances sometimes in favour of one party sometimes in favour of another affords no real test of mutuality though it is an important consideration. 23 M.L.J. 516=17 Ind. Cas. 48.

——Art. 85—Open.

An open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or otherwise, consisting of a series of transactions. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 158.

——Art. 85—"Mutual and current account".

To show that an account was mutual, it is necessary to prove not only that one of the parties has received money and paid on account of the other, but also that each of the two parties has received and paid on the other's account. Each party should be able to say against the other "I have an account against you". 5 Cal. 759; 6 C.L.J. 158, Foll. 8 Bur. L.T. 116=8 L.B.R. 149=27 Ind. Cas. 879.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Bahi—Balance struck and carried forward—Reciprocal demands.

Plaintiff sued for money due on a bahi account. Plaintiff had supplied defendants with money and with various articles the values of which were given in the account and debited against defendants. There were mutual demands between the parties on balances struck upto a certain date. The account was not closed even on that date but the balance was carried forward. Held, the accounts between the parties were mutual open and current and the suit was governed by Art. 85 of the Limitation Act. 17 P.W.R. 1920=54 Ind. Cas. 453.

——Art. 85—"Mutual open and current account"—Meaning of.

An open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by settlement or, otherwise, consisting of a series of transactions. An account current is an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be ascertained. Mutual accounts are such as consist of reciprocity of dealing between the parties, and do not embrace those having items on one side only, though made up of debits and credits. An account under which one party has merely received and paid moneys on account of the other is not a mutual account, properly so called. Each party must receive and pay on account of the other. A shifting balance, sometimes in favour of one side, sometimes in favour of the other, is a test of mutuality, but its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality. The mere circumstance that on one solitary occasion there was a sum to the credit of the defendants in the books of the plaintiffs, does not make the account between the parties a mutual account in which there has been reciprocal demands between the parties. 5 C. 759; 6 C.L.R. 112, Foll. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 158.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current—Reciprocity of dealing.

The reciprocity of dealing and the right to mutual demand form the essential ingredients of a mutual, open and current account. (1904) 7 Bom. L.R. 151.

5. Plea of.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account, what is—Plea, if can be raised for first time at stage of argument.

In a suit for rent by the lessor against the lessee, the mere fact that the items of rent are not entered in a separate account book cannot be held sufficient to show that there was a mutual, open and current account between the parties.

Plea of "mutual, open and current" account being one of fact cannot be raised for the first time at the stage of arguments. 33 P.L.R. 323=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 61=14 Lah. 137=142 Ind. Cas. 754.

6. Principal and agent.

——Art. 85—Principal and agent.

Suit by agent against principal for the balance due on account:

Held, that Art. 85 applied. (1932) 34 Bom. L.R. 1410

——Art. 85—Suit by agent against principal for damages.

Where a commission agent purchases goods for his principal, and on the principal refusing to accept some of the goods the agent resells them, a suit for damages is governed by Art. 85 and not by Art. 61. 34 Bom. L.R. 1268=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 593=140 Ind. Cas. 624.

——Act. 85—Principal and agent.

The phraseology of Art. 85 is wide and comprehensive and does not exclude from its purview the case of a principal and agent between whom a mutual, open and current account has existed. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 712=125 Ind. Cas. 623.

——Art. 85—Principal and agent.

Where the accounts between a principal and his agent commenced with principal's payment as margin money but all the subsequent items showed only money spent by agent on behalf of principal, the account could not be called mutual account with reciprocity of dealings and so Art. 85 would not govern the case. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 347, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 767=30 P.L.R. 35.

——Art. 85—Principal and agent.

Even in a suit by commission agent, where the accounts were stated and balance struck, Art. 64 applies and not Art. 85. 100 Ind. Cas. 874=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 51.

——Art. 85—Principal and agent.

Where a commission agent who as such, received goods from the defendants and also discounted defendants hundies sues the defendant on a lengthy account showing a shifting balance, sometimes in favour of the plaintiff and sometimes in favour of the defendant, his suit is on mutual, open and current account and so is governed by Art. 85. 92 Ind. Cas. 674=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 283.

7. Settlement account.

——Art. 85—Settlement of account.

Where an account stated comprises items on both sides and a balance is deducted thereon it being always in favour of one party and not shifting on one party or the other that balance represents the amount of liability for future and is recoverable within three years from the statement of account although some of the earlier items in the account may have been already time-barred. 106 Ind. Cas. 53=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 127.

——Art. 85—Settlement of accounts—Acquiescence.

Words or conduct may amount to acquiescence as to the correctness of an account and may even operate as a settlement. 7 Bom. L.R. 151, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 225=29 Bom. L.R. 375=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 225.

——Art. 85—Settlement of account—Adding new dealings.

An open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed by a settlement or otherwise, consisting of a series of transactions. Where, therefore, an account has been deliberately interrupted and closed the mere adding later on, in order to avoid limitation at the end of the new dealings the old balance will not make it an open account. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 347, Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 815=28 P.L.R. 146=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 848.

——Art. 85—Settlement of account.

Where there was a current account and a mutual one, and the plaintiffs had claims against the defendants for money advanced plus interest and the defendants could set off, against those claims, their share of any profits made in the transaction in which the parties had a common interest, but the account was not open and current at the time of the suit and the account had been closed and had been settled by the striking of a balance,

Held, the article applicable is Art. 64 which applies to a suit for money payable for money found to be due on accounts stated. 68 Ind. Cas. 815=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 182.

8. Shifting balance.

——Art. 85—Mutual account—Test—Shifting balance.

For the purpose of determining whether an account is a mutual one, the fact that there were oscillating balances in favour of the two parties is not decisive. Although a shifting balance is test of mutuality, its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality. The test is, not that there must be a shifting balance, but that such was a possible and likely incident of mutual transactions in regard to which the account was kept. 26 Pat. 231=A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 18=1948 Com. Cas. 127.

——Art. 85—Mutual, current and open account—Shifting balance, necessity of.

Where, instead of paying cash in or towards the discharge of his account, the debtor sells certain items of property to the creditor in partial discharge of the moneys due to the creditor, the credit of those items in creditor's account cannot render the account between the parties a mutual, current and open accounts in the absence of anything to show that the sale of the items by the debtor was an independent transaction or created an independent obligation and that there was at some point of time any balance due to the debtor. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 13=1942 M.W.N. 561=55 L.W. 585=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 337=207 Ind. Cas. 133.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance.

An absence of a shifting balance is not decisive in case of mutual, open and current accounts. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 356=41 P.L.R. 809=185 Ind. Cas. 805.

——Art. 85—Applicability—Shifting balance.

Where, in a case, independent obligations are created between the parties and although the annual balance is struck, the account is not closed and parties continue to deal with each other on the old footing, the mere fact that during the last few years the balance was always in favour of one party will not take the transaction out of the category of Art. 85, Lim. Act. 1938 A.W.R. 517=A.I.R. 1938 All. 504=(1938) A.L.J. 773=I.L.R. (1938) All. 741=177 Ind. Cas. 815.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account—Test—Shifting balance.

Where the plaintiffs held a mortgage from the defendant and the defendant sent tea to the plaintiffs to be sold on the understanding that the amounts realised through the plaintiff's agency were to be utilised in paying off the plaintiff's mortgage :

Held, that the account was not a mutual, open and current account :

Held, further, that a shifting balance is not necessarily a conclusive test. It is necessary to show that the dealings were of such a nature that they might lead to such a shifting balance. 15 N.L.J. 105=A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 50=29 N.L.R. 20=142 Ind. Cas. 123.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance.

Mutual accounts are such as consist of reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits. Although a shifting balance, sometimes in favour of one side and sometimes in favour of the other, is a test of mutuality, its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality.

Where a man lends money in one capacity, and in another capacity acts as an agent for the borrower and the two accounts are put together, there is a mutuality of dealing between the parties, although the money may have been lent for the express purposes of enabling the borrower to provide business as commission agent to the lender. In such a case Art. 85 applies. 15 Ind. Cas. 336 ; A.I.R. 1922 All. 188 ; 1 I.A. 346 and A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 451, Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 694=50 All. 645=26 A.L.J. 353=A.I.R. 1928 All. 236.

——Art. 85—Reciprocity—Shifting balance—Absence of.

A mutual, open and current account between the parties is such as consists in reciprocity of dealings between them and not merely of items on one side though made up of debits and credits. In such an account each should be able to say to the other. " I have an account against you ". Although a shifting balance is a test of mutuality its absence is not a conclusive proof against mutuality. A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 107, Foll.

The parties were dealing under an agreement under which the plaintiff was acting under instructions from the defendant and was purchasing and selling shellac on account of the defendants, sometimes the transactions resulting in profits and at other times in loss ; at one time the accounts stood in favour of the defendant, at another time in favour of the plaintiff, and the last item was entered on 25th April, 1920. The plaintiff brought a suit for the recovery of the amount from the defendant on 3rd April, 1923.

Held, that the account between the parties was a mutual open and current account, and so Art. 85, Limitation Act, was applicable and thus the suit was within time. 107 Ind. Cas. 533=7 Pat. 238=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 221.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance.

Mutual accounts are such as consist in reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits. Although a shifting balance is a test of mutuality its absence is not a conclusive proof against mutuality. 5 Cal. 750 and 6 C.L.J. 158, Foll. 74 Ind. Cas. 831=4 Pat. L.T. 571=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 107.

——Art. 85—Reciprocity of transactions—Shifting balance—What is necessary to prove.

In order that accounts might be mutual, there must be transactions on each side, creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. Where there is a case of shifting balance, sometimes in favour of one side, sometimes in favour of the other, it is a test of mutuality, but its absence is not conclusive proof against mutuality. If there is a balance in favour of either party, it follows that there must be mutual liabilities of both parties to each other ; if the balance is always in favour of one party in the very nature of the transactions, then the case is one where there are not separate mutual dealings.

In order to prove a mutual and open account curren it is sufficient to prove mutual dealings between the parties consisting of sales made, or services performed, by each party, to or, for the other, creating mutual duties or reciprocal demands. Where there was an obligation, on the one hand, to pay salary and an obligation on the other hand, to account for and pay over to the principal the amounts that may yearly be found due on balance to the principal,

Held, this is mutual account. 71 Ind. Cas. 466=17 M.L.W. 243=1923 M.W.N. 81=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 278=44 M.L.J. 184.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance.

The plaintiffs' firm made advances of money to the defendants. The defendants were dealers in grain and used to send their grain to the plaintiffs' shop. Plaintiffs sold it as commission agents and, after deducting their commission and other charges, credited the amount remaining to the defendants in the account, Held, that the accounts came within Art. 85. 114 M.L.T. 498, Foll.

An account is mutual when there are transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other and where the transactions cfeate obligations on one side only, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations, the account is not mutual.

The absence of a shifting balance was not conclusive against the mutuality of the account. 17 Mad. 293 and 22 Bom. 606, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 669=31 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 369.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance.

To bring a case within Art. 85, there must be independent obligations between the parties. The existence of a shifting balance though important evidence of mutuality is not conclusive ; there must be transactions on each side creating independent obligations on the other. 34 Mad. 513=21 M.L.J. 391=8 M.L.T. 412=(1911) 1 M.W.N. 1=8 Ind. Cas. 141.

——Art. 85—Shifting balance—Balance always in favour of one party.

Per Abdur Rahim, J.—It is not sufficient that the account is open and current or that the entries show debit and credit ; there must be reciprocal demands. Accounts are not open and current when the opposite party is not allowed to show that they were not kept in the ordinary course of business. (Per Phillips, J.).—It makes no difference that the expenditure and receipts are kept in separate books, nor that the balance is always found to be in favour of one party. 10 M.L.T. 409=22 M.L.J. 14=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 440=12 Ind. Cas. 673.

Open, mutual and current account with reciprocal demands in which there is sometimes a balance against one party and sometimes against the other and a formal balance struck within 3 years from the close of such an account, is the one contemplated by Art. 85 though the parties may be taking account and finding balance every year to see how the accounts stands. 99 P.W.R. 1910=75 P.R. 1910=124 P.L.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas. 715.

9. Starting point of limitation.

——Arts. 85, 89, 120, 62—Starting point of limitation.

A suit was brought to recover certain amount from the sons of a deceased karpardaz who has said to have retained that sum wrongfully out of moneys collected by him on various dates, within three years from the date of the death of the karpardaz. The Courts found that in fact there was no liability on the part of the deceased karpardaz to pay over sum received to the estate directly on receipt. There was running account, and the arrangement was that he should retain sufficient funds in his hands out of the collection for cost of litigation on behalf of the plaintiff for whom he held a general power-of-attorney :

Held, that Art. 62 did not govern the case. The date of receipt of the sums could in no circumstances operate as the starting point of limitation. The liability to pay the sum claimed first arose at the time of the karpardaz's death. Whether the suit be against him or his sons, there was no question of limitation running before that date. Limitation could run only from the date of death and, therefore, the suit was within time whatever article of the Limitation Act might be held applicable, whether Arts. 85, 89 or 120, since the suit was within three years of the karpardaz's death. 7 C.L.T. 87=8 B.R. 268=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 181=23 P.L.T. 457=197 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account, what is—Dealings between banker and borrower—Starting point.

Where a depositor borrows money from a bank by means of overdrafts, and occasionally deposits money, which is applied to the overdrafts, the transaction is not a mutual account, and the statute of limitation runs from the date of each loan notwithstanding the fact that the transaction opens with a credit to the depositor.

Mtual, open and curr nt account means a course of dealing where each party furnishes credit to the other on the reliance that on settlement the accounts will be allowed so that one will reduce the balance due on the other. A suit to recover the balance due on such an account is governed by Art. 85. 8 B.R. 218=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 201=197 Ind. Cas. 449.

——Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account, what is—Starting point of limitation.

Where, between the parties, there is a dual contractual relationship: (i) that of borrower and creditor and, (ii) that of principal and agent and in these dealings, the plaintiff as creditor has demands against the defendant, while the defendant as the principal has independent demands against the plaintiff as his agent, and the items relating to all the dealings are entered in one account, such an account is clearly a mutual, current and open account and a suit for recovery of the amount due on it may be brought within three years from the close of the year in which the last item admitted or proved is entered in the account. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 356=41 P.L.R. 809=185 Ind. Cas. 805.

——Art. 85—Starting point of limitation—Mutual, open and current account—Limitation.

Plaintiffs and defendants agreed that the former should purchase grain for the latter and store it in their godown, that defendants should pay interest on the outlay, make a deposit to cover losses and that defendants should be entitled to any profits made upon the resale of the grain by plaintiffs. Held, that the transaction was a mutual, open and current account and limitation began to run at the close of the year in which the last item was entered in the account. 15 Ind. Cas. 336 (All.).

——Art. 85—Starting point of limitation—Mutual, open and current account.

When the account is a running account showing what balance is due from either party at different times but is never finally settled, limitation begins to run only from the date of its being closed. 115 P.W.R. 1909=128 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 960.

——Art. 85—Starting point of limitation—Running account—Limitation Act (15 of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 85—Suit for balance on running account—Jurisdiction of single bench of Chief Court—Small cause of below Rs. 5,000—Question of fact—Regularity of an account to be basis of a claim—Benami transaction—Transaction by agent on behalf of principal.

Where an account between a principal and his agent shows what balance is due from either party at different times but is never finally settled, it is a running account and limitation begins to run from the date of its being closed under Art. 85. 128 P.L.R. 1909=115 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 960.

——Art. 85—Starting point of limitation.

Where the dealings between the parties are such as to create independent obligations in favour of one party against the other the account between them is a mutual account. 22 B. 106, Foll. Art. 85 applies to a case of this nature giving rise to reciprocal demands, and mitation begins to run from the close of the year in which the last item was entered in the account. [1896] A.W.N. 86, Rel. on. (1909) 6 A.L.J. 921=4 Ind. Cas. 261=32 A. 11.

10. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 85—Right to sue, when accrues.

In the case of an open, mutual and current account a creditor is entitled to sue upon an acknowledgment duly made and entered in the books provided he brings his suit within time calculated from the date of that entry. The right to sue upon such an acknowledgment is not postponed from time to time by the payment of a few annas by the debtor into his account. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 86=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 442=204 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 85—Miscellaneous—Balance due on current account—Last item within time but advanced more than 3 years of preceding item.

Where the last item in a mutual open and current account was advanced to defendants within 3 years but that item was advanced more than 3 years after the close of the year in which the last preceding item was entered, the suit is barred by limitation in respect of the previous account. 1 Lah. 12=64 P.L.R. 1920=35 P.W.R. 1920=55 Ind. Cas. 872.

——Arts. 89 and 120—Applicability—Suit under S. 79 of the Lunacy Act against the manager of lunatic's estate.

A lunatic for whose estate the District Judge appoints a manager, cannot be said to be the principal of the manager of his estate within the meaning of Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. Therefore, that article cannot apply to a suit under S. 79 of the Lunacy Act against the manager and as there is no other specific article applicable to such a case, the residuary Art. 120 will apply. 23 Luck. 65=A.I.R. 1949 Oudh 51=1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 273=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 273=1947 O.W.N. 530.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

Suit for money recovered under a registered power-of-attorney—Claim based on power—Article 116 and not Art. 89 is applicable. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 106=I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 578=212 Ind. Cas. 483.

——Art. 89—Co-owner's suit for accounts.

To a suit for accounts by one co-owner against another who has received more than his share of the income o the property, article applicable is either Art. 89 or Art. 120, but not Art. 62. The question whether Art. 89 or Art. 120 applies depends upon the facts of each case. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 216=45 Bom. L.R. 424=208 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for accounts by ward against guardian.

A suit by a ward against his guardian for rendition of accounts is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 89. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218=22 Pat. 114=9 B.R. 260=206 Ind. Cas. 126.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

A suit for accounts against a Receiver appointed under O. 40, C. P. Code, is not governed by Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 483=75 C.L.J. 1=46 C.W.N. 294=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 577=202 Ind. Cas. 389.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

A suit for accounts and recovery of shares pledged as security for the loan by the wife of the deceased debtor is governed, not by Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 386=55 M.L.W. 90=1942 M.W.N. 129=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 274=206 Ind. Cas. 539.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit to recover profits wrongfully withheld.

When a person has been placed in rightful possession as custodian (supratdar) and he rightfully receives the profits in that capacity, but wrongfully withholds them, a suit for their recovery is not governed by Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 181=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 92= 1941 N.L.J. 184=201 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Principal and agent.

Suit by principal to enforce charge created in his favour by agent to secure money that might be found due from agent falls under Art. 132 and not under Art. 89 or 116. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 257=72 C.L.J. 480=44 C.W.N. 793=195 Ind. Cas. 151.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for accounts by one co-tenant against another.

An action for accounts by one co-tenant against the other not being an action for money had or received is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62 or Art. 89. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 363=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 110=189 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

Three sisters succeeding to residue of father's Zamindari under will—Eldest appointed manager for collecting accounts and profits and distributing them between them—Suit by one sister against her for accounts of profits is governed by Art. 89 and not by 62. A.I.R. 1939 All. 442=(1939) A.L.J. 428=1939 A.W.R. 456=1939 R.D. 382=I.L.R. (1939) All. 594=183 Ind. Cas. 584.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

Three firms S, M and R had dealings with each other. The two firms, S and M were carrying on business together through their agents. Firm R owed the other two firms jointly certain amount and executed two promissory notes, both in favour of the M firm as the firm S was in a chaos at the time. With respect to the latter note certain securities were given to the M firm so that it might collect whatever was realisable out of those securities and appropriate the amount towards the debt due to the two firms. Firm M collected certain amount in respect of the second pro-note. Firm S brought a suit for accounts in respect of the collections :

Held, that the relationship between S and M firms was akin to that of a trustee liable to account though no specific trust was created for the purpose and the suit, therefore, was not governed by Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 671=49 M.L.W. 608=(1939) M.W.N. 360=189 Ind. Cas. 31.

——Arts. 89, 90—Applicability—Agent serving principal under salary chit for period of three years—To facilitiate business, agent also given power-of-attorney not for limited period—On expiry of first, another salary chit executed changing only salary and commission. Suit for accounts by principal, on termination of agency—Allegation of excess of authority in some transactions—Article applicable was 89 and not 90—Period of agency under two salary chits, held to be single agency. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 38=183 Ind. Cas. 82.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit by co-sharer for his share of profits.

A suit between two co-sharers for a share of profits realised by the co-sharer in possession is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 89. A.I.R. 1936 All. 706=1936 R.D. 298=(1936) A.L.J. 984=1936 A.W.R. 700=165 Ind. Cas. 266.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Article 89 applies to suits between principal and agent. 1933 A.L.J. 1009=A.I.R. 1933 All. 642=55 A. 814=147 Ind. Cas. 529 (2).

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for accounts of dissolved partnership.

Where, after the dissolution of a partnership, an agreement was entered into between the partners to the effect that two of them were to collect the outstandings of the partnership as trustees and to deposit the amount in a bank after paying off the partnership liabilities and that all the partners should share the balance equally and one of the partners sued for rendition of accounts of the moneys realised under the agreement:

Held, that the agreement created a modified form of relationship of principal and agent between the parties quite apart from that of the original agreement of partnership that had been dissolved and the suit was, therefore, governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 106. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 300=134 Ind. Cas. 527.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for accounts by principal against agent—Limitation.

A suit by a principal against his agent for accounts is not a suit for compensation for breach of contract within Art. 116, and is governed by Art. 89.

The plaintiff and the defendant, who were brothers, and another brother, as members of a joint family, owned a village. In 1896 they executed a registered deed of partition by which they agreed that each brother should be in management of the village for two years in turn and should settle the account for his management in July of each year and pay the amounts due to the other brothers. The defendant was in management under that arrangement for Faslis 1326 and 1327. The plaintiff sued for what was due to him for those Faslis. The defendant in his written statement claimed to set off what was due to him from the plaintiff for the plaintiff's period of management, Faslis 1324 and 1325. The District Judge found that the defendant's claim for those two earlier Faslis was barred, as it should be taken to be governed by Art. 89. On appeal it was held that the defendant's claim in respect of those two Faslis was in time as it could be brought under Art. 116, as well as Art. 89 :

Held, that as both the parties had chosen to sue for accounts, though they could have sued for compensation for breach of contract, the defendant's claim was governed by Art. 89 and was barred. 62 M.L.J. 45=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 185=(1930) M.W.N. 1199=33 M.L.W. 1=54 M. 654=131 Ind. Cas. 165.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

When an agent agrees to submit yearly accounts to his principal, a suit for account against the agent is governed by Art. 89. 1930 M.W.N. 1199=33 M.L.W. 1=131 Ind. Cas. 165=54 Mad. 654=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 185=62 M.L.J. 45.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Tenants-in-common.

When by an oral agreement one tenant-in-common is left in possession as the agent of the other tenants-in-common, if one of them sues him for an account, the suit is governed by Art. 89. 1930 M.W.N. 1199=33 M.L.W. 1=131 Ind. Cas. 165=54 Mad. 654=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 185=62 M.L.J. 45.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Co-sharers—Rent received on behalf of other sharers.

Where by virtue of an arrangement some of the co-sharers have been realizing rent of joint immovable property for division among other co-sharers, the relationship between the latter and the former is that of an agent and principal; and a suit for realization of the share of rent by the co-sharer is governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 62. 111 Ind. Cas. 635=10 L.L.J. 355=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 688.

——Art. 89—Applicability—No demand or refusal.

In a suit by the principal against agent for rents and profits of the suit property, if there was no demand and refusal of accounts, the agent is liable to account for all the amounts received on behalf of the plaintiff. It is immaterial in such a case whether Art. 89 applies on the ground of agency, or Art. 120 applies on the ground of absence of specific contract of agency. 114 Ind. Cas. 364=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1236.

——Art. 89—Applicability—No contract of agency.

Where there was no specific contract of agency between the parties Art. 120 should be applied and not Art. 89. A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150 (F.B.), Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 364=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1236.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for accounts—Where misappropriation is alleged.

To a suit by principal, for an account of the management of certain properties of his estate the proper article applicable is Art. 89 even when what is charged includes misappropriation. 41 Mad. 1, Rel. on. 109 Ind. Cas. 532=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 906.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Produce of fields.

J sued the son of one H for an account of the produce of certain fields for some years. He alleged that H retained the produce of the fields during these years on his behalf.

Held, that Art. 62 or Art. 89 would govern the suit. 112 Ind. Cas. 126=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 256.

——Art. 89—Applicability.

The plaintiff engaged the defendant as his agent to look after certain villages and collect the rents, rendering an account to the plaintiff between the parties. There were written agreements between the parties. After some years, the defendant was dismissed.

——Arts. 89 and 11—Applicability—Suit for—Money left with vendee for payment to creditors.

A suit by vendor to recover from the vendee the money left in his hands to be paid to creditors which he has failed to pay must be regarded as a suit for account in spite of the plaintiff's asking for a decree for a definite sum. 11 A.L.J. 152=18 Ind. Cas. 336.

——Arts. 89 and 62—Applicability—Joint property—Partition—Portion kept joint—Suit to recover share and for accounts.

Where at a partition between the members of a joint Hindu family, a portion of the family property is left undivided with the senior member of the family with a view to its being realised and the proceeds divided, a suit for accounts and recovery of his share in such property by a member of the family is governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 62. 22 Bom. L.R. 1289=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 384.

——Arts. 89, 115 and 64—Applicability—Adjusted account—Suit for money due on.

Where the accounts of an agent have been taken and adjusted and a specific sum is found due from agent to principal, the principal can sue forthwith under Art. 64 or 115 of the Limitation Act and not under Art. 89 which contemplates suits in which accounts have to be taken. 25 C.L.J. 335=21 C.W.N. 591=40 Ind. Cas. 359.

——Arts. 89 and 132—Applicability—Principal and agent—Kabuliyat by agent—Dismissal and re-appointment—Defalcation after reappointment.

A Kabuliyat was executed by the agent hypothecating certain immoveable property to be answerable for any defalcation made by him or any damages suffered by the principal through his negligence. The agent was dismissed the next year but was reappointed the year after. Held, that the agent's position at the year of re-appointment was not governed by the Kabuliyat but by the ordinary rules applicable between the principal and agent and Art. 89 of the Limitation Act applied to the suit. 21 C.L.J. 458=29 Ind. Cas. 748.

——Arts. 89 and 36—Applicability—Suit for money misappropriated.

A suit for money received and misappropriated by a servant is governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 36. It is immaterial in a civil action whether the misappropriation charged is criminal or not. If there is no misappropriation but money is payable by the defendant to the plaintiff for money received by the defendant and not accounted for, Art. 89 still applies. 28 Ind. Cas. 452 (Cal.).

——Arts. 89, 115, 116, 132—Applicability—Suit against gumasta for accounts—Hypothecation of immoveable property to secure agent's liability—Limitation—Registered contract—Stipulation to furnish periodical accounts.

Ordinarily speaking a suit by a principal against his agent for an account is governed by Art. 89 and the period is three years from and after the demand for and refusal of such document or the termination of the agency. 14 C.W.N. 122=5 Ind. Cas. 59. Also 14 C.W.N. 121.

——Arts. 89, 132—Applicability and scope.

The fact that the agent had executed a kabuliyat whereby he had hypothecated certain immoveable properties to secure his liability would not alter the nature of the suit so as to make Art. 132 applicable. 14 C.W.N. 122=5 Ind. Cas. 59.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit against—Collection agent.

Suit against a collection agent for account in the absence of an express contract to render account every year comes under Art. 89. If the agency terminates within three years from the date of suit and accounts were not demanded during period of agency, no portion of the suit is barred. 14 C.W.N. 121=5 Ind. Cas. 58.

——Art. 89, 90 and 116—Applicability—Suit to recover money misappropriated.

A suit to recover certain sums of money misappropriated by an agent comes under Art. 116, if the agency was created under a registered instrument. But if the agent is only sued for damages for want of due care and diligence, the suit comes under Arts. 89 and 90. 13 C.W.N. 212=4 Ind. Cas, 556.

——Arts. 89, 116—Applicability and scope.

To ascertain whether Art. 89 or 116 applies, it is necessary to see what is the relief which the plaintiff claims. The expression "moveable property" in Art. 89 includes money. 27 A. 27; 8 C.W.N. 113; 1 C.L.J. 147; 1 C.L.J. 232. A suit not merely for an account, but also to enforce in the plaintiff's favour the charge created to secure the moneys which might be found due from the agent to his principal on his account, falls within Art. 132 and the period of limitation is twelve years from the time when the money sued for becomes due. (1908) 7 C.L.J. 279=35 C. 298=12 C.W.N. 820.

——Arts. 89, 115—Applicability—Suit against agent for account.

A suit by a principal against his agent for money received and not accounted for, is governed by Art. 89 and is barred after three years of the date of termination of the agency. An agent's contract to account, is specially provided for in Art. 89 and cannot be included in Art. 115 of the Act. 14 C. 147 ; 5 Ind. Cas. 59 ; 24 A. 27, Foll. 39 Mad. 376=28 M.L.J. 140=26 Ind. Cas. 740.

——Art. 89—Applicability—Suit for money paid to make a joint purchase.

A suit to recover money paid to defendant to be used in a joint purchase of property, is governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 60 or 106, as the defendant was acting only as the agent of the plaintiff. 33 Ind. Cas. 438 (Lah.).

——Arts. 89, 120—Applicability—Principal and agent—Suit for accounts.

A suit by a principal against his agent for an account and for payment of money found due upon an account being taken is governed by Art. 89. 1 C..L.J. 232= 32 C. 719. Also suit for accounts by Zemindar against Naib—Principal and agent. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 113. Also The period of limitation is three years and it would run from the date of the termination of the agency. But so far as it seeks to obtain from the agent account papers, the suit is governed by Art. 120, and the period is six years and it would run from the date when such papers are to be submitted to the principal under the contract between the parties. (1901) 1 C.L.J. 147.

2. Death of agent.

——Arts. 89 and 120—Death of agent—Suit against legal representatives of deceased agent—Demand and refusal to account during agent's lifetime.

The Limitation Act classifies suits according to their "description" and a suit of the description referred to in Art. 89 may be brought against the legal representatives of the agent as well as against the agent himself. Where there was demand and refusal to account during the agent's life-time, the cause of action arises on the date of the demand and refusal, and a suit brought against the legal representatives of the deceased agent more than three years from that date would be clearly barred under Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. Limitation once having commenced to run will not cease to run by reason of the death of the agent. Art. 120 of the Limitation Act is inapplicable where there are other articles in the Act applicable to a case. 50 M. 249 ; 35 C.L.J. 330 and I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 470, Foll. A.I.R. 1950 Dacca 13 (2).

——Art. 89—Death of agent.

Where the plaintiff states quite clearly in her plaint that the village shares and the fields in suit were managed by the defendants' father who acted as her wahiwatdar and that he used to recover the village profits on her behalf and used to let out the recover the rents of the fields and asks that the defendants be called upon to render accounts, the relationship of principal and agent obtains between the plaintiff and the deceased father of the defendants and the suit is governed by Art. 89 and if brought more than three years of the death of the agent (which terminates the agency) is barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 227=1943 N.L.J. 308=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 470=208 Ind. Cas. 404.

——Art. 89—Death of agent.

Where a person engaged a pleader of several suits and after the death of the pleader sued the pleader's legal representatives for an account of moneys advanced to the pleader in connexion with the suit,

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation is respect of suits disposed of more than three years before the date of suit, as the death of the pleader did not give a fresh cause of action against his legal representatives. 16 M.L.T. 614, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 456=50 Mad. 249= 24 M.L.W. 818=1927 M.W.N. 32=38 M.L.T. 26= A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 157=51 M.L.J. 804.

——Art. 89—Death of agent—Cause of action during agent's lifetime.

Where the cause of action arises before agent's death in a suit against his legal representatives, limitation has no fresh starting point after the agent's death. Articles 89 and 120 apply to such cases. 84 Ind. Cas. 276= 35 M.L.T. 84=1924 M.W.N. 517=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 840=47 M.L.J. 483.

——Art. 89—Death of agent—Suit against legal representatives of agent.

Articles 89 and 90 of the Limitation Act which relate to suits by a principal against his agent do not apply to suits against representatives of a deceased agent. Where there is a continuous and comprehensive agency, time begins to run from the time the agent refuses to render accounts. 71 Ind. Cas. 916=5 P.L.T. 355= 2 Pat. L. R. (Civ.) 205=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 259.

——Art. 89—Death of agent—Suit against heirs of agent—Onus.

The burden will lie upon the plaintiff to establish with regard to each specific sum that he is entitled to recover it. Art. 89 is not applicable to a suit brought, not against the agent, but his representatives. Nor does this article indicate even by implication that a suit can be maintained against the representatives of a deceased agent. The intention of the law of limitation is not to give a right where there is not one, but to interpose a bar, after a certain period to a suit to enforce an existing right. 33 A. 356, Rel. 17 C.W.N. 5=16 C.L.J. 282=16 Ind. Cas. 742.

——Arts. 89 and 115—Death of agent—Suit for accounts against heirs of agent—Limitation.

A suit by a principal against his agent falls within Art. 89 ; but if after the termination of agency by the death of the agent, an action for accounts is brought against his heirs it is governed by Art. 115. If there is a contract in writing registered, Art. 116 applies. The plaintiff can obtain accounts for only such period as falls within three years of the institution of the suit, if Art. 115, applies. 16 C.W.N. 1042=16 C.L.J. 288= 16 Ind. Cas. 414.

——Arts. 62, 89 and 120—Death of agent—Suit for rendition of accounts against heirs of an agent.

A suit for rendition of accounts against the heirs of an agent in respect of rents and profits received during the agent's life-time and for realisation of the amount due from his estate, is governed by Art. 120 and not by Arts. 62 or 89, and time runs from the date of agent's death. 96 P.R. 1886 ; 10 C. 860 ; 31 A. 429, Foll. 1 P.R. 1912=33 P.W.R. 1912=59 P.L.R. 1912= 13 Ind. Cas. 930.

3. Death of principal.

——Arts. 89, 90—Death of principal—Claim for accounts — Article applicable — Termination of agency—Application of article against legal representative.

Where although different items were mentioned in the different schedules to the plaint as forming items with regard to which the plaintiff asked for relief, the foundation of the entire claim was a claim for accounts :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 90, and that the plaintiff could not alter the frame of the suit in appellate stage to establish that Art. 90 and not Art. 89 applies.

Where an agent is appointed by a certain person and thereafter that person dies and the agent continues to hold service under the sons of the person who had made the appointment and had died, the agency that was created terminates at the death of the principal, and with regard to that period, a suit for accounts would lie until the expiry of a period of three years from that date and so far as the service of the agent after the death of the said principal is concerned, it should be regarded as an agency held under the heirs of the said principal. The two periods should have to be separately considered, and if a suit for accounts in respect of the anterior period is instituted more than three years after the date on which that agency terminated, suit for accounts must be regarded as barred.

The omission of any mention of legal representatives in the words under "Description of suit" in Art. 89, does not mean that the article is not intended to apply to a suit against the legal representatives. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 817=40 C.W.N. 245.

——Art. 89—Death of principal—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (1887), Sch. II, Art. 31—Suit for accounts by successor-in-interest of the principal—Suit is not cognisable by Small Cause Court.

The plaintiffs' father purchased certain property and entrusted the management of the same to the defendant, the maternal uncle of the plaintiffs. The father advanced certain sums of money from time to time to the defendant in order that the same might be lent to the tenants. The father died in September, 1918. The defendant refused to render an account of the monies that he received and realised sometime in 1921. Plaintiffs then filed the suit,

Held, the suit was one for accounts by the legal representatives of the principal against agent, and Art. 89 of the Limitation Act applied. 85 Ind. Cas. 704= 6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 273=A.I.R. 1925 All. 682.

——Art. 89—Death of principal—Suit for—Accounts by heirs of deceased principal.

The period of limitation for a principal to sue his agent is, under Art. 89, three years from the date the accounts were demanded or from the conclusion of the agency. The heirs of a deceased principal are entitled to demand an account for a period of three years, whether the principal has demanded or not. 44 Cal. 1=20 M.L.T. 430=21 C.W.N. 97=24 A.L.J. 1199=18 Bom. L.R. 1022=31 M.L.J. 836=24 C.L.J. 509=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 565=5 L.W. 452=36 Ind. Cas. 1 (P.C.).

——Art. 89—Death of principal—Co-sharer—Management by one on behalf of another—Suit by heirs of principal.

A co-sharer managing a property on behalf of his co-sharer also is an agent of the latter after which if the property continues to be managed, the manager would be the agent of the representatives of the deceased co-sharer. A suit for account against the manager by the representatives is governed by Art. 89. The commencement of the limitation will be the termination of the agency where there is no demand for any account or where demands have been going on, as long as the management continued. But if a demand was made which met with no attention, limitation will run from the date of demand. 40 Cal. 108=17 C.L.J. 103=18 Ind. Cas. 735.

On appeal 44 Cal. 1=38 Ind. Cas. 1 (P.C.).

——Arts. 89, 115 and 132—Death of principal—Agent continuing—Old agency, if subsists—Suit for accounts by heirs.

A suit by the principal against his agent for recovery of sums to be found due upon adjustment of accounts by sale of immoveable properties hypothecated by the agent is a suit to enforce a charge on immoveable property within Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 35 C. 298 ; foll. 14 C.W.N. 122, not foll. Where on the death of the principal, the agent continued in the service of his successors in interest, a new agency not governed by the original contract is created. Where, under such new arrangement the parties agreed that accounts should be submitted from year to year, a suit against the agent would not be governed by Art. 115 but by Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. 11 C.L.J. 43, foll. 43 Cal. 248=19 C.W.N. 1070=22 C.L.J. 552=30 Ind. Cas. 697.

——Arts. 89 and 120—Death of principal—Suits for accounts by principal's representative.

Art. 89 and not Art. 120 governs a suit for accounts brought by a representative of the deceased principal against the agent for transactions up to the time of the principal's death and as under S. 201 of the Contract Act, an agency is terminated by the death of the principal, limitation for such a suit begins to run from the date of the principal's death. 32 C. 719, foll. 9 C.L.J. 107=3 Ind. Cas. 684.

4. Demand and refusal.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Demand, what is—Demand on one of several promisors.

A demand upon one of several joint and several promisors will not operate as a demand upon the others. Hence, the proof of a debt in the insolvency of one of several joint and several promisors will not affect the rights of the creditor against the others and will not set time running against them. (1935) M.W.N. 688= 42 M.L.W. 687=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 1055.

——Art. 89—'Refusal' meaning of.

Under Art. 89, the refusal need not always be express and may be inferred from circumstances. Even a failure to comply with a definite demand may, sometimes, amount to a refusal. 58 C.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 204=141 Ind. Cas. 225.

——Art. 89—Refusal, what is.

It is the agent's duty to keep proper accounts of his dealings and a demand by a principal accompanied by non-compliance or evasion or procrastination on the part of the agent would amount to a refusal within the meaning of Art. 89, Limitation Act. 123 Ind. Cas. 228=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 142.

——Art. 89—Refusal.

The expression 'putting off' is equivalent to postponement, and postponement is by no means tantamount to refusal ; on the contrary it implies an admission that an account is due and will be rendered. 43 I.C. 670, Foll. 80 Ind. Cas. 956=3 Pat. 546=5 P.L.T. 303=1924 P.H.C.C. 189=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 664.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Refusal by implication.

If there has been a demand for accounts and the agent has not responded to the call, there is by implication a refusal within Art. 89. So also where the agent has submitted accounts but has failed to respond to the principal's demand to explain them. 43 Cal. 248= 19 C.W.N. 1070=22 C.L.J. 552=30 Ind. Cas. 697.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Termination of agency.

Where A received money from B for and on behalf of C in 1902 and in May 1903 disputed C's right to receive the money, but in June, 1903, received a second payment from B for and on behalf of C,

Held that A's conduct amounted to a continuance of the agency and that a suit by C against A for recovery of the amounts received by the latter, brought in 1907 was not barred. 12 Bom.L.R. 951=8 Ind. Cas. 637.

——Arts. 89 and 115—Demand and Refusal—Omission to render accounts if refusal.

Art. 89 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for accounts by a principal against his agent, although there is an agreement by the agent to render account every year. The mere failure of the agent to render accounts on demand does not amount to refusal within Art. 89 of the Act. The question whether the failure of the agent to render accounts amounts to refusal depends upon the circumstances of each case. 30 C.L.J. 90=53 Ind. Cas. 675.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Suit for accounts—Agent, Manager of properties—No demand—Right of Principal.

An Agent was appointed on 24th May, 1896, for the management of lands and in 1897 the principal transferred the property to his wife and two years later, the wife retransferred it to the husband. The Agent continued to manage it as if no transfer had been effected and the agency was finally terminated in 1910. The present suit was instituted on 22nd March, 1911, in respect of accounts.

Held that Art. 89 applied and in the absence of any demand and refusal during the continuance of the agency, the plaintiff was entitled to the accounts claimed. 20 C.W.N. 356=21 C.L.J. 462=29 Ind. Cas. 848.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Neglect to comply with demand—Cause of action.

Where there is a demand for account and refusal, cause of action accrues from the time of refusal and not from the date of determination of agency. A neglect to comply with the demand for account is tantamount to refusal. 11 C.L.J. 43=5 Ind. Cas. 186.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Refusal to render accounts—Postponement—Limitation.

The refusal contemplated in Art. 89, is a definite refusal and there must be definite evidence that a definite demand was made upon a definite date and refused. It is insufficient to say that demands were made from time to time and the plaintiffs, were "put off" by the defendants. "Put off" means postponement and the postponement is by no means tantamount to refusal. 43 Ind. Cas. 570 (Pat.).

——Arts. 89 and 120—Suit for accounts—Demand and refusal.

Art. 120 is a residuary article applicable only where no other article covers the suit. Express demand and refusal are necessary to start limitation under Art. 89. 208 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 19.

——Art. 89—Demand and refusal—Refusal—Meaning of.

The refusal of an agent to render accounts mentioned in Art. 89 must be an express refusal on a definite date and not a mere refusal to be inferred from the omission on his part to fulfil a promise which he has made to render accounts in answer to a demand made by the principal. 1 P.R. 1912=33 P.W.R. 1912=59 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 930.

5. Joint Hindu family.

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family—Misappropriation by manager.

A claim by a member of a Hindu joint family against the manager of the joint property in respect of certain family outstandings alleged to have been collected and misappropriated by the latter is governed by Art. 89. A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 922, Reversed. 121 Ind. Cas. 205=51 C.L.J. 136=31 M.L.W. 176=32 Bom.L.R. 499=1930 M.W.N. 60=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 18=58 M.L.J. 245 (P.C.).

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family—One member collecting outstandings after partition.

When after partition one brother is recovering outstandings originally due to the joint family there must be an implied contract of agency between one brother and the other and a suit by the other brother for rendition of accounts and recovery of his share of the joint outstandings is governed not by Art. 62 or Art, 120, but by Art. 89. 116 Ind. Cas. 327=30 P.L.R. 275=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 407.

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family—Property not included in partition.

Where in a partition suit a property which was held under a mortgage by the family was not included in the division and subsequently one member recovered the rent and the mortgage-debt and purchased certain property and in a suit by one member to recover his share of the property and the money recovered.

Held, that the claim of the plaintiffs with regard to the rent and the recoveries of the mortgage debt was not barred by limitation, as it was governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 62. 22 Bom.L.R. 1289 and A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 148, Foll.

Held, further that even if Art. 89 did not apply the suit would be deemed to be one for account which would be governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150 (F.B.), Foll. 113 Ind. Cas. 173=30 Bom.L.R. 912=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 365.

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family.

Where two divided families have joint dealings managed by the eldest member, a suit for account against the manager is governed by Art. 89 and not by 62. 32 M.L.T. 86=27 C.W.N. 725=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 31 (P.C.).

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family—Partition—Suit for mesne profits received by one member.

Where the members of a joint Hindu family become divided in status but the properties have not been actually divided and apportioned among them, and subsequently one of them brings a suit for partition by metes and bounds claiming also an account being taken of the movable properties outstanding and collections made by the various members in respect of the properties.

Held, that the proper article to apply is Art. 120. The period of limitation will run from the demand of the share by the plaintiff or refusal by defendant. If the facts be that the rents and profits were received with the consent of all concerned, by the various members in possession pending final settlement by division, each of such persons might be considered as agent for himself and his co-owners. In such a case Art. 89 will apply. 71 Ind. Cas. 177=1922 M.W.N. 215=15 M.L.W. 595=30 M.L.T. 279=45 Mad. 648=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150=42 M.L.J. 507 (F.B.).

——Art. 89—Joint Hindu family—Partition—Securities realised but not divided—Suit by others to recover their shares.

Where at a partition immovable property is divided, but the debts due to the family are kept joint in the name of one of the members to be realised by him and divided among all the members, all the members become tenants-in-common with respect to the debts. The member realising the debts must be considered as the agent and a suit by the members for the recovery of their share of the debts after their realisation would be governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 62.

Time would not begin to run until a demand was made and refused, or the member realising the debts showed his intention to hold the fund which he had collected against the other members. 59 Ind. Cas. 357=45 Bom. 313=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 384.

6. Movable property.

——Art. 89—Scope—Movable property, meaning of.

The term movable property includes money. Therefore, Art. 89 applies in a case where money was received by the agent on behalf of the principal and was not accounted for. That being so, the period of limitation is to run from the time when the account was demanded and refused or from the time the agency terminated. The article is not limited only to suits for accounts. 38 C.W.N. 211=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 238=60 Cal. 1347=149 Ind. Cas. 996.

——Art. 89—Omission to render accounts—Movable property includes money.

Where the defendant employed to collect rent by the plaintiff from December, 1907 to October, 1915, was asked to submit accounts up to 12th April, 1914, on or before 13th May, 1914, but failed to submit them and a suit was filed against him on 27th August, 1948, for accounts for the whole period from 1907 to 1915,

Held, the conduct of the defendant in not complying with the demand to submit accounts amounted to refusal. The claim therefore so far as it related to accounts up to 12th April, 1914, was barred by limitation as the suit was instituted after three years from 12th May, 1914, the date of refusal. But the suit was in time for the accounts from the 13th April, 1914 to the 11th October, 1915. The article applicable is Art. 89 and not Art. 115 or 116 which apply only where there is no specific provision. The term 'movable property' includes money. 68 Ind. Cas. 562=49 Cal. 250=26 C.W.N. 61=35 C.L.J. 111=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 355.

The expression 'moveable property' in Art. 89 includes money. 25 C.L.J. 335=21 C.W.N. 591=40 Ind. Cas. 359.

——Art. 89—Moveable property—Money.

Money is moveable property within Art. 89 of the Act. 39 Mad. 376=28 M.L.J. 140=26 Ind. Cas. 740.

——Art. 89—'Moveable property'—Money.

The words 'moveable property' in Art. 89 includes money. (1901) 3 Bom.L.R. 576=24 A. 27=28 I.A. 227 (P.C.).

7. Starting point of limitation.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ART. 89—TERMINATION OF AGENCY.

——Art. 89—Starting point under—Suit to recover money collected by agent under general power. 223 Ind. Cas. 531=1945 M.W.N. 735=58 M.L.W. 650=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 122=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 484.

——Arts. 89 and 145—Starting point of limitation—Principal providing his agent with petrol pump, tank, and accessories for selling petrol during the continuance of the agency—If "deposit" within meaning of Art. 145—Claim for return of the property.

Where a petrol pump and tank is provided by the principal to the agent for the sale of petrol to be returned on the termination of the agency, the cause of action for return of the pump, tank and accessories arises on the termination of the agency, and Art. 89 of the Limitation Act applies and a suit instituted beyond three years after the cause of action arose will be barred. Art. 145 cannot have any application to such a case even if it is assumed that the delivery of the pump, tank, etc., was a 'deposit'. The cause of action and the right to sue first arose when the business between the parties ceased or the agency terminated and not on the date when they were delivered to the agent. I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 296=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 76 (2)=1947 M.W.N. 357=(1947) 1 M.L.J. 360.

——Arts. 89, 123 and 62—Starting point of limitation—Defendant undertaking to distribute sale-proceeds amongst heirs of deceased—Suit by one of heirs for his share—Article applicable—Time, when runs.

Where the estate of a deceased Muhammadan was sold in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the heirs and the sale proceeds were kept with the defendant for distribution to the heirs according to their respective shares, a suit for the recovery of his share by one of the heirs cannot be regarded as a suit by principal against agent within the meaning of Art. 89. It also cannot be regarded as a suit against person legally charged with administration of the estate with a duty of distributing any portion of it under Art. 123. The suit is governed by Art. 62 and time runs from the date when the defendant received the money and not from the time of the plaintiff's knowledge that the defendant had received the money. 58 M.L.W. 555=1945 M.W.N. 671=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 422=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 116=224 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 89—Power-of-attorney in wide terms for collecting outstandings—Absence of evidence that it was meant to collect a particular outstanding—Outstanding collected—Suit for recovery—Limitation—Start of.

Where the power-of-attorney executed by the plaintiff in favour of the defendant for collection of the outstandings from a third party was couched in very wide terms amounting to a general power-of-attorney to manage the business of the plaintiff and represent him in suits, in the absence of evidence that it was executed only for the specific purpose of enabling the defendant to collect the suit amount due to the plaintiff and nothing more, the agency cannot be said to terminate on the collection of that amount. When, therefore, the amount in question is collected on 14th January, 1937, a suit filed for its recovery in 1941 after the defendant's failure and refusal to pay it, is in time. 1945 M.W.N. 735=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 484=58 M.L.W. 650=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 122.

——Art. 89—Suit against agent on basis of revocation of agency—Time, when begins to run.

Limitation begins to run when a cause of action accrues. It is obvious that it would be the right of the agent to claim that no cause of action on the basis of revocation could arise against him until the termination of his authority as agent. In so far as the cause of action is the revocation of the agency, he could not be sued until he had received notice of such revocation. It follows, therefore, that the period of limitation would begin to run on that date and would extend for a period of 3 years. A.I.R. 1939 All. 738=(1939) A.L.J. 961=1939 A.W.R. 735=185 Ind. Cas. 233.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation.

Family arrangement—Hundi issued in defendant's favour for payment of third person's debts—Balance to be paid to third person. In such a case the obligation of the defendant is equitable. If he is regarded as agent of such third person, for paying off his creditors the suit for accounts will fall under Art. 89, if not under Art. 120. In both cases time runs from the date of defendant's denial of such third person's claim or infringement of such right in any other manner. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 876=(1937) M.W.N. 368=169 Ind. Cas. 362.

——Art. 89—Suit for rendition of accounts by principal against agent—Starting point of limitation.

Where there are two or more principles who are "joint and several", period of limitation for a suit against the agent for rendition of accounts does not begin to run from the death of the deceased principal as against the surviving principal. The surviving principal may file such suit within 3 years of the termination of agency as against him. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 650=41 C.W.N. 27=64 C.L.J. 587=166 Ind. Cas. 608.

——Art. 89—Suit against agent—Starting point of limitation.

An agency for the sale of goods terminates when the goods are sold and does not continue until accounts are rendered by the agent and a suit for accounts against the agent which is instituted more than three years after the date of the sale is barred under Art. 89, even though the agent has not rendered accounts. 40 M.L.W. 533= A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 691=(1934) M.W.N. 1250=152 Ind. Cas. 266.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit for accounts between principal and agent, the period begins to run from the date on which accounts are demanded and refused during the continuance of the agency, or from the date on which the agency terminates. Article 62 does not apply to the case. 54 A. 814=(1933) A.L.J. 1009=A.I.R. 1933 All. 642=147 Ind. Cas. 529 (2).

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation.

Article 89 applies to a suit by a principal against his agent for an account and for any money that may be found due on the taking of such account. Whether an account was demanded and refused or not depends on the circumstances of each case, and there is no reason why a refusal may not be inferred or implied from the facts of the case. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 450=35 Bom.L.R. 929=58 B. 200=145 Ind. Cas. 630.

——Art. 89—Starting point.

The period in Art. 89 runs either from the termination of the agency or from an earlier date when accounts are demanded and refused. It is difficult to believe, that the Legislature could have intended a later date to serve as the starting point, in cases where an account is demanded of an agent, who promises to render it later on, but fails to keep his promise. 123 Ind. Cas. 228=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 142.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation—Minors —Agency for a transaction.

Where an agency does not terminate with the death of the principal but terminates with the completion of a transaction which has occurred in the life-time of principal, the terminus a quo for limitation under Art. 89 begins from the completion of the transaction and the minor claiming through the principal, an amount credited to the name of the principal in a firm account cannot, ask the help of S. 6. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 883.

——Art. 89—Starting point—Termination of agency by closing the transactions.

Plaintiff had certain transactions in cotton, wheat, etc., with three different firms, which acted as his agents for the purpose. The last date of the transactions was 19th May, 1918. Thereafter no transaction took places but accounts were not rendered. Subsequently the three firms were merged in the defendant firm ; and the latter firm was sued for accounts by the plaintiff as the representative of the three firms in 1924,

Held, that the period of limitation began to run from the date of the last transaction and hence the suit was out of time. 110 Ind. Cas. 575=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 833.

——Art. 89—Starting point—Where date is fixed for settling accounts.

In a suit for accounts by the principal against the agent when a date is fixed between them for settling of accounts, limitation begins to run from the date fixed and not from the date of the transaction last entered into by the agent on behalf of the principal. 91 Ind. Cas. 487= A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 200.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation—Joint principals.

In the case of joint principals, time runs from the date of demand by all the principals and a refusal thereon and a demand by one only and a refusal thereon does not start limitation as against him. 75 Ind. Cas. 1022=4 P.L.T. 531=1923 P.H.C.C. 177=2 Pat. 585=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 464.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation—Purchase on behalf of another.

Where in a case the plaintiff sued to recover properties in the name of defendants as being purchased for them in trust it was sought to be argued that the parties may be looked upon as principal and agent and when there was a demand and refusal to account, the limitation started.

Held, the starting point was when the agency terminated and in the absence of a specific plea as to agency in the first Court, the same could not be entertained in appeal. 66 Ind. Cas. 858=30 M.L.T. 238=45 Mad. 415=1922 M.W.N. 117=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 57=16 M.L.W. 886=42 M.L.J. 119.

——Art. 89—Starting point of limitation—Administrator—Limit for account against.

In a suit for accounts against the administrator, the limitation runs from the date when the plaintiff is entitled to put an end to the administration on attaining majority and not from the date on which he does in fact put an end to it. 2 P.L.J. 642=4 P.L.W. 337=1918 P.H.C.C. 170=40 Ind. Cas. 860.

8. Termination of agency.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ART. 89—STARTING POINT OF LIMITATION.

——Art. 89—Principal and agent—Termination of agency.

Many transactions of shellac were entered into by the agent, from June, 1928 to December of the same year, on behalf of his principal. In December, 1928, the agent was asked not to enter any fresh transactions and was served on 17th May, 1933, with notice of a formal demand to settle accounts. A suit for accounts was filed by the principal on 31st May, 1933 :

Held, that the agency terminated in December, 1928; and the article which governed the case was Art. 89, irrespective of the demand for accounts and that the period started from the termination of agency and the suit was barred. (1937) A.L.J. 264=A.I.R. 1937 All. 363=1937 A.W.R. 163=169 Ind. Cas. 135.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Suit for accounts against heirs of agent—Limitation—Article applicable.

The plaintiff appointed the defendants' father as an agent under a power-of-attorney for realising a decree and for conducting all proceedings that might arise out of disputes between the plaintiff and a third party in respect of the decree. A suit was instituted by that third party for a declaration of his right to a share in the decree and for an injunction restraining the plaintiff and the defendants' father from realising the decree amount. The injunction was granted and the defendants' father was appointed a Receiver by the Court for collecting the decree amount. The defendants' father died in August, 1925, and the plaintiff instituted a suit for account against the defendants in August, 1928. The defendants contended that the suit was time-barred :

Held, that (1) the defendants' father's agency was not terminated by reason of the injunction nor by the appointment of the defendants' father as a Receiver ; (2) the relinquishment of the receivership by the father did not amount to a relinquishment of the agency ; (3) that the agency was not revoked by the fact that in the suit by the third party plaintiff took steps to conduct the defence himself, and the suit was not therefore time-barred.

Quaere.—Whether a suit for accounts by the principal against the agent's heirs is governed by Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. (1936) M.W.N. 932=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 980=166 Ind. Cas. 360.

——Art. 89—Suit by principal against agent—Limitation—Termination of agency.

For the purpose of limitation an agency determines when the agent ceases to represent his principal and does not continue until the agent renders account to the principal and gets his salary chit back.

Where a suit by a principal against the agent was filed after the expiry of three years from the date when the agent left the place of business for which he was appointed agent, after handing over charge to his successor :

Held, that the suit was time-barred under Art. 89, even though the agent has not rendered accounts and taken the salary chit back. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 707=(1935) M.W.N. 967=42 M.L.W. 342=158 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 89—Suit for accounts against agent—Limitation — Starting point — Termination of agency.

Under Art. 89 which relates to a suit by a principal against his agent for property received by the latter and not accounted for, the period of three years runs from the date when the account is, during the continuance of the agency, demanded and refused or where no such demand is made, when the agency terminates.

An agency does not terminate until revocation of the authority of the agent or renunciation of the business of the agency by the agent or completion of the business of the agency. The business of agency cannot also be said to have been completed when no accounts have been rendered and the amounts outstanding have not been paid to the principal. (1931) A.L.J. 225=A.I.R. 1931 All. 372=132 Ind. Cas. 43.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency.

The agency terminates when the business of the agency has been completed, and the mere liability to render an account is not a continuance of the relation between the agent and the principal. When an agent is instructed to buy and sell goods on behalf of his principal, on agent's carrying out principal's instructions the business of his agency terminates. 39 Mad. 376, Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 79=21 S.L.R. 336=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 264.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Death of parties.

Under the provisions of S. 201 of the Contract Act, an agency is terminated by either the principal or agent dying, and therefore a suit against the agent for accounts for the period during which he acted as agent under the deceased must be brought within three years of the death as laid down in Art. 89 of the Limitation Act. 43 Cal. 248 and A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 148, Foll.

The case does not come under S. 209 of the Contract Act or Art. 120 of Limitation Act as there is no question in it of suing the defendant for any act done by him after the death of his late principal, which he might have done as a trustee. 65 Ind. Cas. 219=26 C.W.N. 320=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 53.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Question of fact.

The question when an agency terminates, is a question of fact. 41 Mad. 1=45 Ind. Cas. 430.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Winnings of a lottery—Limitation.

In a suit for money received by defendant as agent for plaintiff on account of plaintiff's winnings in a lottery, the agency continues so long as the money is held by the defendant for the plaintiff, and the right to sue arises under Art. 89 when the money is demanded and payment is refused. 12 Bur.L.T. 9=51 Ind. Cas. 530.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency.

The facts of a case should determine the question of the termination of an agency.

Quaere.—Whether an agency continues for purposes of the agent's accounting to the principal even after the cessation of all dealings between them. 5 L.W. 375=37 Ind. Cas. 875.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Agency—Termination—Salary chit.

The question where an agency terminates within Art. 89 is one of fact. It cannot be treated as a question of law and disposed of without evidence. It is not a matter of law that on the expiry of the term mentioned in the salary chit the agency comes to end ipso facto. A salary chit means only that the agency shall not terminate before the expiry of the term fixed by it or that agency shall last for the term fixed after which it may be continued. It does not mean that after the expiry of the period there is a new agency but only that the original agency continues. 31 M.L.J. 685=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 360=4 L.W. 452=36 Ind. Cas. 804. Also 31 M.L.J. 687=36 Ind. Cas. 812.

——Art. 89—Termination of agency—Subsequent resumption of work—Suit—Limitation.

Where an agent throws up the agency and leaves the place of business the agency is terminated within Art. 89, Limitation Act. The mere fact that he subsequently goes back to the place, and does some business, cannot prevent the running of time as regards the first agency, unless there is an acknowledgment of liability to account. 30 Ind. Cas. 691 (Mad.). See also 28 M.L.J. 140=26 Ind. Cas. 740.

——Art. 89—Principal and agent—Account between—Agent's liability to account—Demand and refusal—Termination of the agency.

D received from G a sum of money as the agent of N on the 4th November, 1902. In May, 1902 disputes arose between D and N in which D defined G's right to the money. But on the 30th June, 1903, D again received from G another sum of money as the agent of N. There was not, after that date, any demand and refusal or termination of the agency. N filed a suit against D in 1907 to recover the money from D.

Held that the claim was not barred ; for enough D asserted his own right in 1903, the adverse claim was not continued and acted upon ; and when in June, 1903, he again received the money for and on behalf of N his conduct plainly amounted in law to a continuance of the agency and fiduciary relationship and his liability to account in respect of it. An agent's liability to his principal is to render an account of the sums received by him ; the account is one and indivisible ; and he cannot plead limitation as to any particular item as against his principal. 12 Bom.L.R. 951=8 Ind. Cas. 637.

——Art. 90.

Synopsis.

1. Agent.
2. Applicability.
3. Interpretation.
4. Starting point.

1. Agent.

——Art. 90—Clerk in Bank—Agent.

The clerk in a bank in charge of savings bank accounts, through whom alone money could be withdrawn, and who alone could report to the official concerned what a particular depositor desirous of withdrawing money has to his credit money in excess of what he desires to withdraw so far as he acts within the scope of his authority, is an agent of the bank. 124 Ind. Cas. 180=A.I.R. 1930 All. 573.

——Art. 90—Director of company—Agent.

Whether a Director whose acts are the subject of construction was a trustee or a partner or an agent to the Company or to the body of share-holders is to be determined according to the circumstances of each case. 79 Ind. Cas. 740=5 Lah. 27=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 435.

——Art. 90—Director of Bank—Agent.

The Director who was acting as a Chairman of the local Board of Directors was in the circumstances of this case held to be an agent of the bank and a suit against him for neglect and misconduct was held to be governed by Art. 90. 79 Ind. Cas. 740=5 Lah. 27=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 435.

2. Applicability.

——Art. 90—Applicability.

Where the master alleges that certain defalcations had been discovered after the servant left the service but the precise date or dates on which they came to his knowledge is not stated the limitation article applicable would not be Art. 90. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 70=1940 N.L.J. 635=192 Ind. Cas. 891.

——Art. 90—Applicability.

Suit against Advocate for neglect and misconduct in not joining certain person as a party to appeal—Plaintiff aware of neglect but not knowing of legal consequences—Ignorance of their legal consequences cannot extend time—Article applicable is Art. 90. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 258=1938 Rang.L.R. 457=176 Ind. Cas. 608 (F.B.).

——Art. 90—Applicability.

A suit by a Bank alleging that in sanctioning a loan the Directors had acted dishonestly and that their conduct was such as to render them liable for the amount lost by the Bank due to wilful breach of their obligation as Directors, is governed by Art. 90, and not by Art. 36. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 271=167 Ind. Cas. 307.

——Art. 90—Applicability.

Where a Director of a Bank acts in a transaction as its agent, a suit against him in respect of the transaction is one by a principal against an agent and is governed by Art. 90. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 268=38 P.L.R. 526=17 L. 262=162 Ind. Cas. 204.

——Art. 90—Suit against agent for monies realised.

It was held that it was not clear that the suit by the plaintiff against the defendant for collecting monies on her behalf and withholding them did not fall under Art. 90. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 738=58 C. 923=133 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 90—Applicability.

Article 90 is residuary article with regard to actions between principal and agent and should be held to be applicable only if no other article can possibly be regarded as applying to the facts of the particular case. 109 Ind. Cas. 332=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 906.

——Art. 90—Applicability—Suit by Municipality.

A suit by Municipality against its executive Officer for less sustained by it owing to disregard of directions amounting to negligence or over-confidence in the honesty of others is governed by Art.90. 80 Ind. Cas. 241=46 All. 175=22 A.L.J. 26=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 113=A.I.R. 1924 All. 467.

——Art. 90—Applicability—Agent failing to pay money to third person—Suit by third person against principal.

A suit against a person for default to pay money to plaintiff's creditor by reason whereof the creditor has obtained a decree against the plaintiff is governed by Art. 90, Limitation Act. 21 M.L.J. 453=9 M.L.T. 268=9 Ind. Cas. 54.

3. Interpretation.

——Art. 90—Knowledge of neglect or misconduct—What is.

The knowledge contemplated in Art. 90 of the Limitation Act is knowledge of the facts constituting the neglect or misconduct not knowledge of the legal consequences of such facts. I.L.R. (1950) Cut. 174=A.I.R. 1950 Orissa 241.

——Art. 90—Interpretation — Misconduct—What amounts to.

A Bajana Sabha through its Secretary instituted a suit against its former Secretary for recovery of Rs. 840, and odd, this amount being made up of several items, one of which was an item of receipt not entered in the account and the remaining items, six in number, being items of expenditure falsely entered in the account. The claim was based on the allegation that the agent, i.e., the Secretary had shown certain sums of money as having been spent on behalf of the Sabha when as a matter of fact they were not spent at all on behalf of the Sabha :

Held, that the claim amounted to an allegation of misconduct, and the suit, therefore, was governed by Art. 90. (1938) M.W.N. 1133=48 M.L.W. 775=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 114=180 Ind. Cas. 390.

——Art. 90—Interpretation—'Neglect' or mis-conduct'.

The expression "neglect'" or "misconduct" appearing in the third column of Art. 90 has special reference to what is termed negligence or misconduct of the agent in the conduct of the agency and does not cover every failure of duty on the part of the agent. 109 Ind. Cas. 332=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 906.

4. Starting point of limitation.

——Art. 90—Starting point of limitation.

Where the directors of a branch office of a Bank had been guilty of misconduct in sanctioning a loan fraudulently and in violation of the rules and the Company filed a suit against them for compensation :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 90, and the period started from the date when the Head Office came to know of such misconduct. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 705=160 Ind. Cas. 759.

——Art. 90—Starting point of limitation.

Under Art. 90, limitation begins to run from the time when the plaintiff came to know of the negligent act and not from the time when the plaintiff first realised or concluded that the act was negligent. A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 1 (2)=9 R. 575=135 Ind. Cas. 648.

——Art. 90—Person entrusted with money—Money entrusted for specific purpose—Retention—Starting point.

Where various sums of money are entrusted from time to time to a person with specific directions that he should dispose off particular sum in particular manner, the position of person so entrusted is that of an agent, intermediary or middleman. If such person abuses his position and retains the money, it being a suit by the principal against an agent for neglect or misconduct, the suit for recovery of such sums as he wrongfully retains in hand is covered by Art. 90, and time begins to run from the date of the matter comes to the knowledge of the principal. A.I.R. 1930 All. 397=124 Ind. Cas. 33=1930 A.L.J. 1411.

——Art. 90—Starting point—Agent making secret profit—Suit by principal.

In a suit by principal against the agent for recovery of money earned by agent as secret profit, the limitation begins to run from the date the principal comes to know that defendant has made secret profits. 103 Ind. Cas. 221=25 A.L.J. 418=A.I.R. 1927 All. 436.

——Art. 90—Starting point of limitation—Principal and agent—Suit for neglect or misconduct—When becomes known.

A suit for recovery of unauthorised payments made by the agent on account of the principal is governed by Art. 90. Time runs not from the date on which agency terminated or the accounts were made over to the principal but when the neglect or misconduct by the agent comes to the knowledge of the principal, a reasonable time being allowed for examination of the accounts. 9 Bur. L.T. 130=36 Ind. Cas. 418.

——Art. 90—Starting point of limitation—Suit against agent for misconduct.

Limitation under Art. 90 for the Principal's suit against the agent for his misconduct will run from the day the account books are got from the agent, as it is then that the principal will come to know of the agent's misconduct. 7 Bur.L.T. 199=25 Ind. Cas. 136.

——Art. 90—Suit against agent for neglect of duty—Starting point for limitation.

In a suit against an agent for neglect of duties, time under Art. 90, begins to run when the Principal comes to know of the neglect, and not when he thinks that there is sufficient cause for a good case against his agent. 25 Ind. Cas. 706 (Cal.).

——Art. 90—Starting point of limitation—Suit for neglect of agent—Neglect to collect rent.

A suit to recover time-barred rent from the rent-collecting agent and his surety according to a mutual agreement is governed by Art. 90 and time runs from the fact that some rent has become time-barred through the agent's negligence was first reported to the office of the Principal. 7 A.L.J. 724=6 Ind. Cas. 456.

13. Will.
14. Miscellaneous.

1. Alienation by coparcener.

——Art. 91—Joint Hindu family—Alienation by Co-parcener—Where the deed is void ab initio.

Article 91 does not apply where the plaintiff is not suing to cancel or set aside a sale-deed of joint family property, executed by other members of his family but for a declaration that the sale-deed is void ab initio. The article applicable is 120 and the period of 6 years begins from the time when the plaintiff came to know of the sale-deed. 77 Ind. Cas. 329=10 O.L.J. 360=27 O.C. 140=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 120.

——Arts. 91, 120, 144—Gift by a Hindu co-parcener—Suit for declaration and possession by other co-parceners—No prayer for setting aside the gift—Hindu law—Powers of a co-parcener to alienate.

A Hindu co-parcener made a gift of his undivided share in favour of the defendant. The donee made an application for mutation of his name which was recorded. He together with other co-parceners applied for ejectment of certain tenants. He then brought a suit for profits. The co-parceners of the donor thereupon sued for profits as they and their uncle were owners, and in the alternative for possession. The suit was brought more than three years after the date of gift.

Held, that in as much as a Hindu co-parcener has no right to alienate any portion of the family property without the consent of other co-parceners it was not necessary for the plaintiffs to sue to have the deed of gift set aside. Articles 91 and 120 had therefore no application but Art. 144 was the article which applied to the case. 7 A.L.J. 783=6 Ind. Cas. 841.

——Art. 91—Alienation by co-parcener—Declaration.

Art. 91 does not apply to a suit by one member of a joint family for a declaration that a mortgage by others without the plaintiffs consent is invalid and not binding on the family property. 13 Ind. Cas. 547 (Bom.).

2. Alienation by guardian or manager.

——Art. 91—Minors—Alienation by guardian.

Neither Art. 44 nor Art. 91 applies to a suit to set aside alienations by a de facto guardian. The suit can be brought within the ordinary period of 12 years. 99 Ind. Cas. 1050=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 145.

——Art. 91—Alienation by a manager—Suit to set aside.

A suit to set aside an alienation by a manager of joint Hindu family and for possession of the property is governed by Art. 144 and not by Arts. 44 or 91 of the Limitation Act. 13 A.L.J. 94; 12 N.L.R. 12, Foll. 68 Ind. Cas. 731=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 386.

——Art. 91—Alienation by guardian.

A suit to set aside alienation by Hindu father during son's minority without any benefit is not governed by Art. 44 or 91 but by Art. 144. 17 Bom. L.R. 1137 (Note)=33 Ind. Cas. 441.

——Art. 91—Alienation by guardian.

Alienation by an unauthorised guardian is void and need not be set aside. 83 P.R. 1916=125 P.W.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 943.

——Art. 91—Alienation by guardian.

An alienation by de facto guardian not for necessary purposes, need not be set aside. 38 Mad. 1125=27 M.L.J. 285=26 Ind. Cas. 179.

——Art. 91—Alienation by guardian.

Art. 91 does not apply when the sale by a de facto guardian is void. 10 N.L.R. 133=26 Ind. Cas. 813.

——Arts. 91, 141—Alienation by guardian—Suit by minor to recover possessions of property transferred by guardian—Cancellation of the document ancillary—Decree for possession conditional upon restoring what was for minor's benefit—Practice.

The natural guardian of the minor sold certain immoveable property belonging to the minor. The minor brought a suit to recover possession of that property. It is found that the minor had benefited to a certain extent by the sale. A decree was accordingly made in his favour for possession, subject to the condition of his restoring the amount by which he had benefited. Upon second appeal the suit was dismissed as barred by limitation, the article applied being Art. 91.

Held, that the article applicable was Art. 141, and not Art. 91, the substantive relief being the recovery of possession and the cancellation of the instrument being ancillary, and that the suit was not barred by limitation

Held, further, that the principle applicable in respect of such a transaction is to make a decree for the property transferred by the guardian. 32 A. 392=7 A.L.J. 337.

——Art. 91—Alienation by guardian—Permanent lease by guardian in excess of powers—Sale by minor on attaining majority—Suit for possession by purchaser.

The certificated guardian of a minor granted, without previously obtaining the permission of the Court, a perpetual lease of certain immovable property forming part of the minor's estate on the 28th of March, 1890. The minor came of age on the 7th of December, 1901, and on 21st of October, 1902 sold the property, the subject of the lease mentioned above. On the 22nd of July, 1903 the purchaser sued for possession of the property purchased by him asking for cancellation of the lease, if necessary,

Held, that it was not necessary for the plaintff to ask for cancellation of the lease as a condition precedent to his obtaining a decree for possession and that the suit was not barred by limitation. 1905 A.W.N. 176= 2 A.L.J. 507=28 All. 30.

3. Alienation by Hindu widow.

——Art. 91—Alienation by widow—Void sale—Suit to set aside.

Where the alienation was by a Hindu widow of an unrecognised portion of a bhag and the reversioner sued to have the same set aside after the life-time of the widow, Held, that the alienation being void ab initio limitation commenced from the date of the sale-deed and the suit was barred whether Art. 91 or Art. 120 applied to the case. 32 Bom. L.R. 1013=54 Bom. 837=127 Ind. Cas. 897=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 545.

——Art. 91—Alienation by widow.

In the case of reversioner it is not essential for him to set aside any alienation by the widow; but he can sue to enforce his right as reversioner without setting aside the alienation within the period prescribed by the Limitation Act after the death of the widow. 33 Cal. 257; 31 Bom. 1 and 34 Cal. 329, Foll. 84 Ind. Cas. 374= 26 Bom. L.R. 829=48 Bom. 654=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 9.

——Art. 91—Alienation by widow.

Adopted son may enforce his right to property alienated by widow; (adoptive mother) prior to adoption, without setting aside the transfer. 84 Ind. Cas. 374= 26 Bom. L.R. 829=48 Bom. 654=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 9.

——Art. 91—Hindu widow—Alienation—Reversioner—Suit by reversioner to recover property.

Where the plaintiff sues to recover possession of property from the defendant who relies on an alienation in his favour made by the widow of a preceding owner and the alienation is not justified by any necessity recognized by Hindu Law, it is not open to the defendant to rely on Art. 91 as a bar to the suit. (1906) 8 Bom. L.R. 675=31 Bom. 1.

——Arts. 91, 141—Alienation by Hindu widow—Reversioner's suit for possession of property alienated by widow for no legal necessity.

Art. 91 does not apply to a suit brought by a reversioner on the widow's death for recovery of property, alleged to have been alienated by a Hindu widow by a deed of sale during her life-time without legal necessity. Per Pargiter, J.—Such sales are void; whereas a lease by the widow is merely voidable at the heir's option. Per Woodroff, J.—Art. 91 governs all cases where a person seeks to recover property against an instrument executed by himself or one under whom he claims, but not to cases where the instrument is not that of the plaintiff or any person through whom he claims, as in the instance of a reversioner seeking recovery of porperty alienated without necessity or consent by a Hindu widow. In such cases the alienation is only good to the extent of the life interest and terminates ipso facto at her death. (1905) 1 C.L.J. 408=9 C.W.N. 636=33 Cal. 257.

——Arts. 91, 120, 135—Alienation by Hindu widow—Dedication of property by widow to Sheba Void as against reversioners—Suit for declaration.

A suit by the reversioners for a declaration that a dedication of property by a widow with her mother-in-law for the sheba of certain idols is void is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 91 the instrument being void against the plaintiff and as such not one which the plaintiffs need set aside. The reversioners not being entitled to succeed immediately on the death of the widow, her mother-in-law being alive, Art. 135 did not apply. (1904) 32 C. 473.

4. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

A suit for declaration that a deed was null and void is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 91. A.I.R. 1945 All. 367=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 145=(1945) A.L.J. 196= 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 141=I.L.R. (1945) All. 494.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Suit for setting aside partition by minor co-parcener after attaining majority.

Partition during minority of a co-parcener—Suit for setting aside the partition, filed on attaining majority—Proceedings are governed by Art. 91. 1943 A.W.R. 40= A.I.R. 1943 All. 197=(1943) A.L.J. 82=207 Ind. Cas. 99.

——Art. 91—Applicability—Suit for possession.

Where, in a suit for recovery of possession, there is an obstacle in the way of granting relief in the shape of gift or settlement, the plaintiff cannot get any relief until such instrument is set aside; and if it is too late for setting aside the document, the suit for possession should also fail.

In a suit where there is not only a prayer for cancellation of a document, but also for confirmation of possession of the properties covered by the deed, the position must be recognised that if the defendant is put in possession by virtue of an instrument which is not void on the face of it, a suit for possession even without a prayer for cancellation of the document would not take it out of the operation of Art. 91. In such a case, the prima facie title remains with the defendant, and until that title is defeated or displaced, the possession of the defendant cannot be disturbed. Where, therefore, the suit is barred under Art. 91, the suit for possession also fails and Art. 142 does not apply to such a suit. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 500= 65 C.L.J. 34=172 Ind. Cas. 755.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope.

Where a person seeks to recover property against an instrument executed by himself or one under whom he claims, he must first obtain the cancellation of the instrument and the 3 years' rule enacted by Art. 91, applies to a suit brought by such person. But where an instrument of alienation is executed by a person who is not the full owner of the property but has only conditional authority to dispose of it that article would not apply. 1935 R.D. 461=1935 A.W.R. 1113 =A.I.R. 1935 All. 1018=158 Ind. Cas. 434.

——Art. 91—Applicability — Suit to set aside voidable transfer and for possession—Limitation.

When a person sues to obtain possession of property which has been transferred by the person through whom he claims, the suit must be brought within the period allowed by Art. 91, so long as the transfer is voidable and not ab initio void.

When the transfer has been made by some person who had no title to make it and the transfer is, therefore, void; then the claim to have such transfer set aside will be merely ancillary or incidental to the main claim, which will be one for possession, but when the plaintiff's own predecessor has made a transfer, which is voidable and not void, the claim to have such transfer set aside cannot be regarded as merely ancillary to the plaintiff's claim for possession. Where the transfers, so far as the plea of undue influence is concerned; are voidable under S. 19-A Contract Act the plaintiff cannot evade the limitation prescribed by Art. 91 by merely framing his suit as though it were a suit for possession and nothing else. (1934) A.L.J. 817=A.I.R. 1934 All. 507=3 A. W.R. 302=152 Ind. Cas. 146.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

Article 91 can have no application where the deed which the plaintiff challenges is one which was not executed by him or by one under whom he claims, and where it is absolutely immaterial to the plaintiff whether it is cancelled or not. But it does apply to a case in which it is not possible for the plaintiff to get any relief until the instrument is set aside. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 812= 57 C.L.J. 399=37 C.W.N. 1141=146 Ind. Cas. 1010.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

Where in a suit for possession, the defence set up a mortgage-deed and a deed of gift both of which had been held to be sham transactions and fictitious:

Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 91 inasmuch as the deeds being inoperative relief for cancellation of the deeds was merely ancillary. 9 O.W.N. 958=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 72=140 Ind. Cas. 709.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

Where the plaintiff sued for possession of property impeaching a sale and the property was found to be the self-acquired property of the vendor:

Held, that it was necessary for the plaintiff to obtain a cancellation of the sale-deed before he could claim possession of the land and, therefore Art. 91 would apply to such a suit though the main prayer in the suit was a decree for possession of the land. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 399=34 P L.R. 412=142 Ind. Cas. 586.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

Lease by agent of principal's property as his own — Suit by Principal—Principal not bound to get the transaction set aside and Art. 91, therefore, not applicable. 1931 M.W.N. 856.

——Art. 91—Applicability.

The plaintiff, who was a person of weak intellect executed in 1914 a deed purporting to be a deed of gift in favour of the defendant, his elder brother conveying to the defendant his half share in the family property. The defendant agreed to give a cash allowance to the plaintiff while he was living with the defendant. The plaintiff left the defendant's house in 1923, and instituted a suit to set aside the deed. The defendant had meanwhile conveyed some of the properties to third persons:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 91 and had to be instituted within three years from the date when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled came to his knowledge. 7 O.W.N. 1129=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 34=130 Ind. Cas. 119.

——Art. 91—Applicability — Where the document is void.

Where a guardian sells immovable property belonging to a minor without the sanction of the Court and subsequently executes a second sale with the permission of the Court the later transferee can sue for possession outright and need not expressly sue to have the first sale set aside. To such a case Art. 120 and not Art. 91 of the Limitation Act, will apply. 34 C.W.N. 948= 130 Ind. Cas. 273=58 Cal. 128=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 131.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Where plaintiff is not a party to the instrument.

Article 91 applies to parties to the instrument which is sought to be cancelled and set aside, and has no application to a case where an alienation by an unauthorized person is attacked by the next reversioner or the successor-in-office of a mahant of a religious institution. 11 L.L.J. 493=A.I. R. 1929 Lah. 816.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Where the deed was a sham transaction.

A suit for a declaration that a transaction embodied in a particular deed was from the very inception a sham transaction is to be distinguished from a suit for cancellation of the deed. The former kind of suit does not fall within the purview of Art. 91, Sch. 2; Limitation Act. A.I. R. 1924 Bom. 174 and 35 Cal. 551, Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 54=50 All. 510=26 A.L.J. 289=A. I.R. 1928 All. 267.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope.

A suit to set aside a document which is voidable is governed by Art. 91. 41 M.L.J. 474 and 15 Cal. 58 (P.C.), Rel. on. 99 Ind. Cas. 571= 38 M.L.T. (H.C.) 1=25 M.L.W. 550=A.I. R. 1927 Mad. 255=52 M.L.J. 20.

——Art. 91 — Applicability and scope—Sale by administrator.

A suit to set aside a sale by administrator under S. 90, Probate and Administration Act; is governed by Art. 91 of the Limitation Act. 103 Ind. Cas. 264=5 Rang. 266=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 186

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Where plaintiff is not a party to the instrument.

Where the plaintiff in a suit for possession of property sold in execution of a decree was the original owner of the property and was not a party to the decree under which the sale took place nor a representative of any of the parties and was consequently in a position to ignore the sale altogether,

Held, Art. 12 has no application and the suit falls under Art. 144. Art. 91 also is not applicable, as it provides for the cancellation or setting aside of an instrument not otherwise provided for and it binds only the parties to the instrument and not strangers. 71 Ind. Cas. 822=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 396.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope.

A person who is entitled to possession of property need not as a preliminary to that set aside a document which may have been executed by somebody else in order to defeat his title. 78

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Malabar Tarwad—To set aside sale by karnavan.

A suit by the junior member of a Malabar tarwad to recover possession of immovable property alienated by the Karnavathi is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 91. The fact that the Karnavathi purported to execute the document not only as Karnavathi, but also as guardian of the minor plaintiffs, will not make either Art. 91 or Art 44 applicable to the suit. 78 Ind. Cas. 564=19 M.L.W. 395=34 M.L.T. 89=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 607=46 M.L.J. 340.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope.

Article 91 can only be applied when the plaintiff has been himself or through his predecessor-in-interest a party to the instrument assailed. 74 Ind. Cas. 164=1 Bur.L.J. 106=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 82.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Landlord and tenant—Suit against transferee — Transfer voidable.

To a suit by the landlord against the transferee of a tenant in C. P. who has taken possession of a holding in execution of a decree on a mortgage voidable at the instance of the landlord. Article 91 of the Limitation Act (1908), first Schedule, is inapplicable. The transfer is binding on the tenant and cannot be cancelled by the landlord though it can be declared void as against him. 76 Ind. Cas. 884=18 N.L.R. 11=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 60.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope.

Article 91 is restricted to a suit between the parties to the instrument or their successors-in-interest and a plaintiff is not bound to set aside an instrument not executed by himself or by his predecessor-in-title. 64 Ind. Cas. 775=17 N.L.R. 169=A.I.R. 1921 Nag. 74.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Co-sharers—Lease by Lambardar—Suit to set aside.

The position of a Lambardar with reference to his co-sharer in the matter of letting out vacant land cannot well be put higher than that of a manager of the joint property of a Hindu family, and therefore a suit by a co-sharer for a declaration that a lease granted by a Lambardar is invalid against him is within time if brought within 12 years of the date on which the execution of the lease became known to the co-sharer on the principle that a suit for declaration of a right cannot be held to be barred so long as the right to the property in respect of which declaration is sought is a subsisting right. 64 Ind. Cas. 775=17 N.L.R. 169=A.I.R. 1921 Nag. 74.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Execution of deed under mistake—Cancellation.

Where the plaintiff sues for possession and for cancellation of a deed of sale alleging that they executed the sale believing they were executing a totally different document, is governed not by Art. 91 but by 144. 23 C.W.N. 93=29 C.L.J. 55=49 Ind. Cas. 76.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Document—When to be set aside.

Where there exists a document which if valid and binding on a party, would defeat his right in recovering possession of any property he must sue under Art. 91 for the cancellation of the document within three years. 38 Bom. 449=15 Bom. L.R. 1044=22 Ind. Cas. 195.

——Arts 91 and 144—Applicability and scope — Alienation by third party—Suit for possession and cancellation of document—Limitation.

The plaintiff sued for possession of a property basing title under a grant executed in his favour. In the plaint he also prayed for the cancellation of a document executed by his grantor in favour of the defendant subsequent to his own. Held, that the suit was not one for the cancellation and was governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 91. 14 A.L.J. 464=32 Ind. Cas. 930.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Fraudulent alienation—Setting aside of.

A plaintiff can sue to set aside a sale-deed on the ground of fraud, if an interest in praesanti is not conferred thereby within 3 years from the time of defendant's attempt to take possession unlawfully. 31 Ind. Cas. 106 (Mad.).

——Ars. 91 and 120—Applicability and scope — Suit by manager—Suit to have Karnavan's alienation declared invalid.

A suit for a declaration that a Karnavan's alienation is invalid if brought 10 years after the cause of action arose is barred, whether Art. 91 or Art. 120 applies. 16 M.L.T. 241=(1914) M.W.N. 689=25 Ind. Cas. 755.

——Arts. 91 and 144—Applicability and scope—Alienation by manager—Alienation by ejaman of aliasantana family—Suit for recovery of possession.

A suit for recovery of possession of properties alienated by the ejaman of an aliyasantana family is not a suit to "set aside an instrument within Art. 91 of the Act, and is governed by Art. 144 of the Act. 14 M. 206; 14 M. 101, Foll. 27 M.L.J. 60=24 Ind. Cas. 246.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Award — Setting aside of.

In order that a person, who was a party to a submission and award may sue on the original cause of action, he must first have the award set aside; if the award is not a nullity but is only voidable at the instance of the party, the suit to set aside the award must be brought within the period of three years under Art. 91 of the Limitation Act. 5 S.L.R. 240=15 Ind. Cas. 819.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Suit for redemption—Mortgage by misrepresentation.

Where in a suit for redemption of a Mortgage, the mortgagee pleaded that the property had been sold but the plaintiff contended that it was only a mortgage and that his signature was obtained on that representation. Held, that for such a suit Art. 148 applied and not Arts. 91 or 142 and that plaintiff was entitled to prove the fraud played upon him. 4 Bur.L.T. 265=13 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Alienation by third party.

The article applies to set aside a document executed by the plaintiff himself or by a person under whom the plaintiff claims and against which plaintiff seeks to recover the property but it does not apply where the person alienating is not a full owner of the property but holds only a conditional authority to alienate the property. 32 All. 392=7 A.L.J. 337=5 Ind. Cas. 585.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope —Alienation by third party—Suit to eject a tenant—If a mortgage by tenant to be declared void.

A landlord need not have a mortgage created by a tenant declared null and void within the period fixed by Art. 91, before he can sue to eject a tenant. 8 N.L.R. 29=13 Ind. Cas. 982.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Fraudulent alienation.

A vendor seeking to recover the property sold on the ground that sale was effected by fraud must first get the sale avoided within the period prescribed by Art. 91, because the transaction is not void ab initio but only voidable. 5 M.L.T. 99=32 Mad. 72=1 Ind. Cas. 719.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Suit for cancellation of a deed—Suit for a declaration that the transaction evidenced by the deed was fictitious.

A suit for a declaration that a transaction embodied in a particular deed was from its very inception a sham transaction is to be distinguished from a suit for cancellation of the deed. The former kind of suit does not fall within the purview of Art. 91. 1908 A.W.N. 156=5 A.L.J. 421=30 A. 375.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Specific Relief Act, S. 39—Bond—Cancellation.

Art. 91 of the Limitation Act, 1877; applies to a suit brought under the provisions of S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877 to have a bond adjudged void and to have it delivered up and cancelled. (1903) 5 Bom.L.R. 533=27 B. 560.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Mahomedan Law—Setting aside settlement—Cause of action.

The cause of action for the heir of a deceased Mahomedan to set aside the wakfnama of the deceased arises upon the death of the settlor and not from the date of the settlement, where the heir had no interest in property settled nor any right to have it cancelled or set aside during the lifetime of the settlor. (1903) 7 C.W.N. 916=30 C. 666.

——Arts. 91 and 120—Applicability—Suit by Oudh landlord to eject tenant—Tenant claiming permanent right under a document—Civil Court having no jurisdiction to give a decree for possession—Nature of suit for declaration that a document is not binding and to cancel it.

Where a suit is brought in a Civil Court for possession of a land against a defendant who claims title to it under a document on the ground that the document is not binding on the plaintiff, and the civil Court is prohibited by statute from passing a decree for possession, it can give relief to plaintiff under S. 39 or S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act by cancelling the document and declaring its invalidity. In such case the prayer for cancellation, etc.; is really the principal prayer; and the prayer for possession is only ancillary. The article governing such a case is Art. 91 or 120. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 832=6 C.W.N. 849=25 A. 1=29 I.A. 203 (P.C.).

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope — Suit for possession of land—Setting aside a document under which defendant claims, necessary.

Where in order to sustain a suit for possession, the cancellation of a document under which the defendant claims is necessary, the article applicable is Art. 91. 15 C. 158; 14 I.A. 148, Foll. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 863.

——Art. 91—Applicability and scope—Suit to enforce and not to set aside an award.

In a suit for partition of properties dealt with by an award, the plaintiffs alleged that a clause in it restraining partition was invalid in law and that another portion of it was a subsequent illegal addition to the award as originally made, and in other respects his claim was in terms of the award and not in contravention of it.

Held, that the suit was not to set aside an award; but to enforce it so far as it was legally valid, and that Art. 91 had no application to the case. (1901) 11 M.L.J. 149=23 A. 383=3 Bom.L.R. 311=5 C.W.N. 585=28 I.A. 111 (P.C.).

5. Burden of proof.

——Art. 91—Starting point — Deed by father-in-law and daughter-in-law — Suit by latter to set aside — Date of knowledge of nature and consequences of deed—Burden of proof—Pardanashin—Deed by.

Where the ground for setting aside an instrument or deed is that the plaintiff did not appreciate the true nature and the legal consequences thereof, limitation for the suit begins to run from the date when the plaintiff became aware of the true nature and legal consequences of the instrument. In the case of a deed executed by a Hindu father-in-law and his widowed daughter-in-law, a pardanashin lady, it is for the father-in-law to prove the date when she in fact came to understand the true nature of the transaction. It is for him to show that it was explained to her by him and it is not enough for him to show merely that she did have an opportunity of reading it and that the terms were not complex or obscure. The father-in-law is under a duty to explain fully the nature and effect of the deed to his daughter-in-law living in his house and under his protection. 75 I.A. 108=I.L.R. (1948) Bom. 148=1948 A.L.J. 241=52 C.W.N. 701=1948 M.W.N. 449=61 L.W. 495=A.I.R. 1948 P.C. 111=50 Bom.L.R. 495=29 P.L.T. 251 (P.C.).

——Arts. 91 and 120—Applicability—Private sale prior to attachment before judgment—Transaction found to be fraudulent and to defeat attachment—Suit to declare sale deed void—Limitation—Starting point—Onus of proof.

The plaintiff obtained a money decree against the defendant and obtained an order for attachment before judgment on 2nd December, 1936. But the 3rd defendant had on 4th November, 1936; i.e., earlier to the attachment; sold the property attached to the 1st defendant who in his turn sold it to the 2nd defendant in 1942. The plaintiff filed the present suit in 1942 for a declaration that the sale deeds in favour of the defendants were vitiated by fraud and want of consideration, etc. It was found as a fact that the sales were fraudulent and intended to defeat the threatened attachment. On a contention that the suit was barred by limitation,

Held, that the view of the lower Court that time began to run not from the date of the first sale but from the time of the plaintiff's knowledge of it, which admittedly was within three years of the institution of the suit was not erroneous.

The burden of proof is on the defendant to show that the plaintiff had clear and definite knowledge of the fraud for more than the period of limitation and the fact that the plaintiff knew some facts such as would raise a bare suspicion is not enough evidence to discharge the onus. 1950 M.W.N. 791 =(1950) 2 M.L.J. 653=A.I.R. 1951 Mad. 388.

——Arts. 91 and 120—Applicability — Suit under S. 53, T. P. Act; to declare transfer invalid as being fraudulent—Limitation—Onus.

A suit filed by a creditor under S. 53, T. P. Act, for a declaration that a transfer by way of sale by his debtor was intended to defeat or delay his creditors including the plaintiff, and; as such; was not binding on the plaintiff and the other creditors, is governed for purposes of limitation; by Art. 120 and not Art. 120 and not Art. 91 of the Limitation Act.

Limitation cannot start against the plaintiff unless and until he is fixed with the knowledge of the fraudulent nature of the transfer impeached by him. The burden is on the defendant to show that the plaintiff had clear and definite knowledge of the fraud for more than the period of limitation. The fact that the plaintiff had some hints and clues which might raise his suspicion would not be enough. Nor can it be said that the right to sue accrues only when he decides to exercise the option given to him by S. 53, T. P. Act. I.L.R. (1947) Bom. 807=49 Bom.L.R. 875= A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 265.

——Art. 91—Burden of proof.

Where a lady brings a suit to set aside a certain deed executed by her under misrepresentation and undue influence of a person in a fiduciary position with her, the burden to prove; that her suit is out of time and that she had definite knowledge of the facts which constituted fraud of misrepresentation at a date beyond the statutory period, is heavily on such person. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 264 =178 Ind. Cas. 83.

——Art. 91—Burden of proof.

The onus is not on the defendant to prove that the plaintiff's knowledge arose more than 3 years before suit. 2 N.L.R. 98, Dissented from. 68 Ind. Cas. 352=1921 M.W.N. 722=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 394=41 M.L.J. 474.

6. Decree.

——Art. 91—Applicability — Setting aside a consent decree.

A suit to set aside a consent decree where fraud is not alleged or proved is maintainable and is not governed either by Art. 91 or Art. 95 but by Art. 120. 61 C.L.J. 193=39 C.W.N. 938=62 C. 642=164 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Art. 91—Decree — Where it is based on an award.

An award is an instrument within the meaning of Art. 91 and the plaintiff cannot impeach the decree incorporating the award unless he can show that a suit to set aside the award was brought within the period prescribed by Art. 91. 100 Ind. Cas. 596=28 P.L.R. 106=9 L.L.J. 191 =A.I.R. 1927 Lah 172.

——Art. 91—Decree.

Where a person is prima facie, bound by a decree; he cannot by suing ostensibly for possession ignore the decree and evade the operation of law; and where such a decree is an impediment to the plaintiffs' way in obtaining relief inconsistent with it, he must bring his suit within the period prescribed by law for setting aside a decree. 88 Ind. Cas. 141=87 Ind. Cas. 849=4 Pat. 510=6 P. L.T. 634=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 625.

——Arts. 91 and 95—Decree.

Arts. 95, 44 and 91 of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act do not apply to a suit to have a decree set aside but the article applicable would be 120. 62 Ind. Cas. 794=79 P.L.R. 1921= 2 Lah. 164=4 L. L. J. 211=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 166.

——Art. 91—Fraudulent alienation — Fraudulent decree—Suit to set aside.

A sale in execution of a fraudulent decree is not void, but voidable; such a sale cannot be set aside without setting aside the decree. 20 C.W.N. 659 =33 Ind. Cas. 767.

7. Distinction between void and voidable contract.

——Art. 91—Ancillary relief on void contract.

There is a wide difference between an agreement which is voidable and one which is void. A voidable contract is a good contract so long as it is not avoided by the person who has the right to avoid the same, while a void contract is no contract in law and in the eye of the law, it does not exist. When a party seeks to avoid a voidable contract and get a certain ancillary relief, it follows that if his claim for avoidance of the contract is barred by limitation, he cannot get the ancillary reliefs while if the contract is void, it is not necessary to have the contract set aside and the rights of the parties can be determined independently of the deed. So even if the claim for the cancellation of the deed or for declaration that it is void is barred by limitation, the rights of the parties can still be determined independently of the deed. (1945) A.L.J. 196=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 145=I. L. R. (1945) All. 494=A.I.R. 1945 All. 367=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 141.

8. Effect of bar under.

——Art. 91—Effect of bar under—Suit for possession.

A suit for possession of property is not barred merely because the period for the cancellation of the instrument has run out. 170 P.W.R. 1911= 251 P.L.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 140.

——Art. 91—Effect of bar under—Suit for possession—Avoidance of instrument—Cause of action.

Though a person suing for possession of immoveable property whose right to possession is blocked by an instrument must set it aside under Art. 91 of the Limitation Act time does not begin to run, until the necessity to sue for possession accrues. A person who has had no occasion to sue for possession of property cannot have his right to property extinguished by the lapse of three years under Art. 91. 55 Ind. Cas. 407 (Nag.).

9. Interpretation.

——Art. 91—"Instrument," meaning of.

The instrument to be cancelled or set aside which is referred to in Art. 91, is that instrument which the plaintiff himself has actually asked to have cancelled or set aside and not one which he ought to have set aside. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 278 =1940 Rang.L.R. 35=184 Ind. Cas. 171.

——Art. 91—Interpretation—'Plaintiff'.

The word 'plaintiff' in Art. 91 has to be read with the definition in S. 2 so as to include any person from or through whom a plaintiff derives his right to sue. 32 Bom.L.R. 1013=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 545.

10. Plea of limitation in defence.

——Art. 91—Act does not apply to defendant—Suit to set aside lease barred under Art. 91—Still defendant can urge that lease was obtained by undue influence and misrepresentation.

The Indian Limitation Act is not applicable to the case of defendant, and the party in possession is not affected by it. It refers only to the remedy of the plaintiff and not even to his rights and even though the remedy may be barred the right may still exist.

Consequently, a defendant is not precluded from urging by way of defence that the lease was obtained by the plaintiff by undue influence and misrepresentation although a suit by him to have the instrument set aside or cancelled is time barred under Art. 91. A.I.R. 1946 Oudh 129=1946 Oudh W.N. 1=21 Luck. 194=1946 A.W.R. (C. C.) 12.

——Art. 91—Defence—Limitation.

Where the executant of a contract has not had an opportunity to cancel the contract after the removal of undue influence, it is open to his representatives to raise this defence of undue influence within three years after the contract. 59 C.L.J. 387=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 762=152 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Art. 91—Document not set aside may be pleaded in defence.

If a party's remedy to have an instrument voided as plaintiff is time-barred, it does not follow that his right of pleading by way of equitable defence, if sued; that the instrument should not be enforced; is equally barred. Delay is of course an equitable reply to an equitable defence, but it cannot amount to a statutory bar. The fact that the defendant had not chosen to sue to have the instrument set aside within three years cannot preclude him from pleading in defence that the instrument was brought about by undue influence and could not be enforced. (1906) 17 M.L.J. 19 =30 M. 169=2 M.L.T. 4 (F.B.).

11. Starting point of limitation.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ART. 91—BURDEN OF PROOF.

——Art. 91—Suit to avoid settlement deed induced by undue influence—Time, when begins to run.

Under Art. 91 of the Limitation Act, the time for setting aside a settlement deed induced by undue influence runs from the date when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside became known to the plaintiff, and not from the date of the removal of the undue influence. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 433=1946 N.L.J. 406=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 377=1947 I.T.R. 150.

——Art. 91—Applicability — Undue influence — Starting point of limitation.

If a deed of gift is a void transaction, no question of cancelling or setting it aside would arise, but if it is only a voidable transaction, that is; a transaction valid until rescinded, then the necessity to set it aside is obvious before possession of the property can be claimed.

From the mere fact that the transaction of gift was induced by undue influence, it does not necessarily follow that it was not made 'voluntarily' within the meaning of S. 122, T. P. Act and was void. Where a person wished to make a gift and acted voluntarily in making it but the transaction was induced by undue influence, the gift is not void but only voidable and requires to be set aside before the properties conveyed by it could be claimed by the donor or by anyone claiming through him. Art. 91, Limitation Act; applies to such a case and where the donor was fully aware of the character of the transaction when he executed the deed, limitation for setting aside the gift deed would run from the date of the gift deed, as; under Art. 91, time runs from the date of the knowledge and not from that of the removal of the undue influence. 49 C.W.N. 303=I.L.R. (1945) Kar. (P.C.) 115 (Sup.)=47 Bom.L.R. 274=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 54=58 M.L.W. 176=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 253=1945 M.W.N. 217=(1945) A.L.J. 280=I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 440=11 B.R. 470=72 Ind. App. 21=220 Ind. Cas. 28 (P.C.).

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

A suit to recover possession of property gifted by the plaintiff to the donee under a deed of gift which is alleged to have been obtained by undue influence and executed in ignorance of the real nature of the document and its contents must be brought within three years from the date when the plaintiff became aware of the true character of the deed and the transaction and not from the date when the plaintiff escapes from the influence by which he was dominated. A.I.R. 1938 All. 451=(1938) A. L. J. 502=1938 A.W.R. 375=176 Ind. Cas. 874.

——Art. 91—Suit to set aside document on ground of undue influence — Limitation—Starting point—Prayer for possession, effect of.

Under Art. 91; a suit to cancel or set aside an instrument must be brought within three years from the date when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside become known to him and in a case of undue influence, the mere plea of undue influence supposes knowledge.

The fact that the suit is one for possession will not bring the suit within the twelve years' rule in a case of undue influence as an action for possession cannot succeed in such a case unless the plaintiff gets the instrument cancelled. (1931) A.L.J. 909=A.I.R. 1932 All. 63=135 Ind. Cas. 232.

——Art. 91—Suit to set aside gift executed under undue influence—Starting point of limitation.

Where the evidence showed that the donee had misused his position as a brother and as one in a position of domination to cause his weak-minded brother to execute a gift deed of his entire property, held, that the transfer was vitiated by undue influence and that the deed could be set aside within three years from the date when the true facts became known to the plaintiff. 7 O. W.N. 1129=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 34.

——Art. 91—Undue influence—Starting point.

Where a suit is brought to get a deed cancelled on the ground of fraud and undue influence, the fact must be considered to have been known to the executant from the date of the deed and if brought more than three years from that date the suit cannot be maintained. 15 Cal. 58 (P.C.), Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 806=5 O.W.N. 1062=10 L.R.A. (Rev.) 230=4 Luck. 270=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 67.

——Art. 91—Undue influence—Starting point.

A deed of gift obtained by undue influence is not void but only voidable. Cause of action to set aside the deed does not arise only on the cessation of the undue influence, and the period begins when the facts entitling the plaintiff to set aside the gift becomes known to him. 68 Ind. Cas. 352=1921 M. W. N. 722=A. I. R. 1921 Mad. 394=41 M.L.J. 474.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation—Contract under undue influence—Cause of action—Suit by beneficiary.

Where a person is induced to execute certain transfers by undue influence the cause of action to set aside those transfers under Art. 91 arises only where the undue influence ceases and plaintiff has full knowledge of all the matters. (1907) M. W.N. 906=7 L.W. 28=43 Ind. Cas. 164.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

The terminus a quo for a suit under Art. 91 is the time "when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside become known to him."

A person dedicated certain property for the construction of a mosque and appointed himself a permanent mutawalli. He reserved for himself a perpetual connection with the mosque as its President. He instituted a suit for avoiding the document and for declaration of his rights to manage the affairs of the mosque:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 91. Such a suit when instituted within three years of the time at which he admittedly occupied the office of the President, was within time inasmuch as so long as he held the position of President and had an active hand in the management of the affairs of the mosque, no occasion had arisen for him to institute any suit to avoid that document. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 869=180 Ind. Cas. 799.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

When in a suit for possession it is necessary to have a sale-deed set aside before the plaintiff can succeed, the suit must be filed within three years from the date when the plaintiff comes to know of the fact entitling him to set aside the deed. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 69=4 B.R. 293=19 P.L.T. 362=173 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

The period of three years permitted by Art. 91 begins to run not from the date on which the plaintiff, seeking to cancel or set aside the instrument escaped from the influence by which, according to him, he was dominated; but from the discovery by the plaintiff of the true nature of the deed which he had signed. 11 O.W.N. 784=A. I.R. 1934 P.C. 130=38 C.W.N. 806=67 M.L. J. 7=40 M. L. W. 5=36 Bom.L.R. 652= 1934 A.L.J. 585=59 C.L.J. 454=(1934) M. W.N. 647=9 Luck. 178=61 I.A. 224=3 A.W. R. 865=149 Ind. Cas. 480 (P.C.).

——Art. 91—Starting point.

The time from which the period begins to run in a suit to cancel an instrument is from the date when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled become known to him. 106 Ind. Cas. 903=4 O.W.N. 1116=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 629.

——Art. 91—Knowledge — Starting point.

Where plaintiff and his guardian were perfectly aware of facts entitling them to set aside an award plaintiff must prove that he attained majority within 3 years of the suit. Limitation starts from date of the award and not the date when the Court refused to file it. 89 Ind. Cas. 773=30 C.W.N. 529=5 Rang. 186=52 I.A. 265=6 L. R.P.C. 160=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 216 (P.C.).

——Art. 91—Return of purchase money—Starting point.

Cause of action for declaration by a vendee that the deed of conveyance is either void or voidable at his instance and that he is therefore entitled to the return of the purchase price arises when he comes to know of the alleged defects in his vendor's title. His claim in respect of the relief is statute-barred under Art. 91, if filed more than three years after such knowledge. 126 Ind. Cas. 737=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 66.

——Art. 91—Starting point.

Article 91 of the Indian Limitation Act provides a period of three years from the date when the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled or set aside become known to him. 28 Mad. 349, Foll. 78 Ind. Cas. 222=46 All. 260 =22 A.L.J. 149=5 L.R.A. Civ. 104=A.I.R. 1924 All. 370.

——Art. 91—Starting point — Where knowledge is on the date of the deed.

Where the plaintiff transferred certain properties to a person whom he described as being his adopted son and subsequently brought a suit against that person for a declaration that the deed is void on the ground that there was no adoption at all,

Held, that Art. 91 applied, that the essential fact which entitled the plaintiff to have the instrument cancelled was the fact that no adoption took place, that this fact was known to the plaintiff on the date of the deed itself, and that time ran against plaintiff from the date of the deed. 69 Ind. Cas. 971=20 A.L.J. 945=45 All. 169=A. I.R. 1923 All. 58.

——Arts. 91 and 120—Starting point—Cancellation of a document—Limitation.

A suit for declaration that a mortgage deed executed by the plaintiff was without valid consideration and ineffectual being intended only to defraud his creditor at the time and that the defendant has no right under it, is governed by Art. 91 or 120 and limitation runs from the date of the execution of that document. 37 All. 640=13 A. L.J. 913=29 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Art. 91 — Starting point of limitation—Suit for cancellation of document—Limitation.

A suit for declaration that a certain unconditional deed of gift is ineffectual and inoperative, owing to non-fulfilment of material stipulations must be brought within three years from the date of execution of the deed. 5 Ind. Cas. 407 (All.).

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit for cancellation of an instrument, limitation runs from the time the facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument, cancelled become known to him. 6 A.L.J. 561=2 Ind. Cas. 625.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation.

The article applies to a suit to set aside an instrument on the ground of undue influence. A suit for possession of immoveable property where the relief is inconsistent with a registered sale-deed executed by plaintiff's predecessors-in-title is governed by the article, as it is necessary that the document should be set aside. The cessation of undue influence is not the time when the starting point of limitation begins. A mere unilateral repudiation in pais by a plaintiff will not effect a rescission of a contract or deed; rescission must be made by a decree of a court declaring that the contract or transaction is void. 38 Mad. 321= 24 M.L.J. 592=13 M.L.T. 469=(1913) M.W. N. 453=19 Ind. Cas. 596.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation — Suit to cancel a registered instrument under S. 39, Sp. Rel. Act.

Where an instrument cannot take effect until it is registered, to cancel such an instrument under S. 39, Sp. Rel. Act, the limitation commences to run under Art. 91 from the date of its registration and not from the date of its execution. 4 O.L. J. 108=39 Ind. Cas. 456.

——Art. 91—Starting point of limitation — Cancellation of a document—Suit for.

The word "entitled" in Art. 91 of the Lim. Act means entitled by law, i.e. under S. 39 of the Sp. Rel. Act. In a suit for cancellation of a document time will begin to run from the time when the plaintiff becomes aware of facts which create in him a reasonable apprehension that he will suffer injury if the document be left outstanding. 47 Ind. Cas. 505 (Mad.).

——Art. 91—Facts entitling the plaintiff to have the instrument set aside — Starting point — Suit brought within three years from the apprehension of injury.

A suit for setting aside an instrument brought within three years from the date of the defendant's setting up a title in pursuance of the instrument is within time even though more than 3 years have elapsed from the date of the instrument itself. The causes of action arose at the date when the plaintiff apprehended injury. (1904) 15 M.L.J. 228=28 M. 349.

——Arts. 91, 141—Suit by reversioner for khas possession—Lease by widow—Setting aside ancillary—Starting point of limitation.

A suit by a reversioner for khas possession of properties let on izara lease by a widow for which the setting aside of the lease is necessary, is governed by Art. 91 and time begins to run against him only from the date of the widow's death and not before, as the reversioner's suit during lifetime of the widow would be premature. Art. 141 has no application. 7 C.W.N. 864=30 C. 990.

——Art. 91—Deed by pardanashin lady — Suit to set aside—Starting point of limitation.

Where a pardanashin lady sues to set aside a deed of release granted by her, the starting point of limitation is the date when she became aware of the facts entitling her to that relief and the article applicable is Art. 91. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 146.

——Art. 91—Cancellation of sham document—Limitation, starting point of.

Where the executant of a sham document continued in possession after execution of the document, but was only subsequently dispossessed, the period of limitation for a suit to cancel the document will run from the date of dispossession and not from the date of execution of the document. (1900) 25 B. 78=2 Bom.L.R. 638.

12. Void document.

——Art. 91—Applicability — Transaction void ab initio—Gift by pardanashin lady without knowing nature of transaction or bargain—Suit to declare inoperative—Limitation.

It is well established that Art. 91, Limitation Act, only applies to suits for cancellation or setting aside of an instrument which is voidable and has no application to the case of an instrument which is challenged as void ab initio. A deed of gift executed by a pardanashin lady without understanding the nature of the transaction at all is ab initio void and not merely voidable. A suit for a declaration that the deed is invalid and that the donee under it acquired no title is not governed by Art. 91. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 247.

——Arts. 91, 142 and 120—Void document—Possession claimed under void transfer.

Where possession is claimed of certain property which had been transferred under a document which is void, then even though a relief may be added for the setting aside of the document, that relief is merely ancillary to the main relief for possession and it is not necessary to have the document set aside before the plaintiff is entitled to claim possession and in these circumstances. Art. 91, Limitation Act would have no application to the case. The plaintiff is entitled to bring his suit within 12 years. (1945) A.L.J. 196=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 145=A.I.R. 1945 All. 367=I.L.R. (1945) All. 494=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 141.

——Arts. 91, 92, 93 and 95—Void document—Limitation.

Obiter.—Where a document is wholly void ab initio, it is not necessary to get it cancelled or set aside and therefore question of limitation for a suit does not arise. 6 B.R. 262=20 P.L.T. 957=A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 201=185 Ind. Cas. 816.

——Art. 91—Void document — Suit for possession by avoiding void document.

Where a deed of relinquishment by a pardanashin lady is a void document, it is not necessary to avoid it or to get it cancelled. Article 91 has no application to a case where a suit is brought by her for possession and partition upon declaration that an instrument under which the defendant claims is void. A.I.R. 1939 All. 348=(1939) A.L.J. 642=(1939) A.W.R. 889=182 Ind. Cas. 801 (2).

——Art. 91—Scope — Void document.

Article 91 is no bar to a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff was the owner of property on the ground the sale-deed executed in respect of that property was only fictitious and that no title passed to the vendee under it. 1939 A.L.J. 389=1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 400.

——Art. 91—Scope — Void document — Suit for possession alleging sale to be sham.

Where the allegations in the plaint, that the sale was a sham transaction or a mere paper transaction, are correct; a suit for possession of the property based on those allegations must be governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 91. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 544=I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 546=41 P.L.R. 657=185 Ind. Cas. 343.

——Art. 91—Void deed.

Where a mortgagee under a power of sale, sells the property to one who is benami for himself the sale is void as there was really no two persons for the contract. Art. 91 does not apply to the case as the sale need not be set aside. 113 Ind. Cas. 313=30 Bom.L.R. 1519=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 24.

——Art. 91—Void document—Misrepresentation.

Where it is established that the plaintiff or his transferor was induced by defendant's misrepresentation to execute a deed of gift of the property in question and he executed the same believing it to be a document of a different kind altogether, the transaction is void and not voidable only and Art. 91 has no application to plaintiff's application for recovery of the property. 23 C.W.N. 93; 35 Cal. 1551, Foll., 121 Ind. Cas. 404=49 C.L.J. 540=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 606.

——Art. 91—Void document — Cancellation if necessary—Where document is a sham transaction.

Where a plaintiff sued for declaration of his title and injunction alleging in the plaint that the settlement deed under which the defendant claimed was a sham and fictitious document under which no property was intended to pass, he is not obliged to get the document set aside, before becoming entitled to the other reliefs. 120 Ind. Cas. 378=30 M.L.W. 796=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 478.

——Art. 91—Void document—Sham transaction.

Obiter.—Where a deed is null and void, there is no necessity for the party to come to Court promptly and have the deed actually cancelled or set aside. Where, however, a deed is good but is voidable and can be avoided at the option of the party aggrieved, he must come to Court within three years to have it set aside. 109 Ind. Cas. 54=50 All. 510=26 A.L.J. 289=A.I.R. 1928 All. 267.

——Art. 91 — Void document — Muhammadan Law—Gift without possession — Starting point.

Where a deed of gift is executed by a person governed by the Muhammadan law and the possession of the property comprised in the gift has not been delivered the gift would be void ab initio and no question of limitation will arise in such circumstances. The right of the plaintiff to impeach such a gift can only accrue from the moment when by receipt of possession the gift becomes operative by law. 6 All. 207, Foll. 78 Ind. Cas. 222=46 All. 260=22 A.L.J. 149=5 L.R.A. Civ. 104=A.I.R. 1924 All. 370.

——Art. 91—Document void.

Article 91 applies to a suit to cancel or set aside an instrument not otherwise provided for. It does not apply to a suit for possession and a declaration that an instrument under which the defendant claims is void. 72 Ind. Cas. 748=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 284.

——Art. 91—Document void — Article does not apply—If voidable, article applies.

Where a suit is brought for a declaration that certain instrument is absolutely void and inoperative as having been obtained by fraud and that plaintiff is entitled to the properties covered by the deed, the relief as to the declaration of the deed as void, is superfluous and Art. 95 does not apply to the suit; but Art. 120 applies.

Per Richardson, J.—If a plaintiff comes into Court to have a particular written instrument set aside or cancelled, then, prima facie Art. 91 is applicable whether the ground on which the claim is made is fraud or some other ground. 15 C. 58 (P.C.) and 25 Bom. 337 (P.C.) Foll.

A distinction however can be drawn between void and voidable instruments. Art. 91 does not apply to instruments which are void ab initio so as not to require setting aside. When the instrument is voidable it is presumably valid, and binding on the plaintiff, until it is set aside, and any further relief which may be sought depends on the removal of the instrument from the plaintiff's path. In such a case Art. 91 applies. But if the facts alleged by the plaintiff raise a case that the instrument, whether executed by the plaintiff himself or by some third party through whom he claims, is null and void ab initio, then Art. 91 ceases to be applicable and the circumstances may entitle the plaintiff to the benefit of the longer period of limitation allowed by some other article such as Art. 120 or Art. 144.

Where the plaintiff raises the plea known to English lawyers as non est factum, if he should succeed in establishing that plea, then the instrument in question would be altogether void. It would not require setting aside and the prayer to set it aside would be merely superfluous, so that Art. 91 would be inapplicable. 70 Ind. Cas. 525=26 C.W.N. 479=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 786.

——Art. 91—Void document.

Article 91 has no application to a case of this description, where a suit is brought for possession and partition upon declaration that an instrument under which the defendant claims is void. Case-law referred. 17 Bom. 341 (P.C.) Foll. 69 Ind. Cas. 476=34 C.L.J. 563=26 C.W.N. 517=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 131.

——Art. 91—Void document — Minor, document by.

Art. 91 of the Limitation Act does not apply to a suit for possession, where the plaintiff alleges and proves that a sale deed is void because it was executed by him while minor, but does not claim impressly to have it cancelled or set aside. 42 Bom. 638=20 Bom.L.R. 802=47 Ind. Cas. 581 (F.B.).

——Art. 91—Void document — Suit for cancellation of deed of exchange.

A person suing for recovery of property which he has transferred to another under a deed of exchange which is not binding on him need not have the deed cancelled. 17 Bom.L.R. 1137 (Note) =33 Ind. Cas. 441.

——Art. 91—Void document — Alienation by Hindu widow—Sham—Suit to recover possession —Limitation.

A suit by a reversioner to recover possession of property alienated by a Hindu widow is not governed by Art. 91 of the Limitation Act, when the impeached alienation is found to be sham. The only object of Art. 91 is to compel a plaintiff to remove out of his way some real existing obstacle but where there is no real obstacle, the article has no scope for operation. 40 Bom. 51=17 Bom. L.R. 698=30 Ind. Cas. 909.

——Art. 91—Void document.

Art. 91 has no application where the deed is ab initio void. 23 C.W.N. 93=29 C.L.J. 55=49 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Art. 91—Void document—Alienation of debutter property of.

When properties belong to idols, the conveyance of those properties by the Court of Wards on behalf of a disqualified proprietor is a nulity and Art. 91 does not apply. 19 C.W.N. 1193=28 Ind. Cas. 818.

——Art. 91—Void document—Fictitious deed.

Art. 91 of the Limitation Act is applicable only where the transaction is not void ab initio but voidable. When the sale deed is fictitious having been executed under undue influence it should be ignored altogether even if it has been acted upon, and a part of the consideration has nominally passed and so Art. 91 does not apply. 34 P.W.R. 1916.

——Art. 91—Void document — Lease not binding on plaintiff.

Lessee in possession whether could be ejected without setting aside the lease. If the lease is not binding on plaintiff he is entitled to recover the property without setting aside the lease. 1 C.W.N. 433; 33 C. 257; 34 C. 329 (P.C.) Foll. 18 M.L.T. 504=2 L.W. 1178=(1915) M.W.N. 962=31 Ind. Cas. 590.

——Arts. 91 and 124—Void document.

A void transfer does not require to be set aside. Sales void ab initio do not become valid under the Act if not set aside within the limitation period therefor, by suit. A suit to recover a temple from 2 persons who were appointed by agreement of the existing trustees to manage the temple till the disputes between themselves were settled, is governed by Art. 124 and not by Art. 91. The document vesting the management on those two persons need not be set aside within 3 years under Art. 91. 39 Mad. 456=28 M.L.J. 571=29 Ind. Cas. 1.

——Art. 91—Void document—Bogus deed.

When a document is of a bogus character, Art. 91 of the Act is inapplicable. 58 Ind. Cas. 380 (Pat.).

——Arts. 91 and 142—Void document — Imperfect document.

Where a document is a nullity, it need not be set aside and a suit for possession of the land is maintainable even after 3 years from the execution of the deed. A document, the executant of which signed only at the first page, but did not sign the other page, having found that it did not set out the terms agreed on, is a nullity. To get possession of property covered by it, the deed need not be set aside. A suit to recover possession of immoveable property by setting aside a document on the ground of fraud, but which document does not require to be set aside or cancelled, is governed by Art. 142 and not by Art. 91. (1902) 30 C. 433.

13. Will.

——Art. 91—Will.

A suit for cancellation of will is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 91. 23 Cal. 1 (P.C.) Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 835=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 635.

——Art. 91—Alienation by third party — Will—Denial of.

A suit by a person denying the genuineness or the validity of the will is not governed by Art. 91. 114 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Arts. 91, 92, 93 and 120—Alienation by third party—Will.

A suit to declare an unregistered will as forged and beyond the powers of the testator to make, is governed by Art. 120 and time runs from the time the plaintiff comes to know of the existence of the will. Art. 91 does not apply to wills. 82 P.L.R. 1909=88 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 923.

14. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 91—Comparison with Art. 126.

The language of Art. 91 is almost identical which the description of a suit contemplated by Art. 126 and though the objectives of the suits specified in these articles were different, the nature of the relief is the same. 90 Ind. Cas. 184 =2 O.W.N. 650=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 678.

——Arts. 91 and 41—Miscellaneous — Possession of widow — Belief by adopted son and widow that it was mere life—Estate — Intention to acquire absolute estate wanting.

If both the adopted son and the widow believed that the estate in possession of the widow was a mere life-estate, and the adopted son took no steps to disturb her; her possession is not adverse to the son. 38 Bom. 227=16 Bom.L.R. 111= 24 Ind. Cas. 716.

——Art. 91—Miscellaneous — Sale in execution —Non-joinder of proper heir—Fresh suit by the proper heir at a late period.

The son who was the real heir was not joined as the representative of his father in a suit, and a decree was passed against the father's estate, the uncle being made the representative defendant. The son brought a suit after a very long period.

Held, the suit was barred. 25 B. 337 (P.C.), Foll. 10 Ind. Cas. 344 (All.).

——Arts. 91, 142 and 144—Miscellaneous — Immovable property suit to recover possession of —Cause of action—Limitation — Regulation 2 of 1803, Regulation 2 of 1805—Act 14 of 1859.

H, a Hindu widow, adopted G as her son under a power given to her by her husband. G died childless in 1834 and his widow B succeeded to his estate as his heiress. By an Anumatipatra executed by G shortly before his death, he empowed his widow B with the consent of to adopt a son and directed that the name of H, should continue to stand registered and that she should have control of the estate as long as she lived. In 1837, H executed a putni lease in favour of the defendants' predecessor, in respect of the lands in suit together with other lands. In 1856, the plaintiff's father was adopted by B and he thereupon became the heir of his adoptive father G; he attained majority in 1856 and died in 1880. H died in 1848. In a suit brought by the plaintiff in the year 1897 to recover possession of the disputed lands, on the ground that the putni was not binding upon him.

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation. H had no estate in the property in question. On the most favourable view for the appellant, she granted the putni as manager of the estate for B, the then legal owner. If the putni was void the period of limitation ran from the date on which it was granted. But if it was voidable only by B's successor, the right of action arose on his adoption (i.e., of the plaintiff's father) and time would begin to run against him from the date when he attained his majority. Under either Reg. 2 of 1803, or Act 14 of 1859, time ran from the date when the cause of action arose. (1905) 1 C.L.J. 319=2 A.L.J. 794=15 M.L.J. 267=9 C.W.N. 673=32 C. 662=32 I.A. 80 (P.C.).

——Arts. 92 and 93—Scope.

A plaintiff seeking to recover possession of property and knowing the existence of an instrument that would be fatal on the merits to the claim is not bound to seek as part of his remedy to set aside that instrument on peril of finding that a mere allegation in the defence of the existence of that instrument is fatal.

Where the plaintiff claims possession of certain property as the widow of the deceased proprietor of the property against various persons whose substantial defence is that they are entitled under the terms of a will, and the plaintiff claims quite apart from the will, there is no obligation on the plaintiff to join to her claim another claim for a relief which she does not seek for and does not need. Arts. 92 and 93 do not apply to the case. The proper period of limitation in the case is the period that relates to the cause of action as actually brought and being a suit for possession, Art. 144 would apply in the circumstances. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 709=42 M.L.W. 535=(1935) M. W. N. 1154=158 Ind. Cas. 121.

——Art. 92—Applicability—Where the relief cognizable by Civil Court is to set aside document as forged.

Plaintiff, an ex-proprietary tenant, sued for a declaration that she had an ex-proprietary right in respect of the lands specified and that a registered deed of relinquishment, dated the 19th January; 1918 was forged and was null and void and ineffectual as against her. The suit was brought more than three 'years' after 19th January, 1918,

Held, so far as the relief concerning the document was concerned, the suit was one for a declaration that the registered document was forged and as such that relief clearly was barred under Art. 92. Assuming that the relief asking for a declaration that the document was forged was not to such an extent the principal relief in the case that the period of limitation provided for that relief would govern the whole suit, still; so far as the declaration of plaintiff's right was concerned it was clearly a matter which must be determined in the Revenue Court by virtue of S. 167, Agra Tenancy Act. 102 Ind. Cas. 287=8 L. R. A. (Rev.) 133=A.I.R. 1927 All. 826.

——Art. 92—Will, unregistered—Applicability.

Art. 92 does not apply to the case of a will which is neither 'issued' nor 'registered.' 82 P.L.R. 1909=88 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Arts. 93, 95 and 120—Suits to declare that kat kobala document is not binding on reversion.

A suit for declaration that a kat kobala document shall not bind reversion is not within Arts. 93 and 95 of the Act. Art. 120 applies and if the plaintiff is in possession, limitation begins only when some act is done in the document sought to be not binding. 47 Ind. Cas. 2 (Cal.).

——Arts. 93, 120 and 126—C. P. Code, O. 2, Rr. 1 and 2—Forged document if should be set aside.

A party challenging a document as a forgery is not bound to set it aside by suit. 4 L.W. 441 =(1916) 2 M.W.N. 325=37 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 93—Applicability.

Art. 93 does not apply to a suit to declare an unregistered will when no attempt to enforce the will against plaintiff has been made. 82 P.L.R. 1909=88 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Art. 93—Applicability to wills.

Art. 93 does not apply when no attempt to enforce the will against the plaintiff has been made. 82 P.L.R. 1909=88 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Art. 93—Will—Attempt to enforce—What is.

Mere mention of Will in written statement without anything done to obtain a decision on its binding character is not an attempt to enforce it. 62 Ind. Cas. 531=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 545=40 M. L.J. 348.

——Art. 93—Attempt to enforce a forged instrument—Meaning of — Application by a widow for succession certificate as heir to her deceased husband if an attempt.

"Attempt to enforce a forged instrument against the plaintiff" within Art. 93 is done only when a person institutes proceedings in which the genuiness of the document is directly put in issue and to which the person against whom it is sought to be enforced is a necessary party. An attempt to register a document is not an attempt to enforce it against other person's rights. 17 Bom.L.R. 635, Foll. A widow as such applied for a succession certificate to collect the debts due to her deceased husband and only incidentally mentioned a will of her deceased husband, but did not base her right as a legatee. In a suit by the reversioners of the husband to declare the will forged. Held, that the mention of the will in the petition was not an attempt within Art. 93. 32 Ind. Cas. 99 (Mad.).

——Art. 93—Suit to declare the forgery of instrument attempted to be enforced against the plaintiff —Attempt to have a lease recorded under—Record of Rights Act (Bom. Act 4 of 1903).

Defendant applied in 1908, to the Mamlatdar to record under the Record of Rights Act, a lease under which he claimed to be entitled to a rent of 400 cocoanuts from the plaintiff. Plaintiff, having complained that the lease was a forgery, the Collector, ordered that lease should be recorded. On the strength of that record the defendant sued in the Mamlatdar's Court to enforce the terms of the lease and recovered cocoanuts due under it. The plaintiff sued, within three years of the recovery of the cocoanuts, to recover back the value of the cocoanuts, on the ground that the alleged lease was a forgery. Held, that the suit was not barred under Art. 93 of the Limitation Act for the words "attempt to enforce" would in their ordinary and natural meaning, be applicable to an attempt to recover rent under the lease. The attempt to have the lease recorded under the Record of Rights Act, in 1908, could not be put higher than an unsuccessful attempt to have a document registered in the case in which registration was necessary and that such an attempt was not an attempt to enforce the lease. 40 Bom. 22=17 Bom.L.R. 635=30 Ind. Cas. 399.

——Arts. 93, 142 and 144—Suit for possessions of lands—Forged document.

A suit for possession of lands where the plaintiff alleges that the defendant is in possession in virtue of a forged document alleged to have been executed by a third person is not governed by Art. 93. (1904) 28 M. 338.

1. Applicability and scope.

——Arts. 95 and 120—Applicability—Relief on the ground of negligence. See HINDU LAW — ALIYASANTHANA JOINT FAMILY. (1947) 2 M.L.J. 177=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 129.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope—Suit challenging adoption—Decree on ground of fraud — Limitation.

A suit by a distant reversioner that an adoption was invalid and that he was not bound by a compromise decree, passed in a suit by a nearer reversioner challenging that adoption, is competent and is governed for purposes of limitation by Art. 95 of the Limitation Act. 1944 M.W.N. 582= 57 L.W. 500=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 214=I. L. R. (1945) Mad. 450=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 33.

——Art. 95—Applicability—Partition suit.

Art. 95 does not apply to a suit to enforce partition of property excluded from previous partition of joint family properties by fraud of other members because it is applicable only when the relief is claimed solely on the ground of fraud. The foundation of the plaintiff's suit is his right to enforce a partition of his property which was excluded from partition and not the fraud of the other members which made such exclusion possible. Fraud or no fraud, that property continued to be the joint property even after the partition of the remaining joint family property, and the plaintiff who was excluded from it, is entitled to recover his share in it without the original partition being reopened. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 419= 45 Bom.L.R. 825=214 Ind. Cas. 273.

——Arts. 95 and 96 — Applicability and scope—Partition.

Suit for partition — Subsequent suit for items left out by mistake of fraud:

Held, that the proper article to apply to such a case would be Art. 142 or Art. 144 and not Art. 95 or Art. 96. A.I.R. 1931 Sind 27=130 Ind. Cas. 552.

——Art. 95 — Applicability and scope—Suit for relief on ground of fraud—Fraud contemplated.

The fraud contemplated by Art. 95, is fraud practised upon a party to the decree or a party to the transaction in which the fraud was committed. But when the parties to a decree choose not to challenge it, they are bound by it, and the decree cannot be said to be void. A stranger who is intended to be defrauded by it cannot seek to have the decree set aside, but all that he can sue for is to have it declared that his interest cannot be affected by such a collusive decree. A suit for such a declaration does not come within the purview of Art. 95, but is governed by Art. 120 and the time begins to run either when the awards are made or when the decrees are passed on these awards. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 283=45 Bom.L.R. 526=211 Ind. Cas. 230.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope.

Suit by mortgagee of tenure to set aside sale for arrears of rent—Allegation of fraud, held unnecessary and that suit was for possession and Art. 138 and not Art. 95 applied. 3 B.R. 296=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 331=167 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope.

Article 95, applies to a suit to set aside a decree obtained by fraud, or for other relief on the ground of fraud. This, it is clear, applies and must apply to a case where the plaintiff has sustained loss or damage on account of the fraud of the defendant. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 322=38 Bom. L.R. 712=60 B. 848=165 Ind. Cas. 184.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope—Suit for relief on ground of fraud

Where it is sought to set aside a sale held in execution on the ground of fraud, Art. 95, is to be applied in preference to Art. 120 for purposes of limitation. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 473=14 P.L.T. 441=149 Ind. Cas. 129.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope.

Suit to set aside consent decree on ground of fraud is governed by Art. 95. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 53=145 Ind. Cas. 777.

——Arts. 95, 91 and 120—Applicability and scope—Suit to set aside consent decree not tainted by fraud.

A suit to set aside a consent decree where fraud is not alleged or proved is maintainable and is not governed either by Art. 91 or Art. 95 but by Art. 120. 61 C.L.J. 193=39 C.W.N. 938=62 C. 642=164 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Art. 95—Applicability — Decree jeopardising title for the first time.

Where title of a person is jeopardised for the first time by a decree in a suit such a person is entitled to institute a suit for declaration that he is not bound by that decree and the article applicable to such a suit is 120 and the time begins to run from the date of the invasion of the title. 123 Ind. Cas. 830=A.I.R. 1930 All. 420.

——Art. 95 — Applicability and scope — Suit by heirs.

Per Das, C. J.—Ordinarily a decree obtained against a person binds the heirs and if the decree was obtained by fraud, the heirs must sue within the period prescribed by Art. 95 of the Limitation Act. 88 Ind. Cas. 141=87 Ind. Cas. 849 =4 Pat. 510=6 P.L.T. 634=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 625.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope—Sale under Tenancy Act — Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act, S. 231.

A suit for possession of land and the right to ask for a declaration that a sale under the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act has been fraudulently confirmed is clearly not a suit under the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act. It is governed by Limitation Act, Art. 95. It is true that the Act in some cases takes away the right to sue for setting aside a sale, but nowhere grants that right although to some extent it limits it. 96 Ind. Cas. 529=5 Pat. 759=8 P.L.T. 124=1926 P.H.C.C. 225= A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 401.

——Art. 95 — Applicability and scope — Fraud not proved.

The plaintiff sued for sale of a mortgaged property on foot of a registered mortgage. The property however, being a cultivatory holding and thus not being liable to sale, in his replication the plaintiff desired a money-decree. There was a further plea of the plaintiff that the defendant had fraudulently represented the property to be alienable property; but no fraud was found to have been proved.

Held, that the suit would have been governed by Art. 95, Sch. 1 of the Limitation Act only if the alleged fraud had been established, the proper Article applicable to the suit was Art. 116, Sch. 1 of the Limitation Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 595 =9 O.L.J. 171=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 113.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope — Hindu family—Debt due to family, collected by one member after partition.

Article 62 and not Art. 95 applies where one member of a family which has become divided collects a debt due to the family and keeps the amount and another member files a suit to recover his share. 6 Mad. 402; 25 M.L.J. 531; 32 Mad. 191 and 37 Mad. 381, Foll. 69 Ind. Cas. 274= 1921 M.W.N. 539=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 283=41 M.L.J. 274.

——Art. 95—No fraud—If article applicable.

The article has no application when on the face of the plaint no equitable relief is claimed on the ground of fraud. 37 Bom. 158=15 Bom.L.R. 192=19 Ind. Cas. 406.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope—Suit to set aside compromise.

A suit to set aside a compromise entered into between the plaintiffs and the transferors of the defendants, is governed by the Art. 95 of the Act. 22 C.W.N. 860=46 Ind. Cas. 867.

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope — Fraudulent — Rev. sale—Declaration of invalidity—Suit for.

The limitation applicable to a suit brought by a part—Proprietor of an estate to declare that the Rev. sale was brought about by fraud, and that her right was not affected thereby, is that prescribed in Art. 95 of Sch. II of the Act (1877). 13 C.W.N. 518=4 Ind. Cas. 70.

——Arts. 95, 96 and 116—Applicability and scope —Mortgage with possession — Suit for refund of money advanced by mortgagee.

The plaintiff sued for recovery of money from the defendant together with damages, alleging that the registered mortgage-deed executed in his favour by the defendant cannot be enforced, as the land was found to be already mortgaged with possession to another person. He also alleged that the defendant had practiced fraud.

Held, that the suit came under Art. 116 and neither Art. 95 nor Art. 96 governed the suit. The plaintiffs allegation as to fraud does not bar the applicability of Art. 116. 106 P.L.R. 1916= 130 P.W.R. 1916=36 Ind. Cas. 262.

——Arts. 95 and 97—Applicability and scope— Fraud by decree-holder.

A purchaser at a court auction can recover the whole or part of his purchase money, by a suit, on the ground of fraud committed by the decree-holder in concealing from him the existence of an incumbrance at the time of the sale. Such suits are governed by Art. 95 of the Act and not by Art. 97 as they cannot be treated as one for the recovery of the whole or portion of the purchase money on the ground of failure of consideration money. 16 Ind. Cas. 215 (Mad.).

——Art. 95—Applicability and scope — Fraudulent mortgage—Suit for money advanced under.

Where a mortgage under a usufructuary mortgage dated 1907, came to know in 1912 that the mortgagor had no power to mortgage the property and had fraudulently concealed the fact from the mortgagee and thereupon in 1914 he brought a suit for recovery of the money due to him with interest by way of damages.

Held, that the suit fell under Art. 95 and was not barred. 3 O.L.J. 593=37 Ind. Cas. 351.

——Arts. 95, 97 and Arts. 116 and 120—Fraudulent usufructuary mortgage — Right of plaintiff mortgagee—Applicability and scope.

Where defendant fraudulently gets his Sir land mortgaged with possession to the plaintiff the plaintiff is entitled to a simple money decree for the sum advanced with such interest as the Court might find due. The claims falls under Arts. 95 and 97 and not under Arts. 116 and 120. 13 O.C. 148=6 Ind. Cas. 1013.

——Arts. 95 and 144 — Applicability and scope—Fraudulent decree—Suit for possession — Limitation.

A suit for recovery of possession of immoveable property on the ground that the decree on the basis of which the defendants dispossessed the plaintiff was obtained by fraud is governed by Art. 95 and not by Art. 144 of the Limitation Act. 49 Ind. Cas. 953 (Pat.).

2. Decree—What is.

——Art. 95—Decree, what is.

For the purposes of Art. 95, the certificate under the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act 1913, cannot be a decree. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 69=34 C.W.N. 801=129 Ind. Cas. 871.

——Art. 95—Decree, what is—Certificate of sale under Public Demands Recovery Act.

Where the plaintiff sued to recover possession first in their capacity as executors and secondly as shebaits and it appeared that the defendants were in possession under a certificate of sale under the Public Demands Recovery Act to which the plaintiffs were not parties,

Held, that the case being one where there was no decree in the way of plaintiffs the suit was governed by Art. 95 of the Limitation Act. 34 C.W.N. 801=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 69.

3. Interpretation.

——Art. 95—"Fraud"—Applicability of article.

The fraud referred to in Art. 95, need not be of the same nature as that in decree obtained by fraud, nor is the article applicable to suit where the cause of action is not in essence fraud. (1908) 35 C. 877.

——Arts. 95 and 120—"Fraud"—Suit by reversioner for declaration that decree is not binding upon reversioner or upon properties in his possession.

The fraud contemplated by Art. 95 is a fraud practised upon a party to the decree or a party to the transaction in which the fraud was committed. A person entitled to succeed as reversionary heir is not bound to sue for a declaration that a mortgage or a decree based upon it is invalid. It is quite open to him to wait until the succession falls in, and if thereafter anything be done constituting an actual injury to his vested right, e.g.; an attachment or sale, then to pursue his remedy. Where it is alleged that the mortgage-decree obtained by the first defendant in the case was obtained in collusion with the mother of the last owner of the properties (the holder of the life estate) the debt itself being purely fictitious and a declaration was sought for:—

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 95, and that the cause of action arose on the date of the attachment of the property when in plaintiff's (reversioner's) hands. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 288=30 Mad. 402.

——Art. 95—"Knowledge"—Suspicion.

Mere suspicion is not knowledge within the meaning of this article. 37 Cal. 81=14 C.W.N. 101=3 Ind. Cas. 316.

——Art. 95—'Other relief' is not ejusdem generis with 'decree.'

Where the allegations of the plaintiff a bank, clearly amount to an averment of fraud perpetrated by certain persons in collusion with its official duty it was to bring it to the notice of the other officials of the bank that the sums sought to be drawn by them exceeded the amount to the credit of the depositor concerned and who for his own ends concealed that information inducing the other officials of the bank to part with the money which they would not have otherwise paid, the case is governed by Art. 95, the mention of decree in the first part of the article not detracting in any way from the generality of the latter part thereof. 3 Cal. 504, Expl. and foll. 124 Ind. Cas. 180=A.I.R. 1930 All. 573.

——Arts. 95, 29 and 36—"Other relief" not relief ejusdem generis—Suit for damages.

The words "other relief" in Art. 95 do not merely mean relief ejesdem generis with setting aside a decree obtained by fraud, but includes reliefs such as compensation for damages caused by fraud. Where the defendant in collusion with an Amin of the Court fraudulently and without the authority of the court had the court seal placed on the outer door of a warehouse in order to deceive the plaintiffs into the belief that the property of the ware-house had passed to, and remained in the custody of the court, and thereby prevented the plaintiff from taking possession of the perishable goods therein and arresting its deterioration and wastage.

Held, that in the suit by the plaintiff against the defendants for compensation, fraud was the gist of the action and that Art. 95 governed the case; and not 29 or 36. (1903) 27 M. 343.

4. Onus.

——Art. 95—Onus — Suit for relief on ground of fraud—Duty of plaintiff.

The suit was instituted under Art. 95 to set aside a decree obtained by fraud or for relief on the ground of fraud:

Held, that the plaintiff must show that the decree was obtained by fraud. He must show that the summons was fraudulently suppressed and by fraud of the defendant he was kept ignorant of the decree. It is not enough to show mere non-service of summons. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 95=60 C.L.J. 120=154 Ind. Cas. 414.

——Art. 95—Onus of proof.

When a plaintiff sues to cancel or set aside an instrument setting out the facts which entitle him to have that instrument cancelled or set aside and alleging that those facts became known to him at a certain time, it is incumbent on a defendant who pleads that the suit is barred by time to allege and prove a knowledge prior to the period from which time begins to run. 2 N.L.R. 98, Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 625=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 398.

——Art. 95—Sale in collusion between putnidar and benamidar of dhurputnidar (sub-lessee)—Onus—Estoppel.

A dhurputni or under-lease was purchased by A in the name of B benami. The putnidar in collusion with B, the benamidar, obtained a collusive judgment for arrears of rent, brought the holding to sale and purchased it himself. A, the real owner, brought a suit for recovery of possession of the holding from the putnidar purchaser, but after the lapse of three years from the date when he became aware of the fraud.

Held:—That nothing that happened between the putnidar and the benamidar could affect the right of the true owner unless he was estopped from denying the authority of his benamidar to deal with the property: that in the circumstances of this case there was no such estoppel.

Held also:—That the suit was not barred, it not being necessary for the real owner to set the sale aside; and that he was entitled to possession and mesne profits from the date of dispossession. The onus lay upon the defendants to show that the plaintiff cannot succeed without setting aside the decree. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 358=4 A.L.J. 467=9 Bom.L.R. 743=11 C.W.N. 817=34 C. 711=2 M.L.T. 397=6 C.L.J. 17=34 I.A. 138 (P.C.).

——Arts. 95, 62 and 97—Suit for damages for fraud—Onus—Proof of fraud — Suit by assignor against assignee for fraudulent assignment.

In a suit for damages for fraud when it is doubtful at what precise time the fraud became known to the plaintiff, the onus is on the defendant to show that the suit is out of time. A suit for damages by an assignee of a debt against the assignor for having fraudulently assigned the debt when it was not really due to the latter (the assignor) is governed by Art. 95 and not by Art. 62 or 97. The assignee is not bound to assume the truth of the debtor's case or to the non-existence of the debt assigned as soon as the debtor files his written statement in the suit against him on the assigned debt; and time for a suit for damages by the assignee against the assignor for fraudulent assignment, was held to have run in the case from the date of the judgment of the Munsif in the prior suit declaring that the debt was not due to the assignor. (1907) 18 M.L.J. 19=4 M.L.T. 80=31 M. 230.

5. Setting aside.

——Art. 95—Sale under fraudulent decree—Suit for possession—Limitation.

When a person is prima facie bound by a fraudulent decree, he cannot, by suing ostensibly simply for possession, ignore that decree and thereby evade the operation of Art. 95 and where there is such a decree standing in the way of the plaintiff obtaining relief which is inconsistent with that decree, he must first of all bring his suit within the period prescribed by Art. 95 in order to get the decree out of the way.

The am mukhtar of a Hindu widow who was managing certain properties which the widow had dedicated to an idol purposely withheld payment of road cess and purchased the property benami in the name of his brother-in-law in 1912. The widow died in 1916 leaving a will under which the plaintiff's father was appointed shebait of the debutter property. In 1920 the plaintiffs obtained probate and they instituted a suit in 1923 in their capacity as executors of the widow's will and also as shebaits of the property for a declaration of title to the land sold:

Held, that the suit was in substance one in ejectment and not one where the plaintiffs were in substance seeking to set aside some transaction into which either they or their predecessor had been fraudulently induced to enter. The fraud in this case was merely a part of the operation by which the defendants had endeavoured to keep the plaintiffs out of the property which really belonged to them and, therefore, neither part 1 nor part 2 of Art. 95 was applicable to the case. 34 C.W.N. 801=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 69=129 Ind. Cas. 871.

——Arts. 95, 44 and 91—Applicability and scope—Setting aside of decree.

Arts. 95, 44 and 91 of the first Schedule to the Limitation Act do not apply to a suit to have a decree set aside but the article applicable would be 120. 62 Ind. Cas. 794=2 Lah. 164=4 L.L.J. 211=79 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 166.

——Art. 95—Fraudulent decree — Sale under—Setting aside of.

A sale in execution of a fraudulent decree is not void, but voidable. Such a sale cannot be set aside without setting aside the decree. 20 C. W.N. 659=33 Ind. Cas. 767.

——Art. 95—Suit to set aside decree and for possession.

A suit for declaration of plaintiff, raiyats right and for possession after setting aside an ex parte decree is governed by Art. 95, Sch. 1 of the Limitation Act and not by Sch. 3, Art. 3, Bengal Tenancy Act as the setting aside of the ex parte decree is the essential feature of the case. 19 Ind. Cas. 980 (Cal.)

——Art. 95—Suit to set aside decree—Fraud.

Where a decree is passed, it is binding on both the parties whether obtained by fraud or otherwise. Decrees obtained by fraud are not nullity nor are they transactions between parties, they must be set aside before relief is asked for, in another suit. Art. 95 of the Limitation Act applies and is conclusive. 12 M.L.T. 196=(1911) M.W.N. 805=23 M.L.J. 187=16 Ind. Cas 843.

——Art. 95—Setting aside — Collusive decree in compromise—Suit for possession.

A suit for redemption brought by a reversioner after compromise decree had been passed in a suit by the widow on the ground that the compromise was collusive and fraudulent is not barred by Art. 95 of Limitation Act as it was not necessary to sue for the cancellation of the compromise decree. 11 A.L.J. 574=21 Ind. Cas. 605.

6. Starting point.

——Arts. 95 and 120—Applicability — Relief on ground of fraud — Starting point of limitation—Knowledge and suspicion—Difference between.

A suit for relief against the consequences of fraud is governed by the specific Art. 95 and not by the general Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Under Art. 95 limitation begins to run from the date of actual knowledge. The knowledge of fraud means the knowledge of circumstances on which any reasonable man concludes that a fraud has been committed. It may be his conclusion or knowledge further corroborated by additional circumstances known to him subsequently. He cannot however say that he had no knowledge of fraud till the last piece of evidence came to light or till the persons committing the fraud admitted the same. What is required for limitation to start is actual knowledge and not merely suspicion. The difference between a suspicion and a knowledge is the difference in the degree of certainty which a person feels specially when the knowledge relates to something intangible and is necessarily based on inferences. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 985=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 150=1948 N.L.J. 65.

——Art. 95—Suit to set aside decree — Starting point of limitation.

Decree against major treating him as minor is not a nullity—Suit to set aside such decree should be brought within three years of the decree under Art. 95. Time runs from date of decree unless the plaintiff has been fraudulently kept out a knowledge of the decree. 21 P.L.T. 269=6 B.R. 839=(1940) 189 Ind. Cas. 535.

——Art. 95—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for a relief on the ground of fraud is governed by Art. 95 and time begins to run from the date of the knowledge of the fraud. A. I. R. 1935 All. 995=1935 A.W.R. 1189=58 A. 342 =159 Ind. Cas. 977.

——Art. 95—Suit for possession challenging decree on ground of c llusicn on part of guardian ad litem—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit by a person for possession of certain property on the ground that a decree obtained against him during his minority is not binding on him as it was obtained by collusion with the agent of guardian ad litem who had failed to produce material evidence is governed by Art. 95 and the limitation starts from the date of knowledge of the fraud. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 961.

——Art. 95—Starting point.

Where a suit is brought to get a deed cancelled on the ground of fraud and undue influence, the fact must be considered to have been known to the executant from the date of the deed and if brought more than three years from that date the suit cannot be maintained. 15 Cal. 58 (P.C.), Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 806=4 Luck. 270=5 O.W.N. 1062=10 L.R.A. (Rev.) 230=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 67.

——Art. 95—Starting point of limitation—Fraudulent compromise decree—Limitation for suit to set aside.

Under Art 95 of the Limitation Act, the period of limitation for a suit for setting aside a fraudulent compromise decree, is three years from the date of knowledge of such decree. 37 Ind. Cas. 797 (Pat.).

——Art. 95—Starting point of limitation—Sale—Fraud—Limitation.

Where one is induced to purchase property from another having not title there to the period of limitation is 3 years from the discovery of fraud by the plaintiff. 96 P.W.R. 1913=135 P.L.R. 1913 =19 Ind. Cas. 5.

——Art. 95—Starting point of limitation—Ex parte decree.

A suit to set aside ex parte decree after 3 years of the knowledge of fraud, is barred. 47 P.L.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 232.

——Art. 95—Secret commission or bribe to agent paid after transaction completed—Fraud—Rescission of contract—Placing parties back in former position—Starting point, if date of suspicion.

Limitation under Art. 95 ran not from the date when the fraud was first suspected by the plaintiff but when he came to know of it as a fact. A bribe is not the less a bribe because its payment is postponed. Where it was proved that in the course of negotiations resulting, in a lease of plaintiff's land to defendant, the defendant entered into an arrangement with the plaintiff's agent under which the latter expected to be paid an amount by way of bribe or secret commission and the amount was paid after the lease was given:

Held—That it was immaterial to consider what effect the expectation of the payment had on the mind of the agent and whether he was actually influenced thereby to recommend an arrangement which he would not otherwise have recommended. (1878) L. R. Q.B.D. 549; (1899) 1 Q.B. 369, applied. A contract so induced by fraud is only voidable and the remedy by rescission is open only so long as the parties can be restored to the relative positions which they originally occupied. L. R. 3 A.C. 831 (1878), relied on. (1909) 14 C. W.N. 101=37 C. 81=3 Ind. Cas. 316.

——Art. 95—Suit by shebait—Starting point.

Art. 95 is the article applicable to a suit by a shebait to set aside for fraud a decree obtained against his predecessor, and, if the suit is brought within three years of the appointment of plaintiff as shebait, is in time. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 472.

7. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 95—Miscellaneous.

Suit to set aside ex parte decree alleged to have been obtained by fraud—Finding that plaintiff was over 21 at time of suit—Appeal—Court misunderstanding this and holding suit barred as brought three years after attaining majority—Held, appellate judgment could not stand. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 903=171 Ind. Cas. 205.

——Art. 96.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability and scope.
2. Starting point.

1. Applicability and scope.

——Arts. 96 and 62—Applicability.

When the property sold is handed over to the purchaser and later on it is discovered that the transaction is void and the purchaser is evicted from the property, purchaser's suit for recovery of purchase price does not fall under Art. 96 or Art. 62. 47 P.L.R. 122=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 164=221 Ind. Cas. 524.

——Art. 96—Applicability.

Article 96 does not apply to a suit to enforce partition of property excluded from previous partition of joint family properties by fraud of other members as the plaintiff does not ask for any relief on the ground of mistake. That article is intended to apply only to cases where the plaintiff seeks to be relieved of a mistake committed in the course of contractual transactions, such as a suit for rectification of deeds or rescission of contracts. Moreover, Art. 96 does not apply to a suit for possession of immovable property. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 419=45 Bom.L.R. 825=214 Ind. Cas. 273.

——Art. 96—Applicability.

Article 96 cannot be applied to a case in which the plaintiff himself has not been the victim of any mistake. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 742=1941 M.W.N. 484=200 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Arts. 96 and 162—Applicability.

If the facts of a particular case fall within both Art. 62 and Art. 96, Art. 96 must be applied as it is the more specific and the less general of the two articles. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 742=1941 M.W.N. 484=200 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Art. 96—Applicability.

Article 96 applies when the cause of action is founded on mistake. But generally a mistake of law which is applicable to all citizens is not and cannot itself form the basis of a cause of action. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 252=42 Bom.L.R. 491=189 Ind. Cas. 678.

——Art. 96—Applicability and scope.

Where, in a suit upon a mortgage for recovery of money, it is found that the number of a particular item of property was wrongly mentioned in the deed, even if the relief rectified is barred under Art. 96, Limitation Act, the mortgage-deed can be rectified. 47 L.W. 661=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 806=(1938) M.W.N. 499=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 589=176 Ind. Cas. 875.

——Arts. 96, 61 and 120—Applicability.

——Arts. 96 and 120—Suit for rectification of instrument—Article applicable.

A suit for rectification of an instrument on the ground of mutual mistake is provided by S. 31, Specific Relief Act. Such a suit would lie unless it is barred under the provisions of law, e.g. S. 47, C. P. Code. Such a suit is governed by Art. 96 and not by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 39 C.W.N. 966=164 Ind. Cas. 651.

——Arts. 96 and 120—Applicability and scope.

R and N borrowing Rs. 5,000 on pro-note from J and M—J realising amount by draft from R and N—Suit by J and M against R and N for recovery of Rs. 7,700 on basis of pro-note—Payment by defendant alleged to be on another account—Court holding payment to be on account of pro-note but suit decreed in favour of M only for half amount—Decree passed on April 10, 1926—Appeal by M in 1932 and recovering Rs. 1,200—Suit by R and N in April, 1933 against J for Rs. 1,200—Suit held was governed by Art. 96 or 120 and was within time. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 747=168 Ind. Cas. 446.

——Arts. 96 and 62—Applicability and scope—Price of goods supplied under mistake.

A suit for price of goods supplied to the defendant mistaking him for a different person is not governed by Art. 96 but by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 32=27 S.L.R. 81=142 Ind. Cas. 476.

——Arts. 96, 127, 144—Applicability and scope.

A suit for re-adjustment of shares allotted in a previous partition on the basis of mistake is governed by Art. 96 and not by Art. 127 or Art. 144. 34 M.L.W. 262=61 M.L.J. 430=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 707=54 M. 883=135 Ind. Cas. 9.

——Art. 96—Applicability — Family settlement.

Art. 96 is inapplicable where the party seeking relief by a mistake accepted less than what he was entitled to, at a family settlement. An unequal division of an estate if accepted by the claimants of the deceased through mistake cannot be upheld and can be relieved against within the period prescribed by Art. 141. 55 Ind. Cas. 422 (Nag.).

——Art. 96—Applicability—Hundi presented to wrong person.

Presentment of hundi to wrong person who accepted by mistake — Drawee discovering mistake long afterwards — Notice to holder delayed beyond reasonable time—Drawee is disentitled to sue. 91 Ind. Cas. 342=50 Bom. 49=27 Bom. L.R. 1229=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 66.

——Art. 96—Applicability — Mistake in decree—Rectification—Applicability.

Article 96 applies only to suits for relief on the ground of mistake other than that made in a decree but not to a suit to set aside a decree on the ground of mistake. 11 Ind. Cas. 537 (Oudh).

——Art. 96—Mistake in decree.

It cannot be broadly laid down that any error in a decree made by a Court may be challenged by a separate suit. Plaintiff sued for arrears of rent. He claimed ejectment in the course of the trial and the decree gave it. Defendant sued to set aside the decree on the ground of mistake on being unsuccessful in an application for review. Held, that the suit was not maintainable. (1906) 10 C.W.N. 1024.

——Art. 96—Applicability—Mistake in partition.

Where plaintiffs were allotted an area at a partition which fell short of what the plaintiffs were entitled to and the plaintiffs sued for a possession of an area equal to such shortage from a field which was omitted from the partition,

Held that no relief on the ground of mistake such as is contemplated by Art. 96 is claimed and hence the Article does not apply. Art. 96 is intended to apply to those cases in which the Courts are asked to relieve parties from the consequences of mistakes committed by them in the course of contractual transactions, and it is doubtful whether a suit for possession of immovable property or for a declaratory decree with respect to such property comes within the article. 69 Ind. Cas. 501=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 324.

——Art. 96—Applicability—Mistake of law.

Where a mistake is a pure mistake of law in British India and not a mistake bearing upon the private or special right of the person and where such mistake results in the payment by one person to another making it inequitable that the payee should retain the money, such a mistake is no ground of relief within S. 72, Contract Act, or Limitation Act, Art. 96. 114 Ind. Cas. 353=28 M.L.W. 591=1928 M.W.N. 385=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 177=56 M.L.J. 269.

——Arts. 96 and 120—Applicability—Money paid into Court under mistake.

A suit to recover money voluntarily paid into Court by a defendant under the wrong belief that the defendant is liable to pay it on account of costs and wrongly received by the plaintiff from the said Court, falls either under Art. 96 or 120 and not any of the Arts. 29, 62, Limitation Act, 1877. 40 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 654.

——Art. 96—Applicability—Mutual mistake.

Art. 96 is limited in its application to cases of mistake committed in transaction arising in the course of relations which are more or less contractual in character and the Article in any event has no application to a case where there is no question of mistake on the part of the plaintiff. 101 Ind. Cas. 82=31 C.W.N. 82=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 117.

——Art. 96—Not applicable to suit by assignee of reversioner to recover immoveable property. See ART. 141. 8 C.W.N. 802.

2. Starting point.

——Art. 96—Applicability — Mistake in the sale held in execution—Claim by auction-purchaser for return of the purchase money—Limitation.

In execution of an award in favour of a Co-operative Society a house was brought to sale. A reversioner of the last male holder of the property put in a claim petition which was dismissed. He filed a suit and succeeded in it on 31st March, 1938. An appeal to the District Court was dismissed on 4th April, 1941; and the widow of the last male holder obtained possession from the auction-purchaser on 7th April, 1943. The auction-purchaser filed a suit on 23rd January, 1944, for the return of the purchase money. On a question of limitation, Held, (i) Art. 96 and not Art. 97 of the Limitation Act applied to the case. (ii) Time began to run from 31st March, 1938, the date of the decree of the trial Court and not of the appellate decree. 1946 M.W.N. 625=59 L.W. 523=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 90=230 Ind. Cas. 233=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 231.

——Art. 96—Suit to set aside execution sale — Starting point of limitation.

Where the auction-purchaser files a suit claiming refund of money paid to the decree-holder, putting forward as the basis of his claim a discovery which he has made that the property which he purchased was one in which the judgment-debtor had no interest, by a decision in favour of a claimant of such property, the suit is governed by Art. 96. It is necessary in such cases, that the plaintiff should assert; though not explicitly, that there was mistake, and limitation runs from the date of the final adjudication in favour of the claimant. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 742 =1941 M.W.N. 484=200 Ind. Cas. 722.

——Art. 96—Starting point of limitation.

Limitation for a suit for rectification of deed on ground of mutual mistake runs from the date of the notice of the mistake. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 321=42 Bom. L.R. 605=I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 605=192 Ind. Cas. 109.

——Art. 96—Money paid under void agreement—Starting point.

The period of limitation for a suit for refund of advance paid under a void agreement is three years from the date when the agreement is discovered to be void and ordinarily the time from which limitation will start is the date of the agreement in the absence of special circumstances. When the agreement is one forbidden by law, the plaintiff must be deemed to have been aware of the fact when he entered into it. 88 Ind. Cas. 557 1925 M.W.N. 400=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 885=48 M.L.J. 598.

——Art. 96—Mistake or concealment of fact—Starting point.

A sold bales of cloth to B. B sold the same to C and C to D. D found that the bales contained less number of pieces than paid for. Intermediate sellers and purchasers did not know that the contents were short.

Held, that D's suit against C for price of shortage will be governed by Art. 96 and time began to run when D knew the mistake; because in all cases where something turns upon a mistake or concealment of fact by the fraud or deceit of the other side, the time from which limitation must be taken to run is always the time when it was brought to the plaintiff's knowledge that there had been a mistake or a fraud. 91 Ind. Cas. 151=48 Mad. 925=22 M.L.W. 341 =1925 M.W.N. 688=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1255=49 M.L.J. 228.

——Art. 96—Money paid under mistake—Starting point.

Article 96 should be preferred to Art. 62 in a suit to recover money paid by the plaintiff to the defendant by mistake in excess of the amount legally due. In cases where the relief is based on mistake the period of limitation should run from the time when the mistake was first discovered even if some other article in the Limitation Act, should be wide enough to include the cause of action. 93 Ind. Cas. 129= 7 P.L.T. 431=4 Pat. 448=1925 P.H.C.C. 345= A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 765.

——Art. 96—Mistake of fact—Pre-emption money —Payment by mistake to one of several vendees—Suit for recovery—Starting point.

The plaintiff impleaded in the pre-emption suit one of the vendees, who realised the entire pre-emption money, under a mistake of fact that he alone was the vendee, and the pre-emptor's claim for mutation after formal possession was resisted by the rest of the vendees on the ground that they were not impleaded in the pre-emption suit; on the suit of the pre-emptor for the possession of the property released in favour of the vendees not impleaded in the pre-emption suit or in the alternative for the proportionate refund of the consideration,

Held, the cause of action arose when the pre-emptor's claim for mutation was resisted, i.e., when the consideration failed or when the mistake of fact was discovered. A.I.R. 1922 All. 475.

——Art. 96—Applicability—Starting point.

Where in a partition a mortgage supposed by mistake by the parties to be alive and valid was assigned to plaintiff: and plaintiff sued on the mortgage but both the Trial Court and the appellate Court held that the money had already been paid off,

Held, that Art. 96 applied to plaintiff's suit for recovering the loss.

But time began to run from the decree of the Trial Court and not that of the appellate Court. 46 Cal. 670 (P.C.), Foll. 61 Ind. Cas. 34=45 Bom. 582 =23 Bom. L.R. 69=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 184.

——Art. 96—Mistake in lease—Suit for rectification—Limitation.

A suit for amendment or rectification of a mistake in a lease by both the parties must be brought within three years from the date of his knowledges of the mistake. 48 Ind. Cas. 972 (Cal.).

——Art. 96—Starting point—Suit by creditor for setting aside discharge.

A suit by a creditor for setting aside a discharge made by him on the ground of mistake is governed by Art. 96. Where the mistake is as to the belief of a party that a third person is liable the mistake must be taken as discovered when the third person repudiates his liability and communicates such repudiation either to the party or to his partner. Where a right of action is in two or more partners and one of them discovers the mistake by reason of which a contract (in respect of which relief has been sought) has been entered into by another of the partners on behalf of the partnership, the period of limitation prescribed by Art. 96 will begin to run from the date of such discovery notwithstanding that the latter partner chooses to persist in his mistake even after the mistake is pointed out to him by the other. (1903) 14 M.L.J. 443.

——Art. 96—Starting point—Mukhi, appointment of—Right to nominate, claimed by villagers; but liability to pay his salary not denied—Suit by the chief who has paid the salary against the villagers.

Where the inhabitants of a village were by custom bound to pay the salary of a mukhi and never denied their liability, but only claimed to nominate him, the cause of action of any person who had paid the mukhi not so nominated to be reimbursed by the villagers arose when it was finally decided that the villagers had no right to nominate. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 264.

——Arts. 97, 115 and 62—Applicability.

Certain property under the management of the Court of Wards was put up for sale by auction on November 21, 1937. The highest bid was made by P who put down a sum of Rs. 1,000 in part payment of the price. Under the terms of the sale, the payment of the full amount was to be completed by a certain date failing which the money put down in part payment was to be forfeited. P failed to comply with this term and the property was put up for sale by auction on January 30, 1938. P was again the highest bidder and this time he put down a sum of Rs. 2,250 in part payment. Again he failed to complete the payment by the proper date but this time he obtained an extension of the period originally fixed for completion of the contract of sale. In the end, however, he failed to complete his part of the bargain and the sale fell through. On March 31, 1941, P brought a suit against the Court of Wards and the auctioneers through whom the property was sold for return of money paid by him towards the purchase price:

Held, that Art. 97 could not be applied as the money paid in advance under a contract of sale could not be regarded as money paid upon an existing contract as opposed to any other kind of consideration.

It would be safer to give a wide construction to the word "compensation" in Art. 115 rather than to put a somewhat artificial construction upon the word "received" in Art. 62, though it was quite possible that the view that Art. 62 applies with effect from the date when the nature of money in the defendant's hands changes, was the correct view. Whichever view be adopted, any claim of P for the return of money paid on November 21 was barred. P knew before the second sale took place that his payment had been treated as forfeited and that he was in a position to sue for the return of his money, the first sale having obviously fallen through. So far as the second payment was concerned, P could have no cause of action for the return of his money until the time for completing the payment was out and the Court of Wards had definitely refused either to confirm the sale or to return the money and this would bring the suit within limitation. 47 P.L.R. 174=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 210.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope.

Article 97 can apply only to cases in which there is a consideration existing at one stage but fails, subsequently. 1943 A.W.R. 122=A.I.R. 1943 All. 294=(1943) A.L.J. 250=I.L.R. (1943) All. 604=209 Ind. Cas. 10.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope.

Article 97 does not make the cause of failure of consideration material to its application and, it should be applied in cases when the failure of consideration is attributable to omission on the part of plaintiff. This article governs the suit by buyer for return of part consideration in a contract of sale which he had improperly declined to complete. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 37=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 495=199 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 97—Applicability—Starting point of limitation.

By a document dated June 16, 1933, a Muhammadan transferred some land to his wife in lieu of the amount of dower money due to her. He promised in the document to get a mutation attested in her favour. He however failed to get the document registered and to have a mutation duly attested. He died in 1934. On May 15, 1936, a mutation was entered to give effect to the document of June 16, 1923. On December 6, 1926, the document was shown to the Revenue Officer, the step-sons of the widow objected to the attestation of the mutation and it was, therefore, rejected. On October 18, 1938, the widow brought a suit against her step sons for possession of the land, and asked in the alternative for recovery of Rs. 2,000, her dower money.

Held, that the transfer of the land to the woman was perfectly valid to begin with and hence Art. 97, applied to the suit as the husband might have registered the document and got a mutation attested. The cause of action accrued to the plaintiff when the mutation was rejected. The suit was, therefore, within time. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 57=195 Ind. Cas. 844.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope.

Claim for damages based on negligence of the vendor is not governed by Art. 97, but by Art. 36. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 564=187 Ind. Cas. 742.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope—Suit for refund of money wrongly paid—Article applicable—Limitation, when begins to run.

The plaintiffs who were the representatives in interest of the mortgagors advanced Rs. 400 to defendants who succeeded to a share of the mortgagee rights, in order to redeem the mortgage. The money was received and defendants executed a deed of reconveyance of the mortgaged property in consideration of the payment of the mortgage money made to them. L who had acquired an interest in the mortgagees' interest sued for foreclosure. The plaintiffs pleaded that they had already paid Rs. 400 to defendants and had redeemed the mortgage. This plea was not accepted and it was held that the payment had been wrongly made to the defendants. The decree for foreclosure was passed on September 27, 1928, and in consequence of this decree, the plaintiffs had to pay a sum of Rs. 471-11-3 to L on February 22, 1929, for the purpose of redeeming the mortgage. Plaintiffs filed a suit for recovering the sum of Rs. 400 with interest which had been wrongly paid to defendants:

Held, that Art. 97, applied and the period of three years ran from September 27, 1928, which was the date of the foreclosure decree. As soon as it had been decided by the foreclosure decree that the defendants wrongly received the money, it would have been open to the plaintiffs to institute a suit to recover the money wrongly paid even before they had been compelled to make a second payment of the money to L. Article 116 did not apply as the suit was not framed as a suit for compensation for the breach of any covenant. Nor did Art. 120 apply to the case. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 378=11 Luck. 110=1935 O.W.N. 549=155 Ind. Cas. 299.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Applicability and scope.

The difference between Art. 116 and Art. 97 has nothing whatever to do with the form of the contract. It has rather to do with the question of the date of the failure of consideration and it is quite immaterial in discussing whether Art. 97 or Art. 116 applies, to ascertain whether the contract was effected by means of a registered instrument or not. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 148=13 Pat. 192=150 Ind. Cas. 975.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope.

Article 97, applies when the plaintiff says the contract is still good and subsisting and an event contemplated by the contracting parties has happened, that is to say, the possible further inability of the plaintiff to enjoy the property, and the plaintiff relies upon the express or implied contract on the part of the defendant that on the happening of such circumstances, the defendant will pay back the money which he has already received.

Where the plaintiffs have sought by way of damages, for the recovery of Rs. 1,500 paid on deposit with interest but that which gave them a right to call for that payment is the allegation that there was a contract to place the plaintiffs in possession, that it was a good and valid contract which the defendants had broken (the contract to put them in possession) and, therefore, they are entitled to a return of the money. Article 97, does not apply. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 148=13 Pat. 192=150 Ind. Cas. 975.

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope—Refund of consideration.

A suit for refund of consideration is not one for breach of contract and is governed either by Art. 62 or by Art. 97 according as to whether the contract is void or voidable and Art. 116 is not applicable. 34 P.L.R. 96=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 581=145 Ind. Cas. 186

——Art. 97—Applicability and scope — Suit for refund of purchase money.

Where a person is entitled to sue for specific performance he can also sue for refund of purchase money whether it has been paid in cash or set off against debts due by the seller. The starting point in such cases is from the date of payment or set-off and Art. 97 applies to the case. 70 Ind. Cas. 121=11 L.B.R. 437=1 Bur.L.J. 198=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 87.

——Art. 97—Applicability.

Art. 97 properly applies to a case for recovery of money paid under an existing consideration which has subsequently failed. (1917) M.W.N. 585=6 L.W. 401=33 M.L.J. 577=42 Ind. Cas. 519.

——Arts. 97, 115 and 120—Applicability—Suit for declaration that decree has been adjusted—Limitation—Cause of action.

Where a decree has been adjusted out of Court a suit for declaring that the decree has been satisfied and not capable of execution is maintainable, the cause of action arising from the date of adjustment or payment and the suit is governed by Arts. 97, 115, and 120 of the Limitation Act. 190 P.W.R. 1913=330 P.L.R. 1913=21 Ind. Cas. 557.

2. Presentation of appeal.

——Art. 97—Presentation of appeal.

Under the Indian Law and procedure an original decree is not suspended by presentation of an appeal nor is its operation interrupted where the decree on appeal is one of dismissal and, therefore, the time from which the period of limitation ought to be counted is the date of the decree of the first Court. A.I.R. 1918 P.C. 151, Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 457=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 134.

——Art. 97—Suspension of limitation—Presentation of appeal.

Per Spencer and Devadoss, JJ.—When an appeal to superior Court only results in the decree appealed against being confirmed, in India there is no interruption in running of time calculated from the date of the original decree. 74 Ind. Cas. 416=17 M.L.W. 254=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 392.

——Art. 97—Presentation of appeal.

Where owing to the defective title of the vendor the vendee is dispossessed under a decree, the limitation for suit for damages for breach of covenant begins from the date of the decree, although there is appeal and second appeal from the decree. 60 Ind. Cas. 235=11 M.L.W. 537=27 M.L.T. 304=39 M.L.J. 449.

3. Refund—Limitation.

(a) Defect in title.

——Arts. 97, 116—Suit for compensation—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for compensation for breach of covenant of of title in respect of a registered sale-deed is governed by Art. 97 read with Art. 116. In such a case the vendee has six years to sue from date of decree of the first Court wherein the defect in the title of the vendor was found, and the running of limitation is not postponed till the date of the final decree. (1932) M.W.N. 1111=A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 382=144 Ind. Cas. 726.

——Art. 97—Defect in title — Starting point of limitation.

The plaintiff purchased a decree. It was set aside for fraud in a fresh suit. The decree setting it aside was reversed by the District Judge in appeal but was confirmed by the High Court in second appeal. A suit for refund of the price on the ground of failure of consideration was filed more than six years after the first Court's decree setting aside the decree which had been purchased, but within three years of the High Court's judgment:

Held, that time began to run only from the date of the decree of the High Court and the suit was not time-barred. A.I.R. 1931 All. 651=53 A. 914 =133 Ind. Cas. 415.

——Art. 97—Defect in title—Refund of purchase-money.

If there is covenant express or implied indemnifying party suffering against loss caused by defect in title of the executant of document Art. 116 applies, otherwise, Art. 97. Such covenant may be express or implied. A.I.R. 1930 All. 785.

——Art. 97—Defect in title — Relinquishment of rights—Failure of deed to take effect—Claim for refund of price.

The plaintiff paid a sum of money to the defendants for the consideration of the defendant relinquishing certain rights. The deed of relinquishment subsequently failed because the defendants' sons sued for a declaration that the deed was invalid and succeeded. A suit having been brought for recovery of money paid,

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 62 or 97 and not by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. 1930 A.L.J. 1112=A.I.R. 1930 All. 785.

——Art. 97—No title in vendor—Starting point.

A plaintiff purchased some property. There had been a previous deed of gift but the deed of transfer recited that it was a nullity, which meant that the vendor was able to give a good title, but it turned out that he was not. The plaintiff filed a suit for possession and succeeded in the lower Court but on appeal he lost his suit.

Held, that Art. 97 applied and that the three years' period began to run from the date of the failure of the suit. 19 Cal. 123 (P.C.). Foll. 103 Ind. Cas. 385=A.I.R. 1927 All. 756.

——Art. 97—Failure of title in vendor—Starting point.

When after payment of the purchase money to the vendor, the vendor was unable to give title and the purchaser found himself unable to obtain possession.

Held, that from the time when he found himself unable to obtain possession, he had a right to sue for his purchase-money upon a failure of consideration and that the case fell within Art. 97 and that in any case it must fall either within Art. 97 or 62. 19 Cal. 123 (P.C.) and 30 All. 402 and 38 Mad. 1171, Foll. 103 Ind. Cas. 165=25 A.L.J. 841 =A.I.R. 1927 All. 734.

——Art. 97—Defect in title — Sale of land—Suit for recovery of purchase money—Limitation.

Where the plaintiff vendee compromises an adverse claim to the property sold by payment of money, the cause of action for refund of the purchase-money as on failure of consideration arises on the date of payment. 38 M. 887, Foll. 50 Ind. Cas. 815 (Mad.).

——Art. 97—Defect in title—Misrepresentative—Registered sale.

A claim for damages based on misrepresentation by a vendor that he had a title to convey must be brought within three years from the time when the want of title was established by a decree of Court. 50 Ind. Cas. 673 (Mad.).

——Art. 97—Defect in title—Sale of land—Vendor not entitled to a portion of the land sold—Vendee's suit for damages in respect of such portion—Starting point of limitation.

Plaintiff purchased a house from defendants 1 and 2 in 1880. To recover possession of the same he had to file a suit against defendants in 1892 in which it was decided that plaintiff's vendors were entitled to two thirds of the house sold. The plaintiff was thereafter put into possession of that portion only of the house. In 1899 be filed another suit in which he claimed damages from defendants 1 and 2 on account of his being deprived of the one-third of the house.—Held, that, viewing the claim as one to recover money upon an existing consideration that afterwards failed, the plaintiff's suit was barred, since limitation commenced to run from the time when the plaintiff endeavoured to obtain possession of the property and, being opposed, found himself unable to obtain possession. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 571=26 B. 750.

(b) Dispossession of vendee.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee.

Indemnity bond—Sale by father of minor son—Indemnity bond by third person promising to indemnify the purchaser in case the son on attaining majority were to dispute sale—Some years after attaining majority son instituting suit challenging alienation—Suit decreed—Possession delivered to plaintiff—Suit by vendee against sons of indemnifier (he being dead) on indemnity bond:

Held, that Art. 97 and not Art. 62, applied and the cause of action arose only on the disturbance of possession. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 645=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 211=1944 M.W.N. 350=I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 663=216 Ind. Cas. 120.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Dispossession of vendee.

A house was sold with its site on November 15, 1920, without apprising the vendee of the fact that the permission of both the co-sharers of the village in which the site stood was essential as the house stood in joint patti of the village. The vendee pulled down the house and erected another. The lambardar of the patti in which the house stood sued for possession of the site in 1925 and got a decree. Vendee consequently brought a suit in 1928 claiming return of price and reimbursement of the money spent in building the new house and the costs which he had incurred in defending his title:

Held, that the cause of action did not begin to run from the date of the sale but from the date when it became clear that the sale was voidable at the instance of the lambardar.

Held further that the suit was governed not by Art. 97 but by Art. 116 and was not, therefore, time-barred. A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 3=137 Ind. Cas. 61.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee—Refund of consideration.

A sold certain property to B under a registered sale-deed in July 1920, and put B in possession. In 1923 B's sub-purchaser were dispossessed by a person claiming adverse title. In a suit by B against his sub-purchasers it was decided in September, 1926, that A had no title. B sued A for refund of the purchase-money in 1926:

Held, (i) that the suit was governed by Art. 116, and was not time-barred as it was instituted within six years of the date of the decree passed in September, 1926;

(ii) that even if the cause of action arose on the date of dispossession, the suit was not barred. 25 S.L.R. 173=A.I.R. 1931 Sind 141=133 Ind. Cas. 76.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee — Starting point—Breach of covenant for title.

Held, that assuming Art. 97 will apply to a suit by a vendee for recovering damages on the breach of covenant for title, limitation will commence to run from the date of the total failure of consideration, namely, the date on which the plaintiff was actually dispossessed by the third person. 124 Ind. Cas. 185 =1930 A.L.J. 653=A.I.R. 1930 All. 771.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee — Sale set aside on condition of payment—Suit for balance—Starting point.

Plaintiffs purchased a certain property from a Hindu father and the sale was subsequently cancelled in a suit by the sons to set it aside on their depositing a certain sum in Court. Plaintiffs sued the sons of vendor, for the balance of the purchase-money.

Held, that the suit is not barred by the principles of res judicata as money paid to the father as consideration for the sale at the time of the sale cannot be regarded as a debt of the father until the sale had been set aside and the right of the vendee to get back the sale consideration from the father has accrued. And that the decree in the son's suit became operative only at the date of deposit and the period of limitation under Art. 97 would run from that date and not from the date of the passing of the decree. 39 All. 485, Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 745 =A.I.R. 1927 All. 421.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee.

Where an alienation was made by a purchaser from a widow pending declaratory suit against the alienation by the reversioners, and in the sale-deed the alienor expressly stipulated for refund of purchase-money and damages and the reversioners got the declaration sought for and long afterwards when the widow died, they sued and recovered possession of the properties.

Held, that Art. 97 did not apply and that limitation did not commence to run till the vendees were actually dispossessed and from the date of dispossession the suit was admittedly within time. 105 Ind. Cas. 804=9 L.L.J. 468=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 570.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee.

Where the transferee of a service inam who is dispossessed by the vendor's successor-in-office, sues for recovery of the purchase money, Art. 97 applies to the suit, such transfer not being ab initio void but being valid during the continuance in office of the vendor. 86 Ind. Cas. 755=22 M.L.W. 126=1925 M.W.N. 101=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 749=48 M.L.J. 217.

——Art. 97—Dispossession from part of property.

Under a compromise which was incorporated in a decree of Court, the plaintiffs were to become the owners of certain parcels of property on payment of a sum of money to the defendant. They paid this money but on the 24th July, 1919, they were dispossessed from part of the property; the plaintiffs sued to recover the money they paid for the property in suit alleging that the existing consideration failed within the meaning of Art. 97 of the Indian Limitation Act.

Held, that the plaintiffs being in possession of some portion of the property transferred to them by the defendant under the compromise, there was no failure of consideration within Art. 97. 80 Ind. Cas. 81=11 O.L.J. 323=27 O.C. 348=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 377.

——Art. 97—Failure of title in vendor—Dispossession—Starting point.

Where actual possession of the property purchased had been given and been enjoyed for a number of years, and thereafter the sale is set aside by a decree for want of title in the vendor, and the purchaser is dispossessed, the starting point of limitation for a suit for refund of the purchase-money must be (at all events in the case of a sale not ab initio voidable) the date of dispossession and not the date of the decree. 70 Ind. Cas. 787=16 M.L.W. 684= 1922 M.W.N. 634=32 M.L.T. 3=46 Mad. 40= A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 46=43 M.L.J. 721.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee — Starting point.

A sale-deed contained a clause that if the minor nephew of the vendor on attaining majority raised any objection to the sale of his share the vendor would make over to the vendee an equal area out of his own land. Mutation of the minor's share of the land was refused in 1907; plaintiff sued for declaration that he was owner of the whole land purchased by him. His suit was dismissed, so far as the minor's share was concerned, in 1911. In 1917 the minor, having attained majority mortgaged his share to one G. who dispossessed the plaintiff from the land in 1919. Plaintiff brought a suit to enforce the indemnity clause contained in his deed of sale in the alternative for Rs. 1,000 being the value of the minor's share.

As regards the claim for recovery of the purchase-money, it was governed either by Art. 62 or 97 of the Limitation Act. If the claim was governed by Art. 62 it was barred by time inasmuch as limitation began to run from the date of the sale. If the claim was governed by Art. 97, it was equally barred by time, inasmuch as limitation began to run when the plaintiff's title was first denied in 1907 or at the latest when it was declared in 1911 that he had no title. 62 Ind. Cas. 953 (Lah.).

——Art. 97—Vendee subsequently ousted by third party—Applicability—Starting point.

Plaintiffs bought land under a registered deed and were put in possession. The land was leased to a tenant who subsequently set up his own title to the land and his claim was also embodied in a final decree of the Court. Plaintiffs then filed a suit against their vendor for the recovery of the purchase-money, etc.,

Held, that Art. 116 and not 97 applied and time began to run only when the tenant obtained the decree supporting his own title to the land.

A distinction should be made between cases where from the inception the vendor had no title to convey and the vendee has not been put in possession of the property, and other cases where the sale is only voidable on the objection of third parties and possession is taken under the sale. It is only in the first class of cases that the starting point of limitation will be the date of a sale. Case-law discussed. 61 Ind. Cas. 70=45 Bom. 955=23 Bom. L.R. 325=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 252.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee — Starting point—Failure of consideration.

Consideration for a sale fails from the moment the vendee with defective title is dispossessed by a true owner. 135 P.L.R. 1913=96 P.W.R. 1918=19 Ind. Cas. 5.

——Arts. 97 and 62—Dispossession of vendee — Suit for recovery of purchase money—Limitation.

A vendee's possession under purchase is an existing consideration so long as such possession lasts and limitation commences only from the time when he is dispossessed. Art. 97 and not 62 applies for recovery of the purchase-money. 55 Ind. Cas. 93 (Nag.).

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee — Suit to recover purchase money.

Where under a contract of sale the vendee was given possession of the property sold and on being subsequently dispossessed sued to recover damages for the loss sustained by dispossession. Held, that as possession had been given under the contract of sale, the sale was not void ab initio and the plaintiff could recover his purchase-money in a suit under Art. 97. 31 M. 452; 14 M.L.T 524; 38 M. 887; 24 M. 27, 26 A. 519; 31 A. 68, foll. 19 M.L.T. 163=32 Ind. Cas. 176.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Dispossession of vendee—Covenant for title—Covenant for quiet enjoyment—Breach—Sale of land—Suit for damages—Limitation.

Owing to a defeat in the title of the vendor, the original sale having been by a widow, a suit was brought against the vendee and a decree was obtained on 30th March, 1911 and this decree was upheld by the High Court finally on 7th October 1914. The vendee had been dispossessed in execution of the decree of the 1st Court on 29th November, 1911; and he brought his suit for damages for breach of covenants on 16th October, 1917. Held, that the cause of action for breach of the covenant for title arose on the date of the decree of the 1st Court on 30th March, 1911. 46 Cal. 670, foll. The breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment was broken only on the date of dispossession of the vendee and the suit viewed as one for damages for breach of that covenant was not barred. 11 L.W. 537=27 M.L.T. 304=60 Ind. Cas. 235=39 M.L.J. 449.

——Arts. 97, 116—Breach of covenant—Dispossession of the vendee—Return of sale consideration—Registered sale-deed.

A sale deed set out that the porperty sold was unencumbered and there was a covenant that if the vendee was dispossessed from any portion of the property, the vendors would repay a proportionate part of the sale price. The vendee was dispossessed from a portion of the property by a prior incumbrancer. Held, that Art. 116 and not 97, governed the suit and the suit could be brought within 6 years from the date of possession. 5 A.L.J. 410; 26 B. 750. (1908) 5 A.L.J. 484=1908 A.W.N. 185=30 A. 405 (N.).

——Art. 97—Sales mutual—Dispossession of one by creditor of other—Suit for money.

Two persons mutually conveyed land to each other, the one being consideration for the other. One of them the plaintiff, was disposed of the lands conveyed to him in execution of a decree obtained against the other party by reason of that other party having been in possession somehow of the properties conveyed to plaintiff. Held, the plaintiff was entitled to recover the loss sustained by him as money paid upon an existing consideration which afterwards failed. (1905) 8 Bom.L.R. 283.

——Art. 97—Dispossession of vendee—Suit on covenant in sale deed for repayment of consideration money after ouster of vendee — Terminus a quo.

A suit by the vendee of immoveable property upon a covenant in the sale-deed to indemnify him in the event of disturbance of possession is not barred by limitation if brought within three years of the disturbance or ouster though long after 3 years from the date of a decree for possession in virtue of which the possession was disturbed. 1904 A.W.N. 92=26 A. 519=1 A.L.J. 231.

(c) Excess payment.

——Art. 97—Applicability.

A suit by the judgment-debtor to recover the amount realised by the decree-holder in excess is governed by Art. 115 or 120 and not by Art. 97. 33 P.L.R. 1084=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 112=140 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Art. 97—Excess payment.

After a preliminary decree on a mortgage a Mahomedan mortgagee died. The judgment-debtor agreed with one of his co-heirs and paying a certain sum of money obtained a discharge. The other heirs got a final decree and it was held that out of the sum paid, the amount representing the payee's share, should be considered as having been paid towards the satisfaction of the decree. In execution money was paid. After five years the judgment-debtor applied for refund of the amount paid in excess of the decretal amount. Held, that the application was barred, as time began to run from the date of decree, the cause of action being to recover the sum paid in excess as on failure of consideration. 15 A.L.J. 57=38 Ind. Cas. 601.

(d) Execution sale—Failure of consideration.

——Art. 97—Applicability. See EXECUTION SALE. (1949) 1 M.L.J. 449=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 638.

——Art. 97—Applicability — Court sale—Rateable distribution of purchase money—Declaration in suit by third party that judgment-debtor had no saleable interest—Suit by purchaser for refund of money paid out—Limitation. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 120. 228 Ind. Cas. 479=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 129.

——Art. 97—Failure of consideration in execution sale.

Where an execution sale is confirmed and the objections to the sale are subsequently allowed and also confirmed in revision, a suit by the auction-purchaser for recovery of the purchase price on failure of consideration for sale, falls under Art. 97, and not under Art. 62, and the cause of action arises either from the date of the order allowing the objetcions or from the date of the order in revision confirming the objections. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 41=194 Ind. Cas. 565.

——Art. 97—Execution sale—Failure of consideration—Suit by auction-purchaser for refund of consideration.

Where an auction-purchaser loses a portion of the property in consequence of a suit by a third party, his suit for refund of purchase-money is governed either by Art. 97 or by Art. 68 and not by Art. 120. 1937 O.W.N. 83=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 286=13 Luck. 138=166 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 97—Execution sale—Failure of consideration—Refund of consideration.

A suit by an auction-purchaser for refund of purchase money it being found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property, is governed by either Art. 62 or Art. 97 and not Art. 120. 1937 O.W.N. 83=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 286=13 Luck. 138=166 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 97—Execution sale—Failure of consideration—Mortgage — Decree and sale—Suit to set aside—Suit to recover consideration.

In a suit on mortgage, mortgagor admitted the loan and decree was passed. The property was sold in execution and was ultimately purchased by mortgagee. A suit was then filed by a person claiming the property and alleging that the mortgage was not binding on him. His suit was decreed and the mortgagee was dispossessed. The mortgagee then sued for the amount of consideration.

Held, that cause of action arose on the day the suit challenging the mortgage was decreed and the mortgagee was dispossessed. 101 Ind. Cas. 414=5 Rang. 283=54 I.A. 145=29 Bom.L.R. 863=31 C.W.N. 830=4 O.W.N. 517=1927 M.W.N. 489=26 M.L.W. 429=25 A.L.J. 918=46 C.L.J. 344=9 P.L.T. 21=A.I.R. 1927 P.C. 99=52 M.L.J. 579 (P.C.).

——Art. 97—Execution sale—Failure of consideration—Auction-purchaser's suit — Suit to recover purchase-money on setting aside sale.

Where after an auction sale the judgment-debtor is declared to have no saleable interest in the property sold by a decree of Court, limitation for a suit to recover purchase-money begins from the date of such a decree and not from the date when purchaser was deprived of the possession of property purchased. 40 Cal. 187 and 46 cal. 676 (P.C.) Foll

Quaere, whether Limitation Act, Art. 97 applies to such a suit. 91 Ind. Cas. 768=30 C.W.N. 79=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 297.

——Art. 97—Execution sale—Failure of consideration—Dispossession—Patni sale—Setting aside — Suit by dispossessed purchaser for recovery of money limitation.

The purchaser at a patni sale paid the money into Court, and the decree holder drew it out of Court. The sale was subsequently set aside in a suit and the decree was affirmed on appeal. On the consequent dispossession of the purchaser, the purchaser sued for recovery of the money from the decree-holder. Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 62 rather than Art. 97 and the starting point of limitation was the decree of the first Court. 17 A.L.J. 514=46 C. 670=36 M.L.J. 557=23 C.W.N. 721=21 Bom.L.R. 632=(1919) M.W.N. 258=30 C.L.J. 71=26 M.L.T. 131=10 L.W. 414=50 Ind. (e) Failure of agreement to perform.

——Art. 97—Consideration fails, meaning of — Limitation—Starting point.

Where it is agreed between the creditor and the manager of an estate who was in the habit of borrowing money from the creditor that the balance due to creditor should be treated as an advance for the supply of tea from the estate for a period of three years to the creditor but the agreement is subsequently repudiated and the creditor claims the amount agreed to be treated as advance, the creditor is not entitled to recover the money till the consideration failed by reason of the repudiation of the agreement, and a suit brought within three years of the date of repudiation is in time. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 966=(1938) M.W.N. 1023=48 M.L.W. 666=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 688=182 Ind. Cas. 929.

——Art. 97—Contract of sale becoming impossible of performance—Starting point.

In a certain contract for the sale of property the vendor was to satisfy certain conditions before completion of the contract, but no time was specified for it. The vendor mortgaged the property to another and afterwards it was sold in satisfaction of that mortgage. The purchaser then sued for recovery of deposit money.

Held, that the purchaser need not have sued within a reasonable time. It was Art. 97 and not 60 nor 115, that governed such a case, and time was to be counted since when the property was sold in satisfaction of the mortgage because it was, then that the contract, having become impossible of performance ended. 117 Ind. Cas. 700=33 C.W.N. 115=56 Cal. 455=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 216.

——Art. 97—Failure agreement to perform.

In September, 1908, defendant No. 1 contracted with the plaintiff for a certain price to procure from defendant No. 2 a reconveyance of certain property to the plaintiff. In November, 1908, defendant No. 2 conveyed the property to V. In January, 1912, the plaintiff sued to recover the consideration money from defendant No. 1. Held, that even applying Art. 97 to the case, the suit was time-barred. 41 Bom. 31=18 Bom.L.R. 806=36 Ind. Cas. 613.

——Art. 97—Contract—Sale of land—Consideration—Date of failure—Limitation.

The plaintiff paid off the liabilities of the defendants on certain mortgaged lands under contracts whereby the defendants agreed to convey to him within a month the mortgaged properties. Plaintiff brought two suits alleging that the defendants did not execute the sale deeds within the stipulated time, and claimed rescission of the said contracts and a refund of the earnest money with interest. Both courts in India held that time was not essence of the contract and dismissed the suits. The plaintiff subsequently brought two suits for specific performance of the said contracts, or, in the alternative, for a refund interest. The High Court held that specific performance could not be decreed, because the terms of the contracts could not be ascertained but decreed a refund with interest, holding that Art. 97 applied to the case and that the consideration failed from the date of the judgment, pronouncing that the contracts were not legally enforceable and consequently the claim for refund was not barred by limitation. Held, that the decision of the High Court was right. 31 All. 68=36 I.A. 44=9 C.L.J. 512=11 Bom.L.R. 525 =19 M.L.J. 295=6 M.L.T. 89=1 Ind. Cas. 890 (P. C.).

——Art. 97—Agreement to sell—Suit for specific performance—Agreement declared unenforceable—Alternative claim for refund of consideration paid thereunder.

The defendants, against whom a decree for foreclosure was outstanding, agreed to sell certain immoveable property to the plaintiff and the plaintiff paid into Court as part of the consideration the amount due by the defendants under the foreclosure decree. The defendants neither executed a conveyance of the property which they had agreed to sell nor did they return to the plaintiff the money. Plaintiff thereupon sued the defendant, claiming in the alternative either a decree for the specific performance of the agreement to sell or a refund of the money paid by him as part of the consideration for the sale agreed upon. The court of first instance gave the plaintiff a decree for specific performance. On appeal by the defendants it was held by the High Court (1) that the terms of the agreement to sell not having been satifactorily proved, no decree for specific permormance could be but (2) that the plaintiff was entitled to get back the money which he had paid under the agreement; (3), that the plaintiff's alternative claim for a refund on failure of consideration was governed by Art. 97, and was not barred by limitation, inasmuch as limitation began to run from the date of the decree declaring the agreenment to sell to be unenforceable. 11 A. 47 foll. (1901) 1903 A.W.N. 117=25 A. 618.

(f) Failure of vendee to get possession.

——Arts. 97, 62 and 116—T. P. Act; S. 55—Suit for refund of purchase-money by vendee.

(Applicability of Arts. 97, 62 and 116 to a suit by vendee for the refund of consideration on failure to obtain possession, considered.) (1945) A.L.J. 473=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 310=A.I.R. 1946 All. 150=224 Ind. Cas. 52.

——Art. 97—Failure of venlee to get possession—Suit for refund of purchase-money—Starting point

A vendee who had paid the full consideration for the land purchased by him, failed to get possession of the whole land as the whole of it did not belong to the vendor:

Held, that his suit for refund of money in respect of such land was governed by Art. 97 and the time began to run from the date he found it unable to get possession. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 685=160 Ind. Cas. 574.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendee to get possession—Suit for refund of purchase-money.

A suit for refund of purchase-money with damages against the Municipal which did not complete the sale and did not deliver the possession is governed by Art. 97. 58 C.L.J. 235=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 148 =150 Ind. Cas. 89.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendée to get possession—Suit for refund of purchase-money against Receiver in insolvency—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit instituted by a person for refund of the amount paid by him to the Receiver as part of the purchase-money of the insolvent's estate, as the Insolvency Court did not sanction the sale, is governed by Art. 97, the cause of action arising on failure of consideration which happened when the plaintiff did not get the property promised to him. A. I. R. 1934 All. 547=(1934) A.L.J. 864=4 A.W.R. 558=148 Ind. Cas. 629.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendee to get possession—Suit for refund of purchase-money of—Limitation, starting point.

On September 18, 1926, defendant sold six shops to plaintiff for Rs. 10,000. One of the shops had been, before the date of the sale-deed, mortgaged by conditional sale to P. After the sale, the plaintiff did not get possession over the shop in dispute and then on December 22, 1926, he filed a suit against the defendant and P for possession of the shop. During the pendency of that suit, the defendant in the year 1927 filed a suit for cancellation of the sale-deed of September 1926. Both the suits were decided by the trial Court on one and the same date, viz., on May 12, 1927. That Court decreed the suit for cancellation of the sale-deed and dismissed the suit for possession of the shop in dispute. The plaintiff filed an appeal in the High Court against the decree in the suit filed by the defendant but preferred no appeal against the decree in the suit filed by him for possession of the shop. The result was that the decree dismissing his suit became final. The High Court, on April 22, 1931, allowed the appeal of the plaintiff and dismissed the suit for cancellation of the sale-deed. The plaintiff on April 7, 1933, filed a suit for refund of the sale-price:

Held, that the claim for refund of the sale-price was governed by Art. 97. The consideration of the shop failed either in September 1926, or at any rate on May 12, 1927, when the plaintiff's claim for possession was dismissed, and not when the High Court dismissed the suit for cancellation of sale-deed. The period of limitation of refund of the sale consideration, therefore commenced to run from May 12, 1927, and as the suit was not filed within three years of that date, it was barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1937 All. 689=(1937) A.L.J. 812=1937 A.W.R. 696 =171 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendee to get possession—Refund of consideration.

A mortgaged his property to B. After B's death. A paid the mortgage money to B's sons and obtained a deed of redemption. A sued for possession and in that suit it was decided that B had gifted the property to his nephews. A sued B's sons for refund of the amount paid to them. B's sons had further agreed that if A failed to get possession they would recoup him:

Held, (i) that the suit was really one for recovery of money paid upon an existing consideration which afterwards failed and was governed by Art. 97, under which the plaintiff could sue within three years from the date of the failure of the consideration;

(ii) even if Art. 97 did not apply the suit would come within Art. 116. 32 P.L.R. 457=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 448=13 L. 1=135 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendee to get possession—Suit for specific performance—Subsequent suit for money paid on a consideration that failed.

A agreed to sell to B lands belonging to himself and his son. B sued for specific performance and got a conveyance executed. B sued for possession afterwards when it was found that the sale did not bind the son's interest, and B was given the value of defendant's share instead of a decree for partition. He then sued to recover the balance of the price paid. Held, that the suit was not barred by limitation as the failure of consideration must be taken to have occurred when it was found in the suit for possession that B was not entitled to get the son's share. Art. 97 applied to the case. (1899) 24 M. 27=10 M. L. J. 217.

——Arts. 97 and 118—Failure of vendee to get possession—Vendor and purchaser — Breach of covenant—Refund of consideration.

The defendant sold to the plaintiff half a village, on 16th September 1899. In respect of 1|6 of that share one Nangi was recorded in possession in view of maintenance. The plaintiff purchased with knowledge of her rights and obtained a relinquishment from her. The courts, in spite of the relinquishment, refused to record the name of the plaintiff. The plaintiff brought a suit for possession against Nangi, but that suit was dismissed on 23rd November, 1900. The plaintiff brought the present suit for recovery of proportionate amount of sale consideration and damages on 9th July, 1904. Among other covenants there was one to the following effect. Agar kistwaich se mushtare ko kabzana mile to woh nalish karke kabza le le aur main zemmedar harja aur kharcka ka hounga. Held, that that was a covenant for title and defendant was liable to refund the proportionate amount of sale consideration. Held, further, that the suit was for compensation for breach of covenant and the suit was not governed by Art. 97 but by Art. 116. (1908) 5 A.L.J. 480=1908 A. W. N. 185=30 A. 402.

——Art. 97—Failure of vendee to get possession—Suit on failure of consideration to recover money paid.

The purchasers of a house were resisted in obtaining possession by certain persons, relatives of the vendor. On the 21st May, 1896 they instituted a suit for possession of the property, impleading the vendor and the person who had resisted them. The suit was finally disposed of on the 28th September, 1898, and it was decided that the plaintiffs, vendor was owner of one-fourth of the property sold. On the 27th September 1899 the plaintiffs sued the representatives of their vendor to recover the whole of the consideration they had paid together with interest and costs of the previous suit. Held, that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 97. 1901 A.W.N. 24.

(g) Lease.

——Arts. 97, 115—Lease — Suit by lessee for refund of nazrana on lessor's failure to execute lease—Limitation—Starting point.

The plaintiff instituted a suit to recover two sums of Rs. 75 paid by him to the other party on October 26, 1926, and January 1, 1927. His case was that he made these payments by way of premium or nazrana because the defendant had promised to execute in his favour a lease of a certain holding. He claimed that the sums should be returned on the ground that the defendant had released from his promise and refused to execute the lease. The suit was originally instituted in the Court of Small Causes on October 26, 1929. That Court decided that it had no jurisdiction and returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court on May 21, 1930. It was presented on June 11, 1930; Held, that the claim was governed either by Art. 97 or by Art. 115.

Held, further that as the second payment was made on January 1, 1927, the breach of the promise occurred after that date and the cause of action arose from the breach. As the plaintiff was entitled to the benefit of the provisions of S. 14, his claim for both the sums was clearly within time. 1935 R. D. 345=A.I.R. 1935 All. 759=(1935) A.L.J. 966=1935 A. W. R. 818=155 Ind. Cas. 1092.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Lease—Suit for recovery of advance, by lessee on lessor's failure to deliver possession—Starting point of limitation.

A leased some property to B for a period of 7 years from July 1, 1920 to June 30, 1927, and B gave an advance which, under terms of the lease, was to be adjusted towards the last years' rent, but B was not given possession:

Held, that limitation for a suit by B for return of the advance in the absence of an agreement to take delivery of the land on a later date, would run from the time that the lessor failed to give possession to his lessee and that the suit filed on June 27, 1927 was barred whether Art. 97 or 116 applied. 35 L.W. 68=(1932) M.W.N. 51=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 225=138 Ind. Cas. 119.

——Art. 97—Lease.

——Art. 97—Lease.

Per Spencer, J.—Lessee or purchaser who gets possession on the strength of a registered contract and is subsequently evicted for want of title in his lessor or vendor has six years from the date of his dispossession under Art. 116 to sue for damages for breach of the title for quiet enjoyment; but if from the inception the vendor had no title to convey and the vendee never gets possession, the starting point of limitation is the date of the sale. Where under a sale-deed the purchaser paid certain sums of money to the secured creditors of the vendor and when the vendor failed to make good title, he sued for recovery of the sums so paid, more than 3 years after payment and after losing possession.

Held, that whether Art. 97 or 62 applied the suit was barred. 74 Ind. Cas. 416=17 M.L.W. 254= A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 392.

——Art. 97—Dispossession—Lease — When time begins to run.

A lessee was successfully sued and evicted by a third party. The lessee brought a suit for return of premium for failure of consideration. Held, that the period of limitation ran against him from the time of the actual eviction. 5 A.L.J. 484; 30 A. 402=5 A. L. J. 480; 26 A. 519, Foll. 10 Ind. Cas. 486 (Cal.).

(h) Mortgage.

——Art. 97—Applicability—Mortgage.

Mortgagee fraudulently purchasing the mortgaged property after the death of mortgagor from the guardian of the minor sons—Sale set aside—Suit by mortgagee on mortgage bond—Suit held could not be based on mortgage bond—Mortgagee is, however, entitled to a money decree—Limitation governed by Art. 97—Time ran from failure of consideration—Failure held occurred when mortgage was dispossessed—Suit held within time. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 247=8 B.R. 230 =197 Ind. Cas. 498.

——Art. 97—Applicability—Mortgage.

The plaintiff lent a sum of money to a husband and wife and was subsequently put in possession of certain land belonging to the debtor by an oral transaction. There was no mortgage. The plaintiff retained possession for seven years utilising the usufruct in payment of interest, until he was dispossessed as the land was sold in execution of a decree against the debtor. The lender instituted a suit for recovering the loan:

Held, (1) that the oral transaction was ineffective to create any interest in the land.

(2) that the suit fell under Art. 97. Possession of the land was consideration which existed till the lender was deprived of possession and hence time began to run only from date of dispossession. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 148=169 Ind. Cas. 945.

——Art. 97—Mortgage—Mortgage not acted upon—Suit to recover debt.

Where it appeared that the mortgage-deed had never been given effect to and the mortgagee sued to recover his debt,

Held, that Arts. 116 and 132 applied and limitation commenced from the date of first default.

Held, further that Art. 97 could not be applied to the case so as to compute the period of limitation from the date when the mortgage was declared ineffective by Court. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 993=129 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Mortgage—Suit for refund of mortgage money.

Where a mortgagee was dispossed under a decree obtained by certain persons on the ground that the mortgagors were members of joint Hindu family and had no authority to make the mortgage, a suit by the mortgagee to recover money secured by the mortgage and certain other sums, falls under Art. 97 and not Art. 116. 13 O.C. 155=6 Ind. Cas. 1016.

——Arts. 97 and 116—Mortgage—Defect in title—Mortgagee unable to obtain possession—Suit for money.

A suit by a mortgagee who could not obtain possession, of the mortgaged property by reason of a defect in the mortgagor's title is governed by Art. 97 and Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. 55 Ind. Cas. 413 (L.).

——Art. 97—Mortgage—Suit on mortgage decree in respect of part of consideration—Failure of rest of consideration—Second suit for personal decree—Cause of action—Date of first decree.

A husband, acting on behalf of his wife, obtained a loan on a mortgage executed by her to the creditor. The amount secured included also a sum of money appropriated by the husband for his own use, though he had represented to the creditor that the wife consented to offer the mortgaged property as security for that amount also. The mortgagee brought a suit against the wife and on the wife pleading that she did not undertake to pay the sum appropriated by the husband for his own use, the Court passed a decree excluding that sum. Held, that a suit by the creditor against the husband's representatives, the husband having died, is governed by Art. 97 and that limitation began to run from the date of the decree in the suit against the wife. 11 A. 47, foll. 1906 A.W.N. 88=8 A.L.J. 228=28 A. 466.

(i) Payment twice over.

——Arts. 97 and 115—Applicability — Payment twice over—Implied contract — Breach — Suit for damages — Limitation — Starting point—Suit by judgment-debtor against decree-holder for amount of uncertified payment not taken into consideration in execution—Starting point.

A suit by a judgment-debtor against his decree-holder to recover from him the amount of an uncertified payment made by him, after the decree-holder has recovered the amount twice over in execution is a suit for damages for breach of an implied contract by the decree-holder to get the payment certified and not to execute the decree. Art. 97 or Art. 115 will apply to such a suit and in either case, the starting point of limitation is the date when the decree-holder again applies for execution for the full decree debt ignoring the payment made but uncertified, as that constitutes the breach of the implied contract. The suit unless filed within three years of that date, will therefore be out of time and barred.

S. 24, Limitation Act, is not applicable to such a case, assuming that the section applies to suits on contract. The breach of contract per se gives a cause of action and time begins to run from that date, i.e., the date of application for execution, ignoring the payment, and not from the date when second payment, is made or is exacted in pursuance of the order on the execution petition. A.I.R. 1951 Pat. 348.

——Art. 97—Payment twice over—Agreement to record satisfaction—Suit on failure—Starting point.

Where mortgagor judgment-debtor paid decretal debt to the co-parceners of decree-holder who represented that on partition the decree fell to their share, and where the decree-holder opposed the application to certify payment and the judgment-debtor paid the amount again to set aside the sale.

Held, that judgment-debtor's cause of action for refund accrued on refusal of Court to record satisfaction. 46 Cal. 670, Foll. 86 Ind. Cas. 378=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1049.

——Art. 97—Payment twice over — Money paid for releasing debt.

Where the debtor of an insolvent paid money to the auction-purchaser of the debt and subsequently the Receiver in Insolvency recovered the amount over again form him, and he thereupon brought a suit against the auction-purchaser to whom he had paid the money,

Held, that the suit is governed by either Art. 97 or 120 and not by Art. 29 or 62, Art. 29 not being applicable as there is no wrongful seizure of movable porperty under legal process. 62 Ind. Cas. 929 =4 L.L.J. 164=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 103.

(j) Void transaction.

——Arts. 97, 116 and 62—Applicability—Suit for refund of consideration—Sale void ab initio. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 62, 97 AND 116. 1950 N.L.J. 145=A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 229.

——Art. 97—Applicability—Void contract.

No distinction arises so far as the application of Art. 97 is concerned, between a void contract and a voidable contract. Where the property sold is handed over to the purchaser and later on it is discovered that the transaction is void and the purchaser is evicted from the property, purchaser's suit for recovery of purchase price falls under Art. 97 and not under Art. 96 or Art. 62; the terminus a quo for limitation is the date of dispossession of the purchaser from the property sold. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 164=47 P.L.R. 122=221 Ind. Cas. 524.

——Art. 97—Void transaction—Refund of consideration.

Money paid as consideration or part consideration in a contract of sale is not money paid for the use of the payer except perhaps when the contract is of such a nature that it is void in law ab initio. Article 62, does not apply for the refund of such consideration but Atr. 97. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 37=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 495=199 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 97—Suit for money paid on a void transfer with delivery of possession—Limitation—Starting point.

Certain occupancy-tenants effected a mortgage in favour of one of the landlords and put him in possession. A suit was brought by other landlords and the mortgage was set aside as having been made without their consent. This decree was executed and the mortgagors were formally put in possession. In spite of this, the mortgagees remained in possession. Alleging that they had been subsequently dispossessed, they sued for the money lent:

Held, that in a suit of this nature it was for the plaintiffs to show that they had been dispossessed within three years of the date of the suit and as they had failed to prove the date of dispossession, the suit was time-barred.

Obiter—In a case of this nature time begins to run under Art. 97, from the date on which the plaintiffs ceased to be in possession as mortgagees and the fact that they remained on as trespassers will not affect the running of time. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 83=34 P.L.R. 104=140 Ind. Cas. 760.

——Art. 97—Void transaction—Suit for refund of money on agreement to sell—Limitation.

Article 97 does not apply to a case where there has been no sale or in any case where the sale is void ab initio. The article does not govern a suit on an agreement to pay money made by the guardian of certain minors who agreed to convey the minor's property but who was found unfit to be a guardian and was removed from guardianship. A. I.R. 1933 Sind 379=27 S.L.R. 422=147 Ind. Cas. 94.

——Art. 97—Applicability—Void transaction.

A suit for reimbursement by the purchaser of certain property of the amount paid for the redemption of an undisclosed mortgage, after the purchase in his favour was found to be sham and nominal, is not governed by Art. 97. It cannot be said to be "for money paid upon an existing consideration which afterwards fails", because ex hypothesi no consideration was eve. intended for the transaction. 128 Ind. Cas. 907=32 Bom.L.R. 1376=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 39.

——Art. 97—Void transaction.

Where a house was mortgaged while under attachment, a suit by mortgagee to enforce the personal security is governed by Art. 67, the mortgage being void altogether, Article 97 does not apply to such a case. 27 P.L.R. 801=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 101.

——Art. 97—Void transaction.

Even though a mortgage is void, if the mortgagee got possession, it should be held that he had an existing consideration for his mortgage and it would only fail when the motrgagee was finally dispossessed. 89 Ind. Cas. 332=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 19.

——Art. 97—Void transaction.

It is a reasonable construction of the word "in discovered to be void" in S. 65 to hold that they apply to a case where an agreement which was not prima facie void in its entirely, though it might be void in part is declared by the Courts to be void and any money paid under such an agreement is money paid under an existing consideration which afterwards fails and in such a case time runs only from the date of the failure of the consideration. 93 Ind. Cas. 119=4 Bur.L.J. 197=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 7.

——Art. 97—Void transaction—Alternative personal relief.

Where the manager of a Hindu joint family mortgages the family property for purposes not recognised by the law, the mortgage is void in toto and ab initio. There is no question of the security failing at a subsequent date. Therefore where in a suit on such mortgage the plaintiff prays for an alternative relief that if the property is not liable, he must be given a personal decree against the assets of the mortgagor, Art. 116 and not Art. 97 applies. 27 Cal. 762, Foll. 61 Ind. Cas. 205=8 O. L.J. 81=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 47.

(k) Miscellaneous.

——Art. 97—Suit for recovery of payment male in consideration of voidable transfer.

A's suit against B for the recovery of a certain sum of money was withdrawn and dismissed on October 1, 1921. On the date of dismissal, B executed a mortgage in C's favour and C made an entry in the bahi of A, acknowledgnig the sum due by B to A. As there was subsequently trouble over the mutation, C instituted a suit against B and on its dismissal in appeal on June 26, 1923, A instituted a suit against B:

Held, that Art. 97 governed the case and having been filed within three years from June 26, 1923, the suit was in time. 13 L. 188=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 382=33 P.L.R. 440=137 Ind. Cas. 828.

——Art. 97—Earnest money.

Limitation for suit for return of earnest money runs from the dismissal of suit for specific performance of a contract. 25 All. 618 ; 31 All. 68, foll. 71 Ind. Cas. 86 = 21 A.L.J. 265 = 45 All. 378 = 4 L.R.A. Civ. 176 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 321.

——Art. 97—Agent collecting money—Release of property for money received—Pres. Towns Ins. Act, S. 56.

Where under a power of attorney the agent managed his two principals' affairs and all their properties for recovering moneys due to them and executed three years before his being adjudged insolvent a release of his rights in certain properties in satisfaction of the debts he had collected on his principals' behalf. Held that under Art. 97 three years ought to be calculated from the date when the release deed became inoperative under S. 56, Pres. Towns Ins. Act. (1916) 2 M.W.N. 254 = 4 L.W. 364 = 37 Ind. Cas. 505.

——Arts. 97 & 115—Contract—Construction of a well—Breach.

Defendants entered into a contract for the construction of a well and received an advance of Rs. 1,000. The well was completed but the Revenue authorities however disapproved of the well. Plaintiff sued for refund of the advance. Held, on the facts, it was a suit for compensation for breach of contract and not on failure of consideration. So Art. 115 and not Art. 97 should be applied 66 P.L.R. 1911 = 202 P.W.R. 1911 = 9 Ind. Cas. 237.

——Art. 98—Applicability.

Suit against legal representative of guardian of minor's property for amount taken by guardian from minor and not repaid by him. See LIMITATION ACT, S. 10 AND ART. 98. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 794 = A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 235.

——Art. 98—Scope—Breach of trust by father—Suit against daughter.

Article 98 deals with the loss occasioned by a breach of trust. If the original act constituted a breach of trust, then the act of abstracting the money from the trust estate and handing it over to another at once occasions a loss to the estate and gives rise to an immediate cause of action against the trustee for the breach. Article 98 does no more than carry this liability on to his estate after his death. It does not contemplate any different cause of action.

A trustee committed a breach of trust. A suit was brought against his daughter for the breach. She herself was not a trustee. She had not committed any wrongful act. The defalcated money was not in her possession. There was nothing in her hands which could be said to represent it.

Held, that Art. 98 applied. The suit against her was clearly one to make good the loss occasioned by her father's breach of trust out of his general estate. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 30 = I.L.R. (1940) N. 94 = 176 Ind. Cas. 57.

——Art. 98—General estate—Joint family property—Survivorship—Son's liability.

The joint family property of the father and the sons which passes to the sons by survivorship on the death of the father is not the general estate of the deceased father under Art. 98. The sons are not liable to pay a debt of the father which was barred against him. 33 Mad. 308 = 20 M.L.J. 633 = 9 M.L.T. 321 = 7 Ind. Cas. 898.

——Art. 99—Applicability—Suit for contribution—Joint personal decree.

Article 99 applies to a suit for contribution in respect of a joint personal decree. It does not apply to a case where the liability is not personal but attaches to immovable property, e.g., to a suit for contribution in respect of liability attaching to immovable property. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 305 = 22 Pat. 187 = 10 B.R. 367 = 211 Ind. Cas. 334.

——Art. 99—Suit for contribution—Joint decree—Payment by one of the joint-debtors.

A, B, C and D, four brothers who formed a joint Hindu family, owed a certain sum of money to E. E sued A and B for recovery of the amount and obtained a decree on June 4, 1913 against the family which was represented by its manager. Subsequently, there was a partition and in 1924, A was arrested in execution of the decree and he executed a simple mortgage on July 4, 1924 in lieu of the amount due under the decree. He then instituted a suit against B, C and D on July 4, 1927, for contribution :

Held (i) that Art. 99 applied to the case ; the cause of action for the suit for contribution arose only on July 4, 1924 and the suit was not barred by limitation ;

(ii) the undertaking by A of the sole responsibility for payment by executing the mortgage was tantamount to payment and the suit was not premature. (1931) A.L.J. 651 = A.I.R. 1931 All. 652 = 134 Ind. Cas. 452.

——Art. 99—Applicability—Joint decree.

Where the plaintiff had paid the whole amount of a joint decree against him and the defendant and files a suit for contribution.

Held, that Art. 99, applied. 83 Ind. Cas. 875 = 22 A.L.J. 737 = 5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 534 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 843.

——Art. 99—Applicability—Claim for contribution in partition suit.

Where, in a suit by a member for partition of family property, the plaintiff prays that the balance of the family debt which had been realised from the plaintiff should be contributed by the defendants in proportion of their shares, the claim for contribution is a part of the accounts to be taken between the parties on the partition claim and will not be governed by Art. 99. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 70 = 48 L.W. 485 = (1939) M.W.N. 1092 = 184 Ind. Cas. 17.

——Art. 99—Applicability—Usufruct insufficient—Sui to recover payment from darpatnidar.

Suit to recover payment from darpatnidar, if usufruct property is insufficient is not governed by Art. 99. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 493 = 35 C.W.N. 678 = 134 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Art. 99—Applicability—Co-sharer paying revenue.

One co-sharer paying the Government revenue for whole estate in order to save the estate from being sold is entitled to contribution but there is no charge created in his favour over the property of the defaulting co-sharer. Article 99, Limitation Act, and not Art. 132 will consequently be applicable. The case bears no analogy to the " salvage lien " as the very essence of salvage service is that it must be voluntary. 111 Ind. Cas. 84 = 7 Pat. 613 = 9 P.L.T. 573 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 641.

——Sch. I, Art. 99—Applicability—Suit to enforce a charge under S. 82, T.P. Act—Limitation—Personal decree.

Art. 99 of the Limitation Act applies only to a suit for a personal decree under a charge created by S. 82 of the Transfer of Property Act, but not to a suit to enforce the charge itself. 38 All. 708 = 8 A.L.J. 854 = 11 Ind. Cas. 145.

——Art. 99—Applicability.

The article prescribes limitation only for cases when the whole amount due has been paid and is not applicable to cases where part only is paid. (1904) A.W.N. 74 = 26 A. 407 = 1 A.L.J. 148.

——Arts. 99, 120, 132—Applicability and Scope—Revenue payment of—Charge.

Article 120 does not apply to a suit for contribution in a case where the amount was realized by sequestration or sale of the property of the person seeking contribution. Per Bhashyam Aiyangar and Moore, JJ.—Where moneys have been received in excess of plaintiff's share of revenue from time to time under Art. 99 a suit for contribution will be barred as regards such portion of the excess as has been recovered more than 3 years before suit. Art. 99 applies to cases of suits brought for contribution by a co-sharer of an estate registered in the joint names of several. If the estate is registered in the name of one and the others are interested, Art. 61 will apply. Per Bhashyam Aiyangar, J.—A suit for the enforcement of a charge is governed by the 12 years' period provided by Art. 132. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 83 = 26 M. 686 (F.B.).

——Art. 99—Contribution—Nature of the right.

Whether the party seeking contribution has voluntarily made payment or is compelled to pay by coercive process, e.g., execution of decree, a right to contribution arises when the person has paid in excess of his share for the joint liability of all. 57 Ind. Cas. 884 (Cal.).

——Arts. 99 and 61—"Paid"—Meaning of.

Quaere.—Whether money realised by sale of the plaintiff's property in execution of a joint decree against the plaintiff and the defendant is 'money paid' within Arts. 61 and 99. 18 C.W.N. 4020 = 20 Ind. Cas. 24.

——Art. 99—Starting point of limitation—Date of payment.

It is not safe to lay down any rigid formula for the purpose of determining the date of payment, as the question of payment being a question of fact, must be determined with reference to the circumstances of each case.

One M had a joint decree for rent against the plaintiff and defendants, and in execution of that decree, he obtained from the executing Court an order for the attachment of a sum which had been deposited into X Court by a judgment-debtor of the plaintiff, to the credit of the latter. Subsequently, on August 20, 1932, the executing Court, by its order, directed to transfer the money to the credit of the decree-holder and to send the payment of order to X Court. On September 3, 1932, the payment order was made over by X Court to the decree holder. The plaintiff brought a suit for contribution against defendants within three years from September 3, but beyond limitation from August 20:

Held, that the suit was not barred by limitation. The payment by the plaintiff to the decree-holder must be deemed to have been made on September 3, and time began to run from that date. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 151 = 6 B.R. 96 = 185 Ind. Cas. 73.

——Art. 99—Starting point of limitation.

Where a co-sharer pays off arrears of rent or revenue to avert sale of the estate, the payment in excess of his share will be considered to be for others and the limitation to recover the same personally from others runs from the date of payment. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 782 = (1936) M.W.N. 658 = 44 L.W. 135.

——Arts. 99 and 120—Suit for contribution by co-mortgagee—Starting point.

The plaintiffs and the defendant were mortgagees under a deed of May 29, 1908. The mortgage was executed for Rs. 1,000 on which plaintiffs were mortgagees of half of the property and the defendant was mortgagee of the remaining half. The plaintiffs and the defendant sub-mortgaged their mortgagee rights for Rs. 1,000, bearing interest at 12 annas per cent. per mensem on May 24, 1909. The plaintiffs' case was that they paid the amount due from them, Rs. 551-4-0, to the mortgagee on August 31, 1911, and that the defendant paid nothing on account of his share. It was further alleged that the representative of the mortgagee brought a suit on May 22, 1933, for sale of the mortgagee rights against the plaintiffs and the defendant as their liability was joint and obtained a joint decree against them, that in execution of the decree the mortgagee purchased the mortgage rights for Rs. 800 and got possession of the same through Court, on January 19, 1928, and that as the plaintiffs lost possession owing to the defendant's default, they were entitled to claim Rs. 500 with interest at one per cent. per mensem from the defendant. The plaintiffs filed their suit on January 9, 1931, and the suit was framed as one for contribution :

Held, that the suit was barred by time, that Art. 120 did not govern the suit and that even if Art. 99 applied, limitation would run from the date of sale and not from the date of dispossession. 10 O.W.N. 919 = A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 478 = 147 Ind. Cas. 1042.

——Art. 99—Starting point—Payment by one co-judgment-debtor—Suit for contribution.

Where payment is made by a co-judgment-debtor in Court and the payment is appropriated by Court in full satisfaction of a decree it is deemed to have accepted the payment on behalf of the decree-holder, it being looked upon as his agent or quasi-agent ; and, therefore, the limitation for a suit for contribution by such judgment-debtor against the other co-judgment-debtor begins to run from the date of acceptance of deposit in Court.

The criterion must always be whether or not the deposit made in excess of what is due by the person making the deposit, did or did not remain under the control of the person making it. 114 Ind. Cas. 134 = 56 Cal. 192 = 32 C.W.N. 1030 = 49 C.L.J. 5 = A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 361.

——Art. 99—Redemption by co-mortgagor—Contribution—Limitation.

A co-mortgagor redeeming a mortgage becomes assignee of the original security and therefore the limitation for his suit for contribution is the same as that for a suit by a mortgagee on his mortgage. 57 Ind. Cas. 868 (Cal.).

——Arts. 99, 61—Starting point—Putni Regulation 8 of 1891, S. 9—Purchase by one of the defaulters, effect of.

For a suit for contribution for payment by a defaulter-purchaser of a putni, against the former owners of the putni, the cause of action does not arise till the sale is set aside, and limitation begins to run only after the sale is set aside. (1905) 3 C.L.J. 93.

——Art. 102—Scope.

Article 102 applies only to suits for wages as such brought by the person entitled to the wages. A suit brought by persons not entitled to the wages cannot therefore be regarded as a suit for wages as such within the meaning of Art. 102. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 420 = 7 O.W.N. 760 = 128 Ind. Cas. 66.

——Arts. 102 and 7—Applicability.

Suit for remuneration by person engaged to supervise work. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 7 AND 102. 1949 N.L.J. 200 = A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 329.

——Art. 102—Applicability—Servant of Crown—Suit for arrears of pay—Limitation—Arts. 115, 120 and 131.

A suit by a servant of the Crown to recover arrears of pay is governed by Art. 102 and not by Art. 115 or 120. The word "wages" in Art. 102 covers salary also; it is intended to cover all claims for wages, pay or salary, not otherwise expressly provided for in any other article of the schedule. Art. 131 will not also apply, because a claim to recover arrears of pay is manifestly not one to establish a periodically recurring right. 49 Bom. L.R. 697 = 1947 M.W.N. 575 = 1947 F.L.J. 56 = A.I.R. 1947 F.C. 23 = 52 C.W.N. (F.R.) 2 = (1947) 2 M.L.J. 389 (F.C.).

——Art. 102—Scope—Village barber, suit by.

A suit by a village barber for remuneration for services rendered, is governed by Art. 102 and not by Art. 7. The mere fact that a village barber who may not be as highly skilled a person as a village carpenter or a village blacksmith gets a longer period of limitation would not justify the Court in straining the meaning of the words employed in Art. 7. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 132 = 1941 N.L.J. 102. 194 Ind. Cas. 580.

——Art. 102—Scope—Cook in hotel, suit by.

A suit for arrears of salary by a person employed as a cook in a hotel is governed by Art. 102. 45 L.W. 205 = A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 340 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 329 = (1937) M.W.N. 227 (1) = 171 Ind. Cas. 72.

——Art. 102—Suit for arrears of tastik allowance—Limitation.

A suit by a pattali (subordinate archaka) of a temple for tasnik allowance is not a suit for enforcing a periodically recurring right within Art. 134 but a suit for wages falling within Art. 102, and the fact that the allowance is paid out of funds provided by the Government by way of deduction from the land revenue cannot affect the question of limitation. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 149 = (1936) M.W.N. 156 (2) = 70 M. L. J. 220 = 43 L.W. 431 = 161 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 102—Scope—Suit by motor driver.

Article 102 which is a residuary article applies only where Art. 7 does not apply. Consequently, a suit by a motor driver and especially one who is provided with board and lodging by the employer is not governed by Art. 102 but by Art. 7. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 661 = 38 P.L.R. 296 = 160 Ind. Cas. 1042.

——Art. 102—Motor driver—A motor car driver is an artisan for purposes of Art. 7.

A motor car driver should be included in the category of an artisan. There is also no reason why he should be treated differently from a household servant or labourer and given the benefit of a longer period under Art. 102. 104 Ind. Cas. 520 = 5 Rang. 477 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 279.

——Art. 102—Scope—Suit by salesman.

A suit for wages by a person employed as a salesman to assist the employer in the sale of commodities is governed by Art. 102 and not by Art. 7. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 235 = 157 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Art. 102—Scope.

A suit by a shahna (person employed to watch crops) for his wages is governed by Art. 102. A.I.R. 1935 All. 102 = (1935) A.L.J. 78 = 4 A.W.R. 1253 = 152 Ind. Cas. 932.

——Art. 102—Weighman in shop.

A weighman employed to work at a shop is not a household servant nor is he an artisan. He cannot be treated as a mere labourer employed to do task work, that is to hold the scales and weigh goods in a shop for a monthly salary. He can be asked to do other work of the shop when free. His work cannot be treated as purely manual labour so as to make Art. 7 of the Act applicable. He may be regarded in fact a shopkeeper's assistant and Art. 102 applies to a suit by him to recover his dues from his master. 90 Ind. Cas. 120 = 48 All. 164 = 23 A.L.J. 1059 = 6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 596 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 172.

——Art. 102—Bisardar.

Bisardar means a watchman who is paid by a share of crop which he watches. He is an outdoor servant and is certainly not an artizan, nor a labourer. A suit by him for his wages therefore, will not fall within Art. 7 but will fall under Art. 102. 79 Ind. Cas. 576 = 26 O.C. 327 = 10 O.L.J. 345 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 189.

——Art. 102—'Wages'—Meaning of—Salary.

Article 102 applies to a suit for the recovery of salary due to an employee for service rendered to his master. The word "wages" in Art. 102 is not restricted to wages of manual labourer. 48 C.W.N. 317 = I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 283 = A.I.R. 1955 Cal. 302 (1).

——Art. 102—'Wages' meaning of.

Perquisites or emoluments received by an archaka of a temple are wages within the meaning of Art. 102. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 128 = 41 L.W. 40 = (1935) M.W.N. 120 = 68 M.L.J. 132 = 155 Ind. Cas. 591.

——Arts. 102 and 115—Broker—Commission—Suit for—Wages, meaning of.

A suit for commission by a broker against the principal is one for money under a contract and is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 102. 'Wages' in Art. 102 is in general, used for remuneration for mechanical or muscular labour, specially to that which is ordinarily paid at short intervals. 39 All. 81 = 14 A.L.J. 873 = 36 Ind. Cas. 371.

——Art. 102—Set-off of claim for wages—Starting point of limitation.

Suit to recover money from dismissed employee—Defendant claiming set-off in respect of arrears of pay—Plaint admitting arrears—Plaint filed within 3 years of dismissal—Written statement within 3 years of plaint :

Held, that the claim for the arrears of pay could not be said to have been barred at the date of the written statement, which was filed within 3 years from the date of the filing of the plaint. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 277 = 167 Ind. Cas. 265.

——Art. 102—Monthly wages—Starting point of limitation.

Article 102 lays down that wages not otherwise expressly provided for in the schedule must be taken to be subject to a time which begins to run from the time when the wages accrue due. Where the wages are monthly wages, they accrue and become due on the final day of the month. (1935) A.L.J. 379 = A.I.R. 1935 All. 716 = 1935 A.W.R. 365 = 154 Ind. Cas. 713.

——Art. 103—Applicability—Registered deed—Dower debt converted into mortgage-deed.

A registered deed executed by Mahommedan husband long after the marriage, promising to pay dowry then still due from him, on demand and hypothecating certain immovable properties as security for its due payment, converts the dower debt into a mortgage-debt, and to a suit on such deed for the amount of the dowry, six years' rule of limitation is applicable. 99 Ind. Cas. 553 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 268.

——Arts. 103, 104 and 116—Article 116 applies to suits for recovery of dower debt when there is a registered dower deed, although Arts. 103 and 104 would apply when there is no such registered instrument and time runs from the date of death of the lady. 44 Cal. 759 (P.C.), foll. 36 Cal. 184, Not foll. 73 Ind. Cas. 17 = 37 C.L.J. 108 = 27 C.W.N. 210 = A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 507.

——Arts. 103, 104 and 116—Articles 103 and 104 are Controlled by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act.

Where the dower is payable under a registered instrument executed by the husband in favour of the wife, the suit, whether it is brought by the wife during her lifetime or whether it is brought by her heirs after her death, is a suit for compensation for breach of contract in writing, registered within the meaning of Art. 116. A suit for dower under a registered instrument brought by the heirs within 6 years of the wife's death is within time. (1916) 44 Cal. 759 (P.C.), foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 169 = 36 C.L.J. 379 = 50 Cal. 253 = A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 152.

——Art. 103—Starting point of limitation.
Where a Muhammadan husband has deliberately and fraudulently witheld from the wife all knowledge of the divorce, in other words, the wife did not know of her right to claim dower by reason of the fraudulent conduct of the husband, time for instituting a suit for dower by the wife would only begin to run against her when the fraud has become known to her. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 215 = 45 P.L.R. 231 = I.L.R. (1944) Lah. 186 = 209 Ind. Cas. 157.
Reversing A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 166 = 198 Ind. Cas. 326.

——Art. 103—Starting point of limitation.
A suit for dower is governed by Art. 103 and the period of limitation is three years from the date when dower becomes payable. A.I.R. 1933 Pesh. 31 = 142 Ind. Cas. 833.

——Art. 103—Starting point.
The existence of a demand on the wife's part and of a refusal to pay on the husband's is the starting point of limitation for a suit by a Mahomedan wife to recover the amount of her prompt dower. 78 Ind. Cas. 106 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 267.

——Art. 104—Starting point of limitation.
A suit brought by a Muhammadan wife for deferred dower is in time if it is within three years from the date when talak pronounced in her absence by her husband was communicated to her though it may be more than 3 years from the date of pronouncement. (1931) M.W.N. 570 = A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 647 = 133 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Art. 104—Possession in lieu of dower—Dispossession more than 3 years after husband's death—Suit for dower.
The husband died in 1895. In 1906 she was forcibly dispossessed whereupon she brought a suit in 1907 for the recovery of the balance of her dower debt. It being contended that the suit was barred by Art. 104, Sch. II of the L.A. 1877, held, that the limitation ran from dispossession and not from death of the husband. 8 A.L.J. 578 = 33 All. 568 = 10 Ind. Cas. 282.

——Arts. 105 and 108—Applicability.
A suit for surplus profits is a part of the redemption suit and based on the same cause of action and ought to be tried in the redemption suit. An order by the Judge that it should be tried separately does not alter its nature nor that of the cause of action on which it is based, and limitation is governed by Art. 148 and not by Art. 105. 103 Ind. Cas. 290 = 10 N.L.J. 142 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 302.

——Art. 105—Article 105 of the Limitation Act applies to cases where the mortgagor has not to bring a suit for redemption but has to sue only for recovery of the surplus collections. 64 Ind. Cas. 75 = 26 C.W.N. 123 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 189.

——Art. 105—Suit by mortgagor for loss.
A mortgagor can under Art. 105 sue the mortgagee for loss occasioned to the trees on the mortgaged property, within three years from redemption by deposit in Court or otherwise. 6 O.L.J. 53 = 50 Ind. Cas. 152.

——Art. 105—Suit for balance of collections by mortgage.
A usufructuary mortgage provided that after deducting interest from the collections the balance should be paid to mortgagor annually. After redemption without intervention of court on payment of the principal money, a suit was brought for the recovery of the balance of collections after deducting interest. Held, that the Art. applicable is Art. 105. 20 O.C. 25 = 38 Ind. Cas. 610.

——Art. 105—Mesne profits and interest on the mortgaged property.
The limitation applicable for the recovery of mesne profits and interest is governed by Art. 105. 2 O.L.J. 620 = 32 Ind. Cas. 729.

——Art. 105—Redemption suit—Applicability of article.
Art. 105, Sch. II of the Limitation Act of 1877 has no application to a redemption suit. The Lim. Act 1871 provided 3 years as the period for recovering surplus profits and it ceased to have any effect on 1st October, 1877 as the L.A. of 1877 came into operation on 1st October, 1877. 10 Ind. Cas. 402 (All.).

——Arts. 105 and 109—Right of mortgagor to sue for surplus profits—Starting point—Revival of barred right.
A suit by a mortgagor after the satisfaction of the mortgage to recover surplus collections received by the mortgagee may be brought within three years from the time when the mortgagor re-enters the mortgaged property and falls under Art. 105 and not Art. 109. Nothing contained in the Lim. Act of 1877 could revive right barred under the earlier Act. 33 All. 244 = 7 A.L.J. 1201 = 8 Ind. Cas. 689.

——Art. 105—Applicability.
Art. 105 applies to a case where the mortgagor gets possession otherwise than by means of a suit for redemption. (1907) 1908 A.W.N. 96 = 5 A.L.J. 192 = 30 A. 225.

——Art. 106—Applicability—Settlement of accounts on dissolution.
On a dissolution of partnership the partners may settle the accounts of the partnership between themselves. If that has been done, there is no longer any question of a suit for dissolution and accounts under Art. 106. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 133 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 511 = 46 L.W. 910 = (1937) M.W.N. 1285 = 176 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Art. 106—Settlement after dissolution.
There was a partnership between the plaintiffs and the defendants in a contract which ran from September, 1919 to March, 1920. The accounts of the parties were not finally adjusted until the year 1924 and at that date, a settlement was arrived at between all the partners. The plaintiffs sued in 1927 for the amount due under the settlement. It was contended that inasmuch as this settlement was arrived at more than three years from what is said to be a dissolution of partnership, viz., the determination of joint adventure, there was no consider tion for it.
Held, that the fact that the partners could only have asked for an account under Art. 106 within three years of March, 1920, has no bearing at all upon the question when in fact they have come together and have agreed to an account between themselves, and have made mutual promises to abide by such settlement. There is ample consideration in such a case for the promise given by each partner in the mutual promises made by the other

——Arts. 106 and 116—Applicability.

Under a registered document one K, defendant No. 1 and one S entered into partnership in the year 1918. The 1st defendant made alienation of some of his interest in the year 1919. The present suit was instituted in July, 1925, for directing accounts of partnership. S having died in 1920, his legal representatives were made defendants. The suit was dismissed, as having been brought after more than three years since the death of S as barred under Art. 106. In appeal it was contended, that under S. 3 (10) of Contract Act, he could sue for dissolution of partnership within six years from the date of alienation by defendant No. 1 and the article applicable was 120.

Held, that the suit was really for taking accounts of dissolved partnership and hence barred under Art. 106. The suit being essentially one for accounts of dissolved partnership was not a suit "for compensation for the breach of a contract in writing registered" within the meaning of Art. 116. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 162 = 39 L.W. 164 = (1934) M.W.N. 22 = 66 M.L.J. 625 = 57 M. 378 = 151 Ind. Cas. 81.

——Art. 106—Suit for declaration that property attached does not solely belong to judgment-debtor.

A suit for a declaration that property attached as belonging to a partner is not solely his but the plaintiff has a share therein and that the defendant is not entitled to have it attached and sold in execution of a decree obtained against the partner as if it belonged to him exclusively, is not governed, for purposes of limitation, by Art. 106. The cause of action for such a suit arises when the property is attached. A.I.R. 1933 All. 926 = 148 Ind. Cas. 515.

——Arts. 106, 120—Scope—Action between partner and his sub-partner.

Article 106 is intended to deal with suits between partners inter se and does not apply to actions between a principal partner and his sub-partner. 38 L.W. 858 = 65 M.L.J. 789 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 12 = (1933) M.W.N. 1382 = 57 M. 347 = 148 Ind. Cas. 204.

——Arts. 106 and 120—Scope.

Article 106 governs a suit for accounts and share of profits in respect of a partnership that had already been dissolved. It is not open to a party to bring a suit saying that a partnership still subsists when it has, in fact, been dissolved and then to claim the benefit of Art. 120 which applies to a suit for a dissolution and taking accounts of a partnership which is subsisting. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 353 (2) = 37 L.W. 288 = (1933) M.W.N. 689 = 144 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 106—Applicability.

Where B and D had jointly taken a contract for the sale of liquor and subsequently K and A became sub-partners with B in his share, and K alleged in his suit that he had advanced a certain amount of money to B in connection with his sub-partnership and that he had been repaid part of it by B who had made an entry in K's account book acknowledging that a certain sum remained due by him as a loan and verbally agreed to pay interest on that amount :

Held, for purposes of limitation, the suit was governed by Art. 106, and that as the acknowledgments relied on were not acknowledgments of the existence of the liability relating to the cause of action on which the suit was brought, the acknowledgments did not save limitation. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 519 = 33 P.L.R. 713 = 138 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Arts. 106 and 89—Suit for accounts.

Partnership dissolved—Agreement that certain partner shall collect outstandings—Suit for account of moneys realised—Article 89 and not Art. 106 applies. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 300 = 134 Ind. Cas. 527.

——Arts. 106 and 89—Money paid for joint purchase—Suit to recover.

A suit to recover money paid to defendant to be used in a joint purchase of property, is governed by Art. 89 and not 60 or 106 as the defendant was acting only as the agent of the plaintiff. 33 Ind. Cas. 438 (Lah.).

——Art. 106—Previous partnership—Accounts of—Enquiry into.

No suit can lie for settlement of three different partnerships consisting of different partners. But Limitation offers no bar to a Court instituting an enquiry into the financial relations of the partners inter se at the commencement of the partnership which the Court is engaged in winding up and for this purpose it may be necessary to go into the accounts of a previous partnership between the parties. Thus where a partner is neither seeking any relief against the heirs of a deceased partner, nor does he ask for accounts of partnerships dissolved by their deaths being taken for the purpose of making their heirs liable, but is only asking for dissolution and settlement of accounts of the partnership, the statute of limitation is no bar. 118 Ind. Cas. 741 = A.I.R. 1929 Sind 230.

——Art. 106—Death of partner.

S and H, both Muhammadan ladies, instituted a suit in 1924 for partition and possession of their share in certain immovable properties which E, husband of S and father of H, was said to have died possessed of. The suit properties were included in a partnership business. E died in 1898. From that time the properties remained under the management of those who directed the partnership business and treated as partnership property by other members of the firm. In 1917 G, the son of E also died.

Held, that the suit for partition of property which is partnership property of E is incompetent as framed.

Held, further, that even the suit for settlement of account of the partnership, dissolved by the death of E and subsequently by the death of G, is statute-barred. A.I.R. 1929 Sind 182.

——Arts. 106 and 64—Suit on account stated.

An entry in the books of the plaintiff in two columns of debit and credit showing his share of profits and losses and verified by the defendant (who was plaintiff's partner) and certified by him to be correct is an "account stated" within Art. 64. Article 106 does not apply to the case. 108 Ind. Cas. 600 = 29 P.L.R. 219 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 459.

——Arts. 106 and 120—Dissolution—Suit for declaration and for account and share of profits.

A suit for declaration that plaintiff retired from a partnership on a certain date, that the partnership was dissolved at the time so far as he was concerned, and for accounts and share of profits, found due to him on such accounts being taken is governed by Art. 106 and not by Art. 120. 22 C.W.N. 104 = 27 C.L.J. 403 = 43 Ind. Cas. 893.

——Art. 106—Dissolution of partnership—Suit for division of immovable property forming partnership asset—Limitation.

A suit for division of immovable property forming part of partnership assets, after the dissolution of the partnership is governed by Article 106 of the Limitation Act. 11 Ind. Cas. 288 (All.).

——Art. 106—Suit for price of articles delivered to a partner.

Suit for price of articles delivered to a partner during the course of partnership and for the partnership business is governed by Art. 106 and time begins to run from the stopping of business. 163 P.L.R. 1911 = 214 P.L.R. 1911 = 10 Ind. Cas. 250.

——Art. 106—Suit for accounts after dissolution.

Art. 106 governs a suit for accounts after dissolution of a partnership. 87 P.L.R. 1909 = 4 Ind. Cas. 929.

——Art. 106—Suit for partnership account and share of partnership assets.

A suit by the heir of a deceased partner against the surviving partner for an account and share of the deceased in the partnership assets, including the good will and trade marks of the partnership business, comes within the class of suits dealt with under Art. 106. The fact that there were unrealized assets outstanding at the death of the deceased partner which were still outstanding at the date of the suit would not alter the nature of the suit. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 537.

——Art. 106—Suit for account and partition among partners. See 11 M.L.J. 353 = 25 M. 149.

——Art. 106—Suit for partition—Suit for a share in dissolved partnership—See C.P.C., O. 2, R. 2. 5 A.L. 278 = 30 A. 279.

2 Continuance of partnership.

——Art. 106—Applicability—Fresh partnership coming into existence.

There was a partition between several members of the joint Hindu family representing different branches of the family. Subsequent to the partition, two members R and D, each of whom was a head of a separate branch entered into a partnership and started a firm with their separate funds for the benefit of both and their sons. D died in April, 1930. It was in evidence that subsequent to D's death the partnership was continued by the sons of each of the partners. R also died and the sons of D later on brought a suit in 1937 against the sons of R for dissolution of the partnership and rendition of accounts. The sons of R admitted that the business went on as before even after the death of D and it ceased as the result of the suit :

Held, that the only inference that could be drawn from the conduct of the parties was that a fresh partnership came into existence between the plaintiffs on the one hand and the defendants on the other upon the death of D and the suit was not barred under Art. 106. A.I.R. 1939 All. 217 = 1939 A.W.R. 146 = 181 Ind. Cas. 695.

——Art. 106—If the remaining partners continue the business for the purpose of ascertaining what shares those remaining partners brought into the new partnership, an account may have to be taken of the old partnership and there will be no question of limitation at all in such a case as the account of the old partnership is taken not for the purpose of enforcing the claim to the money due as profits in that partnership but for the purpose of ascertaining what the capital supplied by the continuing partners was to the new partnership. 80 Ind. Cas. 378 = 34 M.L.T. 273 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 708 = 46 M.L.J. 503.

——Art. 106—Contract continuing partnership—Not barred.

The principle underlying S. 253 (10) of the Contract Act is that where the parties to a contract agree expressly or by necessary implication to continue the partnership as if no dissolution has taken place upon the death of one of the original partners the suit for accounts and dissolution would not be barred under Art. 106 of the Limitation Act, even though brought more than 3 years after the death of the original partner. 101 P.R. 1914, foll. 68 Ind. Cas. 722 = 5 L.L.J. 55 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 349.

——Art. 106—Dissolution of—Partnership—Taking of acccounts—Limitation.

When a partnership is determined by death of a partner and the surviving partners continue to carry on the business, the statute of limitation is no bar for taking the accounts of the new partnership by going into the accounts of the old partnership, which have been carried on into the new partnership without interruption or settlement. 101 P.R. 1914 = 218 P.L.R. 1915 = 27 Ind. Cas. 69.

——Art. 106—Ss. 7, 8—Suit by joint claimants, one being a minor—Bar of limitation saved as against all—When surviving partners continue business, Limitation Act no bar to take the accounts of the new partnership by going into the old account—Joint right—Right to give a discharge to promissor.

In 1885 five persons became partners. In 1890 one of them, P died. The others continued the business without taking accounts or admitting P's heirs into the partnership. In 1891 another, C died. The others continued the business without taking accounts or admitting C's heirs as co-partners. In 1898 C's heirs sued for an account and a share in the profits. One of the heirs was still a minor at the date of suit. It was contended that the suit was barred by limitation. Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 106; the starting point is C's death, for the suit cannot be regarded as one for the profits of the original partnership, for it was terminated by P's death and then a new partnership came into existence. (2) Though C's death dissolved the new partnership, the bar of limitation is saved by Ss. 7 and 8 as the third plaintiff was and continued to be a minor. (3) S. 8 saves the bar in the case of all the plaintiffs, for they all claimed jointly, and none of them could give, or could at any time have given, the partners of C a valid discharge without the concurrence of the third plaintiff. (4) Even if, as decided by 20 M. 461, one of two or more joint promisees can give a valid discharge, that decision is inapplicable to the case of the co-heirs of a single promisee. (5) Also, though in a Hindu family, the manager can give a discharge without the concurrence of the minors, and so time will run as against them also, under the Mohamedan Law there is no manager, and so this principle is inapplicable. (1901) 25 M. 26.

3 Partnership not dissolved.

——Art. 106—Applicability.

Article 106 can apply only to a case when a partnership has been dissolved. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 491 = 36 Bom. L.R. 1068 = 154 Ind. Cas. 680.

——Arts. 106 and 120—Dissolution not proved.

Where according to the agreement the partners have not got the partnership dissolved previoulsy and inasmuch as the partnership is not deemed to be dissolved by the expulsion of a partner and the intention to dissolve cannot be otherwise inferred from the circumstances Art. 120 and not Art. 106 applies and it is for the defendants to show that the partnership was previously dissolved. 120 Ind. Cas. 613 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 378.

——Art. 106—Applicability.

Article 106 applies only to a dissolved partnership as limitation cannot apply as between partners so long as the partnership continues. 66 Ind. Cas. 811 = 25 C.W.N. 847 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 538.

——Art. 106—Continuance of partnership.

Where a partnership was entered into for doing certain specified work and " such other work " as the parties might undertake, and the specified work came to end at a particular time, held that the partnership was not dissolved when the specified work came to an end but continued up to date of suit. 162 P.W.R. 1917 = 42 Ind. Cas. 459.

——Art. 106—Suit for partnership account—Presumption of dissolution of partnership—Cessation of annual accounts—Rendering of final account showing division of capital and revenue.

In a suit brought in 1902 for partnership account and to recover the plaintiff's share in the properties of a business carried on by them and the defendants. Held, (affirming the decision of the High Court) that when annual accounts of the partnership business which had been rendered year by year from 1868 to 1891, ceased in the latter year and, on 12th April, 1891, a final account showing the division of both capital and revenue was made out, the defendants afterwards carrying on the business without any interference from the plaintiffs, the presumption was in favour of the dissolution of the partnership as at the definite date of the year when the account was thus closed. And their Lordships were of opinion that these facts taken with the other acts and conduct of the other parties, and the whole circumstances of the case which greatly strengthened the presumption, made the inference in favour of the dissolution having occurred at the above date substantially conclusive. The suit, therefore, not having been brought within three years from the date, was barred by Article 106. 36 Mad. 185 = 11 A.L.J. 556 = 18 C.L.J. 13 = 15 Bom. L.R. 634 = 14 M.L.T. 7 = 17 C.W.N. 1006 = (1913) M.W.N. 571 = 25 M.L.J. 128 = 19 Ind. Cas. 513 (P.C.).

4 Starting point.

——Art. 106—Death of partner—Suit against sons for debts—Limitation.

Where, on the death of a partner, the partnership is dissolved in order to make his sons liable for the debts due from him as a member of the partnership, a suit ought to be instituted within three years of the death of the partner. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 514 = 167 Ind. Cas. 759.

——Art. 106—Starting point.

The giving of a pronote cannot be held to be a settlement of partnership affairs, where it it is intended merely to prevent a previous pronote from being time-barred. Where a suit is brought within three years from the date of death of one partner, the suit cannot be treated as out of time on the footing that such a pronote was taken from one partner more than three years prior to suit. A.I.R. 1930 Sind 148 = 126 Ind. Cas. 746.

——Art. 106—Dissolution—Time of.

The business of a firm began to fail in 1906 and finally closed in 1908 the only work done subsequently consisted of realising assets, paying debts due to the creditors and recovering rents from tenants. Held, that the partnership came to an end in 1908 and that the suit for dissolution and the prayer for accounts brought more than three years thereafter was barred under Art. 106. 49 P.W.R. 1916 = 32 Ind. Cas. 853.

——Arts. 106 and 120—Suit for an account—Starting point of time.

In a suit for account of a partnership, time begins to run from the date of the dissolution of the partnership and where there has been a previous settlement then from date of the last settlement. 16 C.W.N. 299 = 15 C.L.J. 204 = 13 Ind. Cas. 23.

——Art. 106—Death of partner—Suit for accounts—Limitation.

A suit for accounts cannot be brought three years after the death of a partner in respect of the partnership of which he was a member. There can be no question of granting dissolution of a firm already dissolved. But the Court may enquire into the financial relations of partners inter se and for the purpose it may go into the accounts of a previous partnership. 3 S.L.R. 108 = 4 Ind. Cas. 600.

——Art. 106—Actual dissolution—Starting point.

For a suit for accounts in partnership profits limitation runs from the date of actual dissolution of the partnership and it does not cease to run by virtue of an agreement that the partnership was to last till a certain date with a month over in which to collect outstandings and settle accounts. 34 Bom. 515 = 11 Bom. L.R. 1354 = 4 Ind. Cas. 837.

——Art. 106—Starting point of limitation.

In a partnership agreement it was stated that the partnership was to continue up to a certain date but prior to that date the partnership was dissolved. Held, that the period of limitation under Art. 103 for taking partnership account of a share in partnership profits ran from the actual date of dissolution and not from the date mentioned in the agreement. Held, further, that where a suit for general partnership accounts and share in partnership profits is itself barred, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to proceed against any and every partnership asset which may have been realized by the defendant after dissolution and within the period of limitation. (1909) 11 Bom. L.R. 1354 = 4 Ind. Cas. 837 = 34 Bom. 515.

5 Suit for accounts.

——Art. 106—Suit for accounts, what is.

A suit for recovery of money found due to the plaintiff by the defendant as declared by a prior judgment between the parties in a suit for accounts of a dissolved partnership is not governed by Art. 106. 67 M.L.J. 413 = (1934) M.W.N. 539 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 665 = 40 L.W. 792 = 156 Ind. Cas. 264.

——Art. 106—Suit for accounts, what is.

The entry in the plaintiff's bahi signed by the defendants ran as follows :—" We have struck a debit balance against ourselves of Rs. 4,017-5-0 on account of advances and losses of every kind ; interest to pay at the rate of Re. 0-7-6 per cent."

Held, the entry is an account rendered adjusting the relations of the parties and is a promise to pay and the suit therefore falls under Art. 64, the time under which is enlarged to six years by Punjab Limitation Act. Article 106 does not apply to the suit as this suit is not for an account, i.e., an unascertained share of the profits of a dissolved partnership. 69 Ind. Cas. 502 = 3 Lah. 326 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 425.

——Art. 106—Joint business by brothers—Suit for accounts by heirs of one.

A suit by the heirs of one of two brothers who carried on joint business is one for an account and a share of the profits of a dissolved partnership and is governed by Art. 106 of the Limitation Act. 38 Mad. 1099 = 32 Ind. Cas. 1002.

6 Suit for general account barred—Effect of.

——Art. 106—Suits for accounts barred—Another suit for share of assets received by ex-partner.

A partnership was dissolved in 1910 by the death of one partner and a suit by the plaintiff in 1913 for partnership accounts of profits was dismissed on the ground of being barred by Limitation. A second suit was lodged by the plaintiff for his share of assets alleged to have been received by the defendants as debts due to the old firm,

Held, in all cases where, after the dissolution and complete winding up of a partnership, an asset which had not been taken into account fell in, it ought to be divided between the ex-partners or their representatives according to their shares in the former partnership. If on the other hand no accounts have been taken and there is no contest, that the partners have squared up, then the proper remedy, where such an item falls in, is to have the accounts of the partnership taken ; and if it is too late to have recourse to that remedy, then it is also too late to claim a share in an item as part of the partnership assets, and the plaintiff does not prove and cannot prove that upon the due taking of the accounts he would be entitled to that share. 74 Ind. Cas. 621 = 45 Mad. 378 = 1922 M.W.N. 386 = 30 M.L.T. 283

——Art. 106—Dissolution of Partnership—Movable and immovable property—Claim for account—When barred.

If the assets of a partnership consists of a movable or immovable property, a claim, for a general account is governed by Art. 106 and if the claim is barred as regards moveable part of the property, it is barred as regards immovables also. If a suit for general partnership account is barred a claim in respect of any assets of the partnership that may have been acquired within 3 years of the suit is also barred. 97 P.R. 1910 = 11 P.L.R. 1911 = 142 P.W.R. 1910 = 8 Ind. Cas. 999.

——Art. 106—Suit for general account barred.

A suit for share of assets realized within three years before suit not barred. (1904) 28 M. 344.

——Art. 108—Applicability—Trees cut down by lessee.

Art. 108 of the Act applies only to suits by a landlord for recovery of the value of trees cut down by the lessee. 25 Ind. Cas. 704 (Mad.).

——Art. 109.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Applicability.

Suit for mesne profits. See LIMITATION ACT (9 OF 1908), S. 15 AND ARTS. 109 AND 120. (1948) 2 M.L.J. 314 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 279.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Suit for recovery of profits wrongfully withheld.

Where a person has been placed in rightful possession as custodian (supurdar) and he rightfully receives the profits in that capacity, but wrongfu'ly withholds them, a suit for recovery of such profits is not governed by Art. 109 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 181 = I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 92 = 1941 N.L.J. 184 = 201 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Arts. 109 and 116—Suit by mortgagee for possession and compensation—Limitation—Starting point.

Where the mortgagor, by registered mortgage deed of September 3, 1927, contracted to deliver the possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee on July 1, 1928, and to pay certain rent for the period upto the delivery of possession, but no possession was delivered as stipulated and the mortgagee brought a suit in 1936 for recovery of possession and compensation :

Held, that Art. 116 and and not Art. 109, applied and the suit brought more than six years after the breach of the contract was barred by limitation. A.I R. 1941 Oudh 1 = 16 Luck. 203 = 1940 O.W.N. (H.C.) 875 = 1940 R.D. 424 = 1940 A.W.R. (C.C.) 393 = 190 Ind. Cas. 721.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Applicability.

In the year 1917, a person executed a mortgage with possession of certain properties in favour of the plaintiff. Without taking the possession the property was leased to the mortgagor for the term of the mortgage at a rent which represented the interest on the mortgage amount. In 1920 the defendant who had obtained a money-decree against the mortgagor executed his decree and attached the mortgaged property. In these execution proceedings a Receiver was appointed by the Revenue Court and the possession was delivered to him in 1927. In 1928, the properties were leased out by the Receiver for a term of one year which was continued from time to time. In 1929 the plaintiff instituted a suit against the mortgagor, the defendant and the lessees, asking that it might be declared that the land was not liable to attachment at the instance of the defendant and asking for possession of the land by ejectment of the Receiver. There was, however, no claim for damages in respect of the possession taken by the Receiver. The suit went up to the Privy Council where it was decreed in 1933 and the plaintiff was declared to be entitled to possession. On August 2, 1933, however, the plaintiff brought another suit against the defendant alone and the case made against him by the amended plaint was that the defendant who had obtained a decree against the mortgagor in the Revenue Courts had obtained the attachment of the property without caring to find out whether the properties were attachable or not and without reserving the right of the plaintiff as mortgagee. The plaintiff alleged that this was an illegal act for which the defendant was liable to pay to the plaintiff " the sum equivalent to the price of the produce as damages which should have accrued to the plaintiff from the land in dispute. " Certain sums were mentioned in the plaint as due upon this basis for the period 1927 to 1933, according to the record of crops kept by the village accountant or patwari.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 109 and not by Art. 120 and that the plaintiff was entitled to claim profits only for three years prior to the institution of the suit. A.I.R. 1939 P.C. 178 = 5 B.R. 847 = 43 C.W.N. 897 = 50 L.W. 389 = 1939 O.W.N. 688 = (1939) A.W.R. 148 = 1939 R.D. 449 = 41 Bom. L.R. 1071 = 182 Ind. Cas. 548 (P.C.).

——Arts. 109 and 149—Applicability—Suit by Railway company.

Suit by Railway Company for ejectment of licensee after expiry of license and for mesne profits is governed by Art. 149 and not by Art. 109 or 116 where company is merely the managing agent of Government. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 362 = 17 P.L.T. 206 = 2 B.R. 620 = 163 Ind. Cas. 525.

——Art. 109—Applicability.

Article 109 is confined in its application to profit of immovable property which belonged to the plaintiff and which has been wrongfully received by the defendant. A suit for recovery of rent realised by the defendant but to which the plaintiff was entitled falls either under Art. 62 or Art. 120. 18 P.L.T. 162 =A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 237 = 3 B.R. 434 = 16 Pat. 184= 168 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Art. 109—Auction-purchaser.

A suit brought by an auction-purchaser for recovery of rent against another previous auction-purchaser of the same land and his lessee is governed by Art. 109. Time began to run from the date of receipt of rent and a suit brought nearly 4 years thereafter is barred. 86 Ind. Cas. 398 = 5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 688=A.I.R. 1925 All. 52.

——Art. 109—Application for ascertainment.

Applications for ascertainment of profits are not suits but proceedings in suit and where mesne profits are decreed, the plaintiff is entitled to mesne profits for 3 years from date of suit. 68 Ind. Cas. 903=2 P.L.T. 648 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 430.

——Arts. 109 and 62—Suit for mesne profits by usufructuary mortgagee against mortgagor in wrongful possession —Limitation.

Art. 109 governs a suit by a usufructuary mortgagee for mesne profits against the mortgagor who is in wrongful possession of the mortgaged property. 15 A.L.J. 33 = 39 All. 300 = 39 Ind. Cas. 663.

——Art. 109—Mesne profits—Period for which allowed.

A court cannot award mesne profits for more than three years as provided in Article 109 of the Act. 19 C.W.N. 1167 = 26 Ind. Cas. 890.

——Art. 109—Mesne profits—Suit for.
The period of limitation for a suit for mesne profits is that provided by Art. 109 of the Limitation Act. 5 Bur. L.T. 33 = 14 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Arts. 109 and 127—Profits—Suit for—Applicability to Muhammadans.
Art. 127 is not applicable to Muhammadans and profits can only be recovered under Art. 109 for three years. (1912) M.W.N. 45 = 13 Ind. Cas. 791.

2 Co-sharers, Co-owners, or Co-heirs—Suit by.

——Art. 109—Co-sharer's suit for his share of produce of joint land.
Suit by a co-sharer for his proportionate share of the net produce of the common land cultivated by the defendant co-sharer is not governed by Art. 109 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 90 = 21 P.L.T. 854 = 7 B.R. 425 = 20 Pat. 162 = 192 Ind. Cas. 456.

——Art. 109—Co-sharers.
Suit for recovery of money due to tenants in common which has been received by one or more tenants to the exclusion of the rest is not governed by Art. 109 as the profits cannot be said to be wrongfully received, the parties being co-sharers. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 28 = 168 Ind. Cas. 41.

——Art. 109—Co-owners—Suit by co-owner for share of profits.
A suit by a co-owner for his share of profits received by other co-sharers is not within the ambit of Art. 109 and the assertion of the exclusive title by defendants makes no manner of difference. (1935) M.W.N. 107 = 41 L.W. 138 = 68 M.L.J. 487 = A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 731 = 156 Ind. Cas. 640.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Suit for share of profits by co-sharer.
A suit by one co-sharer against another co-sharer (who is in exclusive possession of the joint property) for his share of the rents of the joint property is governed. not by Art. 109, but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 951 = 35 P.L.R. 208 = 147 Ind. Cas. 909.

——Art. 109—Scope.
Suit by co-owner for partition—Decree not executed—Suit for share of subsequent mesne profits—Possession of defendant as co-owner—Article 109 inapplicable—Article 120 applied. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 150 = 131 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Art. 109—Co-sharers.
Article 120 and not Art. 62 or 48 or 49 or 109 applies to a suit by one co-sharer against another for a share of the rent collected by the latter, the rent being due in respect of land held by the co-sharers not separately but jointly. 66 Ind. Cas. 876 = 34 C.L.J. 508 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 77.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Co-heirs—Suit for rent and profits.
Where the profits in question are not mesne profits at all, that is to say, not profits wrongly received by the defendants but are the rents and profits of land to which both the plaintiff and defendants as co-heirs have a claim the article applicable is Art. 120 and not Art. 109. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 365 = 1940 Rang. L.R. 136 = 186 Ind. Cas. 210.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Suit for profits of immovable property against co-heir.
Article 109 does not apply to an action claiming profits of immovable property against a person who is in occupation of land as a co-heir but Art. 120 applies to such a suit as no special time is prescribed by any other article. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 416 = 178 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 109—Starting point.
Under Art. 109, the starting point is the date from when the profits are received. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 80 = 161 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Art. 109—Suit for mesne profits—Cause of action.
The plaintiff purchased a house in execution of a decree on May 27, 1917. Objections were raised and it was held that he was entitled only to a 1/3rd share. The plaintiff instituted a suit and obtained a decree declaring his right to the full house. After getting possession of the house, plaintiff sued on June 8, 1929, for mesne profits from May 27, 1917, to January 3, 1920 :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 109 of the Lim. Act and not by Art. 120 ; the cause of action arose when the mesne profits were received by the defendants and not when the plaintiff's right was declared ; and the suit was time-barred. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 615 = 34 P.L.R. 1085 = 146 Ind. Cas. 939.

——Art. 109—Starting point—When dispute pending.
Even where a claim to mesne profits is in dispute the starting point for a suit for mesne profits would be the date when the profits are received. The limitation cannot start instead from the date of an adjudication of the rights between the parties. In such cases the practice is for the plaintiff to institute a suit for mesne profits before the time expires and let it be stayed pending the disposal of the former litigation. 102 Ind. Cas. 96 = 49 All. 565 = 25 A.L.J. 425 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 446.

——Art. 109—Article 109 of the Limitation Act does not admit of any consideration as to when the cause of action may have accrued to the plaintiff, and claims of profits wrongfully received beyond three years before the suit cannot be recovered. 89 Ind. Cas. 1000 = 29 C.W.N. 973 = 43 C.L.J. 155 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 65.

——Art. 109—Recovery of mesne profits—Limitation.
Mesne profits can be claimed only against the person who is in actual possession and limitation for its recovery is three years from the date when the cause of action for its recovery arises. 79 Ind. Cas. 687 = 10 P.W.R. 1923 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 738.

——Art. 109—Suit for mesne profits—Starting point.
In a suit for mesne profits the actual receipt of the profits is the starting point for limitation. 10 N.L.R. 76 = 24 Ind. Cas. 866.

——Arts. 109 and 181—Suit dismissed—Claim for mesne profits—Defendant.
An application for mesne profits by defendant, a suit against whom is dismissed, should be made within three years from the date when possession was given to him and not from the date on which the suit was dismissed. 11 C.L.J. 541 = 6 Ind. Cas. 125.

——Arts. 109 and 120—When the profits are received—Meaning of.
The words " when the profits are received " in Art. 109 means when the profits actually received. So in a suit by a plaintiff for mesne profits for the period during which the defendant had been receiving owing to an illegal patni sale which was afterwards set aside by the plaintiff time would run from the time when the profits were received by the defendant and not when the plaintiff recovered possession. 13 C.W.N. 15 = 1 Ind. Cas. 157.

——Art. 109—Suit for—Limitation.

Mesne profits, unless shown to fall due otherwise, must be regarded as accruing due from day to day; consequently, all mesne profits due for the period antecedent to the three years previous to the institution of the suit are barred. 22 W.R. 126, not foll. (1903) 32 C. 118. But see 33 C. 23 = 32 I.A. 181 (P.C.).

4 "Wrongfully received"—Meaning of.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Applicability—Alienation by insolvent—Setting aside at instance of Official Receiver on ground of alienation being fictitious and nominal and that title never passed—Application by Receiver for rents and profits from alienee—Limitation—Position of alience—Constructive trustee.

Art. 109 of the Limitation Act only applies to suits and does not apply and cannot be made applicable to proceedings other than suits by mere analogy. The Act has to be construed and applied strictly. Hence Art. 109 does not apply to an application by the Official Receiver against an alienee from the insolvent for mesne profits of the property during the time he was in possession from the date of alienation to his date of dispossession by the Receiver in pursuance of decision in his favour holding that the alienation was nominal and fictitious and that title never passed from the insolvent to the alienee and setting aside the alienation. In such a case the alienee cannot be said to have been in wrongful possession within the meaning of Art. 109. He was in possession with the consent of the insolvent and as title never passed to him he became a constructive trustee. The claim of the Receiver against him is not really one for rents or profits, but one for accounts against a constructive trustee. In that view Art. 120 and not Art. 109 of the Limitation Act would apply. The right to sue does not arise until there has been an infringement or at least an unequivocal threat to infringe the right asserted in the suit. It is from that date only that the period of 6 years under Art. 120 would commence. 58 I.A. 1, foll.; 59 Mad. 1029 (F.B.), not foll. 52 Bom. L.R. 606 = A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 399.

——Art. 109—Mesne profits—Application for, by Official Receiver.

In an application under S. 54, Prov. Insol. Act, by the Official Receiver for setting aside the alienations as being fraudulent transactions, he also asked for mesne profits and interest. The District Judge dismissed the application but it was allowed by the High Court on appeal. No decision was, however, given on the question of mesne profits and interest. The Official Receiver subsequently applied for the recovery of mesne profits and interest :

Held, that the claim for mesne profits was governed by Art. 109 and the mesne profits could be recovered only for the period of three years immediately preceding the subsequent application. 58 M.L.W. 665 = (1945) 2 M.L.J. 557 = 1945 M.W.N. 772 = A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 207.

——Art. 109—Suit by Receiver to recover mesne profits—Limitation—Starting point.

Article 109 does not provide that the starting point of time for the recovery of mesne profits wrongfully received shall be the date when the cause of action to recover those profits arose ; the starting point is the date when the profits were received. The effect of the order setting aside the sale of the insolvent is to render the sale null and void from its inception. The receipt of the profits from the property sold is always wrongful, and the limitation for the suit by Receiver for recovery of mesne profits runs from the date of the receipt of profits and not from the date on which the sale was set aside. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 158 = 40 Bom. L.R. 100 = I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 107 = 173 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Art. 109 and Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908). S. 3 (5)—Persons recognised as "landholder" under S. 3 (5)—Position and rights of—Receipt of rents and profits by him—If wrongful—Suit to recover such rents and profits by person ultimately found to be entitled to them—Limitation.

Where pending the ultimate decision by the Civil Courts of a litigation relating to an estate, one of the parties is recognised by the Collector under S. 3 (5) of the Madras Estates Land Act as a "landholder" he becomes clothed with full statutory authority to collect the rents and profits during the whole period of his possession and as such his receipt of rents and profits cannot be said to be wrongful. Hence, Art. 109 of the Limitation Act would be inapplicable to a suit to recover the rents and profits so received by the statutory landholder by the person who is ultimately found to be entitled to the estate. The latter's right of action to recover such rents and profits would accrue only after the order of the Collection under S. 3 (5) of the Estates Land Act is cancelled as a result of the ultimate decision of the Civil Courts. He could not competently have sued the statutory landholder for an account of rents and profits each time that rents or profits were received. 75 I.A. 101 = I.L.R. (1949) Mad. 1 = 62 L.W. 879 = A.I.R. 1948 P.C. 175 = 1948 M.W.N. 429 = (1948) 2 M.L.J. 52 (P.C.).

——Art. 109—Reversioners suing transferees from widow as trespassers—Decree on the footing that possession of trespassers after widow's death was wrongful—Subsequent suit for mesne profits—Limitation.

Where the reversioners, electing to avoid the transfers effected by the widow, instituted a suit treating the transferees in possession as trespassers and a decree was passed in their favour on the footing that the defendants' possession after the death of the widow was wrongful against the plaintiffs and it was admitted that if the plaintiff had chosen to include a claim for mesne profits since the date of the widow's death in that suit, there was nothing to debar them from doing so :

Held, that the mesne profits claimed in a subsequent suit against the defendants were profits which had been wrongfully received by the defendants within the meaning of Art. 109. 1935 O.W.N. 985 = 1935 R.D. 451 = A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 515 = 11 Luck. 435 = 157 Ind. Cas. 960.

——Art. 109—Where an auction-purchaser of lands at a sale held in execution of a mortgage-decree sues the usufructuary mortgagee pendente lite who has collected rents from the tenants for the recovery of the amount so collected.

Held, that Art. 109 applies. The words 'wrongfully received' in Art. 109 include receipt of profits that cannot be legally substantiated. 66 Ind. Cas. 879 = 26 C.W.N. 386 = A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 235.

——Art. 109—Mesne profits—Suit for.

A suit for mesne profits, where the possession of the suit property was obtained by the defendant under the purchase at the Court auction sale, is governed by Art. 109 and not by Art. 120, Lim. Act. A.I.R. 1942 All. 358 = 1942 A.L.J. 411 = I.L.R. (1942) All. 671 = 1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 278 = 203 Ind. Cas. 223.

——Art. 109—Suit for mesne profits—Patni taluk sold under Reg. 8 of 1819—Sale set aside.

Art. 109 of the Lim. Act (15 of 1877) is applicable to a suit for mesne profits where the possession of the property in suit, viz., a patni taluk, was obtained by the defendant, under a sale held under Reg. 8 of 1819, which was subsequently set aside. The mesne profits can only be claimed for 3 years prior to suit. 22 C.W.N. 263 = 27 C.L.J. 257 = 43 Ind. Cas. 781.

——Arts. 109 and 120—Wrongfully received—Meaning of—Possession obtained under decree—Reversal in appeal—Suit for possession and mesne profits—Restitution.

A suit for the recovery of profits of immovable property by a person who was dispossessed in execution of a decree which was reversed in appeal and who was subsequently restored to possession, is governed by Art. 109. The words "wrongfully received" in the article include receipt of profits under a claim or title that cannot be legally substantiated. An appeal is only a continuation of the original proceedings and the appellate judgment dates back to and stands in the place of the original judgment for all legal purposes. Possession taken by a person pending an appeal is subject to the result of the appeal and must be deemed to have been without legal title if the original decree or order is reversed and is in this sense wrongful as against the person dispossessed. 17 M.L.T. 168 = 2 L.W. 169 = 28 Ind. Cas. 85.

——Arts. 109, 120—Applicability of—Mesne profits—Suit for—"When the profits are received"—Meaning of.

Where the defendants wrongfully received profits which were actually receivable by the plaintiff but for an illegal patni sale which was afterwards set aside, the period of limitation is three years from the time when the profits were received. The clause "when the profits are received" in the third column of Art. 109 means "when the profits are actually received." 8 C.L.J. 181 = 13 C.W.N. 15 = 35 C. 996 = 1 Ind. Cas. 157.

——Arts. 109, 120—'Wrongfully received'—Decree afterwards set aside on appeal—Does it include execution proceedings afterwards set aside on appeal for fraud?

The word 'wrongfully' means 'wrongfully in law'. Possession obtained under orders of a court in proceedings in execution of a decree, although such proceedings are afterwards set aside on appeal as tainted with fraud, is not wrongful within the meaning of Art. 109. Art. 120 applies to a suit for mesne profits against the person who was so in possession obtained in execution. (1905) 3 C.L.J. 182.

——Art. 110.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability and scope.
2. Registered deed.
3. Starting point.

1 Applicability and scope.

——Arts. 110 and 115—Applicability—Tenant holding over and continuing in possession—Suit against by landlord for an amount as rent or as damages for use and occupation—Limitation.

A tenancy by sufferance after the termination of an agricultural lease is converted into a tenancy of holding over by the receipt of rents for faslis subsequent to the termination of the lease. In such a case the possession of the person holding over would be that of a tenant and the claim against him for the same could only be on the basis of rent. The Article of the Limitation Act applicable would therefore be 110. Even assuming that the defendant was in permissive possession of the land and was not a trespasser and the action against him is one for damages for use and occupation such an action is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 120.

It is not correct to any that the breach of a statutory duty to surrender possession on expiry of lease is the basis for an action for damages for use and occupation.

The liability is referable to possession and enjoyment of the property by the ex-tenant and by reason of his enjoyment of the property the law implies an obligation to pay compensation. An action for damages for use and occupation against a tenant who continues in possession after the expiry of the lease is really based on an implied contract and not either on tort or on a statutory obligation and the only Article of the Limitation Act applicable to such an action is Art. 115. 1948 M.W.N. 761 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 421 = (1948) 2 M.L.J. 542.

——Arts. 110, 115 and 120—Suit for damages for use and occupation against tenant holding over—Article applicable. See U. P. TEMPORARY POSTPONEMENT OF EXECUTION OF DECREES ACT (X OF 1937), S. 5 (1) (a). 1946 A.L.W. 452.

——Arts. 110, 115 and 116—Scope.

Article 110 will affect Art. 115 but not Art. 116; in other words, Art. 115 will apply where there is no special provision (such as Art. 110), but Art. 116 will apply whether there is special provision or not. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 587 = 41 C.W.N. 1001 = 68 C.L.J. 539 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 631 = 173 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Arts. 110 and 115—Suit for rent based on kabuliyat.

Where the plaintiff's suit is based on a kabuliyat and the claim is for arrears of rent, the suit is governed by Art. 110 and not by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 222 = I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 335 = 45 C.W.N 787 = 199 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Arts. 110 and 120—Suit for damages on basis of rent.

When a purchaser under a revenue sale who has an option to annul an under-tenure under S. 37, Beng. Land. Rev. Sales Act, 1859, annuls the under-tenure without receiving any rent from the holder of it, and sues the holder for damages calculating the same on the basis of rent, it is a suit for damages and not for rent and is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 110. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 468 = 69 C.L.J. 220 = 43 C.W.N. 469.

——Art. 110—Suit for arrears of kattubadi—Limitation.

A suit for arrears of kattubadi is a suit for arrears of rent for the purposes of limitation and is governed by Art. 110. It is immaterial for the purposes of limitation whether the inamdar is a grantee of the melvaram only or of both the varams. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 147 = (1936) M.W.N. 129 = 43 L.W. 522 = 161 Ind. Cas. 336.

——Art. 110—Arrears of rent.

Article 110 applies to a suit purely for recovery of arrears of rent and a claim for more than three years would be barred by time. 1936 A.W.R. 1025 = A.I.R. 1937 All. 57 = (1936) A.L.J. 1384 = I.L.R. (1937) All. 140 = 166 Ind. Cas. 823.

——Art. 110—Rent—Fees charged by Municipality for issuing permission for use of Municipal land.

The fee charged by a Municipality for issuing a permission for use of Municipal land under the provisions of S. 90, Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act, is not rent within the meaning of Art. 110, and a suit for recovery of such fees is governed by Art. 120 as there is no other Article within which it can be brought. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 184 = 30 S.L.R. 148 = 165 Ind. Cas. 369.

——Art. 110—Rent—Money due on settlement by auction of date and toddy palm trees.

Money due on settlement by auction of date and toddy palm trees under which the settlement holders got the right to take the juice from the trees for the season does not amount to rent. Suit to realise such amount is governed by Art. 110. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 403 = 3 B.R. 173 = 17 P.L.T. 363 = 15 Pat. 626 = 166 Ind. Cas. 488.

——Art. 110—Jodi and Road cess.

Article 110 applies to a suit to recover arrear of jodi and road cess claimed by the Zamindar against the defendant who holds the suit land on service inam under him subject to payment of jodi as well. 21 Mad. 243 and 22 Mad. 11, foll. 74 Ind. Cas. 968 = 1923 M.W.N. 524 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 73.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Expiry of Kanom —Limitation for rent.

The limitation for a suit for rent after the expiration of a kanom is according to Art. 116 and not Art. 110. (1916) 2 M.W.N. 117 = 37 Ind. Cas. 83.

——Art. 110—Co-sharer occupying property—Suit for rent.

Suit for rent by a co-owner against his co-sharer who occupied the property after the term fixed for such period is governed by Art. 120 and not by 110 or 115. 39 Mad. 54 = 33 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Arts. 110 and 132—Applicability.

Plaintiff got on 8-4-1896 usufructuary mortgage of some properties and leased them to the mortgagors on the same day and on 1-9-1903 he again got usufructuary mortgage of the same properties and simple mortgage of some other properties. In 1912 plaintiff sued on both mortgages for sale of the properties. Held, that the document of 1903 made the properties liable for the interest that the suit was governed by Art. 132 and not Art. 110 and that he was entitled to interest. 2 L.W. 853 = 30 Ind. Cas. 818.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Arrears of Royalty and Commission.

A suit to recover arrears of royalty and commission is not one for rent within Art. 110 and is governed by Art. 116. 17 C.L.J. 372 = 19 Ind. Cas. 865.

——Art. 110—Suit by assignee of rent for arrears due—Bengal T. A. (1885), Sch. III, Art. 2 (b).

Suit by assignee of rent to recover the arrear from the tenant comes under Art. 110, Limitation Act and not under Art. 2 (b) Bengal Tenancy Act. 2 Ind. Cas. 989 (Cal.).

——Arts 110 and 120—Revenue public, Assignment of—Assignee's rights—Revenue Recovery Act, Ss. 2 and 42.

An arrangement by which the Government directs its ryot to pay to certain trustees of a mutt first crop assessment on the land instead of itself paying each to the said trustees is not an assignment by Government of the public revenue to the trustees. The trustees on default by the ryot in paying the assessment should bring the matter to the notice of the revenue authorities, and it would be competent to the latter to realize the arrear under Art. 2 of 1864 (Madras) and pay it over to the trustees, but the latter will not be entitled to sue in their own name for the amount. Ss. 2 and 42 of the Revenue Recovery Act are applicable only to the public revenue and not to realization of sums due to an institution like the plaintiff's mutt. If the trustees are entitled under the arrangement to sue, in their own names their claim is only a personal one against the holders of the fund for the time being. Where the trustees are not constituted inamdars but are entitled under the arrangement to sue in their own names for the first crop assessment, their claim is not one for rent within the meaning of the Rent Recovery Act or Art. 110 of the Limitation Act. Such a claim falls under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Where the trustees obtained a decree personally for their claim against the representatives of the original ryot, who agreed with Government to pay over first crop assessment to the trustees, the latter are not entitled also to a decree personally against the transferees who were possessed of the land. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 248 = 26 M. 730.

——Arts. 110, 120—Land Revenue Code (Bombay)—Rent—Revenue.

Art. 110 governs only cases where the parties stand in the contractual relation of landlord and tenant, and there is a contractual liability to pay rent. The claim of an inamdar or assignee from Government to recover the assessment from the occupant of the land is not rent and Art. 120 applies to the case. So held by Ranade, J. and Whitworth, J., Crowe, J., dissenting. (1900) 3 Bom. L.R. 135 = 25 B. 556.

2 Registered deed.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Applicability—Registered deed.

A suit for recovery of arrears of rent due under a registered mortgage-deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 110. 53 C.L.J. 522 = A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 790 = 133 Ind. Cas. 102 (1).

——Arts. 110 and 116—Registered Kabuliyat.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Suit for arrears of rent—Registered lease.

Art. 116 of the Lim. Act and not Art. 110 applies to a suit for arrears of rent due on a registered lease. 37 Bom. 656 = 15 Bom. L.R. 836 = 21 Ind. Cas. 315.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Suit for rent—Registered lease.

Suit for rent on a registered lease comes under Art. 110 and not Art. 116. 34 All. 464 = 10 A.L.J. 1 = 16 Ind. Cas. 146.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Suit for rent dismissed as barred—Registered lease brought to notice of Court later.

Where a suit for arrears of rent is dismissed as barred, and it is later found that the suit was based upon a registered lease the same can be let in evidence for purposes of saving limitation. 11 Ind. Cas. 6 (Cal.).

——Arts. 110 and 116—Suit for rent on registered lease and claim against partner of lessee.

A suit for rent based on registered lease and also a claim against a partner or assignee of such lessee comes under Art. 116. The assignees's liability is based on the covenant for rent. 7 M.L.T. 419 = 20 M.L.J. 555 = 6 Ind. Cas. 766.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Registered lease—Holding over—Claim for rent—Limitation.

Where after a registered lease has been determined and the tenant holds over, the claim for rent for the period of holding over is not a claim for compensation for the breach of a contract in writing registered. (1910) M.W.N. 186 = 11 Cr.L.J. 180 = 6 Ind. Cas. 754.

——Arts. 110, 116—Royalty, suit for.

A suit for recovery of royalty upon a registered document is governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 110. 19 C. 489, foll. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 724.

——Arts. 110, 116—Suit to recover rent on a registered lease.

A suit to recover rent based upon a registered lease is governed as to limitation not by Art. 116 but by Art. 110. 15 C. 22, dissented from. 1903 A.W.R. 210 = 26 A. 138.

3 Starting point.

——Art. 110—Starting point of limitation.

According to the terms of the kabuliyat by which the patni was created, the rent was payable in monthly instalments. The patni was sold on May 15, 1933, for arrears of rent for the year 1339, B.S. It was, however, set aside on June 1, 1936 and the patnidar obtained possession of the patni immediately after the sale was set aside on June 1, 1936. A suit for arrears of rent for the year 1339 B. S. was filed on August 9, 1937, against the patnidar :

Held, that the suit having been brought within three years from the date when the patni sale was set aside and the patnidar was restored to possession was not barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 222 = I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 335 = 45 C.W.N. 787 = 199 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Art. 110—Royalty for mining—Time for payment not stipulated—Proper time for payment.

Where money has to be paid under a contract and the contract does not specify when such money is payable, then the money must be paid within a reasonable time. Where the contract states the royalty at a known rate is to be payable in the absence of any direction as to when it is payable, the Court is bound to hold that it became payable within a reasonable time of the coal being abstracted.

Having regard to the nature of the debt and the amount, held that a reasonable time to pay this royalty would be three months or so. 21 P.L.T. 442 = A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 609 = 6 B.R. 889 = 188 Ind. Cas. 411.

——Art. 110—Fraud.

N brought a suit for rent against M and got an ex parte decree. In execution, he purchased the entire holding; subsequently the decree was set aside on the ground that the summons had been fraudulently suppressed. N then brought a suit for recovery of rents from M since the date of sale. It was contended by N that although the claim for rent for more than 3 years before institution of suit was barred by limitation, he could not sue M for rent because of his purchase and hence his claim for rent from the date of the purchase onward could not be barred by limitation as cause of action arose after the ex parte decree and the sale in N's favour were set aside.

Held, that N could not take advantage of his own fraud and since the cause of action was not suspended N's claim for rent for more than 3 years before institution of suit was barred by limitation. 3 Cal. 817 ; 23 Cal. 205, foll. 122 Ind. Cas. 241 = 8 Pat. 851 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 54.

——Art. 110—Starting point—Landlord and tenant the same person.

When there is no one competent to sue, there can be no cause of action, and consequently limitation cannot run, because there is no one against whom it can run. Although under Art. 110 the time from which period begins to run is " when the arrears become due ", that is usually the end of each fasli year, but a quite different time may in certain circumstances be the time from which limitation begins to run.

Where the landlord and tenant were the same person till plaintiff was appointed a Receiver of the landlord's interest, the arrears became due as soon as there was some one to whom they were payable, who was capable of enforcing the obligation by suit. In such a case arrears for more than three years can be had. 12 M.I.A. 244 and 27 Mad. 143, foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 5 = 46 Mad 579 = 17 M.L.W. 344 = 32 M.L.T. 174 = 1923 M.W.N. 252 = A I R. 1923 Mad. 461 = 44 M.L.J. 318.

——Arts. 110 and 116—Suit for recovery of rent by assignee of landlord—B.T. Act, Sch. III, Part 1 (2).

A suit by an assignee from the landlord for arrears of rent comes under Art. 110 and not Cl. 2 of Part I of the Sch. III of the B.T. Act. Though the tenant holds under a registered lease a suit for recovery of the rent recovered by the lease does not fall under Art. 116 of the Lim. Act. A registered patni lease provided that the rent should be paid in four instalments on four specified days in the year, held, that the period of limitation runs from the date on which each instalment fell due and not from the last day of the agricultural year. 1 Pat. L.J. 506 = 3 P.L.W. 179 = 38 Ind. Cas. 102.

——Art. 110—Suit for rent—Limitation—If runs from end of fasli.

In a suit by the landlord for rent, time for purposes of limitation runs not from the end of the fasli but from the date the rent becomes due under the terms of the tenancy. 37 Mad. 540 = 12 M.L.T. 437 = (1912) M.W.N. 960 = 16 Ind. Cas. 934.

——Art. 110—Rent suit—Limitation, if runs from issue of patta.

The right to each instalment of rent accrues on the date fixed for the payment of the instalment according to the contract between the parties, or according to the usage and not when a patta is tendered. Limitation would run from that date. 22 M.L.J. 451 = 11 M.L.T. 212 = (1912) M.W.N. 441 = 15 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Art. 110—Arrears of Jama—Ascertainment of Jama—C.P. Land Revenue Act (1881) S. 65 (A) (4) (d).

Where the amount of The kajama has to be fixed by Deputy Commissioner under S. 65 (A) (4) (d) no arrears of jama become due within Art. 110, Lim. Act, until the amount is finally ascertained by concluding the dispute regarding the jama, when the landlord has proceeded to have the proper rate of rent ascertained, time runs from the date on which the rent is finally determined and not from the close of the year for which the rent is payable. 7 N.L.R. 169 = 12 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Art. 110—Rent—Ascertainment of—Limitation.

Certain proceedings by tenants against their landlord were pending before High Court in the meantime the landlord tendered a patta for certain fasli which the tenants refused to accept. Thereafter, the High Court pronounced its judgment. The patta tendered was not according to the judgment of the High Court therefore, the landlord could not sue upon it, nor could he tender a fresh patta as the fasli in question had expired. The landlord then sued under S. 9 to enforce acceptance of the patta which he had tendered and within three years from the date this case was decreed, sued for rent for the said fasli ; held, that time runs from the date of adjudication of the landlord's suit as it was only then that the rent for the fasli was ascertained and recoverable by landlord. 20 M.L.J. 927 = 9 M.L.T. 82 = (1910) M.W.N. 831 = 8 Ind. Cas. 1091.

——Art. 110—" Ascertained rent "—Suit for enforcement of acceptance of patta—Decision by High Court declaring terms of patta rather permanently in a prior regular suit by tenant—Termination of summary suits.

A landholder tendered the patta for Fasli 1311, on the last date of the fasli ; and on the tenant's refusal to accept it instituted a summary suit for enforcement of acceptance of patta. During the pendency of the summary proceedings the High Court declared on 7-8-02 the terms of the patta in certain regular proceedings instituted by the tenants subject of course to variation if circumstances justifying it arise. The summary suits were disposed of finally and formally in terms of the High Court judgment only on 24-5-04. The present suits for rent were instituted just on the date of the expiry of the three years period from 24-5-04. Held that the rent for Fasli 1311 in respect of which summary proceedings were pending became ascertained only on the date of the formal determination of the summary suits and not on the date of the High Court judgment. 27 M. 143, followed. 20 M.L.J. 927 = 1910 M.W.N. 831 = 9 M.L.T. 82 = 8 Ind. Cas. 1091 = 36 Mad. 438.

——Art. 110—" Ascertained rent "—Meaning of—Civil litigation pending.

So long as proceedings are pending before civil courts the rate of rent is in suspense and therefore no arrears can be said to have been due within the meaning of the Limitation Act. 20 M.L.J. 821 = 7 M.L.T. 429 = 6 Ind. Cas. 209 = 1910 M.W.N. 227.

——Art. 110—Rent payable on a certain date—Tender of patta on a subsqeuent date—Effort of starting point of Limitation—Madras Rent Recovery Act.

Rent may become due at any particular time before the close of the fasli. Where the rent is ascertained (i.e.), when there is no dispute as to the amount or rent time for a suit to recover it will run from the date on which it was so due. The fact that the landlord did not tender the pattah till after a subsequent date cannot operate to postpone the starting point of limitation, when the fault was ascertained and was payable, 27 M. 143, commented on. (1906) 16 M.L.J. 486 = 29 M. 556 = 1 M.L.T. 315.

——Art. 110—Starting point—Sum of money payable on a certain date.

Although a sum of money may be payable on a specified date, the limitation for the recovery thereof need not necessarily run from the same date. (1906) 11 C.W.N 57 = 5 C.L.J. 19.

——Art. 110—"When the arrear becomes due."

The point of time at which rent may become due within the meaning of Art. 110 though usually, is not necessarily always the close of the period in respect of which it is to be paid. Legislation or custom or express contract, or the special circumstances of any case may make rent become due at a different point of time. Semble :—In the Limitation Act having regard to the object of the Act, falling due of rent should mean the falling due of an ascertained rent which the tenant is under an obligation to pay and which the landlord can claim and if necessary sue for. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 162 = 14 M.L.J. 1 = 6 Bom. L.R. 241 = 27 M. 143 = 31 I.A. 17 (P.C.).

——Arts. 111, 116—Applicability.

Sale by A to B on February 5, 1924—Kabala reciting payment of full consideration—Suit by A on April 25, 1924, for declaration the sale-deed was fraudulent and that no consideration passed—Suit dismissed also holding that part of consideration passed—Suit by A on August 28, 1928, for enforcement of statutory charge for unpaid purchase-money—Decree for sale of property for unpaid purchase-money—Only portion of amount realised —Application under O. 34, r. 6, Civil P.C. for balance —Suit, held governed by Art. 111 and not Art. 116 and hence application barred. 15 Pat. 753 = 3 B.R. 191 = A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 44 = 18 P.L.T. 176 = 166 Ind. Cas. 599.

——Art. 111—Applicability.

Article 111, does not apply to a case where no time was fixed for completing the sale and the purchase-money was not payable till some date after conveyance of the property. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 296=154 Ind. Cas. 432 (2).

——Art. 111—Applicability.

Article 111, is applicable only in two cases, and in no other. One is where the suit is to recover unpaid purchase-money after the completion of the sale. Then the suit has to be instituted within a period of three years from the date of the completion of the sale. The other is the case where the title is accepted after the time fixed for completion, when the suit should be instituted within three years from the date of the acceptance. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 240 = 11 O.W.N. 691 = 10 Luck. 26 = 149 Ind. Cas. 529.

——Arts. 111 and 120—Applicability.

Suit by de facto guardian—Money left with vendee to be paid to minors on attaining majority—Suit by guardian as reversioner for the money—Article 120 and not Art. 111 applied. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 860 = 35 P.L.R. 161 = 15 L. 35 = 147 Ind. Cas. 269.

——Arts. 111, 116—Scope—Sale of part of property by registered deed—Prior mortgage of whole property by vendor—Part of purchase-money reserved with vendee to pay off mortgage—Purchaser's default in payment—Sale of property in execution of mortgagee's decree—Suit by vendor for recovery of amount—Limitation—Starting point.

Article 111 governs suits for unpaid purchase-money payable to or to the order of the vendor under an agreement to sell and is independent of rights arising by the deed of sale because the terminus a quo is the date fixed for completing the sale or the date of acceptance of the title whichever is later. But where the contract to sell is embodied in a registered sale-deed the unpaid vendor can rely upon Art. 116.

The plaintiff's father sold to the defendant on April 28, 1919, a portion of the property which had been mortgaged by the vendor to a third party prior to the sale. A certain amount was reserved with the purchaser for redemption of the mortgage. The purchaser paid the balance and took possession of the property but he did not pay the amount of the mortgage to the third party who brought a suit in 1924 impleading the mortgagor-vendor, and purchaser-defendant and having obtained a decree, sold the whole of the mortgaged property in execution on October 29, 1926 including the portion sold to the purchaser-defendant. The vendor instituted a suit for the amount reserved with the purchaser with interest on December 4, 1926 :

Held, that inasmuch as the purchaser had, under a registered instrument undertaken to satisfy the mortgage-debt of the vendor with part of the purchase-money, there was implied in that agreement, an agreement to indemnify the vendors against payment by the purchaser, that such agreement was broken only when the vendor's property was sold in execution of the decree of the creditor, and that consequently limitation for the case began to run when the property was sold on October 29, 1926 ; that the suit was governed by Art. 116, that, therefore, the suit was not barred. 37 L.W. 503 = 64 M.L.J. 526 = (1933) M.W.N. 370 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 424 = 56 L.W. 724 = 144 Ind. Cas. 550.

——Arts. 111 and 116.

Vendor and purchaser—Price reserved with vendee for payment of vendor's creditors—Failure to pay—Suit by vendor for refund—Article 116 and not Art. 111 applied. (1931) A.L.J. 985 = A.I.R. 1931 All. 419= 131 Ind. Cas. 686 (2).

——Art. 111—Undertaking to pay debts.

Some portion of the purchase-money was left by the vendor with the vendee to be paid to his (vendor's) creditor. The vendee failed to pay. Thereupon the creditor sued the vendor, attached and purchased this debt due from the vendee. He then sued the vendee to recover the debt from him basing his claim on the debt purchased by him.

Held, that by his purchase of the debt the creditor stepped into the shoes of the vendor and obtained his right to recover the debt on account of breach of contract to pay the same to the creditor as agreed in the sale-deed. His suit therefore would be governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 111, although he based it on the debt purchased by him. 34 All. 459, foll. 118 Ind. Cas. 445 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 395.

——Art. 111—Compromise in suit.

Under a compromise in a suit for partition of joint property in order to adjust the difference between the prices of the properties which fell to the share of the two contesting parties a certain sum was to be paid by D to B. The amount was to be paid after one month. B brought a suit to recover the amount. D contended that the suit was time barred according to Art. 111.

Held, that it was not a case of sale and amount in suit could not be described as purchase-money. Therefore Art. 111 did not apply but the case was governed by Art. 120. 111 Ind. Cas. 29 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 662.

——Arts. 111 and 116.

Suit for compensation for breach of contract in writing registered to pay off mortgage is governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 111 or Art. 62. 97 Ind. Cas. 185 = 9 N.L.J. 107 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 429.

——Arts. 111, 132—Suit by vendor to enforce charge for unpaid balance of purchase-money—Transfer of Property Act, S. 55 (4) (b).

Held, that a suit for the enforcement of the payment of purchase-money by sale of the purchased property is a suit to enforce a statutory charge differing from the lien which an unpaid vendor in equity possessed for the recovery of the balance of his purchase-money, and that the article applicable is Art. 132 and not Art. 111. 31 C. 57 ; 21 A. 154 and 29 M. 305, foll. 1891 A.W.N. 1 p. 130 overruled. (1908) A.W.N. 71 = 5 A.L.J. 243 = 30 A. 172 (F.B.).

——Art. 111—Not applicable for enforcement of vendor's statutory lien—T.P.A., S. 55. See ART. 132. 29 M. 305.

——Art. 111—Suit to recover unpaid purchase-money and to enforce vendor's lien.

A suit to recover unpaid purchase-money and enforce the vendor's lien is governed by Art. 111. 21 M. 141, foll. (1900) 24 M. 233.

[Overruled in part by 29 M. 305. The difference of view as to the applicability of the Article to enforce a charge has now been set at rest by the express limitation of the Article in the new Act to personal remedy—Ed.].

——Arts. 112 and 120—Applicability—Company—Winding up—Suit by liquidator to recover unpaid call without approaching Court and asking it to make a call — Limitation — Enforcement of statutory liability — Procedure — Limitation. See COMPANIES ACT, Ss. 156 AND 186. 52 Bom. ——Art. 112—Company in liquidation—Liability of member to pay calls barred under Article.

A member of a company in liquidation is liable in respect of unpaid calls even though the calls were made by the company before it went into liquidation and the suit of the company for its realisation had become barred by time under Art. 112. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 1015 = 36 P.L.R. 282 = 155 Ind. Cas. 16.

——Art. 112—Liquidation.

A member of a company in liquidation is liable to official liquidators in respect of unapid calls even though as against the company the realization of such calls may have become barred by limitation. 38 All. 347, foll.

Liquidation gives the official liquidators a cause of action which the company may not itself have possessed. Just as a claim, if brought by the company, might be held to be barred by limitation, but not, if brought by the official liquidators, in the same manner a claim which might be held to be barred by the C.P. Code if brought by the company can be preferred by the official liquidators under the provisions of the Companies Act. 113 Ind. Cas. 91 = 50 All. 476 = 26 A.L.J. 256 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 272.

——Art. 112—Starting point of limitation.

Where the shares of a company are forfeited by virtue of its articles of association a suit brought within 3 years from the time of forfeiture is within time. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 235 = 1940 N.L.J. 306 = I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 114 = 190 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Art. 112—Starting point of limitation.

Where a company forfeited the shares of a member more than three years after the calls on the shares had become payable and instituted a suit against the member for the money payable in respect of the forfeited shares :

Held, that the forfeiture of the shares could not revive claims to share money which had become barred under Art. 112 at the time of forfeiture, and the suit was not maintainable. 10 O.W.N. 457 = 8 Luck. 723 = A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 285 = 146 Ind. Cas. 825.

——Art. 112—Starting point of limitation.

A certain company known as the City Brick Co., issued a number of shares and mortgaged them to the plaintiff. By a resolution of the City Brick Co., the unpaid calls were made payable on August 1, 1921, but the shareholders took no notice of the calls. The plaintiff sued on his mortgage and obtained a decree on April 17, 1924. Meanwhile, on July 27, 1924, the City Brick Co., went into liquidation. The plaintiff bought the unpaid calls at the sale in execution of the mortgage decree on August 14, 1924, and then sued the shareholders making the Liquidator of the City Brick Co., also a party to the suit :

Held, that Art. 112 applied and that the suit was time-barred ; limitation as regards the shareholders, viz., the defendants began, to run from and after August 31, 1921. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 382 = 54 C.L.J. 588 = 137 Ind. Cas. 380.

——Art. 113—Applicability.

To the suit for specific performance of contract Art. 113 applies. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 225 = 42 P.L.R. 194 = 189 Ind. Cas. 418. See also 9 Ind. Cas. 243 (Oudh).

——Art. 113—Suit for possession by holder of perpetual lease—Limitation.

In cases, where a lease may be made by an oral agreement accompanied by delivery of possession, if possession has not been delivered to the lessee, the lease is not effective and there is no demise or transfer ; consequently the right to possession is not vested in the lessee. In order to make it effective, it is necessary that the lessee should obtain possession over the property leased. In such a case a suit for possession would be one for specific performance of an agreement to lease. In all other cases, where a lease is made by a registered instrument, it effects an actual demise and the right to possession becomes vested in the lessee. One of the rights of such lessee is to obtain and remain in possession over the property leased. This right may be enforced by the lessee as well as by any transferee of his, in whom the lessee's right is vested from time to time. Such a lessee has a right to enforce his right to obtain and remain in possession which he has acquired under the lease against the lessor by a suit and also a right to bring a suit for ejectment against a third person who happens to be in possession of the property leased and against whom the lessor does not choose to take any action. The rights acquired by the lessee under the perpetual lease are real rights which may be enforced by a suit for possession and not by a suit for specific performance, and to such a suit Art. 113, does not apply. ——Art. 113—Counter-claim for specific performance in suit for ejectment.

In the mofussil Court, a counter-claim for specific performance in a suit for ejectment is incompetent ; any such claim must be enforced by separate suit within the time prescribed by Art. 113.

Where, in a suit for ejectment, the defendant who claims specific performance of a verbal contract in possession has delayed enforcing his rights until, at a date subsequent to the raising of the ejectment-action, his right to institute the counter-action became barred by limitation, he would be no better off than he would have been with the limitation bar in operation when the ejectment action was instituted. ——Arts. 113 and 116—Vendor's suit for specific performance on covenant in sale-deed.

Where the purchaser of a property agrees to release it from a mortgage over it and he fails to so release it, the cause of action for a suit by the vendor against the purchaser arises either on the date of which the covenant was undertaken to be fulfilled or in any case not later than the date when the vendor called upon the purchaser to fulfil it. Such a suit is governed by Art. 116, and if for specific performance, by Art. 113. 60 C. 761 = A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 641 = 146 Ind. Cas. 863.

——Art. 113—Purchaser's suit after possession.

Quaere.—Where an intended transferee of immovable property has taken possession of the property but the requisite legal documents have not been executed, is the position of the transferee affected by the fact that the period or the time during which the transferee would be entitled to claim specific performance had passed by reason of the provisions of Art. 113, Limitation Act. 123 Ind. Cas. 799 = 11 P.L.T. 478 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 53.

——Art. 113—Possession and specific performance.

Vendee whose suit for specific performance is barred by Art. 113, cannot recover possession of the property sold because a suit for possession, i.e., to enforce his right under the contract with reference to property is essentially one for specific performance of a contract to which Art. 113 applies. A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 345, foll. 116 Ind. Cas. 70 = A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 298.

——Arts. 113 and 144—Compromise-deed.

A compromise-deed stated that the parties had agreed to exchange certain properties but that the exchange would take place on a future date. The suit was brought to enforce the terms of the compromise.

Held, the suit was therefore for specific performance of a contract to hand over the ownership rights in the property and not for possession of property in which ownership right had completely passed by the compromise. So the suit was governed by Art. 113 and not by Art. 144. 72 Ind. Cas. 1040 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 672.

——Art. 113—Specific performance—Suit for, barred.

The terms of the contract of 1888 were as follows : "On looking into the accounts the amount found due to the said Saravana Pillai was Rs. 99,568-15-6. Saravana Pillai consented to receive this sum of rupees, etc., and sell the aforesaid villages to Sri Maharajulangaru." The suit for possession by Sri Maharajulangaru was instituted in 1900.

Held, the suit becomes one for the specific performance of a contract which is barred by Art. 113. 68 Ind. Cas. 172 = 45 Mad. 641 = 16 M.L.W. 169 = 31 M.L.T. 146 = 49 I.A. 336 = 27 C.W.N. 408 = 21 A.L.J. 297 = 37 C.L.J. 426 = 25 Bom. L.R. 640 = A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 345 = 44 M.L.J. 740 (P.C.).

——Arts. 113 and 144—Contract, meaning of—Suit for possession—Chaukidar's lands transferred to Zamindar—Patnidar's suit to enforce his rights—Limitation—Bengal Act (VI of 1870), S. 51.

"Contract", primarily means a transaction which creates personal obligations but it may, though less exactly refer to transactions creating real rights. It is in this latter sense that the term is used in Bengal Act VI of 1870, S. 51. A suit by a patnidar for settlement and possession of chaukidari chakran lands transferred to the zamindar is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 113. 46 Cal. 173 = 16 A.L.J. 964 = 25 M.L.T. 8 = 29 C.L.J. 193 = 45 I.A. 162 = 1 U.P.L.R. ——Arts. 113 and 144—Agreement to lease—Interest in immovable property.

The agreement to grant or renew a lease is not immoveable property and a suit for specific performance is governed by Art. 113 and not Art. 144 of the Act. 7 Bur. L.T. 268 = 8 L.B.R. 64 = 24 Ind. Cas. 911.

——Art. 113—Contract to resell.

A suit for specific performance of a contract to resell is governed by Art. 113 and Limitation runs from the date of refusal. 29 Ind. Cas. 898. (Mad.).

——Arts. 113 and 144—Suit by heir for possession.

Suit by one heir for possession of his share by partition of the property, in joint possession, of all the heirs, under an agreement entered into 5 years before suit, is governed by Art. 144 and time runs from the time the agreement is impeached by one heir. 20 P.R. 1913 = 101 P.W.R. 1913 = 185 P.L.R. 1913 = 19 Ind. Cas. 411.

——Art. 113—Mortgage by conditional sale—Agreement as to foreclosure—Suit for possession in terms of agreement—Limitation.

Where certain occupancy tenants mortgaged their holding to one of the village proprietors who on a general partition of the estate agreed that on foreclosure of the mortgage he should give up the land and receive a proportionate amount in respect of his share, a suit to recover one's share under the above agreement, though possession of immoveable property was involved in it, is one for specific performance of the agreement governed for purposes of limitation by Article 113 of the Limitation Act. 138 P.W.R. 1911 = 217 P.L.R. 1911 = 11 Ind. Cas. 299.

——Arts. 113 and 116, 83 and 110—Contract to pay money.

A suit for failure to pay money according to contract is a suit for compensation for breach of contract and not one for specific performance and is therefore governed by Art. 116 read with Art. 83 and not by Art. 113. 5 M.L.T. 211 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1121.

——Arts. 113, 144—Lessor and lessee—Contract of lease—Suit for specific performance—Suit for possession of immovable property.

Where the lessors contracted to give possession to the lessees but did not do so and the lessee brought a suit for possession more than three years afterwards. Held, that the suit was one for specific performance of the contract and was governed by Art. 113 and not Art. 144 and the suit was barred by time. 1908 A.W.N. 245 = 5 A.L.J. 529.

——Arts. 113, 116, 83—Suit on covenant—Exchange deed—Indemnity clause, suit on—No suit for specific performance—Cause of action.

A registered exchange deed provided as follows : "There is no dispute in respect of the said lands. If disputes should arise, the respective party shall be answerable to the extent of his private property. Held, that a suit on the covenant by one of the parties, on dispossession is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 113 ; and that the cause of action arose on the date of the dispossession, the covenant being a special covenant to indemnify, though in the absence of the special contract, the covenant will be a covenant for title, in which case the cause of action would have arisen on the date of the deed. (1908) 18 M.L.J. 477 = 31 M. 452 = 5 M.L.T. 211.

——Art. 113—Suit by putnidar against zamindar for posession of lands granted on putni.

A suit by a putnidar for possession of land granted by a zamindar on putni in 1854 and subsequently resumed by Government and made over to the zamindar only in 1899 is governed by Art. 113. (1907) 34 C. 564.

——Art. 113—Suit for recovery of immovable property based upon a compromise—Compromise not itself a document of title.

Certain revenue court suits were referred to arbitration and an award was made to the effect that the "plaintiff's claim in all the suits be dismissed with costs and that the defendant bear his own costs". The award, however went on to declare that, according to the terms of a compromise, arranged between the parties, the parties should transfer the one to the other different portions of the property which was in dispute. No steps were actually taken to complete the transfer thus recited as having been agreed to between the parties, but one of the parties brought a suit to recover the properties agreed to be transferred to him. Held, that the limitation applicable was that prescribed by S. 113 as the suit was not one for possession of property to which Art. 144 would apply. 1904 A.W.N. 72=26 A. 497.

——Arts. 113, 144. See 17 M.L.J. 505=30 M. 486 = 2 M.L.T. 443.

2. Starting point.

——Art. 113—Scope of—"Date fixed"—Meaning—Agreement to sell pending suit—Starting point for suit to enforce specific performance of.

When the date is fixed, under the first part of column 3 of Art. 113, Limitation Act, limitation begins to run forthwith as the date is certain. But where no such time is fixed and where the party against whom the limitation runs is not in a position to know of the occurrence of the contingency contemplated by the contract, time begins to run only when he has notice of the refusal of the performance. The words "date fixed" are comprehensive to include a date which can be ascertained with reference to an event certain to happen.

An agreement to sell certain property pending a suit was in these terms: "As regards the balance of Rs. 2,400 since a suit has been pending concerning the same property. I shall receive it before the Sub-Registrar upon executing a sale-deed the moment the suit is disposed of? On a question as to the starting point of limitation for a suit to enforce specific performance of the agreement.

Held,: The parties under the document contemplated a date which may be ascertained with reference to an event certain to happen that is disposal of the suit pending at the time of the agreement and that would be the starting point. 63 L.W. 605 = 1950 M.W.N. 412 = A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 820 = (1950) 2 M.L.J. 163.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—'Fixed', significance of.

The period of limitation for a suit for specific performance of a contract, which is governed by Art. 113 commences from the date fixed in the contract itself which is to be specifically enforced, whether the contract be oral or in writing. The force of the word 'fixed' implies that it should be fixed definitely and should not be left to be gathered from surrounding circumstances of the case. A.I.R. 1933 All. 410 = (1933) A.L.J. 300 = 145 Ind. Cas. 586.

——Art. 113—Starting point.

Where there is no time specified for the performance of a contract for sale, time would run from the date of refusal by the vendor to convey. Article applicable is Art. 113, Limitation Act. 49 C.W.N. 371 = A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 355.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—Contract of sale.

A contract of sale was entered into on July 18, 1934, and the vendor promised to execute the sale-deed when both of his brothers who were residing elsewhere returned to the village in May-June, 1935:

Held, that this was too indefinite to be regarded as fixing a "date" for the performance of the contract and the period of limitation must be computed from the date of refusal to perform, i.e., the date of the reply notice sent by the vendor wherein he denied the contract. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 218 = 56 L.W. 679 = 1943 M.W.N. 718 = (1943) 2 M.L.J. 584 = I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 742 = 215 Ind. Cas. 310.

——Art. 113—Applicability—Starting point of limitation.

The question as to whether the first part of Art. 113 is or is not applicable, must depend to a great extent on the language of the agreement.

By an agreement between A and B, B agreed to finance the litigation of A in respect of certain property in return for a part worth about one lac of Rupees of the recovered property, knowing well that the litigation would cost about Rs. 9,000. It was also provided that if an appeal was preferred to the Privy Council, B would get a greater share. A was a man of weak intellect and was in the habit of drinking. B instituted a suit for the specific performance of the contract more than three years after the date of the decree but within three years of the refusal to perform the contract:

Held, that B was entitled to get his share after the decree which undoubtedly meant when the decree became unassailable. The decree had not become unassailable. It was liable to be challenged in an appeal to the High Court, and on the decision of such an appeal, by an appeal to his Majesty in Council. The date of the decree could not, therefore, be regarded as the date on which B became entitled to his share. It must be, therefore, held that no date for the specific performance of the contract was fixed within the purview of Article 113. The second part of Art. 113 would, therefore, be applicable to the facts of the present case and the suit was within time. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 23 = 181 Ind. Cas. 728.

——Art. 113—Suit to enforce agreement to partition—Limitation—Starting point.

Where a deed of agreement to partition states that the partition should be effected within six months from the date of the agreements by getting the properties divided according to share by calling certain gentlemen and get the partition deed executed and registered, the suit to specifically enforce the agreement is governed by Art. 113, and time runs after the lapse of six months from the date of the agreement. 61 C.L.J. 551 = 163 Ind. Cas. 663.

——Art. 113—Applicability—Starting point of limitation.

A suit to enforce the rights arising under a contract comes under Art. 113. If no time is fixed for the purpose of enforcing the obligation in the contract, limitation runs from the date of refusal of the defendant to perform his part of the contract. 39 C.W.N. 716 = 163 Ind. Cas. 347.

——Art. 113—Specific performance—Starting point.

If the suit is for specific performance of the contract of sale, then it would be governed by Art. 113, Limitation Act and time would begin to run from the date when there was failure to perform it. A.I.R. 1936 All. 870 = 1936 A.W.R. 1197 = 166 Ind. Cas. 908.

——Arts. 113 and 114—Applicability.

Where a partition deed provided that if any inequality was discovered in the shares allotted by the deed, the person who had excess land in his possession was to make good the deficit in the other side by giving sufficient portion of land from a certain field adjourning the latter's share, and a suit for possession was filed on the strength of this provision :

Held, that the mere discovery of an inequality could not have the effect in law of putting an end to the separate ownership created by the partition deed and making the sharers co-owners in respect of the land from which the excess was to be made good so as to render the possession of the defendant a mere co-owner's possession ; the provision was a mere covenant and the suit for possession, a suit for specific performance of the covenant ; and the suit was therefore governed by Art. 113 and not by Art. 114 or Art. 120. (1935) M.W.N. 540 = A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 559 = 42 L.W. 208 = 156 Ind. Cas. 879.

——Art. 113—Specific performance—Prior purchaser vigilant about her rights—Delay of nine years in filing suit—Whether can be excused.

Where it cannot be said that the plaintiff has slept over her rights for she obtained possession of the land at the time when the contract was entered into, and since that time, has been in possession and enjoyed the usufruct thereof and the real right of action had accrued only some time before institution of proceedings :

Held, that a lapse of time of nine years was not fatal to an action for specific performance of an execute contract. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 310 = 154 Ind. Cas. 80.

——Art. 113—Sale of property—Agreement to reconvey—Denial of agreement.

Where a person sells a property and takes a separate agreement to re-sell it to him and subsequently, on his demanding the re-sale, the purchaser denies the agreement, the denial amounts to a refusal to perform the agreement within the meaning of Art. 113, Limitation Act. 36 Bom. L.R. 290 = A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 171 = 151 Ind. Cas. 536.

——Art. 113—Performance is refused.

Where there is no date fixed for the performance of the contract, time will run against the plaintiff from the date of the refusal of a demand by the plaintiff for performance. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 491 = 36 Bom. L.R. 1068 = 154 Ind. Cas. 680.

——Art. 113—Agreement to convey specific area of land—Limitation—Starting point.

Where the parties entered into a compromise in 1918 under which the defendant agreed to give a certain area of land to the plaintiff and the plaintiff sued in 1929 for recovery of the land ;

Held, that the suit was one to enforce an executory contract, falling within Art. 113 and as there was no date fixed for performance, and no proof of demand and refusal more than three years before the suit, the suit was not time-barred. 32 P.L.R. 761 = A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 24=135 Ind. Cas. 233.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—Refusal must be unconditional.

The terminus a quo under Art. 113 in a case where no date for the performance of the contract is fixed, is the date when the plaintiff has notice of the refusal of performance and refusal for the purposes of this rule means unconditional refusal. 33 P.L.R. 562 = A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 36 = 139 Ind. Cas. 121.

——Art. 113—Second part of the article applies only when the first does not apply.

If a case ostensibly falls within the contents of Col. 3, Art. 113, Cl. 2 should not be resorted to.

G purchased certain land in auction from Government, and deposited the earnest money. As he had no money to pay the remaining instalments, he sold the land to D who was to pay the remaining instalments. G agreed that when he would acquire full proprietary rights in the land, he would execute a sale-deed in favour of D. D also could not pay all the instalments and transferred his rights to L and agreed to transfer the land to L after G transferred the same to him. The remaining instalments were paid by L and G got the full proprietary rights on 13th June, 1920 and L brought a suit for specific performance on 19th July, 1924.

Held, that under the Punjab Colonization Act G did not get full proprietary rights as a matter of course from the payment of the last instalment and the first portion of Art. 113 had no application. The second portion of Art. 113 therefore applied and time began to run L had notice that the performance of the agreement had been refused. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1020=31 P.L.R. 636.

——Art. 113—Performance depending on two contingencies.

The first part of Col. 3, Art. 113, does not apply to a loosely worded agreement in which the promisor undertake to execute a sale-deed, not on the happening of a particular event but after payment of the last instalment in the Government Treasury and after the acquisition of proprietary rights—events which cannot have happened simultaneously. 119 Ind. Cas. 491 = 11 Lah. 69 = 31 P.L.R. 352 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 34.

——Art. 113—Refusal to perform.

In order to bring a case in the second part of Col. 3, Art. 113, it is necessary to establish not only that the promisor refused to perform the contract but that the promisee had knowledge of such refusal more than three years prior to the suit for specific performance of a contract. 119 Ind. Cas. 491 = 11 Lah. 69 = 31 P.L.R. 352 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 34.

——Art. 113—Where an agreement stated that another lease would be executed, but in the contract no date was fixed for the execution of the second deed,

Held, the three years period of imitation for specific performance began to run against the plaintiff when the first had notice that the defendant refused to execute it. 102 Ind. Cas. 305 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 353.

——Art. 113—Where a date is not fixed for specific performance, time does not commence to run till specific performance has been demanded and refused. 79 Ind. Cas. 278 = 1 Bur.L.J. 171 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 44.

——Art. 113—Redemption of mortgage.

Where a usufructuary mortgage provided that redemption was to be effected within two years and that on the failure to do so, the mortgagee had the right to take the land out-right.

Held, that though the clause as to forfeiture should, under the law in force prior to the T.P. Act, be construed strictly and given effect to if the mortgagors failed to redeem yet where the mortgagees prevented redemption in spite of mortgagor's readiness to redeem, that would give the mortgagors a cause of action. Regarded as a suit for specific performance of the convenant to allow redemption in two years, the period of limitation would be three years from the date on which redemption was refused. 76 Ind. Cas. 624 = 2 Bur. L.J. 119 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 232.

——Art. 113. Where in pursuance of a contract to sell the vendor gives the vendee possession of the property, limitation agdainst the vendee will only commence to run from the date when the vendee became aware that the vendor refused to complete the contract. 72 Ind. Cas. 6 = 11 L.B.R. 462 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 125.

——Art. 113. The defendant through her attorney agreed to convey six of the well-sites received for 1902 and three of the well-sites to be received for 1903 and in pursuance of this agreement the defendant conveyed to the plaintiff six specified well sites of those issued in 1902, but failed to convey three of those received for the year 1903,

Held, if specific performance could properly be sued for the suit would be governed by Art. 113 but time could run from the date on which the planitiff had notice that performance was refused. 4 UB.R. 41 = 4 U.B.R. 38 = 4 U.B.R. 35 = A.I.R. 1921 U.B. 16.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—Contract for sale of immovable property—No time fixed—Purchase of property in execution sale with notice—Suit for specific performance—Limitation.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract of sale in which no time was fixed for execution of the conveyance the plaintiff impleaded as additional defendant an execution purchaser of the property with notice of the contract. The auction-purchaser was added at a time more than 3 years from the date of the refusal by the vendor to perform his contract. It was not alleged or proved that the auction-purchaser had refused performance of the contract more than three years before he was impleaded. Held, that the suit was instituted within time under Article 113 of the Limitation Act. 38 M.L.J. 29 = 11 L.W. 35 = (1920) M.W.N. 122 = 55 Ind. Cas. 533.

——Art. 113—Agreement to lease.

Where a person who has agreed to execute a lease fails to do so and the promisee does not demand execution within three years from the completion of the agreement a suit for specific performance is barred. (1920) P.H.C.C. 17 = 4 P.L.J. 447 = 52 Ind. Cas. 452.

——Arts. 113 and 149—Contract to re-exchange—Suit on..

Where the parties to a deed of exchange expressly agree that, in the event of obstruction to the other partly in enjoyment of the property exchanged each should return to the other what is taken, the covenant is in the nature of a condition subsequent. A suit based on the covenant is governed by Art. 149 and not by Art. 113 of the Limitation Act. The defendant in such a suit cannot avail himself of the plea of a bona fide purchase from one of the parties to the exchange as the transferee cannot get a larger estate than the transferor. 42 Mad. 690 = 51 Ind. Cas. 939.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation.

The time for limitation in a suit for specific performance begins to run from the date the cause of action arises, that is, from the date fixed for the performance of the contract and not from the date of payment of consideration or taking possession. 4 P.L.W. 192 = 44 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—Right to claim specific performance vesting in third party.

In cases when the right to sue for specific performance vests in a third party to whom the ascertainment of the date on which performance becomes due, need not necessarily be known, the doctrine certum est quod atem reddi potest will not apply and time begins to run from the date of refusal of performance. 41 Mad. 18 = 33 M.L.J. 35 = 6 L.W. 192 = 41 Ind. Cas. 807.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for specific performance of a contract is to be brought within 3 years from the date when the performance is refused. 43 Cal. 790 = 23 C.L.J. 26 = 20 C.W.N. 370 = 35 Ind. Cas. 305.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitations—Transfer of Property Act, S. 54.

A vendee who has paid up the purchase-money can bring a suit to have a registered deed executed for completing his title under S. 54 of the T.P. Act unless it is barred by Art. 113 of the Limitation Act. Where the date for the performance is not fixed, time under Art. 113 runs from date of refusal. 33 Ind. Cas. 761 (L.B.).

——Art. 113—Notice of refusal—Specific performance of unregistered sale.

The limitation for a suit for specific performance of a contract to sell (the sale-deed being unregistered) is three years from the time when the vendee knows that vendor refuses to sell. 9 Bur.L.T. 45 = 32 Ind. Cas. 536.

——Art. 113—Notice of refusal—Performance of contract of sale.

Time under Art. 113 of the Act for specific performance of contract of sale begins to run from the date when plaintiff comes to known of the refusal to execute the document and when no sale is specified. 9 Bur.L.T. 816 = 32 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation.

When there is no date fixed for performance of a contract time begins to run from the date when the performance is demanded by one party and refused by the other. (1912) M.W.N. 1004 = 17 Ind. Cas. 399.

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation—Suit for specific performance—No time fixed for performance.

In suits for specific performance where no time it fixed for performance, limitation commences from the time where performance was asked for and refused. 11 Ind. Cas. 25 (Sind).

——Art. 113—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit for specific performance of a covenant, time begins from the date when performance is refused. 36 Cal. 675 = 9 C.L.J. 523 = 1 Ind. Cas. 626.

3. Suit to enforce award.

——Art. 113—Applicability.

Article 113 does not apply to a claim under an award which is not a declaratory one. 36 Bom.L.R. 174 = A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 140 = 151 Ind. Cas. 156.

——Arts. 113 and 120—Suit to enforce award.

——Arts. 113 and 148.

Limitation for a suit to enforce an award depends on the nature of the relief sought ; if the award is to the effect that the defendants shall hold the land as usufructuary mortgagees for a definite sum, and the plaintiffs sue for redemption, the Article applicable is Art. 148. 70 Ind. Cas. 517 = 4 U.B.R. 124 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 108.

——Art. 113—Suit to enforce award—Limitation.

The word 'Contract' in Art. 113 of the Limitation Act does not include 'award.' 51 Ind. Cas. 999 (Cal.).

——Arts. 113, 115 and 144—Suit to enforce award—Limitation.

An award does not embody a contract and a suit to enforce it is not governed by Arts. 113, 115 and 116 of the Limitation Act. The limitation applicable to the enforcement of the relief given by the award being dependent upon the nature of the relief. A suit for possession of immovable property in the basis of an award is governed by Art. 144. 4 O.L.J. 487 = 42 Ind. Cas. 116.

——Arts. 113, 115 and 176—Suit to enforce award.

Art. 176 of the Limitation Act does not apply to a regular suit for the recovery of money due under an award or for specific performance of an award ; the period of limitation for such a suit would be six years under Art. 120. 40 Ind. Cas. 821 (U.B.).

——Art. 113—Suit to enforce award—Suit for money due in terms of award.

A suit to recover a balance of money due under the terms of an award is not really a suit for " the specific performance of a contract " within Art. 113 of the Limitation Act, when the Court orders the payment of the balance it is only directing payment for compensatio for non-compliance with the terms of the award. 16 All. 3 and 5 All. 263, not oll. 265 P.W.R. 1912 = 259 P.L.R. 1912 = 32 P.R. 1913 = 16 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Arts. 113, 116 and 120—Suit to enforce award—Suit to recover money under an award—Nature.

On a reference, the arbitrator gave an award on January 12th, 1904, providing that the defendant should pay Rs. 350 to the plaintiff by June 27th and in case of default the plaintiff should recover the same with interest. The defendant made default and the plaintiff sued in 1909 to recover the sum with interest. Held, that the suit was not one for specific performance of a contract and was not governed by Art. 113, but Art. 116 or 120 and was within time. 34 All. 43 = 8 A.L.J. 1138 = 11 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 113—'Contract'—Suit upon an award.

A suit based on an award for recovery of immovable property is not a suit for specific performance of a contract and Art. 113 does not apply to such a suit. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 162: 33 Cal. 881.

Nor a suit to enforce an award. 23 M. 593, foll. (1901) A.W.N. 83 = 23 A. 285.

4. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 113—Absence of demand—Effect—Suit premature as limitation not commenced—Effect.

Where a suit is premature because no demand was made prior to institution, the plaint cannot be returned. The Court will have to consider whether costs should be disallowed 11 Ind. Cas. 25 (Sind).

——Art. 115.

1. Applicability and scope.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Applicability—Suit for money on basis of ekrarnama.

A suit for money on the basis of the terms of an ekrarnama on an allegation that the defendant failed to perform the obligations imposed by the ekrarnama, is governed by Art. 115, and not by Art. 120 S. 10, of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 207.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Applicability.

Suit by Government servant for arrears of pay. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 102. (1947) 2 M.L.J. 389 =A.I.R. 1947 F.C. 23 (F.C.).

——Art. 115—Applicability—Suit by member against District Council for travelling allowance—Travelling Allowance Rules, R. 79 (i) (xvii)—C.P. Local Self-Government Act, S. 73 (2).

R. 79 (i) (xvii) of the Travelling Allowance Rules of the District Council, merely empowers the Council to ay members a certain travelling allowance if and when it so desires. There is, therefore, no statutory obligation to pay under that rule. The obligation arises out of the further step which the District Council takes to implement its powers. The District Council says, in effect, by its resolution that if members undertake certain journeys then in the exercise of the powers conferred on the Council, it will pay them certain sums of money. When journeys are undertaken there is an implied contract to pay. That contract is not in writing registered and so Art. 115 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit by a member against the District Council to recover travelling allowance which the latter has undertaken to pay by its resolution. S. 73 (2) of the C.P. Local Self-Government Act does not apply to a breach of contract, and is, therefore, inapplicable to the suit. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 392 = 224 Ind. Cas. 12 = 1946 N.L.J. 358 = A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 153.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit for recovery of Provident Fund money—Limitation.

A suit for recovery of the amount standing to the credit of the plaintiff in the Provident Fund of Calcutta Corporation is governed for purposes of limitation, not by Art. 115, but by Art. 120. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 463 = A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 144.

——Art. 115-A—Suit for arrears of rent under a kabuliyat is not governed by Art. 115 but by Art. 110. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 222 = I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 335 = 45 C.W.N. 787 = 199 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Arts. 115 and 52.

In a suit, for balance due on account of goods sold and delivered from time to time, the evidence was of sale and delivery of goods and there was no evidence that the buyer ever had any acccount submitted to him or that he ever agreed to be bound by any account ;

Held, that the case did not fall under Art. 115 but under Art. 52. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 158 = 42 Bom.L.R. 227 = I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 127 = 188 Ind. Cas. 300.

——Arts. 115 and 49—Cause of action arising ex delicto —Article 49 and not Art. 115 applies. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 177 = 1939 N.L.J. 190 = I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 498 = 183 Ind. Cas. 386.

——Art. 115—When the gold is purchased from the defendant himself and is left with him for preparation in ornament, a suit for breach of contract in respect of it is governed by Art. 115. (1937) 20 N.L.J. 198.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit for recovery of dues under Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act—Limitation.

Article 115 and not Art. 120 applies to a suit by a Municipality governed by Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act, for recovery of dues from the defendant, who is given the right to collect the tolls in a market under a settlement for two years, where the sum sought to be recovered is due to the plaintiff under a contract by which the defendant had bound himself to pay a certain amount annually and there had been a breach of this contract by the defendant. 18 P.L.T. 252 = A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 360 = 3 B.R. 361 = 16 Pat. 302 = 169 Ind. Cas. 364.

——Art. 115—Suit for maintenance—Suit for maintenance by even a Hindu under contracts is governed by Art. 115, Limitation Act. 16 P.L.T. 789 = A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 158 = 2 B.R. 333 (2) = 161 Ind. Cas. 478.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Articles 115 and 116 are not controlled by S. 24, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 510 = 166 Ind. Cas. 48.

——Arts. 115 and 36—Suit by landlord against tenant for unauthorised use of water—Art. 36 and not article 115, applicable. (1936) M.W.N. 196 = 70 M.L.J. 255 = A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 250 = 43 M.L.W. 429 = 161 Ind. Cas. 538 (2).

——Arts. 115 and 52—Article 115 is a general provision applicable to all actions ex contractu not otherwise specifically provided for.

D contracted with N to supply goods and render services to N for a certain sum. After the contract was broken, P purchased the debts due to D from on account of goods supplied and services rendered by D to N. P sued N for the debts.

Held, that Art. 115 and not Art. 52 applied. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 222.

——Arts. 115 and 57—Plaintiff advancing money to defendant—Defendant doing work for plaintiff—Suit for balance of moneylent—Article 57 and not Art. 115 applies. 3 A.W.R. 190 = A.I.R. 1934 All. 126 = 157 Ind. Cas. 295.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit on basis of compromise merged in decree—Limitation.

Article 115, applies either to a case of express or implied contract and not a contract in writing registered, that is to say, it may be an express contract or an oral contract or a written contract so long as it is not registered and it also does apply to a case of implied contract. The fact that a compromise between the parties has merged in a decree, nonetheless makes it a contract within the meaning of Art. 115. Consequently, a suit for compensation based on a contract contained in a compromise which has merged in a decree is governed by Art. 115 and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 7 = 12 Pat. 792 = 15 P.L.T. 197 = 148 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Arts. 115, 116—Breach of contract.

Articles 115 and 116 apply to cases where compensation, or damages, is asked for in respect of a breach of contract. These sections apply when the plaintiff alleges that there was a good and valid contract and that the defendant has broken the terms of the contract. In a case where Arts. 115 or 116 would apply, the very basis of the suit is that the contract has been broken, is no longer in existence, and damages are sought. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 148 = 13 Pat. 192 = 150 Ind. Cas. 975.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit by judgment-debtor against decree-holder for over-realisation.

A suit by a judgment-debtor to recover the amount realised by the decree-holder in excess is governed by Art. 115 or Art. 120 and not by Art. 97. 33 P.L.R. 1084 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 112 = 140 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Art. 115—Promise to pay barred debt.

Where the customer of a Bank who had an overdrawn floating account with the Bank sent a letter to a Bank after the expiry of the period of limitation for a suit to recover the balance, to the following effect. "I promise to pay the balance as soon as I am able to arrange within a period of six months."

Held, (i) that there was a promise to pay a barred debt within the meaning of S. 25, Contract Act.

(ii) that a suit to recover money on the basis of this promise was governed by Art. 115. 33 P.L.R. 42 = A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 212 = 13 L. 448 = 135 Ind. Cas. 673.

——Art. 115—Scope.

Article 115 is a residuary article for actions ex contractu and can only be applied when no other article of the Limitation Act Schedule is appropriate.

As long as there is a contract between the parties which is not in writing and which can be covered by Art. 115, Art. 120 cannot be applied. 7 O.W.N. 769 = A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 395.

——Art. 115—Contract for sale—contract becoming impossible—Limitation Act, Arts. 60 and 115.

In a certain contract for the sale of property the vendor was to satisfy certain conditions before completion of the contract, but no time was specified for it. The vendor mortgaged the property to another and afterwards it was sold in satisfaction of that mortgage. The purchaser then sued for recovery of deposit money.

Held, that the purchaser need not have sued within a reasonable time. It was Art. 97 and not 60 nor 115, that governed such a case, and time was to be counted since when the property was sold in satisfaction of the mortgage, because it was then that the contract, having become impossible of performance, ended. 117 Ind. Cas. 700 = 33 C.W.N. 115 = 56 Cal. 455 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 216.

——Art. 115—Suits to enforce award.

Suits to enforce awards are governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115 or Art. 113. 117 Ind. Cas. 153 = 23 S.L.R. 417 = A.I.R. 1929 Sind 168.

——Arts. 115, 116 and 120—Acceptance of award—Suit for money due under award.

Suits for recovery of a balance of money due under the terms of an award would be governed by Art. 115 or Art. 116 of the Limitation Act according to the nature of the document only if the parties sign the arbitrator's award in token of acceptance and merge the award into a contract between themselves. Where reliance is placed on the arbitrator's award alone, the article that would apply is Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 265 P.W.R. 1912 = 259 P.L.R. 1912 = 32 P.R. 1913 = 16 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Art. 115—Trust created by will.

A will of 1887 provided that certain properties should be given to B and his mother by way of maintenance and if those properties were sold, they should receive Rs. 40 in lieu of the income. In 1908, the executors entered into an agreement with the beneficiaries by which the properties were sold and the maintenance amount was agreed to be paid. In 1919 B's mother died and B brought the suit for maintenance.

Held, the suit was in time; it was in substance based upon a trust created in his favour by the will and that it was governed by Art. 120 or 123 and not Art. 115 30 P.L.R. 689 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 834.

——Art. 115—Action for debts—Article 115 applies to an action for debt just as much as Art. 116 does or may do. 110 Ind. Cas. 33 = 52 Bom. 477 = 30 Bom. L.R. 549 = A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 252.

——Art. 115—Mutual open and current account—Article 85 and not Art. 115 applies. 107 Ind. Cas. 533 = 7 Pat. 238 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 221.

——Art. 115—Suit for contribution.

Where one of several co-mortgagors redeems the property and files a suit for contribution and interest against this co-mortgagors he would be allowed interest only for a period of three years. 92 Ind. Cas. 559 = 12 O.L.J. 313 = 2 O.W.N. 413 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 613.

——Art. 115—Price of produce not paid.

Suit to recover the amount payable in default of payment of produce is one for compensation for breach of the agreement to pay a share of produce and falls within the purview of Art. 115. 72 Ind. Cas. 480 = 5 L.L.J. 366 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 149.

——Art. 115—Suit on Hatchita.

A suit on a Hatchita stamped and signed by the debtor, containing a statement of adjustment of accounts and consisting in itself a distinct and unqualified promise to pay the amount found due on adjustment is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 64. In every case where Art. 64 is made applicable there need not be always a reciprocity of demands. 76 Ind. Cas. 603 = A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 578.

——Art. 115—Debt payable in kind.

A claim for recovery of a debt payable in kind falls under Article 65 or 115 and not under Art. 120. 65 Ind. Cas. 691 = 4 L.L.J. 268 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 271.

——Arts. 115, 128 and 131—Application of.

In a suit by a widow of one who was adopted by the defendant's step-mother simultaneously with adoption of the defendant by the step-mother's co-wife for maintenance by virtue of a decree passed on compromise it was held :—(1) that as simultaneous adoptions are void, the plaintiff did not belong to the family of the original owner and that she could not plead limitation allowed by Art. 128. 23 C. 645, foll. (2) That her case was governed by Art. 115 because she had a compromise decree. (3) That she can proceed by way of execution of the compromise decree. (4) that Article 131 does not apply. 26 Ind. Cas. 939 (Cal.).

——Arts. 115 and 116—Mortgagee suing for money—Contract.

Where a mortgagee's right to sue for money is a right arising from a contract between the parties Arts. 115 and 116 will apply, but when it is an equitable right Art. 120 will apply . 1913 U.B.R. 1=20 Ind. Cas. 360.

——Arts. 115 and 68—Advance under contract—Suit to recover.

A obtained a sum of Rs. 200 as advance from B contracting to supply camels to B. In default A was to return the amount of the advance as well as Rs. 200 more as penalty. B sued A for recovery of advance. penalty, and interest, more than 3 years after the default but within six years therefrom, Held, that the suit for the recovery of Rs. 200 advanced was governed not by Art. 115 of the Limitation Act, 1877, but by Art. 68. Consequently the suit for this sum was within time under the Punjab Loans Limitation Act, 1904. The suit was barred under Art. 115 for the penalty of Rs. 200 for the breach of the contract. 6 P.L.R. 1912=219 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 616.

——Art. 115—Covenant for quiet enjoyment.

A suit, for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment, should be brought within 3 years of the breach. 7 M.L.T. 229=6 Ind. Cas. 290.

——Arts. 115, 120 and 132—Malikana, suit for—Suit not to enforce the charge upon the land.

A suit for recovery of malikana, the plaintiff not seeking to enforce the charge upon the land for which it is payable, is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 132. (1905) 33 C. 998.

——Arts. 115, 116 and 36—Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Suit for compensation for loss of mortgaged property by reason of mortgagee allowing sale for arrears of revenue—Transfer of Property Act, Ss. 76, 92—Suit for loss by mortgagee cutting trees—Knowledge no factor. 19 M.L.J. 498=6 M.L.T. 239=3 Ind. Cas. 433=33 Mad. 71.

——Art. 115—See ART. 145. 8 C.W.N. 500=31 C. 519.

2. Bailment.

——Art. 115—Suit against Government as carriers—Limitation.

Section 2, of the Carriers Act defines "common carrier" as a person other than the Government engaged in the business of transporting for hire property from place to place. Therefore in a suit against Government for Carriage Art. 115 of the Limitation Act is the appropriate article and not Art. 30. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 160.

——Art. 115—Compensation for breach of contract.

The defendant borrowed from plaintiff his car, and while it was in defendant's use met with an accident, which resulted in considerable damage to the car. The plaintiff spent a certain sum for its repairs, and instituted a suit for recovery of the amount spent.

Held, the case was one of bailment which arose out of a contract and that the defendant being liable for damages in breach of contract by reason of his failure to carry out the obligation imposed on him by S. 151, Contract Act, the case was governed by Art. 115 of Sch. 1, Limitation Act, and not by Art. 36. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 518=10 O.W.N. 1105=9 Luck. 189=145 Ind. Cas. 1001.

——Art. 115—Bailment.

A handed over to B certain ornaments to be used in religious procession in 1924. The ornaments were stolen. B admitted the liability in 1924, but denied it later on and A filed a suit in 1928 for recovery of the ornaments.

Held, that Art. 115 applied to the case and not Art. 49 or Art. 120 ; that the ornaments had been taken on loan and the transaction was of the nature of the bailment as defined in S. 148, Contract Act ; that the ornaments were to be returned within reasonable time according to S. 46, Contract Act, i.e., when the owner demanded them after the ceremony was complete. Time therefore ran from the date when B should have returned the articles to A and suit by A brought three years after that date was barred by time. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 395=7 O.W.N. 769=126 Ind. Cas. 682.

3. Claim for use and occupation.

——Art. 115—Applicability.

Suit for damages for use and occupation of shop after notice to vacate. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 39, 115 and 120. 1946 A.L.J. 305 (2)=A.I.R. 1947 All. 31.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit for assessment of fair and equitable rent and compensation for use and occupation.

A suit instituted for the assessment of fair and equitable rent and for the recovery of compensation for use and occupation of the land is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115 where the defendants are perfectly willing to pay reasonable rent according to contract and do not agree with the plaintiff only as to the figure at which a reasonable rent should be fixed. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 400=190 Ind. Cas. 631.

——Art. 115—Claim for use and occupation.

A claim for compensation for use and occupation of land comes under Art. 115. In a suit for rent based on a lease, the landlord cannot recover compesnation if the claim on the lease fails owing to its cancellation. 7 M.L.T. 419=20 M.L.J. 555=6 Ind. Cas. 766.

4. Company.

——Arts. 115, 116 and 120—Application by liquidator for damages against directors.

An application by a Liquidator under S. 235, Companies Act, for damages for misfeasance or breach of contract by Directors is neither governed by Art. 115 nor by Art. 116, but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 293=3 B.R. 477=168 Ind. Cas. 786.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Application under S. 235, Companies Act.

An application under S. 235, Companies Act, is not governed by Art. 116 but by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 103=143 Ind. Cas. 713.

——Art. 115—Company—Suit against director for misfeasance.

Article 115 of the Limitation Act will not apply where part of the contract was in writing registered, i.e., contained in the articles of association. Article 115 is not strictly applicable to a misfeasance in the nature of a breach of trust, nor is Art. 116, as "breach of contract" is not the sole liability sued on nor is it the usual nomenclature for a breach of trust whether specific or quasi. 54 Bom. 226=32 Bom. L.R. 232= A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 572.

——Art. 115—Suit for unpaid calls—Limitation—Starting point.

Where, on the failure of a shareholder to pay the calls due by him, the directors forfeited his share and the company subsequently went into liquidation and within 3 years of the date of forfeiture, the Liquidator of the Company sued for recovery of the amounts due as unpaid calls with interest thereon till date of suit :

Held, that the suit was within time being governed by Art. 115 under which limitation arose only after 3 years of date of forfeiture. (1932) A.L.J. 354=54 A. 541=A.I.R. 1932 All. 342=140 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Art. 115—Call after forfeiture.

Article 28 of Table A imposes, on forfeiture, a new obligation or a new debt, and as the shareholder thenceforth ceases to be a member of the company, his liability to pay future calls is gone, and all that is left is this new liability to pay the company " all moneys which at the date of forfeiture were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares." Such a person is liable with regard to unpaid calls, not as a contributory, either as a present or a past member of the company. but as a debtor to the company. This gives the company a fresh cause of action and the period of limitation for a suit to enforce this new obligation begins to run from the time the shares are forfeited and the proper article applicable is Art. 115, Limitation Act. 110 Ind. Cas. 33=30 Bom. L.R. 549=52 Bom. 477=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 252.

——Art. 115—Call after forfeiture.

One of the company articles provided that any member, whose shares might be forfeited, would notwithstanding be liable to pay all calls and instalments owing at the time of forfeiture. The defendant a shareholder did not pay calls and therefore his shares were forfeited and the company filed a suit to recover according to the article

Held, that the article in question embodied a special contract, the cause of action arose when the company forfeited the shares, and, therefore the suit to recover what was due from the defendant on his shares was within time, if filed within 3 years of the date of forfeiture. 88 Ind. Cas. 96=49 Bom. 715=27 Bom. L.R. 574=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 321.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Suit for dividends.

The relation between the shareholder and the Company on a declaration of a dividend by the Company is not a contractual relation as contemplated by Artts. 115 and 116 in respect of the dividend. 42 Mad. 33, Overruled. 94 Ind. Cas. 515=49 Mad. 468=1926 M.W.N. 450=24 M.L.W. 102=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 615=50 M.L.J. 520 (F.B.).

5. Compensation—Meaning of.

——Arts, 115 and 116—'Compensation' meaning of.

The word " compensation " in Art. 115 as well as in Art. 116 denotes a sum of money payable to a person on account of loss or damage caused to him by a breach of contract. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 222.

——Art. 115—Suit to recover damages caused by the breach of contract.

Article 115 is a general provision applying to all actions ex contractu not specially provided for otherwise. The word " compensation " in that Article as well as in Art. 116 has the same meaning as it has in S. 73, Contract Act, and denotes a sum of money payable to a person on account of loss or damage caused to him by the breach of a contract. A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 198 (F.B.), foll.

A suit to recover one-third of the cost of constructing a shop which the defendant the joint owner of the site had agreed to pay and failed to do so, is governed by Art. 115 and not Art. 61. 107 Ind. Cas. 493=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 442.

——Art. 115—Compensation and damages—Meaning of.

The expression compensation is not ordinarily used as an equivalent to damages, although compensation may often have to be measured by the same rule as damages in an action for a breach. The term compensation signifies that which is given in recompense, an equivalent rendered ; damages, on the other hand constitute the sum of money claimed or adjudged to be paid in compensation for loss or injury sustained the value estimated in money, of something lost or withheld. The term compensation etymologically suggests the image of balancing one thing against another. Its primary signification is equivalence, and the secondary and more common meaning is something given or obtained as an equivalent. 73 Ind. Cas. 17=37 C.L.J. 108=27 C.W.N. 210=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 507.

——Art. 115—Articles supplied and work done—Compensation.

The word " compensation " in Art. 115 as well as in Art. 116 has the same meaning as it has in S. 73 of the Indian Contract Act, and denotes a sum of money payable to a person on account of the loss or damage caused to him by the breach of a contract. A suit therefore to recover a specified sum of money on a contract is a suit for compensation within Art. 115.

Where the plaint, in a suit for the recovery of a certain sum of money alleged to be due to the plaintiff for material supplied and work done, makes no mention of the price of the materials as distinct from the price of the work, and contains no reference whatsoever to two claims and there is only one individual claim, and that is for the balance of the money due to the plaintiff on the basis of a contract.

Held, the claim as laid in the plaint is an indivisible one ; it cannot be split up into two portions. It must, therefore, be held that it falls neither under Art. 52 nor under Art. 56 but is governed by Art. 115. 66 Ind. Cal. 490=2 Lah. 336=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 198 (F.B.).

6. Continuing breach.

——Art. 115—Undertaking to pay off mortgage.

Where the vendee agreed to pay off a usufructuary mortgage on the property but no time was fixed for the payment of the money,

Held, that the vendee's failure to pay off the mortgage on the date on which the sale-deed in his favour was executed, constituted breach of covenant on his part, that the breach took place once and for all and that there was no continuing breach which would give successive causes of action to the plaintiff (the vendor) to sue. 34 All. 429, foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 804=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 222=A.I.R. 1925 All. 488.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Continuing breach—Continuing covenant—Breach of cause of action—Indemnity clauses.

A case in a deed of sale was as follows : " should disputes of any kind arise at any time touching the said land on the part of anybody we will clear them all with your own funds, and allow the sale to continue to you uninterruptedly without any kind of loss to you,"—Held, that this was an indemnity clause and should be construed as a continuing covenant. A suit for indemnification will be in time if brought within 6 years of the date on which it is held by a Court of law that neither the purchaser nor his vendor had the rights given to him by the sale-deed. 35 M.L.J. 124=24 M.L.T. 104=8 L.W. 142=47 Ind. Cas. 924.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Continuing breach—Test—Nature of remedy available to a tenant for a breach.

The nature of the remedy available to a tenant under a covenant or contract for quiet enjoyment depends upon the nature of the breach and the test as to whether a breach is continuous or not is ; if the plaintiff, can sue only for the damage actually occurred to him up to the date of suit the breach is continuing and if he can sue for the whole of the damage occurred and prospective the breach is single and final, e.g., a breach of a covenant for title. 40 M. 910=19 M.L.T. 318=3 L.W. 443=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 343=30 M.L.J. 575=35 Ind. Cas. 254.

6. (a) Deposit.

——Arts. 115 and 66—Fixed deposit.

Where deposit is for a fixed period, the money is payable at the specified time, viz., the expiry of that period and the article applicable is either Art. 66 or Art. 115. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 338=164 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 115—Recovery of deposits.

The period of limitation for a suit to recover money deposited by the plaintiff with the defendant on the understanding that it will be returned on the happening of a certain event is three years beginning from the date on which the event happened and the article applicable in such a case is either 62 or 115. 5 Cal. 830 ; 37 Mad. 175 and 33 M.L.J. 577, Foll. ; 12 Cal. 113, not Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 115—Deposit—Suit to recover.

A suit to recover deposit money payable by lessees on execution of the lease is governed by Art. 115, I.L.A. 1 L.W. 858=25 Ind. Cas. 812.

7. Implied contract.

——Art. 115—Implied contract.

A Municipality passed a resolution whereby a licence of a market for one year was granted to the licensee who agreed to pay a certain sum for the period of licence. No contract or document under seal in compliance with S. 64, Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act, was made by the Municipality, and the licensee therefore went into possession of the market under the resolution. After a period of seven months he offered to surrender his rights which surrender was accepted. The Municipality sued the licensee for the compensation for the period during which licensee was in possession, more than three years after the breach of the agreement :

Held, that the licensee was under an implied obligation to pay compensation for the period during which he was in possession and therefore Art. 115, applied and the suit was barred. 17 Pat. 277=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 429=19 P.L.T. 653=4 B.R. 801=177 Ind. Cas. 272.

——Art. 115—From the fact that a Municipal Committee continues to hold a cattle fair every year on the land of another, an inference can be drawn that there is an implied contract between the owner of the land and the Commitee that the latter should pay to the owner and that the owner should allow the Committee to hold the fair.

Consequently, where the owner files a suit against the Committee for compensation not received, the suit will be governed by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 267=178 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 115—Applicability.

Uncertified payment towards decree—Execution ignoring payment—Suit for amount uncertified against decree-holder—Limitation—Starting point—Breach of implied contract—Contract Act, S. 73. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 97 AND 115. A.I.R. 1951 Pat. 348.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Implied contract—Uncertified payment—Execution—Damage—Cause of action.

A decree-holder, who receives payment of money out of Court from the judgment-debtor and fails to certify and applies for execution commits a breach of the implied promise to certify. Every application for execution or realisation of money by the decree-holder gives a fresh cause of action and the suit for damages is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 120. (1919) M.W.N. 3=36 M.L.J. 175=48 Ind. Cas. 810.

——Art. 115—Implied Contract—Suit against agent not authorised to represent.

"Implied Contract" in Art. 115 is used in the sense in which it is understood in English Law and not as used in the Contract Act. When an agent untruly represents himself to be authorised and deals with the plaintiff, a suit for damages against the agent is governed by Art. 115. 38 Mad. 275=25 M.L.J. 256=14 M.L.T. 360=(1913) M.W.N. 884=21 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Arts. 115, 116 and 120—Covenant for title—Suit for damages.

Where in 1896, by a sale, a person got possession of the property but was evicted in 1905 by the Jenmi on which he sued the vendor in 1909 for damages and refund of purchase-money. Held, that the implied covenant of title was broken at the sale in 1896 and since the covenant did not admit of continuing breach the claim based on that covenant for title was time-barred. The claim based on failure of consideration was within time since the contract of sale was not void and the consideration failed on the date of dispossession 14 M.L.J. 524=(1913) M.W.N. 1029=1 L.W. 110 =21 Ind. Cas. 740.

8. "Registered"—Meaning of.

——Art. 115—Articles of association—"Registered".

Per Marten, C.J.—The word "registered" in Arts. 115 and 116 of the Limitation Act includes articles of association registered under the Indian Companies Act and is not confined to registration under the Indian Registration Act. 42 Mad. 33, Foll. 54 Bom. 226 =32 Bom. L.R. 232=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 572.

9. Starting point.

——Art. 115—Starting point.

A joint family firm consisted of father and sons, plaintiff had thavani account with the firm. There was a partition subsequent to which the father died. There was no evidence as to novation of the original contract. On the son's refusal to pay, the plaintiff instituted a suit for the amount due under the account :

Held, that limitation began to run from the date of refusal and not from the date of partition. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 129=195 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Art. 115—A suit for damages for breach of contract is governed by Art. 115 and the terminus a quo is the date on which the alleged contract was broken. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 118=12 L. 167=184 Ind. Cas. 130.

——Art. 115—Suit for damages for breach of contract in failing to supply according to specification.

A certain company A informed a firm B that they wanted to erect a weaving shed and asked them to send a complete specification for the same. Firm B sent specifications containing 3 estimates of different machines with a single covering letter which gave the total price of all the machinery and stated that one-third of such total price should be paid in advance with the order. The order was placed and the delivery taken. It was, however, found that some machinery was not of the same make as ordered. Company A filed a suit against firm B for damages for breach of contract. Almost all the machinery including the subject-matter of the suit was delivered more than three years before the date of the suit but a part of an engine was delivered within three years. The trail Court dismissed the suit as time-barred on the ground that the order was an order for separate pieces of machinery and time ran from the delivery of each machine :

Held, that the suit was within time. Article 115 applied. The clause about payment showed conclusively that the order was regarded as a single whole and time ran only from the date of the last delivery. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 277=182 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 115—Suit by drawee of hundi against drawer.

Where a person owes money to another for which he executes a hundi drawn on a third person in favour of the creditor and the drawee accepts and obtains discharge subsequently by executing a document in favour of the creditor, the limitation for suit against the debtor, for money paid by the drawee is three years, and the cause of action arises when the discharge is obtained and not on the date of the acceptance of the hundi.

To the above suit, Art. 115 is more appropriate than Art. 65. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 668=38 P.L.R. 276 =163 Ind. Cas. 928.

——Art. 115—Starting point of limitation.

In a suit for compensation for a breach of contract, the breach of contract per se gives rise to a cause of action and time begins to run from date of breach and not from date of actual loss or damage. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 510=166 Ind. Cas. 48.

——Art. 115—Novation.

Where originally the relationship between plaintiff and the defendant was that of a creditor and surety but that relation is superseded by an agreement by which the surety unconditionally undertakes to pay the amount the surety becomes the debtor and a suit against him within three years of the agreement should be decreed even though the agreement has been entered into on failure of the principal debtor to pay. 1935 A.W.R. 492=156 Ind. Cas. 964.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Suit for compensation against person pretending to be agent.

Where a Muhammadan son, who is not his father's authorised agent, mortgages his father's land and holds himself out to be an agent, S. 235 and not S. 230 of Contract Act applies to the case. Limitation for a suit for compensation commences from the date on which the father obtains a decree in a suit for possession of the mortgaged property. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 49=151 Ind. Cas. 58.

——Art. 115—Lease deed—Suit for damages for the years 1920, 1921 and 1922—Term of lease expired on March 3, 1922 and the suit was filed on April 30, 1925 :

Held, the contract was hit by Art. 115. 58 C. 930 =A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 85=133 Ind. Cas. 179.

——Art. 115—Suit against surety—Limitation.

A took a loan from B on September 10, 1920, and signed a hahi entry. No date for repayment was fixed. On the same date, C wrote a letter to B saying that he will pay the amount borrowed by A in case A did not pay the same, B insitituted a suit against A and C in 1925 :

Held, that the suit so far as C was concerned, was governed by Art. 115, Limitation Act and as the loan was payable at once, on the date of the loan, the cause of action against C began to run from the same date and the suit was barred against C even though the time as against A might be six years under the Punjab Loans Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 691=33 P.L.R. 59=13 L. 240=132 Ind. Cas. 590.

——Arts. 115, 65 and 120—Suit upon letter of guarantee—Limitations as against surety, commencement of.

Art. 115 governs a suit by a creditor against a surety on a letter of guarantee executed by the later in respect of a debt payable on demand on a promissory note and not Art. 65 and limitation runs from date of execution of the guarantee notwithstanding a stipulation in the guarantee that the creditor may look for repayment to the surety if the principal debtor makes default. Art. 115 also applies to a case of liability on a simple debt due and is not limited to cases of damages for breach of contract. 25 C.L.J. 91=21 C.W.N. 479= 39 Ind. Cas. 205.

——Art. 115—Pledgor and pledgee—Unauthorised conversion of pledged property.

Where a pledgee having power to sell for default takes over in effect as if upon a sale the pledged property to himself without the pledgor's authority, or giving credit for their full value to him the pledgee is guilty of an unauthorised conversion and the pledgor is entitled to have his property back or its full value but only on payment of debt. A suit brought by the pledgor under the above circumstances within three years from the date of the alleged sale is well within time whether the suit be regarded as one for redemption governed by Art. 145 or as one for damages for breach of contract governed by Art. 115. Article 36 has no application to such a suit. 122 Ind. Cas. 37=30 M.L.W. 898 =A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 364.

——Art. 115—Starting point—Instalment contract.

A firm entered into a contract in respect of ten cases of mulls. The terms of the contract were as follows : "We sold to you the goods as below at Karachi godown. You shall have to take delivery of the goods against payment, on arrival of the railway receipt and invoice at Delhi, afterwards interest and demurrage will be charged from you. December shipment 3 lots two months' grace."

Held, that the contract was indivisible and due date was on arrival of the last shipment. Claim for damages made within three years of last shipment was in time. The goods were not to be delivered in three instalments. The term "December shipment, three lots, two months grace," did not imply that the contract goods were to be delivered in three instalments but merely that they were to be shipped in three lots commencing December. A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 20, Foll. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 193.

——Art. 115—Undertaking to pay debts—Default—Starting point.

Where the terms of the conditions in the sale-deed were merely that the mortgage was to be paid off, and did not require the vendee to pay it off at some future time or to pay it off whenever he pleased but provided that he was responsible for future interest and was to pay it off before the property was endangered, the presumption is that he was to pay it off immediately or, if not immediately, at any rate as soon as was reasonably possible. The vendee, therefore, broke his contract when he undertook to pay the mortgage, or within a very short but reasonable period therefrom. 107 Ind. Cas. 679=26 A.L.J. 53=A.I.R. 1929 All. 121.

——Art. 115—Contract for several lots.

Where the contract for the supply of several lots of goods is an entire and not an instalment contract, limitation in respect of all lots would run from the date when the last lot was due to arrive. 94 Ind. Cas. 629 =8 L.L.J. 101=27 P.L.R. 239=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 92.

——Art. 115—Goods of various shipments.

No cause of action for a suit for non-delivery of goods of various shipments accrues to the plaintiff until the last day of arrival of the last shipment and limitation for such a suit begins from that day. A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 513, Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 2=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 404.

——Art. 115—When able to perform contract.

Where A agreed to sell to B, 3 oil wells out of the 12 oil wells which he expected to get from Government in 1903, and the Government granted him (A) 3 wells in 1904 and the rest in 1912.

Held, in a suit by B, for breach of contract to sell the 3 oil wells, that limitation began to run from the date when the defendant was in a position to statisfy the bargain in 1904 and could not be in abeyance until the whole of the 12 sites were allotted by Government to the defendant. 63 Ind. Cas. 914=24 Bom. L.R. 682=30 M.L.T. 28=48 I.A. 214=49 Cal. 832 =4 U.B.R. 30=1921 M.W.N. 396=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 249 (P.C.).

——Arts. 115 and 61—Co-defendants.

Where plaintiff and defendant were jointly interested redeeming a mortgage and plaintiff himself filed a suit for redemption and redeemed the mortgage and then sued the defendant for his share of the costs of the litigation and the redemption money.

Held, that in the absence of finding of a contract to pay at the conclusion of a litigation, defendant's liability to pay cannot be postponed till the conclusion of the litigation. The suit for the recovery of a share of costs and money due for the redemption is barred under Art. 61 or 115 if brought more than three years after payment. 70 Ind. Cas. 289=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 79.

——Art. 115—Sale of family properties by manager—Subsequent sale by junior member of his share—Obstruction by prior purchaser—Suit by latter for recovery of price and expenses of litigation.

A purchaser from a junior member of a joint Hindu family of his share in family properties attempted to take possession thereof, but was resisted by a prior purchaser of these properties from the manager. He then instituted a suit for the recovery of the share purchased by him and the litigation was unsuccessfully carried up to the High Court. A petition filed by him for review was also dismissed. The purchaser then instituted a suit for the recovery of the sale price and of the costs incurred of the unsuccessful litigation. Held, that the suit was not barred by limitation as the consideration for the sale failed on the date of the High Court's decision. The cause of action for the suit, arose only on that date and the plaintiff was entitled to the costs of his litigation except the costs of his review petition. 42 Mad. 507=36 M.L.J. 157=25 M.L.T. 291=9 L.W. 379=(1919) M.W.N. 432=49 Ind. Cas. 729.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Demand and refusal—Suit for return of goods delivered with interest.

In a suit to recover a quantity of wheat, plaintiff alleged that defendant had signed a balance in plaintiff's favour of 8 Manis of wheat with interest payable in kind at the rate of 50 per cent. per annum, in his favour. Held, that Art. 115 applied in which case limitation began to run when payment was demanded and refused or Article 120 would apply and in either cases the suit was not barred. 49 Ind. Cas. 231, not Foll. 56 Ind. Cas. 162=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 271.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Demand and Refusal—Lease—Non-delivery of portion of demised land—Cause of action—Limitation.

An action by a lessee for damages caused by the lessor's failure to deliver to him a portion of the demised premises should be brought within 6 years or 3 years as the case may be either from the time of the lease or from the date when possession was demanded and denied and it is governed by Arts. 116 and 115 of the Limitation Act. 40 Mad. 910=19 M.L.T. 318=3 L.W. 443=(1916) 1 M.W.N. 343=30 M.L.J. 575=35 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Arts. 115, 145 and 49—Demand and refusal.

When the plaintiff made over to a goldsmith gold ornaments to be melted and made into new ornaments without fixing the time within which the work was to be finished and failed to get the ornaments on repeated demands, limitation for suit to recover them begins to run from the date on which the goldsmith wrongfully refused to do the work, whatever may be the particular article of the limitation Act is applicable to the case, viz., Art. 49 or 115 or 145. 20 C.W.N. 232=23 C.L.J. 145= 34 Ind. Cas. 959.

——Art. 115—Breach of contract—Onus contract of betrothal.

The onus of proving that the betrothal contract was broken within three years of bringing the suit is on the plaintiff in a suit for damages. 50 Ind. Cas. 735 (Lah.).

10. Successive breaches.

——Art. 115—"Successive breaches", meaning of.

The term "successive breaches" in Art. 115, refers only to cases in which there is a promise to pay periodically, as for instance, payment of rent, annuities, interest, maintenance, etc. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 452=7 B.R. 587=193 Ind. Cas. 172.

——Art. 115—Successive breaches—Detention of money.

The limitation applicable to a claim for damages for non-payment of malikana is that provided by Art. 115 of the Lim. Act and the plaintiffs are entitled to damages upon each annual sum in arrear only for three years antecedent to the suit. 15 C.L.J. 658=15 Ind. Cas. 911.

——Art. 115—Successive breaches—Limitation—Cause of action.

Where a bond contains successive covenants, each breach gives a separate cause of action, but the date of the last breach is the starting point of limitation in a suit on the bond when the bond is conditioned on the performance of several acts and the obligation to pay is enforceable till the last of the conditions is fulfilled. 17 M.L.T. 61=27 Ind. Cas. 849.

11. Suit against carriers.

——Arts. 115 and 31—Suit for non-delivery against Rly.—Railways Act, S. 72 (2).

A suit against a Rly. Co. for compensation for non-delivery of goods is governed by Art. 31 not by Art. 115, 26 B. 562 ; 108 P.R. 106 ; 13 C.W.N. 851 ; 33 A. 544, Foll. Art. 31 applies notwithstanding that the responsibility of the Rly. Co., is limited by an agreement contemplated by S. 72 (2) of the Railways Act. 11 N.L.R. 174=31 Ind. Cas. 474.

——Art. 115—Mis-delivery.

The case of mis-delivery falls within Art. 115. 170 P.L.R. 1913=122 P.W.R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 477.

——Arts. 115, 31—Acknowledgement—Carriers—Non-delivery—Damages. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 447=26 B. 562.

12. Suit between tenants in common or co-sharers.

——Art. 115—A suit for recovery of money due to tenants in common which has been received by one or more tenants to the exclusion of the rest is not governed by Art. 115 as the liability is not ex ccontractu. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 28=168 Ind. Cas. 41.

——Art. 115—Co-sharers—Suit for profits.

A suit by some co-sharers in a ferry against other co-sharers for profits is not governed by Art. 36 or 115 but by Art. 120. 1 Pat. L.J. 69=35 Ind. Cas. 430.

——Art. 115—Holding over—Suit for rent.

Suit for rent by a co-owner against his co-sharer who occupied the property after the term fixed for such period is governed by Art. 120 and not by 110 or 115. 39 Mad. 54=33 Ind. Cas. 705.

13. Suit for accounts.

——Arts. 115 and 120—A suit for accounts against a Receiver appointed under O. 40, Civil P.C., is not governed by Art. 115 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 483=75 C.L.J. 1=46 C.W.N. 294=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 577=202 Ind. Cas. 389.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Suit for accounts.

Where there is no question of breach of contract or compensation payable for such breach, but parties were to look into the accounts of each other to equalize the profit, each trading independently of the other, and a suit is brought to take such an account, and ascertain who owes whom, and give a decree for the amount payable.

Held, that the suit cannot be treated as a suit for compensation and it does not fall under Art. 115. The general Art. 120 would therefore apply. 11 C.L.J. 43 and 14 C.W.N. 122, Not Foll. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 775.

——Art. 115—Principal and agent.

A suit by the principal against his agent for accounts is governed by Art. 89 and not Art. 115. 89 Ind. Cas. 275=4 Pat. 289=7 P.L.T. 111=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 494.

——Arts. 115 and 120—Implied contract—Lambardar—Obligation to account.

A suit by the proprietors of a village for an account of the profits of the village management against the lambardar is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 120. A lambardar who collects rents and manages the village on behalf of the proprietors is an agent, and as such, bound by an implied contract to render an account at the end of each agricultural year. 4 Pat. L.J. 304=51 Ind. Cas. 733.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Contract to render accounts.

A contract to render accounts year by year if registered, comes under Art. 116 and if unregistered comes under Art. 115. 11 C.L.J. 43=5 Ind. Cas. 186.

——Arts. 115 and 116—Suit against agent on contract.

Suit against an agent when there is a contract to give account at the end of each year, is governed by Art. 115. If such a contract is registered, Art. 116 applies. 14 C.W.N. 122=5 Ind. Cas. 59.

——Arts. 115 and 89—Suit by common manager for account.

A suit for account by the present common manager appointed under S. 93, Bengal T.A. against former common manager is governed by Art. 89 and not by Art. 115. 2 Ind. Cas. 597 (Cal.).

14. Suit for specific sum.

——Art. 115—Suit for specific sum.

A suit to recover a specific sum of money due upon a registered bond or other written contract is a suit for compensation for breach of contract within Art. 115. 33 P.L.R. 42=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 212=13 L. 448=135 Ind. Cas. 673.

——Arts. 115, 65, 120—Money due under agreement—Specific sum of money.

A suit may properly be described as one for compensation for breach of contract within the meaning of Art. 115 although it may be a suit for recovery of a specific sum of money. 12 C.L.J. 423=8 Ind. Cas. 788.

15. Thavanai contract.

——Arts. 115 and 60—Thavanai contract—Applicability of section.

A certain amount was deposited at two months thavanai interest. (1) the terms of the deposit showed that interest was to be calculated at thavanai interest at two months' rests. (2) It was repayable either on demand or after the current thavanai year. Held, that in the former case Art. 60, Limitation Act, applied and that in the latter Art. 115 applied. 6 L.W. 687=(1917) M.W.N. 858=42 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 115—Thavani contract—Incidents of.

The relationship between the parties to a thavanai account is that of lender and borrower. The money is to be paid at a fixed period after two months and unless the lender demands it, the loan is taken to be extended for next two months. It was held that Art. 57 and not Arts. 60 and 115 applies to a suit brought on thavanai account. 8 L.B.R. 526=10 Bur. L.T. 53=36 Ind. Cas. 497.

16. Work done.

——Art. 115—Applicability—Claim for recovery of advocate's fees. See LIMITATION ACT (IX OF 1908), ARTS. 84, 113 AND 115. (1947) 1 M.L.J. 173 A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 457.

——Art. 115—Counsel's fee.

Counsel's suit for remuneration against clinet is governed by Art. 115, and not by Art. 120. (1941) 43 P.L.R. 97.

——Art. 115—Breach of building contract—Limitation, starting point.

A contract for the construction of a building was given to the plaintiff but before the completion of the work the contract was given to another person. The plaintiff sued for the value of the work already done.

Held, that Art. 115 applied and the period of three years began from the date of the breach of contract. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 475=155 Ind. Cas. 238=35 P.L.R. 529.

——Art. 115—Suit by medical practitioner for fees.

Limitation Act does not contain any special article for a suit by a medical practitioner for recovery of his fees for attendance on a patient and the residuary Art. 115 would therefore apply to such suits.

If there was an implied contract for payment of fee on each day of visit, cause of action would arise on each day and at any rate, where there has been a demand and refusal, time will begin to run from the date of refusal. A.I.R. 1931 All. 752 (2)=(1931) A.L.J. 949=133 Ind. Cas. 537.

——Art. 116.

1. Applicability of article.

——Art. 116—Suit for money recovered under power-of-attorney—Power registered — Claim based on the power—Art. 116 and not Art. 89, held applied.

S and other co-sharers executed a power-of-attorney in favour of B (who was also a co-sharer) by a registered instrument. The terms of the power-of-attorney were: "We hereby authorise our said attorney to withdraw and receive payment.....and pay and make over to us in proportion to our respective shares as above set forth such amount out of the said sum of Rs. 10,000 as is due thereto within a week of the encashment of the said cheque." A cheque of Rs. 10,000 was received by B on the basis of this power-of-attorney but S not having been paid, brought a suit against B.

Held, that Art. 116 applied and not Art. 89. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 106=I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 578=212 Ind. Cas. 483.

——Art. 116—M depositing certain amount with A and receiving annuity for life—On M's death, A to return deposit to M's heirs or pay annuity to them until such return—On M's death claim by heirs for refund of deposit found barred—Annuity also, held time-barred. (1944) A.L.J. 339=A.I.R. 1944 All. 241=1944 A.W.R. 175=1944 O.W.N. 252=I.L.R. (1944) All. 554.

——Art. 116—When the purchase-money or a substantial portion of it is not payable until one year after the conveyance of the property and no time is fixed for completing the sale, Art. 116 does not apply. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 206=154 Ind. Cas. 432 (1).

——Art. 116—Contract in writing and registered—Sale-deed—Implied term that consideration should be paid at time of registration.

Article 116 applies not merely to a suit for compensation for breach of contract in the narrow sense of the word 'compensation' but also to a suit for money payable under the terms of the contract, and it is applicable in all cases in which the contract is in writing and registered, notwithstanding that there may be an article directly applicable to the class of contract in question.

In a suit for outstanding amount on a sale-deed, it appeared that no money had passed to or on behalf of the vendor from the vendee when the deed was executed. It was provided therein that Rs. 5,000 consideration was recovered but only Rs. 3,300 were actually paid before the Sub-Registrar. But promise to pay the balance was taken to be consideration, receipt of which was acknowledged ;

Held, that according to S. 55 (1) (b), T. P. Act, there was an implied term that consideration should be paid at the time of registration and Art. 116, applied even to the case of an implied covenant. Article 116, therefore, governed the case. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 246=172 Ind. Cas. 680=I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 45.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Covenant to pay before Sub-Registrar—Tender and refusal.

In a sale-deed, the vendee covenanted to pay the purchase-money before the Registrar, and the same on being tendered was refused by the vendor, held, that Art. 116 does not govern an action for recovery of money and that the action cannot be sustained as on a breach of contract in writing registered. 9 M.L.T. 136=8 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Art. 116—Unpaid purchase-money.

A company agreed to sell to a certain firm or their nominees or assigns certain immovable property, and a sale-deed was executed by the company as vendors the conveyance being made by the directions of the firm to A as their nominee. The amount of consideration was agreed to be paid three months after registration of sale-deed. On default of payment, the company instituted a suit against the partners in the firm and purchaser A for the amount and interest and in default of payment, for sale of the property, with a personal decree against the defendants for any deficiency :

Held, that A's liability arose in virtue of the conveyance, upon a contract in writing registered within the meaning of Art. 116, Limitation Act, and that the six years' period allowed by Art. 116, applied, and the suit was in time. (1933) M.W.N. 461=A.I.R. 1933 P.C. 143=64 M.L.J. 655=37 L.W. 784=37 C.W.N. 633 =(1933) A.L.J. 541=35 Bom. L.R. 753=11 R. 186= 57 C.L.J. 308=60 I.A. 183=142 Ind. Cas. 788 (P.C.).

——Art. 116—Suit to enforce payment of unpaid purchase-money.

Article 116 applies not merely to suit for compensation for breach of contract in the narrow sense of the word 'compensation', but also to a suit for money payable under the terms of the contract and it is applicable in all cases in which the contract is in writing and registered, notwithstanding that there may be an article directly applicable to the class of contract in question.

If the vendee's promise to pay the purchase-money is set out in the registered conveyance which is accepted by him, the contract between the parties can be regarded as embodied in the conveyance, even though it is not actually executed by the vendee and a suit by the vendor for a personal decree on the failure of the defendant to pay the balance of consideration in such a case is governed by Art. 116. 9 R. 56=A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 139=134 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Art. 116—No covenant but only sale-deed.

Where, when land is sold, there is no contract in writing for paying the purchase-money, but only a registered sale-deed which recited that the price had been paid : Held that Art. 116 did not apply. (1960) 24 M. 233.

——Art. 116—Applicability.

Where there is a definite contract to account at the end of each year, the appropriate article would be 115 as the contract would be broken by the failure of the agent to account at the end of each year. In either case if the contract be registered, Art. 116 applies and the period is 6 years. 14 C.W.N. 122=5 Ind. Cas. 59.

——Arts. 116 and 149—A suit by Railway Company for ejectment of licensee after expiry of licence and for mense profits is governed by Art. 149 and not by Art. 109 or 116 where the Company is merely the managing agent of Government. 17 P.L.T. 206=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 362=2 B.R. 620=163 Ind. Cas. 525.

——Arts. 116 and 97—Suit for refund of money wrongly paid—Money paid to redeem mortgage—Suit for foreclosure by person having mortgage interest—Payment, held to be wrongly made—Decree for foreclosure—Suit for refund Article 116, held not applicable —Article 97 held, applied. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh. 378= 1935 O.W.N. 549=11 Luck. 110=155 Ind. Cas. 299.

——Arts. 116 and 106—Partnership entered for a term of 60 years in 1919—Deed registered—One of the partners dying in 1920—The other partner alienating his interest in 1919—Suit by remaining partner for amounts, within 6 years of alienation but after 3 years of death in 1920—Partnership, held dissolved in 1920—Suit not governed by Art. 116 but by Art. 106. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 162=(1934) M.W.N. 22=66 M.L.J. 625 =57 M. 378=39 L.W. 164=151 Ind. Cas. 81.

——Art. 116—Suit for recovery of arrears of maintenance—Security bond executed in favour of woman—Suit not based on bond—Limitation.

Where a suit for recovery of arrears of maintenance with interest is filed by the representatives of the woman in whose favour a security bond hypothecating certain properties was also executed, but the suit is not based on the registered contract, the suit remains one for money on account of arrears of maintenance and not one to enforce the charge created by the security bond, and the period of limitation for the suit is only three years. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 244=146 Ind. Cas. 1032.

——Arts. 116 and 59—Registered bond.

In the case of a registered bond, the article which is applicable is not Art. 59 but Art. 116. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 227=151 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Art. 116—An action for damages for breach of covenant based on a sale-deed which is registered should be brought within a period of six years. A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 77.

——Art. 116—Article 116 applies to a suit for damages for the breach of a registered contract of sale. 100 Ind. Cas. 40=25 M.L.W. 11=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 273.

——Art. 116—Where a registered sale-deed provided that the purchaser should pay the revenue on the land sold, but the vendor paid the revenue on behalf of the purchaser, and sued him for revenue paid.

Held, that Art. 61 should apply and not Art. 116. 94 Ind. Cas. 1046=1926 M.W.N. 291=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 633=51 M.L.J. 159.

——Arts. 116, 62 and 97—Suit by vendee for consideration for land for which possession is not given.

A suit by vendee for refund of proportionate consideration of the sale-deed where he does not obtain possession of part of the land conveyed by the sale-deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 62 or Art. 97. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 126=(1933) M.W.N. 649=64 M.L.J. 336=37 L.W. 497=140 Ind. Cas. 805.

——Arts. 116 and 109—Breach of contract—Usufructuary mortgage—Possession not delivered—Suit for profits and possession.

The claim for profits owing to non-delivery of possession agreed to be delivered to plaintiff, a usufructuary mortgagee, is in substance one for compensation for breach of a contract in writing registered and is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 109. 31 Ind. Cas. 804 (All.).

——Art. 116—Transfer for maintenance subject to debts.

Certain lands were transferred by a registered deed in writing in favour of a person for life in lieu of maintenance and he was made to bear the liability of certain payments.

Held, that the deed of transfer contained an implied acceptance of the transferee to make the payment though it was in a unilateral document and such deed was a complete contract in writing between the transferor and the transferee within the meaning of Art. 116. 118 Ind. Cas. 417=6 O.W.N. 431=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 311.

——Art. 116—When the purchaser of a property agrees to release it from a mortgage over it and he fails to so release it, the cause of action for a suit by the vendor against the purchaser arises either on the date on which the covenant was undertaken to be fulfilled or in any case not later than the date when the vendor called upon the purchaser to fulfil it. Such a suit is governed by Art. 116 and if for specific performance by Art. 113. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 641=60 C. 761=146 Ind. Cas. 863.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee agreed to pay a fixed amount after deducting interest from income of the property, the payments which were to be made were not of the nature of rent payable by a tenant to landlord under the Bengal Tenancy Act and a suit for the recovery of which will not be barred by the special provision of the B.T. Act. Such payments would be regarded as being due under a registered agreement under Art. 116. 1 Pat. L.W. 795=(1918) P.H.C.C. 24=40 Ind. Cas. 594.

——Art. 116—Dower-debt—Converted into mortgage debt.

A registered deed executed by Mohammedan husband long after the marriage, promising to pay dower then still due from him, on demand and hypothecating certain immovable properties as security for its due payment, converts the dower debt into a mortgage debt; and to a suit on such deed for the amount of dower, six years rule of limitation is applicable. 99 Ind. Cas. 553=A.I.R. 1927 All. 268.

——Art. 116—Article 116 applies to suits for recovery of dower debt when there is a registered dower deed although Arts. 103 and 104 would apply when there is no such registered instrument and time runs from the date of death of the lady. 44 Cal. 759 (P.C.), Foll. 36 Cal. 184, Not Foll. 73 Ind. Cas. 17=27 C.W.N. 210=37 C.L.J. 108=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 507.

——Arts. 116 and 61—Repairs to a common well—Suit for contribution—Limitation.

The plaintiff spent a sum of money for the repairs of a well he owned jointly with a defendant under a registered deed which provided that the necessary repairs were to be made by both the owners. Five years after the repairs he sued to recover from the defendant his contribution to the repairs; Held, that the suit was barred since it was governed by Art. 61 and not by Art. 116. 44 Bom. 591=22 Bom. L.R. 777=57 Ind. Cas. 532.

——Arts. 116, 120 and 132—Mortgage on loan of paddy—Limitation.

A suit on a mortgage executed for a loan not of money but of paddy is governed by Art. 116 or Art. 120 and not by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 44 Ind. Cas. 518 (Cal.).

——Arts. 116, 120 and 132—Mortgage on loan of paddy.

A mortgage having been made to secure a loan of paddy repayable with interest as paddy, a suit to enforce the said mortgage falls under the provisions of Art. 116 or 120 and not under those of Art. 132, which applies only to payment of money charged on immovable property. 24 C.L.J. 348=37 Ind. Cas. 805.

——Art. 116—Suit for refund—Fraudulent mortgage.

Where defendant fraudulently gets his Sir land mortgaged with possession to the plaintiff, the plaintiff is entitled to a simple money decree for the sum advanced with such interest as the Court might find due. The claim falls under Arts. 95 and 97 and not under Arts. 116 and 120. 13 O.C. 148=6 Ind. Cas. 1013.

——Arts. 116, 75—Instalment bond registered—Waiver on default—Suit for instalments due within 6 years before date.

Where in an instalment bond it was provided that on default in the payment of one kist the creditor would be able to realise the entire amount due under the bond: Held, that it was open to the creditor, if default were made, to sue at once for the whole amount or if he so elected, to waive the benefit of the proviso. Default was made in October, 1897, and the present suit was brought in 1906 for the instalments for six years before suit. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree Art. 116 being applicable to the suit which was brought on a registered bond. Per MACLEAN, C.J., Semble—If the question were res integra it would perhaps be that the Court holds that Art. 75 is applicable to the case instead of Art. 116. (1906) 11 C.W.N. 903.

——Arts. 116, 49—Recovery of property under registered deed of release.

Held, on the construction of a registered deed of release that a suit by the person in whose favour the release was made for the recovery of properties was governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 49. (1903) 9 C.W.N. 679.

——Arts. 116, 62, 97—Registered—Karar allowing plaintiff to cut trees for 6 years—Failure of consideration—Article applicable. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 62. 29 M. 353.

——Art. 116—See ART. 110. (1903) A.W.N. 210=26 A. 138.

——Art. 116—See 13 M.L.J. 438.

2. Action for debt.

——Art. 116—Registered simple bond specifying day of repayment—Limitation.

Where the bond on which the suit is brought is registered and specifies a day on which the debtor would repay the loan, the period of limitation will be six years from the day on which the debtor had contracted to repay and the appropriate article applicable is Art. 116. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 74=6 B.R. 400=186 Ind. Cas. 850.

——Arts. 116 and 120—Cause of action for a dividend duly declared and made payable but in part improperly withheld is an action in debt and is governed by Art. 116 or else by Art. 120, and, therefore, the claim for dividends falls under Art. 116 since the whole contract arises under the Articles of the Company. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 97=42 Bom. L.R. 57=I.L.R (1940) Bom. 165=[illegible] Ind. Cas. 589 (F.B.).

——Arts. 116 and 375—Action for debt.

Art. 115 applies to an action for debt just as much as Art. 116 does or vice-versa. 110 Ind. Cas. 33=52 Bom. 477=30 Bom. L.R. 549=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 252.

——Art. 116—Suit on bond—Unregistered and registered bonds.

Where a money bond was executed and subsequently on the same day a registered deed was executed which provided for payment of the debt in a particular manner and default was made. Held, that the two documents formed part of one and the same transaction and that a suit to recover the amount after default was governed by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. (1917) M.W.N. 879 =6 L.W. 712=42 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Art. 116—Suit on bond.

A suit for recovery of a money due on a Registered bond is governed by Art. 116 as it is more or less a suit for compensation for breach of a contract in writing registered and time begins to run from the date when the contract is broken or where there are successive breaches from the date of breach in respect of which the suit is instituted, or where it is continuing breach from the date when it ceases. 15 C.L.J. 17=17 C.W.N. 369= 13 Ind. Cas. 440.

3. Breach of covenant of indemnity.

See also NOTE 4.

——Art. 116—Applicability—Suit for damages on indemnity clause in registered sale-deed—Article if would apply in the case of a void sale.

Where a vendee brings a suit for damages on being dispossessed on the strength of an indemnity clause in a registered sale-deed, and the suit is not for return of the purchase money, Art. 116 would apply. The article can be invoked even if the sale-deed was absolutely void, the only condition being that he is suing, for the enforcement of the indemnity clause contained in the sale-deed. 1949 A.W.R. 480=A.I.R. 1949 A. 480= 1950 A.L.J. 17.

——Art. 116—Where a mortgage-deed contained a provision that if, in consequence of a dispute raised by a third person, any loss is occasioned to the mortgagee, the person and other property of the executant will be liable to make good the loss and a third person having obtained a declaratory decree that the property could not be sold in execution of the decree obtained upon the mortgage, the mortgagee instituted a suit for breach of the covenant of indemnity contained in the mortgage :

Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 62 but by Art. 116 and the cause of action arose when it was declared that the plaintiff was not entitled to have the house sold in execution of his decree. (1932) A.L.J, 317=A.I.R. 1932 All. 358=16 R.D. 373=136 Ind. Cas. 829.

——Art. 116—Where the vendor agrees to indemnify the vendee in case any loss was caused to the vendee in any suit brought in respect of property comprised in the sale-deed, the mere filing of a suit would not give a cause of action to the vendee to recover damages on this agreement. Even if a third person succeeded in that suit, until the vendee is disposessed, he would have no cause of action to bring a suit for damages for breach of this agreement. A suit to recover damages in such a case when a sale-deed is registered would be governed by Art. 83 read with Art. 116. 33 Bom. L.R. 1092=55 B. 565=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 36= 134 Ind. Cas. 1157.

——Art. 116—Express covenant.

A purchased from B by an Indenture certain property subject to an incumbrance of Rs. 16,000 buy a deed of charge of mortgage in favour of K. There was a stipulation that B would keep A harmless and would indemnify him in respect of any charge save and except the charge in favour of K. Eventually after the sale was completed, it was found that the amount due to the mortgagee was Rs. 21,000. This amount A had to pay and he sued B for the difference between Rs. 16,000 and the sum he actually paid.

Held, that A took the property subject to the liability of the mortgage of K, that on a construction of the document, he was bound to discharge the incumbrance of K entirely and not merely to pay the sum mentioned in it, and in absence of any express covenant to the effect that B would be bound to pay any excess due on the mortgage ; A was not entitled to the amount claimed by him.

Held, further that it was not a covenant which could be implied from the sale-deed and therefore Art. 116 did not apply. 51 C.L.J. 538=57 Cal. 683=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 568.

——Art. 116—Applicability—Indemnity covenant.

If there is covenant express or implied indemnifying party suffering against loss caused by defect in title of executant of document, Art. 116 applies, otherwise Art. 62 or Art. 97. A.I.R. 1930 All. 785.

——Art. 116—Suit for damages based on a clause of indemnity or on a covenant for title and quiet possession contained in a registered sale-deed is governed by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 260, Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 424 =A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 388.

——Art. 116—Covenant of indemnity—Starting point.

Vendee from a pre-emptor is entitled to take benefit of an express covenant to indemnify in a sale-deed and especially the original vendor cannot contend to the contrary.

To csuch a case for a suit for compensation for loss of possession Art. 116, Limitation Act, applies and time runs from date of dispossession. 30 All. 402, Foll 119 Ind. Cas. 243=51 All. 651=1929 A.L.J. 433= A.I.R. 1929 All. 293.

——Art. 116—Where the surety is liable under registered contract the limitation is six years under Art. 116. 95 Ind. Cas. 707=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 449.

——Art. 116—Sale by co-sharer.

A co-sharer sold lands to the plaintiff pending partition proceedings, and agreed in the sale-deed itself that in the event of his not getting the land to his share in the said partition proceedings, he would pay compensation to the plaintiff. The vendor was allotted at the partition a less area than the area sold and the plaintiff sued for compensation.

Held, that Art. 65 along with Art. 116 applied to the case and that time began to run against plaintiff from the date when the vendors were finally allotted a less area. 72 Ind. Cas. 897=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 23.

——Art. 116—A suit for compensation for the breach of a contract to indemnify falls within the purview of Art. 83 and when such a contract is in writing and registered, Art. 116 becomes applicable and by virtue of it the period is extended to six years. ——Arts. 116 and 132—Where a registered contract to indemnify contains a provision for a charge on immovable property, Art. 132 applies and not Art. 83 or Art. 116. 66 Ind. Cas. 554=14 M.L.W. 99=1921 M.W.N. 472=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 514.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Sale—Covenant to make good loss—Breach—Limitation.

Held in a suit by a vendee for damages that the suit was not barred by Limitation inasmuch as the plaintiffs were not suing upon a mere covenant of title, but upon a covenant of indemnity as set forth in the sale-deed and the cause of action arose on the date on which they suffered actual loss by reason of their being compelled to pay off the prior mortgage charge. 40 All. 605=16 A.L.J. 706=48 Ind. Cas. 18.

——Art. 116—Suit for compensation for breach of a contract in sale-deed.

A deed of sale of immovable property, duly registered contained a covenant to the effect that in the event of a claim being advanced by a co-sharer, or in the event of the purchaser losing any part of the property in any other way he would be entitled to a refund of the consideration and to damages. The purchaser, failing to get possession of part of the property purchased, sued for possession or in the alternative for a refund of a proportionate part of the consideration money and damages. Held that as regards the latter relief the suit was governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 97. (1908) A.W.N. 185=30 A. 402=5 A.L.J. 480.

4. Breach of covenant of title and quiet enjoyment.

——Art. 116—Applicability—Breach of covenant of title and quiet enjoyment in registered sale-deed Suit for damages—Limitation—Starting point—Vendor having power to dispose of only on conditions—Transfer valid only for lifetime — Dispossesion after death of vendor—Suit for damages—Limitation applicable—Starting point. See BOMBAY COURT OF WARDS ACT, S. 40, PROVISO, THIRDLY. 52 Bom. ——Arts. 116, 97 and 62—Transfer of property—Title of vendor defective—Suit for return of consideration—When Art. 62 or 97 or 116 applies, explained.

The provisions of Art. 62 might have been applied before the enactment of S. 55, T. P. Act, to cases where there was no covenant and the suit was merely on the allegation that the vendor had purported to transfer some property to which he had no title. That would have been on the analogy of the English law an action for money had and received. But since S. 55 has imported into all transfers, unless the parties agree to the contrary, a covenant warranting the title of the vendor, a suit to recover the consideration would be on the basis of that specific covenant and time would begin to run from the date of the deed after it had been established that there never had been any title. In the case, however, where there is an express covenant that covenant must be construed according to the intention of the parties and no general rule can be laid down about the date when the cause of action arises. Such suits, however, would be on the basis of a covenant and the provisions of Art. 97 would apply if there be no registered deed and the provisions of Art. 116 if there be a registered deed. A.I.R. 1946 All. 159=1945 Oudh W.N. (H.C.) 295=1945 All. L.J. 473=224 Ind. Cas. 52.

——Art. 116—Suit for refund of consideration—Starting point of limitation.

So long as the person whose rights have been infringed remains in possession of the property, limitation does not begin to run against him. Accordingly so long as a vendee to whom his vendor has conveyed a defective title remains in possession, he need not bring a suit for refund of sale-consideration. It is only when actual dispossession takes place that limitation begins to run. A.I.R. 1944 All. 243=(1944) A.L.J. 341=1944 A.W.R. 165=I.L.R. (1944) All. 612=1944 O.W.N. 85.

——Art. 116—Damages for breach of covenant of title—Starting point.

When a sale is void ab initio as against the rightful owner and the vendee has been put in possession of the property by the vendor, the limitation to claim damages for breach of covenant of title and quiet enjoyment contained in the sale-deed runs from the date of dispossession of the vendee by the rightful owner. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 169=1941 N.L.J. 84.

——Art. 116—Damages for dispossession of part of land sold.

A suit for damages by the vendee against the vendor for being dispossessed of the part of the land sold under a registered deed of sale is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 97. A.I.R. 1939 All. 170=(1938) A.L.J. 1136=1938 A.W.R. 803=180 Ind. Cas. 342.

——Art. 116—Suit for refund of consideration—Starting point.

If the vendor's title is defective from the inception and immediately after the conveyance, the possession is demanded by the vendee and is not given, the date of the sale-deed is the starting point of limitation, for a suit for damages for breach of covenant of title and failure to give possession and if the suit is brought after six years from the date of the deed, it will be barred under Art. 116. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 39=167 Ind. Cas. 809.

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration—Starting point of limitation.

Art. 116 applies to a suit brought by a vendee who had purchased under a sale-deed from a vendor with a defective title and was subsequently dispossessed by the person with superior title, to recover damages for breach of the implied covenant for title and S. 55, sub-S. (2) of the T.P. Act. The date of dispossession should form the starting point of limitation for the suit, where the suit is regarded as a suit for compensation for breach of contract, or as a suit to which Art. 97 would apply, to recover money paid upon an existing consideration which has afterwards failed. If the suit is regarded as governed by Art. 116, then no loss or damage can be said to have been caused by the mere passing of a decree for proprietary possession in favour of a third party. It is possible that the decree for possession may never be executed. By reason of negligence or some other reason, the decree-holder may fail to execute it until it has become barred by limitation. In such a case the purchaser may retain possession of the property sold to him and may not suffer any loss although his title has been found defective. Hence the mere passing of the decree cannot be held to constitute a cause of action, and the cause of action does not accrue until the purchaser has been dispossessed in execution if the decree. If, on the other hand, the suit is regarded as governed by Art. 97, it cannot be held that consideration has totally failed so long as the buyer remains in possession and is in a position to enjoy the profits. Unless and until the vendees are ejected in execution of the decree against them, they are legally entitled to remain in possession and to recover rents from the tenants. 1936 O.W.N. 143=A.I.R. 1936 Oudh. 141=11 Luck. 725=160 Ind. Cas. 454.

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration.

Article 116 is applicable to a suit for compensation by a vendee who has been deprived of the property purchased by him in consequence of a defect in the title of the vendor. 1935 A.W.R. 768=(1935) A.L.J. 929=A.I.R. 1935 All. 786=58 A. 90=156 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 116—Suit for refund of consideration—Starting point.

The sons impugned the sale-deed executed by their father on the ground that the property which it purported to convey belonged to the joint family of which the plaintiffs and the vendors were members and that there was no legal necessity for the alienation. The suit was decreed by the first Court on January 31, 1924. Delivery of possession was taken by the successful plaintiffs on February 27, 1924. Part of the land included in the sale was under the cultivation of the vendees who did not vacate it. Disputes arose between the sons of defendant No. 1 and the vendees, which led to proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P.C. These proceedings resulted in favour of the vendees, and the sons had to institute another suit for possession in respect of the plots which had remained in possession of the vendees in spite of the symbolical delivery of possession. From the decree obtained by the sons in the Court of first instance, the vendees had appealed to the District Judge who dismissed it on January 19, 1926. A second appeal to the High Court was dismissed on October 31, 1928. A Letters Patent Appeal was likewise dismissed on June 2, 1930. Relying on the covenant in the sale-deed, which contained a clause, " if by reason of the act of us, the executants, or the omission of us, the executants or our heirs, any sort of defect is found in respect of the share sold and it is interfered with, the vendees shall have the power to recover the whole of their sale consideration," the vendees sued for return of the consideration money :

Held, that the proper article, applicable was Art. 116 and that the plaintiff's cause of action was complete when the first Court found that the vendors had no power to sell and the vendees were dispossessed. Subsequent affirmance of the decree of the trial Court could not give a fresh starting point. The fact that the vendees managed to retain actual psossession of part of the land included in the vended property in spite of delivery of possession could not save limitation. A.I.R. 1935 All. 786=1955 A.W.R. 768=(1935) A.L.J. 929 =58 A. 90=156 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 116—Suit for damages for breach of covenant of title—Limitation.

The plaintiff purchased a property from the defendant in 1920 and was put in possession. Subsequently, a mortgagee whose mortgage had not been disclosed to the plaintiff brought a suit on his mortgage, obtained a decree and in execution of the decree, the plaintiff was dispossessed in 1930. The plaintiff sued immediately after his dispossession for compensation for the loss sustained by him :

Held, that as the plaintiff had been put in possession of the property, the cause of action for the suit arose only when he was dispossessed and the suit was not time-barred. (1935) M.W.N. 375=68 M.L.J. 588=41 L.W. 728=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 636=156 Ind. Cas. 843 (2).

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration—Limitation.

The plaintiff alleged that in pursuance of a sale-deed, he was placed in possession and he granted a five years' oral lease to another person who remained in possession until he was ejected by the defendant. The plaintiff then brought a suit against the defendant and his brother for a declaration of his title to the property and for possession with effect from the date on which the lease he had granted was to expire. It was held finally in this case that the field belonged to the defendant and his brother jointly and that as plaintiff had already paid more than half the consideration for the whole field, he was entitled to possession of half a share without further payment. Then plaintiff brought a suit against the defendant for recovery of the amount he had paid in excess of the value of half a share and interest thereon :

Held, that Art. 116, governed the case and that the plaintiff had two causes of action, one arising when the lessee was ejected and the other arising when it was decided that the defendant was entitled only to half a share and that the suit was in time. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 16=30 N.L.R. 138=148 Ind. Cas. 480.

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration—Limitation—Starting point.

The guardian of certain minors sold some house property to P in 1913, and the sale-deed stipulated that " if any defect were proved in the minor's title resulting in loss of the price paid or in apprehension of such loss or in the purchaser being deprived of the whole or part of the property " the purchaser would be at liberty to realise the price with damages, costs, interests, etc., from the other property of the minors or their representatives. In 1914, certain persons instituted a suit for a declaration that the sale was null and void and the minors had no saleable interest in the property sold and obtained a decree to this effect in 1916. This decree was ultimately upheld by the High Court on May 2, 1925. P became insolvent in October, 1925 and on May 1, 1928, the Official Receiver instituted a suit against the vendors for refund of price with interest on the allegation that their proprietary rightt had been proved defective by the High Court's judgmens dated May 2, 1925 :

Held, that Art. 116 applied to the case, and that as the cause of action arose on the date of the original decree and not on that of the High Court decree, the suit was barred. Under the Indian Law and procedure, an original decree is not suspended by presentation of an appeal nor is its dismissal interrupted where the decree on appeal is an order of dismissal. 35 P.L.R. 179= A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 305 (2)=148 Ind. Cas. 825.

——Arts. 116, 62 and 97—Refund of consideration.

A suit for refund of consideration is not one for breach of contract and is governed either by Art. 62 or by Art. 97 according as to whether the contract is void or voidable and Art. 116 is not applicable. 34 P..L.R. 96=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 581=145 Ind. Cas. 186.

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration—Limitation—Starting point.

The plaintiff got from the defendants a sale-deed of certain property purchased by them in an execution sale on a decree in a different suit but in pursuance of which they had not got lawful delivery. The judgment-debtor in the decree in which the sale was held pleaded adverse possession. There was a provision in the sale-deed to the effect that the defendants would put in an application for delivery and give delivery to the plaintiff. The plaintiff filed a suit for recovery of the property or return of purchase-money:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 116 and that no time wsa fixed within which delivery was to be given, and although it is true that the plaintiff might, at any time, after the execution of the sale-deed, have sued to enforce delivery under it, so that time would begin to run for such a suit from the date of contract.

Held, also, that the cause of action for refund of the purchase-money would not simultaneously arise, but would only become available when the vendors became incaapable of carrying out their undertaking. Before that occasion arose, the vendees could not have sued alleging a breach of the contract of title, for the return of the purchase-money. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 153= 143 Ind. Cas. 504.

——Art. 116—Covenant for title.

The provisions of Art. 116 will apply where there is a breach of covenant of indemnity against loss caused by defect in titles. The covenant need not be express. It may be implied as in case of a sale under S. 52 (2), T. P. Act, for the refund of purchase-money. If there is no such covenant Art. 62 or 97, Limitation Act will apply. A.I.R. 1930 All. 785.

——Art. 116.

If a statute says that a certain covenant should necessarily be implied in a certain contract and that contract itself is in writing and registered, Art. 116 applies, and if the contract is under S. 55, T. P. Act, and the vendee

Is put in possession and dispossessed the time begins to run from the date of dispossession. A.I.R. 1930 A. 771 = 1930 A.L.J. 653 = 52 A. 604.

——Art. 116.

Claim for damages by a vendee on the ground that his vendor's title is defective is governed by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1930 Sind 66 = 126 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Art. 116—Breach of—Suit for refund of purchase-money.

To a suit for refund of purchase-money which is in substance a suit based on a registered document and can be regarded as a suit for compensation for breach of a contract Art. 116 must apply although such a suit may fall under some other provision of Limitation Act and time begins to run only when it is found that there is no good title. A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 252 = 38 Mad. 887 = A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 182, Foll. 117 In. Cas. 654 = 8 Pat. 432 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 388.

——Art. 116—suit for compensation for breach of express or implied covenant for title and quiet enjoyment in respect of a sale-deed executed after coming into force of the Transfer of Property Act is governed by Art. 116. 38 Mad. 1171, Foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 514 = 22 M.L.W. 704 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 255 = 49 M.L.J. 668.

——Art. 116—Breach of covenant—No title ab initio—Starting point.

The starting point for limitation in a suit by a vendee to recover damages from his vendor upon breach of covenant for possession is, where from the inception the vendor had no title to convey and the vendee has not been put in possession of the property, to date of the sale-deed or at the latest the date when the vendor first denies vendees right to possession. 100 Ind. Cas. 40 = 25 M.L.W. 11 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 273.

——Art. 116—An action for damages for breach of a covenant for title contained in a registered instrument is governed by Art. 116. 11 N.L.R. 186, Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 699 = 22 N.L.R. 49 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 109.

——Art. 116—Where the defendant covenanted that he had a good title to the property sold, and in return for the sale-deed received a certain price, but the plaintiff was obstructed in obtaining possession of the property and therefore sued defendant for retrun of the purchase-money.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 116 and the cause of action arose on the date of sale. 89 Ind. Cas. 59 = 49 Bom. 596 = 27 Bom. L.R. 637 = A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 440.

——Art. 116—A suit for the refund of the purchase-money may be regarded as a suit for damages for breach of covenant of title. The Article applicable to such a suit, where the conveyance is registered, is Art. 116. If a contract, in the sense of the Article, is in writing, the writing represents the implied as well as the express covenants breach of which is governed by the Art. 19 C.W.N. 102, Diss.; 38 Mad. 1171, Foll. 80 Ind. Cas. 623 = 27 C.W.N. 1025 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 148.

——Art. 116—Where a jajmani brit was found to be not saleable.

Held, that a suit for possession of the brit or the refund of consideration in the alternative is governed by Art. 116 when the sale-deed of the brit was a registered one. 72 Ind. Cas. 653 = A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 321.

——Art. 116—The provision in a sale-deed by which the vendor undertook, in case of dispute, to settle it out of his own expense and carry out the sale without obstruction, amounts to a covenant for quiet enjoyment or at least a covenant for title and a breach of the covenant gives the plaintiff six years to sue from the date when the covenant is broken. 68 Ind. Cas. 190 = 1922 M.W.N. 420 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 28 = 43 M.L.J. 64.

——Art. 116—Breach of covenant—No title ab initio—Starting point.

Per SPENCER J.—Lessee or purchaser who gets possession on the strength of a registered contract and is subsequently evicted for want of title in his lessor or vendor has six years from the date of his dispossession under Art. 116 to sue for damages for breach of the title for quiet enjoyment; but if from the inception the vendor had no title to convey and the vendee never gets possession, the staring point of limitation is the date of the sale. Suit by A as vendee of B who was himself vendee of C against C for money paid which C was bound to pay to his secured creditors is not one for damages or for return of the purchase-money, as there is no privity of contract between the parties. 74 Ind. Cas. 416 = 17 M.L.W. 254 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 392.

——Art. 116—Breach of covenant—Subsequent dispossession.

Plaintiffs brought land under a registered-deed and were put in possession. The land was leased to a tenant who subsequently set up his own title to the land and his claim was also embodied in a final decree of the Court. Plaintiffs then filed a suit against their vendor for the recovery of the purchase money, etc.

Held, that Art. 116 and not Art. 97 applied and time began to run only when the tenant obtained the decree supporting his own title to the land.

A distinction should be made between cases where from the inception the vendor had no title to convey and the vendee has not been put in possession of the property, and other cases where the sale is only voidable on the objection of third parties and possession is take under the sale. It is only in the first class of cases that the starting point of limitation will be the date of sale. Case-law discussed. 61 Ind. Cas. 70 = 45 Bom. 955 = 23 Bom. L.R. 325 = A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 252.

——Art. 116—Covenant for title—Breach—Damages—Limitation.

There is an implied covenant for title and possession in all registered conveyances under S. 55 (2) of the T.P. Act and a breach of that covenant comes within Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. 52 Ind. Cas. 269 (Cal.).

——Art. 116—Covenant for title—Sale.

A suit for damages for breach of an implied covenant for the title in a registered sale is governed by Art. 116. 50 Ind. Cas. 673 (Mad.).

——Art. 116—Covenant for title—Breach of damages—Starting point.

A suit for damages for breach of covenant for title in a registered deed is governed by Art. 116. Such a breach is entire and complete at the time of the execution of the sale and limitation begins to run from that date. 11 N.L.R. 186 = 31 Ind. Cas. 877.

——Art. 116—Covenant for title—Breach of—Starting point.

Obiter.—The cause of action for a suit for damages for breach of covenant for title arises on the execution of the conveyance. 29 M.L.J. 454 = 2 L.W. 918 = (1916) M.W.N. 7 = 31 Ind. Cas. 179.

——Art. 116—Covenant for title—Deficiency in extent of land sold—Limitation.

A suit for damages for breach of covenant for title in regard to a small portion of the land sold is governed by Article 116 of Schedule II of the Limitation Act; the plaintiff, in such a suit has simply to show that he was not put in possession of it. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 361 = 11 Ind Cas. 337.

——Art. 116—Covenant implied in law—"Contract in writing registered."

The expression "shall be deemed to contract" in Cl. (2) of S. 55 of the Transfer of Property Act makes the covenant implied by that clause part and parcel of the transaction of sale and it is to be deemed to be embodied in the written document of sale; and a suit to enforce such covenant may be brought within six years of the date of sale, i.e., date of breach, under Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. 21 M. 8 and 25 M. 587, foll. (1904) 15 M.L.J. 396.

5. Breach of undertaking to pay debt.

——Art. 116—Registered sale-deed—Vendee failing to pay mortgage-debt of vendor as undertaken in deed—Mortgagee obtaining final decree for sale—Vendor paying off decree—Cause of action against vendee—When arises.

Where under a registered sale-deed the vendee, undertakes to pay an outstanding mortgage-debt of the vendor out of the consideration money left in his hands but fails to liquidate that debt, he commits a breach of contract in writing registered and the vendor has a cause of action against him. If the mortgagee obtains a final decree for sale and the vendor pays the decretal sum, the vendors' cause of action against the vendee arises not on the date of the contract itself, but at the earliest on the date of the final decree for sale or on the date when the vendor was made to pay the decretal sum, that is to say, when he was damnified. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 21.

——Art. 116—Breach of covenant by purchaser with vendor to pay off mortgage—Limitation—Starting point. See CONTRACT ACT, S. 73. 1948 N.L.J. 463 = A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 401.

——Art. 116—Registered sale-deed—Vendee charged with discharging mortgage debt out of sale price—Default by vendee—Sale of property in execution of decree on mortgage—Deficiency—Mortgagor compelled to pay under personal covenant—Suit for damages against vendee—Limitation.

Where a mortgagor sells mortgaged property under a registered sale-deed, reserving part of the consideration for the sale with the vendee for discharging the mortgage debt, but the latter fails to discharge and redeem the mortgage and the mortgagee sues on the mortgage and brings the property to sale and after sale, obtains a personal decree against the mortgagor for the deficiency, if the mortgagor who is compelled to pay the balance to the mortgagee brings a suit against the vendee for damages for breach of contract, Art. 116 of the Limitation Act applies to the case, and the suit if brought within 6 years of the date when the plaintiff made the payment, is not barred by limitation. 223 Ind. Cas. 248 = 12 B.R. 356 = A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 11.

——Art. 116—P who had obtained a mortgage decree against A assigned the decree to D for certain amount a portion of which was left with D to be paid X who was creditor of P. This amount was not to be paid to X until D had realised the decree. D realised the decretal amount but refused to pay X who then brought a suit to recover the amount:

Held, that the suit was neither one for specific performance of a contract not for indemnity but was a suit for compensation for breach of contract and was, therefore, governed by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 155 = 6 B.R. 92 = 185 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Arts. 116 and 83—A suit brought by the vendor against the vendee on the default being made by the vendee in paying off the creditors of the vendor, for the loss occasioned by such default is one for recovery of damages for breach of a contract of indemnity and as such, is governed by Art. 83 read with Art. 116 when the sale-deed is a registered one and the limitation begins to run from the time the vendor is actually damnified. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 321 = I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 353 = 43 P.L.R. 548 = 192 Ind. Cas. 841.

——Art. 116—Limitation—Starting point.

Plaintiff executed ijara deed in favour of defendant whereby the defendant agreed to pay off the mortgages effected by the plaintiff. The deed was registered. There was not an express or implied agreement to indemnify the plaintiff. The defendant failed to pay off the mortgages. The mortgage decrees were passed and the plaintiff's property was sold in execution thereof. The plaintiff instituted a suit against the defendant to recover damages more than six years from the date of which he was made party to the mortgage suit:

Held, that Art. 116 applied and time began to run from the date on which the plaintiff was made party to the mortgage suit, i.e., the contract was broken and not from the date of the sale of the property, i.e., actual damage suffered. Suit, therefore, was time-barred under Art. 116, whether read with Art. 115 or Art. 83. 19 P.L.T. 198 = 17 Pat. 338 = A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 275 = 4 B.R. 694 = 176 Ind. Cas. 269.

——Arts. 116 and 111—A suit by a mortgagor or his assignee against the vendee for return of the money left with him for payment to the mortgagee and which he had failed to pay is, governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 111. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 240 = 11 O.W.N. 691 = 10 Luck. 26 = 149 Ind. Cas. 529.

——Arts. 116 and 83—A suit by a vendor against the vendee on the latter's default to pay the money to a third party left with him for that purpose is governed by Art. 116 read with Art. 83 when the sale-deed is a registered document and the starting point of limitation is when the plaintiff vendor is damnified, i.e., when he pays off such third party. 34 P.L.R. 734 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 793 = 14 L. 646 = 144 Ind. Cas. 362.

——Arts. 116, 120, 61—Suit by transferor against transferee—Limitation—Starting point.

A mortgaged certain property to B for Rs. 750 on June 11, 1921, directing B to pay Rs. 400 out of mortgage amount to A's creditors. B did not pay. A being threatened by the creditors with suits, paid them the amounts on June 12, 1922, and June 14, 1923, and instituted a suit against B on June 14, 1927, for recovering the amounts paid:

Held (i) that the suit was not one 'for money payable to the plaintiff for money paid for the defendant' within the meaning of Art. 61 and was not governed by the said article;

(ii) that it was governed by Art. 120, even if Art. 116 did not apply and the suit was in any case not time-barred. 53 A 702 = A.I.R. 1931 All. 549 (2) = 1931 A.L.J. 533 = 133 Ind. Cas. 615.

——Arts 116 and 111—Vendor and purchaser—Price reserved with vendee for payment of vendor's creditors——Failure to pay—Suit by vendor for refund—Limitation.

The plaintiff sold a certain property to the defendant on July 12, 1926, under a registered sale-deed leaving a portion of the consideration for payment of certain unsecured creditors of the plaintiff. The defendant did not pay and the plaintiff instituted a suit on October 4, 1929, for recovery of the unpaid purchase-money with interest:

Held, (1) that the suit was not one for personal payment of the unpaid purchase-money but one for breach of a covenant in writing registered and was governed, not by

Art. 111 but by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1931 All. 419 = (1931) A.L.J. 985 = 131 Ind Cas. 686 (2).

——Art. 116—Unpaid purchase-money—Limitation—Starting point.

Where a vendee, under a registered deed of sale executed in 1912, agreed to pay a portion of the price to a third person and, on his failure to pay accordingly, that third person brought a suit against the vendor and realised the amount from the vendor in 1921 in execution of his decree, and the vendor instituted a suit against the vendee for recovery of the amount in 1924 :

Held, that the cause of action for the suit arose under Art. 116, only in 1921, when the vendor suffered loss and the contract became impossible of performance and the suit was not time-barred. 33 Bom. L.R. 136 = A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 365 = 133 Ind. Cas. 267.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Undertaking to pay debt.

Article 116 applies not only to a suit for a specified sum of money due on a registered bond but also to a suit where the vendee having agreed to apply a portion of the purchase-money to the payment of a previous debt due by the vendor fails to apply it in that way and a suit is brought to recover that amount from him. Such a suit is not barred if it is brought within six years of the breach of contract sued upon. The period of limitation in such a case does not run from the date of the execution of the sale-deed but from the date on which the contract is deemed to have been broken, viz., the date when either there was a repudiation of the liability under it or when the contract had been impossible of performance on account of vendor's debt having been satisfied. 122 Ind. Cas. 244 = 8 Pat. 860 = A.I.R 1930 Pat. 46.

——Art. 116—Undertaking to pay debt.

Some portion of the purchase-money was left by the vendor with the vendee to be paid to his (vendor's) creditor and this provision was entered in registered sale-deed that was executed. The vendee did not pay whereupon the creditor, suing the vendor, attached and purchsed this debt due from the vendee. He then sued the vendee to recover the debt from him basing his claim on the debt purchased by him in the execution proceedings.

Held, that by his purchase of the debt the creditor stepped into the shoes of the vendor and obtained his right to recover the debt on account of breach of contract to pay the same to the creditor as stipulated in the registered deed of sale. His suit therefor would be governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 111 although he based it on the debt purchased by him. 34 All. 459, Foll. 118 Ind. Cas. 445 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 395.

——Art. 116—Undertaking to pay off mortgage.

The plaintiffs had to satisfy a mortgage. The defendant undertook by writing registered to pay the mortgage amount to the mortgagee and to procure an indemnity, or freedom of the mortgaged property from all liability and the plaintiff sold to him in consideration of that contract and of the promise to pay, a house and kotha. The defendant did not fulfil his undertaking and consequently the mortgagee sued for an obtained a preliminary decree. The plaintiff induced the mortgagee to accept a renewal of the mortgage and include in the consideration thereof the decretal debt and thus discharge him from the liability and sued defendant for compensation for breach of the contract.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 111 or Art. 62. 97 Ind. Cas. 185 = 9 N.L.J. 107 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 429.

——Art. 116—A suit brought more than six years after the sale-deed, for recovery of damages for failure to pay the amount left in the hands of the vendee for clearing a prior mortgage is barred by time. 87 Ind. Cas. 804 = 6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 222 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 488.

——Art. 116—Mortgagee covenanting to pay prior mortgagee—No time limit fixed—Mortgagor's suit for breach of covenant—Cause of action arises only on mortgagor being damnified, e.g., by the property being sold in execution of a decree obtained by the prior mortgagee. 60 Ind. Cas. 829 = 19 A.L.J. 81 = A.I.R. 1921 All. 133.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Vendee to pay mortgagee of vendor—Accrual of cause of action.

A suit by a vendor against vendee for breach of covenant by the latter to pay mortgagee of the vendor out of the sale price the cause of action arises on the date of sale and a suit brought more than six years after that, is barred by limitation, though the vendor was sued against subsequently by the mortgagee. 34 All. 429 = 9 A.L.J. 534 = 14 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract.

In order that the creditor may bring an action of indemnity against a purchaser from his debtor on the ground that he has undertaken to pay off the debt from the purchase-money, the cause of action must have arisen within 3 years of the suit. 9 Ind. Cas. 988 (Cal.).

6. Company.

See also NOTE 7 (d).

——Art. 116—Suit for recovery of dividends—Starting point.

In a suit to recover dividends, time runs under Art. 116 from the date of the breach of contract and not from the date of knowledge of the breach. The breach occurs in each year when the Income-tax Authorities inform the company that no income-tax is payable by the company for that year. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 97 = 43 Bom. L.R. 57 = I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 165 = 187 Ind. Cas. 389 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—Memorandum and Articles of Company—Suit against Director for misfeasance.

Article 116 of the Limitation Act does not apply to a claim against the Directors of a Company for misfeasance because the whole of the contract governing the relationship of the company and the Directors is not in writing registered by part only, that which is contained in the articles of association. When at various times the Director was re-appointed to his office there must have been something in the nature of an offer by him to serve further and an acceptance by the company or vice versa either express or implied of which circusmtance shows that the whole contract is not in the articles. 54 Bom. 226 = 32 Bom. L.R. 232 = A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 572.

——Art. 116—Suit against share-holder.

By the mere fact that the articles of association of a company have to be registered under the Indian Companies Act, an action against a share-holder who becomes a share-holder by accepting the articles is not covered by Art. 116. 110 Ind. Cas. 33 = 52 Bom. 477 = 30 Bom. L.R. 549 = A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 252.

——Art. 116—Purchaser of shares.

Purchaser at Court auction sale of some shares in a Company, whose transfer is not recognised is not a share-holder and therefore he cannot take his stand on the registered contractual relation which is the foundation for any claim to call in aid Art. 116. 79 Ind. 7. Interpretation

(a) 'Compensation'.

(b) 'Compensation of breach of contract'.

(c) 'Contract'.

(d) 'Writing registered'.

7. (a) Interpretation—Compensation.

——Art. 116—' Compensation.'

The word "compensation" in Art. 116 need not be restricted to a claim for unliquidated damages, and can be held to include a claim for a sum certain. 44 Cal. 759 (P.C.), Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 59 = 27 Bom. L.R. 637 = 49 Bom. 596 = A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 440.

——Art. 116—' Compensation.'

The expression compenastion is not ordinarily, used as an equivalent to damages, although compensation may often have to be measured by the same rule as damages in an action for a breach. The term compensation signifies that which is given in recompense, an equivalent rendered ; damages, on the other hand, constitute the sum of money claimed or adjudged to be paid in compensation for loss or injury sustained, the value estimated in money, of something lost or withheld. The term compensation etymologically suggests the image of balancing one thing against another. Its primary signification is equivalance, and the secondary and more common meaning is something given or obtained as an equivalent. 73 Ind. Cas. 17 = 37 C.L.J. 108 = 27 C.W.N. 210 = A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 507.

7. (b) Interpretation—" Compensation for breach of contract."

——Art. 116—' Compensation for breach of contract,' meaning of.

The words "compensation for breach of contract" in Art. 116 must be widely construed and where the suit is in substance a suit based on a registered document and it can be regarded as a suit for compensation for breach of a contract, then Art. 116 must apply although the suit may come within some other article of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 16 = 30 N.L.R. 138 = 148 Ind. Cas. 480.

7. (c) Interpretation—' Contract '.

——Art. 116—Interpretation—' Contract '.

The word "contract" in Art. 116 includes an implied contract also. 119 Ind. Cas. 243 = 51 All. 651 = 1929 A.L.J. 433 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 293.

—Art. 116—Implied Contract.

Per COYAJEE J.—The words "express or implied" contained in Art. 115 are also intended to be read into Art. 116. 89 Ind. Cas. 59 = 27 Bom. L.R. 637 = 49 Bom. 596 = A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 440.

——Art. 116—Contract signed by one and accepted by another.

Article 116 is not limited to agreements signed by both the parties. If there is a valid contract evidenced by a registered document which though signed by only one party is complete because it has been accepted by the other, and breach of that contract has been committed, Art. 116 would be equally applicable to such a case. 109 Ind. Cas. 409 = 50 All. 661 = 26 A.L.J. 426 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 313.

——Art. 116—Suit on bond—Bond signed by debtor only.

Art. 116 of the Limitation Act is applicable to cases of suits for recovery of money on contract not signed by both parties. 22 C.L.J. 311 = 20 C.W.N. 408 = 31 Ind. Cas. 394.

——Art. 116—Breach of covenant by lessee—Registered puttah executed by lessor only.

A suit to recover damages for breach of covenant contained in a lease, the terms of which were embodied in a registered puttah executed by the lessor only, is governed by Art. 116. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 628 = 35 C. 683.

——Art. 116—Contract in writing registered—Signature of both parties, if necessary.

Where there had been no kabuliat, but only a patta signed by the plaintiff alone but admittedly acted upon by the defendant also :— Held, that a suit for breach of contract fell within Art. 116. It was not the less a suit upon a contract in writing registered, because the contract was signed not by both the parties, but by only one of them. 19 M. 52, foll. (1908) 9 C.L.J. 1=1 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 116—Recital that consideration is received no contract in writing to pay—Receipt for money containing terms of sale signed by vendor and not by purchaser.

Held (1) That the recital in a deed of sale that consideration is received is not a 'contract in writing' to pay within the meanining of Art. 116. (2) Where a sale-deed contains the contract of sale which has preceded the conveyance, Art. 116 may apply, though the sale-deed contains an acknowledgment that the consideration has been paid, it if has not been paid, as a matter of fact. 24 M. 233, foll. (3) Semble.—A receipt for money, containing the terms of sale, signed by the vendor only and registered and acknowledging payment of a sum a money on account of the purchase price and providing that the balance should be paid on a certain date, is a 'contract in writing registered' within the meaning of Art. 116. (1901) 25 M. 55 = 11 M.L.J. 318.

——Art. 116—Contract 'in writing registered' signed by one party thereto.

B sued A on a pro-note, and during the litigation there was a compromise by which A undertook to execute a mortgagee in favour of B, and in consideration of it B undertook to withdraw an appeal then pending. B, however, proceeded with the appeal, got a decree and executed it and recovered the amount of the decree. A now sued to recover the amount, stating the date of the recovery of money of B as the date on which his cause of action arose. It was contended that the suit as framed will not lie the decree is set aside, and that it was barred. Held (1) the allegations in the plaint clearly showed that the plaintiff claimed damages for breach of contract, though the suit is not framed as one for damages. The written statement shows that the defendant understood the claim to be one for damages. So there is a sufficient disclosure of the cause of action. (2) The suit is governed by Art. 116, as the undertaking in the mortgage was an agreement in writing registered. The fact that the instrument was signed by A only and not by both did not take the case out of the operation of the article. 25 M. 50.

——Art. 116—Contract in writing—Signature.

Art. 116 will ordinarily apply only to contracts in writing signed by both the parties to it. It may also apply as against the party who has not signed the registered instrument is his assent to it appears from the agreement itself. (1901) 3 Bom L.R. 667.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Contract—Meaning.

The word "contract" in Art. 116 does not include an award. 6 S.L.R. 148 = 19 Ind. Cas. 376.

7. (d) Inrerpretation—" Writing registered."

—Art. 116—Interpretation—" Writing registered ", meaning of.

" Writing registered " in Art. 116 includes a document registered with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under the Companies Act. In the General Clauses Act, " registered " is defined as meaning registered in British India under the law for the time being in force for the registration of documents. The Companies Act, though no doubt not primarily concerned with the registration of documents, is nevertheless the law in force relating to the registration of certain documents affecting companies. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 97 = 42 Bom. L.R. 57 = I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 165 = 187 Ind. Cas. 389 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—Memorandum and articles of Company—Registration.

Per MUKERJI J.—Registration with the Registrar of Companies is as much a registration within Art. 116 as registration under Act 16 of 1908. 88 Ind. Cas. 785 = 47 All. 669 = 28 A.L.J. 473 = 6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 425 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 519.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Suit by share-holder against registered company for dividend—Registered—Meaning of—Gen. Clauses Act, S. 3 (45).

A suit by a share-holder against a registered Company to cover dividends is governed by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act. Registered in Art, 116 of the Limitation Act must be read as defined in the General Clauses Act of 1897, S. 3, Cl. 45 and includes documents registered under any special law such as the Company's Act or the Copyright Act as well as the Indian Registration Act. 42 Mad. 33 = 35 M.L.J. 253 = 24 M.L.T. 246 = 8 L.W. 354 = 48 Ind. Cas. 903.

——Art. 116—' Registered ' meaning of.

The registration referred to in Art. 116, is not registration of Companies but registration under Act 15 of 1908. Consequently, registration of a company under the Companies Act is not equivalent to registration of the Articles of Association within the meaning of Art. 116 and hence an application under S. 235, Companies Act is not governed by Art. 116 but by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 103 = 143 Ind. Cas. 713.

——Art. 116—Registration.

The deposit of the memorandum and articles of Association of a Limited Company with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies under the direction of the Act is not registration as contemplated by Art. 116. 42 Mad. 33, Overruled. 94 Ind. ——Art. 116—Registration of mortgage-deed by fraud.

Where a registration of a mortgage-deed is obtained by fraud to which mortgagor and mortgagee are parties, the deed cannot be treated as a registered mortgage-deed. Nor can be deed be treated as a registered document under Art. 116 so as to give effect to the personal covenant as contained in a registered document.

The jurisdiction conferred on the Sub-Registrar by S. 29, Registration Act, is limited to receiving and registering "every document other than a document referred to in S. 28" and once it is found that the document was the document referred to in S. 28, then the result is that if a Registrar had been aware of the facts, he would have refused registration. The same consequences must follow as if registration had in fact been refused, that is to say, the entire document is on the footing of an unregistered document. Not only does it not affect any immovable property (S. 49), but it must be considered unregistered for the purposes of limitation (Art. 116 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act). 20 P.L.T. 285 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 502 = 5 B.R. 597 = 18 Pat. 429 = 181 Ind. Where upon a sale of the mortgaged property under a mortgage-decree obtained in a suit on a registered mortgage-deed, there is a deficiency, the period of limitation to recover the same under a personal covenant in the said deed is six years under Art. 116. 26 All. 138 and 34 All. 464, Not foll. 116 Ind. ——Art. 116—A suit on a personal covenant in a mortgage-deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66 and the period of limitation is six years and not three years. 28 M.W.N. 873 = 28 M.L.W. 624 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1124 = 55 M.L.J. 506.

——Arts. 116 and 66—Article 66 applies to claims based on a single bond. A single bond means a bond merely for payment of a certain sum of money without any condition in or annexed to it. A mortgage-deed which contains a covenant making the mortgagor personally liable cannot be considered to be a single bond within the meaning of Art. 66. Claim based on such a mortgage-deed is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66. 113 Ind. Cas. 489 = 5 O.W.N. 836 = 4 Luck. 107 = A.I.R. 2198 Oudh 465.

——Art. 116—Suit for recovery of money under S. 68, Transfer of Property Act.

Limitation for a suit for recovery of money under S.68, T.P. Act, is governed by Art. 116 or Art. 120 and not Art. 62. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 80=161 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Arts. 116, 120—Suit for personal decree under registered mortgage.

A suit for personal relief against a mortgagor under S. 68, T.P. Act, is governed by 6 years' limitation under Art. 116 or Art. 120 which starts from the time when the cause of action arises. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 415 = 11 O.W.N. 1198 = 151 Ind. Cas. 448.

——Art. 116—A suit for recovery of money on the personal covenant contained in a registered deed of mortgage is governed by Art. 66 or Art. 59 and not by Art. 116, as the deed becomes an unregistered deed and there is no breach of a contract in writing and registered as contemplated by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 347 = 41 C.W.N. 783 = 171 Ind. Cas. 965.

——Art. 116—Right to personal decree for principal barred—Interest six years prior to institution of suit, recovery of.

If the stipulation for payment of interest in a mortgage deed does not constitute an independent agreement, and is no more than a part of the contract for the payment of the principal, the mortgagee cannot get a personal decree for the recovery of the interest, even for the period of six years preceding the suit, in a case where his suit for enforcement of the personal remedy in, respect of the principal was barred by time at the time of the institution of the suit. There being one contract from which the liability for the principal and interest arises, the cause of action arising from the breach of contract is not divisible or severable and the time for the recovery of both principal and interest must be deemed to begin to run from the date when the breach took place. If the covenant for payment of interest is an independent and separate agreement, the breach of such covenant will give rise to separate cause of action, independently altogether of the cause of action arising on a breach of the covenant for the payment of the principal. A suit instituted within six years of such breach will obviously be within time, in view of the language of Art. 116 and cannot be held to be barred by limitation merely because an action for compensation for breach of another independent covenant has become time-barred. The mortgagee is entitled to a personal decree for recovery of such interest even though he has no subsisting right to get a personal decree for the recovery of the principal. But this is subject to the proviso that the mortgagee is not entitled to any relief in respect of interest falling due after the mortgage debt itself has become irrevocable, because in that event, his suit for sale itself will be liable to dismissal as barred by time and no occasion will arise for him to apply for a personal decree under O. 34, R. 6, Civil P.C.

——Art. 116—Suit for personal decree—Limitation—Starting point—'On demand'—Interpretation of.

When a mortgage bond provides that the mortgage money shall be payable on demand, it becomes repayable at once and limitation starts from the date of the bond and the position is not altered when the words used are "when required by you" or "whenever domanded," for, these expressions only mean "on demand." There must be something more in a mortgage deed than this to justify the Court in holding that the cause of action on the bond only arises when a demand has, in fact, been made. To construe the words "when required by you" as meaning more than "on demand" would be putting a forced construction on the words. Hence, a claim for supplemnetal (personal) decree in a suit for sale is barred by time where the bond provides that the money shall be paid whenever demanded and the suit is brought more than 6 years from the date of the bond but within that period from the notice of demand. 58 M.L.W. 144 = 1945 M.W.N. 174 = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 233 = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 157 = I.L.R. [Overrules—A.I.R. 1919 Mad. 462 = 50 Ind. Cas. 87.]

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Money payable on demand.

Where a suit is instiuted more than six years after the making of the mortgage, and the mortgage money is payable on demand a personal decree is barred. 116 Ind. Cas. 488 = 51 All. 473 = 1929 A.L.J. 110 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 139.

——Art. 116—Limitation—Starting point.

Where the mortgage-deed contains a personal covenant to pay a mortgage debt and is registered, the period of limitation for personal decree is six years under Art. 116 from the date when the mortgage debt becomes payable unless the period is extended by an acknowledgment either under S. 19, or in a manner contemplated by S. 20. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 65 = 56 L.W. 649 = (1943) 2 M.L.J. 501 = 1943 M.W.N. 698 = I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 572 = 211 Ind. Cas. 630.

——Art. 116—Instalment mortgage-deed—Stipulation of whole debt to become due on default of first instalment—Suit to enforce personal remedy within 6 years from the date fixed for payment of the last instalment is within time under Art. 74 or Arts. 75 and 115. 1941 N.L.J. 649.

——Arts. 116—Instalment mortage bond—Limitation——Starting point.

The amount on registered mortage bonds was made payable by several annual instalments. The bond contained a clause that in case of default in any one instalment, the whole balance then due would be recoverable. The mortgage suit was brought within six years from the expiry of the period of repayment stipulated in the mortgage bond but more than three years after the date of the last default :

Held, that the fact that the mortgage bonds in suit were registered documents would be sufficient to attract the operation of Art. 116, rather than of Art. 75, though in terms Art. 75 seemed to be the most appropriate one. The claim, therefore, to a personal decree under O. 34, R. 6, Civil P.C. for the unsatisfied balance due on the mortgage would not be barred at the date the suits were brought inasmuch as it was within six years from the date of the alleged breach of the bond. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 26 = 63 C.L.J. 109 = 43 C.W.N. 38 = 181 Ind. Cas. 141.

——Art. 116—Suit for compensation for breach of covenant in mortgage-deed.

A registered mortgage bond provided that the amount secured by it should be paid by instalments and that in case of default the mortgagee would be entitled to take possession; further, that should there be any loss in the recovery of the amount due or in delivery of possession of the mortgaged land, the mortgagee would have power to realise the amount secured by the bond with interest at 1 per cent. from the date of the cause of action till repayment, either from the person or from the property, movable or immovable, of the debtor, or from the property mortgaged. Held, that a suit based upon the foregoing covenant to recover the mortgage-money upon failure of the mortgagor to pay instalments was in substance a suit for compensation for breach of contract, to which the limitation prescribed by Art. 116 applied. 1908 A.W.N. 160 = 5 A.L.J. 486 = 30 A. 400.

——Art. 116—Limitation—Starting point.

Where suit is brought against the sons after the father's death, the mortgagee can obtain a mortgage-decree for antecedent debts and a money-decree for the cash advance against the sons which may be enforced by sale of the entire joint family property, unless the suit against the sons for a money-decree is barred by limitation. The period of limitation in such a case for the personal liability of the father under the registered mortgage-deed is six years under Art. 116. Therefore, in any case, the period of limitation against the sons would also be six years from the date of the mortgage-deed. 40 Bom. L.R. 381 = A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 295 = 175 Ind. Cas. 939.

——Art. 116—Limitation—Starting point.

When there is a suit on a registered mortgage which ultimately results in the sale of the property, and the proceeds of the sale are insufficient to cover the mortgage-debt and costs, a personal decree for the balance remaining due can be passed against the mortgagor under a personal covenant in the registered mortgage bond if a suit is filed more than three but less than six years from the date upon which the mortgage money first fell due. Article 116 governs such a suit and not Art. 66. 1938 Rang. L.R. 35 = A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 484 = 172 Ind. Cas. 75 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—When the only remedy expressly given is that of a foreclosure, there is no covenant of personal liability. But where the mortgage-deed does not contain a condition of foreclosure the contract to repay the borrowed money and the contract that certain property should be charged as security for the repayment can be regarded as separate contracts. In such a case the period of limitation would run from the date of execution and a suit for the recovery of money will have to be brought within three years. 18 N.L.J. 291 = 163 Ind. Cas. 961.

——Art. 116—Under the terms of a mortgage deed, the principal sum was to be paid in eight years and the stipulated interest every month. It was also provided that if interest for one full year remained unpaid, the mortgagee would be at liberty to recover principal and interest and compound interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period. Interest not being paid there was default at the end of the year. The mortgagee instituted a suit for the recovery of the amount due within six years from the date of the expiry of the stipulated period and obtained a decree. The property was brought to sale but as the sale proceeds were not sufficient, the mortgagee applied for a simple money-decree, for the balance under O. 34, R. 6, Civil P.C.

Held, that time began to run on the deed after the expiry of the stipulated period and not after the expiry of one year within which the mortgagor made continued default in payment of interest; that Art. 116, read with Art. 80 governed the case and the suit was in time. (1934) A.L.J. 261 = A.I.R. 1934 All. 397 = 3 A.W.R. 431 = 56 A. 954 = 148 Ind. Cas. 951 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—Provision in mortgage-deed entitling mortgagee to realise in case of dispossession from person and other properties of mortgagor—Cause of action, when arises.

In a rehan deed, besides a personal covenant to repay, there was a clause regarding dispossession which gave the mortgagees the right to realise from the mortgaged property, from the persons of the mortgagors and from their other properties movable and immovable, if they were dispossessed from the whole or any portion of the rehan property. The mortgagee instituted his suit on June 26, 1925, the casue of action being dispossession on March 24, previous:

Held, that the dispossession was as much is cause of action in a registered deed giving rise to limitation under Art. 116 as the cause of action of failure to pay on the due date and hence the limitation was six years from the date of dispossession. 13 Pat. 228 = A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 578 = 15 P.L.T. 811 = 153 Ind. Cas. 120.

——Art. 116—Limitation—Starting point.

A registered mortgage-deed provided that the mortgage-money would be paid in four years and that the property would be redeemed and that the mortgagee would be entitled to recover the amount any time after four years from the date of mortgage:

Held, that the limitation for personal remedy against the mortgagor would be six years from the date on which the amount would become payable and not six years from the date of mortgage. 34 P.L.R. 171=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 329 = 144 Ind. Cas. 738.

——Art. 116—Possessory mortgage—Possession not delivered—Defect in title—Suit for mortgage money or in alternative for possession and substituted security:

Held, that time for limitation began to run under Art. 116 or 120 of the Limitation Act from the very inception of the mortgage. 7 O.W.N. 1045 = A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 5 = 6 Luck. 374 = 129 Ind. Cas. 168.

——Art. 116—In a suit on mortgage the limitation begins to run from the date of the first default and claim to the relief against the mortgagor is to be brought within six years under Art. 116 although the claim to realization of debt from the property can be brought within 12 years under Art. 132. The mere fact that there is longer period for one relief does not in himself extend the limitation for the other relief.

Where therefore a mortgage suit is brought six years after the first default is made the claim for personal decree is barred. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 993 = 129 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Inalienable property.

The plaintiff sued for sale of a mortgaged property on foot of a registered mortgage. The property however, being a cultivatory holding and thus not being liable to sale. In his replication the plaintiff desired a money decree. There was a further plea of the plaintiff that the defendant had fraudulently represented the property to be alienable property; but no fraud was found to have been proved.

Held, that the suit would have been governed by Art. 95, Sch. I of the Limitation Act only if the alleged fraud had been established, the proper Article applicable to the suit was Art. 116, Sch. I of the Limitation Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 595 = 9 O.L.J. 171 = A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 113.

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Joint family property.

Where in a suit based upon a registered mortgage executed by the manager of a joint Hindu family, the mortgagee prays for an alternative relief that in case the mortgaged property be not liable for payment of the mortgage debt, he should be given a personal decree, the limitation for such a relief is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 66. 113 Ind. Cas. 489 = 4 Luck. 107 = 5 O.W.N. 836 = A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 465.

——Art. 116—A mortgage by the Karta if not made for purposes laid down in the Hindu Law is void from its inception and creates no charge against the joint family property and even against the interest of the actual mortgagor ; the cause of action for a relief by way of a money decree against the executant arises immediately after he breaks his promise which he made for the repayment of the loan, i.e., from the day the money under the agreement becomes due and a suit for such a money decree is governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 97 of the Act. 69 Ind. Cas. 786 = 25 O.C. 164 = 10 O.L.J. 180 = A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 257.

——Art. 116—Where the manager of Hindu joint family mortgages the family property for purposes not recognised by the law, the mortgage is void in toto and ab initio. There is no question of the security failing at a subsequent date. Therefore where in a suit on such mortgage the plaintiff prays for an alternative relief that if the property is not liable, he must be given a personal decree against the assets of the mortgagor, Art. 116 and not Art. 97 applies. 27 Cal. 762, Foll. 61 Ind. Cas. 205 = 8 O.L.J. 81 = A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 47.

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Mortgage suit barred.

The Trial Court relying on a clause in the mortgage deed which entitled the mortgagee to sue for the whole amount of principal and interest, on default of payment of annual interest, held that the claim to enforce the charge was barred by time under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, but it was however of opinion that the personal remedy based on the bond was not barred. It accordingly granted the plaintiff a simple money-decree. The lower Appellate Court holding that the personal remedy also was barred, dismissed the whole suit,

Held, although the relief for recovery of money otherwise than by enforcing the charge would be, governed by another article with a different period fixed, yet as the bond was not a single bond within the meaning of Art. 66. the time began to run against the mortgagee for both the reliefs claimed from the date of the first default, when the money became payable. 19 A.L.J. 406 ; 15 A.L.J. 313 ; 3 All. 600 (F.B.), Diss. 69 Ind. Cas. 981 = 45 All. 27 = 4 L.R.A. (Civ.) 3 = 20 A.L.J. 819 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Mortgage void ab initio.

A mortgage-deed of 1906 provided that in case of default in payment of interest, the mortgagee was to take possession of the property. In 1908, there was a default but the mortgagor refused to give possession. The mortgagee brought a suit in 1917 in which, on the death of the original mortgagors, his sons were brought on record. The sons objected that the property was ancestral and that there was neither legal necessity nor antecedent debt and the suit was consequently dismissed in 1918. The present suit was brought in 1920 by mortgagee to recover his money.

Held, that Art. 116 applied and that the mortgage deed was invalid and void ab initio. The cause of action arose when the mortgagor refused to give possession in 1908 and not in 1918 and the suit was barred by limitation as well as by O. 2, R. 2, C.P. Code, as when he has refused possession, he could sue for possession and also for money under S. 68 (c), T.P. Act. 49 I.A. 9, Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 340 = 10 O.L.J. 376 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 147.

——Art. 116—Where in a mortgage-deed, the mortgagor convenanted to pay the debt in six months and failed to pay the same, a suit was instituted nearly ten years after the debt became payable, and a personal decree was passed therein,

Held, that the cause of action on the personal covenant accrued when there was a failure to pay the debt, i.e., six months from the date of the mortgage and that the claim had become barred under Art. 66. 95 Ind. Cas. 839 = 24 A.L.J. 615 = 28 Bom. ——Art. 116—Suit on personal covenant—Starting point.

Time for suit on a personal covenant to repay the debt in a mortgage runs from the expiry of the term fixed for redemption. But where the mortgagee enjoys the usufruct in lieu of interest, time runs from the last year when he enjoys such usufruct. 63 Ind. Cas. 234 = 45 Bom. 1206 = 23 Bom. L.R. 529 = A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 437.

——Art. 116—What is not—Personal covenant.

A stipulation for the recovery of the consideration if the usufructuary mortgagee should fail to get possession or be dispossessed is not a personal covenant in the bond or under S. 68 (c) of the Transfer of Property Act by reason of the mortgagor's failure to deliver or secure the possession of the property but is to enforce the charge upon the immovable property under the covenants in the bond itself. Such a suit is governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act.

A claim for interest in such a suit is not a claim for damages and Art. 132 and not Art. 116 applies to such a claim. But where the claim is interest at enhanced rate covenanted for in case of dispossession, Art. 116 applies. 63 Ind. Cas. 297 = 2 P.L.T. 229 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 403.

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Registration at wrong place.

Where there are two or more covenants, in a document, the invalidity of one does not affect the validity of the other. Thus though a mortgage deed may be invalid as having been registered in a wrong place and so being in fraud of the registration law, the general personal covenant to re-pay contained therein can nevertheless be enforced, and is governed by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act in accordance with the ruling of Privy Council in 29 Cal. 654. 73 Ind. ——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Representative of mortgagor—Suit against.

The claim for a personal decree against the mortgagor is governed by Art. 116 if mortgage is registered. 15 C.P.L.R. 29, foll. Where the mortgagee's remedy against the mortgagor personally is barred, it is also barred against the surety or his representatives. 95 Ind. Cas. 707 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 449.

——Art. 116—Personal liability of mortgagor—Starting point.

The period of limitation for a personal relief on a registered deed of mortgage is six years from the date of the accrual of the cause of action on the deed. 6 O.W.N. 974.

——Art. 116—Whole amount falling due on default of instalment.

Where in a mortgage-deed the mortgagor promises to pay interest at the end of every month and the deed further provides that in case of default to pay such interest, the mortgagor shall return the principal as well as interest before the expiry of the mortgage period whenever the creditor would demand the same, the cause of action arises on the day on which default in paying monthly interest is made and time runs from that day and not when the mortgage period expires. A.I.R. 1927 Sind 151, not appr. 39 Mad. 981 ; A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 160, not foll ; A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 705, appr. 116 Ind. Cas. 581 = A.I.R. 1929 Sind 140.

——Art. 116—Eviction of mortgagee—Starting point.

When a mortgagee is deprived of the security under a decree of a Civil Court, he is entitled to proceed personally against the mortgagor and the time for such a suit runs from the date the mortgagee was evicted from the land. 89 Ind. Cas. 56 = 3 Rang. 60 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 223.

9. Principal and Agent.

——Art. 116—Suit by principal against agent under registered service kabuliyat to recover specific sums of money misappropriated.

Where, by a registered service kabuliyat, the agent undertook after the termination of his service and after the accounts were checked, to repay the amount found to have been misappropriated within a month of the ascertainment of the amount :

Held, that the suit by the principal for recovery of specific sums of money said to have been misappropriated by the agent was governed by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 257 = 72 C.L.J. 480 = 44 C.W.N. 793 = 195 Ind. Cas. 151.

——Art. 116—Suit by principal to enforce charge created in his favour by agent to secure money that might be found due from agent falls under Art. 132 and not under Art. 89 or 116. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 257 = 72 C.L.J. 480 = 44 C.W.N. 793 = 195 Ind. Cas. 151.

——Art. 116—Suit for accounts.

A suit by a principal against his agent for accounts is not a suit for compensation for breach of contract within Art. 116 and hence is not governed by that article but by Art. 89. (1930) M.W.N. 1199 = 33 L.W. 1 = A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 185 (2) = 54 M. 654 = 62 M.L.J. 45 = 131 Ind. Cas. 165.

——Art. 116—Suit for accounts.

A suit against the heirs of an agent who undertook to render accounts every six months is governed by Art. 116 which provides for a suit for compensation for breach of a contract registered. 16 Ind. Cas. 414, Foll. 39 All. 355 = 15 A.L.J. 265 = 39 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 116—Joint agents—Death of one—Suit for accounts against survivor.

The death of one of two joint agents does not terminate the agency so far as the other is concerned inasmuch as the presumption is that the agency is joint and several. A suit for accounts against the survivor on foot of a registered kabuliyat executed by the agents is governed by Art. 116 of the Lim. Act. 17 C.L.J. 201 = 16 Ind. Cas. 852.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract.

The Article does not apply where an agent under a power of attorney sues his principal for moneys spent by him in the course of agency, as the power of attorney does not contain a promise by the principal to pay for advances made by the agent. 34 Mad. 167 = (1910) M.W.N. 316 = 8 M.L.T. 194 = 20 M.L.J. 989 = 7 Ind. Cas. 399.

10. Registered Lease.

See also NOTE 12.

——Arts. 116, 110 and 62—Suit for rent against assignee of registered lease—Article applicable.

A suit for rent against the assignee of a lease created by a registered deed is governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 110 of the Limitation Act. The liability of the assignee to pay rent is on the basis of the privity of estate which is created by the assignment. The way in which the liability arises by reason of the privity of estate is that the covenant to pay a certain sum fixed as rent is a covenant running with the land. By reason of the privity of estate the assignee becomes liable for this covenant running with the land. The covenant has no existence except by the registered contract. When, therefore, the lessor sues the assignee for the rent, he is in substance suing him on the basis of the covenant created by the registered deed. It follows therefore that Art. 116 of the Limitation Act would apply.

Art. 62 of the Limitation Act has no application to the claim in the suit in so far as it is for the arrears of rent which fall due after the date of the assignment. As at the date of assignment these amounts were not due at all, there is no scope for an argument that the assignee may be considered to have received these amounts for the lessor's use. 54 C.W.N. 673 = A.I.R. 1951 Cal. 251.

——Art. 116—Registered patni lease—Suit for rent—Limitation.

A suit to recover rent due on a registered patni lease is governed by Art. 116 and the period of limitation is six years unless some special or local law has laid down a different period. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 83 = 8 B.R. 24 = 196 Ind. Cas. 466.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent.

Where there is a lease in writing and registered, a suit for rent based on such a lease will be governed by Art. 116 and not by any special provision that may exist in terms for suit for arrears of rent but where there is no registered lease, the suit will be treated as a suit for rent coming within the special provision and not under Art. 115. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 587 = 41 C.W.N. 1001 = I.L.R. (1936) 2 Cal. 631 = 68 C.L.J. 539 = 173 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Art. 116—Lease of agricultural land for non-agricultural purposes—Limitation.

Where a lease, comprising agricultural and non-agricultural lands, the latter forming considerable part of the tenancy, for collection of rent from the tenants, is in writing and registered, the lease of the agricultural land not being for agricultural purposes, limitation prescribed by Sch. III, Ben. Ten. Act, will not apply to a suit on the lease for recovery of rent. The suit will be governed by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 587 = 41 C.W.N. 1001 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 631 = 68 C.L.J. 539 = 173 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Art. 116—Quaere.—Where the lease is a lease coming under the purview of the Act, and is in writing and registered, the limitation applicable to a suit for rent on the basis of such lease will be that under Art. 116 and not Art. 2 of Sch. III of Ben. Ten. Act. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 587 = 48 C.W.N. 1001 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 631 = 68 C.L.J. 539 = 173 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Art. 116—A suit for recovery of rent by a landlord under the Madras Estates Land Act is governed by the three years' period of limitation prescribed by Art. 8, Sch. A of the Act. It makes no difference whether the landlord is suing on a registered-deed or not. 100 Ind. Cas. 241 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 439.

——Art. 116—Suit for recovery of rents and profits—Limitation.

A suit for rent by a landlord in respect of an anubhavam tenure evidenced by a registered document is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 131. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 682 = (1935) M.W.N. 866 = 42 L.W. 596 = 158 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Zarpeshgijara—Registered document.

A suit to recover the rent payable to the plaintiff under a registered zuripeshgi lease is governed by Art. 116 of the Lim. Act and the period is not 3 years as provided in the B. T. Act. 4 Pat. L.W. 146 = 44 Ind. Cas. 153.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Registered lease.

Art. 116 and not Art. 110 is applicable to a suit for arrears of rent on a registered lease. 44 Cal. 759 = 1 Pat. L.J. 262 = 15 A.L.J. 217 = 25 C.L.J. 279 = 32 M.L.J. 357 = 21 M.L.T. 262 = 21 C.W.N. 577 = (1917) M.W.N. 363 = 5 L.W. 654 = 19 Bom. L.R. 450 = 44 I.A. 65 = 39 Ind. Cas. 156 (P.C.).

——Arts. 116 and 110—Suit for rent.

A suit to recover "rent" reserved in a registered kabuliyat is governed by Art. 116 and not Art. 110 of the Limitation Act. 1 Pat. L.J. 37 = 2 P.L.W. 446 = 34 Ind. Cas. 754.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Document registered.

A suit for rent under a registered document is governed by Art. 116. (1914) M.W.N. 323 = 23 Ind. Cas. 753.

——Art. 116—Perpetual lease—Lessee to pay nazrana and yearly rent—Covenant that should land or portion thereof go out of lessee's possession, the nazrana with interest would be returned—Lessee coming to know of defective title of lessor but continuing in possession—Suit for return of nazrana within six years, after dispossession but beyond six years after knowledge of lessor's defective title—Limitation applicable.

A perpetual lease provided for payment by the lessee of nazrana amounting to Rs. 160 and also for payment of Rs. 6 per annum as rent. The lessor covenanted that should the land or any portion thereof go out of the lessee's possession, he would make good the loss from other land or the lessee could recover from him the nazrana paid with interest thereon from the date of his dispossession. The lease was registered. Mutation was effected in the lessee's name shortly after the execution of the lease and the lessee then became aware of the fact that his lessor had title only in part of the land leased. There were other co-sharers, and the lessor's share was only $\frac{1}{8}$th. The lessee however took no action in the matter at that time as his possession was not then challenged. He was eventually dispossessed after he had been in possession for about ten years. He then brought the suit suing the lessor for return of the nazrana of Rs. 160 plus Rs. 10 interest. The suit was based on the personal covenant in the lease that the lessor would return the nazrana with interest, should the lessee be dispossessed. It was the lessee's contention that the cause of action arose under the lease on his dispossession and not before, when he came to know of the defective title of the lessor as was contended by the opposite party :

Held, that the suit was clearly founded upon the covenant in the lease to return the nazrana, should the lessee be dispossessed and, therefore, Art. 116, Lim. Act applied. Hence the period of limitation was six years for compensation for the breach of a contract in writing registered, this period running from the date when the contract was broken. On the finding of the trial Court that the lessee was aware of the defect in his lessor's title from the first it could not be held that the period would run from the date when he became aware of it. But even if the statement in the plaint that he came to know of the defect only at the time of mutation be accepted, time would not be held to run from them. The contract was broken when the appellant was dispossessed and hence the suit having been brought within six years from the breach was within time and the Courts below were not right in holding that Art. 62 applied and that the suit was barred by time because it had been brought more than three years after the execution of the lease. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 82 = 1941 O.W.N. 1182 = 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 1002 = 17 Luck. 289 = 196 Ind. Cas. 888.

——Arts. 116 and 97—Sajadanashin entering the agreement to lease property at khanka and receiving nazrana. Subsequent appointment of Receiver. Dispossession of lessee due to defective title of lessor ; Suit for damages for return of nazrana :

Held, that the Art applicable is Art. 116 even though a suit may apparently fall within Art. 97. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 81 = 18 Pat. 654 = 6 B.R. 385 = 186 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Art. 116—Refund of consideration—Limitation.

Where a lease is void, the lessor having no right to make the grant under S. 65, Contract Act, the lessee is entitled to the return of the money paid to the lessor and the suit for refund of the money is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 65 or Art. 97. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 452 = 2 B.R. 729 = 164 Ind. Cas. 277.

——Art. 116—Lease.

A suit by lessee for damages by way of compensation for breach of the term of the lease, namely, the implied term for quiet possession is governed by Art. 116. 98 Ind. Cas. 584 = 7 Lah. 423 = 27 P.L.R. 663 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 1.

——Art. 116—An action breach of duty declared by S. 108 of the Transfer of Property Act is regulated by Art. 116 of the Limitation Act if the lease is in writing registered, the obligation being deemed to be embodied in the contract, and not by Art. 62 or Art. 97. 101 Ind. Cas. 707 = 8 P.L.T. 590 = 6 Pat. 606 = A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 248.

——Art. 116—A registered instrument of lease operates also as an executory contract to deliver possession of the property to the lessee, such contract being deemed to be embodied in the lease ; and a suit for damages for breach of such contract is within Art. 116. The question of the date from which limitation runs must be decided by reference to the Article under which the suit would have fallen if the contract had not been registered. 78 Ind. Cas. 248 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 220.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Suit for possession under a contract of lease—Claim of mesne profits.

A suit for possession under a contract of lease and for mesne profits is substantially one for damages for breach of contract and is governed by Art. 116. 32 Ind. Cas. 245 (Mad.).

——Art. 116—Applicability—Leases for building purposes.

The provisions of Art. 116 of the Limitation Act as to registered contracts, apply to leases for building purposes and for establishing godowns not being leases for agricultural or horticultural purposes. 11 Ind. Cas. 6 (Cal.).

——Art. 116—Lease to put lessee in possession—Mere execution of lease not delivery of possession—Suit for damages.

By a registered document dated, 11th November, 1893, defendant leased certain villages to plaintiff for a term of seven years and eight months. On 5th December, 1893, plaintiff asked for possession, but did not get it. On 11th November, 1892, he sued for possession or in the alternative for damages for non-delivery of possession. Held, the claim for damages was not barred, it being governed by Art. 116. Both in the case of a sale and a lease, the registered instrument by which such sale or lease is effected not only operates as a grant, but, in the absence of a contract to the contrary, is also construed and operates as an executory contract to deliver to the vendee or lessee such possession of the property as its nature permits ; and the breach of such an obligation is a breach of a contract in writing registered within the meaning of the article referred to. (1901) 12 M.L.J. 249 = 25 M. 587.

——Arts. 116, 132—Usufructuary mortgage—Lease to mortgagor—Lease for one year—Registered deed of lease—Charge for rent—Holding over.

Where no interest is stipulated for in a mortgage bond, no interest is recoverable. A usufructuary mortgagee leased the mortgaged lands to the mortgagor for one year and the registered rent deed executed by the mortgagor have a charge upon the lands for arrears of rent. The mortgagor paid no rent, but held over after the lapse of the period. In a suit by the mortgagee for the mortgage money ; and arrears of rent : Held, that the rent was not recoverable as interest due on the mortgage ; that the rent, except as to one year, was not payable under a registered instrument ; that the clause conferring a charge for arrears was not a term of the lease and would not apply to the period of holding over ; that the mortgagee not having assented to the holding over, the holding over was not on the terms of the original lease, and that since neither Art. 116 nor Art. 132 applied to the case, arrears were recoverable only for three years. ——Art. 116—Usufructuary mortgage—Breach of covenant to deliver possession—Claim for damages.

In a mortgage suit, where the plaintiff claimed damages for breach of the covenant to deliver the possession, it was found that the breach occurred once for all at the time when the mortgagee was first entitled to recover possession of the property ; that is, at the time when the mortgage deed was executed more than six years ago :

Held, that the claim for damages was barred. (1945) A.L.J. 242 = A.I.R. 1945 All. 202 = 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.). 197 = I.L.R. (1945) All. 676 = 221 Ind. Cas. 454 = 46 Cri. L.J. 743 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—Breach of contract.

Where the mortgagor, by registered mortgage-deed of September 3, 1927, contracted to deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee on July 1, 1928 and to pay certain rent for the period up to the delivery of possession but no possession was delivered as stipulated and the mortgagee brought a suit in 1936 for recovery of possession and compensation :

Held, that Art. 116 and not Art. 109 applied and the suit brought more than 6 years after the breach of the contract was barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 1 = 1940 O.W.N. 875 = 1940 R.D. 424 = 1940 A.W.R. (C.C.) 393 = 16 Luck. 203 = 190 Ind. Cas. 721.

——Art. 116—Suit for damages for breach of covenant of title—Limitation—Starting point.

Under Art. 116, in the case of a suit for damages for breach of covenant of title contained in a registered deed, where the vendee has been put in possession of the property by the vendor and the sale is void ab initio as against the rightful owner, limitation begins to run not from the date of sale but from the time the vendee is dispossessed by the rightful owner.

Per Jackson, J.C.—The expression "covenant for title" does not, as is too often assumed, mean merely covenant for right to convey but includes covenant for quiet enjoyment. 28 N.L.R. 31 = A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 5 = 14 N.L.J. 125 = 136 Ind. Cas. 225 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—The gist of an action for the violation of a contract is the breach of such contract and not any resulting or collateral damage which may be occasioned thereby ; and consequently, the limitation runs in such cases from the time when the contract is broken and not from the time at which any damage arising therefrom is sustained by the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 275 = 19 P.L.T. 198 = 17 Pat. 338 = 4 B.R. 694 = 176 Ind. Cas. 269.

——Art. 116—Where certain property is mortgaged twice and according to the terms of the two deeds, there is a stipulation to the effect that for three years the mortgagor would not be entitled to exercise his right of redemption and the mortgagee not entitled to demand redemption during that period and the three years' period was to commence from the date of the second deed, the time begins to run after three years from the date of the second mortgage. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 484 = 1938 Rang. L.R. 35 = 172 Ind. Cas. 75 (F.B.).

——Art. 116—If the suit is brought merely for compensation for breach of contract, then time would begin to run from the date of the breach. A.I.R. 1936 All. 870 = 1936 A.W.R. 1197 = 116 Ind. Cas. 908.

——Art. 116—In the case of compensation for breach of contract under Art. 116, Limitation Act, time would begin to run from the time when the contract was broken or in case of successive breaches from the date when the last breach occurred or, in the case of a continuing breach, when it ceased. A.I.R. 1936 All. 870 = 1936 A.W.R. 1197 = (1937) All. L.R. 109 = 166 Ind. Cas. 903.

——Art. 116—Where no time is mentioned, it means the undertaking is an undertaking to pay upon demand and no cause of action arises until demand is made and when demand is made and ignored, then if the person to whom the money should be paid sues the person with whom the contract has been made, loss occurs and damges are recovered, the cause of action is not the breach but the loss itself, and, therefore, the statute in this case runs from the time when the money was paid. 29 N.L.J.298 ; A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 379 = 149 Ind. Cas. 1200.

——Art. 116—No date fixed for payment.

Under Art. 116 time begins to run from the date of breach of contract under a registered instrument. Where no time is fixed for payment, its run from the date of the deed itself and a suit brought more than six years after the date is barred by time. A.I.R. 1929 All. 775.

——Art. 116—Breach of contract—Time when begins to run.

Where a lease-hold which had been mortgaged for a term by the plaintiff to the defendant was sold in execution of a decree for non-payment of rent to the superior landlord which the defendant had contracted to pay, limitation for the plaintiff's suit if any for compensation for breach of contract, begins to run from the time of the breach, which should be taken as the date of the execution sale and not from the date of the expiry for the term of the mortgage. 34 Ind. Cas. 51 (Cal.).

——Art. 116—Starting point of limitation—Registered document.

The question whether the limitation for the recovery of money under Art. 116 begins to run from the date of the registration of deed is very doubtful. 33 Ind. Cas. 111 (All.).

——Arts. 116, 97—Usufructuary mortgage—Part of mortgaged property in possession of a third party—Suit to recover possession from third party—Subsequent suit against mortgagor for damages—Limitation—"Terminus a quo".

A usufructuary mortgagee of property comprising a zemindari and an indigo factory, failed to get possession of the indigo factory, which was in the possession of a third party. The mortgagee sued the party in possession for recovery of the indigo factory, making the mortgagor a pro forma defendant, but was defeated on the finding that the mortgagor had no power to mortgagee the factory. The mortgagee then instituted a suit against the representative of the mortgagor claiming (1) compensation for non-delivery of possession of the indigo factory; (2) costs incurred in the former litigation; and (3) damages in respect of the produce of indigo for a certain year. Held, that this suit was governed as to limitation by Art. 116 and not by Art. 97 and that time began, not from the date of the final decree in the suit to recover the indigo factory from the person in possession thereof, but from the date of the mortgage. 1907 A.W.N. 108 = 4 A.L.J. 249.

——Art. 116—Suit for arrears of rent under C.P. Tenancy Act.

Under S. 104, C.P. Tenancy Act, the special article of limitation provided by itself shall apply in all cases which come within its purview, and the provisions of the Limitation Act shall not apply with the exception of Ss. 6, 7, 19 and 20. Consequently, where a suit for arrears of rent falls under Art. 2 to Sch. II, C.P. Tenancy Act, and also under Art. 116, Lim. Act. Art. 2 is to be applied even if the instrument is a registered one. ——Art. 116—Suit for recovery of rent and profits.

The plaintiffs brought a suit claiming village profits for six years. They had been given a right under a registered agreement executed by the defendants to sue them for their shares of profits which would be collected by the defendants if the plaintiffs' share were not paid to them:

Held, that the suit was on the basis of a registered agreement and therefore, it was not time-barred. A.I.R. 1935 All. 945 = 1935 R.D. 433 = 1935 A.W.R. 1063 = (1935) A.L.J. 1116 = 159 Ind. Cas. 446.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Registered kanom deed.

A suit to recover arrears of rent under a registered kanom deed is governed by Article 116. 11 L.W. 328 = 56 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Rent payable in instalments every fasli—Starting point.

Where rent for a particular fasli is payable in instalments the cause of action for rent due for that fasli accrues only from the date on which the last instalment becomes due. 40 Ind. Cas. 590 (Mad.).

——Art. 116—Suit for rent by jenmi against Kanomdar's assignee.

Art. 116 does not apply to a suit for rent by a jenmi against the Kanomdar's assignee. 26 M.L.J. 283 = 24 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 116—Suit for rent—Kanom—No interest in the mortgage deed—Execution of separate unregistered document—Rent, if a charge.

Defendant executed a kanom to plaintiff containing no provision for payment of interest. Another document stipulated for payment of a two years' rent. After the expiration of two years, defendant held over the land with plaintiff's consent; Held, that rent was not chargeable on the property. Plaintiff was not entitled to a decree on the footing that it was interest due on the mortgage. Defendant's obligation to pay rent after the lapse of 2 years not being under a registered instrument; Art. 116 of the Limitation Act did not apply. Plaintiff's right to rent was barred after three years. 16 Ind. Cas. 560 (Mad.).

——Art. 117—Scope.

Article 117 deals only with the period of limitation. It does not create a right to sue. It is, however, recognised in India that a foreign judgment itself forms a cause of action and a suit can, therefore, be based on it. 41 Bom. L.R. 1084 = A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 522 = I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 639 = 186 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Art. 117—Suit on foreign judgment—Law applicable.

Where decrees are capable of being transmitted from a Native State in alliance with His Majesty to British India for execution, the law prevailing in British India is considered the law governing the right of execution. In considering whether a suit is time-barred under Art. 117, the fact that the decree is executable in a Court in a Native State is not relevant. In the same way, whether the decree is not enforceable because it is barred by the law of limitation prevailing in the Native State is equally not relevant to be considered in the suit brought on the judgment of a Court in a Native State in British India. 41 Bom. L.R. 1084 = A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 522 = I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 639 = 186 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Art. 117—Foreign judgment—A call order by a liquidation Court in an Indiam State.

A call order passed by a liquidation Court in Baroda is not a foreign judgment and a suit it on in British India, therefore, is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 117. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 975 = 17 L. 341 = 38 P.L.R. 662 = 160 Ind. Cas. 346.

——Art. 117—Foreign judgment, what is—Order passed by foreign Court calling upon contributories to pay share amount.

An order passed by a Court in a native state calling upon the contributories to pay Rs. 20 per share by a certain date and authorising the Liquidators to file suits against contributories residing outside the jurisdiction of the State is a foreign judgment, and a suit against a contributory outside the state is governed by Art. 47. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 553.

——Art. 117—"Judgment," meaning of—Starting point of limitation.

The words used in Art. 117 are "the date of the judgment." It does not say "the judgment of the trial Court." There is not justification for holding that the words used in Art. 117 should mean judgment of the trial Court alone; The term 'judgment' in Art. 117 means a decree, and if there is the decree of the Appeal Court, it is that decree which is the starting point for counting the period of limitation. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 522 = I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 639 = 41 Bom. L.R. 1084 = 186 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Art. 117—Starting point of limitation.

Where, in a foreign state, there is a suit and in that suit a judgment is given and from that judgment appeal is made, and the appeal is dismissed, time for instituting a suit on the foreign judgment in British India runs, under Art. 117, from the date of the judgment of the Appellate Court and not from the date of the judgment of the Court of first instance.

Where an appeal has been preferred and decided, the judgment of the lower Court is superseded by the judgment of the Appellate Court and is finality is destroyed. (1933) M.W.N. 453 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 511 = 38 L.W. 85 = 65 M.L.J. 572 = 56 M. 951 = 144 Ind. Cas. 853.

——Art. 117—Starting point of limitation.

Limitation for a suit upon a foreign judgment begins to return from the date of judgment of the Court of first instance and not from the date of judgment of the final Appellate Court. 35 L.W. 763 = A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 661 = 62 M.L.J. 566 = 138 Ind. Cas. 648.

——Art. 117—Suit on foreign judgment—Part payment—Extension of time.

Plaintiff filing suit on promissory note in Federated Malay States and obtaining decree on July 21, 1930—Various payments made in discharge of decree, last being on June 12, 1938—Suit by plaintiff in British India on February 28, 1940, to enforce foreign judgment :

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 117. Payments in discharge of decree of foreign Court did not save limitation. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 440 = 57 L.W. 355 = A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 437 = 1944 M.W.N. 494.

1. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 118—Applicability.

Article 118 applies only to a suit under S. 42, Specific Relief Act, for a declaratory decree that an adoption is invalid or did not take place. It is not applicable to a suit for possession of immovable property. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 135 = 183 Ind. Cas. 853.

——Art. 118—Applicability.

Article 118 does not apply to a suit to recover possession which inovlves the decision of an issue as to the validity or invalidity of defendant's adoption. 35 P.L.R. 338 = 1935 Lah. 213 (2) = 149 Ind. Cas. 434.

——Art. 118—Suit for possession.

Article 118 has no application in suit where the relief sought is possession of property and validity of factum of adoption is incidentally in issue. 78 Ind. Cas. 284 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 319.

——Arts. 118 and 119—A suit for possession is not subject to the limitation prescribed by Arts. 118 and 119 even though the defendant is in possession under an adoption or the plaintiff's title is based upon an adoption. The articles apply only to a suit for declaratory relief pure and simple and not to a suit for possession. 78 Ind. Cas. 987 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 142.

——Art. 118—Per Macleod C.J. and Fawcett, J. (Shaj J., contra.)—In view of the decision of the Privy Council in (1906) 28 All. 727 ; 33 I.A. 156 (P.C.) the decision in Shrinivasa v. Hanmant is not good law and suits for possession where the plaintiff cannot succeed except by displacing and alleged adoption are not governed by Art. 118 of the Limitation Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 134 = 24 Bom. L.R. 158 = 46 Bom. 776 = A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 223 (F.B.).

——Art. 118—Applicability of—Suit for possession.

A suit for possession of property where the plaintiff objects as to the validity of an adoption is not governed by Art. 118. 56 Ind. Cas. 620 (Nag.).

——Art. 118—Applicability.

Where a claim is not merely for a declaration that the defendant's adoption is invalid, it is not barred by Art. 118. 75 Ind. Cas. 14 = 20 A.L.J. 814 = 45 All. 1 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 25.

——Art. 118—Scope.

Article 118 governs any suit to obtain a declaration, not merely that an alleged adoption is invalid but also that it never took place. The period of limitation is six years from the date on which the alleged adoption became known to the plaintiff. 69 Ind. Cas. 971 = 20 A.L.J. 945 = 45 All. 169 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 58.

——Art. 118—Adoption not recognised—Suit for possession after 6 years.

Where adoption is not recognised by the personal law of the alleged adoptor a suit for possession after 6 years of the alleged adoption is not barred. 178 P.W.R. 1911 = 196 P.L.R. 1911 = 11 Ind. Cas. 96.

——Arts. 118 and 141—Suit for recovery of possession from adopted son—Limitation.

Art. 141 and not Art. 118 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for the possession of property when the defendant holds under a title by adoption. 15 Bom. L.R. 535, not foll. 5 Pat. L.J. 164.

——Art. 118—Suit for declaration and possession—Suit for declaration barred—Claim to possession—Whether can succeed.

A claim to possession when defending on a declaration that an adoption is invalid, cannot succeed if a suit for latter is barred by time. 34 All. 8 = 8 A.L.J. 1101 = 11 Ind. Cas. 476.

——Art. 118—Setting aside alienation by adoptee.

A suit for a declaration by reversioners that an alienation by the adoptee of a widow was not binding on them, is substantially a suit to have it declared that a certain adoption was invalid and is governed by Art. 118. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 579.

——Art. 118—Suit for declaration.

Where an action is in truth and substance a suit for declaration that a particular adoption was invalid, and it is found that the fact that a claim was being made on the basis of this alleged adoption was known to the plaintiff in the suit more than six years before it was instituted, and that by himself had attained majority nearly nine years before the suit was commenced, Held, that the suit was barred by Art. 118. 107 Ind. Cas. 488 = 4 O.W.N. 832 = 1927 M.W.N. 742 = 46 C.L.J. 280 = 29 Bom. L.R. 1386 = 32 C.W.N. 153 = A.I.R. 1927 P.C. 229 = 53 M.L.J. 301 (P.C.).

——Art. 118—Suit by aurasa son.

Cases relating to reversioners are not applicable to the case of a suit by an aurasa son contesting the adoption by his father. The mere fact that the father who made the illegal adoption was alive for more than six yeras after the adoption would not bar right of a son born a year or two after the adoption to question it.

Article 118 would not apply to a case like this for the cause of action begins from the time when the alleged adoption becomes known to the plaintiff. He, being a minor could not be fixed with the knowledge of the adoption from the date of his birth. 98 Ind. Cas. 435 = 1926 M.W.N. 736 = 24 M.L.W. 601 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1123 = 51 M.L.J. 557.

——Art. 118—Setting aside gift to adoptee.

If the suit for a declaratory decree in respect of the factum of adoption is barred by time, the plaintiff cannot preclude the operation of Art. 118 by suing for a declaration that the gift made by the lady in favour of the adopted son should not bind him. 121 Ind. Cas. 296 = 31 P.L.R. 222 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 438.

——Art. 118—A suit by reversioner that gift to an alleged adopted person does not bind his reversionary interest is not by Art. 118. A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 137, Foll. Plaintiff in such suit can treat the adoption as nullity and contest only the gift. 96 Ind. Cas. 749 = 8 Lah. 48 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 655.

——Art. 118—A one of the widows of one K deceased, executed a release deed in favour of B and A and B together executed a sale-deed and a mortgagee-deed in favour of C. The plaintiffs, the reversioners of K instituted suits to declare that the release, the mortgage and the sale were not binding upon them. The plea of B was that he was adopted son of K and that the suits were barred by limitation, as being brought six years after the alleged adoption. It was found that soon after K's death there were disputes between B on the one side and the two widows of K on the other as to the lands of K. The two widows contended that B was not the adopted son of their husband and that the pattah should be transferred to their names and not in the name of B. Then orders were issued and B was asked to establish his right to the lands within three months from that date as otherwise pattah would be issued to the widows, more than seven years passed; but no such suit was filed by B and pattahs were actually issued to the widows of K.

Held, that under the circumstances the plaintiffs were justified in absolutely ignoring the position of B as the adopted son of K and instituting suits only for a declaration that the suit transactions were not binding on them and the failure of the plaintiffs to institute a suit within six years after the adoption of B became known to them under Art. 118 of the Limitation Act cannot be a bar to their present suit. 102 Ind. Cas. 885 = 26 M.L.W. 802 = 39 M.L.T. 129 = 1927 M.W.N. 690 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 674 = 52 M.L.J. 711.

——Art. 118—Suit for possession by Reversioners.

Reversioners suing for possession of property from an alleged adopted son and his transferees are not bound to bring a suit for declaration that the alleegd adoption had in fact not taken place. They are entitled to wait till the lady died and then bring a suit for recovery of possession and therefore a suit brought within 12 years of the death of the widow cannot be held to be barred by the six years' rule. 87 Ind. Cas. 938 = 46 All. 637 = 22 A.L.J. 690 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 79.

——Arts. 118 and 141—The particular limitation prescribed in Art. 118 applies to suits falling under Sp. Rel Act, S. 42, Ill. (f). The date from which time begins to run is a subjective or personal date; and the condition of obtaining the particular relief which is sought in a declaratory suit is that the plaintiff shoud not be guilty of laches the measure of laches being fixed by the statute as six, years. But if a claimant chooses to run the risk that an adoption which he has not attacked will have every presumption made in its favour by reason of its long standing, he can wait till his reversionary right has accrued and even till the limit of 12 years from the accruer has passed. In such case the article applicable is 141 and not 118.

Plaintiff was cousin to the former owner of the suit property by name D. D married M. Plaintiff averred that after D's death in the year 1880. M adopted N, who was her daughter's son; that N married B and died himself in 1895, that upon his death B took the ordinary Hindu woman's estate and died in 1903, and that upon her death, plaintiff's title acorued, and he brought his suit for possession on 1st July 1912. Defendant admitted some show of adoption of N but denied that it was legal or valid; and he set up his own adoption by M in 1901.

Held, the adoption of the defendant was void, and the plaintiff was entitled to brush it aside and sue for possession within 12 years from the death of the widow. 79 Ind. Cas. 971 = 11 O.L.J. 181 = 28 C.W.N. 666 = 22 A.L.J. 508 = 26 Bom. L.R. 509 = 1924 M.W.N. 414=5 L.R. (P.C.) 97=20 M.L.W. 109 = 51 I.A. 220 = 48 Bom. 411 = 34 M.L.T. 111 = A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 137 = 46 M.L.J. 598 (P.C.).

——Art. 118—A suit for a declaration that the adoption of B by the widow of C under a registered deed was null and invalid and for a further declaration that the plaintiff was a reversioner of B is governed by Art. 118, even when the adoption is alleged to be void ab initio. Had the plaintiff been suing for possession on the ground that he was the reversioner of B and had he further alleged that the adoption of B was invalid under the Hindu Law, Art. 118 would not have been applicable and the plaintiff would have had twelve years within which to sue. 75 Ind. Cas. 676 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 361.

——Art. 118—Adoption taken place in fact invalid under custom—Suit to set aside barred—Suit for declaration against transaction which is valid because of adoption, is also barred. 5 L.L.J. 63 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 389.

——Arts. 118, 120 and 125—Suit by reversioner to declare alienation invalid—Declaration for invalidity of adopting being barred—(Per Wallis, C.J.).

A reversioner who has allowed his right to question the validity of an adoption by the widow to be barred, cannot sue for a declaration of the invalidity of an alienation made by the widow and adopted son. (Per Coutts Trotter J., Contra.) 36 Ind. Cas. 255 (Mad.).

——Art. 118—Death of adopted son leaving widow—Adopting mother making a second adoption during widow's lifetime—suit by reversioner of the first adopted son.

In 1895 the first adopted son died a minor, leaving behind him a widow who died in 1903. In 1899 M the adopting mother got the vatan lands entered in her name in the revenue records; and in 1901 she adopted C, as son to her husband and placed him in possession of the whole estate. The plaintiff claiming as the nearest reversionary heir to the first adopted son filed a suit in 1912 to recover possession of the property from. Held, (1) that suit was barred under Art. 118 of the Limitation Act. (2) that even though C's adoption was invalid under Hindu law and M's power of adoption already exhausted the law of limitation would effectively defeat the plaintiff's claim. 3 W.R.P.C. 15; 20 C. 483, Foll. The effect of not challenging in time, the adoption was that C became validity adopted so far as plaintiff was concerned. 41 Bom. 728 = 19 Bom. L.R. 724 = 41 Ind. Cas. 845.

——Art. 118—Adoption—Suit to set aside—Knowledge—Suit by remove reversioner.

A suit to set aside an adoption by a remote reversioner is barred if it is brought more than six years after the knowledge of the same by the nearest reversioner. 24 M. 405; 29 M 390, Foll. Quarre.—If the same rule applies when the nearest reversioner is guilty of fraud? 2 L.W. 337 = 28 Ind. Cas. 632.

——Art. 118—Adoption invalid—Reversioner, suit for possession by—Limitation.

A suit for possession by a reversioner more than six years after the date of his knowledge of an adoption by the widow is barred under Art. 118 of the Act. 24B.

260, foll. 24 B. 260, (F.B.), is still good law after 28 A. 727 and 39 C. 418 (P.C.). 37 Bom. 513 = 15 Bom. L.R. 533 = 20 Ind. Cas. 162.

——Art. 118—Adoption invalid—Suit for recovery of possession on death of limited owner—Suit for declaration if necessary.

The omission to bring, within the period prescribed by Art. 118 of the Limitation Act, a suit for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid is no bar to a suit by the reversioner for possession of the property on the death of the limited owner. 28 All. 727;33 I.A. 156, Foll. 39 Cal. 418 = 6 P.W.R. 1912 = (1912) M.W.N. 77 = 11 M.L.T. 76 = 9 A.L.J. 137 = 15 C.L.J. 172 = 12 P.L.R. 1912 = 22 M.L.J. 240 = 14 Bom. L.R. 182 = 16 C.W.N. 458 = 126 P.R. 1912 = 39 I.A. 19 = 13 Ind. Cas. 344 (P.C.).

——Arts. 118 and 144—Suit for possession by reversion against person claiming by adoption—Applicability.

A suit for possession by a reversioner against a person in possession by virtue of his alleged adoption by the deceased holder is governed by Article 144 and not by Article 118 of the Limitation Act of 1877 or 1908. 44 P.R. 1911 = 198 P.L.R. 1911 = 85 P.W.R. 1911 = 11 Ind. Cas. 11.

——Arts. 118 and 144—Suit for declaration of invalidity of adoption and possession.

A suit for possession of immovable property and for a declaration of the invalidity of an adoption is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 118. 95 P.W.R. 1911 = 109 P.L.R. 1911 = 10 Ind. Cas. 338.

——Arts. 118 and 141—Suit for declaration of invalidity of adoption and for possession.

Where recovery of possession of a property is sought along with a declaration of the invalidity of an adoption. Art. 141 applies. 15 C.W.N. 524 = 15 C.L.J. 97 = 7 Ind. Cas. 427.

——Arts, 118, 119 and 144—Applicability.

Articles 118, 119 specially provide for the case of an adopted son and where these articles do not apply Art. 144 applies. 33 Bom. 88 = 10 Bom. L.R. 1029 = 1 Ind. Cas. 647.

——Art. 118—Suit for declaration by collaterals that a deed of adoption by a widow in favour of her daughter's son not binding upon reversionary rights.

The collaterals sued, on the 17th October, 1903, for a declaration that a deed executed by a widow on the 4th March, 1902, by which she purported to adopt her daughter's son, did not affect their reversionary interest. There was no adoption in fact or expression of intention to adopt before February, 1900. Held, that the suit was within limitation under Art. 118. 1 P.L.R. 1909 = 68 P.R. 1909 = 58 P.W.R. 1909 = 2 Ind. Cas. 975.

——Arts. 118 and 141—Suit for possession—Plea of adoption.

A suit by a reversioner entitled to possession of immovable property on the death of a Hindu female is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 118, even though it is necessary for the plaintiff, in order to succeed, to get over the plea of an alleged adoption of the defendant by the last male holder. Held, also, that the course of decisions in the Madras Presidency to the contrary has been over-ruled by the ruling of their Lorships of the P.C. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 182 = 30 M. 308 = 2 M.L.T. 178. [Also (1907) 17 M.L.J. 282.

——Arts. 118 and 141—Suit to recover immovable property on the death of a Hindu widow—Adoption, validity of, collateraly involved—Limitation—Conflict of decisions.

A suit by reversioners for the recovery of immovable property on the death of a Hindu widow is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 118 even though a question as to the validity of an anumatipatra executed in favour of the widow and of an adoption made under it be involved in such suit, there being no finding that the reversioners were aware of the adoption relied on. 27 C. 242, foll. (1904) 9 C.W.N. 222.

——Art. 118—Suit to declare an adoption invalid.

A person seeking a declaration that an adoption is invalid must bring his suit within 6 years of the date on which he came to know of the adoption ; the fact that the person making the adoption was alive within 6 years before suit cannot save the bar of limitation. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 588 = 27 B. 614.

——Art. 118—Suit questioning adoption—Claim to property—Knowledge on the part of plaintiff.

Art. 118 contemplates a suit questioning an adoption independently of any claim to property; the terms of the Article in no way suggest or imply that there must be some other cause of action than the alleged adoption. To constitute knowledge, under the Article, there must be knowledge, not necessarily at first hand of that which is alleged to be the adoption, of the facts and circumstances which are said to constitute the adoption and serve as some basis for the allegation : there must be some foundation in fact and how far that condition is satisfied is a question of degree, only to be solved by reference to the facts of each case. 5 Bom. L.R. 584.

——Art. 118—Plaintiff claiming not as heir, but under a family arrangement—Defendant claiming as adopted son—Applicability of article.

Where, on the death of a Hindu widow, the plaintiffs were entitled to the property not as her husband's heirs, but as remaindermen under a family arrangement to which the widow was party, a suit brought within the statutory period after her death but more than six years after her adopted son had set up his claim as adopted son : Held, that Art. 118 was applicable and the suit was barred. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 893.

——Arts. 118, 119 and 141—Applicability—Suit to set aside or establish an adoption—Suit for bare declaration—Suit for recovery of possession.

Held, by the Full Bench (BHASHYAM AIYANGAR, J., dissenting) that where a plaintiff cannot obtain a decree without getting a decision that an adoption is invalid or never in fact took place, or that an adoption is valid, his claim will be governed by Arts. 118 and 119 ; though he may also seek for recovery of possession of immovable property. Art. 141 does not apply to a case where the plaintiff cannot succeed without impugning or establishing an adoption. Per BHASHYAM AIYANGAR, J. —Articles 118 and 119 apply only to declaratory suits sanctioned by S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act. 13 M.L.J. 27 = 26 M. 291 (F.B.).

——Arts. 118 and 141—Applicability of Art. 118 to suit for immovable property—Finding on adoption necessary for the determination of the case.

The shorter period of limitation under Art. 118 governs a claim for recovery of possession of immovable property wherever the claim to the property could not be established setting aside without an alleged adoption. 24 B. 260 (F.B.) foll. Per PARSONS J.—If the question were res integra, I should have thought there was obligation on the part of the reversioners to have sued to have it declared that an adoption which was merely alleged to have taken place had never taken place, because the mere parol assertion of a status could not give rise to a cause of action or create a status that had no existence at all. Per RANADE, J.—Quaere : If in a succession certificate proceeding after the death of the admitted owner, the alleged adoption is found against, whether the reversioners were bound to bring a suit to have the adoption declared against ? (1900) 25 B. 26 = 2 Bom. L.R. 495.

——Arts. 118 and 144—Suit for partition—Failure to sue to set aside adoption.

A suit for partition and possession of the plaintiff's share of the family properties is not barred simply because the plaintiff failed to sue for declaration that alleged adoption of one of the family members was invalid or never took place. The plaintiff is entitled to show that it never took place or was invalid. 18 Ind. Cas. 493 (Mad.).

2. Interpretation—"Becomes known to plaintiff."

——Art. 118—"Becomes known to plaintiff."

The words "becomes known to plaintiff" in Art. 118 must be understood in their natural meaning, and the word "plaintiff" cannot include a reversioner who stands in the same grade as another and who claims as heir of the last male owner in common with such other. 22 A. 33, foll. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 359. But see 29 M. 390.

3. Proof of knowledge of adoption.

——Art. 118—Knowledge of adoption—Proof—Duty of Court.

Where, in a suit for a declaration that the defendant's adoption was invalid, the defendant has been alleging adoption, and has also been asserting that the alleged adoption was within the knowledge of the plaintiff, the Court must decide as to whether the alleged adoption came to the knowledge of the plaintiff within the period fixed in Art. 118, or before it, whether the adoption in fact took place or not. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 68 = 9 B.R. 196 = 8 C.L.T. 96 = 205 Ind. Cas. 133.

——Art. 118—Suit for declaration—Knowledge—Proof of:

Where both the plaintiff and his mother live together in the same house, his mother's knowledge as to the date of a certain adoption is also his knowledge, for a suit under Art. 118 of the Limitation Act. 29 Ind. Cas. 785 (Mad.).

——Art. 118—Adoption—Suit to set aside—Limitation—Knowledge—Proof.

If in a suit by a Hindu reversioner to set aside an adoption by the widow the plaintiff has to show when he became aware of the adoption, it is discharged if the plaintiff swears as to when he became aware of the adoption in the absence of evidence to the contrary. 9 M.L.T. 303 = (1911) 1 M.W.N. 192 = 9 Ind. Cas. 163.

4. Starting point.

——Art. 118—Starting point of limitation.

A Brahman died leaving a widow and three daughters. The widow who had taken possession of his land for her life executed a deed adopting a boy as heir to her husband. The deed was registered and the patwari entered the mutation in accordance with the deed. This mutation was sanctioned by the Collector. The collaterals of the husband had brought a suit to contest the adoption. Six years after this suit, one of the daughters instituted a suit for a declaration that the adoption and gift in favour of the alleged adoptee would not affect her rights as daughters:

Held, that whether Art. 3 of the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act or Art. 118, Limitation Act be applicable, it was clear that the suit was barred. In either case, the starting point of limitation was the date on which the plaintiff had knowledge of the alienation. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 193 = 40 P.L.R. 660 = 180 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 118—Starting point of limitation.

Where the plaintiff had no knowledge of the deed of adoption of 1917 until the date when the gift was mutated in 1925, the period of six years should count from the latter date. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 274 (2) = 15 L. 645 = 36 P.L.R. 315 = 149 Ind. Cas. 986.

——Art. 118—Starting point of limitation.

Where, in a suit for declaration that an alleged, adoption of the defendant was invalid and that it never took place in fact, it was found that there was a gift in favour of the adopted son and the adoption as well as the gift were openly declared at the time of the mutation of the year 1908 and the adoption was held invalid only owing to absence of certain ceremonies required under special custom:

Held, that the suit being one for declaration was governed by Art. 3, Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act, 1920, corresponding to Art. 118, Limitation Act, and before deciding the question of limitation, it was necessary to determine the date on which the alleged adoption became known to the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 456 = 131 Ind. Cas. 631.

——Art. 118—Starting point.

The nearest reversioner can impeach the invalidity of an adoption on behalf of the whole body of reversioners and time runs from the time the adoption comes to the knowledge of the next reversioner and no fraud or inaction on his part would stop time running against them. 41 Mad. 659 (F.B.), Foll. 60 Ind. Cas. 98 = 12 M.L.W. 499 = 1920 M.W.N. 783 = 44 Mad. 218 = 29 M.L.T. 43 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 380 = 39 M.L.J. 621.

——Art. 118—Gift to adopted son—Challenge by reversioner.

Where an adoption remains unchallegened, and the right to impeach it becomes time-barred, a gift made subsequently in favour of the adopted son does not give the reversioners a fresh cause of action, for it does not involve any further denial of their rights than was involved in the adoption itself. 56, Ind. Cas. 931 (Lah.).

5. Miscellaneous

——Art. 118—Burden of proof—Invalidity of adoption.

Where the plaintiff asks for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, the budern is on him to make out a prima facie case that the adoption challenged by him is invalid in law, or never took place in fact. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 68 = 9 B.R. 196 = 8 C.L.T. 96 = 205 Ind. Cas. 133.

——Art. 118—Suit for possession—Omission to sue for declaration—Limitation Act (9 of 1871), Art. 129—Difference in law.

Under the Limitation Act of 1871 it was imperative that a suit for the recovery of immovable property which involved the displacement of an adoption should be filed within 12 years from the date of the adoption or at the option of the plaintiff from the death of the adoptive father. Where therefore a widow did not bring such a suit within the period of limitation, a reversioner or any other member interested to dispute the validity of the adoption cannot file a suit. A right of suit once barred cannot be revived by the passing of a new Act. (1914) M.W.N. 903 = 27 Ind. Cas. 109.

——Arts. 118 and 119—Immunity for twelve years under old Act—No acquisition of title See 10 C.W.N. 1065 = 28 A. 727 = 16 M.L.J. 440 = 33 I.A. 156 (P.C.).

——Art. 119.

Synopsis

1. Applicability of article.
2. Interference with rights of adopted son—What amounts to.

1. Applicability of article

——Art. 119—Applicability.

Article 119 applies only to declaratory suits under S. 42, Specific Relief Act. 36 Bom L.R. 185 = A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 110 = 58 B. 280 = 149 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Art. 119—Suit to declare adoption valid—Limitation.

Where an adoption is challenged and the rights of the adopted son are interfered with, the latter is bound to bring his suit to establish his adption within 6 years under Art. 119. 5 O.L.J. 414 = 47 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Arts. 119 and 144—Adoption denied—Suit for possession.

Where in a suit by an alleged adopted son, the adoption is denied the suit is governed by Art. 144 and not Art. 119 of the Limitation Act. (71 P.R. 1901 ; 20 P.R. 1902 ; 68 P.R. 1903 ; 3 P.R. 1904 ; 1 P.R. 1907, overruled). (39 C. 418 (P.C.) ; 30 M. 308 ; 28 A. 727 (P.C.) Foll.) ; (13 C. 308 (P.C.) 20 C. 487 (P.C.) 22 C. 609; 20 M, 40 ; 24 B. 260 (F.B.) ; 37 B. 573 ; 26 M. 291, Diss. from). 104 P.W.R. 1914 = 203 P.L.R. 1914 = 81 P.R. 1914 = 25 Ind. Cas. 429.

——Art. 119—Applicability—Suit for possession.

Art. 119 does not apply to a suit for possession. 5 M.L.T. 262 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1167.

——Art. 119—"Valid"—Scope of Article.

Art. 119 applies to all suits in which either the factum or the validity of an adoption is denied. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 1054 = 32 B. 7.

——Arts. 119 and 118.

Art. 119 applies to a suit "to obtain a declaration that an adoption is valid" ; and not to suits for a declaration that an alleged adoption did take place. Cf. Art. 118, wherein the words "or never in fact took place" are found. Art. 119 is to be applied only where the question is not as to the factum but as to the validity of the adoption. The interference mentioned in Art. 119, as a condition of its application should be such as would amount to an absolute denial of the status of adopted son and his unconditional exclusion from the enjoyment of his rights and the Article can have no application to a case where the facts suggest that the interference had the mere effect of postponing the right of the adopted son to succeed. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 708 = 28 B. 94.

——Art. 119—Suit to declare that an adoption did in fact take place—Applicability of Article.

Per ASTON J.—Art. 119 does not apply to a case where an adopted son sues for a declaration that an adoption did in fact take place. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 516 = 26 B. 720.

——Art. 119—Suit for possession—Claim as adopted son, and also based on adverse possession—Applicability of Article to cases where suit can succeed on other title and adoption need not necessarily be set up.

In cases where the plaintiff has no title except an adoption of disputed validity, Art. 119 will apply. Where, however, the plaintiff has another ground which would suffice whether the adoption were or were not proved, then he is clearly entitled to recover on that other ground, and his suit cannot be rejected merely because it might be barred if he had to rely on the adoption alone. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 516 = 26 B. 720.

——Arts. 119 and 144—Suit by adopted son for possession of property—Interference with rights of adopted son.

A suit by an adopted son to recover possession of properties of his adoptive father is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 119. Held, also that the interference alluded to in Art. 119 must be an interference caused by the defendant to such a suit as the article contemplates, and not an interference caused by some third person. 17 A. 167 ; 8 A. 644 ; 10 A. 485 ; 13 B. 160 ; 14 C. 401 ; 24 A. 195 ; and the dissentient judgment of BHASHYAM AIYANGAR J. in 26 M. 291 foll. 24 B. 260 and the judgment of the majority in 26 M. 291 diss. from. 1903 A.W.N. 163 = 26 A. 40.

——Art. 119—Adoption—Suit for possession of property as adopted son—Denial of adoption more than six years before suit—Limitation.

Held, that Art. 119 did not apply to a suit by an adopted son for possession of immovable property, and that the suit was not barred, even though his adoption had been denied by the defendant and his right as adopted son had been interfered with more than six years before the institution of his suit. 8 A 644 ; 9 A. 253 ; 10 A 485 ; 17 A. 167 ; 14 C. 401 ; 25 C. 354 ; 13 B. 160 ; 21 B. 159 ; and 21 B. 376 foll. (1890) A.W.N. 241 ; 20 M. 40 ; and 24 B. 260 diss. from. (1901) 1902 A.W.N. 10 = 24 A. 195.

2. Interference with rights of adopted son—What amounts to ——Art. 119—'Interference'—What amounts to.

The interference mentioned in Art. 119 is obviously an interference, which must amount to an absolute denial of the status of adoption held by plaintiff and an unconditional exclusion of him from the enjoyment of his rights in virtue of that status. Mere denial of status does not amount to interference. 74 Ind. Cas. 970 = 1 Rang. 186 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 34.

——Arts. 119 and 144—Interference—Proof.

Under Art. 119 of the Limitation Act to establish interference with the rights of the adopted son, something incompatible with the recognition of the adoption must be proved.

A son was adopted in the life-time of a natural son. On the former's death, the latter succeeded to his estate, allowing maintenance to the former's widow, who brought a suit to recover it. The succession by the natural son was not an interference so as to attract the operation of Art. 119. The erroneous belief shared by the adopted son's widow, of the right of the natural son to succeed to her late husband, does not give rise to an estoppel and hence the suit is not barred by limitation or estoppel. 22 Bom. L.R. 974 = 58 Ind. Cas. 394.

——Arts. 119 and 142—Gift by adoptive mother—Invalid against adopted son—Possession taken by donee under gift—Interference with adopted son's rights—Suit for possession more than six years after—Limitation.

A deed of gift by the adoptive mother in favour of her daughter, in pursuance of an alleged testamentary direction by the donor's husband is, in the absence of such direction, invalid as against the adopted son ; and possession taken by the daughter under such gift is a direct interference with the rights of the adopted son. A suit brought by the adopted son more than 6 years after such possession by the daughter will be barred under Art. 119 and is not governed by Art. 142. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 144.

——Art. 119—Interference with adopted son's rights—Interference with regard to other properties—Starting point of limitation.

The interference by the defendant which is the starting point for limitation under Art. 119, need not relate directly to property sought to be recovered in the suit. Where therefore the defendant interfered with plaintiff's right as adopted son with respect to certain property and more than six years after such interference the plaintiff sought to recover by virtue of his adoption certain property from the defendant : Held, that the suit was barred by Art. 119. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 145.

1. Applicability and scope.
(a) General.
(b) Residuary provision.

1. (a) Applicability and scope—(General).

——Art. 120—Applicability—Claim in respect of charges for care and custody of goods under S. 44, Sale of Goods Act.

The liability of a buyer for reasonable charges for care and custody of the goods arises under S. 44, Sale of Goods Act. As the liability arises under the statute apart from any contract between the parties, the article applicable is the residuary Art. 120, and not Art. 110 or 115, of the Limitation Act. I.L.R. (1951) Nag. 40 = 1950 N.L.J. 363.

——Art. 120—Suit for recovery of cess.

A suit by a landholder under S. 88, Madras Local Boards Act to recover cess from the intermediate landholder is not a suit for rent nor a suit on a contract but is a suit to enforce a liability created by statute and is governed by Art. 120. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 498 = 45 L.W. 74 = (1937) M.W.N. 7 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 91 = A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 217 = 167 Ind. Cas. 490 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Suit for recovery of cess by inamdar.

A suit by inamdar to recover half of land cess paid by him is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 877 = 50 M.L.W. 466 = (1939) 2 M.L.J. 579 = (1939) M.W.N. 1185 = I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 50 = 188 Ind. Cas. 13.

——Art. 120—Road Cess—Madras Local Boards Act, S. 73.

Under S. 73 every landholder is entitled to recover from his intermediate landholder the whole of the road cess, paid in respect of the land, less half the tax assessable on the amount of the poruppu. The period of limitation for this is six years, under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 9 M.L.W. 286, Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 973 = 22 M.L.W. 258 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1282 = 49 M.L.J. 462.

——Art. 120—Suit for mortgage money against persons other than mortgagor—Limitation—Starting point—T.P. Act, S. 68 (1) (c).

Under S. 68 (1) (c) of the T.P. Act, a suit for the mortgage money is maintainable against any person who is liable to repay the mortgage-money, whether he is the mortgagor or not. Art. 120 of the Limitation Act applies to such a suit and the starting point of limitation under that article is the date when the right to sue accrues. Such accrual would take place only when the mortgagee was deprived of his security. I.L.R. (1945) 2 Cal. 473 = A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 530.

——Art. 120—Suit under S. 68, Transfer of Property Act.

Limitation for a suit for recovery of money under S. 68, T.P. Act is governed by Art. 116 or Art. 120 A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 80 = 161 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Art. 120—Suit for money decree against mortgagor.

A suit based on a mortgage for a money decree against the mortgagor brought within 6 years from the date of deed is not time-barred. 86 Ind. Cas. 693 = 120 O.L.J. 114 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 394.

——Art. 120—Personal remedy against mortgagor.

When a mortgagee is deprived of the security under a decree of a Civil Court, he is entitled to proceed personally against the mortgagor and the time for such a suit runs from the date the mortgagee was evicted from the land. 89 Ind. Cas. 56 = 3 Rang. 60 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 223.

——Art. 120—Claim for recovery of purchase price under S. 93, Punjab Land Revenue Act.

There is no specific article of the Limitation Act that would govern a claim for recovery of purchase price under the statutory provisions of S. 93, Punjab Land Revenue Act and the only article that can be made applicable is Art. 120, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 164 = 47 P.L.R. 122 = 221 Ind. Cas. 524.

——Art. 120—A suit by vendor against the vendee for recovery of interest paid by the former to the mortgagee on account of delay on the part of the vendee to pay the mortgage money is governed by Art. 120. (1932) A.L.J. 556 = A.I.R. 1932 All. 454 = 142 Ind. Cas. 83.

——Art. 120—Sale of goods—Goods left in vendor's possession as security for price—Re-sale—Suit for personal decree for balance—Limitation—Starting point.

Where the goods sold are allowed to remain in the custody of the vendor as security for the unpaid price of the goods and the vendor sues the vendee for a personal decree against him for the balance due to him after re-sale of the goods, the suit is not governed by Art. 120 but by the three years rule of limitation so far as the personal liability of the defendant is concerned.

In such a case where the contract is for outright sale and there is no stipulation that the accounts should be settled after the goods have been re-sold in the market by the purchaser, time for instituting a suit for the price runs from the date of the initial purchase. A.I.R. 1931 All. 229 = (1931) A.L.J. 363 = 132 Ind. Cas. 422.

——Art. 120—Suit for recovery of payment from darpatnidar if usufruct of property is insufficient is not governed by Art. 120. 35 C.W.N. 678 = A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 493 = 134 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Art. 120—Misappropriation—By agent.

Where one person acts as agent of two principals and uses money belonging to one principal for benefit of the other principal, there is no advancing of loan by one principal, to the other the borrower and the lender being the same person. A suit to recover such money by the principal to whom it belonged is covered by Art. 120 and time begins to run from the time when demand is made by that principal. 98 Ind. Cas. 1010 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 173.

——Art. 120—Misappropriation—By agent.

Where an agent sells goods entrusted to him by his principal and retains the proceeds which the principal has an equitable right to follow in his hands, the period of limitation applicable will be a period of six years. 10 Cal. 860 (P.C.), Foll. 106 Ind. Cas. 35 = 1 L.C. 587 = A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 574.

——Art. 120—Mortgage—Suit on dower-debt.

A registered deed executed by Mahommedan husband long after the marriage promising to pay dower then still due from him, on demand and hypothecating certain immovable properties as security for its due payment, converts the dower debt into a mortgage debt ; and to a suit on such deed for the amount of the dower, six years rule of limitation is applicable. 99 Ind. Cas. 553 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 268.

——Art. 120—Dissolution of marriage.

Art. 120 of the first Schedule applies to a suit for a dissolution of marriage or for a declaration that a divorce had taken place between the parties. 65 Ind. Cas. 452 = 8 O.L.J. 650 = A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 109.

——Art. 120—Matters referred to arbitrator—Suit after his death.

Per SESHAGIRI AIYAR, J.—A suit instituted after the death of the arbitrator in regard to matters referred to and not disposed of by him is governed by the residuary Art. 120. 33 M.L.J. 46 = 41 Ind. Cas. 581.

——Art. 120—Restitution of conjugal rights—Suit for.

A suit for restitution of conjugal rights, if the wife was not of full age and of sound mind at the time the restitution was demanded and refused, is governed by Art. 120. (1906) 11 C.W.N. 437 = 34 Cal. 79.

——Art. 120—Suit for arrears of assessment—Art. 120.

A suit by inamdar for arrears of assessment due from the khctedar is governed by Art. 120. 25 B. 556 and 5 Bom. L.R. 700 foll. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 423.

——Art. 120—Inapplicability of to suit for surplus sale-proceeds after sale for arrears of revenue. See 31 C. 745.

——Art. 120—Suit for sale of pledge. See 27 M. 528 = 13 M.L.J. 445 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 32—Encroachment on public road.

Suit for removing encroachment on a public road and not on the property of any particular person is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 32. 124 P.R. 1912 ; A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 242 and 2 L.L.J. 463, foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 517 = 29 P.L.R. 308 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 792.

——Arts. 120 and 32—Removal of trees—Suit for.

Suit for removal of trees planted on agricultural land is governed by Art. 32 and not by Art. 120. 7 O.L.J. 301 = 23 O.C. 163 = 57 Ind. Cas. 476.

——Art. 120—Removal of trees—Suit for—Limitation.

A suit by the landlord for the removal of trees wrongfully planted by a person is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. The suit must be confined to trees planted within six years immediately preceding its institution. 6 O.L.J. 329 = 52 Ind. Cas. 858.

——Arts. 120, 52 and 56—Suit for recovery of money due on contract to supply labour and materials.

A suit for the recovery of the price of work done and materials supplied on a contract to build a house comes under Art. 120 ; Arts. 52 and 56 are inapplicable to the case. 103 P.R. 1913 = 81 P.L.R. 1914 = 22 Ind. Cas. 576.

——Arts. 120, 59 and 60—Debtor taking possession of the estate of his creditor as executor—Death of such executor—Appointment of new administrator—New cause of action.

A debtor taking possession of the estate of his creditor as executor, is accountable for the amount of his debts to the estate as assets. On the appointment of a new administrator after the death of such debtor executor, a new cause of action arises rendering the estate of the said debtor-executor accountable both as regards his own said debt as also regarding the general estate of the said deceased creditor remaining in his hands at the time of his death, and a suit by the new administrator to recover from the executor of the deceased debtor's estate, the property and effects of the deceased creditor —to wich Art. 120, applies—would not be barred within six years of the death of such debtor-executor. (1903) 7 C.W.N. 476, ——Arts. 120 and 61.—A suit to recover money paid for minor's necessaries is not governed by Art. 120, but by Art. 61. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 106=50 L.W. 323=(1939) M.W.N. 798 = I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 27 = 190 Ind. Cas. 101.

——Arts. 120 and 61.

The plaintiff was a certified guardian of the defendant during her minortity. He had to spend moneys from time to time, for the benefit of the minor, and when the income was short, he spent out of his pocket in the hope that in good years he might be able to realise a better income and reimburse himself. The defendant, on attaining majority, made an application to the District Court that her property should be ordered to be restored to her by the plaintiff. That application was opposed by the plaintiff on the ground that he should be allowed to remain in possession until the amount which he had spent out of his pocket was paid out of the income of the property. The Judge however, passed an order on April 5, 1935, that the plaintiff should hand over possession of the property to the defendant. Accordingly, the plaintiff delivered possession of the property on April 10, 1935, and filed a suit on July 13, 1935 to recover the amount which he had spent out of his own pocket for the benefit of the minor :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 61. The cause of action accrued to the plaintiff on April 10, 1935, when he handed over possession of the property to the defendant. The suit was therefore, within time. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 394 = 41 Bom. L.R. 585 = 184 Ind. Cas. 611.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Conditons. See Limitation Act, Arts. 62 and 120. 223 Ind. Cas. 493=A.I.R. 1947 A. 256.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Money lost by theft—Suit by victim for recovery lies on basis thatmoney has been received for victim's use—Suit falls under Art. 62 and not Art. 120.

A person who has suffered from tortious act of another can always waive the tort and if money has been stolen from him he can sue for recovery of money on the basis that money has been received for his use and consequently suit must be framed as one for money had and received, in which case it is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 120. Of course if he likes he may sue for recovery of damages by way of compensation, but here again period of limitation will be three years. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 391 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 27 = 53 M.L.W. 54 = 1941 M.W.N. 24 = I.L.R. 1941 Mad. Mad. 414.

——Art. 20—Equitable claim.

Suit to enforce equitable claim is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. 1941 N.L.J. 665.

——Arts. 120 and 62.—A declaration was obtained by a decree holder that no one should be allowed to withdraw any sum out of the decretal amount deposited in the Court to his credit by the judgment-debtor. Another person subsequently alleging to be the holder of a decree against the same judgment-debtor attached and withdrew a part of the deposit. The first decree-holder, therefore, brought a suit for the recovery of this amount from the second decree-holder.

Held, that at the time when the second decree-holder withdrew the amount in question, he did not do so for the plaintiff's use. In fact he set up an adverse title to the claim of the plaintiff. His case was that the money did not belong to the plaintiff but to the judgment-debtor. Article 62 did not, therefore, apply to the suit. The suit was governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 413 = 69 C.L.J. 108 = 182 Ind. Cas. 860.

——Arts. 120, 62 and 109.—A suit for recovery of rent realised by the defendant but to which the plaintiff was entitled, falls either under Art. 62 or Art. 120 but not under Art. 109. 18 P.L.T. 162 = A.I.R. 1937 Pat.

237 = 3 B.R. 434 = 16 Pat. 184 = 168 Ind. Cas. 502 (D.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 62.—One E died instestate on January 1896 leaving some next of kin. Letters of administration were obtained to her estate by her daughter. That daughter died on April 4, 1905, and her son the defendant obtained probate of her will. His mother had put aside a sum of money said to be some Rs. 17,413-8-0 as share of one of the brothers of E whose whereabouts were unknown. The defendant deposited this money in a Bank on interest. The present plaintiff obtained letters of administration de bonis son on December 21, 1938, to the estate of E. The defendant paid over to her the sum of Rs. 17,413-8-0 as the share of the brother. The plaintiff applied on an originating summons seeking to make the defendant account for all interest obtained or which may be deemed to have been earned by this sum of Rs. 17,000 since 1905 and for an inquiry as to what moneys came into his hands.

Held, that Art. 120 and not Art. 62 applied. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 511 = 62 C. 120 = 157 Ind. Cas. 936.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Suit for recovery of subscription.

Where a person promised a certain sum of money as personal contribution for the purpose of construction of a bridge by the plaintiff and also collected a certain sum for the same purpose and the plaintiff sued him for these amounts :

Held, that Art. 120, and not Art. 62 governed the case as it was open to the plaintiff to claim the amount only after the work was begun and some steps were taken towards the construction of the bridge. (1933) M.W.N. 368 = 64 N.L.J. 574 = 37 L.W. 631 = A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 524 = 143 Ind. Cas. 496 (D.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 62—Counter-claim for premium in suit for rent.

In a suit for rent counter-claim by the defendant for money paid by him as premium is governed by Art. 62 and not Art. 120, Limitation Act since such payment is illegal under S. 8, Bombay Rent (War Restrictions) Act. 33 Bom. L.R. 1563 = A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 86 = 135 Ind, Cas. 801.

——Arts. 120, 115 and 65—Debt payable in kind.

A claim for recovery of a debt payable in kind falls under Art. 65 or 115 and not under Art. 120. 65 Ind. Cas. 691 = 4 L.L.J. 268 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 271.

——Arts. 120 and 68—Administration bond.

A suit to enforce the bond by a person to whom it is assigned under S. 292, Succession Act is a suit upon bond within the meaning of Art. 68. ——Art. 120—Suit on surety bond.

The condition of the surety bond was broken in 1931 during the minority of the ward and the suit on the bond was instituted in 1937 :

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218 = 22 Pat. 114 = 9 B.R. 260 = 206 Ind. Cas. 126.

——Arts. 120 and 84—Solicitor's costs—Lien for suit to enforce.

Consent decree—Enforcement of solicitor's lien for costs by separate suit—Article 120 and not Art. 84 is applicable. 34 Bom. L.R. 670 = A.I.R. 1932 Bom 378 = 138 Ind. Cas. 832.

——Arts. 120 and 110—Suit for recovery of perpetually fixed annual amount—Limitation.

A suit for recovery of perpetually fixed annual amount where the relationship of landlord and tenant does not exist between the parties and the amount claimed is not by way of rent, is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 110. 1945 M.W.N. 17 = (1944) 2 M.L.J. 250 = A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 20 = 57 L.W. 531.

——Arts. 120 and 115—Provident Fund money—Suit for recovery—Limitation.

A suit for recovery of the amount standing to the credit of the plaintiff in the Provident Fund of Calcutta Corporation is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115. I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 463 = A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 144.

——Arts. 120, 115 and 97—Suit for money due by defendant for money received by him.

A suit by a judgment-debtor to recover the amount realised by the decree-holder in excess is governed by Art. 120 or Art. 115 and not by Art. 97. 33 P.L.R. 1084 = A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 112 = 140 Ind. Cas. 472.

——Arts. 120 and 111—Compromise—Amount due under.

Under a compromise in a suit for partition of joint property, in order to adjust the difference between the prices of the properties which fell to the share of the two contesting parties, a certain sum was to be paid by D to B. The amount was to be paid after one month. B brought a suit to recover the amount. D contended that the suit was time-barred according to Art. 111.

Held, that it was not a case of sale and amount in suit could not be described as purchase money. Therefore Art. 111 did not apply but the case was governed by Art. 120. 111 Ind. Cas. 29 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 662.

——Arts. 120 and 123—Art. 123 applies to an application for recovering an annuity payable under a will and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 254 = 6 B.R. 224 = 185 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Arts. 120 and 131—Periodically recurring right—Recovery of arrears.

Both reliefs for establishment of a periodically recurring right as well as for recovery of the arrears as a consequence of such right claimed in one and the same suit—Article 131 applies to the first relief—Article 110 or 62 or failing any such article, Article 120 may apply to the second relief. ——Arts. 120 and 131—Claim to Yeomiah allowance.

As the right to receive Yeomiah allowance is a perpetual right and not a recurring one, a suit by a mutawalli in which the plaintiff claims to be perpetually entitled to receive the same, must be governed by Art. 120 and Art. 131 has no application to such suits. (1920) M.W.N. 394 = 12 L.W. 100 = 39 M.L.J. 492 = 58 Ind. Cas. 788.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Suit in the nature of mortgage suit.

Held, on facts that the suit being in its nature a mortgage suit the article applicable was Art. 132 and not Art. 83 or 120. (1933) M.W.N. 486 = 38 L.W. 818 = A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 1 = 66 M.L.J. 4 = 57 M. 218 = 149 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Hypothecation—Suit to enforce.

A suit to enforce the hypothecation of property to secure the payment of grain falls under Art. 132 not Art. 120 or Art. 116. 24 C.L.J. 348, Not foll. 65 Ind. Cas. 697 = 5 N.L.J. 224 = 18 N.L.R. 111 = A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 23.

A turn of worship at a temple is not immovable property and so not within Art. 132 but Art. 120. 46 Cal. 455 = 22 C.W.N. 994 = 47 Ind. Cas. 25.

——Arts. 120 and 148—Redemption suit.

Where a mortgagor sued for redemption of the mortgage after sale of the equity of redemption contrary to the provisions of O. 34, R. 14, C.P.C. and purchased by the mortgagee decree-holder. Held, Per SANDERSON, C.J.—A suit appropriately framed for that purpose would be governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 47 Cal. 377 = 24 C.W.N. 229 = 31 C.L.J. 98 = 55 Ind. Cas. 157 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Redemption suit—Agreement for redemption only after payment of principal and interest.

In a redemption suit based upon a mortgage deed providing for redemption only on payment in full of principal and interest due, the mortgagee can get interest up to the date of redemption and his claim for interest cannot be limited to six years as in Art. 120. 73 P.L.R. 1914 = 41 P.W.R. 1914 = 22 Ind. ——Art. 120—Scope—General and special articles.

A general article does not govern a case when there is a particular article covering it. 13 N.L.J. 209 = A.I.R. 1931 Nag. 47 = 130 Ind. Cas. 157.

——Art. 120—Art 120 is applicable only when a case cannot fall under any other article of the Act. 108 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 120—Art. 120 should not be invoked if there is any other article in the schedule, which upon reasonable interpretation of the language seems to cover the particular suit with which the Court is dealing. 7 O.W.N. 769 = A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 395.

——Art. 120—Art. 120 is a residuary article and applies only when no other specific article governs the case. 92 Ind. Cas. 994 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 242.

——Art. 120—Art. 120 should never be invoked if there is any other article in the schedule which upon a reasonable interpretation of its language seems to cover the particular suit with which the court is dealing. 75 Ind. Cas. 922 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 828.

——Art. 120—The provision of Art. 120 by its very terms can come into operation when there is no other article of the schedule that can be invoked as laying down a period of limitation for a particular suit. 69 Ind. Cas. 971 = 20 A.L.J. 945 = 45 All. 169 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 58.

——Art. 120—Residuary provision.

Art. 120, is a residudary provision which can only be applied where there is no other article specially applicable to the case. 9 Bur. L.T. 130 = 36 Ind. Cas. 418.

——Art. 120—Applicability.

Art. 120 applies only when no other article is applicable to a suit. 50 Ind. Cas. 6 (Lah.).

——Art. 120—Applicability.

Art. 120 of the Act will apply only where no other article is applicable. 37 Mad. 381 = 11 M.L.T. 325 = (1912) M.W.N. 516 = 22 M.L.J. 485 = 14 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Art. 120—An article of the Limitation Act, which fully applies to a particular case should not be thrown aside because it might create hardship in other cases. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 535.

——Art. 120—When to be applied.

The court ought not to regard a case as coming under Art. 120, unless clearly satisfied that it does not come under one of the many articles dealing with specific cases. (1905) 32 C. 527 = 1 C.L.J. 167.

2. Accounts.

——Art. 120—Applicability.

Suit under S. 79 of the Lunacy Act against the manager of a lunatic's estate. See LIMITATION ACT (9 of 1908), ARTS. 89 AND 120—APPLICABILITY. 1947 O.A. (C.C.) 273 = A.I.R. 1949 Oudh 51.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Recovery by a divided brother from third parties of partible family property together with mesne profits—Suit by the other brother for his share of the property and profits and for an account—Claim for an account—Maintainability—Limitation—Starting point.

Sometime after a decree for partition between two brothers, one of them filed suits against a third party (to which the other brother was made a defendant) in respect of family property which was admittedly partible between the brothers but which owing to circumstances beyond their control could not be included in the suit for partition and there was a joint decree for possession with a direction for mesne profits being determined subsequently. Applications for ascertainment of mesne profits were duly made and decrees passed and the amounts were realised by the plaintiff in those suits. In a suit by the representatives of the other brother for partition by metes and bounds of the properties so recovered and for recovery of a half share therein and for an account of the moneys expended in connection with the later suits, and also for recovery of a half share of the mesne profits recovered in the later suits, it was contended that the relief in respect of accounts was not maintainable and that in any event the suit was barred by time.

Held, after the decree for partition the two brothers must be deemed to be in the position of tenants-in-common in respect of the lands recovered and the moneys collected by one of them represent the income of the lands and the brothers would be entitled to equal moieties of such income. The legal position is exactly similar to that in a case where one co-owner or tenant-in-common is in possession and enjoyment of the entire common property nd has received the rents and profits from it. In such a case, the other co-owner or tenant-in-common would be entitled to ask for an account from the other in possession and enjoyment and recover a half share of the net income, that is to say, the income realised less all legal and permissible deductions and allowances. It is only on taking account that the net income, if any, in which the co-sharers will each be entitled to a moiety can be ascertained. To a suit for such an account the proper article applicable is article 120 and limitation would start to run from the date of the earliest denial by the defendant of the plaintiff's title. 63 L.W. 845 = (1950) 2 M.L.J. 459 = A.I.R. 1951 Mad. 234.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts by one co-tenant against another.

An action for accounts by one co-tenant against the other not being an action for money had or received is governed by Art. 120, not by Art. 62 or Art. 89. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 363 = I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 110 = 189 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts between co-tenants.

Money due to tenants-in-common which has been received by one or more tenants to exclusion of the rest is not money had and received within the meaning of Art. 62. Moreover, as the liability is neither ex contractu nor ex delicto, Arts. 115 and 36 have no application. Again Art. 109 cannot be applied as the profits are not wrongfully received, the parties being co-sharers ; consequently, a co-sharer's suit for accounts against other co-sharers falls within Art. 120. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 28 = 168 Ind. Cas. 41.

——Art. 120—Co-tenant's right to claim accounts—Starting point of limitation.

There is nothing in Art. 120, warranting the view that where a defendant is, as a matter of fact, a co-tenant of property with the plaintiff, he can bar the latter's subsisting right to ask him for accounts by merely denying that the plaintiff is a co-tenant. So long as the defendant is a co-tenant with the plaintiff, the latter has a right to ask for accounts. His right accrues continually as income comes into the co-tenant's hands. But his right is countinually barred by Art. 120 when the account sought is more than six years old. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 139 = 182 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Art. 120—Co-owners—Suit for accounts.

A suit for accounts by one co-owner against another who has received more than his share of the income of the property is governed either by Art. 120 or Art. 89. Whether one or the other article applies depends upon the circumstances of each case. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 216 = 45 Bom. L.R. 424 = 208 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Art. 120—Denial of claim to account—Defendant must specify date.

In a case governed by Art. 120, the plea of limitation must fail when the defendant is unable to specify the particular date at which the claim to an account was denied by him. In such a case, account of the whole period should be taken and recovery ordered. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 216 = 45 Bom. L.R. 424 = 208 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts by one co-owner against another—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for accounts by one co-owner against another co-owner in sole possession of property belonging to the co-owners is governed by Art. 120, and the right to sue accrues only when there is a demand for accounts and a refusal to render them. Where there has been no demand for accounts and refusal to render the same, the plaintiff is entitled to an account from the defendant for the entire period during which the defendant was in sole possession of the property. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 50 = I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 534 = 194 Ind. Cas. 137.

——Art. 120—Suit by ward against guardian for rendition of accounts.

Art. 89 only applies if the suit is by a principal against his agent. It does not apply to a suit by a ward against a guardian for rendition of accounts. Guardian is not an agent of the ward, and the relationship between them is not of principal and agent but is in the nature of a fiduciary relationship. To such a suit, article applicable is 120 and not 89. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218 = 22 Pat. 114 = 9 B.R. 260 = 206 Ind. Cas. 126.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts by ward—Power of Court to prescribe limitation.

A Court has no authority whatever to lay down a period of limitation different from that prescribed by the Limitation Act within which the suit is to be filed by a ward against the guardian for accounts and to impose a penalty on the ward if the suit is not filed within the period named by it. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 246 = 191 Ind. Cas. 108.

——Art. 120—Accounts—Suit against Receiver.

A suit for accounts against a Receiver appointed under O. 40, Civil P.C. is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 483 = I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 577 = 75 C.L.J. 1 = 46 C.W.N. 294 = 202 Ind. Cas. 389.

——Art. 120—Suit by pawnor against pawnee.

A executed a pro-note in favour of bank for the loan advanced to him by the bank and lodged certain shares which he had been holding in the bank as security for the loan under the pro-note. After A's death, the bank sold the shares and the money due to the bank was adjusted, the balance being kept in the suspense account to be paid to A or his heirs. No notice of the sale was given and A's wife instituted a suit for accounts against the bank in respect of the bank shares which stood in the name of her husband and for payment of balance to her after debiting her with any liability incurred by her husband touching the shares :

Held, that when the shares were being placed with the bank by way of security, the plaintiff's husband's position could not be of a principal and the bank's position that of an agent. The bank was not being asked to do anything by the plaintiff's husband on his behalf. He was depositing the shares with the bank by way of security. He was, therefore, a pawnor and the bank a pawnee. When the bank sold the shares to realise their debt, they were not acting in the capacity of an agent but in that of a creditor entitled to recover his money by sale of the security under the terms of his contract. That they failed to give any notice to the owner of the shares before the sale does not in any way help them. They committed a grave irregularity in having failed to give a notice as required by S. 176, Contract Act, and cannot, by their action abridge the period of limitation or contend that it should be held to have started on the date of the sale of which the plaintiff had no knowledge. The contract of pledge could not be, in the absence of a reasonable notice to sell held to terminate the pledge or the relationship of pawnor and pawnee with the consequence that the money in the hands of the bank could not be held to have been received for the plaintiff's use at any rate when the sale was not recognised to be valid by the owner of the articles pledged by him. Article 89 could thus have no application. The defendant bank may not have been trustees for a specific purpose and S. 10 may not apply but in their capacity as bailees, they were liable to render accounts to the plaintiff for the shares delivered to them by her husband. A suit for accounts must be in such circumstances, not being provided for by any other article, held to be governed by Art. 120. 55 L.W. 90 = A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 386 = 1942 M.W.N. 129 = (1942) 1 M.L.J. 274 = 206 Ind. Cas. 539.

——Art. 120—Dispute as to property—Agreement between parties that one of them may collect rents and account to the rightful claimant—Suit for account by successful party.

Held, that the effect of the agreement was to constitute the defendant's husband a receiver of the income and the period of limitation applicable to the suit was that prescribed in the residuary Art. 120 and the right to sue arose only on the date of the decision upholding the validity of the will, namely, August 26, 1920. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 170 = 161 Ind. Cas. 843.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts of trust funds.

The claim for an account of the corpus of the trust funds which became vested in the trustee falls within the ambit of S. 10 and is not barred by limitation; but a claim for an account of the interest which the trustee ought to have earned for the trust funds but failed to earn is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 207 = 1940 Rang. L.R. 273 = 195 Ind. Cas. 61.

——Art. 120—Suit by one firm against another for accounts—Relationship between two akin to that of trustee liable to account though no specific trust created—Suit, held governed not by Art. 89 but by Art. 120. 49 L.W. 608 = A.I.R. 1939 Mad 671 = (1939) M.W.N. 360 = 189 Ind. Cas. 31.

——Art. 120—Account against trustee—Suit for.

The Article applicable to an equitable claim against a trustee, liable to account, for an account and ascertainment of what may be due, is Art. 120 and not Art. 62 and limitation does not begin to run until the "right to sue" accrues, i.e., until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant. Consequently the plea of limitation fails when the defendant is unable to specify the particular date at which the claim to an account was denied by him. 11 I.A. 59 and 59 M.L.J. 621 (P.C.), foll. 35 C.W.N. 145 = A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 9 = 60 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Suit against trustee de son tort.

A suit for accounts against the trustee de son tort is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 All. 1 = (1940) A.L.J. 705 = I.L.R. (1940) All. 815 = 1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 607 = 193 Ind. Cas. 697.

——Art. 120—Art. 120 applies to a suit for accounts against a trustee de son tort. 84 Ind. Cas. 631 = 22 A.L.J. 866 = 5 L.R.A. Civ. 697 = 47 All. 17 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 884.

——Art. 120—Suit by widow of deceased co-parcener for accounts against surviving co-parcener.

A suit for rendition of accounts was instituted by a widow of a deceased co-parcener against one of the surviving co-parceners. The suit was not one for possession of any specific sum, for the amount recoverable could not be exactly known as the person in possession was entitled to deduct his expenses of management:

Held, that Art. 120 applied and not Arts. 48, 49 or 62. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 139 = 182 Ind. Cas. 426.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts without prayer for dissolution of partnership.

When the agreement of partnership expressly lays an obligation on certain partners as managing partners to render accounts at the close of each year, a suit by other partners for accounts without a prayer for dissolution of partnership can be maintained and such a suit for purposes of limitation is governed by Art. 120. 16 N.L.J. 10 = 29 N.L.R. 34 = A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 127 = 141 Ind. Cas. 277 (2).

——Arts. 120 and 106—A suit for accounts in respect of a partnership which has already been dissolved is governed by Art. 106 and not by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 353 = 37 M.L.W. 288 = 1933 M.W.N. 689 = 144 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 120—Suit for partition of estate of deceased Muhammedan—Demand for accounts of income from manager for more than six years—Maintainability.

Where, in a suit for partition of the estate of a deceased Muhammedan, his widow asked for accounts and profits of her share from the brother's son of the deceased who was managing the estate for a period of ten years:

Held, that the right to sue for partition, being a continuing one, arose when there was a demand and a refusal for accounts and profits, and that the plaintiff's right to demand on account of the income could not be held to be barred under Art. 120, though the period for which it was demanded was more than six years. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 200 = 142 Ind. Cas. 708.

——Arts. 120 and 89—Principal and agent.

Where there was no specific contract of agency between the parties Art. 120 should be applied and not Art. 89. A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150 (F.B.), foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 364 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1236.

——Arts. 120 and 89—Suit against agent—Contract Act, Ss. 201 and 209.

Under the provisions of S. 201 of the Contract Act, an agency is terminated by either the principal or agent dying, and therefore a suit against the agent for accounts for the period during which he acted as agent under the deceased must be brought within three years of the death as laid down in Art. 89. 43 Cal. 248 and A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 148, foll.

The case does not come under S. 209 of the Contract Act or Art. 120 as there is no question in it of suing the defendant for any act done by him after the death of his late principal which he might have done as a trustee. 65 Ind. Cas. 219 = 26 C.W.N. 320 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 53.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Suit for accounts.

Where the cause of action arises before agent's death in a suit against his legal representatives, limitation has no fresh starting point after the agent's death—Articles 89 and 120 apply to such cases. 84 Ind. Cas. 276 = 35 M.L.T. 84 = 1924 M.W.N. 517 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 840 = 47 M.L.J. 483.

——Art. 120—Accounts.

Where there is no question of breach of contract or compensation payable for such breach, but parties were to look into the accounts of each other to equalize the profit, each trading independently of other, and a suit is brought to take such an account and ascertain who owes whom, and give a decree for the amount payable,

Held, that the suit cannot be treated as a suit for compensation and it does not fall under Art. 115. The general Art. 120 would, therefore apply. 11 C.L.J. 43 and 14 C.W.N. 122, not foll. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 775.

——Art. 120—Claim founded on decree.

Per Spencer, Offg. C.J.,—Article 120 is the proper article, for suits to enforce obligations, arising out of decrees. But the fact must not be lost sight of that Art. 120 is a residuary article and can only be applied when no other article is found suitable. Hence, where the claim is founded on a decree on a compromise, unless it is shown that Art. 64 will not apply to the claim, as set out in the plaint, the plaintiff cannot get six years, under Art. 120.

Per Srinivasa Aiyangar, J.—Though the claim may be for accounts, yet where the claim has merged in a compromise decree, Art. 64 cannot apply because it is an article for the recovery of the money, on accounts stated between the parties and Art. 115 cannot apply, because the suit is not merely on a contract between the parties. In the absence of any other appropriate article to be applied to such a suit the proper article to be applied is Art. 120. 27 Mad. 243, foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 338 = 22 M.L.W. 195 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1260.

——Art. 120—Duty to account incidental to management.

Article 62 does not apply to transactions, in which the defendant is not under a mere duty to hand over the money which he received, but has other duties as well in respect of it. Where, therefore, under a partition deed it was arranged that the senior co-parcener and the minor should enjoy their share of the property jointly and as manager it was the duty of the senior co-parcener not merely to account for the money received, but to pay the kist and the other expenses as well as to maintain the minor

——Art. 120—Suit for account.

In a transaction for sale the original purchaser got an unregistered deed executed by the owner in his favour. The purchaser then entered into a contract with a third person on certain conditions evidencing the arrangement by an exchange of letters. The third person got the property from the buyer and the owner by a document reciting that the transaction between the purchaser and the owner was dissolved and disregarded the conditions of sharing profits on the ground of the buyer's failure to abide by the contract within time. A suit for declaration by the buyer that he was absolute owner was brought but was dismissed for default of presence. The purchaser applied for restoration and amendment of plaint with an alternative prayer of compelling the third person to execute the document of arrangement. The suit was withdrawn with permission to bring a fresh one upon which a new one was instituted. Held (1) the partnership was created without condition or contingent on kararnama, (2) that that was dissolved as the pleadings, in the declaratory suit repudiated the contract. (3) the third and final suit being after more than six years from the date of dissolution of the partnership was barred under Art. 120, Lim. Act, (4) that the buyer could not bring the present suit claiming relief as partner according to O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code as the cause of action in both the present and the previous suits was based on the contract of partnership and he had brought the previous one for establishing his right. 58 Ind. Cas. 969 (Mad.).

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts.

A suit against a karta of a joint Hindu family for an account is governed by Art. 120 of Lim. Act. 32 C.L.J. 25 = 58 Ind. Cas. 877.

——Art. 120—Suit for accounts against executor.

A suit by a beneficiary to recover money misappropriated by an executor or administrator must be brought within six years of the termination of administration. Also an action for account against an executor or administrator is barred within six years of the termination of administration. 7 M.L.T. 123 = 5 Ind. Cas. 832.

——Art. 120—Executor, suit against, for accounts. See S. 10. 10 Bom. L.R. 117 = 32 Bom. 364.

3. Avoidance of decree.

[See also NOTE 11 (e)].

——Art. 120—Suit by minor on ground of guardian's negligence.

Obiter, Per Diavle, J.—There is an obvious difference between avoiding a decree and being entitled to ignore it, i.e., to treat it as a nullity. In the former case, the question of limitation arises. No article of the Limitation Act specially deals with the negligence of a guardian or a manager. The court must therefore fall back upon the residuary article, Art. 120, which describes a period of six years from the time "when the right to sue accrues." 16 P.L.T. 484 = 14 Pat. 824 = A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 231 = 2 B.R. 423 = 162 Ind. Cas. 235.

——Art. 120—Suit by Court of Wards.

Obiter, Per Mohammad Noor, J.—A suit to set aside a decree on ground of gross neglect of the guardian is governed by Art. 120. Time runs when the Court of Wards becomes aware of the negligence of the guardian. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 231 = 16 P.L.T. 484 = 14 Pat. 824 = 2 B.R. 423 = 162 Ind. Cas. 235.

——Art. 120—Setting aside decree—Misconduct of guardian.

Where in a suit falling under Art. 120, the cause of action is not merely the passing of an adverse decree against the minor, but in addition to it the fact that such a decree was passed by reason of the misconduct or gross negligence of his guardian ad litem, limitation should not begin to run the moment the decree was passed, but only when gross negligence of the guardian which alone would entitle the minor to have the decree set aside became known to him. 120 Ind. Cas. 880 = 30 M.L.W. 911 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 173 = 58 M.L.J. 349.

——Arts. 120, 91 and 95—Suit to set aside a consent decree where fraud is not alleged.

A suit to set aside a consent decree where fraud is not alleged or proved is maintainable and is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 91 or 95. 61 C.L.J. 193 = 39 C.W.N. 938 = (1935) 62 C. 642 = 164 Ind. Cas. 561.

——Art. 120—Suit to set aside decree.

Reference to arbitration against minor in suit—No leave of Court under O. 32, R. 7—Decree against minor on award—Suit for setting aside decree is governed by Art. 120—Right to sue accrues when the plaintiff got knowledge of decree. 33 Bom. L.R. 1033 = A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 500 = 134 Ind. Cas. 1221.

——Art. 120—Voidable decree.

A decree which is voidable can only be set aside by a regular suit or by bringing an application for review to the Court that passed the decree. The period prescribed is given by Art. 120 ; where a decree is voidable it is voidable from the very date on which it is passed and consequently limitation for a suit to set aside such a decree upon the ground that it is voidable begins to run from the date of the decree itself. 83 Ind. Cas. 782 = 46 All. 575 = 22 A.L.J. 521 = 5 L.R.A. Civ. 785 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 625.

——Art. 120—Arts. 95, 44 and 91 of the 1st Schedule to the Limitation Act do not apply to a suit to have a decree set aside but the article applicable would be 120. 62 Ind Cas. 794 = 4 L.L.J. 211 = 2 Lah. 164 = 79 P.L.R. 1921 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 166.

4. Avoidance of document.

[See also NOTE 11 (d)]

——Arts. 120 and 91—Suit for possession and cancellation of instrument.

Where the relief sought for by the plaintiff is for possession and the cancellation of an instrument is only subsidiary to the main relief, Art. 91 does not apply but Art. 120 governs the case. 1935 A.W.R. 1113 = 1935 R.D. 461 = A.I.R. 1935 All. 1018 = 158 Ind. Cas. 434.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Wording of plaint to escape Art. 91.

Litigants should not be encouraged to claim the benefit of the general Article 120 by going out of their way to word their plaint so as to escape the application of Article 91. 37 All. 640 = 13 A.L.J. 913 = 29 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Art. 120—Suit to avoid fraudulent transfer—Limitation—Starting point.

Under Art. 120, the period of limitation for a suit by a creditor to avoid a transfer under S. 53, T.P. Act begins to run only from the date on which the plaintiff comes to know of the transfer in question.

The right of a creditor to institute a suit to avoid a transfer under S. 53, T.P. Act, is an individual right, though, when it is exercised, it enures for the benefit of the general body of the creditors, and the inaction of one creditor to sue after becoming aware of the transfer cannot bar another creditor from instituting a suit within six years from the date on which he became aware of the transfer. 31 P.L.R. 1014 = A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 70 = 12 L. 262 = 130 Ind. Cas. 778.

——Art. 120—Fraudulent transfer—Suit to set aside—Starting point.

Per Venkatasubba Rao, J.—A suit under S. 53, Transfer of Property Act, to contest an alienation by a debtor is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and the starting point of limitation is the date on which the plaintiff decides to exercise his option of avoiding the transfer and not the date of transfer.

Madhavan Nair, J. dissenting.—The starting point for limitation is not the date on which the creditor exercises the option to avoid the transfer nor the date of transfer, but it is the date on which the circumstances entitling the creditor to have the transfer avoided first become known to him. 92 Ind. Cas. 405 = 22 M.L.W. 592 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 66.

——Art. 120—Fraudulent transfer—Starting point.

A suit by a creditor to avoid an alienation by his debtor as being fraudulent comes within Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. The cause of action for such a suit does not arise on the date of alienation but on the date the creditor seeking to set aside the alienation knows that he has been defrauded, defeated or delayed. S. 53 of the T.P. Act does not expressly give a right to sue but only an option to sue and the cause of action arises when the option is exercised. 17 Bom. 341, Foll. 7 L.W. 280 = (1918) M.W.N. 244 = 44 Ind. Cas. 551.

——Arts. 120, 91 and 95—Avoidance of document—Fraudulent transfer.

A suit by a creditor to set aside a fraudulent transfer is governed by Article 120 and not by Art. 91 or 95. 2 L.W. 479 = (1915) M.W.N. 337 = 29 Ind. Cas. 62.

——Art. 120—Avoidance of document—Lease by mortgagor.

A perpetual lease of the mortgaged property by mortgagor is permanently injurious to the property and it renders the security insufficient within S. 68 and a suit by mortgagee to avoid the lease is governed by Limitation Act, Art. 120. Limitation runs if not from the date of the lease certainly from the date when the mortgagee acquires knowledge of the lease. 100 Ind. Cas. 728 = 4 O.W.N. 228 = A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 148.

——Art. 120—Cancellation of a Will.

A suit for cancellation of Will is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 91. 23 Cal. 1 (P.C.), Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 835 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 635.

——Art. 120—Suit to set aside will—Limitation—Punjab Limitation Act (1 of 1900).

A declaratory suit for setting aside a will, is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. The Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (1 of 1900) does not apply to such suits. 30 P.L.R. 1915 = 200 P.W.R. 1915 = 27 Ind. Cas. 574.

——Art. 120—Avoidance of will.

A suit to declare an unregistered will as forged and beyond the power of the testator to make, is governed by Art. 120 and time runs from the time the plaintiff comes to know of the existence of the will. Art. 91 does not apply to wills. Art. 92 does not apply to the case of a will which is neither "issued" nor "registered" Art. 93 does not apply when no attempt to enforce the will against plaintiff has been made. 82 P.L. R. 1909 = 88 P.W.R. 1909 = 4 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit by heir—Sale of property by administrator.

A sale by the administrator of the estate of the deceased of such estate without leave of the Court is void and can be impeached by the heirs within 12 years from the date of the sale. 9 L.B.R. 186 = 12 Bur. L.T. 27 = 50 Ind. Cas. 324.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Suit by adopted son to set aside alienations by maternal grandmother—Cause of action.

A suit by adopted son to set aside alienations by his maternal grandmother is governed by Art. 120 of the Act and the cause of action for the suit arises from the date of the plaintiff's adoption. 38 Mad. 396 = (1913) M.W.N. 588 = 14 M.L.T. 89 = 25 M.L.J. 219 = 20 Ind. ——Arts. 120 and 134—Avoidance of document—Suit for possession of mutt property alienated by head of mutt.

A suit for possession of mutt properties alienated by its head is governed by Art. 134 or 144 according as the head is a trustee or a life tenant; and time runs from the date of the alienation or when possession begins to be adverse. Possession adverse to the institution is equally adverse to the plaintiffs, suing on its behalf. 41 Mad. 1124 = 33 M.L.J. 357 = 22 M.L.T. 218 = 6 L.W. 666 = 42 Ind. Cas. 366.

——Art. 120—Suit under Ss. 39, 42, Specific Relief Act.

The articles applicable to suits under S. 39 of the Specific Relief Act is either 91 or 120, Sch.II, Limitation Act. (1902) 25 A. 1 = 29 I.A. 203 = 4 Bom. L.R. 832 = 6 C.W.N. 849 (P.C.).

5. Award.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Applicability—Award in arbitration—If can create interest in immovable property—Suit for possession based on award—Limitation.

A suit for possession of immovable property based upon an award creating an interest in such property is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, even though neither party had sought to enforce the award by suit or summary procedure.

The question whether an award in arbitration would create an interest in property depends upon the terms of the award and upon the authority of the arbitrator making the award. If the arbitrator had the necessary authority, and by the terms of the award an interest is created, then such award is capable of creating an interest in property. I.L.R. (1948) Bom. 309 = 49 Bom. L.R. 731 = A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 101 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 144—Applicability—Award creating title to immovable property—Suit for possession of such property—Limitation—Award—Binding character of.

It is the relief claimed by the plaintiff and not the basis on which the claim is made that really determines the question of limitation.

A suit to recover possession of immovable property on the basis of title created by an award in arbitration, is essentially a suit for possession of immovable property governed by Art. 144, Limitation Act. It is not a suit to enforce an award and hence Art. 120 does not apply. An award must have its full legal effect and it is binding on the parties as much as a decree of Court, and the binding character of the award is not shaken by reason merely of the fact that no steps were taken to make the award a decree of Court or that the steps taken proved infructuous. I.L.R. (1948) Bom. 610 = A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 64 = 50 Bom. L.R. 604.

——Art. 120—Award—Suit on.

It cannot be said that all suits, irrespective of their nature, which are based on an award must be governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 275.

——Art. 120—Suit to enforce awards are governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115 or Art. 113. 117 Ind. Cas. 153 = 23 S.L.R. 417 = A.I.R. 1929 Sind 168.

——Art. 120—A suit to enforce the payment of money directed to be made under an award as payable in instalments and charged by the award on immovable property is in effect, to enforce a payment which the award directs to be made at certain dates and the time from which limitation begins to run is the date of the instalments defaulted and not the date of the award. 111 Ind. Cas. 881 = 30 Bom. L.R. 675 = A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 264.

——Art. 120—A suit to enforce an award comes under Art. 120. 91 Ind. Cas. 1032 = 49 Bom. 693 = A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 519.

——Arts. 120, 113 and 115—Suit on award—Limitation.

A suit based on an award is governed by Art. 120 and not by 113 or 115 whether the award is signed by the parties or not. 102 P.R. 1915 = 190 P.W.R. 1915 = 32 Ind. Cas. 88.

——Art. 120—Suit on award.

A suit based on an award cannot be considered to be a suit on a contract and is governed by Art. 120. 31 Ind. Cas. 816 (Mad.).

——Art. 120—Suit on award—Compensation for breach of the award.

A suit to recover compensation for breach of the award is governed by Art. 120. 6 S.L.R. 148 = 19 Ind. Cas. 376.

——Art. 120—Award—Execution—Limitation—Starting point.

An award becomes enforceable as a decree when it has been filed and it is only then that the question of execution can arise. Hence, the limitation for execution of award does not run from the date of award. (1935) 62 C. 833 = 61 C.L.J. 515.

6. Claim suit.

——Art. 120—Objection to attachment before judgment—Claim suit.

Claim suits arising out of objections to attachments before judgment are for purposes of limitation governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 580 = 1 B.R. 42 = 16 P.L.T. 304 = 152 Ind. Cas. 297.

——Arts. 120 and 11—Objection of son of judgment-debtor allowed—Claim suit by decree-holder.

Where an objection by the son of the judgment-debtor was allowed on the ground that there was no attachment and the decree-holder filed a suit to have it declared that the transfer in favour of the objector was fraudulent :

Held, the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 11. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 449 = 34 P.L.R. 443 144 Ind Cas. 378.

——Art. 120—Claim suit by person not party to execution proceedings.

A claim suit by a person not a party to execution proceedings is governed by Art. 120. 33 P.L.R. 759 = A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 516 = 138 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 120—No decision on merits—Declaratory suit.

Rejection of claim under O. 21, R.58 without decision on merits—Suit for declaration of title is not governed by Art. 120, Limitation Act. (1930) A.L.J. 1322 = 130 Ind. Cas. 200.

——Arts. 120 and 11—Suit to contest order on claim.

A suit to contest an order on a claim against attachment before judgment followed by execution after decree is governed by Art. 11 and not Art. 120. 79 Ind. Cas. 917 = 34 M.L.T. 193 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 49.

——Art. 120—Where there is an order in execution for the sale of the attached property, that order proceeds upon the footing that the property is to be considered as attached in execution by virtue of O. 38, R. 11, C.P.Code and a claim put in after that order may properly be regarded as a claim to property attached in execution of a decree within the meaning of Art. 11. Cases not governed by Art. 11 must be governed by Art. 120. 70 Ind. Cas. 439 = 44 Mad. 902 = 14 M.L.W. 645 = 1921 M.W.N. 569 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 163 = 41 M.L.J. 252 (F.B.).

7. Claim to Office.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Claim to office.

Where a person is admittedly the lawful holder of an office and he is enjoying his emoluments, he must in law be regarded as being in possession of the office itself, especially where no one else is performing the duties of the office. He has the right to bring a suit at any time when the performance of his duties is interfered with. He is not, however, bound to take action whenever there is interference with the performance of his duties, if it does not suit him. He can abide his time. Every time there is interference with the performance of his duties, there is a fresh wrong which would give rise to a fresh cause of action. Hence to such a case, Art. 120 or 124, has no application. (1940) M.W.N. 1232 = A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 81 = 52 L.W. 919 = (1940) 2 M.L.J. 990 = I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 275 = 192 Ind. Cas. 870 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Removal of mutwalli.

Article 120 applies to a suit to remove an unauthorised mutwalli. (1939) 41 P.L.R. 166.

——Art. 120—Suit for removal from office—Mutwalli—Ouster.

A suit for declaration that a mutwalli or imam should be ousted owing to change in his religious views is governed by Art. 120 ; the period begins to run from the date of change in views. 53 P.R. 1909 = 2 Ind. Cas. 107.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that person is not shebait.

A suit for a declaration that a certain person is not a shebait and that a neogpatra executed in favour of such person by a former shebait, is invalid, will be governed by Art. 120, if and when it is proved that the shebaitship was not hereditary. 68 C.L.J. 230 = A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 709 = 42 C.W.N. 1138 = 177 Ind. Cas. 898.

——Art. 120—Suit to recover non-hereditary office and declaration.

Suit by plaintiff to recover office which is not hereditary and to have it declared that he was the lawful trustee or manager of a religious endowment is one which is governed by Art. 120. 1936 M.W.N. 1159.

——Art. 120—Suit to recover possession of temples and properties endowed to them from person managing them—Limitation.

Where in a suit to recover possession of the temples of the villages and the properties endowed to them against the defendant who was in possession and management of the temples and the properties, defendant set up a right in himself and claimed them adversely to the villagers :

Held, that the defendant was in possession of an office within the meaning of the explanation in Col.3, Art. 124, Lim. Act, and that the office not being a hereditary one, the suit was governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 449 = (1935) M.W.N. 503.

——Arts. 120 and 124—Hereditary office.

If the real claimant to a hereditary office allows his rights to the office to get barred by limitation, those who are next in succession to him should also be deemed to have lost their rights.

A suit for declaration of title to a hereditary office is governed by Art. 124 and not by Art. 120. (1931) M.W.N. 8 = A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 505 = 133 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Art. 120—Claim to office—Mutwallishiip.

The office of mutwallishiip not being a hereditary one, a suit to oust a person from his office as mutwalli is regulated by Art. 120 of the Act, and if no suit has been brought to oust him by reason of his having held the office for over six years he would acquire an indefeasible right to hold the office of Mutwalli and would acquire a complete title for the purposes of litigation or anything connected with the endowment. 99 Ind. Cas. 205 = 44 C.L.J. 339 = 31 C.W.N. 184 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 130.

——Art. 120—Claim to office—Succession by nomination.

Where succession to a religious office is by nomination by the holder in office of his successor, it is not a hereditary succession within Art. 124.

The only article applicable to cases of succession after nomination is Art. 120. Article 144 also is not applicable as the claim to possession is also barred if the claim to office is barred under Art. 120. 97 Ind. Cas. 437 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1012 = 51 M.L.J. 258.

——Arts. 120 and 124—A claim to an office and property attached to it is governed by Art. 124 if the office is hereditary and by Art. 120 if the office is not hereditary. 60 Ind. Cas. 165 = 32 C.L.J. 151.

——Art. 120—Claim to office—Declaration of right to manage dharmasala.

A claim for a declaration that after the owner's death, plaintiffs were entitled to be managers and supervisors of a dharmasala belonging to the owner, is barred by time if brought after 6 years. 125 P.W.R. 1917 = 11 P.R. 1918 = 41 Ind. Cas. 636.

——Art. 120—Suit for removal from office—Starting point.

A suit to remove a Pandarasannadhi from office falls under Art. 120 and time runs from the time he took charge of his office and not from the time of his appointment as Chinnapatam. 32 M.L.J. 271 = 40 Ind. Cas. 627.

——Arts. 120 and 124—Claim to office—Mutawalli.

A claim to office and to property appurtenant thereto, may be barred by limitation. If the office is not hereditary Art. 120 is applicable. If it is hereditary, Art. 124 governs it. 14 M. 153 ; 21 M. 278 ; 23 M. 271 ; 6 C.L.J. 621, Foll. 37 Cal. 263 = 14 C.W.N. 497 = 11 C.L.J. 304 = 3 Ind. Cas. 419.

——Art. 120—Suit by liquidator to recover unpaid call amounts.

The period of limitation applicable to a suit brought by a Liquidator of a public company to recover the unpaid amount of calls from a share-holder is six years from the date of default under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 335 = 38 P.L.R. 587 = 16 L. 1055 = 156 Ind. Cas. 951.

——Arts. 120 and 117—Call order by liquidation Court in Baroda—Suit on it—Limitation.

Under S. 199, Companies Act, all orders made by a liquidation Court though they are not decrees may be enforced in the same manner in which the decrees of such Court made in any suit pending therein may be enforced. Consequently, a call order passed by a liquidation Court in Baroda is not a foreign judgment and a suit on it in British India, therefore, is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 117. 38 P.L.R. 662 = A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 975 = 17 L. 341 = 160 Ind. Cas. 346.

——Art. 120—Applicability.

Suit by company to recover money due to it which had been realized by one who had obtained a decree against it—Realisation pending winding up—Starting point. See LIMITATION ACT (9 OF 1908), ARTS. 62 AND 120. 1947 A.L.W. 56 = A.I.R. 1948 A. 75.

——Arts. 120 and 36—Suit for damages against directors for misrepresentation in prospectus.

A suit for damages against the directors of a company on the ground that due to their misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company, the plaintiff was indeed to take shares and thereby sustained loss is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 36. 57 L.W. 312 = A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 431.

——Arts. 120, 115 and 116—Application by Liquidator for damages against director—Limitation.

An application by a liquidator under S. 235, Companies Act, for damages for misfeasance or for breach of contract by directors, is governed for purposes of limitation by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115 or 116 of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 293 = 3 B.R. 477 = 168 Ind. Cas. 786.

——Art. 120—Misfeasance.

Voluntary liquidation of company—Subsequent compulsory winding up order—Official Liquidator appointed—Application by Official Liquidator against managing directors charging them with misfeasance—Article 120 is applicable. (1933) A.L.J. 1203 = A.I.R. 1933 All. 789 = 3 A.W.R. 201 = 55 A. 912 = 145 Ind. Cas. 893 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Company—Misfeasance of director.

Article 120 is the appropriate article for a suit against directors for misapplication of the company's funds in ultra vires transactions. Time runs from the earliest date "when the specific injury actually arose" within S. 24 of the Limitation Act.

Held, that in the particular case it commenced from he date on which the balance sheet showing the losses ascertained was laid before the company at its general meeting. 54 Bom. 226 = 32 Bom. L.R. 232 = A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 572.

——Art. 120—Misfeasance of Directors of Companies.

A right to sue for misfeasance of directors of companies arises from the date of misfeasance and is governed by Art. 36 or Art. 120. 128 Ind. Cas. 477 = 1930 M.W.N. 966 = 32 L.W. 555 = A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 58 = 54 Mad. 153 = 60 M.L.J. 280.

——Art. 120—Damages against delinquent directors.

Article 120 is the only article applicable to an application under S. 235 of the Companies Act ; and time begins to run only after the appointment of the liquidator. 88 Ind. Cas. 785 = 23 A.L.J. 473 = 6 L.R.A. Civ. 425 = 47 All. 669 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 519.

——Art. 120—Suit for dividends.

A suit by share-holder of a Limited Company for recovery of arrears of dividend is a claim for debt and is governed by Art. 120. It is not a claim arising out of contract within the meaning of Art. 115. 42 Mad. 33, Overruled. 94 Ind. Cas. 515 = 49 Mad. 468 = 1926 M.W.N. 450 = 24 M.L.W. 102 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 615 = 50 M.L.J. 520 (F.B.).

9. Compensation and Damages.

——Arts. 120, 115 and 39—Applicability—Suit for compensation for use and occupation after notice to vacate.

Where a party has lawfully entered into possession of a property, his remaining upon it after the determination of the lease and notice to quit does not constitute a trespass upon the property in the required sense. A suit for compensation therefore against that party for use and occupation of the property even after the notice to quit, is not governed either by Art. 39 or Art. 115. The case clearly falls within the scope of Art. 120. 1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 516 = 1946 A.L.J. 305 (2) = A.I.R. 1947 A. 31.

——Arts. 120, 110 and 115—Suit for compensation for use and occupation against ex-tenant.

A suit to recover compensation for use and occupation from an ex-tenant who remains in possession after the determination of the tenancy without the consent of the landlord is governed by the residuary Art. 120, Limitation Act. Neither Art. 110 nor Art. 115 applies to such a suit. A.I.R. 1946 All. 447 = 224 Ind. Cas. 201 = 1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 198 = 1946 A.W.R. (Rev.) B. 118.

——Arts. 120 and 115—Suit for compensation for use and occupation.

In a suit instituted for the assessment of fair and equitable rent and for the recovery of compensation for the use and occupation of the land, where the defendants are perfectly willing to pay reasonable rent according to contract and do not agree with the plaintiff only as to the figure at which a reasonable rent should be fixed it cannot be said that they are guilty of any breach of an implied contract. Article 115 does not, therefore, apply to such a suit which is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 400 = 190 Ind. Cas. 631.

——Art. 120—Compensation for use and occupation.

Limitation for a suit for a fair and equitable sum for the use and occupation of land, is six years. (1938) 67 C.L.J. 74 = 41 C.W.N. 1090.

——Arts. 120 and 110—Suit for damages on the basis of rent.

When a purchaser under a revenue sale who has an option to annul an under-tenure under S.37, Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act, 1859, annuls the under-tenure without receiving any rent from the holder of it, and sues the holder for damages calculating the same on the basis of rent, it is a suit for damages and not for rent and is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 110. 69 C.L.J. 220 = A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 468 = 43 C.W.N. 469.

——Arts. 120 and 2—Act performed under powers given by statute, but compensation provided by statute not awarded—Suit for compensation is governed by Art. 120, and not Art. 2.

Where it is admitted that the act was performed under the powers given by the statute and the cause of action, alleged against the Secretary of State is a failure to allot the statutory compensation provided, then Art. 120, and not Art. 2 applies. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 583.

——Arts. 120 and 115—Suit for compensation.

Municipal Committee holding cattle fair on land of certain person for several years—Agreement to compensate owner of land held to be implied—Suit for compensation—Article 115 and not Art. 120 held, applied. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 267 = 178 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 120—Suit under S. 70, Contract Act.

R and N borrowed Rs. 5,000 on a promissory note from J and M. J alone realised Rs. 5,000 on account of this promissory note from the debtors by means of a draft on them. J and M then sued R and N for recovery of Rs. 7,700 on the basis of the promissory note. The defence was that the promissory note had been discharged by the payment and this defence was upheld. It was held, however, that J had no authority to receive payment on behalf of M. Consequently, the suit by J was dismissed to the extent of half the claim, while the suit, so far as M was concerned, was decreed for half the amount in suit. M executed his decree to the extent of Rs. 1,200. Thereupon a suit was instituted by R to recover the sum of Rs. 1,200 from J on the ground that he had been made to pay Rs. 1,200 twice over by reason of his action and was, therefore, entitled to a decree against him for that amount.

Held, that the case fell under S. 70, Contract Act, and, therefore, either Art. 61 or Art. 120, applied but not Art. 96. The appropriate Article however, in the present case was Article 120. I.L.R. (1937) Lah. 623 = A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 99 = 40 P.L.R. 300 = 175 Ind. Cas. 588.

——Arts. 120 and 22—A suit for damages for enticement of the plaintiff's wife is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 22. A.I.R. 1936 All. 454 = 1936 A.W.R. 515 = (1936) A.L.J. 574 = 58 A. 903 = 163 Ind. Cas. 974.

Reversing A.I.R. 1935 All. 855 = 156 Ind. Cas. 556.

——Art. 120—Compensation—Suit to enforce payment—Land Acquisition (Mines) Act, Ss 5 and 6.

Lawful imposition of restriction under Ss. 5 and 6, Land Acquisition (Mines) Act—Persons interested become entitled to compensation—Cause of action arises on public authority refusing to pay—Article 120, Limitation Act, applies to suit to enforce payment. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 513 = 2 B.R. 776 = 17 P.L.T. 279 = 15 Pat. 510 = 164 Ind. Cas. 860.

——Art. 120—Suit for compensation for land acquired.

Where the Government acquires land and pays the money to one who is apparently entitled to it, a suit by a person who has also got interest in the land claiming the money paid by the Government is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 42.

——Art. 120—Land Acquisition Act—Compensation suit for—When Collector refuses to make award Art. 120 applies. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 356 = 5 C.L.J. 669 = 34 C. 470.

——Art. 120—Suit for compensation on basis of compromise merged in decree—Limitation.

A suit for compensation based on a contract contained in a compromise which has merged in a decree is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 115. 12 Pat. 792 = A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 7 = 15 P.L.T. 197 = 148 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit to recover damages for breach of covenant of title.

Quaere.—Whether Art. 120 would not be the proper article applicable to a suit to recover damages for breach of covenant of title. 124 Ind. Cas. 185 = 1930 A.L.J. 658 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 771.

——Art 120—Suit for damages against Collector for refusing to make award. 14 M.L.J. 173 = 27 M. 535.

——Art. 120—Damages—Interest.

Under Art. 120 damages for more than six years previous to the institution of the suit cannot be awarded. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 356.

10. Debts of father.

——Arts. 120 and 147—Hindu father executing mortgage of joint family property to secure antecedent debt—Mortgage executed not as manager of joint family nor for family necessity—Suit upon mortgage against sons after father's death—Suit is not barred by three years or six years period of limitation—Suit brought within sixty years of due date is within time.

Where the debt due by a Hindu father is a simple money debt, the liability of the sons by reason of the pious obligation to pay the debt incurred by the father, not being illegal or immoral, is co-terminus or co-extensive with the liability of the father. The debt would be barred so far as the father is concerned if more than three years have elapsed. The recovery of the debt so far as it is sought to be recovered from the sons would be barred if the suit in respect thereof is filed beyond that period of three years or taking it to be a suit to recover monies due by the son to the creditor by reason of the pious obligation to discharge the debts of the father not being illegal or immoral it would be covered by Art. 120, Limitation Act.

In the case of a debt which is secured by a mortgage but is a present advance and not an antecedent debt the position of the sons is not all different as far as the recovery of the debt from their right, title and interest in other joint family properties is concerned, from what obtains in the case of a simple money debt incurred by the father. A decree obtained against the right, title and interest of the father in such a mortgage suit filed against the father during his lifetime can be executed even against the right, title and interest of the sons in the joint family property and the property would be liable to be sold in execution of that decree, unless the sons were successful in proving before the Court that the debt was not binding on them by reason of its being illegal or immoral. Where, however, no such decree is obtained, the creditor would be entitled, by reason of the pious obligation of the sons to pay the father's debts not being illegal or immoral, to proceed against the sons but he cannot succeed against them unless he filed a suit against them either within the six years period or three years period as held by the Allahabad and Madras High Courts.

Where, however, the alienation made by the father of the joint family property is for securing an antecedent debt, the sons under the pious obligation to pay the father's debts, have, by virtue of the debt being an antecedent debt, their right, title and interest in the joint family property also alienated by the very terms of the indenture of mortgage executed by the father. In the case of such antecedent debts, it is not open to the sons to contend that the father did not contract these debts as the manager of the joint family or for the purpose of family necessity. The alienation made by the father being deemed in law to be an alienation not only of the father's right, title and interest in the property but also of the sons, the subject-matter of the mortgage is the whole of the joint family property including the right, title and interest of the sons therein and the same is the subject-matter of the suit filed by the mortgagee for the realisation of that mortgage. It makes not the slightest difference to the position that when the suit is filed by the mortgagee the father is dead and that according to the strict position, in Hindu Law the right, title and interest of the father in the property has survived over to the other members of the joint family, viz., the sons.

Where, therefore, a mortgagee files a suit upon an English mortgage executed by the father before 1st April, 1930, to secure an antecedent debt, not as manager of the joint family nor for the purposes of family necessity, against the sons after the father's death, the suit is not barred, if it is filed within sixty years of the due date under Art. 147. A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 499 = 48 Bom. L.R. 327 = 227 Ind. Cas. 135.

——Arts. 120 and 73—Suit to enforce—Promissory note.

Even though the sons may be under a pious obligation to pay their father's debt, a suit on a promissory note executed by the father brought after his death is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 73. 41 Bom. L.R. 896 = A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 464 = 186 Ind. Cas. 66.

——Art. 120—Suit on promissory note executed by father.

A suit on a promissory note executed by a Hindu father against his sons after his death, the liability to be imposed being in respect of the pious obligation of the son to pay his father's debts, is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 73. 33 Bom. L.R. 1234 = A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 542 = 135 Ind. Cas. 804.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Debt of father—Suit against sons—Limitation.

A suit upon a mortgage effected by a father governed by the Mitakshara Law for a debt which is neither antecedent nor for family purposes and not proved to be immoral, brought after the death of the father against the sons, some of whom were adults and some minors, at the time of the mortgage, is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, and not by Art. 132, as there is no charge on immovable property enforceable against the sons. 42 Cal. 1068 = 21 C.L.J. 543 = 19 C.W.N. 849 = 29 Ind. Cas. 629 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120, 57, 62 and 89—Debts of father—Suit for recovery of, against sons.

To recover debts from son, the limitation is 6 years from the death of the father according to Art. 120. The articles 57, 62, 89 do not apply. 31 All. 429 = 6 A.L.J. 667 = 2 Ind. Cas. 118.

——Art. 120—Debt—Son's obligation to pay father's debts. 3 A.L.J. 274 = 1906 A.W.N. 117 = 28 A. 508.

——Art. 120—Suit against Hindu son for recovery of judgment-debt against father.

A suit based on the original cause of action against a Hindu son for recovery of a judgment-debt due from his deceased father is governed by Art. 120. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 281.

——Arts. 120 and 122—Son's liability to pay the judgment-debt of father—Suit against son.

A suit by the creditor to enforce as against the son the debt created by a judgment against the father is not "a suit upon a judgment." It is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 122. (1903) 14 M.L.J. 84 = 27 M. 243 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120, 182 and 183—Decree against Hindu father—Decree-holder can proceed at once against property in hands of his sons—He need not apply under Art. 120—In such cases either Art. 182 or 183 will directly apply. 2 Pat. 445 = A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 261 = 13 P.L.T. 719 = 139 Ind. Cas. 397.

11. Declaratory suit.

(a) Article applicable.
(b) Cause of action and starting point of limitation.
(c) Entry in Revenue Records.
(d) Setting aside alienation.
(e) Setting aside decree or order.

11. (a) Declaratory Suit—Article applicable

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit for declaration of right to share in Toda Giras allowance—Limitation. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 131. 49 Bom. L.R. 318 = A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 451.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit for declaration for setting aside mere assertion.

A suit for a declaration will not lie for setting aside a mere assertion. A mere declaration by a trustee that he proposes to hold the property as full owner is not an overt act which would start limitation running against the beneficiaries of a trust. I.L.R. (1946) Lah. 300 = A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 117 = 231 Ind. Cas. 421.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Representative suit on behalf of community for declaration.

Art. 120 of the Limitation Act does not apply to a representative suit on behalf of a community under O. 1, R. 8, C.P. Code, for a declaration that a certain property is wakf. It cannot be said that the community as such was even aware before the institution of the suit that their title was in jeopardy, although some members there of learnt about the assertion of adverse title by the defendant who was in possession of the property as mutwalli, as that does not mean that the assertion was to the knowledge of the entire community. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 518 = 1946 N.L.J. 511 = A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 401.

——Arts. 120 and 14—Dismissal of public servant.

A suit by a public servant for a declaration that an order of his dismissal is void and inoperative is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 14. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 368 = 1943 O.W.N. 118 = 19 Luck. 163 = 207 Ind. Cas. 178.

——Art. 120—Suit for mere declaration of title to land and not for possession.

Where a suit is one for mere declaration of the plaintiff's title to certain land and is neither in form nor in substance a suit for possession of the land, Arts. 142 and 144, Limitation Act do not apply to such a suit. Such a suit is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1942 P.C. 47 = 8 B.R. 831 = 1942 O.W.N. 508 = 55 L.W. 597 = (1942) 2 M.L.J. 384 = 44 Bom. L.R. 868 = 47 C.W.N. 38 = I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (P.C.) 122 (Sup.)=1942 A.W.R. 37 = 201 Ind. Cas. 499 (P.C.).

——Arts. 120 and 131—Suit by mutawalli for declaration that he is entitled to receive Yeomiah allowance attached to office of mutawalli is one to establish a periodically recurring right alleged to be attached to the office and is governed by Art. 131 and not by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 428 = I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 587 = 53 L.W. 325 = 1941 M.W.N. 232 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 374 = 199 Ind. Cas. 693.

——Arts. 120 and 14—Suit for declaration that plaintiff was nearest heir of deceased watandar in preference to defendant.

Upon the death of a representative watandar, the revenue authorities, after making inquiry, ordered that a certain person should be recognised as a representative watandar in the place of the deceased. Plaintiff brought a suit for declaration that he was the nearest heir of the deceased watandar in preference to the person appointed by the revenue authorities :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 14 as the suit was not for setting aside the orders of the revenue authorities but one for a mere declaration. 40 Bom. L.R. 1288 = A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 56 = I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 123 = 179 Ind. Cas. 984.

——Art. 120—For a mere relief for a declaration, the article applicable would be Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 257=1939 O.W.N. 825=1939 A.W.R. 160=1939 R.D. 542=14 Luck. 723=183 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration—Limitation.

In the partition proceedings started in the year 1902, the plaintiffs' title to the land in dispute was denied at that time. The plaintiffs had never actually been in physical possession of the property in dispute :

Held, that the suit for declaration instituted on August 19, 1935, was clearly barred by time under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 671 = 40 P.L.R. 940 = 181 Ind. Cas. 262.

——Art. 20—Suit for declaration that certain land was graveyard and injunction.

Certain Muhammadan residents sued on behalf of all the Muhammadan residents of the Mohalla for a declaration that certain property is a graveyard and for an injunction directing the defendants to remove the buildings erected by them on portions thereof :

Held, that as the acts of the defendants amounted to ouster of the plaintiffs from the use of the common land which was reserved for specific purpose, i.e., for graveyard, the suit was governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 254 = 178 Ind. Cas. 125.

——Art. 120—Where the suit is one for a bare declaration of the right to impose full assessment without consequential relief, Art. 120 does not apply. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 303 = (1937) M.W.N. 189 = 173 Ind. Cas. 307.

——Art. 120—In a suit by a zamindar against Government for a declaration that an enfranchisement by the Government is not valid and binding on the zamindar, the period to be applied is not twelve years, and in general, Art. 120, Limitation Act, will apply to such suits. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 313 = 68 M.L.J. 409 = 41 L.W. 689 =58 M. 141 = 162 Ind. Cas. 661.

—Arts. 120 and 142—Suit for declaration—Article applicable.

Where the suit is clearly one for declaration of the plaintiff's title and is neither in substance nor in form a suit for possession of immovable property and there is no suggestion of the plaintiff's dispossession or discontinuance of possession by the defendant, it is governed by Art. 120 and Art. 142 does not apply. 1936 O.W.N. 784 = A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 387 = 1936 R.D. 416 = 12 Luck. 371 = 164 Ind. Cas. 118.

——Arts. 120 and 127—Plaintiff excluded from enjoyment of rights as coparcener—Suit for declaration and perpetual injunction—Limitation.

The proper relief to be granted to a person who is excluded from the enjoyment of his rights as a coparcener by the other members of the family is a declaration of his rights and a decree for joint possession. A suit filed by one member for declaration that he is a member of a joint Hindu family and for a perpetual injunction against the defendants that they should not obstruct his participating in the management of the business is not one to enforce a right to share in joint family property. It is purely a declaratory suit with a consequential relief in the form of an injunction and hence Art. 120 applies and not Art. 127. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 95 = 157 Ind. Cas. 345.

——Art. 120—Right to take procession over certain route.

The plaintiffs, three Nadars, claimed for themselves individually and for their castemen the right to take marriage processions over a certain route composed of public streets in their village. The defendants were other castemen of the village who denied the right. An order had been passed in 1900 under S. 147, Criminal P.C., directing that no organised procession of Shanars or Christians should pass along the route until declaration of the right to do so was made by a Civil Court. The question was whether the Limitation Act applied to the suit and whether it was barred :

Held, that the Limitation Act was applicable to the suit. It is true that the right to use public streets, including the right to go in procession, is a natural right inherent in every member of the public, and cannot be prescribed against or lost as other rights may be prescribed against or lost. But that is not to say that where a suit has to be brought in order to obtain a declaration that such a right exists, the Limitation Act has no application. The appropriate article, governing the suit was Art. 120 and the suit was barred. (1935) M.W.N. 634 = 42 L.W. 599 = A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 967 = 69 M.L.J. 739 = 59 M. 75 = 161 Ind. Cas. 653.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Grant of inam lands—Partition between vahivatdars—Sale by one vahivatdar of his share—Suit by heirs of other vahivatdar for declaration and injunction against alienee—Limitation.

Certain lands were granted to a shrine of Jivanram Swamy, the family of the plaintiffs being the vahivatdars. The original grant which was a very ancient one, was continued by the British Government under sanads issued by the Inam Commission. The sanad was given to one G who had two sons R and H, of whom R was the father of the plaintiffs. H sold the suit property to D on June 7, 1914, and died childless in 1919. On June 7, 1926, the heirs of R (plaintiffs) sued for a declaration that they are the managers and owners of the suit property and as such have the right to collect the income of the property and for an injunction directing D not to collect the income from the occupancy tenants :

Held, that the suit was not one simply for declaration and an injunction and Art. 120, did not apply, but that the suit was governed by Art. 144 and limitation having begun to run from June 7, 1914, the suit brought within 12 years of that date was in time. 34 Bom. L.R. 1469 = A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 26 = 141 Ind. Cas 103.

——Art. 120—Property in custodia legis.

A suit for declaration of title to property which is in custodia legis is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 276 = 35 Bom. L.R. 440 = 145 Ind. Cas. 190.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit for declaration and possession of wakf property.

A suit for a declaration that the plaintiffs are the Mutawallis of the trust property or a suit for possession of the office of the mutawalli are both governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1930 All. 866 = 129 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for land in lieu of maintenance.

A suit by a junior member of a family governed by rule of primogeniture for a plot of land in lieu of maintenance on the strength of family custom is governed either by Art. 120 or 144, the choice between the two provisions of law depending upon the question whether the suit is treated as one for declaration or for possession. Therefore when on the evidence it is proved that the defendant has been giving grain to the plaintiffs by way of maintenance and that the allowance was stpoped two years before the suit, the suit is clearly in time.

Articles 129 and 131 do not apply to such a case. 121 Ind. Cas. 428 = 11 Lah. 99 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 872.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit.

Article 120 applies to all declaratory suits. 20 All. 35, Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 209 = 1929 A.L.J. 794 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 529.

——Art. 120—A suit for declaration must be brought within six years of the cause of action unless there has been a fresh invasion of the plaintiff's right giving him a fresh cause of action. 31 All. 9 = 10 A.L.J. 413 = 11 A.L.J. 877 and 36 All. 492, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 629 (All.).

——Art. 120—Right to emerged land.

The land in suit had emerged out of the river Ganges which lay to the north of the village of Dhanapur of which the defendants were the owners. To the west of it, was a village called Arazi Dayara Dhanapur of which the plaintiffs were the mortgagees. The plaintiffs sued for a declaration that they were the owners of the village Arazi Dayara Dhanapur, that the land in suit had accreted to that village and therefore formed an accession to the village ; it was found that the plaintiffs were only mortgagees of village, that in spite of objections by the plaintiffs the village had been settled only with the defendants, by the Revenue authorities, and that the plaintiffs were never in possession of the lands at any time.

Held, that there was no law under which the land could be regarded as an accession to the village Arazi Dayara and that the suit having been brought more than six years after the cause of action for the declaration arose, was barred by time. 75 Ind. Cas. 35 = 21 A.L.J. 409 = 45 All. 461 = 4 L.R.A. (Civ.) 206 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 500.

——Art. 120—A suit for declaration of title to immovable property must be brought within six years from the date when the right to sue accrues. 65 Ind. Cas. 8 = 33 C.L.J. 592 = 26 C.W.N. 206 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 8.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Attached property.

Where after dispossession of the real owner, the property was attached by the Magistrate under S. 146, Cr. P. Code.

Held, as the property was in legal custody for the benefit of the true owner a suit for recovery of possession was to be treated as one for declaration of title under S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act, and Art. 120, Limitation Act, was applicable and not 142. 65 Ind. Cas. 200 = 49 Cal. 544 = 26 C.W.N. 432 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 419.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Charge-holder.

Where a third party has advanced money to the mortgagor to pay off the mortgage on the understanding that a further mortgage would be executed by the mortgagor, the third party has no legal title to the property and no charge to enforce within the meaning of Art. 132. He is only entitled to a declaration of his right to get a mortgage. His suit is governed by Art. 120. 60 Ind. Cas. 903 = 45 Bom. 597 = 23 Bom L.R. 84 = A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 182.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Application to withdraw sale proceeds refused.

No question of limitation arises when after the application to withdraw the surplus sale proceeds has been refused a declaratory suit is brought. 47 Cal. 331 = 24 C.W.N. 294 = 31 C.L.J. 372 = 55 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title.

A declaratory suit in respect of title to immovable property comes under this article. 36 Ind. Cas. 292 (Cal.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of right of supervision.

A suit for declaration that a Temple Committee has a right of supervision is governed by Art. 120 and if it is time-barred, rendering of accounts cannot be asked for. 4 L.W. 186 = 31 M.L.J. 857 = 35 Ind. Cas. 646.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Consequential relief.

Art. 120 applies to suits for declaratory relief but not to suits for declaration of title in which consequential reliefs are also joined. Where the land is in the possession of the plaintiff, time does not begin to run against him under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, when an adverse entry is made against him in the Record of Rights but only when an actual claim is made by the defendant upon the strength of the entry. 23 C.L.J. 561 = 34 Ind. Cas. 702.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Suit for—Dispossession—What amounts to.

A proprietor who is prevented from collecting rent on account of a rival proprietor invoking the aid of a court of justice is as effectually dispossessed as if driven by force and Art. 120 of the Limitation Act has no application to such a case. 26 Ind. Cas. 368 (Cal.).

——Art. 120—Suit to have Municipal election declared void and contrary to law.

Where an election which ought to have been held under the rules framed in 1910 under the Act of 1890, was not so held, the special provision as to limitation made in those rules for a declaratory suit is inapplicable to a suit for a declaration that the election so held was void. Such a suit is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act. 35 All. 308 = 11 A.L.J. 349 = 20 Ind. Cas. 490.

——Arts. 120, 142 and 144—Declaration of title and possession—Attachment of property under S. 146, Cr.P. Code—Delivery of symbolical possession to defendant.

Property was attached under S. 146, Cr.P. Code on 7-3-1899. It remained under attachment till 26-2-1903, when the defendant No. 18 applied to the Magistrate to be put in possession as purchaser in execution of a decree against the defendant No. 1 the opponent of the plaintiff in the possession proceedings. Thereupon the Magistrate put him in possession. The plaintiff brought this suit for possession and for declaration of title on 28-2-1906 : Held, that Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, 1877, was not applicable to the suit and it was not barred although brought more than six years after the date of attachment. It was governed by Art. 142 or 144 of the Limitation Act. 16 C.W.N. 1073 = 16 Ind. Cas. 620.

—Art. 120—Applicability—Relief as to title auxiliary.

Where a claim for a declaration is merely auxiliary to the claim for some other relief and where the declaration appears necessary in order to give the plaintiff suitable and adequate relief upon his main claim the suit will be governed as regards limitation, merely by the article of the Limitation Act applicable in respect of the main relief claimed and not by Art. 120. 15 Ind. Cas. 545 (All.).

—Arts. 120 and 144—Declaration of title and possession.

Art. 144 applies to a case where the transferee of a portion of joint family property, from one of the coparceners, is in possession of it. Arts. 91 and 120 do not apply. 7 A.L.J. 783 = 6 Ind. Cas. 841.

—Art. 120—Declaration of title—Plaintiff in possession.

Where an application to register the applicant's name was refused but the applicant, was admittedly in possession, a suit by him for a declaration of title to the property is governed by Art. 120 of the Second Schedule to the Act. 1 Ind. Cas. 810 (Cal.).

——Arts. 120 and 131—Right to receive Tasdik-Declaration, suit for—Limitation.

A suit for a declaration that the plaintiff as Dharmakarta of a certain religious institution is entitled to receive direct from Government a certain Tasdik amount payable annually is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 131. Where the right to sue for such declaration accrued to the plaintiff more than 6 years before suit, he will be only entitled to a declaratory decree for that portion of the amount which appertains to the six years prior to suit. The adjudication of plaintiff's right will, however, be sufficient for the Government to act upon even in regard to the other years. (1903) 13 M.L.J. 267.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration. See 4 C.L.J. 568= 11 C.W.N. 186.

11. (b). Declaratory suit—Cause of action and starting point of limitation.

——Art. 120—Collection by zamindar of rent on pre-settlement inam land not liable to pay rent—Suit for declaration that inamdar was entitled to enjoy land free of rent—Cause of action.

The collection by a Zamindar of rent from an inamdar (entitled to enjoy the land free of rent) however long continued will be wrongful and every time the Zamindar demanded rent which was not legally payable by the inamdar, the demand gave rise to a fresh cause of action to the inamdar. (1948) 2 M.L.J. 631 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 542.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Cause of action—Mere denial or hostile assertion—Effect—Right of plaintiff to wait till real and effective infringement.

There can be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe the right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. Mere denials and hostile assertions short of infringement or ouster (e.g., in the case of a holder of a village office, ejectment from the lands held by him), though they may each give a cause of action, would not force the plaintiff to bring the suit in the sense that failure to file the suit then would entail a bar of the remedy. So long as the substantive right itself is not lost, each successive denial will furnish a cause of action for a declaration, but the party is not bound, on peril of losing his remedy, to take every denial or infringement seriously and to rush to Court. He is at liberty to wait till the real and effective interference and then file his suit basing his cause of action on that interference. I.L.R. (1948) Cut. 540.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Cause of action—Fresh invasion of title.

A fresh invasion of title would constitute a new cause of action from which limitation would commence to run for a suit for a declaration of title by a person in possession of the property. 230 Ind. Cas. 451 = A.I.R. 1947 Pesh. 15.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of nullity of marriage—Right to sue—When accrues.

A suit for a declaration that a marriage between a Hindu having a living Hindu wife and a Jewess domiciled in England, contracted under French law in France is null and void is governed by Art. 120. The right to sue accrues on the date of the marriage or at all events when the defendant claimed his marital rights. 49 C.W.N. 570 = A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 484.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that property was incorrectly described in document and that plaintiff acquired title under the same—Limitation—Starting point.

The plaintiff purchased certain properties which had been mortgaged to him and subsequently instituted a suit for declaration of his title to the properties purchased by him which was decreed. Thereafter the plaintiff sued for a declaration that the properties which were the subject-matter of the aforesaid transaction including the decree in the title suit were those as described in the plaint and that their description in the mortgage deed, the sale-deed and the plaint and the decree in the title suit was not correct and that plaintiff acquired title to it by the sale deed and the decree in the title suit. It was found that there was no mistake or misapprehension in the minds of either party as to the identity of the property which was to form the subject-matter of the transaction. The language used in describing in the property in the several instruments was plain but the description was somewhat unmeaning :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and the right to sue accrued when the plaintiff became aware of the mistake. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 460 = 76 C.L.J. 183 = 209 Ind. Cas. 71.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Accrual of right to sue—Knowledge of plaintiff—If material.

Unless the plaintiff knew that there was any infringement of his right, it cannot be said that any right to sue accured to him. Consequently, it cannot be said that limitation for a suit for declaration of right began to run when the right to sue accrued whether the plaintiff had knowledge of it or not. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 374 = 1942 O.W.N. 225 = 17 Luck. 805 = 199 Ind. Cas. 776.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of ownership.

After the introduction of the British rule, various surveys were made of the Amod taluqa in Broach. But, in all of them, in Thakor's lands, which consisted of contiguous blocks of lands in 22 villages in the District were kept intact and the Thakor was admitted to be the sole owner and full proprietor of the whole area of the lands in his possession subject only to the payment of the jama and the peshkush. At no time was it suggested that the roads, tanks and other waste lands in these areas belonged to the Government and the Thakor's proprietary rights over them were not disputed. After the passing of the Gujarat Taluqdars' Act In 1888, a regular detailed survey of all the lands of the Thakor's estate was made and concluded in about 1914. Sometime after that, the revenue authorities took steps to cancel the entries in the survey records relating to waste areas in his estate. The Thakor made several representations to the Government, which appointed a committee and finally decided by a Government resolution of the revenue department dated August 25, 1926, that Government did not admit the Thakor's claim to the proprietary rights over the roads and tanks in his estate. The Thakor subsequently brought a suit in 1927, for a declaration that he was the full and absolute proprietor of all the roads, tanks and other waste and unoccupied areas within the limits of his estate :

Held, that the cause of action for the suit by Thakor for declaration of his ownership in roads and tanks arose on the date of the Government resolution of 1926, and the suit, therefore, filed in 1927, was in time. 43 Bom. L.R. 167 = A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 161 = I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 226 = 195 Ind. Cas. 640.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of title—Cause of action, when arises.

The plaintiff filed a suit for a declaration of his title to certain property which was in his possession. The cause of action which was alleged in the plaint was nothing more than an assertion that the defendant was intending to transfer the property and that he had declined to admit the plaintiff's title :

Held, that it could not be said that this was an invasion of the plaintiffs' right or even that it amounted to a clear and unequivocal threat to invade that right. In the circumstances there was no valid cause of action for the suit. A.I.R. 1940 All. 424 = (1940) A.L.J. 459 =1940 A.W.R. 381 = 191 Ind. Cas. 573.

——Art. 120—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit brought by some of the members of the family for declaration that waqf created by other members is invalid in law is governed by Art. 120. If the plaintiff's title has not been extinguished by adverse possession, they would be entitled to bring a suit for declaration and their suit would be in time if brought within six years of the denial of their title. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 501 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 464 = 44 C.W.N. 974 = 192 Ind. Cas. 693.

——Art. 120—Cause of action, when arises—Plaintiff in possession.

Where, in a suit for a declaration of the plaintiff's occupancy rights, the plaintiff has been found to be in possession, any denial of plaintiff's title can furnish a fresh cause of action. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 154 = 42 P.L.R. 180 = 189 Ind. Cas. 449.

——Art. 120—When a person is in possession, it is not necessary for him to bring a declaratory suit at once and each occasion on which his title is challenged furnishes a fresh cause of action. A suit filed within six years from last of such occasions, would, therefore, be well within time. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 428 = I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 180=42 P.L.R. 702=184 Ind. Cas. 703.

——Art. 120—Article 120 gives a period of six years from the date when the right to sue accrues and not from the date on which there is a final refusal to recognise the right. (1939) M.W.N. 298 = (1939) 1 M.L.J. 476 = 49 M.L.W. 595 = A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 570 = 186 Ind. Cas. 343.

——Art. 120—Order of withdrawal of suit—Cause of action, when arises.

Where the plaintiff, in a suit, prays that an order of withdrawal of the suit passed in a suit be declared void and the plaintiff be entitled to prosecute that suit, the cause of action arises on the date of withdrawal of the suit from which date the plaintiff would get six years under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 874 = 67 C.L.J. 320 = 182 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 120—Successive attacks at intervals, on title—Right to sue, when accrues.

A fresh attack on title or invasion of right gives rise to a new right to use for declaration. If there be successive attacks at intervals time would run from each of these attacks and if the last attack which is made the basis of the suit be within six years of the suit the suit will be in time. When the plaintiff remains in possession though frequent successive threats and attacks on his title are made by the defendant his title is not extinguished and so long as his title subsists he has the right to sue for declaration and his suit would be considered to be within time if he makes a threat or attack made within six years, the foundation of his suit. 43 C.W.N. 57 = A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 804 = 69 C.L.J. 51 = I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 349 = 180 Ind. Cas. 278.

——Art. 120—Successive denials of title.

There is nothing in law which says that the moment a person's right is denied, he is bound at his peril to bring a suit for declaration. It would be most unreasonable to hold that a bare repudiation of a person's title, without even an overt act, would make it incumbent on him to bring a declaratory suit. A party surely has a right to elect as to when he may bring a suit for vindicating his right, when there are several or successive denials. If a person's right is called in question, he may ignore that particular attack or challenge ; but that does not mean that a fresh attack does not give rise to fresh cause of action. There may be an ineffectual threat, a brutum fulmen. True, a mere continuation of a prior cause of action does not give rise to a fresh right—for instance, where property is attached, the procuring of the attachment is the wrongful denial and the cause of action arises when the attachment is effected ; in such a case, it is wrong to hold that there has been a "continuing wrong" so as to give a fresh starting point during the whole period the attachment subsists. But from this it does not follow that an owner can never ignore an attack against his title, however casual or trivial, without his right to sue being imperilled in respect of a subsequent invasion. It is for the plaintiff to decide at his option on which act he chooses to found his cause of action, and when he does so, it is with reference to the particular infringement he alleges, that the limitation should be reckoned. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 193 = (1938) M.W.N. 244 = 47 L.W. 438 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 434 = 181 Ind. Cas. 688.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Partition proceedings—Fresh cause of action.

Proceedings for partition of shamilat land of certain village started in 1922. In that year a mutation was entered to the effect that the partition should be in accordance with the land revenue but this mutation was rejected by the revenue authorities in May 1923. Thereafter the mode of partition was sanctioned in accordance with areas of khewat holdings, in September 1923, but the proceedings then dragged on and the final partition order was not made till July 1932. The Revenue Officer did not refer either party under the provisions of S. 117, Land Revenue Act to the Civil Courts for the decision of the question of title. The plaintiff who was all along in possession, brought a suit within six years from the final order of July 1932, for a declaration that the partition should have been made according to the revenue assessed on the holdings :

Held, that the possession of the plaintff was threatened or disturbed by the final order of 1932 and this order, therefore, gave him a fresh cause of action. The suit was, therefore, in time. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 318 = 182 Ind. Cas. 310.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Partition—Cause of action.

When a co-sharer in a land shown in Revenue records as being joint for many years past, applied for partition and the plaintiff claiming the land as his sole property was referred to a Civil Court for declaration of his title, the suit is not time-barred as the cause of action arose only when the defendant applied for partition. 163 P.L.R. 1914 = 99 P.W.R. 1914 = 23 Ind. Cas. 458.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit.

Limitation for a suit for a declaration that a pre-decree compromise is binding on the decree-holder does not start from the time of dismissal of judgment-debtor's application in execution proceedings under O. 21, R. 2, for recording satisfaction on the basis of the pre-decree compromise. It starts from the date of the decree-holder's application for execution of the decree, since the judgment-debtor cannot be said to have any cause of action until the repudiation of the compromise by the decree-holder by applying for execution of his decree. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 537 = 39 P.L.R. 29 = I.L.R. (1937) Lah. 209 = 171 Ind. Cas. 189.

——Art. 120—Execution against property of minors—Their objection successful—Right to sue, when accrues.

Decree on a pro-note by guardian—Objection in execution by minors successful—Declaratory suit for right to execute decree against property of minors—Suit more than 6 years after the eldest minor attained majority—Right to sue accrues when minor defendants take steps to release their property from plaintiff's execution and not when the eldest attained majority. 1936 M.W.N. 560.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Right to sue—When accrues.

If a plaintiff is in possession or enjoyment of the property in suit, he is not obliged to sue for a declaration of title on the first or on each succeeding denial of his title by the defendant ; he may look upon such denials with complacency or at his option may institute a suit to falsify the assertions of the other side. But when his rights are actually jeopardised by the action or assertion of the defendant, he must take proceedings within six years from the date of such action or assertion. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 827 = 16 L. 659 = 37 P.L.R. 846 = 157 Ind Cas. 75.

——Art. 120—When a suit is for declaration and injunction, the period of limitation is six years from the date of the invasion of the plaintiff's right. 1 B.R. 570 = A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 33 = 13 Pat. 517 = 156 Ind. Cas. 136.

——Art. 120—Fresh cause of action.

A fresh cause of action may arise to the plaintiff and he may bring a suit even though a prior cause of action had arisen to him beyond the period of six years limitation laid down by Art. 120, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1934 All. 539 = 18 R.D. 349 = 150 Ind. Cas. 814.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Cause of action.

Where an owner is in possession property, he acquires a cause of action on each occasion on which his rights are denied.

In 1917, the plaintiff applied for correction of khewat by entry of his name in the defendant's place. The application was dismissed. In 1926 he again applied for correction of khewat. The application was again refused. He then filed a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that he was the owner of the property in 1928 within six years from 1926 but beyond six years from the denial in 1917.

Held, that the suit was within time under Art. 120, as the plaintiff had a cause of action on denial of his rights in 1926. 17 R.D. 846 = A.I.R. 1933 All. 663 = 145 Ind. Cas. 728.

——Art. 120—Cause of action—When accrues.

Under Art. 120, the right to sue accrues only when the defendant infringes or at least has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in suit.

Although a suit for declaration of title to certain lands may be barred under Art. 120, the bar affects only the remedy or relief by way of a declaration and does not extinguish the right and title of the true owner to the property. 35 Bom. L.R. 440 = A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 276 = 145 Ind. Cas. 190.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Denial of title—Cause of action—When accrues.

Denial of title does not necessarily mean that the plaintiff must bring his declaratory suit from the time of his first denial of title, in cases where the plaintiff is in possession of the property ; where the plaintiff is not in possession of the property nor is the defendant in possession of the property, the same principle applies. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 53 = 145 Ind. Cas. 241.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Right to sue—When accrues.

Where, within twelve years of the death of a widow a person obtains possession of the property, his right to sue for a declaration arises only when the defendant applies under O. 21, R. 100 to be restored to possession inasmuch as there can be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit, and further, its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. 14 P.L.T. 258 = A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 250 = 12 Pat. 727 = 149 Ind. Cas. 809.

——Art. 120—The right of a zemindar to sue for a declaration that the defendants are not entitled to mineral rights in a particular village and for an injunction restraining them from working coal accrues from the date when the zemindar's right in that village was first invaded. The fact that the defendants were in possession of other villages also and had begun to work coal in those villages more than six years before the suit is immaterial. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 89 = 53 C.L.J. 333=35 C.W.N. 521 = (1931) M.W.N. 435 = 33 L.W. 707 = 33 Bom. L.R. 885 = 61 M.L.J. 9 = 58 C. 1187 = 58 I.A. 125 = 131 Ind. Cas. 753 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Cause of action.

All occupancy rights sold to landlords–N still recorded as occupancy tenant through mistake—Application by landlords to correct records rejected—Later on some landlord recorded as occupancy tenants applying for partition which was ordered—N and other landlords being sued for declaration that all occupancy rights were extinguished—Cause of action held to have accrued on rejection of the first application but that being a fresh invasion of rights when partition was ordered limitation began to run from the latter date. 122 Ind. Cas. 225 = 11 L.L.J. 530 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 284.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Plaintiff in possession—Cause of action.

If a plaintiff is in possession or enjoyment of the property in suit he is not obliged to sue for a declaration of title on the first or each succeeding denial of his title by the defendant. He may look upon each denial with complacency or at his option may institute a suit to falsify the assertions of the other side. But when he finds that his rights are being actually jeopardized by the action or assertion of the defendant, then he must take proceedings within six years from the date of such actions or assertions. 119 Ind. Cas. 258 = 9 Lah. 428 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 516.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of title to land—Limitation—Denial of title in the written statement—If gives fresh cause of action.

A suit for declaration must be brought within six years of the cause of action unless there has been a fresh invasion of the plaintiff's right giving him a fresh cause of action. The fact that in the written statement the defendant denies the title of the plaintiff does not give rise to a fresh cause of action. 115 Ind. Cas. 629 (All.).

——Art. 120—Mortgage of temple property—Declaratory suit—Allegation of fraud—Starting point.

Where, in a suit for declaration that a mortgage of temple property executed by the defendant representing the property to be his was not binding on the plaintiff, who represented the worshippers of a temple, the plaint alleged a breach of trust which consisted in the defendant dealing with properties, as his own, which really belonged to the temple:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and that there was an allegation of fraud and time began to run from the time the plaintiff came to know of the fraud. 112 Ind. Cas. 22 = 1928 M.W.N. 415 = 28 M.L.W. 224 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 837.

——Art. 120—Partition—Cause of action.

For a declaratory suit challenging the title of defendant co-sharer under partition, the cause of action arises for the first time, the revenue officer sanctions the mode of partition. The mere fact that the partition proceedings are held up by litigation does not mean that, when the Revenue Officer proceeded finally to carry out what he had decided to carry out there is a fresh cause of action. Nor does the rejection of a fresh application to Revenue Officer give a new cause of action. 79 P.R. 1917, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 866 (Lah.).

——Art. 120—Dispute as to the title of deceased to certain properties—Compromise between plaintiffs and defendants (adverse claimants) allotting a portion to defendants—Application in 1914 for correction of entries. Objection by defendants that the portion allotted under compromise had not been given to them—Parties referred to Civil suit—Subsequent notice of ejectment by plaintiffs infructuous—Suit for declaration in 1923 barred. 99 Ind. Cas. 988 = 27 P.L.R. 147.

——Art. 120—Denial of title—Fresh cause of action.

In a suit for declaration of title based on the defendant's denial of the same limitation runs from the date of the first denial. Subsequent denials are merely a reiteration of the earlier denial and do not amount to a fresh invasion giving rise to fresh cause of action. 91 Ind. Cas. 605 (Lah.).

——Art. 120—Notice of ejectment—Fresh invasion of title.

Defendant issued a notice of ejectment in 1912 to the plaintiff. Plaintiff brought a suit in the Revenue Court to contest the notice but was defeated. Thereupon proceedings in execution of the notice took place; but the proceedings were purely formal, and in fact the plaintiff retained physical possession of the land in suit. A further notice of ejectment was issued against him.

Held, that the fresh notice constituted a fresh invasion of his title, and therefore limitation against him for his suit for declaration of his title began to run from the the date of the fresh notice. 89 Ind. Cas. 299 = 6 Lah. 132 = 26 P.L.R. 326 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 391.

——Art. 120—Ejectment order—Starting point of limitation.

Limitation for a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is an under-proprietor runs from the ejectment order and not from decree in rent suit against, him, on the ground that he was a tenant, especially when he is in possession in spite of the decree and order. 74 Ind. Cas. 340 = 9 O.L.J. 618 = A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 27.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Setting up of title.

The suit for a declaration that defendant was a sub tenant and not a partner should be brought within 6 years from the time defendant sets up that position. 74 Ind. Cas. 195 = 9 O.L.J. 540 = A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 101.

——Art. 120—Fresh invasion of rights.

Where the defendant's denial of plaintiff's title in 1895 gave him a cause of action to sue for a declaration, but he remained in joint possession of the undivided portion of the shamilat and his enjoyment thereof was not interfered with :

Held, when fresh proceedings for partition began and the defendant again denied plaintiff's title to a share, there was a fresh invasion of the plaintiff's title which gave him a fresh cause of action.

The suit of the plaintiff therefore is not barred by limitation under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 990 = 3 Lah. 43 = 97 P.L.R. 1922 = A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 94.

——Art. 120—Overt act of interference—Starting point.

In a suit for declaration that certain lands were a graveyard it was found that portions of the land were, from time to time cultivated, that in the settlement of 1904–05 no part of the land was shown as a graveyard, a portion being entered as cultivated and the rest as waste. In 1915 there was an active interference when certain masons who entred upon the land in order to repair the old tombs were obstructed.

Held, that the suit was in time, being brought within 6 years after 1915. The plaintiffs might very well have disregarded the fact that parts of the land were cultivated so long as their rights were not actively interfered with. The obstruction of repairs to the tomb was an overt act which interfered with the plaintiff's right of user. Therefore time did not begin to run against the plaintiffs until 1915. 65 Ind. Cas 647 = 4 U.P.R. Lah. 46.

——Art. 120—Where two separate and independent attacks are made upon the title of a person who is in possession of the property, time for a suit by the latter for declaration of his title runs from the subsequent attack on his title. 36 All. 492, Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 695 = 19 A.L.J. 23 = A.I.R. 1921 All. 40.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Wrongful interference with mines.

A fresh cause of action for a declaration that the mineral rights in certain lands are vested in the plaintiff arises whether any particular portion of minerals is removed. 5 Pat. L.J. 273 = (1920) Pat. 146=1 Pat. L.T. 360 = 56 Ind. Cas. 184.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Surplus sale proceeds—Assignee under the Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act—Starting point.

If S. 120 applied in such suits, time would begin to run when his right to surplus sale proceeds is denied. 24 C.W.N. 294 = 55 Ind. Cas. 639 = 31 C.L.J. 372 = 47 Cal. 331.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that defendant is not son of A—Limitation.

A suit to obtain a declaration that a person set up as the son and heir of a deceased is not the rightful heir falls under Art. 120 of the Limitaiton Act and the period begins to run from the time when to the knowledge of the plaintiff the title of son and heir to the deceased is set up. 54 Ind. Cas. 300 (Nag.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Assertion of hostile title.

Where a person is in possession of property it is not obligatory upon him to file a suit for a declaration of his title unless the denial of his title by the opposite party has the effect of disturbing the possession or doing him other injury not capable of being remedied, otherwise than by a suit for a declaration. The mere fact that a revenue court refused to partition a joint khewat till the shares of the contending parties were determined by the Civil Court, does not necessarily vest the opposite party with an adverse title if the possession of the person against whom the order is passed, remains undisturbed. 53 Ind. Cas. 1005 (Oudh).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

In a suit for declaration that the property mortgaged to defendant is plaintiff's property and the mortgagor had no right to it, the fact of the mortgage having been made did not affect the plaintiff so long as no effort was made to enforce the mortgage against the property. The cause of action accrued to the plaintiff on the date on which the defendant attempted to sell the property and the suit instituted with six years of that date was not time-barred. 17 A.L.J. 972 = 52 Ind. Cas. 646.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Plaintiff in possession—Successive denials of title—Fresh cause of action.

A person in possession is entitled to pass by an invasion of his right to the property, and is not by his forbearance debarred from a future suit on a fresh assertion on the part of the defendant which amounts to a denial or repudiation of his title and gives him an independent cause of action. 43 Ind. Cas. 175 (All.)

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Invasion of a right.

Every fresh invasion of a person's right to his property, not being a mere reiteration of a former denial of title, gives him a fresh cause of action. 79 P.R. 1917= 140 P.W.R. 1917 = 42 Ind. Cas. 346.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

A notice of ejectment, issued by the plaintiff against the defendant was cancelled by the Revenue Court. The plaintiff unsuccessfully appealed to the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue. After the order of the Board of Revenue, he filed a declaratory suit. Defendants contended that the suit was barred by limitation alleging that time commenced from the date of the Government order and not from date of order of the Board of Revenue. Held, that the defendant's plea was not valid and that so long as it is open to a person against whom an adverse order had been passed to get it set aside on appeal, and he is taking the necessary steps towards it, he cannot be driven to bring a regular suit for a declaration of his rights. The right to sue accrues only after the adverse order is made final. 4 O.L.J. 12 = 20 O.C. 126 = 39 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Suit against pre-emptor—Vendor's widow—Cause of action.

K obtained a pre-emption decree against G and got possession when the widow's name was substituted for G's, in the village records. The tenants of the land who had obtained mortgage with possession under K sued for and got a delaration of their title as mortgagors but when the plaintiff who claimed through K failed to get a mutation of names, he brought a suit for a declaration of his proprietary right 3 years after the death of G but more than 6 years after the date of K's obtaining possession. Held, the suit was not barred by the six years' rule of limitation. 35 Ind. Cas. 241 (All.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Knowledge of some of the members of a community.

The cause of action for a declaratory suit based on a denial of title arises only on the knowledge of such denial. 1 L.W. 134, foll. The knowledge of some only of the community does not affect the right of the others. 29 M.L.J. 574 = 18 M.L.T. 327 = (1915) M.W.N. 701 = 2 L.W. 813 = 30 Ind. Cas. 669.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Limitation.

A suit for declaration of a right to a property cannot be barred so long as the right is a subsisting one. A suit for a declaration that a lease by a Lambardar is invalid against the plaintiff can be brought within 12 years of the execution thereof. 20 C. 906; 8 O.C. 303, foll. 20 Ind. Cas. 147 (Oudh).

——Arts. 120 and 91—Suit for declaration that defendant is benamidar for plaintiff.

A suit for a declaration that defendant's name as lessee in the lease is only benami for the plaintiff is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 91. The cause o action arises when the plaintiff's position as lessee is challenged by the defendant. 35 All. 149 = 11 A.L.J. 106 = 18 Ind. Cas. 698.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title and restitution, suit for—Wrong attachment and sale—Time when begins to run.

A suit by a person whose property, had been wrongfully attached and sold, for a declaration that the attachment is illegal and for restitution is governed by Art. 120, time commencing from the date of sale and not from the date of attachment as only the sale passes title to the purchases and gives a fresh cause of action apart from attachment. 36 Mad. 383 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 531 = 10 M.L.T. 504 = 22 M.L.J. 108 = 13 Ind. Cas. 96.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Devaswam's property—Cause of action.

A suit for declaration of right to Devaswam's property after 6 years from grant of a patta is barred. 8 M.L.T. 249 = (1910) M.W.N. 594 = 8 Ind. Cas. 357.

——Art. 120—Cause of action—Fresh invasion of right—Scope.

Though a person allows to pass by an invasion of a right to property, he is not debarred from a future suit for a future invasion. 88 P.W.R. 1910 = 122 P.L.R. 1910 = 7 Ind. Cas. 528.

—Arts. 120, 91, 92 and 93—Suit to declare will forgery.

A suit to declare an unregistered will as forged and beyond the power of the testator to make it is governed by Art. 120 and the period of six years is not calculated from the date the will purports to bear but from the time the plaintiff comes to know of the existence of the will. 82 P.L.R. 1909 = 88 P.W.R. 1909 = 4 Ind. Cas. 923.

11 (c). Declaratory suit : Entry in Revenue Records.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Applicability—Suit for declaration of title and confirmation of possession—Adverse entry in Record of Rights. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 144 AND 120. A.I.R. 1949 Assam 75.

——Art. 120—Correction of entry in jamabandi—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit by the plaintiff for correction of an entry in the jamabandi paper is governed by Art. 120, Limitation Act. The cause of action accrues when the entry is made in the jamabandi for the first time. The opposition by the opposite party to an attempt by the plaintiff to change the entry in his favour does not amount to a fresh invasion of the plaintiffs' right so as to give the plaintiff a new cause of action from the date when his attempt to enter a correction in the jamabandi failed. There must be some attempt on the part of the opposite party to oust the plaintiff in possession in order to give the plaintiff a fresh cause of action.

Nor does the preparation of a new jamabandi give the plaintiff a fresh cause of action. A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 83 = 210 Ind. Cas. 385.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of right—Fresh cause of action arises on each invasion of right.

A suit for a declaration of right cannot be held to be time-barred so long as the plaintiff has a subsisting title to the property. In such a case, each invasion of right gives a fresh cause of action, and the mere act of forbearance of a previous action on the part of a person in possession cannot debar him from instituting a suit later on, when a fresh invasion is made against his title which gives him an independent cause of action. The mere making of an adverse entry in the village records cannot be said to have actually disturbed the plaintiff's title if he still continued to be in possession.

An entry adverse to the plaintiff was made in 1929 in the khewat when it was prepared. The plaintiff applied for its correction in 1935, when he came to know of it. His application was rejected and he then brought a suit for a declaration of his right within six years from the date of the rejection of his application :

Held, that even if the adverse entry made in 1929 gave the plaintiff a cause of action, he got a fresh cause of action in 1935, when his application for correction was rejected and the suit was not, therefore, barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 374 = 1942 O.W.N. 225 = 17 Luck. 805 = 199 Ind. Cas. 776.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that plaintiff is under-proprietor and not occupancy-tenant.

Where the plaintiff brought a suit for declaration that he was under-proprietor and not occupancy-tenant and it was found that he had long been recorded as occupancy-tenant and was ejected subsequently in execution of a decree for arrears of rent :

Held, that so long as the entry in the revenue records did not injure the plaintiff, he need not have come to Court at all and therefore, his suit instituted within six years of the injury which the entry, i.e., the order of ejectment, created and which was his cause of action was not out of time. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 346 = 1942 O.W.N. 217 = 1942 A.W.R. 74 and 166 = 18 Luck. 38 = 200 Ind. Cas. 45.

——Art. 120—Previous to the plaintiff's suit for declaration of title, the defendant had filed a suit for profits on the basis of a previous mutation entry in his favour. The filing of this suit, according to the plaintiffs, constituted his cause of action for bringing his suit for a declaration that he was the owner in possession of the property in dispute and the defendant had no right therein. It was found that the mutation entry on the basis of which the defendant had filed her suit for profits was made only for her consolation with the consent of the plaintiff and that in spite of this entry in her favour, the plaintiff continued in possession :

Held, that the plaintiff nowhere alleged in the plaint that his cause of action was the alleged wrong entry of mutation in favour of the defendant. Having regard to the finding that the mutation entry was made for consolation only, the entry was certainly not a wrong entry and did not occasion any injury to the plaintiff so as to furnish him with any cause of action for a suit for declaration. The plaintiff was admittedly in possession of the property in dispute all along in spite of the mutation entry in the name of the defendant. No cloud was cast upon the plaintiff's title by the said entry. The plaintiff was not bound to institute the suit for declaration on the basis of the alleged wrong entry. The plaintiff was not disturbed by the mutation entry at all and it was not until the defendant actually asserted a title by means of filing a suit for profits that it became obligatory upon him to institute the present suit for declaration. Hence the limitation for the suit ran from the date of the defendant's suit for profits and not from the date of the mutation order in favour of the defendant. 1942 O.W.N. 744 = 205 Ind. Cas. 520.

——Art. 120—Rent decree gives fresh cause of action.

So long as nobody interferes with a man's possession and enjoyment of his share in a property, the fact that his share is inaccurately recorded in the revenue papers does not affect his title to it. Although the settlement entry gives plaintiffs a cause of action the decree for rent gives them a fresh cause of action, and a suit brought within six years of the decree is within time. When plaintiff has got a right, every invasion of that right gives him a fresh casue of action. A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 283 = 1940 O.W.N. 327 = 1940 R.D. 101 = 15 Luck. 487 = 187 Ind. Cas. 155.

——Art. 120—Entry in Record of Rights, whether affects tenure—Fresh right to sue, if accrues to purchaser from date of purchase.

The Record of Rights affects not merely the rights of the tenure-holder for the time being but the tenure itself. In other words, whoever would take the tenure, by whatever process it may be, must hold it subject to the statutory limitations imposed by the Record of Rights. The purchaser of the tenure takes it subject to the limitation imposed by the Record of Rights, and no fresh right accrues to him on the date of the purchase to sue for a declaration that the Record of Rights is wrong. The suit is barred under Art. 120. 20 P.L.T. 303 = 5 B.R. 641 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 548 = 181 Ind. Cas. 651.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that defendant does not hold jote in mukarrari right and rent is liable to enhancement—Limitation—Starting point.

Where an entry in the Record of Rights shows that the defendant is holding a mukarrari right on a fixed rent by virtue of a certain deed a suit for declaration that the defendant does not hold the jote in mukarrari right and that the rent of the jote is liable to enhancement, is a suit for declaration that the entry in the Record of Rights is wrong and the limitation applicable to such a suit is one under Art. 120, and not Art. 131 and the time begins to run from the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights. 20 P.L.T. 303 = 5 B.R. 641 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 548 = 181 Ind. Cas. 651.

——Arts. 120 and 14—Suit for declaration in terms of lease—Cause of action.

Defendant granted an oral lease to the plaintiff for certain agricultural property for 33 years with the proviso regarding its cancellation under certain conditions at the expiry of 20 years. A mutation was entered thereon and attested on April 8, 1929, but the mutation showed the lease as simply being one for 20 years. This was done on the ground that the officer attesting the mutation considered the lease to be contrary to the provisions of the Land Alienation Act. In 1932, the plaintiffs applied for a correction of mutation giving the correct terms of the lease. This application was rejected and its rejection was eventually confirmed by the Revenue Commissioner on May 26, 1933. The plaintiffs then instituted a suit on February 22, 1936, claiming a declaration in the terms of the original lease. It was contended by the plaintiff that Art. 14 applied :

Held, that the article applicable was Art. 120, and the cause of action arose on the date of the mutation of 1929, and not from the subsequent proceedings instituted by the plaintiffs before the Revenue Authorities. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 94 = 171 Ind. Cas. 267.

——Art. 120—Suit for correction of Record of Rights and declaration comes under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 745 = 42 C.W.N. 96 = 173 Ind. Cas. 945.

——Art. 120—Claim not based on any fresh invasion of right—Limitation for suit.

Where the plaintiff's claim is based on the wrong entry in the Settlement Court, and not on any fresh invasion of his rights made subsequently and the only fresh thing relied on since the making of the settlement entry is the fact of the plaintiff having become a purchaser which cannot affect the running of limitation against him, the suit is governed by Art. 120. 1937 O.W.N. 207 = 1937 R.D. 105 (2) = A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 291 = 13 Luck. 143 = 166 Ind. Cas. 774.

——Art. 120—Fresh invasion of right.

A suit for a declaration of right cannot be held to be time-barred so long as the plaintiff has a subsisting title to the property. In such a case each invasion of right gives a fresh cause of action. The mere fact of forbearance on a previous occasion on the part of a person in possession cannot debar him from instituting a suit later on when a fresh invasion is made against his title which gives him an independent cause of action. The mere making of an adverse entry in the village records cannot be said to have actually disturbed the plaintiff's title if he still continued to be in possession. 1936 O.W.N. 784 = A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 387 = 1936 R.D. 416 = 12 Luck. 371 = 164 Ind. Cas. 118.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration and correction of revenue entries—Limitation—Starting point.

A declaratory suit in respect of an entry made in Record of Rights filed under S. 42, Specific Relief Act read with S. 45, Punjab Land Revenue Act is governed by Art. 120 In all such cases, the cause of action accrues when the plaintiff feels aggrieved and not from the date of entry. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 37 = 38 P.L.R. 748 = 165 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of title and that Settlement Record is erroneous—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for a declaration of a title and that the Settlement Record is erroneous and fraudulent, without any claim for possession is governed by Art. 120, and the time starts from the final publication of the Records of Rights. 2 B.R. 327 = A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 129 = 161 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Art. 120—Wrong entry in Record of Rights—Starting point of limitation.

Where the plaintiffs filed a suit for declaration of their exclusive title to a property and also prayed for a declaration that the revisional survey entries with regard to that property were wrong and it was found that the plaintiffs were in exclusive possession of the property, but the suit was not filed within six years of the correction of the survey Record of Rights :

Held, that the suit was not for a correction of the Record of Rights, but for a declaration that the plaintiffs have got an exclusive title in respect of the property and was not barred by time. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 312 = 2 B.R. 594 = 163 Ind. Cas. 408 (1).

——Art. 120—Cloud cast upon plaintiff's title by dismissal of application for correction of jamabandi—Suit for declaration—Limitation.

The plaintiff alleged that he had been all along in possession of the land in suit but that owing to his application for correction of jamabandi having been dismissed, a cloud had been cast upon his title which he sought to remove by a suit for declaration of his title :

Held, that limitation for the suit began from the date of the order of the Revenue Court. 11 O.W.N. 1297 = 18 R.D. 560 = A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 181 = 153 Ind. Cas. 965.

——Art. 120—Gift by father of family property—Mutation in favour of donee—Donee selling gifted portion—Vendee applying for partition—Coparceners objecting—Revenue authorities directing coparceners to establish their right in Civil Court :

Held, that since there was no obligation on the coparceners to have gift set aside, they could treat the gift as nullity. But having been forced to go to Court merely as a result of partition proceeding, and the authorities having directed them to go to the Civil Court, this was a cause of action and under Art. 120, time ran from this date. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 827 = 16 L. 659 = 37 P.L.R. 846 = 157 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration relating to entry in Record of Rights—Starting point of limitation.

If a suit is not for recovery of possession of a declaration of title or that the entry in Record of Rights is wrong, but for a declaration relating to an entry in Record of Rights. Art. 120, Limitation Act, applies and time runs when the entry injures the plaintiff. 58 C.L.J. 120 = A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 192 = 150 Ind. Cas. 617.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that defendant had no connection with property of plaintiff's father—Fraud practised by defendant—Cause of action for suit, when arises.

B, the eldest son of P, disappeared at the time of the earthquake in 1905. Some time before 1911, the defendant whose resemblance to the dead B attracted P's attention took B's place in the family. P died in 1911, and his land was recorded by mutation of revenue papers as the property of B (as the defendant was called) and the plaintiffs. The defendant was also appointed under the name of B to be lambardar in succession to P. In 1915, dissensions arose in the family and the plaintiffs prosecuted the defendant alleging that he had fraudulently led them to accept him as their dead brother. He was acquitted and he left the village. In 1925, the plaintiffs instituted a suit for a declaration to the effect that the defendant was not B and had no connection with the property and family of P and that the plaintiffs alone were entitled to succeed to their father's properties :

Held, that Art. 120, applied and the suit was barred being based on the allegation of fraud practised in 1911. Even if the mutation of 1911 and the appointment of himself as lambardar were the result of fraudulent representations by the defendant, the fraud admittedly became known to the plaintiffs in 1915, and a suit based on this cause of action was certainly barred by limitation :

Held, also, that on the evidence, there was no justification to assume abandonment by the defendant so as to give rise to a cause of action on a latter date when the plaintiffs' claim to the whole land was denied by the defendant in his replies to the Revenue Officer's interrogatories. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 574 = 148 Ind. Cas. 776.

——Art. 120—Mutation in defendants' names with plaintiff's consent—Assertion of title—Suit for declaration—Limitation, when begins to run.

Where mutation entries in favour of certain persons were alleged to have been made with plaintiff's consent and the plaintiff had no grievance against the defendants until they asserted title on that basis, and on this wrong assertion as cause of action plaintiff sued for declaration :

Held, that limitation for the suit would begin to run from the date of the assertion of title by the defendants. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 283 = 10 O.W.N. 366 = 144 Ind. Cas. 316.

——Art. 120—Suit for correction of entry—Limitation.

A suit for correction of an entry in the Record of Rights when instituted within six years of the publication of the Record of Rights, must be held to be in time. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 698 = 148 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Art. 120—Adverse entry—Suit for declaration by co-sharer in possession—Starting point of limitation.

A suit for declaration by a person in possession that he is the owner of the land and that the defendant who is also shown as a co-sharer in the revenue records has no right in it is not barred by time if brought within 6 years from an attempt to oust him from possession, even though it be more than six years from the date of the entry in the revenue records in favour of the defendant. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 81 = 32 P.L.R. 731 = 135 Ind. Cas. 501.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Publication of Record of Rights.

Held, that in respect of a suit filed under S. 111-B (1) (d) of the B.T. Act time begins to run from the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights and not from the date of the final publication of the certificate. 34 C.W.N. 621 = 130 Ind. Cas. 225 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 767.

——Art 120—Entry in Record of Rights—Suit to declare it erroneous—B.T. Act, S. 104-H.

A suit for a declaration that the entry in Record of Rights that a person is tenure-holder is erroneous and that he should be declared a raiyat is within the proviso to S. 111-A of the Bengal Tenancy Act and the period of limitation applicable to such suits is that provided by Art. 120 and not by S. 104-H. 15 C.W.N. 896, Appr. 120 Ind. Cas. 56 = 30 M.L.W. 600 = 56 I.A. 388 = 51 C.L.J. 1= 34 C.W.N. 1 = 32 Bom. L.R. 114 = A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 286 = 57 M.L.J. 849 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Entry in Khewat.

A mere entry of names in the khewat does not debar the person, against whom the entry is made, for all time to come from suing for a declaration, if once six years are allowed to expire. Any fresh act which can amount to a fresh invasion of the owner's right or a fresh attempt to cast a cloud on his title would create a new cause of action in his favour, and his suit for declaration cannot be dismissed on the mere ground that the cause of action first accrued more than six years ago when an adverse entry was made against him. 121 Ind. Cas. 209 = 1929 A.L.J. 794 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 529.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Landlord and tenant—Commencement of limitation.

Where the tenants brought a suit seeking for a declaration that certain lands were held by them rent free under the defendant as the defendant landlord had wrongly got these lands recorded in the Record of Rights as liable to pay rent and then fraudulently got rent assessed for them under S. 105, Ben. Ten. Act, and also for confirmation of their possession and for an injunction restraining the defendant from executing any decree for rent which he might obtain in certain rent suits which he had brought against them.

Held, that the latter two reliefs being unnecessary and premature respectively the suit was governed by Art. 120,

Held, further that as the plaintiffs did not specifically ask for the correction of any entry in the Record of Rights the time began to run against them from the date of the institution of the rent suits, by the landlord. 23 C.L.J. 561, Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 104 = 49 C.L.J. 281 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 417.

——Art. 120—Where a defendant asserted a hostile title as a permanent tenant against the plaintiff six years ago and the same was substantiated by the orders of the revenue authorities, the plaintiff's suit for declaration that defendant was only an annual tenant and not owner as alleged to have been asserted by him is governed by and as such is barred being brought more than six years from Revenue Court's order. 31 All. 9, Foll. 118 Ind. Art. 120 Cas. 62 = A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 124.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Declaratory suit—Order cancelling mutation.

In the revenue papers an entry was made against the plaintiffs, who were sharers in a shamilat, without their knowledge. But notwithstanding the entry they continued in the enjoyment of their rights. Mutation was then effected recognising the plaintiffs as full owners of the shamilat, whereupon the defendants taking, advantage of the previous adverse entry took the matter to the Financial Commissioner and succeeded in having the entry cancelled. Plaintiffs then sued for declaration of their title.

Held, that limitation for the suit will begin not from the previous adverse entry but from the time when mutation in their favour was cancelled. 119 Ind. Cas. 232 = 10 L.L.J. 546= 30 P.L.R. 48 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 379.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Knowledge of facts—Entry in records.

Per MUKERJI and ASHWORTH JJ. Where no fact has been alleged or proved which establishes that previous to the filing of the application for partition the fact had been brought to the notice of the plaintiffs that there was a wrong entry in the khewhat, and that advantage of that wrong entry was likely to be taken by the defendants, Held, that the right to sue on the alleged wrong entry in the khewat accrued to the plaintiffs on the filing of the application for partition and not earlier. 114 Ind. Cas. 177= 50 All. 559 =9 L.R.A. (Rev.) 49= 26 A.L.J. 217 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 172 (F.B.).

——Art. 120.

Where the owner is in possession of the property, it is not obligatory on him to file a suit for a declaration of his title because of an adverse entry in the khewat unless and until his title to the property is denied by the defendant, and the denial has the effect of disturbing the possession or doing him some other injury that is not capable of being remedied otherwise than by a suit for a declaration. A cause of action for such a suit accrues when his right is subsequently denied on the basis of the incorrect entry, and although such a suit is filed after the expiry of six years from the date of knowledge of the adverse entry, it is not barred if it is filed within six years from such denial. 17 A.L.J. 588 and 53 I.C. 1005, foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 172 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 597.

——Art. 120—Where on the strength of a wrong entry in the revenue papers, the defendant sued the plaintiff's tenants for rent and plaintiff brings a suit for his title to the land being declared, more than six years of the wrong entry but within six years of the defendant's instituting the suit.

Held, that the defendant's suit for rent constitutes a fresh invasion of the plaintiff's right and gives him fresh cause of action and that therefore plaintiff's declaratory suit is not barred. 98 Ind. Cas. 811 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 148.

——Art. 120—Where a plaintiff's case is that a cloud is thrown upon his title by reason of an entry in the revenue registers made at his own instance and he seeks by a declaratory suit for the removal of that cloud, limitation for such a suit runs from the date on which an entry in the revenue registers was first made. 3 O.L.J. 226, foll.

No fresh cause of action accrues if a subsequent application by the plaintiff for correction of the khewat is rejected by the Revenue Court. 31 All. 9, foll. 98 Ind. Cas. 750 = 3 O.W.N. 896 = A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 21.

—Arts. 120 and 144—Where in a suit for a declaration of title and confirmation of possession the plaintiff does not allege that his possession has been disturbed or threatened by the defendants and the cause of action was for the declaration that the entry in the Record of Rights was erroneous, Art. 120 and not Art. 144 applies. 97 Ind. Cas. 635 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 30.

——Art. 120—Denial of plaintiff's title in proceedings in the Revenue Court for correction of entries in the Record of Rights gives a fresh cause of action for a suit for a declaration of title to property, based on such entries. 10 A.L.J. 413 and 17 A.L.J. 588, foll.; 31 All. 9, Diss. from. 100 Ind. Cas. 45 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 296.

——Art. 120—In a suit for declaration that an entry in the Record of Rights is wrong, limitation runs from the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights. 97 Ind. Cas. 635 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 30.

——Art. 120—An application for partition is an act of invasion which gives a new cause of action for a suit for declaration that the defendant is not entitled to demand partition and entries in revenue records showing co-ownership of plaintiff and defendant do not affect limitation. 14 P.R. 1907 and 98 P.R. 1919, foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 732 = 8 Lah. 22 = 28 P.L.R. 490 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 119.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Fraud—Entry in records.

A suit for declaration that an entry in the Record-of-Rights that the defendants are ryots with permanent rights of occupancy is wrong is not barred by reason of the fact that the defendants had, in a previous suit more than six years of the institution of the suit for declaration, set up rights of permanent occupancy in the written statement as against the plaintiffs and to their knowledge, the cause of action based on the entry in Record-of-Rights being an independent one from the one based on such denial. 101 Ind. Cas 85=25 M.L.W. 367=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 568=52 M.L.J. 323.

——Art. 120—Where the defendant, in whose name the entries in question stand has neither paid any revenue nor received any rent, limitation for declaration of plaintiff's title and correction of revenue entries starts from date of the overt act threatening plaintiff's rights. 93 Ind. Cas. 358=27 P.L.R. 150.

——Art. 120—In a suit for declaration that a certain tenure held by defendants under plaintiffs is not permanently settled, limitation begins from the date of final publication of the Record-of-Rights and not from the date when the certificate of publication was signed. 86 Ind. Cas. 6=41 C.L.J. 31=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 518.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Cause of action.

Where the plaintiffs who are in possession bring a declaratory suit that they have a raiyati right and not under-raiyati rights, either of the events namely a decision of the dispute during the preparation of the Record-of-Rights or the final publication of the Record-of-Rights would give them a cause of action. 68 Ind. Cas. 489=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 307.

——Art. 120—Change of registry refused.

Where plaintiff's father applied in 1903 for change of Revenue registry to his name and the Settlement Officer ordered that the registry should stand as it did by asking for this identical relief in 1917, which was denied to his father in 1903, the plaintiff does not acquire a fresh cause of action against the defendants. 21 All. 9, Foll. 67 Ind. Cas. 600=15 M.L.W. 478=1922 M.W.N. 260=30 M.L.T. 266=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 194=42 M.L.J. 457.

——Art. 120—Entry in records.

The mere entry in the village papers would not of itself give the plaintiff a cause of action, and, this entry in the village papers made in the year 1901, not having been brought to the notice of the plaintiff until the month of January, 1918, when the verification of the settlement entries was going on in the District, no right to sue can on these facts be deemed to have accrued to the plaintiff in the year 1309. 66 Ind. Cas. 148=20 A.L.J. 231=A.I.R. 1922 All. 114.

——Art. 120—Order refusing mutation.

Where the Assistant Collector refused mutation on 26th November, 1912, and this order was reversed by the Collector on 3rd February, 1913, which in its turn was reversed by the Commissioner on 3rd May, 1913, and the plaintiffs thereupon brought a suit on 2nd April, 1919, for declaration of their title.

Held, that though the first denial by the defendants of plaintiffs title gave them a cause of action, the order passed by the Commissioner in the matter, which amounted to a fresh invasion of plaintiffs' right gave them a fresh cause of action. The suit being brought within six years of that date is within time. 65 Ind. Cas. 124=6 P.W.R. 1922=33 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 125.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Entry in revenue registers—Cause of action.

A man is not bound to sue for a declaration of his title merely because some casual denial of his title is made, e.g. by an entry unfavourable to him in the revenue registers which in no way effects him in the enjoyment of his rights of property. His failure to sue on the cause of action within 6 years of the accrual thereof will not bar a subsequent suit by him on a fresh cause of action. 23 O.C. 46=7 O.L.J. 74=2 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 91=55 Ind. Cas. 393.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Entry in Khewat.

Where a person continues in possession of his property in spite of a contrary entry appearing in the Khewat no question of limitation or adverse possession can arise in a suit filed by him for declaration of his title. 6 O.L.J. 523=54 Ind. Cas. 317.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—New cause of action—Limitation.

A suit for declaration of title to lands by a proprietor in possession is not barred if brought within 6 years of an attempted dispossession although the plaintiff had a right to sue the defendant who had been recorded as owner in the revenue record more than six years before suit. 98 P.R. 1919=53 Ind. Cas. 595.

——Art. 120—Entry in record-of-rights—Suit for declaration—Prayer for confirmation of possession—Limitation.

To a suit to declare an entry in the Record-of-Rights to be incorrect Art. 120 of the Lim. Act applies and time commences from the date of the final publication and not from the signing of the certificate or final publication of the Record-of-Rights. Where in a suit the plaintiff added a prayer for confirmation of possession without alleging disturbance of possession.

Held, that the suit was one for declaration of possession and Art. 120 applied to the suit. 23 C.W.N. 883=53 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Partition proceedings—Entry in settlement.

In 1887 defendants were recorded in the Settlement papers as owners and in 1914 they applied for partition.

Held, that the remaining co-sharers had a fresh cause of action in 1914 consequent on the partition, to sue for a declaration of their title and that the entry in the Settlement was erroneous. 17 A.L.J. 588=50 Ind. Cas. 767.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Omission of plaintiff's name from Settlement Records—Limitation.

Where the plaintiffs brought a suit for a declaration of title, their names having been omitted from the Settlement Records,

Held, that limitation commenced to run against the plaintiffs, not from the date of the omission of their names from the Records, but from the date when their title was challenged by the defendants. 46 Ind. Cas. 796 (Cal.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Successive wrong entries in Record-of-Rights—Fresh invasion of rights.

Held, on the facts that the scope of the suit being limited to the second Record-of-Rights the limitation under Art. 120 ran from the final publication in 1906. The previous publication of 1888-1889 did not extinguish the right of the plaintiff who continued to be in possession in spite of the adverse entry and the entry of 1906 constituted a fresh invasion of his rights. 4 Pat. L.W. 303=3 Pat. L.J. 361=(1918) P.H.C.C. 225=45 Ind. Cas. 432.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Plaintiff in possession—Cause of action—Adverse entry—Revenue papers.

A suit for declaration of title to immoveable property by persons in possession as proprietors is not barred if brought within six years from the time when the defendant last attempted to oust them from the land, although a right to sue the defendant who had been recorded as sole owner of the property in the Revenue papers for a declaration had already accrued and become barred. 83 P.L.R 1916.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Adverse entry in revenue records—Cause of action.

A declaratory suit by a plaintiff in possession of the property is not barred simply because an adverse entry in the revenue records had been made more than six years of the date of suit to the knowledge of the plaintiff. 73 P.W.R. 1918=72 P.L.R. 1918=44 Ind. Cas. 912.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Record-of-Rights—Final Publication.

Limitation for a suit for declaration that the disputed land is Zarait land, for Khas possession thereof, and for a declaration that an entry in the Record-of-Rights recording the defendants as occupancy Raiyat is incorrect, runs from the date of the final publication of the entry in the Record-of-Rights. 2 Pat. L.W. 183=42 Ind. Cas. 397.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Entry in Record-of-Rights.

Suit for a declaration that an entry in the Record-of-Rights is wrong within six years from the date on which plaintiff's title is effectively challenged is within time though more than six years have elapsed since the publication of the Record, provided plaintiff's enjoyment of the property has not been effected. 2 Pat. L.W. 22=2 Pat. L.J. 557=41 Ind. Cas. 199.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Suit for declaration that the defendants are not under proprietors.

When a Revenue Court held in a suit that the defendants are not ordinary tenants and in the next suit between the same parties held they were under—proprietors, it was held that the cause of action for a civil suit to declare that they were not under-proprietors, arose not with previous decision but with the entry of the denfendant's names as under-proprietors under the subsequent order of the Court. 23 Ind. Cas. 231 (Oudh).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Fresh cause of action—Entry in village paper.

Where a person was wrongfully entered as owner six years before suit but transferred the property as such owner within 6 years a declaratory suit by the rightful owner is not barred by limitation, as the transfer within six years previously gave a fresh cause of action to the suit. 11 A.L.J. 877=21 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Entry in Record-of-Rights—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit for declaration of title and for a declaration that the entry in the Record-of-Rights is wrong is governed by Art. 120, the starting point being the date of publication of the Record-of-Rights. 20 Ind. Cas. 262 (Cal.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Wrong entry in Revenue Record—Cause of action.

A tenant mortgaged his occupancy holding with possession in 1877. In 1880 his name was expugned from the Revenue papers and that of the mortgagee was recorded. In 1907 he applied to the Settlement Officer for correction but the application was dismissed; the tenant brought a suit for a declaration that he was the mortgagor. The suit was barred by time as the cause of action accrued in 1880. 19 Ind. Cas. 751 (All.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action—Wrong entry at Settlement.

A suit for declaration of title must be brought within 6 years of the date when the plaintiff has first notice of a wrong entry made at a settlement. 18 Ind. Cas. 463 (All.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Fresh cause of action.

In 1909 the Commissioner directed in appeal the correction of the record made at the Settlement in 1901. The order gave the plaintiff a fresh cause of action for declaration of their right. The suit being within 6 years, was within time. 10 A.L.J. 413=17 Ind. Cas. 675.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Cause of action.

In an application to the Revenue Court for partition the defendant alleged the plaintiff owned only 1/3 share. Plaintiff contended that he had 1/2 and he was referred to Civil Court. Immediately he filed a suit for declaration. The cause of action being the order of the Revenue Court, the defendant contended that the suit was barred by limitation as the Revenue Records of such long date as 1872 showed only 1/3 share to his name. The court found that the plaintiff was in possession of 1/2 share all along.

Held that the suit was within time as it was not necessary for the plaintiff before the Revenue Court's order to bring the declaratory suit. 10 Ind. Cas. 11 (Oudh).

——Art. 120—Rent suit—Continuing cause of action.

Suit for declaration that the rent payable actually is greater than that recorded in Record-of-Rights, has no continuing cause of action as the right to sue arises only once, when the right to higher rent was denied, hence such a suit brought six years after the publication of Record-of-Rights is barred. 5 Ind. Cas. 115 (Cal.).

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Every fresh invasion of right gives fresh cause of action.

Where plaintiffs were recorded as tenants in the Settlement Records, but no rent was demanded from them for a number of years and in 1907 the defendant got a decree for rent against plaintiffs; whereupon plaintiffs brought a suit for declaration that they were the proprietors of the plaint-land.

Held that the suit was within time as having been brought within 6 years from the date of the decree for rent; and that where there was a right, every invasion of that right gave a fresh cause of action. 12 O.C. 320=4 Ind. Cas. 159.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Successive denials of title—Fresh cause of action.

Where the name of the defendant is entered in Revenue papers and the plaintiff's title is denied, Article 120, Schedule II of the Limitation Act is applicable to a suit for declaration of title to property and the period begins to run from the date of the cause of action which accrues on the day the title is denied. Subsequent denial is a mere continuation of the denial of title and does not give fresh start to limitation. 31 All. 9=(1908) A.W.N. 252=5 A.L.J. 637=1 Ind. Cas. 557.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Fresh cause of action.

Where a defendant's name was originally entered in the Khewat in spite of plaintiff's objection on the 5th of May, 1899, and then the defendant instituted a suit on the 5th May, 1903, for profits and on 27th July, 1905, plaintiff brought a suit for declaration of his title it was held that the suit was not barred and a fresh cause of action arose on the Defendant's suit to obtain profits. 31 All. 10 (Note)=5 A.L.J. 638 (Note)=1 Ind. Cas. 556.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration of title—Cause of action—Limitation.

The plaintiff sued in 1904 asking for a declaration that they were entitled to certain property mentioned in the plaint. Their cause of action was that the name of the defendant had in the year 1895 been entered in the revenue papers in respect of the property in suit.

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation and the fact that the defendant had, in 1903, registered the plaintiffs in an attempt to obtain correction of the Khewat did not give the plaintiffs a fresh cause of action. 20 A. 35, Foll. 1908 A.W.N. 252=1 Ind. Cas. 557=5 A.L.J. 637=31 A. 9.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration in respect of alienation alleged to be invalid—Cause of action—Date of alienation or date of knowledge.

Quaere.—Whether the cause of action for getting a declaration in a suit under Art. 120, Limitation Act, in respect of an alienation accrues when the document is executed or whether time does not begin to run from the date of knowledge of the plaintiff of the alienation. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 447.

——Art. 120—Suit by creditor—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit by a creditor to declare the invalidity as against him of a fraudulent transfer executed but by his debtor is governed, not by Art. 91 but by Art. 120 and the right to sue accrues only when the creditor has clear and definite knowledge of the facts which constitute fraud and of its effect upon his interests. 8 O.W.N. 593=7 Luck. 131=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 333=132 Ind. Cas. 51.

——Art. 120—A suit for a declaration that a sale is fraudulent is governed by Art. 120 of the Act. 74 Ind. Cas. 164=1 Bur. L.J. 106=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 82.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit by Official Receiver for declaration that mortgage executed by insolvent was sham and nominal—Starting point of limitation—Knowledge of plaintiff—Inference from facts.

A suit filed by the Official Receiver for a declaration that the mortgage executed by the insolvent was sham and nominal is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Where in such a suit an alternative claim is made under S. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act, the latter claim will also be governed by the same article. In such cases, time begins to run from the date of the plaintiff's knowledge of the fraudulent nature of the transfer. Where the plaintiff is the Official Receiver, though he represents the body of creditors, it is his knowledge that should be taken into consideration rather than the knowledge of this or that creditor which might or might not have reached the Official Receiver. Mere knowledge of the existence of a document transferring the property of the debtor is not enough. There should be knowledge of facts which would invariably lead to definite inference that the transfer was made with an intent to defeat or delay creditors. I.L.R. (1946) Mad. 777=225 Ind. Cas. 487=59 L.W. 52=1946 M.W.N. 86=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 236=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 113.

——Art. 120—Suit challenging transfer by insolvent—Starting point of limitation.

The period of limitation for a suit by the Receiver to challenge a transaction by the insolvent is 6 years under Art. 120 from the time the insolvency proceedings started. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 546=I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 293=1938 N.L.J. 279=181 Ind.Cas. 297.

——Art. 120—Execution of mortgage decree against Hindu father—Suit by sons to declare mortgage invalid—Limitation.

It is open to a Hindu son to sue for a declaration that a mortgage executed by his father is bad as not being for legal necessity, as soon as the mortgage is executed ; but he is not bound to do so, when the mortgagee does not go into possession of the property but merely gets a document of mortgage. When the mortgagee after obtaining a decree on his mortgage, starts execution proceedings, a cause of action accures to the son ; it is only then that the joint family property is threatened by the execution proceedings launched by the mortgagee. A suit filed within 6 years of the starting of execution proceedings will be in time, though beyond 6 years of the date of alienation. 48 Bom.L.R. 594=230 Ind. Cas. 17=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 82.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Setting aside alienation—Vendee never in possession.

Where a suit was brought by certain Hindus for setting aside a sale-deed executed by their father and where the property was in the possession of the mortgagee even at the time of the institution of the suit and the vendee had never obtained possession, the suit is to be regarded as merely a declaratory suit and Art. 120 and not 126 applies for alienee did not get possession. 119 Ind. Cas. 90=1929 A.L.J. 1131=A.I.R. 1929 All. 750.

——Art. 120—Alienee never in possession.

Article 126 is based upon the principle that a son's knowledge of alienation by his father ordinarily arises when he sees the alienee in possession. In cases where the alienee never gets possession no limitation can arise under Art. 126. In such cases, the right of the son will amount merely to obtaining a declaration that the deed is invalid. The limitation prescribed for such a suit in under Art. 120. 106 Ind. Cas. 377=25 A.L.J. 734=A.I.R. 1927 All. 702.

——Art. 120—Sale by joint family member—Declaratory suit—Limitation, when commences.

Article 91 does not apply where the plaintiff is not suing to cancel or set aside a sale-deed of joint family property, executed by other members of his family but for a declaration that the sale-deed is void ab initio. The Article applicable is 120 and the period of 6 years begins from the time when the plaintiff came to know of the sale-deed. 77 Ind. Cas. 329=10 O.L.J. 360=27 O.C. 140=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 120.

——Art. 120—Alienation—Father—Setting aside—Limitation.

A suit by a Hindu to declare that a sale of ancestral land by his father does not bind him is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act of 1877, where both the alienation and the alienor's death occurred before the passing of the Punjab Limitation Act (5 of 1900.) 15 P.W.R. 1916=34 Ind. Cas. 253.

——Art. 120—Suit challenging transfer of occupancy tenancy.

To a suit by a landlord challenging any transfer of an occupancy right in contravention of the provisions of the Punjab Tenancy Act, Art. 120 applies and consequently a suit should be brought within six years from the date of the sale. 39 P.L.R. 771=A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 824=170 Ind. Cas. 77.

——Art. 120—Mortgage by mutwalli—Suit by worshippers for declaration that property is waqf—Limitation.

Certain worshippers of a mosque sued for a declaration to the effect that the property in dispute is 'waqf' property, that defendant No. 1 is not its owner and had no right to mortgage it and that the decree obtained by defendant No. 2 against defendant No. 1 on the basis of the mortgage was null and void and the property could not be sold in execution of the said decree. The mortgage was executed in 1920 and the properties were put up for sale in 1923 :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and the right to sue accrued only in 1923 and time did not begin to run from the date of the mortgage. 34 P.L.R. 598=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 270=143 Ind. Cas. 725.

——Art. 120—Sale in contravention of Bengal Tenancy Act.

A suit for declaration that a sale held in contravention of S. 158 (b) of the B.T. Act, is illegal and inoperative is governed by Art. 120. 60 Ind. Cas. 529=3 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 27.

——Art. 120—Alienation of temple property—Cause of action.

The temple lands in possession of the temple servants were recorded in the Sanad under Summary Settlements Act, S. 7 as their private lands (Jat-inam) and one of the servants alienated some portion of the lands in 1903 but the vendee did not take possession till 1916. Plaintiff sued on behalf of the managing Committee of Gaukars for a declaration that the lands belonged to the Devasthan.

Held, the cause of action arose within the meaning of Art. 120 only when the defendant attempted to alienate the lands and not by the mere grant of the Sanad. But the article did not apply in the case as plaintiff claimed possession. 75 Ind. Cas. 617=24 Bom. L.R. 902=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 438.

——Art. 120—Avoidance of alienation—Accrual of right to sue.

The right to sue for a declaration that an alienation of property is invalid falls under Art. 120 and time runs from the completion of the document and not when the plaintiff comes to know the transfer. 38 Mad. 1064=33 Ind. Cas. 45.

——Arts. 120 and 134—Declaratory suit that sale by a trustee is invalid.

A suit for declaration that a sale by a trustee is invalid is governed by Art. 120, as it is not a suit for recovery of possession. (1914) M.W.N. 581=26 M.L.J. 537=24 Ind. Cas. 369.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that sale and redemption of share not binding—Specific Relief Act (1 of 1877), S. 42.

A suit for a declaration that the sale of one pangu of melwaram right and redemption of another pangu of melwaram right are not binding on the plaintiffs is governed by Art. 120. Where defendants are not in possession, the plaintiff is not entitled to further relief in the nature of possession, and his suit for a declaration of his tight is not barred by S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act. Where property is in the possession of kudiwaramdars and the melwaram is enjoyed by periodical division of the produce, it does not necessarily follow that the owners of the melwaram must pray for a further physical division of the property by metes and bounds. 20 M.L.J. 709=7 M.L.T. 253=1910 M.W.N. 550=5 Ind. Cas. 343.

——Art. 120—Avoidance of alienation.

A suit for a declaration of the invalidity of and alienation of the equity of redemption is governed by Art. 120. 29 P.L.R. 1913=108 P.R. 1912=17 Ind. Cas. 864.

——Art. 120—Avoidance of alienation—Cause of action—Knowledge if material—Alienation by karnavan of tarward.

The cause of action for suit for declaration that an alienation by a karnavan is not binding on the junior members of the tarward accrues on the date, the document of alienation was completed and not when the plaintiffs became aware of the alienation. In the absence of fraudulent concealment, the knowledge or ignorance of the plaintiff is immaterial. 33 Mad. 31=5 Ind. Cas. 698.

——Art. 120—Transfer by tenant—Setting aside.

A suit by a landlord under Central Provinces Tenancy Act for a declaration of the void character of a transfer made by the tenant is governed by Art. 120, and time begins to run from the date when the landlord becomes aware of the transfer. 5 N.L.R. 28=1 Ind. Cas. 906.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Declaratory suits—Specific Relief Act, S. 42.

A suit for the declaration of title to immoveable property against persons who, by their fraudulent and unauthorised dealings with the same (e.g. mortgage sale in execution of mortgage decree, and purchase thereunder) had cast a cloud upon the plaintiff's title, was instituted more than six years after the date of the confirmation of the sale under the mortgage decree. Held: (1) that the provisons of the Limitation Act are applicable to such a case ; (2) that Art. 144 does not apply to a suit for declaration of title to immoveable property under S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act ; that Art. 120 applies to such a case ; (3) that the title of an auction-purchaser originates when the sale takes place, and in any event it is matured when the sale is confirmed, and a plaintiff seeking for a declaration that the auction sale has not affected his rights, is bound sue within six years from the date thereof. (1904) 1 C. L.J. 73.

——Art. 120—Sale by widow—Suit by daughters to set it aside—Withdrawn without leave to sue—Fresh cause of action to sons of such daughters.

A widow sold certain lands. Her daughters sued to set it aside and withdrew it in 1892, without leave to sue again. The daughters' sons sued in 1895, for a declaration of the invalidity of the sale. Held, that such withdrawal on the ground that the alienation was valid, without permission to bring a fresh suit, was a confirmation of the alienation of 1874, and gave a fresh cause of action, and that the suit was not barred. (1901) 25 M. 731.

11. (e) Declaratory suit—Setting aside decree or order.

See also NOTE 3.

——Arts. 120 and 91—Applicability—Suit for declaration that decree passed on invalid award is void—Relief based on fraud, misconduct or mistake—Limitation—Starting point.

A decree based on an invalid award being a nullity need not be set aside. A suit for a declaration that the decree is null and void is governed not by Art. 91 but by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. In all cases where fraud, misconduct, mistake, etc., form the basis on which relief is sought, the period of limitation would start not from the date of the decree but from the date of the plaintiff's knowledge as to its existence. 1949 A.M.L.J. 90=A.I.R. 1949 Ajmer 8.

——Art. 120—Suit to set aside fraudulent decree—Starting point.

A suit for declaration by a person who is not party to the decree to the effect that the decree is tainted by fraud and that he is not bound by it is not governed by Art. 95 but by Art. 120, and the limitation begins to run from the date of the decree. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 283=45 Bom. L.R. 526=211 Ind. Cas. 230.

——Art. 120—Suit by minor for setting aside decree against him.

In a suit by a minor for declaration that a decree against him is not binding on him due to gross negligence of his guardian, the period of limitation will commence to run under Art. 120, not from the date of the decree sought to be set aside but from the date when the negligence of the guardian, which alone would entitle the plaintiff to have the decree set aside, became known to him. (1936) M.W.N. 351 =A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 804=170 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Setting aside decree.

Where title of a person is jeopardized for the first time by a decree in a suit, such a person is entitled to institute a suit for declaration that he is not bound by that decree and the article applicable to such a suit is 120 and the time begins to run from the date of the invasion of the title. 123 Ind. Cas. 830= A.I.R. 1930 All. 420.

——Art. 120—Declaration of title—Decree—Setting aside—Fraud.

A plaintiff after bringing a suit for a declaration as to his title within limitation by pleading an assertion of the defendant of a conflicting title within six years cannot impeach a decree in favour of the defendant on the ground of fraud which was passed more than six years before the date of filing the declaratory suit. 22 O.C. 171=6 O.L.J. 646=1 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 77= 53 Ind. Cas. 572.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Order of Collector—Suit for declaration and possession.

Alluvial lands—Disposal by Collector, Bombay Land Revenue Code—Suit for declaration that order is null and void and for possession against Collector and his grantee—Suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 144. 33 Bom. L.R. 772=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 369=55 B. 447=134 Ind. Cas. 716.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Setting aside order.

Orders passed under Chap. 7 of the Presidency Small Cause Court Act, cannot be ragarded as a "decision or order" on the question of title. In a subsequent suit against an order under that Chapter there is no necessity to alter or set a side any such "decision or order." Consequently, Art. 13, Limitation Act, has no application. The article applicable may be Art. 120 or Art. 144. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 321 and 7 W.R. 199 (F.B.), Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 504=1929 M.W.N. 174=29 M.L.W. 537=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 69=56 M.L.J. 199.

——Art. 120—Setting aside Government orders.

Suit for declaration that defendants are not permanent tenants of a field and that the order of Revenue Officer to that effect be held as incorrect is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 14.

Before Art. 14 can apply, the order must needs by one which must under law be set aside. 100 Ind. Cas. 4=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 159.

——Art. 120--In 1903 the Government Officials marked off the lands in suit and issued to the plaintiff a rough potta, showing the lands to which Government admitted his right to obtain a grant subject to certain conditions. Plaintiff preferred objections to the exclusion from the rough pottah of the land in suit. His objections were definitely rejected in 1905. Thereupon plaintiff brought a suit to set aside the order and to obtain a declaration of his right in 1913:

Held, that Art. 120 applied and the suit was barred 80 Ind. Cas. 835=26 Bom L.R. 639=20 M.L.W. 49=51 I.A. 257=1924 M.W.N. 572=35 M.L.T. 128=47 Mad. 572=29 C.W.N. 365=A.I.R. 1924 P. C. 150=47 M L.J. 35 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Settlement—Decision of Settlement Officer—Suit to set aside or modify decision—Limitation.

See BOMBAY ACT (1 OF 1880), S. 21. 3 Bom. L.R. 420.

12. Deposit.

——Art. 120—Amount deposited by sister for investment in brother's firm—Suit for recovery—Article 120 is applicable. 63 M.L.J. 232=(1932) M.W.N. 918= A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 685=36 L.W. 514=139 Ind. Cas. 164 (D.B.).

——Art. 120—Deposit of moveables.

A deposited his jewellery with his friend B. At the time of B's marriage to be used by him for the purpose of the wedding on condition that it would be returned whenever A asked for it;

Held, that the transaction was a deposit and not a loan and the mere fact that B was allowed to use the jewellery did not take the transaction out of the category of deposit as that expression is used in Art. 145 and Art. 120 has no application. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 913=31 P.L.R. 907.

——Arts. 120, 36 and 62—Return of deposit.

Deceased had obtained a lease of premises from the Collector for conducting a grog shop and deposited Rs. 250 as security for rent. On his death defendant got the lease, and as a result of the arrangement between him and the Collector, the sum of Rs. 250 was made liable for his loan. The plaintiff, the universal legatee of the deceased brought suit for the amount. The proper article applicable was 120, being a suit to recover specific sum of money belonging to him and enjoyed by the defendant, the cause of action occurred on defendant's refusal to pay. 38 Ind. Cas. 525 (Pat.).

——Art. 120—Return of Deposit.

A suit for the recovery of money deposited with another and repayable on the happening of a future event, and brought after the happening, of the event, is a suit for "Compensation for the breach of any contract not in writing registered" within the meaning of Art. 115, Sch. II of the Limitation Act, and is barred if not instituted within 3 years from the date on which the event happened. Neither Article 60, nor 66 or 120 governs such a suit. (1914) M.W.N. 264= 22 Ind. Cas. 60.

——Art. 120—Return of deposit—Suit to recover money deposited as security for payment of rent.

Suit for money deposited with a lessor as security to ensure payment of rent payable under a contract of lease is governed by Art. 120. 13 O.C. 286=8 Ind. Cas. 370

13. Ejectment.

——Art. 120—Suit for eviction.

When it is proved that an order was passed by the Survey and Settlement Officer under S. 11, Madras Survey Boundaries Act, and it is shown that the procedure prescribed under the Act was duly observed, bar under S. 13 will operate. But where the order is one which should be deemed to have been passed under R. 3 (1) (a) of the Board's Standing Order No. 31 of Clause (7), S. 13 will not apply. In such a case a suit for eviction of the defendant will be governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 668=147 Ind. Cas. 501.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for ejectment of non-proprietor—Limitation.

A suit by the proprietor for ejectment of a non-proprietor in Punjab from the site occupied by him is in its essence a suit for possession and is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 47 =33 P.L.R. 298=134 Ind. Cas. 419.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Ejectment—Plaint mentioning that entry in Record-of-Rights is incorrect—If would make it suit for correction.

The mere mention in the plaint that an entry in the Record-of-Rights is incorrect would not convert it into a suit for correction of the Record-of-Rights. 42 Ind. Cas. 471 (Pat.).

——Art. 120—Ejectment—Landlord and tenant.

A suit by a landlord to dispossess a purchaser of occupancy rights in the land in suit, is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 144, and may be brought within 6 years from the date of sale. 1 P.R. 1916 (Rev.)= 3 P.W.R. 1916 (Rev.)=34. Ind. Cas. 523.

——Art. 120—Ejectment—Cause of action—Assertion title by tenant.

An assertion of title by tenant which would imply that he is not liable to ejectment would not become effective against the landholder until such time as it was put forward as a substantial defence in ejectment proceedings before the Revenue Court. 2 O.L.J. 131=28 Ind. Cas. 307.

——Arts. 120, 142 and 144—Ejectment—Encroachment on public way—Shamilat.

A suit to oust the defendant from a specific portion of the shamilat deh occupied by him adversely to the rest of the proprietors or to remove an obstruction to the enjoyment of the shamilat is governed by Art. 120 of the Lim. Act. Arts. 32, 142, 144 or 146 (a) does not apply to such a suit. 124 P.R. 1912=2 P.L.R. 1912=132 P.W.R. 1912=15 Ind. Cas. 285.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Ejectment—Punjab Tenancy Act (1877), S. 6.

A suit for dispossession of the vendee of occupancy rights under S. 6 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, when the sale is made without the landlord's written consent is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 120. The period of limitation is 12 years. 3 P.R. 1910 (Rev.)= 6 Ind. Cas. 942.

——Art. 120—Ejectment—Notice — Cancellation of.

Where a notice of ejectment issued by a landlord to his tenants had to be cancelled on the ground that several notices had to be issued instead of one but not because the tenants had any proprietary or under-proprietary rights, the mere allegation by the tenants in the proceedings for cancellation of notices on the ground that they had under proprietary rights does not per se set time running against the landlord; there must be an actual decision adverse to him on the point. 12 O.C. 15=1 Ind. Cas. 325.

14. Injunction.

——Arts. 120 and 142—Injunction and possessions —Suit for.

Whether Art. 120 or Art. 142 would come into operation depends upon the nature of the relief claimed.

Gallery of plaintiff's house enclosed—Plaintiff's suit under S. 54, Specific Relief Act coupled with claim for possession of land below the gallery to which defendant asserting title—Suit is not governed by Art 120 but by Art. 142. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 197=1939 N.L.J. 297=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 580=186 Ind. Cas. 155.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Co-owners—Injunction.

To suits between co-owners or co-tenants inter se, where the title of one is denied by the other, Art. 144 or Art. 120 would apply, according as the relief claimed is one for possession or injunction. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 315=42 P.L.R. 276.

——Arts. 120 and 32—Suit for permanent injunction to remove constructions on shamilat—Limitation.

Where the plaintiff sues for permanent injunction to have certain constructions removed on the ground that they had been built by the defendant upon two pathways, the pathways being part of the village shamilat of which the plaintiff as well as the defendants are some of the owners, the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 32. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 701=35 P.L.R. 472=156 Ind. Cas. 358.

——Arts. 120 and 32—Suit for injunction for removal of obstruction by defendant.

Where the plaintiff brought a suit for an injunction restraining the defendant from preventing him from using the field, owned jointly by the plaintiff and the defendant as a pathway and directing the defendant to keep it open as a path for him and his carts:

Held, that in suits of this kind, the real causes of action was the ouster of the plaintiff from property jointly owned by him and defendant and reserved for their common use for a specific purpose and not the perverted user of such property by the defendant and that Art. 120 and not Art. 32 applied to the case. 34 P.L.R. 618=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 705=14 L. 267=145 Ind. Cas. 553 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Starting point—Sale in execution.

For a suit by third party transferee of tenure under Ss. 12 and 13, Ben. Ten. Act, for restraining sale of tenure in execution of decrees not binding upon him, the limitation begins to run when the landlord applies for the sale of the tenure and not when the decree was obtained. 59 M.L.J. 607=34 C.W.N. 821=57 I.A. 214=52 C.L.J. 272=126 Ind. Cas. 422=58 Cal. 301=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 193 (P.C.).

——Arts. 120 and 32—Injunction.

A sued for an injunction to compel B to remove a kotha built on a part of the village common land. This kotha was built more than two years before, and less than six years before the institution of the suit,

Held, that the notion that Art. 32 applies only to cases ex contractu was not correct; therefore the suit was barred not under Art. 120 which did not apply but under Art. 32. A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 653, Appr. 121 Ind. Cas. 186=31 P.L.R. 14=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 283.

——Art. 120—Discharging water over land of another—Cause of action.

In a case where a person discharges water over the land of another a fresh cause of action accrues from day to day and a suit brought more than six years after the construction of parnala by the person is not barred. 2 L.L.J. 463, Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 638=10 L. L.J. 395=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 88.

——Art. 120—Party wall.

If one of two neighbouring owners raises a party wall, the other owner giving his consent or acquiescing, then the raised portion must assume the same character as the old party wall on which it stands and therefore neither party can be allowed to commit a trespass on the party wall so, e.g., by opening windows therein. A suit for injunction directing the defendant to close the windows so opened is governed by Art. 120 and must be brought within 6 years of the opening of the windows. 87 Ind. Cas. 977=27 Bom. L.R. 503=49 Bom. 586=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 373.

——Arts. 120 and 32—Land reserved for common use.

Where a suit was instituted for an injunction that the defendants be restrained from cultivating land on the allegation that according to the custom of the village it was reserved for the common use of all the owners in the village, and that no individual owner was entitled to do anything so as to interfere with such common use,

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 32 and not by Art. 120. 26 Cal. (F.B.), Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 405=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 653.

——Art. 120—Encroachment.

In a suit for perpetual injunction directing defendants to remove an encrochment made on common land, it is for the plaintiff to prove that the encroachment was made within six years before suit and a mere surmise by the Court that the encroachment was 'recent' is insufficient for holding that it took place within six years. 151 P.L.R. 1912, Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 176=7 L.L.J. 228=26 P.L.R. 283=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 455.

——Arts. 120 and 32—Injunction—Construction on occupancy land.

Where plaintiff sued defendant for demolition of certain constructions made by defendant on his (defendant's) occupancy lands without plaintiff's permission and for injunction and where the plaintiff did not allege in the plaint that he had actual possession of lands or that he had lost possession and where he had not availed himself of his right under the local Tenancy Act to eject the defendant,

Held, that it was not a suit for possession at all and that Art. 144 could not apply and that if the defendant's action had perverted the property to a purpose for which he had no right to use it, the claim fell within Art. 32 but that in any event Art. 120 only applied both as regards the relief for demolition of construction and for injunction. 78 Ind. Cas. 849=A.I.R. 1924 All. 814.

——Art. 120—Beams.

Where defendant put up beams against plaintiff's wall more than 6 years ago a suit for removal of the beams is barred by limitation. 76 Ind. Cas. 585=A.I.R. 1923 All. 452.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Sheds.

Where the plaintiff's claiming to be joint owners of a certain courtyard, alleged that the defendants had erected certain chhappers or thatched sheds in front of their house and asked for a perpetual injunction to issue to them directing them to remove the said chhappers and to restore the courtyard to its former condition.

Held, that the suit was essentially a suit for the issue of an injunction and although the injunction would have had the effect of restoring the courtyard to a state in which the plaintiff's might have been able to have a more extensive use of it than they actually had, the suit would not be covered by Art. 144 but Art. 120 would apply. 60 Ind. Cas. 20=3 L.L.J. 128=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 242.

——Art. 120—Suit for injunction—Cause of action.

Art. 120 is the residuary article and can be said to provide the limitation for a suit for injunction but the terminus a quo is the date when the right to sue accrues. A suit for an injunction to prevent the discharge of water on to the plaintiff's roof is governed by Art. 120 and the starting point is the date when the water was last discharged on to the plaintiff's roof. 2 U.P.L.R. (Lah.) 116=2 Lah. L. J. 468=56 Ind. Cas. 1003.

——Art. 120—Suit for injunction—Trespass on land—Pillar driven into plaintiff's land—Suit for a mandatory injunction to remove the pillar.

A suit for a mandatory injunction to remove the stair-case which overhung the land in dipute, and also the pillar on which it rested on that land, is governed by Art. 120. 42. Bom. 333=20 Bom. L.R. 327=45 Ind. Cas. 592.

——Art. 120—Suit for injunction—Encroachments on reserved land—Burden of proof—Specific Relief Act (1 of 1877), S. 54.

In a suit for perpetual injunction directing the defendants to restore certain encroached lands to its original condition, it is for the plaintiff's to prove that the encroachments were made within six years prior to the suit. The Court cannot act merely on the surmise that the encroachments are recent. 77 P.W.R. 1912=151 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 661.

——Art. 120—Injunction, suit for by lessor against lessee for enforcement of a right under a covenant.

A suit for an injunction to restrain the defendants (lessees) from interfering with the plaintiff's (lessor's) rights under a covenant in the lease is governed by Art. 120. Neither Art. 112 nor 145 nor 144 applies. 13 M. 445, Foll. 1904 A.W.N. 69=26 A. 391.

——Art. 120—Suit to restrain a nuisance—Opening of burning and burial grounds. See MADRAS CITY MUNICIPAL ACT OF 1884, SS. 392, 433 AND 458. 25 M. 118.

15. Movable Property.

See ALSO NOTES 12, 16, 25, 27 AND 29.

——Art. 120—Suit to establish right to inherit movable property.

A suit to establish a right to inherit the property of a deceased person even though movable is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 475=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 843=191 Ind. Cas. 676.

—— Art. 120—Pledge—Cause of action, when arises.

The right to sue on the security in default of payment is simultaneous with the right to sue on the loan, for, if the loan is payable on demand, the right to sue in default of payment also accrues at the same time. The suit is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 213=37 Bom. L.R. 165=156 Ind. Cas. 531.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Loan on security of moveable property—Suit to enforce payment by sale—Limitation.

Where a plaintiff who had lent money on the security of eight buffaloes, sought by his suit to enforce the payment of the money charged on the buffaloes and did not seek to get a personal decree against the debtor, Held, that the suit was barred by limitation being governed by Art. 120. 40 All. 512=16 A.L.J. 449=46 Ind. Cas. 373.

——Art. 120—Suit for moveables—Sale proceeds of immoveable property—Moveable property substituted for—Limitation.

A claim for the proceeds of what was once immoveable property but has been substituted by moveable property is not a claim for immoveable property or any interest therein or any profits arising out of land and is governed by Art. 120. 3 Pat. L.J. 522=46 Ind. Cas. 627.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Suit for moveables—Mortgage decree, if moveable property.

A mortgage decree for sales is moveable property, and a suit to enforce the hypothecation of such a decree is governed by Art. 120 of the Act. 23 C. 750; 9 A 108, Foll. Where however the decree has been converted into immoveable property, the mortgagee of such decree is entitled to the benefit of not only the new security, but of Art. 132 of the Act. 39 All. 74=14 A.L.J. 1025=37 Ind. Cas. 4.

——Art. 120—Suit for moveables—Share of moveables on death of widow—Contest between two brothers—Limitation.

A suit between two brothers for recovery of moveables left by the widow of third brother is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 13 P.L.R. 1914=24 P.W.R. 1914=34 P.R. 1914=21 Ind. Cas. 919.

——Art. 120—Suit for moveables.

A suit for the recovery of moveable property wrongly sold in execution of a decree is not governed by Art. 120. 4 Bur. L.T. 46=9 Ind. Cas. 774.

16. Partition.

——Art. 120—Suit for partition by mortgagee.

Two out of three undivided members of a joint Hindu family mortgaged their share in the joint property in 1879. In 1882, one of them sold his share to the mortgagee. The vendor died in 1896, and the other mortgagor in 1898. Both of them left no male issue. In 1937, the successor-in-title of the mortgagee filed a suit for partition of the joint family property and to have allotted to him a share purchased by the mortgagee from one of the coparceners and also sought to enforce the mortgage :

Held, that neither Art. 144 nor Art. 142 applied, the only Article applicable being Art. 120 and the suit therefore was time-barred. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 322=41 Bom. L.R. 631=184 Ind. Cas. 23.

——Art. 120—Partial partition—Family business left undivided with some other property :

Held, that the suit for partition and for accounts of such undivided family business can lie and is governed by Art 120 and not by Art. 106. 45 M.L.W. 749= A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 599=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 574=173 Ind. Cas. 194.

——Arts. 120 and 113—Partition deed—Provision that if shares were found unequal, excess must be made good from certain plot—Suit for deficit—Neither Art. 120 nor Art. 144 but Art. 113 applied. 42 L.W. 208=(1935) M.W.N. 540=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 559=156 Ind. Cas. 879.

——Art. 120—Partition—Khudkasht or Sir Lands.

A Civil Court can enquire into the question as to whether the khudkasht or sir lands are or are not the sole property of a person or whether they are joint property, though it cannot decide whether there should be a partition or not, the question of title may have to be decided for other purposes for partition. Even as regards the question of partition the Civil Courts are not precluded from giving a declaratory decree as to what are the pre-existing titles of the parties, though of course they can give no direction whatever as whether there should be a partition or how a partition should proceed. So far then as a suit is a suit for ascertaining what the titles of the parties respectively are over the lands in the mahal, the suit cannot be time-barred merely because the Revenue Officer declined more than six years before the institution of the suit to proceed with a partition until the question of title had been decided in a Civil Court. 71 Ind. Cas. 205=19 N.L.R. 11=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 86.

——Art. 120—Partition—By metes and bounds.

Where the members of a joint Hindu family become divided in status but the properties have not been actually divided and apportioned among them, and subsequently one of them brings a suit for partition by metes and bounds claiming also an account being taken of the movable properties outstanding and collections made by the various members in respect of the properties.

Held, that the proper article to apply is Art. 120. The period of limitation will run from the demand of the share by the plaintiff or refusal by defendant. If the facts be that the rents and profits were received with the consent of all concerned, by the various members in possession pending final settlement by division, each of such persons might be considered as agent for himself and his co-owners. In such a case Art. 89 will apply. 71 Ind. Cas. 177=45 Mad. 648=1922 M.W.N. 215=15 M.L.W. 595=30 M.L.T. 279=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150=42 M.L.J. 507 (F.B.).

——Art. 120—Partition of moveables.

A suit for partition of movables of a Mahammadan falls under Art. 120 and not 49. 64 Ind. Cas. 974=44 All. 244=20 A.L.J. 71=A.I.R. 1922 All. 525.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for partition of immoveables and moveables.

Art. 120 is not applicable to a suit for partition though the subject-matter consists of moveable and immoveable property. A suit for partition of immoveables is governed by Art. 144 and the fact that the plaintiff's withholding of the moveables will affect his share of the immoveables does not affect the matter (1910) 20 M.L.J. 964=34 Mad. 74=(1910) M.W.N. 256=8 M.L.T. 97=6 Ind. Cas. 579.

——Art. 120—Suit for partition of moveables and immovables—Period of limitation is the same for moveables and immoveables. (1903) 6 Bom. L.R. 1=31 C. 262 =14 M.L.J. 8=31 I.A. 10 (P.C.).

——Arts. 120 and 144—Entry in revenue records—Suit for share.

Where several persons hold property jointly an objection by one of them to the accuracy of an entry in the revenue papers must be regarded as an objection made on behalf of all. A suit by such co-sharer in a Civil Court to have his share properly determined is not one for the correction of the entry but one for partition of the share which actually belongs to him and of which he is in possession. 7 O.L.J. 237=2 U.P.L. R. (J.C.) 74=55 Ind. Cas. 412.

17. Partnership.

——Arts. 120, 61 and 106.—Where partnership results in a loss and a principal partner having had to bear his share of it, sues his Sub-partner or the recovery of the portion which the latter is bound to contribute under the special contract between them, the suit is not governed by Art. 106 or Art. 61, but by Art. 120. 65 M.L.J. 789=38 L.W. 858=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 12=(1938) M.W.N. 1382= 57 Mad. 347=148 Ind. Cas. 204.

——Arts. 120—Suit for dissolution of partnership.

A suit for taking accounts is one for dissolution of an existing partnership and is governed by Art. 120 and 113 and not by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 491= 36 Bom. L.R. 1068=154 Ind. Cas. 680.

——Art. 120—Dissolution of partnership.

A dissolution of a partnership is not a rescission of a contract and as there appears to be no article specifically dealing with a suit for dissolution, Art. 120. Limitation Act would apply. 110 Ind. Cas. 349=6 Rang. 198=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 160.

——Arts. 120, 106 and 116—Partnership entered for a term of 60 years in 1919—Deed registered—One of the partners dying in 1920—The other partner alienating his interest in 1919—Suit by remaining partner for amounts within 6 years of alienation but after 3 years of death in 1920—Partnership, held, dissolved in 1920—Suit not governed by Art. 120 or Art. 116 but by Art. 106. 39 L.W. 164=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 162=57 M. 378=(1934) M.W.N.22= 66 M.L.J. 625=151 Ind. Cas. 81.

——Arts. 120 and 106—Suit by expelled partner for dissolution of partnership for accounts and share of profits—Art. 120 applicable and not Art. 106. 12 C.W.N. 455.

——Arts. 120, 150 and 62—Hindu joint family—Partnership—Claim against family for moneys advanced—Limitation—Barred debt.

A suit by a partnership consisting of some of the members of a joint Hindu family against the family for advances made to it out of the partnership funds is governed by Art. 120 if not, by Arts. 57, 61, 62 or 115 of the Act. The claim cannot be enforced in an action for partition after it has become barred either by way of equitable set off or as an item in the account of dealings between the family and the partnership or by treating the liability of the family as assets. 34 M.L.J. 32=44 Ind. Cas. 428.

18. Possession.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Applicability—Decree against manager of Hindu joint family—Execution sale of joint family property—Suit by purchaser for possession—Limitation.

Art. 144 and not Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, applies to a suit for possession by an auction-purchaser of a particular joint family property described with boundaries in his sale certificate, sold in enforcement of a decree obtained by a creditor against, inter alias the manager of the family. I.L.R. (1946) Bom. 109=224 Ind. Cas. 206=47 Bom. L.R. 1102=A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 192.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for possession by auction-purchaser of mortgaged land leased subsequently.

In a suit by mortgagee-auction-purchaser for the possession of certain land which was leased out by the mortgagor, after its mortgage, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to sue for pray for cancellation of the lease and the case is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 144. 1936 O.W.N. 399=1936 R.D. 168=12 Luck. 161=A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 146=162 Ind. Cas. 225.

——Arts. 120 and 91—Sale by guardian of immovable property of this ward without sanction of Court—Subsequent sale with sanction, to another—Suit by subsequent purchaser for possession against purchaser:

Held, that the subsequent purchaser was entitled to see for possession without being required to have the previous sale set aside. Hence the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 91 of Limitation Act. 34 C.W.N. 948=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 131=58 C. 128=130 Ind. Cas. 273.

——Art. 120—Suit for joint possession.

A transferee of the undivided interest of one of several co-owners does not get right to immediate possession, but if he wants separate possession of his purchase, he must sue for partition. If co-owners want common enjoyment of such property before partition they must sue for joint possession and to such s its Art. 120 applies. 111 Ind. Cas. 76=10 N.L.J. 174=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 96.

——Arts. 120 and 142—Suit for possession of immovable property.

Where the suit is on the face of it one for recovery of possession of immovable property who had taken unlawful possession thereof and had planted new trees thereon :

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. A prayer for removal of the recently planted trees is merely ancillary to the claim for possession will not take the case out of Art. 142 and make Art. 120 applicable. 66 Ind. Cas. 799=9 O.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 47.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Non occupancy ryot, suit by for recovery of possession—Specific Relief Act, S. 9:

Held, by F.B. (Prinsep, J., dissentiente):—that the remedy in S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act is not the only remedy which the Legislature has provided for a non-occupancy raiyat who has been dispossessed otherwise than in due course of law. 7 C.W.N. 218, Overruled. The period of limitation applicable to the case of a non-occupancy ryot who has been dispossessed from his holding otherwise than in execution of a decree is other 6 or 12 years as provided in Art. 120 or Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. (1904) 8 C.W.N. 446=31 C. 647 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for confirmation of possession.

A suit even though framed for confirmation of possession, may be treated as one for recovery of possession if plaintiff's title to recover possession has not been barred by limitation but where the plaintiff in such a suit makes a case that he is in possession, but fails to prove his possession, the Court will not give him possession even though he proves his title and the suit has been instituted within the limitation prescribed for suits for recovery of possession. 44 Ind. Cas. 996 (Cal.).

19. Pre-emption.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Pre-emption on foreclosure. See LIMITATION ACT (9 of 1920), ARTS. 10 AND 120. A.I.R. 1950 All. 647.

——Arts. 120 and 10—Applicability—Suit for pre-emption under Ss. 177 and 183, Berar Land Revenue Code.

Art. 120, and not Art. 10 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit for pre-emption under Ss. 177 and 183 of the Berar Land Revenue Code. I.L.R. (1949) Nag. 465=1949 N.L.J. 290.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Subsequent transferee, limitation against.

If a suit is brought against the original vendee within the time allowed under Art. 10, but the subsequent transferee (to whom the property has been sold by the original vendee) is impleaded as a defendant after the period of limitation, the suit against the latter is governed either by Art. 120 or Art. 144. 1938 A.W.R. 869=A.I.R. 1939 All. 158=(1939) A.L.J. 35=I.L.R. (1939) All. 220=180 Ind. Cas. 33.

——Art. 120—Suit by pre-emptor against another pre-emptor.

Where a pre-emptor institutes a suit against another pre-emptor, claiming his superior right of pre-emption and that the decree obtained by such other pre-emptor is based on fraud, the article applicable is Art. 120. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 503=164 Ind. Cas. 366.

——Arts. 120 and 10—Suit for Pre-emption—Punjab Pre-emption Act (2 of 1905) Ss. 25 and 29—Suits by rivals in Pre-emption against one another.

In suits by rival pre-emptors against one another in respect of the same sale, the period of limitation is that prescribed by Art. 120 and not Art. 10 nor even that in Section 29 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act because the last contemplates only a suit by a pre-emptor against the original vendee. 186 P.W.R. 1912=80 P.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 328.

——Art. 120—Pre-emption.

Vendee already holding possession as tenant prior to foreclosure under conditional mortgage—Art. 10 does not apply—Case is governed by Art. 120. 102 Ind. Cas. 22=1 L.C. 38=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 212.

——Arts. 120 and 10—A suit for pre-emption in respect of a lease must be brought within six years from the date of lease deed and not from the date of its registration. Art. 10 does not apply in the case of a lease as this transfer is not a sale. 95 Ind. Cas. 138=A.I.R. 1926 All. 549.

——Art. 120—Suit for pre-emption—Limitation—Starting point.

In a pre-emption suit the limitation runs from the date of registration and not from the date of execution of the deed of sale and the article applicable is 120. Section 47 of the Registration Act does not apply to the case. 68 Ind. Cas. 715=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 200.

——Art. 120—C. P. Tenancy Act (1898), S. 41.

In a suit for pre-emption under S. 41 (5) where the tenant had merely given notice but had not actually sold his holding.

Held, that Art. 120 applied to the case. 65 Ind. Cas. 959=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 14.

——Arts. 120 and 10—Pre-emption of perpetual lease.

A suit to pre-empt. perpetual lease is governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 10. 62 Ind. Cas. 884=19 A.L.J. 442=A.I.R. 1921 All. 154.

——Arts. 120 and 10—Pre-emption—Property not in possesson of Vendee.

Where the property sold is not in the possession of the vendee but in possession of the trespasser and a pre-emptor files a suit for pre-emption,

Held, per Krishnan, J.—Limitation commences only when possession is taken, where the second part of third column of Art. 10 does not apply to the case.

Per Napier J.—In such a case where possession is not taken due to the property being in the possession of a trespasser and the vendor consequently being unable to give possession to the vendee, Art. 10 does not apply but Art. 120 applies. 62 Ind. Cas. 27=13 M.L.W. 268=1921 M.W.N. 207=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 554=40 M.L.J. 443.

——Art. 120—Suit for pre-emption where vendee has got only formal possession. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 10. 3 Bom. L.R. 767=5 C.W.N. 888=24 A. 17=28 I.A. 248 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Suit for pre-emption—Suit by othidar.

A suit by othidar for pre-emption is governed by Art. 120 and time runs from the date he comes to know of the sale and its terms and not from the date of sale. 38 Mad. 67=12 M.L.T. 535=23 M.L.J. 607=(1912) M.W.N. 1217=17 Ind. Cas. 337.

——Art. 120—Suit for pre-emption.

The limitation applicable to the case of a second vendee in a pre-emption suit is the one in Art. 120 of the Act. 16 I.C. 70, foll. 49 P.R. 1914=252 P.L.R. 1914=160 P.W.R. 1914=25 Ind. Cas. 443.

——Art. 120—Suit for pre-emption—Punjab Pre-emption Act.

In a suit for pre-emption, if the sale had been effected more than six years before the Punjab Pre-emption Act (2 of 1905) came into force, the suit is barred under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, and the plaintiffs could not avail themselves of the special extension of time for one year given by S. 28 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act. 98 P.L.R. 1909=91 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 935.

20. Profits.

See also NOTE 27.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Application by Official Receiver under S. 4, Provincial Insolvency Act, for rents of property in possession of alienee from date of alienation by debtor and ouster by Receiver under decision setting aside alienation as nominal and fictitious—Limitation—Starting point. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 109 AND 120. 52 Bom. ——Art. 120—Fraudulent transaction set aside—Application by Receiver for mesne profits and interest from transferee—Application under S. 54 of Provincial Insolvency Act (1920)—Transfers by insolvent prior to Adjudication set aside—Application by Receiver for mesne profits and interest from transferee:

Held, that the claim for interest was governed by Art. 120 and the Official Receiver could recover interest only for six years preceding his subsequent application. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 207=58 L.W. 665=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 557=1945 M.W.N. 772.

——Art. 120—Mesne profits—Suit for recovery by auction-purchaser.

A suit for mesne profits where the possession of the suit property was obtained by the defendant under the purchase at the Court auction is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 109. A.I.R. 1942 All. 358=1942 A.W.R. 278=(1942) A.L.J. 411=I.L.R. (1942) All. 671=203 Ind. Cas. 223.

——Arts. 120 and 109—Mesne profits, suit for—Possession in execution of a decree subsequently set aside—Right to sue for mesne profits, when accrues.

Art. 120 applies to a suit for mesne profits of land held in such possession, and the plaintiff is within time if he brings his suit within six years from the date on which his right to sue accrued. The right to sue in such a case accrued when the execution proceedings in which the defendant obtained possession are set aside as fraudulent. The suit being in time, there is no law against the plaintiff recovering mesne profits for the whole period during which he was kept out of possession. (1905) 3 C.L.J. 182.

——Art. 120—Suit to recover profits wrongfully withheld.

Where a person has been placed in rightful possession as custodian (supratdar) and he rightfully received the profits in that capacity but wrongfully withheld them, a suit to recover profits is not governed by Art. 109 or Art. 89 but by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 181 =I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 92=1941 N.L.J. 184=201 Ind. Cas. 220.

——Art. 120—Suit for share of profits—Co-sharers.

The suit by the other co-sharers for recovery of their proportionate share of the net produce of the common land cultivated by the defendant co-sharer in exclusive possession is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 109, Limitation Act. ——Art. 120—Suit for share of profits—Co-sharers.

A suit between two co-sharers for a share of profits realised by the co-sharer in possession is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 89. 1936 R.D. 298=A.I.R. 1936 All. 706=(1936) A.L.J. 984=1936 A.W.R. 703=165 Ind. Cas. 266.

——Arts. 120 and 109—A suit by one co-sharer against another co-sharer (who is in exclusive possession of the joint property) is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 109. A.I.R 1933 Lah. 951=35 P.L.R. 208=147 Ind. Cas. 909.

——Art. 120—Co-sharer.

Where a co-sharer who had been given symbolical possession in execution of a decree for joint possession under S. 264 of C.P. Code, 1882. (O. 21, R. 36 of Code of 1908) sued for partition and separate possession.

Held, that he should be allowed mesne profits for a period of six years only prior to the suit. 29 C.W.N. 270=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 93 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Share of rents collected by co-sharer.

Art. 120 and not Art. 62 or 48 or 49 or 109 applies to a suit by one co-sharer against another for a share of the rent collected by the latter, the rent being due in respect of land held by the co-sharers not separately but jointly. 66 Ind. Cas. 876=34 C.L.J. 508=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 77.

——Art. 120—Suit for profits—Village profits—Burden of proof.

A suit by a co-sharer to recover his share of the village profits from the managing co-sharer is governed by Art. 120. 10 C.P. L.R. 98, foll. 13 N.L.R. 127=41 Ind. Cas. 848.

——Arts. 120, 36 and 115—Suit for profits—Action as between co-sharers for profits of ferry.

A suit by one co-sharer for recovery of the profits of a ferry from another co-sharer is governed by Art. 120, Sch. I of the Act, and not by Art. 36 or 45 of Sch. I of the said Act. 1 Pat. L J. 69=35 Ind. Cas. 430.

——Art. 120—Suit for profits—Punjab Tenancy Act, S. 77 (3) (k).

A suit by a co-sharer in a holding under S. 77 (3)(k) of the Punjab Tenancy Act for a share of the profits comes under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 5 P.R. (Rev.) 1915=7 P.W R. 1915 (Rev.)=32 Ind. Cas. 102.

——Art. 120—Suit between co-owners.

Neither of the conditions assumed by the first column of Art. 109 can properly apply as between co-owners inasmuch as in the case of co-owners the property cannot be said to belong to the plaintiffs alone nor could the profits received by the other co-owners be held to have been wrongfully received by them. The article applicable to a suit by a co-owner for his share of the profits received by the other co-owners is, therefore, Art 120 and not Art. 109. 41 L.W. 138=(1935) M.W.N. 107=68 M.L.J. 487=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 731=156 Ind. Cas. 640.

——Art. 120—Suit between co-owners.

The first respondent sued the first appellant in 1923 for divorce, partition of properties and mesne profits, and a decree was passed for divorce and a third share in the properties and a sixth share in the mesne profits. Subsequently, a suit was instituted in 1930 for a third share of the rents and profits, for 7 years from 1923, in respect of the one-third share which had been decreed in the previous suit. The properties in respect of which mesne profits were claimed were originally joint properties in possession of the appellant and no partition had actually been effected according to the terms of the decree in the previous suit till date of the present suit :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and it did not come under Art. 109, as the possession of the appellant at the date of suit was that of a co-owner ; nor did the case fall under Art. 62 as none of the co-owners are entitled in respect of undivided land, to any specific part. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 150=131 Ind. Cas. 511.

——Art. 120—Suit by Hindu sons to declare alienation by father invalid—Sons declared entitled to certain share—Subsequent suit by sons for share of profits—Limitation.

Where, in a suit by the sons of a Hindu to set aside an alienation made by the father, the sons obtained a declaratory decree that they were entitled to three-fourths of the property purchased by the alienee and that the latter was entitled only to one-fourth share and the sons subsequently instituted a suit against the alienee for profits from the date of the preliminary decree in the previous suit :

Held, that the alienee's possession after decree was not necessarily wrongful inasmuch as he could, as a co-owner, be lawfully in possession on behalf of himself and the other co-owners and the suit was not, therefore, governed by Art. 109 but by Art. 120. (1936) M.W.N. 410=43 L.W. 706=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 654=162 Ind. Cas. 771.

——Art. 120—Suit for rents and profits by co-heirs.

Where the profits in question are not mesne profits at all, that is to say, not profits wrongly received by the defendants but are rents and profits of land to which both the plaintiffs and defendants as co-heirs have a claim, the article applicable is Art. 120 and not Art. 109. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 365=I.L.R. 1940 (Rang.) 136=186 Ind. Cas. 210.

——Art. 120—Suit for profits of immovable property by co-heir.

Art. 120 applies to an action claiming profits of immovable property against a person who is in occupation of land as a co-heir. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 416=178 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 120—Suit by co-heir.

Suit for share against co-heirs in possession and management of estate consisting of immovables and business—Article 120 governs the case as regards business. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 407=166 Ind. Cas. 504.

——Art. 120—Suit by person who is not a co-sharer within the meaning of Agra Tenancy Act entitled to enjoy profits only without having the rights of possession, partition or transfer, for his share of profits is governed by Art. 120, Limitation Act. (1932) A.L.J. 177=16 R.D. 190=A.I.R. 1932 All. 272=135 Ind. Cas. 836.

——Arts. 120 and 109—Reversioners suing transferees from widow as trespassers—Decree on the footing that possession of trespassers after widow's death was wrongful—Subsequent suit for mesne profits—Art. 109 and not Art. 120 applied as defendants could not be said to be in receipt of profits as co-sharers. 1935 O.W.N. 985=1935 R.D. 451=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 515=11 Luck. 435=157 Ind. Cas. 960.

——Arts. 120 and 109—Co-tenants.

Where a person prevents his co-tenants from obtaining from the field such profits as it is capable of yielding and takes possession of the whole field as his own he is liable to account for the mesne profits. Article applicable to such a suit is Art. 120 and not Art. 109. 32 Cal. 837=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150 (F.B.), Foll. 105 Ind. Cas. 777=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 65.

——Art. 120—Profits—Received by agent.

In a suit by the principal against agent for rents and profits of the suit property, if there was no demand and refusal of accounts, the agent is liable to account for all the amounts received on behalf of the plaintiff. It is immaterial in such a case whether Art. 89 applies on the ground of agency, on Art. 120 applies on the ground of absence of specific contract of agency. 114 Ind. Cas. 364=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1236.

——Arts. 120 and 109—Profits of intestate's property.

To a suit for subsequent profits on the share of the claimant which do not form part of the property of the intestate, Art. 109 will not apply but Art. 120 applies. 76 Ind. Cas. 855=1 Rang. 405=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 155.

——Art. 120—Profits of business.

Where the business was wound in 1895 and at least by 1897, the plaintiff knew perfectly well exactly how he stood in the matter.

Held, that Art. 120 applies and the time for suit for the recovery of the balance became barred at the latest after six years from 1897. 75 Ind. Cas. 848=18 M.L.W. 99=1923 M.W.N. 867=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 679=45 M.L.J. 233.

——Art. 120—Land attached under Cr. P. Code—Profits withdrawn by one party.

Certain lands which were the subject of dispute between the owners of contiguous plots of land were attached under S. 146 of the Cr. P. Code and pending suits for establishment of the rights of the parties, the defendants withdrew the profits of the land deposited in Court. The suit was ultimately compromised and plaintiff become entitled thereunder to the land in dispute. A suit for refund of the profits withdrawn by defendants was held to be governed by Art. 120 and not Art. 62. 72 Ind. Cas. 1041=50 Cal. 475=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 379.

——Art. 120—Suit for mesne profits—When title subsisting—Declaratory suit barred—Limitation Act, Art. 120.

Where the right to property is not extinguished and the title is subsisting though a suit for declaration thereof may be barred, the owner's right and remedy in respect of the rents and profits derived from the property remain unaffected and Art. 120 is applicable to a suit for their recovery, the right to sue accruing from time to time as the profits are received. The profit for 6 years preceding the suit is recoverable. 21 C. 157, foll. (1902) 26 M. 410.

21. Refund.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Applicability—Suit by auction-purchaser for refund of purchase-money—Judgment-debtor having no saleable interest in property—Allegation of fraud against decree-holder—Limitation—Starting point. See C. P. CODE, O. 21, R. 91. I.L.R. (1948) 1 Cal. 479.

——Art. 120—Suit for refund—Suit by auction-purchaser—Judgment-debtor having no saleable interest.

A suit by an auction-purchaser to recover the purchase-money under S. 315 C.P.C., 1882, on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold is governed by Art. 120. 35 All. 419=11 A.L.J. 606=19 Ind. Cas. 986.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Suit for refund by auction-purchaser—Judgment-debtor having no saleable interest.

Art. 120 applies to a suit by the auction-purchaser for the recovery of the purchase-money on the discovery of the absence of interest in the judgment-debtor and not Art. 62. 12 M.L.T. 431=23 M.L.J. 487=(1912) M.W.N. 1130=17 Ind. Cas. 437.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Execution sale—Sale price rateably distributed—Suit by third party—Declaration that property sold was not judgment-debtor's—Suit by purchaser for refund from creditors who were paid—Limitation—Arts. 62 and 97.

Where a purchaser at a Court sale deposits money which is paid out to the creditors of the judgment-debtor rateably, and subsequently in a suit by a third party the property purchased at the Court sale is declared not to belong to the judgment-debtor, a suit by the auction-purchaser for recovery of the money deposited by him in Court from the creditors who were paid rateably is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Neither Art. 62 nor Art. 97 applies to such a case. These two articles contemplate only a suit for recovery of money by one contracting party from another either as money had and received or on failure of consideration. 228 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Arts. 120, 62 and 97—Execution sale—Rights of purchaser—Refund of purchase-money—Auction-purchaser, subsequently, losing property, wholly or partially, under decree by third party—Suit by such auction-purchaser for refund of purchase-money against decree-holder is maintainable.

Where an auction-purchaser loses portion of the property purchased by him under a decree passed in a suit by a third party, his suit for recovery of purchase-money is governed by three years' rule either under Art. 62 or Art. 97; and Art. 120 does not apply. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 286=1937 O.W.N. 83.

——Arts. 120 and 62—A conveying property to B benami—Subsequent sale by B to C—Suit by A for recovery of consideration money received by B—Suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62.

A conveyed certain property to B benami. B subsequently sold the property to one C. A brought a suit for recovery of the amount of consideration received by B:

Held, that the claim of A against B was an equitable one, being a claim in respect of moneys received and held by the benamidar, a person in the position of a trustee, for the benefit of the real owner, and the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 248=59 Mad. L.W. 109=(1946) 1 Mad. L.J. 140=(1946) Mad. W.N. 117.

Overruling—A.I.R. 1916 Mad. 521=1915 M.W.N. 215=28 Ind. Cas. 495.

——Arts. 120 and 97—Refund of money wrongly paid.

Suit for refund of money wrongly paid—Money paid to redeem mortgage—Suit for foreclosure by person having mortgagee interest—Payment held to be wrongly made—Decree for foreclosure—Suit for refund—Article 97 and not Art. 120 applied. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 378=1935 O.W.N. 549=11 Luck. 110=155 Ind. Cas. 299.

——Art. 120—Refund—Of subscription.

Where an association consists more than 20 persons but it is not registered and the members bring a suit for the return of subscription money paid to the promoter after conversion of the property of the association into cash into which the said money is changed such suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62 for such money is not received by the promoter for the use of the members. 120 Ind. Cas. 902=7 Rang. 540=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 21.

——Art. 120—Refund of purchase-money.

Plaintiff sued for specific performance of a contract of mortgage with possession in default of redemption within three years. The defendants filed a cross-suit for possession of the land (the mortgage being oral.) A decree was passed for possession in defendant's suit and plaintiffs' suit for specific performance was dismissed. The plaintiffs then filed a suit for refund of the money.

Held, that Art. 120 applied and that the cause of action arose after the dismissal of the suit for specific performance. 92 Ind. Cas. 738=4 Bur. L.J. 160=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 373.

——Art. 120—Suit for refund of the money wrongly recovered under a decree would be governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and the period would run from the date of decree. 71 Ind. Cas. 427=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 94.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Application for rateable distribution dismissed—Suit for refund of money paid to defendant—Limitation.

When an application for rateable distribution was dismissed and a revision petition to the High Court was also dismissed, a subsequent suit for refund of money paid to another judgment-debtor filed after 3 years from such payment but within 3 years from the date of dismissal of the revision petition was held barred under Art. 62, Art. 120 not being applicable. 15 B. 438 ; 23 A 313 ; 32 C. 527 ; 30 M. 459; 37 M. 381, foll. 39 Mad. 62=16 M.L.T. 509=27 M.L.J. 640=1 L.W. 952=26 Ind. Cas. 219.

——Art. 120—Suit for refund—Fraudulent mortgage of Sir lands.

Where defendant fraudulently gets his sir land mortgaged with possession to the plaintiff the plaintiff is entitled to a simple money decree for the sum advanced with such interest as the Court might find due. The claim falls under Arts. 95 and 97 and not under Arts. 116 and 120. 13 O.C. 148=6 Ind. Cas. 1013.

22. Reimbursement.

——Art. 120—Suit for contribution.

A claim for contribution in respect of a share of the amount spent by the plaintiff for purchase of stamps for a sale certificate issued in respect of properties jointly purchased by him and the defendant is governed by Art. 120, and not by Art. 61. The cause of action in such a case does not arise when the stamps are purchased but when they are actually utilised for the purpose in question. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 96=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 494=52 M.L.W. 508=(1940) M.W.N. 982=193 Ind. Cas. 823.

——Art. 120—Suit for contribution.

Mortgagees sub-mortgaging their rights—One of the mortgagees paying his share—Sale of mortgagee rights due to default of other mortgagee—Suit for contribution by other mortgagee.

Held, Art. 120 not applicable. 10 O.W.N. 919=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 478=147 Ind. Cas. 1042.

——Art. 120—Reimbursement.

There was a dispute between A and B, and C was put in charge of the property has a superdar pending the determination of the rights of A and B. After these rights were determined and C had restored possession C was sued for their wages by two watchmen whom he had appointed to watch the standing crop. C paid up the decrees and instituted a suit against A and B for recovery of the money he had to pay to the watchmen.

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 61, or Art. 120 and not by Art. 102, C was entitled to be reimbursed by A and B. The cause of action in favour of C arose when he paid up the decrees and suit by him within three years of payment was in time. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 421.

——Art. 120—Sale of patni in a rent-decree—Surplus withdrawn by a creditor of one patnidar—Sale subsequently set aside—Zamindar made to pay whole purchase-money—Suit by Zamindar.

Certain patni was sold for arrears of rent and was purchased by a third party. The zamindars took out their dues from the purchase-money and the balance remained in deposit. A decree-holder against one of the patnidars attached the surplus sale proceeds and realized his dues in full under that attachment. Some of the darpatnidars, subsequently brought a suit to have the patni sale set aside. The suit was decreed and the zamindars had to refund to the auction-purchaser the amount which the auction-purchaser had paid for the putni at the patni auctions. Thereafter, a suit was brought by the zamindars against the decree-holder to recover with interest Rs. 161 which he had withdrawn by attachment under the money decree.

Held, that the decree-holder was liable to refund the amount and as decree-holder, when he took the money or the Court when it handed over to him the money, did not intend the money to be for the use of the zamindars, Art. 62 did not apply but the residuarry Art. 120 would apply. 110 Ind. Cas. 49=47 C.L.J. 369=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 295.

——Art. 120—Contract of indemnity.

Defendant agreed in 1907 to indemnify plaintiff by paying off the mortgage within a month but the non-payment to the mortgagee within a month was not accepted by the plaintiff as a breach of the contract and indeed the contract between the parties was treated by both parties as being open and remaining open until the events which culminated in the sale in execution of mortgage-decree in 1919.

Held the defendant undertook a liability to indemnify the plaintiff against any claim by the mortgagee and the cause of action under that contract of indemnity did not arise until the plaintiff suffered a loss by being ejected from the property. 74 Ind. Cas. 209=17 M.L.W. 453=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 492.

——Art. 120—Expenses of litigation.

Article 120 and not 61 or 59 applies to a suit for contribution for expenses incurred by plaintiff from his co-plaintiff and limitation begins from the time when co-plaintiff got his share of the decretal amount. 45 Ind. Cas. 786; 25 C.W.N. 813 ; 34 Ind. Cas. 54, foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 405=1922 M.W.N. 608=16 M.L.W. 231=31 M.L.T. 164=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 64=43 M.L.J. 271.

——Art. 120—Fine paid to Government.

Where the defendant used the plaintiff's land without his permission for non-agricultural purposes and in consequence thereof the plaintiff had to pay fine to Government and the plaintiff sued the defendant for recovery thereof,

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not 61. A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 257.

——Art. 120—Where the debtor of an insolvent paid money to the auction-purchaser of the debt and subsequently the Receiver in Insolvency recovered the amount over again from him and he thereupon brought a suit against the auction-purchaser to whom he had paid the money.

Held, that the suit is governed by either Art. 97 or 120 and not by Art. 29 or 62. Art. 29 not being applicable as there is no wrongful seizure of movable property under legal process. 62 Ind. Cas. 929=4 L.L.J 164=A.I.R. 1922 Lah 103.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Contribution.

Plaintiffs and defendants were joint owners of a tank in a Municipality. As the tank was in an insanitary condition, the Municipality ordered the tank to be filled up. Plaintiffs filled up the tank,

Held, that the liability of the defendants to contribute did not arise in successive fragments as plaintiffs paid money to the contractor from day to day ; the liability arose when the tank was filled up and the contemplated benefit conferred. In such circumstances Art. 120 and not Art. 61 was applicable, and the time ran against the plaintiffs from the date of completion of the work. 62 Ind. Cas. 615=25 C.W.N. 813=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 93.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Suit by trustee for re-imbursement for out-of-pocket expenses.

A trustee of public trust has a first charge on the trust properties for the purpose of reimbursing himself for advances properly made for the trust and Art. 120 and not Art 132 is the one applicable to a suit for recovery of moneys so spent. It is doubtful whether Art. 132 can properly be applied to a case where a man lends money out of his own pocket to himself as trustee of a religious institution on the security of the trust property. 37 Cal. 229 (P.C.), foll. The right of the ex-trustee to sue for moneys advanced by him for the trust during his trusteeship does not accrue before the date on which he is judicially declared to be no longer a lawful trustee or perhaps till he is dispossessed of such trust estate, in persuance of the judicial declaration. 38 Mad. 260=28 M.L.J. 347 =28 Ind. Cas. 290.

——Art. 120—Trustee—Right to re-imbursement from trust estate—Limitation.

A suit for re-imbursement from the trust estate in respect of the out-of-pocket expenses of a deceased trustee is not barred by limitation if brought within six years of the death of the trustee. 37 Cal. 229= 37 I.A. 27=14 C.W.N. 261=7 A.L.J. 125=7 M.L.T. 63=11 C.L.J. 220=12 Bom. L.R. 257=20 M.L.J. 171=5 Ind. Cas. 404 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Trustee—Expenses—Recoupment—Suit by trustee's heirs.

A suit by the heirs of a trustee to recover money expended on behalf of the trust by the trustee and not recouped to him is governed by Art. 120 and is in time if brought within six years of the trustee's death. (1900) 5 C.W.N 273.

23. Remuneration for services.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit by Government servant for arrears of pay. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 102. (1947) 2 M.L.J 389=1947 F.C.R. 89= A.I.R. 1947 F.C. 23 (F.C.).

——Art. 120—Suit to recover salary.

A claim to recover salary wrongfully witheld falls under Art. 120, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1943 368=1943 O.W.N. 118=19 Luck. 163=207 Ind. Cas. Oudh 178.

——Art. 120—Proceedings for the recovery of remunerations by a counsel are governed by Art. 115 and not by residuary Art. 120 of Limitation Act. 1941) 43 P.L.R. 97.

——Art. 120—Remuneration for services—Temple service.

A suit by the dwaris of a temple for recovery of certain dues claimed by them as payable as remuneration in respect of their services in connexion with the temple is not a suit covered by S. 10. Such a suit is governed by Art. 120 and neither by Art. 102 nor by Art. 131. 94 Ind. Cas. 826=1926 P.H.C.C. 1= 5 Pat. 249=7 P.L.T. 465=A.I.R. 1926 Pat.205.

24. Rent suit.

——Arts. 120 and 110—Fees charged by Municipality for issuing permission for use of Municipal land—Limitation.

The fees charged by a Municipality for issuing a permission for use of Municipal land under the provisions of S. 90, Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act, is not rent within the meaning of Art. 110 and a suit for recovery of such fees is governed by Art. 120 as there is no other article within which it can be brought. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 184=30 S.L.R. 146= 165 Ind. Cas. 369.

——Arts. 120 and 131—Suit for enhancement of rent.

A suit for enhancement brought more than six years after the date of the final publication of the Record-of-Rights, in which the defendants are entered as raiyats at fixed rates, is not barred by limitation as the Record-of-Rights does not create any rights. Article 120 does not apply but Art. 131 governs the case. A claim to enhance is a recurring cause of action and limitation runs from the date of refusals. 2 P.L.J. 124, foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 781 =A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 193.

——Art. 120—Assessment of rent—Starting point of limitation.

An entry in the Record of Rights that a land is liable to assessment confers no title and cannot be the starting point of limitation for a suit for assessment of rent. 22 C.W.N. 685=46. Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 120—Rent suit—Suit by co-sharer.

Suit for rent by a co-owner against his co-sharer who occupied the property after the term fixed for such period is governed by Art. 120 and not by 110 or 115. 39 Mad. 54=33 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Arts. 120, 61 and 99—Rent suit—Lambardar—Suit against co-sharer—Limitation.

A Village belonged to three persons in equal shares. The rents payable by tenants, together with the rental assessed on the Sir and Khudkasi held by the Lambardar and another co-sharer, more than sufficed to cover all the annual expenses. By an arrangement among co-sharers no contribution used to be demanded from the third co-sharer until the annual accounts where made up by the Lambardar. The Lambardar sued for the balance due from the third co-sharer by reason of her failure to pay the rental assessed on the Sir Land and Khudkasht held by her. Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 61 or 99 of the Limitation Act. 11 N.L.R. 156=30 Ind. Cas. 960.

——Art. 120—Assessment of rent—Decree of Revenue Court—Cause of action.

A suit for assessment of fair rent brought within six years of the decree of a Revenue Court, in a proceeding under S. 106 of the Tenancy Act, declaring that the land is liable to pay rent, is not barred by limitation under Art. 120 of the limitation Act. 18 C.W.N. 466=20 Ind. Cas. 910.

——Art. 120—Rent—Revenue—Inamdar—Inferior holder. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 110, 120. 3 Bom. L.R. 135=25 B. 556.

——Arts. 120 and 110—Revenue, Public, Assignment of—Assignee's rights—Revenue Recovery Act, Ss. 2 and 42.

An arrangement by which the Government directs its ryot to pay to certain trustees of a mutt first crop assessment on the land. Instead of itself paying each to the said trustees is not an assignment by Government of the public revenue to the trustees. The trustees on default by the ryot in paying the assessment should bring the matter to the notice of the revenue authorities, and it would be competent to the latter to realize the arrear under Act 2 of 1864 (Madras) and pay it over to the trustees, but the latter will not be entitled to sue in their own name for the amount. Ss. 2, 42 of the Revenue Recovery Act are applicable only to public revenue and not to realization of sums due to an institution like the plaintiff's mutt. If the trustees are entitled under the arrangement to sue, in their own names their claim is only a personal one against the holders of the fund for the time being. Where the trustees are not constituted Inamdars but are entitled under the arrangement to sue in their own names for the first crop assessment, their claim is not one for rent within the meaning of the Rent Recovery Act or Art. 110 of the Limitation Act. Such a claim fall under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Where the trustees obtained a decree personally for their claim against the representative of the original ryot, who agreed with Government to pay over first crop assessment to the trustees, the latter are not entitled also to a decree personally against the transferees who were possessed of the land. (1902) 13 M.L.J. 248=26 M. 730.

25. Reversionary suit.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Applicability—Will by Hindu conferring life-estate on widowed daughter and widow of nephew—Alienation by legatees—Suit by reversioners to declare invalid and not binding on the plaintiffs—Limitation.

The applicability of Art. 125, Limitation Act, is confined to cases in which an alienation is good for the alienor's lifetime; the Article cannot apply to cases where the alienation was void ab initio, or where it would not be necessary to bring a suit to set aside such an alienation. Art. 125 however, contemplates cases of alienation by female holders which cannot be ignored by reversioners and which are good unless they are set aside either for want of consideration or legal necessity or on other grounds.

Where under a will, the daughter of the testator gets nothing more than what she is entitled to under the Hindu Law, she holds possession for life as a Hindu female as such and the will makes no difference to her status as a Hindu female with limitted powers of alienation. Where under such a will, a widow who is not an heir of the testator also gets a life-estate, no question of alienation by her enuring beyond her lifetime can arise and there can be no necessity of bringing a suit for a declaration that an alienation by her was not binding on the reversioners after her lifetime. In the case of the daughter, it would be necessary for the reversioners to bring the suit to have it declared that an alienation by the daughter was either without consideration or not justified by legal necessity. The reversioners cannot ignore the alienation made by the daughter who could, under the Hindu Law, make an alienation and the alienation would under certain circumstances, be binding even after her death. It would be necessary for the reversioners therefore to get this obstacle out of their way and when the suit is brought on the footing that she held the property as a Hindu female, Art. 125 and not Art. 120, Limitation Act would apply. As no declaration would be necessary in the case of the other legatee (who is not an heir), a suit by the reversioners of the testator for declaration that a sale-deed executed by the two legatees was without consideration, not justified by legal necessity and therefore not binding on the plaintiffs, is governed by Art. 125, Art. 120 would not apply. 29 Pat. 209= A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 218.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Applicability—Female in possession of property under will.

Art. 120 and not Art. 125 of the Limitation Act governs cases where a Hindu or a Muhammadan female is in possession of property under a will or a gift inter vivos. 49 P.L.R. 167=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 290 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 125—Applicability—Suit by reversioners challenging alienation.

Two sisters A and B inherited property from their father. A sold her share to defendants. Reversioner (i.e. sons of B) filed suit to set aside alienation.

Held, Art. 125 contemplates that the reversioners challenging the alienation must be immediately entitled to the property, if alienator died on the date of the suit. But here even assuming that A was dead on the date of the suit, the reversioner would not be entitled to the property because there was B, their mother. Hence, Art. 125 would not apply. The proper article would be 120 and 125. (1946) 2 M.L.J. 214=59 L.W. 504=231 Ind. Cas. 143= A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 102.

——Art. 120—Suit by remote reversioner challenging alienation—Starting point of limitation.

Alienation by widow—Immediate reversioners parties to alienation—Remote reversioner can file suit under S. 42, Specific Relief Act—Article applicable is Art. 120—Time runs from the date of alienation—But where the remote reversioner is not born before the date of alienation, the right to sue does not come into existence before the date of his birth. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 41=72 C.L.J. 208=45 C.W.N. 141=I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 234=193 Ind. Cas. 419.

——Art. 120—Suit to avoid alienation by widow after her death.

Where, after the death of the last male-holder his widow in whom the property vested and her daughter made an alienation and after the death of the widow the plaintiff alleging that he was the adopted son of the daughter sued for a declaration that the alienation was void:

Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 125 but by Art. 120 and the right to sue arose on the date of the alienation and not on any subsequent date. (1936) M.W.N. 339=44 M.L.W. 208=165 Ind. Cas. 448.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Suit for declaration.

Gift of land by deceased—Registration in favour of donee objected to and contested by daughter of deceased—Transfer registered inspite of objection—No suit for declaration by daughter—Subsequent suit by reversioners of deceased for declaration—Article applicable is 120 and not 125. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 535=3 B.R. 21=165 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 120—Suit by Hindu against Hindu female for declaration that alienations made by her are void.

A suit by a Hindu to declare void alienations effected by a Hindu female holding a life estate by virtue of a grant, transfer inter vivos, or bequest, as not binding on him, is governed by Art. 120, and limitation is six years from date of transfer. If the mortgaged properties have been sold, the plaintiff's right to sue accrues not only when the properties were mortgaged, but also when the mortgagees brought them to sale and the sales give him a fresh cause of action. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 323=17 P.L.T. 131=15 Pat. 151=2 B.R. 658=163 Ind. Cas. 940.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration that plaintiffs were owners in possession—Limitation.

A suit by reversioners for a declaration that alienations made by a sonless proprietor should not affect their reversionary rights was decreed in 1912, subject to the proviso that after the death of a certain widow the reversioners could take possession subject to payment to the alienees of a certain sum which apparently was found to have been taken for necessity by the alienor. After the death of the widow in 1931, the reversioners instituted a suit for a declaration that they had deposited the sum in Court and had obtained possession of the land out of Court from the alienees and, therefore, they should be declared to be the owners of the land :

Held, that the suit was not one for possession and the suit was governed by Art. 120. 38 P.L.R. 537 = A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 835 = 165 Ind. Cas. 149.

——Art. 120 and S. 6—Suit challenging widow's alienation—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit for a declaration filed after the death of the widow whose alienation is challen ged does not fall under Art. 125, but is governed by Art. 120 under which article read with S. 6, the plaintiff will be entitled to bring his suit within three years of his attaining majority. 16 P.L.T. 236 = A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 256 = 1 B.R. 418 = 155 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Art 120—Sale by de facto guardian—Money left with vendee to be paid to minors on attaining majority—Suit by guardian as reversioner for the money—Limitation.

S and C were two minor girls. G as their de facto guardian sold a certain property and it was stipulated that money should remain with vendee and should be paid to S and C on their attaining majority. S got married when she was a minor and by Customary Law, lost the right to the purchase-money, and the right in the purchase-money devolved on C who died as a minor. G, as reversioner filed, a suit against the vendee for the purchase-money. Vendee pleaded that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 111.

Held, that Art. 111 did not apply as G was not the vendor but Art. 120 applied and limitation ran from the date of the death of C when right to sue accrued to G and that the suit was not time-barred. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 860 = 35 P.L.R. 161 = 15 L. 35 = 147 Ind. Cas. 269.

——Art. 120—Mortgage and gift by widow—Suit by next reversioner to declare deeds null and void—Limitation.

Where the widow of the last male-owner of a Hindu family executed a deed of mortgage on February 8, 1912, in favour of a stranger and subsequently on July 21, 1920, a gift-deed in favour of her daughter ; and the son of her daughter's husband's brother, and the next reversioners of the deceased instituted a suit for declaration that the sale-deed and the gift-deed were null and void against them :

Held, that as regards the mortgage deed, the plaintiffs ought to have sued within a period of six years from the date of mortgage, as Art. 120 applied.

Held, also that the gift deed could not be construed as a surrender in favour of her daughter and hence Art. 120 applied to the suit and the suit was barred in respect of the gift-deed also. (1933) A.L. J. 1305 = A.I.R. 1933 All. 856 = 146 Ind. Cas. 977.

——Art. 120—Suit to set aside alienation—Cause of action, when arises.

The cause of action in a suit to set aside an alienation arises when the alienation is made and not when the alienation becomes known to the plaintiffs. 33 Bom. L.R. 1418 = A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 15 = 136 Ind. Cas. 161.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Alienation by widow.

It is obvious that if the widow alienates certain property no fresh cause of action accrues to the reversioners because the alienee in his turn proceeds to alienate the property. The cause of action to the reversioners has accrued when the widow alienated the property. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 579.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Avoidance of transfer—Void sale.

Where the alienation was by a Hindu widow of an unrecognised portion of a bhag and the reversioner sued to set it aside after the lifetime of the widow,

Held, that the alienation being void ab initio, the starting point for computing limitation under Art. 120 is the date of the sale-deed. 32 Bom. L.R. 1013 = 54 Bom. 837 = 127 Ind. Cas. 897 = A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 545.

——Art. 120—Alienation by grand-mother—Suit by daughter's son.

Daughter's sons are under Hindu Law not entitled to succeed in the lifetime of their mother and, therefore, are not the immediate reversioners of their grand-mother. Their suit for declaration that an alienation by their grand-mother is not binding on them is governed by Art 120. 108 Ind. Cas. 184 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 242.

——Art. 120—Surrender by widow.

The conveyance of a small portion of the surrendered land for maintanance to the widow is unobjectionable and does not alter the nature of the transaction which remains one of acceleration in favour of the next reversioner ; and that being so, Art. 125 cannot apply, but Art. 120 is applicable A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 75 and A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 107, Foll; 44 Bom. 255, Not foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 275 = 10 N.L.J. 33 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 193.

——Art. 120—Right of reversioners to sue for declaratory decree—Limitation—Starting point.

The right to sue for a declaratory decree is vested in the whole body of reversioners in existence at the time of alienation jointly and severally and time begins to run simultaneously against them all and no subsequent disability stops it. 22 All. 33 (F.B.), Dissented; 21 P.W.R. 1907; 22 P.R. 22; 41 Mad. 659 (F.B.), Foll. 90 Ind. ——Art. 120—Remote reversioner.

Article 120 applies to a suit by a reversioner remoter than the immediately next one. 83 Ind. Cas. 1055 = 27 O.C. 173 = 11 O.L.J. 236 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 381.

——Art. 120—Declaratory suit—Setting aside sale—By guardian of limited owner.

A suit brought by the reversionary heirs of one for declaration that a certain sale of the property left by him is not binding on the estate after the death of his daughter comes under Art. 120, and not Art. 125, where the sale was made by certificated guardian of daughter without Court's permission and was not impeached by the daughter within the time. 41 Mad. 659, Doubted. 81 Ind. Cas. 522 = 51 Cal. 101 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 481.

——Arts. 120 and 141—Suit for movable property by Hindu reversioner

A suit by a Hindu reversioner to recover movable property on the death of a Hindu female is governed by Art. 120 of the Act and time begins to run from the death of the female. In the case of immovable property the Article applicable is 141. 64 Ind. Cas. 980=49 Cal. 45=33 C.L.J. 421=25 C.W.N. 585=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 321.

——Art. 120—Suit to prevent waste of movable property.

Where a widow, in possession of her deceased husband's estate commits waste of movable property belonging to the corpus of the estate, and action by reversioner to prevent her from doing so is governed by Art 120. 66 Ind. Cas. 10=44 Mad. 984=14 M.L.W. 193=1921 M.W.N. 590=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 234=41 M.L.J. 279.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Mortgage by Hindu widow —Suit for declaration by remote reversioner.

Where a Hindu widow having a daughter creates a mortgage on the estate and her nearest male reversioner sues for a declaration that the mortgage is not binding on the estate. The suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 125 of the Limitation Act and the starting point of limitation is the date of the mortgage. "Land" in Art. 125 includes a house and its site. 1 Lah. 69=91 P.L.R. 1920=55 Ind. Cas. 924.

——Arts. 120, 93 and 95—Suit for declaration that document executed by the last owner is not binding on the reversioner—Limitation.

A suit by a reversioner for a declararion that a Kot kabala executed by the last owner and a compromise decree passed on it are not binding on the inheritance is governed not by Arts. 93 or 95 but by Art. 120. Where plaintiff is in possession limitation starts only when some act is done on the document sought to be declared not binding on inheritance. 17 A.L.J. 973=52 Ind. Cas. 646.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration—Adoption.

A suit for declaration by a Hindu Reversioner of the nullity of an adoption by the widow and entry in revenue papers and in respect of a mortgage by the widow and mutation of names is governed by Art. 120. of the Act. 41 All. 492=17 A.L.J. 766=50 Ind. Cas. 938.

——Arts. 120, 93 and 95—Avoidance of document —Suit by reversioner—Limitation.

A suit by a reversioner for a declaration that a Kot kabala executed by the last owner and a compromise decree passed on it are not binding on the inheritance is governed not by Art. 93 or 95 but by Art. 120. Where the plaintiff is in possession limitation starts only when some act is done on the document sought to be declared not binding on inheritance. 47 Ind. Cas. 2 (Cal.).

——Arts. 120 and 125—Avoidance of document— Hindu widow—Alienation—Suit by remote reversioner—Cause of action.

A suit by remote reversioner for declaration that an alienation by a Hindu widow is not binding on him after her lifetime, is governed by Article 120 and an allegation of collusion of the nearest reversioner will not bring it under Art. 125. 10 M.L.J. 229, Foll. The cause of action for such a suit arises on the date of alienation and the fact that the plaintiffs came to know of the collusion of the nearest reversioner subsequent to the alienation is not a ground for exemption from limitation till date of knowledge. 24 M.L.J. 183 =18 Ind. Cas. 710 cf. 41 Mad. 659=46 Ind. Cas. 202 (F.B.).

——Arts. 120 and 125—Applicability—Claims by remote reversioner.

Art. 120 applies to claims by remote reversioners whose rights to the property do not arise immediately on the death of the widow, i.e., when there are intervening reversioners Art. 125 does not apply. (1917) M.W.N. 30=5 L.W. 482=38 Ind. Cas. 270.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Alienation by widow— Suit by nearer and remote reversioners.

Art. 125 of Schedule 1 applies to an action brought by an immediate reversioner for a declaration in respect of a widow's alienation. A similar suit by a remote reversioner is governed by Art. 120 15 P.R. 1916= 198 P.W.R. 1915=33 Ind. Cas. 161.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Occupancy rights created by widow—Declaratory suit by reversioner.

Art. 125 and not Art. 120 applies to a suit for a declaration that a creation of occupancy rights by a widow is invalid as against reversionary rights of the plaintiff, and limitation commences from the time when the occupancy rights are created. A subsequent and belated objection in partition proceedings as to the partitton of the occupancy holding does not give a fresh period of limitation. 115 P.L.R. 1915=230 P.W.R. 1915=29 Ind. Cas. 789.

——Art. 120—Alienation by widow—Contest by remote reversioners.

A suit for a declaration that an alienation by a Hindu widow is not binding upon the plaintiff a remote reversioner, is governed by Art. 120 and the cause of action for the suit accrues on the date of the alienation. 37 All. 195=13 A.L.J. 196=26 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Arts. 120, 123 and 141—Suit by reversioners.

A suit by reversioners for recovery of immovable property held by a widow on the latter's death is governed by Art. 141, and a suit for movables by Art. 120. In either case Art. 123 does not apply. (1908) 10 Bom. L.R. 210.

——Arts. 120 and 125—Suit by reversioner for a declaration that possession is not adverse.

The article applicable to a suit by a reversioner for a declaration that the defendants are merely tenants in occupation of a house, is Art. 120 and not Art. 125. (1902) 26 M. 488.

26. Right to sue and Starting point of limitation.

See also NOTES 1,14,15,19,20,21,22,24,25,27, AND 29.

——Art. 120—Accrual of right to sue—Limitation —Starting point.

The date from which time begins to run according to Art. 120 is the date of the accrual of the right to sue and that means when there is an infringement of or some clear or unequivocal threat to infringe the plaintiffs' right to an account. A general request in the written statement to dismiss suit does not amount to refusal. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 216=45 Bom. L.R. 424=208 Ind. Cas. 340.

——Art. 120—Right to sue—Accrual of right.

For the purposes of Art. 120, there can be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement, or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. 33 Bom. L.R. 1033=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 500=134 Ind. Cas. 122.

——Art. 120—Right to sue

There can be no "right to sue" until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. 1930 A.L.J. 1188=32 M.L.W. 338=34 C.W.N. 1169=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 270 (P.C.).

——Art. 120—Right to sue—When accrues—Final decision of appeal.

It is not obligatory on a man to bring a perfectly vain litigation with the natural result that it would be met either by a perfect defence or that the suit would be held in suspense and await the decision of the appeal in another suit. A right to sue therefore accrues only on the final decision of the appeal in the former suit. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 6=41 P.L.R. 321=182 Ind. Cas. 342.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Decree in original Court.

For a suit under Art. 120 the starting point of limitation is the date of the first decree and not the date of the appellate decree confirming the same. 46 Cal. 670, Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 45=16 M.L.W. 285=1922 M.W.N. 561=31 M.L.T. 169=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 23.

——Art. 120—'Right to sue accrues,' meaning of.

The interpretation of the words 'when the right to sue accrues' in Art. 120 would, to a large extent, depend on the particular facts of the case to which the article is to be applied and the relief sought. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 270=34 P.L.R. 598=143 Ind. Cas. 725.

——Art. 120—The expression 'right to sue' in Art. 120 means the right to bring the particular suit with reference to which the plea of limitation is raised. 53 C.L.J. 333=A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 89=35 C.W.N. 521=(1931) A.L.J. 435=33 L.W. 707=38 Bom. ——Art. 120—Starting point.

The starting point of limitation under Art. 120 is the date on which the circumstances entitling the plaintiff to have his interests guarded first comes to his knowledge and from which date a right to sue accrues to him. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 70.

——Art. 120—A right to sue accrues whenever a person becomes clothed with a legal character entitling him to a relief which a Court of law is competent to grant. 61 Ind. Cas. 807=2 P.L.T. 556=6 P.L.J. 273=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 166.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Fresh cause of action.

Though a person allows to pass by an invasion of a right to property he is not debarred from a future suit for a future invasion. 88 P.W.R. 1910=122 P.L.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas. 528.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Fraud.

In cases in which the relief is sought on the ground of fraud, misconduct, mistake, etc., it would appear that limitation is made to commence from the time when the fraud, misconduct or mistake becomes known to the plaintiff. Article 120 being an omnibus one, the general expression employed in Col. 3, is necessitated by a variety of suits not specifically provided for coming within its purview, in some of which there would be fraud, misconduct, or mistake as part of the cause of action, but in the rest that element would be absent. It would thus be in consonance with the scheme of the Act, dealing with suits on a cause of action consisting of fraud, misconduct, etc, if the right to sue should be deemed to accrue under Art. 120 from the time of the plaintiff's knowledge of the same even in respect of suits based on similar grounds coming under that article. 120 Ind. Cas. 880=30 M.L.W. 911=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 173=58 M.L.J. 349.

——Art. 120—Sale in execution—Right to sue for Zarichaharan dues.

In the case of a custom by which in a public sale the decree-holder, judgment-debtor and purchaser of immovable property are jointly and severally liable for the payment of zarichaharan dues to the owner of the site, right to sue for such dues accrues on the confirmation of the sale and not on the date of auction sale. 1930 A.L.J. 1284=A.I.R. 1931 All. 25=52 A. 921=130 Ind. ——Art. 120—Suit for malikana—Right of action.

Article 120 is the relevant article as regards the malikana and there is no right of action at all in respect of mch a subject-matter as the malikana unless and until a certificate under the Pensions Act has been obtained. ——Art. 120—Order without jurisdiction.

Where a Magistrate passes an order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code as to the mode of possession, his order does not give a cause of action for a suit which, if not brought within the statutory period, makes that portion of the order binding between the parties, the order being without jurisdiction. The intention of the law of limitation is that if no suit is brought within the statutory period the remedy is lost and in case of an order of a competent Court it remains binding between the parties. 97 Ind. Cas. 73=30 C.W.N. 873=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1022.

——Art. 120—Construction of will—Right to sue—When accrues.

A suit for construction of a will is governed by Art. 120. The right to sue does not accrue from the death of the testator or the date of the probate of the will. But so long at least as the estate is in the hands of the executor and the administration has not been completed, the right to obtain construction of the will is a continuing right. 75 Ind. Cas. 41=37 C.L.J. 482=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 411.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Breach of conditions—Administration bond.

Where an administration bond contains several conditions, a breach of each one of the conditions gives rise to a cause of action and should, therefore, be taken to be the starting point of limitation in the case of a suit based on that particular breach. Ordinarily, the administrator's work may be said to be completed when he files his final accounts, showing how he has dealt with the estate, and these accounts have been accepted by the Court ; limitation will then begin to run. But it very often happens that there is litigation pending against the administrator and, in such a case the administrator (and consequently his surety or sureties) cannot be absolved until the close of each litigation. 33 All. 414, Diss. 8 L.B.R. 99 and 17 M.L.T. 61, Foll. 76 Ind. cas. 802=1 Rang. 463=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 68.

——Art. 120—Starting point—Liability of sureties in an administration bond.

Where an executor entered into an administration bond with two sureties whereby he undertook to exhibit an inventory in a certain time with the proviso that the obligation was to continue in force till the executor fulfilled the duties of administrator and the executor subsequently died the limitation for a suit to enforce the liability of the sureties runs from the death of the executor and not from the date of breach of obligation to exhibit an inventory. 33 All. 414= 8 A.L.J. 199=9 Ind. Cas. 935.

——Art. 120—Fresh cause of action—Application for review.

A petition in appeal of necessity re-opens in a Court of higher jurisdiction matter decided by a Court of lower jurisdiction. An application for review on the other hand does not of necessity, by the mere fact of its being filed, re-open questions settled between the parties by the same Court. The question whether an application for review will give a fresh starting point for limitation or not cannot be decided in the abstract but must depend on the facts of every case. If the application for review is not accepted and the Court refuses to re-open the matter no fresh starting point will be obtained by the applicant for the purposes of limitation. 24 O.C. 280=8 O.L.J. 399=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 148.

——Art. 120—No doubt where once time has begun to run no subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it, 35 All. 227 (P.C.), Foll. ; but where the claim in respect of which time has begun to run is satisfied, time ceases to run and on the annulment of the satisfaction a fresh cause of action arises and the statute begins to run afresh from the date of such annulment. 43 Mad. 845, Foll. 64 Ind. Cas. 454=2 Lah. 320= 114 P.L.R. 1921=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 71.

——Art. 120—Landlord and tenant—Limitation—Starting point.

The right to file a suit to challenge the decision of the Revenue Court that the tenant is more than an ordinary tenant accrues on the date of the order of the Revenue Court. The subsequent issue of an abortive notice by the landlord does not give a fresh cause of action. 48 Ind. Cas. 301 (Oudh).

27. Shares.

See also NOTES 2 AND 20.

——Art. 120—Suit for share of income—Limitation—Starting point.

When once the parties are found to have become divided in status and one of them continues in actual possession, and further, when there is a demand for division of that property and a reply is sent by the person in possession saying that he has no objection to the property being divided, he is clearly accountable to the other sharers for their shares in the income of that property. Art. 120 applies to a suit for a share in such income and the period of six years starts from the time when the right of the plaintiff is denied or from the time when there is ouster. In the absence of ouster or assertion of hostile title to the knowledge of the plaintiff, the plaintiff's right to share in the income is not confined to period of six years before the date of suit but he is entitled to a share in the income from the date of division in status. 1942 M.W.N. 239=55 M.L.W. 196=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 408=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 514=202 Ind. ——Art. 120—A plaintiff's suit for recovery of his share of property from co-legatee is governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 253=36 C.W.N. 758=55 C.L.J. 420=143 Ind. Cas. 402.

——Art. 120—Co-legatee—Share of movable property.

A suit for recovery of plaintiff's share of movable property in possession of co-legatee is governed, for purposes of limitation, by Art. 120, Limitation Act, and not by Arts. 49, 62 or 123 of that Act. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 253=36 C.W.N. 758=55 C.L.J. 410= 143 Ind. Cas. 402.

——Art. 120—Share—Outstandings received by divided brothers.

When after partition one brother is recovering outstandings originally due to the joint family there must be an implied contract of agency between one brother and the other and a suit by the other brother for rendition of accounts and recovery of his share of the joint outstandings is governed not by Art. 62 or Art. 120, but by Art. 89. 116 Ind. Cas. 327=30 P.L.R. 275=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 407.

——Art. 120—Suit for—Share—Tenants-in-common.

Where there has been no division of shares between tenants, they must be regarded as tenants-in-common and where one tenant-in-common sues another tenant-in-common for the recovery of money received by him in excess of his share, the suit is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 62. 40 Mad. 491=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 150 (F.B.), Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 99=5 O.W.N. 1122=4 Luck. 265=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh. 83.

——Art. 120—Suit after partition.

Where after the passing of a decree in a partition suit one member of a joint family recovered the amount of rent and the mortgage-debt on behalf of the family by purchasing certain property :

Held, that a suit by the other member to recover their share of the property was governed either by Art. 89 or Art. 120 and that in the latter case time would begin to run from the date when an account was demanded and refused. 113 Ind. Cas. 173= 30 Bom. L.R. 912=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 365.

——Art. 120—Share of mortgage-money received by co-mortgagor.

A suit by one co-mortgagee against another co-mortgagee to recover his share of the mortgage-money received from the mortgagor is covered by

Art. 120 and limitation runs from the date when money was received from the mortgagor. 79 Ind. Cas. 294=5 L.L.J. 111=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 196.

——Art. 120—Heir of deceased—Suit for share of property.

A suit by a person claiming as heir of a deceased person for a share of his property is governed by Art. 120 of the Act and not by Arts. 49 and 123. 63 Ind. Cas. 685=14 S.L.R. 137.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Suit for share—Mortgage-debt collected by co-heirs—Continuing right.

In a suit for partition by a Mahomedan lady against her co-heir, one of the claims was in respect of the amount of the mortgage-debt due to the deceased and collected by the Defendants more than 6 years before the suit.

Held, that Art. 120 and not Art. 62 applied to the case, the right to sue accrued from day to day and therefore the action was not barred. 30 M.L.J. 104=19 M.L.T. 88=32 Ind. Cas. 83.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for share—Movables and immovables.

To a suit brought by one of the heirs to recover his share of the estate left by a Muhammadan who died intestate. Art. 144 applies if the property is immoveable and Art. 120 if moveables. 34 M. 514, foll. 29 Ind. Cas. 275 (Mad.).

——Arts. 120 and 62—Suit for share—Property managed by one member—Receipt of money by that member—Hindu family.

Three brothers owned specific shares in certain property and did not constitute a joint Hindu family. The management of the affairs of the family was entrusted to one member who received the rents and profits of the immoveable property and invested and otherwise dealt with them. More than three years after the receipt of the invested money, the widow of another brother sued him for actual partition.

Held, the money having been received by the defendant in his capacity of manager, though not of a Hindu joint family, the claim was governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Semble :—If the suit had been a suit simply to recover this sum of money it ought to have been brought within three years under Art. 62. 37 All. 318=13 A.L.J. 407=28 Ind. Cas. 953.

——Arts. 120 and 123—Suit for share against administrator.

Suit by widow for her distributive share of the property of her intestate deceased husband against the person who obtained letters of administration is governed by Art. 120 or 123 and time runs from the date of judgment directing the issue of the letters of administration to the defendant. 15 C.W.N. 107=13 C.L.J. 239=7 Ind. Cas. 704.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Suit for share—Movables and immovables.

A suit by a Muhammadan for a share of the wife's property in possession of another sharer more than 12 years after the wife's death is governed by Art. 120 if the property is moveable and by Art. 144 if it is immoveable. 15 M. 60, Dissented from. 34 Mad. 511 =(1910) M.W.N. 447=20 M.L.J. 288=8 M.L.T. 4= 6 Ind. ——Arts. 120 and 127—Mahomedan Law—Suit to recover share in joint family property.

Where on the death of a Mahomedan, the plaintiff, his daughter, claimed her share by inheritance in properties alleged to be the properties of the joint family of the plaintiff and her brothers, and it was found that she had ceased to be a member of the family since her marriage :

Held, that Art. 120 and not 127 applied. 14 B. 70, dissented from. (1901) 7 C.W.N. 155. [See under ART. 123 AND ART. 127—Ed.]

28. Taxes and Fees.

——Art. 120—Recovery of arrears of income-tax.

If S. 46 of the Act is not exhaustive, the arrears of income-tax for the year 1930-31 remaining due can be legally recoverable in 1935. A suit for recovery of these arrears would lie and would be governed by Art. 120, if not by Art. 149 of the Limitation Act and the Income-tax Officer would be perfectly entitled under S. 49-A of the Income-tax Act to deduct that amount from the sum which was refundable to the assessee on account of income-tax for the year 1932-33. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 87=8 B.R. 13=196 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Arts. 120, 37 and 115—Suit by District Board for realising tax.

A suit brought by the District Board for realising a certain amount as tax on circumstances and property, is not really a suit for recovery of money but for the recovery of a liability under a particular statute and does not fall within the purview of Arts. 37 or 115 but is governed by Art. 120. ——Art. 120—Terminal tax, suit for recovery of.

A suit for the recovery of terminal tax is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 48=173 Ind. Cas. 678.

——Arts. 120 and 132—Charge for taxes—Suit to enforce.

Suit by Municipality under S. 177, U.P. Municipal Act to enforce charge for taxes is governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 All. 510= 1939 A.W.R. 261.

——Art. 120—License fee levied by Municipality.

A suit for recovery of license fee levied by the Municipality under S. 180 of the B. & O. Municipal Act is governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 115 of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 192=4 B.R. 523= 175 Ind. Cas. 86.

——Art. 120—Municipal dues.

Article 120 does not apply to a suit for recovery of dues under the Bihar and Orissa Municipality Act. 18 P.L.T. 252=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 360=3 B.R. 561= 16 Pat. 302=169 Ind. Cas. 364.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Applicability—Suit for recovery of a certain sum of money said to represent the plaintiff's share of the sale proceeds of a site purchased in the name of the defendant by the defendant and the plaintiff's father——Limitation.

The plaintiff's suit was for recovery of a certain sum of money said to represent the plaintiff's share of the sale proceeds of a site purchased by the first defendant and the father of the plaintiff in the name of the first defendant only. The properties sold were two items, one sold in August, 1938, and the other in February, 1939. The suit was laid on 8th December, 1944.

Held, on account of the jural relationship between the parties a resulting trust can be postulated and any claim based on such relationship must be treated as excluded from Art. 62 and must be brought under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. It cannot be said that where an account is not called for the suit must necessarily be treated as one falling under Art. 62 and therefore not being within Art. 120.

It cannot be said that a suit filed within six years from the date of plaintiff's knowledge of the sales will be in time.

Accordingly the claim in respect of the sale of February, 1939, is within time though in respect of the sale of August, 1938, it is barred. (1950) 2 M.L.J. 611.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Suit by trustee against beneficiary to recover movable property—Limitation—Starting point. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 48, 49 AND 120. A.I.R. 1949 Assam 10.

——Art. 120—Trustee declaring that he proposes to hold property as full owner—It does not start limitation running against beneficiaries.

A suit for a declaration does not lie for setting aside a mere assertion. A trustee cannot by his declaration that he has committed or is about to commit a breach of trust, prejudice the rights of the beneficiaries and claim that as from the date of his declaration he began to hold adversely to the trust. A declaration by the trustee to hold the property as full owner is not an overt act which would start limitation running against the beneficiaries of a trust. I.L.R. (1946) Lah 300=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 117.

——Art. 120—Applicability—Claim against a benamidar in respect of moneys received and held by him for the benefit of the real owner. See LIMITATION ACT (9 OF 1908), ARTS 62 AND 120. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 140 =A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 248.

——Art. 120—Suit on basis of benami transactions.

Although there is no express trust in a benami transaction, there is a trust and a person receiving the property with the knowledge of the true position will take it subject to the trust.

K executed in favour of A benami for B a promissory note. A assigned it to C who had knowledge of the benami character and paid no consideration. C recovered from K the amounts due under the said promissory note. Subsequently, B instituted a suit against A and C to recover from them the amount recovered from K :

Held (i) that A was a trustee for B, the relationship between a benamidar and the real owner being a relationship of trust ;

(ii) that A having converted the trust property, B was entitled to trace the proceeds of the property in the hands of C ; and

(iii) that the claim against C was an equitable claim and was governed by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 767 (2)=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 222=54 L.W. 115= 1941 M.W.N. 727=200 Ind. Cas. 249.

——Art. 120—Suit to recover trust property from person taking it from trustee by transaction amounting to breach of trust—Suit is governed by Art. 120—Limitation starts from date of knowledge of transaction.

A suit to recover trust property from a person who has taken it with notice of the trust by a transaction with the trustee which was a breach of trust on his part and with notice that it was a breach of trust is governed by Art. 120 and time begins to run from the date when the plaintiff had knowledge of the transaction. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 519= (1946) 1 M.L.J. 31=I.L.R. (1946) Mad. 429=1946 M.W.N. 9.

——Art. 120—Suit for declaration against defendants not as trustees but as rival beneficiaries.

The plaintiff brought a suit against the defendants trustees as if they were beneficiaries of the trust receiving the money in their own right for their own private expenditure and prayed for a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to receive that money in the same capacity as the defendants :

Held, that as the suit was for a declaration against the defendants not as trustees but as rival beneficiaries under the trust, it came, not under S. 10 but Art. 120. A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 139=1944 O.W.N. 37=1944 A.W.R. 11=19 Luck. 515=216 Ind. Cas. 276.

——Art. 120—Plaintiff drawing hundi payable to bearer S on Bank, and endorsed to be credited to certain charities—Bank opening account in name of charities—Subsequent transfer of account in favour of S on account of overdraft—Suit by plaintiff against Bank for refund of charities of money on footing that S committed breach of trust and that Bank had notice of it—Art. 120 and not Art. 36 applied—Limitation started from the time of the plaintiff's knowledge of fraud, misconduct or mistake. A.I.R. 1941 P.C. 1=7 B.R. 466=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 393=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 175=45 C.W.N. 385=53 L.W. 522=43 Bom. L.R. 440=73 C.L.J. 166=1941 M.W.N. 571=67 I.A. 448=(1941) Kar. (P.C.) 1 (Sup.)=192 Ind. ——Art. 120—Suit by subscribers of a fund for recovery of their shares.

A suit by the subscribers of the fund held in trust for a particular purpose which fails or comes to an end, brought to recover their shares in the fund is governed by Art. 120 and time runs from the date when there was a failure of the purpose and the resulting trust thereupon arose. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 641= 47 M.L.W. 389=(1938) M.W.N. 310=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 616=181 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Art. 120—Suit against Government in respect of money deposited in treasury in pursuance of order under S. 146, Criminal P. C.—Limitation.

In 1909, there were disputes between the plaintiff and his father as to the possession of certain lands, the father claiming them to be his self-acquisition and the plaintiff claiming them to be ancestral property in his possession. To avoid a breach of the peace, the Magistrate passed an order under S. 146, Criminal P. C., early in 1910, but instead of appointing a Receiver to manage the property, the Magistrate got the lands cultivated by somebody else and the sale-proceeds were being deposited in the treasury. The father died somewhere about 1915. In 1927, the plaintiff sent a lawyer's notice to the Collector asking for payment of the money alleged to represent the income deposited in treasury during 1910 to 1917 and threatened to sue in default of payment. The Collector as usual replied that the threatened suit would be awaited. The plaintiff's right was not denied at any earlier stage. Plaintiff then filed a suit :

Held, that as the only dispute was between the father and the son and on the father's death the son became undisputedly entitled to the property, it was not necessary to file a suit to obtain a declaration.

Held, also that though the Government might not be regarded as a trustee within the meaning of S. 10, Limitation Act, they were at least in the position of stake-holders and never claimed to hold the money for themselves. Article 120, therefore, applied to the suit and the suit was not barred by limitation as there was no denial of the plaintiff's right by Government more than six years of the date of suit. Even if the Collector's reply to plaintiff's notice could be regarded as denial, the suit was within time. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 787=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 296=46 L.W. 632=177 Ind. Cas. 163.

——Arts. 120 and 62—Assignment of mortgage bond to member of joint family by karta—Money actually received before assignment—Suit on mortgage bond.

The plaintiff, who was a member of a joint Hindu family was assigned a mortgage bond by the defendant who was the karta of the family at the partition in 1929. The bond, however, was repaid in fact in 1922. An action was brought by the plaintiff on the mortgage against the mortgagors and the karta :

Held, that this being merely a case of conversion by the karta or a case where having held the money for many years from the date of the partition, he must be said to hold it in trust for the plaintiff in which even Art. 120 would apply and not Art. 62. 1 B.R. 659=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 159=156 Ind. Cas. 887.

——Art. 120—Suit for recovery of donation on failure of object of donation.

A suit by the donor for the refund of the donation on the failure of the scheme for which the donation was made is governed for purposes of limitation by Art. 120 and the limitation starts from the date on which the fund is diverted to another purpose. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh. 329=11 O.W.N. 937=150 Ind. Cas. 713.

——Art. 120—Loss occasioned to trust—Suit to make it good—Starting point of limitation.

Article 120 is the proper article applicable to a suit file against a trustee or ex-trustee to recover the loss sustained by the trust by reason of his omission to collect moneys due to the trust and not Art. 36.

If a sole trustee of a public trust commits a breach of trust, the loss cannot be made good, without voluntary action of the trustee's part, until there is a new trustee. The right to sue in such a case would have to lie in abeyance until a new trustee was appointed, in which case the period of six years' limitation would not commence until a new trustee had been appointed. If there are other trustees who are themselves not liable, the period of limitation will start running immediately the loss is occasioned because they will have in themselves the right to sue their co-trustee for the loss occasioned by him. Of course, if the co-trustees have also made themselves liable for the breach of trust, the position would be the same as in the case of a defaulting sole trustee. In the case of a private trust, the cestui que trust would ordinarily have the right to sue from the date of the breach trust. It will, therefore, depend on the circumstances when time will commence to run. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 353=(1938) M.W.N. 229=47 M.L.W. 344=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 334=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 586=174 Ind. Cas. 459 (F.B.)

——Art. 120—Claim for damages—Limitation—Starting point.

A claim to damages for alleged breaches of trust in management of trust property is governed by Art. 120, the time running from the date of the breach and not from the date of loss consequent thereon. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 30=37 Bom. L.R. 946=160 Ind. Cas. 612.

——Art. 120—Suit by worshippers against alienees for ejectment—Limitation.

Article 134 does not apply to a suit by worshippers against aliences for ejectment as a Hindu religious endowment does not constitute a trust within the meaning of this article and the suit is not for possession but merely for ejectment of the alienees. The article applicable to such a suit is the residuary Art. 120. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 784=165 Ind. Cas. 48.

——Art. 120—Suit for recovery of trust money—Starting point of limitation.

The defendant was the trustee of a temple and the plaintiffs succeeded him in 1922. The plaintiffs filed a suit in 1923 to recover from the defendant a certain sum of money which the latter had taken from temple funds for the expenses of a litigation to remove him from the trusteeship and to have a scheme framed :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 120 and not by S. 10, or Art. 61 or 62. The cause of action arose only when the defendant ceased to be a trustee and the suit was not time-barred. 40 L.W. 275=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 542=(1934) M.W.N. 1032=152 Ind. Cas. 345.

——Art. 120—Suit to declare decree not binding—Cause of action—When arises.

A suit for a declaration by a trustee that a decree obtained on a simple mortgage in respect of trust properties, executed by the plaintiff's adoptive father who was then trustee, is not binding on the trust property, is in time if brought within six years from the date of the institution of the prior mortgage suit. (1932) M.W.N. 321=A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 589=35 L.W. 350=137 Ind. Cas. 707.

——Art. 120—Agreement between adoptive father and natural father of the plaintiff to devise property to adopted son—Breach—Suit by son for possession against adoptive father's heirs.

Held, that the only remedy of a beneficiary would have been to sue the trustee for a conveyance and such a suit should have been instituted within six years under Art. 120, Limitation Act. 61 N.L.J. 78=35 C.W.N. 953=8 O.W.N. 905=(1931) A.L.J. 783=A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 196=34 L.W. 411=33 Bom. ——Art. 120—Trusts—Created by will.

A executed a will in 1887 which provided that income of certain two properties (a khothi and some land) should be given to B and his mother by way of allowance. It w s further provided that in case the kothi was sold B and his mother would receive Rs. 40 in lieu of the income of the two properties.

In 1908 there was an agreement between the beneficiaries and the then executor, the result of which was that the kothi could be sold and B and his mother were to receive Rs. 40 per mensem as their allowance. B's mother died in 1919 and he brought the present suit for arrears of allowance.

Held, that taken as a whole B's suit in substance and reality was based upon the trust created in his favour under the will of 1887 and therefore the suit did not fall under Art. 115. The case was governed by Art. 120 or Art. 123, and the suit was within time. Under the terms of the will B was entitled to sue for the whole amount for his own benefit after the death of the mother and not only for a moiety. 30 P.L.R. 689=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 834.

——Art. 120—Suit by co-trustee against legal representatives of his co-trustee for recovery of trust property is governed by Art. 120. Section 10 does not apply to such a case. 103 Ind. Cas. 225=29 Bom. L R. 418=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 424.

——Art. 120—A suit to contest alienation by a Mahomedan Mutwalli and for possession must be brought within 6 years from the date of alienation. 74 Ind. Cas. 403=2 Pat. 391=4 P.L.T. 675=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 475.

——Arts. 120 and 144—Trust—Prescriptive right to trusteeship—Trust properties.

A prescriptive right to trusteeship can be acquired by six years' adverse possession of it under Art. 120. 19 C. 776, approved. Recovery of immoveable properties attached to the office is governed by the same article and not by Art. 144. 6 M.H.C.R. 301, foll. (1902) 26 M. 113.

——Art. 121—Suit by assignee from purchser at revenue sale to set aside encumbrance. See 12 C.W.N. 1029.

——Art. 121—Applicability.

A suit by an auction-purchaser at a revenue sale under S. 80 of Assam Land Regulation to recover possession of the purchased property is governed not by Art. 121 but by Art. 142 or 144, and the fact that symbolical possession was obtained is a good defence so far as any defaulting proprietor was concerned if the suit is brought within 12 years from such possession. 44 Cal. 412, Appl. 115 Ind. Cas. 606=32 C.W.N. 778=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 870.

——Art. 121—Burden of proof—Sale under Bengal Act 11 of 1859—Suit to avoid under-tenure—Limitation.

In a suit by an auction-purchaser of an estate at a sale under Bengal Land Revenue Sales Act to avoid an under-tenure, if the defendant raises the plea that the suit is barred under Art. 121 the plaintiff should show when, as a matter of fact, the sale became final and conclusive. 51 Ind. Cas. 50 (Cal.).

——Art. 121—Burden of proof.

A purchaser of a Patni Taluq relying upon Art. 121 of Schedule II of Act 15 of 1877 must establish that the incumbrance he seeks to annul is one due to adverse possession commencing after the creation of the patni. 25 C. 167, foll. 19 C.W.N. 18=21 C.L.J. 265=26 Ind. Cas. 436.

——Arts. 121 and 142—Incumbrance—Adverse possession by trespasser.

The interest acquired in a property by adverse possession is not an incumbrance within Art. 121. Hence a suit by the auction-purchaser in a revenue sale to recover possession of the land so held in adverse possession comes under Art. 142 and not Art. 121. 44 Cal. 412=25 C.L.J. 99=21 C.W.N. 537=39 Ind. Cas. 213.

——Art. 121—Encumbrance—Meaning of—Adverse possession for statutory period before sale if incumbrance—Assam Land and Revenue Regn. (1 of 1886) S. 70.

Prescriptive title acquired before sale under S. 70 of the Assam Land and Revenue Regulation, 1886, is an encumbrance within Art. 121 of the Limitation Act. 22 Cal. 244; 25 Cal. 167, foll. 43 Cal. 779=31 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Art. 122—Scope—Right of suit—Order of insolvency of judgment of High Court—Suit on order—Limitation Act, Art. 122—Interest.

An order of the High Court in the exercise of its insolvency jurisdiction is a judgment of the High Court and a suit based upon such order is maintainable. Such a suit is governed by Art. 122, Schedule 11, of the Limitation Act. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 952=33 Cal. 560.

——Art. 123.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability and Scope.
2. Starting point.
3. Suit by Co-heir.

1. Applicability and Scope.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit, held fell under Art. 123.

Article 123 applies only where the suit is against an executor, or administrator or some persons legally charged with the duty of distributing the estate.

H, by his will, bequeathed his property to G on condition that G paid Rs. 10 monthly to H's widow and spent Rs. 300 on her funeral. On G's death, his son continued to pay Rs. 10 monthly to H's widow for some time. On the widow's death, her sister obtained a succession certificate and sued the son of G for the arrears of maintenance due to the widow and Rs. 300 which the plaintiff claimed to have spent over the widow's funeral.

Held, that the suit fell within Art. 123. A.I.R. 1943 Pesh. 11=205 Ind. Cas. 197.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit against trustee of estate for money bequeathed.

A suit by the plaintiff to recover from the trustee of the estate of the deceased testator, a sum of money alleged to have been bequeathed to him under the testator's will coupled with a prayer for declarations which are wholly unnecessary and merely constitute the grounds of the plaintiff's claim to the decree for the amount sought to be recovered, does not fall under S. 10, but is governed by Art. 123, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 145=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 392=208 Ind. Cas. 230.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Person liable to pay legacy need not be executor or administrator.

The words "payable," and "deliverable" in the third column of Art. 123 indicate that there must be some person who is under a duty to pay the legacy or to deliver the distributive shares. It is not necessary, however, that the persons liable to pay must be executors or administrators. They must be persons in possession of the estate and legally bound to pay the legacy or hand over the distributive shares. Where, therefore, a testator has, in his will, directed that the person in possession of his estate should pay certain allowance to certain person, a suit to recover the allowance is governed by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 221=186 Ind. Cas. 843.

——Arts. 123 and 120—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123, applies to an application for recovering an annuity payable under a will and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 254=6 B.R. 224=185 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Claim for annuity.

Where a person entitled to receive an annuity under the terms of a will files a suit against the executor of the will for recovery of the arrears of the annuity, the suit is governed by Art. 123, Limitation Act, and the plaintiff can recover only such annuities as were not paid within 12 years of the date of such suit. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 600=19 P.L.T. 202=17 Pat. 350=5 B.R. 551=181 Ind. Cas. 283.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123 does not apply to the claims of profits in estate of a deceased person in respect of movable properties. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 416=178 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Bequest for charitable uses—Some property omitted in will—Such property not set apart for specific purpose—Suit for its recovery is governed by Art. 123, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 30=37 Bom. L.R. 946=160 Ind. Cas. 612.

——Arts. 123, 144 and S. 28—Applicability and Scope—Sale by father and his second wife in 1931—Suit for possession by purchaser in 1933—Claim of son by first wife that he had right in such property.

The respondent was the son of M and his first wife, having been born in August 1908, M's first wife died in 1914 and about a year later, he married another woman N. In November, 1931, M and N executed a registered deed of sale of the property in suit in favour of the appellant. When the appellant sued to recover possession of the property by virtue of the sale, the respondent put forward the claim that as the property in suit formed the estate of M and his first wife, he acquired a vested interest in it upon the re-marriage of M with N :

Held, that to such a claim, Art. 123 was applicable and not Art. 144 and that the claim preferred by the respondent had long been extinguished by the time he asserted the same in Court. 158 Ind. Cas. 118.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

A suit for recovery of a legacy from persons in possession of the estate who are legally bound to pay the same is governed by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1935 All. 239 =(1934) A.L.J. 230=56 A. 711=3 A.W.R. 397= 155 Ind. Cas. 390.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123 applies only in the case of a suit against an executor or administrator or some person legally charged with the duty of distributing the estate. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 318=12 R. 409=152 Ind. Cas. 768.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123 only applies to a suit brought against an executor or administrator or some person legally charged with the duty of distributing the estate. (1932) A.L.J. 245=34 Bom. L.R. 510=36 C.W.N. 310=62 M.L.J. 371=A.I.R. 1932 P.C. 81=9 O.W.N. 399=35 L.W. 464=55 C.L.J. 420=51 A. 93=59 I.A. 74=136 Ind. Cas. 454 (P.C.).

Impliedly over-rules—A. I. R. 1918 Bom. 54=51 Ind. Cas. 209.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit by heires against trespassers.

A suit by the heirs of a deceased proprietor for recovery of possession of property from persons alleged to be in possession without any title to the property and who were not entitled to represent or to be treated as heirs of the proprietor is not governed for purposes of limitation by Art. 123. 10 R. 82= A.I.R. 1932 Rang. 55=137 Ind. Cas. 200.

——Arts. 123 and 62—Applicability and Scope—Arrears of maintenance.

Where the amount of maintenance granted under a will is to come out of the income of particular property and the defendants are in possession of the property under the will, the proper article of the Limitation Act to apply to a suit for arrears of such maintenance against the defendants is Art. 123 and not Art. 62. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 670=35 C.W.N. 307=132 Ind. Cas. 684.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

The word "distribution" has a peculiar meaning of distribution of an estate which has vested in an executor or administrator. Article 144 and not Art. 123 therefore applies to a suit to recover a share by a Mahomedan heir from a person in management of the property. A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 56, Foll; 118 Ind. Cas. 785=31 Bom. L.R. 199=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 141.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Trust created by will.

Suit based on trust created by will falls under Art. 120 or Art. 123 and not under Limitation Act, Art. 115. 30 P.L.R. 689=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 834.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Executor de son tort.

A suit by an administrator of an intestate person against an executor de son tort is governed by Art. 123 and the latter is liable to account for mesne profits for a period of 12 years before suit. A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 681=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 457 (F.B.)=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 105=A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 145 (P.C.) and 43 Bom. 845, Rel. on. 30 P.L.R. 503=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 753.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Executor de son tort.

A Hindu died leaving a Will whereby his self-acquired properties were divided equally between his minor grandson, the plaintiff, and his own third son, the defendant. Testator's widow was appointed executrix by the Will. After the death of the testator, when the widow was alive, the defendant took up the management and continued to do so till after widow's death. Plaintiff after attaining majority filed a suit for account and mesne profits against defendant in 1922 :

Held, that defendant was in the position of an executor de son tort after the death of the testator and Art. 123 applied. 95 Ind. Cas. 33=23 M.L.W. 528=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 681.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123 applies to every suit in which the plaintiff claims an undistributed share in the estate of a deceased person and not only to suits against persons representing the estate of the deceased such as executors or administrators. 44 Cal. 379 (P.C.) and A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 457 (F.B.), foll. 19 All. 169 and 37 All. 233, Not foll. 97 Ind Cas. 139=A.I.R. 1926 All. 748.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Article 123 applies only to cases in which the property sought to be recovered is not only legacy but is also sought to be recovered as such from a person who is bound by law to pay such legacy, either because he is executor of the Will or otherwise represents the estate of testator. 91 Ind. Cas. 725=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 480.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope.

Where a distributive share in the estate of a deceased is claimed, whether against an Administrator or a co-heir, or a person merely in possession the article applicable is Art. 123. Where co-heirs agree to enjoy the property left by the deceased jointly without effecting a partition, Art. 142 or Art. 144 of the Limitation Act will apply. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 155 and A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 233, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 514=5 Bur. L.J. 4=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 95.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit against co-legatee.

One died in 1910 leaving the whole of his property to his two sons G and B by a will. The two legatees lived at peace with each other until recently and in the year 1919, G brought a suit against his elder brother B, for his share in the estate, which he said B had appropriated in its entirety.

Held, that Art. 123 applied and that the suit was in time. 75 Ind. Cas. 934=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 561.

——Art. 123—Appliciablity and Scope—Suit for undistributed share on intestacy—Limitation.

A suit to recover an undistributed share in the estate of an intestate is governed by Art. 123 of the Limitation Act. 43 Bom. 845=21 Bom. L R. 384=51 Ind. Cas. 209.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Buddhist law—Burmese—Claim as aurasa Child to one fourth share.

The claim of an aurasa child to one fourth share is governed by Art. 123. 42 Ind. Cas. 809 (L.B.).

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit by residuary legatee.

A suit by the residuary legatee to recover her legacy falls under Art. 123 of the Limitation Act. 41 Cal. 271=25 Ind. Cas. 370.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit for legacy.

A suit for the recovery of a legacy falls under Art. 123 of Limitation Act, 1877. 36 Bom. 111=13 Bom. L.R. 1025=12 Ind. Cas. 702.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit for share of estate.

A suit for share of an estate while the defendant is bound by law to distribute is governed by Art. 123. 34 Mad. 511=20 M.L.J. 288=8 M.L.T. 4=(1910) M.W.N. 447=6 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Suit for share of legacy.

The Article applies where a legacy or share is to be obtained from the executor of the will or a legal respresentative. 5 N.L.R. 41=2 Ind. Cas. 15.

——Art. 123—Applicability and Scope—Legacy in satisfaction of indebtedness by testator to plaintiff—Claim for legacy with ancillary claim for administration of estate.

A testator provided by his will dated 27th April, 1887, that his elder brother's money was kept with him, and that it should be given to him. He died on 14th September, 1888. In January, 1897, plaintiff got Rs. 600 and on 9th May, 1899, he sued the son and executor, claiming an account of the testator's property, that the estate might be administered by the court, and that the balance of principal and interest might be paid to plaintiff. The plea was that the sum was either a loan by plaintiff to the deceased, or a deposit payable on demand, and that a suit for it was barred ; and also the plaintiff was estopped as he had disputed the validity of the will and claimed a share in the testator's property :

Held, (1) The bequest was a legacy in satisfaction of the indebtedness of the testator to plaintiff. (2) Though the plaintiff asked for an administration of the estate, that prayer was only ancillary to the claim for a legacy, and so Art. 123, and not Art. 120, applied. (3) There was no estoppel and his right to the legacy was not affected by the claim. (1902) 12 M.L.J. 183=25 M. 361.

2. Starting point.

——Art. 123—Starting point—Testator by will directing son to pay legacy on attaining majority—Son dying before attaining majority—Effect.

(Obiter).—Where a testator by his will directs his son to pay a legacy to his daughter on attaining majority and the son dies before attaining majority, a suit, claiming the legacy instituted more than twelve years after the date on which the son would have attained majority will be barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1946 P.C. 185=227 Ind. Cas. 12=59 M.L.W. 681=(1946) 2 M.L J. 708=13 B.R. 36=1946 A.L.J. 491=51 C.W.N. 205=43 I.A. 264=1946 A.W.R.P.C. 205=I.L.R. (1947) Mad. 159=1946 Pesh. L.J. P.C. 185 (P.C.).

——Arts. 123 and 131—Applicability—Starting point of limitation—Annuity payable under will in the nature of legacy—Repudiation of right to—Suit to recover—Limitation.

Where the right to receive an annuity under a will is repudiated, Art. 131 of the Limitation Act and not Art. 123 applies to a suit to recover such annuity. A suit to recover such annuity brought after 12 years from the date of repudiation is barred by limitation, even if the annuity is in the nature of a legacy. Once the right to receive recurring payment is repudiated, Art. 131 is the appropriated article to be applied. A person who has taken no action for more than 12 years since the denial or repudiation cannot claim to enforce his right after the lapse of the period of limitation fixed by Art. 131 and say that under Art. 123, he is entitled to the annuity for the last 12 years. 25 Pat. 311=229 Ind. Cas. 348= A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 47=13 B.R. 314.

——Arts. 123, 89 and 62—Starting point of limitation—Defendant undertaking to distribute sale proceeds amongst heirs of deceased—Suit by one of heirs for his share—Article applicable—Time, when runs.

Where the estate of a deceased Muhammadan was sold in accordance with the wishes of majority of the heirs and the sale proceeds were kept with the defendant for distribution to the heirs according to their shares, a suit for the recovery of his share by one of the heirs cannot be regarded either as one for the administration of the estate or as a suit against a person legally charged with the duty of distributing any portion of it under Art. 123 or as suit by principal against agent under Art. 89. To such a suit article applicable is Art. 62 and the time runs from the date when the defendant received the money and not from the time of the plaintiff's knowledge that the defendant had received the money. 1945 M.W.N. 671=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 422=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 116=58 L.W. 555=224 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 123—" Payable," starting point of.

A legacy or share in a legacy does not become 'payable' until the executor or other person liable to pay it has in his hands money with which it could be paid. Hence, where land bequeathed is subject to mortgage and the executor is directed to pay off the mortgage and deliver the land to the legatee free of the mortgage, time under Art. 123, Limitation Act, for a suit by the legatee to enforce delivery of the land runs from the date on which the mortgage is paid off by the executor. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 276=56 L.W. 21=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 36=1943 M.W.N. 78=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 477=210 Ind. Cas. 89.

——Art. 123—Starting point.

Suit instituted in 1937—Plaint amended on November 7, 1940, whereby suit becoming one by legatee to recover his legacy pure and simple—Suit, held must be taken to have been instituted on date of amendment and 12 year's period under Art. 123 must date back from that date. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 145=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 392=208 Ind. Cas. 230.

——Art. 123—Starting point.

A suit by husband to recover deceased wife's share in her father's property is barred if brought 12 years after the death of her mother. 101 Ind. Cas. 634=5 Rang. 125=6 Bur. L.J. 55=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 143.

——Art. 123—" Payable "—Starting point.

A similar interpretation must be to the words " payable," and " deliverable " as used in Art. 123 and a share in the property of an intestate would not be deliverable until the administrator, to whom letters of administration had been granted had in his hands the share to be delivered and, similarly, a legacy or share in a legacy does not become payable until the executor or other person liable to pay it has in his hands money with which it could be paid.

A Hindu widow claimed certain property as the heir of her predeceased natural born son. She bequeathed by will, the income of the property before her death. Her title was disputed by another lady who claimed to be the adoptive mother of the deceased son. The validity of the adoption was challenged by the natural mother and the matter was before the Courts. The estate was under the management of the Court of Wards, and later, of Court Receivers.

Held, that no one could have had in his possession or control any fund representing the income of the estate, which the natural mother (the testatrix) had a right to enjoy for her own use but had not received until it had been finally decided by the Courts that the adoption of the propositus by the rival claimant was invalid, and that therefore, for suits to obtain payment of the legacies under the will, time began to run only from the date of the decision of the Privy Council. 87 Ind. Cas. 324=52. I.A. 214=1925 M.W.N. 441=3 Pat. L.R. 208=29 C.W.N. 989=23 A.L.J. 261=6 L.R.P.C. 82=48 Mad. 312=27 Bom. L.R. 823=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 105=48 M.L.J. 627 (P.C.).

——Art. 123—Burmese Buddhists—Claim for share by sons of first marriage on death of step-mother—Starting point is the date of death of step-mother.

On the death of his father an orasa son is entitled to claim ¼ of the property. But if he does not exercise that right and his mother does not die till more than twelve years after the death of his father, he is not barred by the Law of Limitation from claiming a share of inheritance on the death of his mother. Similarly the failure of the plaintiffs to exercise the right to partition on the death of their father, does not debar them from claiming an entirely separate right on the death of their step-mother who re-married their father and had also children of her first marriage. 77 Ind. Cas. 53=4 U.B.R. 140=1 Bur. L.J. 267=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 110.

——Art. 123—" Payable "—Starting point of limitation.

V, mother of N, after his death brought a suit for possession of his property. Pending the suit she died in 1899, but the suit was continued by defendants. By her will she had bequeathed her certain legacies which were to be paid out of the accumulation of the estate. The property was in the possession of a Court of Wards and the income was accumulating. During the pendency of the suit the accumulated income was in 1905 permitted by the Court to be divided among defendants and P, who claimed adversely to F. They all undertook that the money would be brought in if the Court so ordered. The suit was decreed in favour of V, in 1913. Defendants by the decree alone became entitled to the estate. The one-third of the income which had been handed over to P, was therefore ordered to be refunded to defendants in 1915 and was refunded in 1917. The legatees within 3 years of this brought a suit against defendants 3 years of this for the payment of legacies, and the defendants contended that the suit was time-barred as it was brought after more than 12 years from 1905.

Held, the defendants did not receive any money which could be considered as available for the legacies until 1915 and, further, as regards that part which they received from P and which was to satisfy these claims, they did not receive it until 1917 ; therefore, time under the statutes of limitation does not begin to run until there are available assets.

Article 123 applies to suits for legacies against any person rightly or wrongly in possession of the estate under such circumstances that he is bound to deal with it as the estate of the deceased. Article 62 and Art. 120 are not applicable to the case. 70 Ind. Cas. 689=46 Mad. 190=16 M.L.W. 369=1922 M.W.N. 532=31 M.L.T. 221=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 457=43 M.L.J. 486.

——Art. 123—Starting point.

Where the members of a Mahomedan family continue to live as tenants in common without dividing the estate of a deceased ancestor, limitation will not run from the time of his death, and the article applicable for a suit for distributive share is Art. 144 and not

Art. 123. 44 Bom. 942, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 780=45 Bom. 519=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 56.

——Arts. 123, 141 and 154—Mahomedan law—Succession—Limitation—Estoppel—Onus.

One M., a Mahomadan, died in 1865 possessed of property, which passed first to his mother, and after her death to his senior and junior widows of whom each held an eight anna share. The senior widow died in 1888 and after her death the junior widow retained possession of the whole estate until her death in 1891. On the death of the junior widow mutation of names was made in favour of three sons of another brother of the senior widow, who died in 1890 in respect of a twelve anna share and in favour of the only son of a third brother of the senior widow who predeceased her for the remaining four annas. The plaintiff a sister of the senior widow, instituted against her four nephews and others this suit in 1903 to recover her share of the property including in that estate a share of the estate which had been that of M, and which Mubarak was said to have inherited from the senior widow, and also property which he took by inheritance from their father:

Held, that with regard to the property taken by Mubarak from the senior widow the period of limitation began to run from the death of the junior widow and not from any earlier period and that the suit was not barred by limitation. 31 All. 557=36 I.A. 210=10 C.L.J. 297=11 Bom. ——Arts. 123, 142 and 144—Suit for a distributive share of property—Limitation—Starting point.

A suit for the distributive share, brought 18 years after the death of the last owner is barred under Art. 123 as the period of limitation would run from the death of the last owner. If the case fell under Art. 142 the plaintiff would have to show his possession within 12 years before the suit. But if under Art. 144 the burden of proving adverse possession for 12 years before suit lies on the defendant. 6 Bur. L.T. 188=21 Ind. Cas. 335.

——Arts. 123 and 120—Starting point—Suit by widow of Mahomedan for share against son who got order for grant of letters of administration but did not take out same—"Representative"—Time from which limitation runs.

Where on the death of a deceased Mahomedan, a contest amongst his heirs as to who should take out letters of administration was decided in favour of the defendant No. 1 but he did not furnish security and the order for grant of letters of administration who thus never completed.

Held, that if Art. 120 applied to a suit by one of the other heirs to recover her share from the defendant No. 1 who was in possession, limitation ran at the earliest from the date of decision of the appellate court affirming his rights to take out letters of administration. Quaere :—The other members of the family of the accused having also been joined as defendants whether defendant No. 1 could be allowed to obtain for himself any advantage by urging that he never in fact became the legal representative of the deceased within Art 123 not having actually taken out letters of administration. ——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

Suit by one co-heir against another to recover his share in the property is not governed by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 221=186 Ind. Cas. 843.

——Art. 123—Suit between co-heirs for share of inheritance.

A claim by a daughter to a share in the estate taken by her mother on her re-marriage with her step-father must be brought within 12 years from the date of her mother's re-marriage. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 388=164 Ind. Cas. 556.

——Art. 123—Heirs of Mahomedan—Suit by co-heir.

A suit by one of the heirs of a Mahomedan owner to recover possession of his share is not covered by Art. 123 but must fall under Art. 144, limitation running from the date when the defendant's possession became adverse. A.I.R. 1928 All. 467 (F.B.), Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 785=7 Rang. 744=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 72.

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

Plaintiff, Cutchi Khati daughter, sued her brothers for her share in the ancestral property. Defence raised adverse possession as a bar to the suit, Held, that the case would be governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1930 Sind 193=126 Ind. Cas. 748.

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

Articles 123 applies only when the suit is brought for a share an estate which it is the legal obligation of the defendant to distribute. Where a Muhammadan dies intestate, his estate vests in his heirs as tenants in common and no one is charged by law with its distribution, and if a suit is brought by one of the heirs to recover his share, Art. 144 and not Art. 123 applies. 34 Mad. 511 and A.I.R. 1928 All. 467 (F.B.), Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 803= 11 Lah. 29=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 549.

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

A suit by one of the heirs of a Mahomadan to recover possession of his share is not covered by Art. 123 but must fall under Art. 144, limitation running from the date when the defendant's possession became adverse. A.I.R. 1926 All. 748, Reversed. 111 Ind. Cas. 809=51 All. 101=26 A.L.J. 1041=A.I.R. 1928 All. 467 (F.B.).

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heirs—Suit by co-heirs for a share in the corpus of an inheritance is governed by Art. 123—If property is held by one on behalf of all, article applicable is Art. 142 or 144.

The appropriate article for suits instituted by co-heirs for a share in the corpus of an inheritance is Art. 123 but if it can be shown that whoever holds the propeety is holding with the consent, express or implied, of all the heirs on behalf of them all, then Art. 142 or 144 would apply. ——Art. 123—Suit by co-heirs.

Article 123 applies to a case of claim to a share against co-heirs in possession of an estate when there was intestacy. But an exception should be made in respect of cases where the whole body of the heirs agree to enjoy jointly the property left by the deceased, without effecting a partition. In such cases Art. 142 or 144 would apply.

There is nothing to prevent the heirs of Karen Christians from taking possession of the estate and agreeing to enjoy it in common. Their title becomes complete when they take possession of the property, and, when thereafter any of them are excluded from enjoyment, the cause of action arises on such exclusion and the article applicable is Art 142. 88 Ind. Cas. 609=4 Bur. L.J. 76=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 233.

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

The appropriate article for suits against co-heirs for a share the corpus of an inheritance is Art. 123. 72 Ind. Cas. 489=3 Rang. 77=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 228.

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir.

The appropriate article for suits, instituted against co-heirs for a share in the corpus of an inheritance is Art. 123. As Burmese Buddhists are not permitted to make wills, the only portion of Art. 123 which can apply to suits relating to their estates is the provision applicable to the distributive share of the property of an intestate. 6. L.B.R. 170, Foll. 76 Ind. Cas. 855=1 Rang. 405=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 155.

——Arts. 123 and 144—Suit by co-heir—Suit for share of the property of an intestate—Heirs of Muhammadan holding estate as tenants-in-common.

Article 123 does not apply to the Mahomedans who continue to own as tenants-in-common the estate of their deceased father. The ordinary law applies to such cases and time begins to run against one tenant-in-common, when the other tenant-in-common does some act the effect of which is either to exclude his co-tenant from the joint property, to deny his rights to share; and Article 144 applies to the case. 22 Bom. L.R. 939=58 Ind. Cas. 42.

——Arts. 123 and 144—Scope—Co-heirs—Suit for possession.

Art. 123 does not apply to suit by one heir against co-heirs for possession of a house left by the deceased but Art. 144 does. 50 Ind. Cas. 746 (Lah.).

——Art. 123—Suit by co-heir—Suit for share by one heir against another—Applicability.

Art. 123 applies only to a suit for a share of an estate which the defendant is legally bound to distribute and not to suits for recovery of possession by one of the heirs against another heirs. 17 O.C. 157=1 O.L.J. 225=24 Ind. Cas. 45.

——Arts. 123, 120 and 144—Suit by co-heir—Mahomedan Law—Suit by Mahomedan sharer for share of deceased's property after 12 years—Art. 123, Scope of.

A suit by a Mahomedan for a share of his wife's property in the possession of another sharer more than 12 years after his wife's death is governed by Art. 144 in the case of immoveables and by Art. 120 in the case of moveables. Art. 123 applies only when the suit is for a share of an estate which it is the legal duty of the defendant to distribute, and does not apply to the case of a Mahomedan dying intestate, and the estate in that case is at once vested in the heirs as tenants in common and there is no one charged by law with its distribution. 1. (a) Adverse possession—Acquisition and Starting point.

——Arts. 124 and 141—Applicability—Transfer of pala to stranger by widow of co-shebait—Transferee and his successors in adverse possession for 12 years prior to her death—If acquire title.

A transfer by a conshebait of his pala (turn of worship) in a private debutter to a stranger for value is void, and the possession of the transferee and his successors becomes adverse from the date of entry into possession. Once adverse possession has begun to run in favour of a person, a transferee from the latter can tack his possession to that of his predecessor. If the shebaiti right is hereditary, Art. 124 of the Limitation Act applies, and if the transferee and his successors have been in possession claiming absolute title for over 12 years prior to the death of the transferor, they acquire a title by adverse possession.

The fact that the transferor is a Hindu widow who has succeeded to the shebaiti right of her husband does not make Art. 141 of the Limitation Act applicable. As a Hindu female who succeeds to a shebaiti right represents the endowment as completely and effectively as a male heir, subject to the qualification that on her death the shebaiti right goes not to her heirs but to the heirs of the last male holder of the shebaiti right, limitation does not begin to run from her death. 54 C.W.N. 960.

——Art. 124—Shebaiti divided into palas—Possession by shebait of pala of co-shebait under invalid transfer—If adverse.

Co-shebaits are co-owners in the shebaiti right. One co-shebait can, therefore, claim the interest of another co-shebait under Art. 124 of the Limitation Act, if the claim be regarded as a claim to a share in the hereditary office. Where the shebaits have been in possession on the basis of palas and one paladar is in possession of the pala of another paladar under an invalid transfer and in open assertion of a hostile title, the possession of the pala becomes adverse. 54 C.W.N. 960.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Acquisition and starting point—Shebait of temple—Suit for possession of office.

A suit for possession of the hereditary office of shebait from a person enjoying it adversely to the plaintiff is governed by Art. 124 and not by Art. 134 or 144 and time starts when the defendant takes possession adversely to the plaintiff. (1918) P.H.C.C. 247=3 Pat. L.J. 327=4 Pat. L.W. 283=47 Ind. Cas. 290.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Acquisition and starting point—Suit for office—Suit for possession—Distinction.

In a suit to recover possession of property and hereditary office from the defendant whose father had been in adverse possession of both for over 12 years, and who continued in possession afterwards, held that there is no distinction between the claim for possession of the property and that for the office, for purposes of limitation, and that the suit was barred under S. 28 and Art. 124 23 M. 271 P.C., Foll. 39 All. 636=15 A.L.J. 740=42 Ind. Cas. 77.

——Art. 124—Religious Office—Adverse possession—Acquisition.

(Per Curiam) :—Mere possession of the properties attached to an office without performing the duties of the office is not adverse possession of the office within the meaning of Art. 124. 20 M.L.J. 781. Foll. 29 M.L.J. 558=18 M.L.T. 402=(1915) M.W.N. 829=2. L.W. 1005=30 Ind. Cas. 962.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Acquisition—Suit by heir of shebait—Auction-purchaser of the share of shebait—Incompetency of auction-purchaser to hold office.

Where an auction-purchaser of the share of daily surplus income from the offerings of a temple enjoyed the income for about 20 years as against the widow of the shebait though he was incompetent to hold the office owing to his caste, and the reversioner sued on the death of the widow for a declaration that he was entitled to the offerings.

Held, that the suit was not one to recover an hereditary office within Art. 124 of the Limitation Act and was not barred by limitation. The defendant not having taken possession of the office and being incompetent to hold it, could not by adversely taking and appropriating to his own use a share of the surplus daily income from the offerings, acquire a title to the office or a share of the income. On each occasion on which he received and wrongfully appropriated to his own use a share of the income to which the shebait was entitled, the defendant committed a fresh actionable wrong in respect of which a suit could be brought against him by the shebait but it did constitute him the shebait or in any way affect title to the office. 42 Cal. 244=18 C.W.N. 1029=27 M.L.J. 100=1 L.W. 549=16 M.L.T. 210 =(1914) M.W.N. 636=12 A.L.J. 1176=20 C.L.J. 360=16 Bom. L.R. 845=24 Ind. Cas. 501 (P.C.).

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Acquisition and starting point—Suit for emoluments of an office—Adverse possession—Declaratory decree obtained during period of adverse possession.

In a suit for the emoluments and honours of the office of Adayapakam, it was found that defendant had been getting and enjoying the income of the office for over 12 years prior to suit.

Held, that the defendant was in adverse possession of the emoulments and honours of the office and that the suit was barred under Art. 124. The mere passing of a declaratory decree in plaintiff's favour establishing his joint right with defendant during such adverse possession by the defendant will not prevent the defendant from acquiring title by adverse possesson if such possession having commenced before the suit for title, continued afterwards for the statutory period. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 99=9 M.L.T. 171=8 Ind. Cas. 883.

——Art. 124—Applicability of—Adverse possession of profits alone without the office—Plaintiff entitled to beneficial enjoyment of property—Starting point.

Art. 124 applies only when the suit is one against the holder of the office. Possession of the lands alone does not constitute "possession of the office" within the meaning of Art. 124. Where the plaintiff is entitled to the beneficial enjoyment of the lands attached to a trust, time begins to run for a suit to recover the property only from the time when his right to the beneficial enjoyment thereof accrues. The decision in 23 M. 27, has not overruled that in 13 M. 277 in this respect. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 781=9 M.L.T. 73=8 Ind. Cas. 998.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Acquisition——Adverse possession of shebaitship.

The right of a person lawfully entitled to the office of a shebait may be extinguished by adverse possession. (1909) 11 C.L.J. 2=3 Ind. Cas. 408.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession of hereditary office—Acquisition.

The analogy of Art. 142 cannot be invoked in interpreting Art. 124, as the two articles substantially differ in their wording. A plaintiff's right to recover a hereditary office will not be barred unless the defendant is found to have been in possession of it adversely to the plaintiff for 12 years; and the fact that the plaintiff had not possession of the office at any time within 12 years previous to the suit is not sufficient in itself to bar his claim. (1908) 19 M.L.J. 257=6 M.L.T. 167=3 Ind. Cas. 123.

——Arts. 124 and 144—Adverse possession—Acquisition and starting point—Trust—Suit for possession of trust property as manager.

Where the plaintiff claimed possession of certain trust property as manager by right of inheritance, from the founders of the trust, there being no allegation of misappropriation of the trust property, it was held that the limitation applicable to such suit was that prescribed by Art. 124 or Art. 144 and began to run from the time when the possession of the defendant became adverse to the plaintiff. 1905 A.W.N. 69=2 A.L.J. 304 =27 A. 513.

1. (b) Adverse Possession—Effect of.

——Art. 124—Shebait—Effect of adverse possession of office.

Where a person holds the office of the shebait for 12 years and adversely, Art. 124, applies and where the office is thus extinguished by adverse possession, the right to claim pala (turn) must also share the same fate. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 291=166 Ind. Cas. 832.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession of office—Effect of—Suit for trusteeship—Dismissal—Suit for property—Bar.

Plaintiff sued for (a) certain rights in certain temples, (b) the consecrated idols of those temples and (c) certain properties attached to the temples. The suit was dismissed as time-barred. In appeal plaintiffs limited their relief to (c) only. Held, that the appeal must fail because if the right to recover trusteeship is lost by the dismissal of suit, the right to recover a portion of the endowments must fail. 35 M. 92=(1910) M.W.N. 735=9 M.L.T. 105=8 Ind. Cas. 760.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession of office—Effect of—Hereditary office, suit for barred—Suit for property also barred with it.

Where a suit for a hereditary office is barred, the right to recover property attached to the office will be extinguished, though the time for recovery of immoveable property independently will not have expired. (1904) 28 M. 197.

——Arts. 124 and S. 2 (8)—Adverse posession—Effect on successor's claim—Plaintiff—Suit for possession by stani—Malabar Law.

A suit by a Malabar Stani for possession of Stanom property from a person claiming adversely thereto, is governed by Art. 124. The Stani is deemed for this purpose, to be the heir of his predecessor in title and is bound by the Defendant's adverse possession against the previous holder. Each holder of the Stanom is in the same position as an ordinary heir succeeding on the intestacy, of the previous holder though the holder holds his property only for his life. 33 M.L.J. 26=6 L.W. 195=(1917) M.W.N. 552=41 Mad. 4=42 Ind. Cas. 22.

——Arts. 124 and 141—Adverse possession—Effect on successor's claim—Hereditary office, suit for possession of—Suit by reversioners on widow's death—Adverse possession against widow is adverse to reversioners.

A suit for possession of the hereditary office of trustee by a Hindu reversioner against a stranger in possession is governed by Art. 124 and time will run against the reversioner not from the widow's death as in Art. 141, but from the date when the stranger became possessed of it adversely to the widow. The reversioners should be considered as deriving their right to the office through their predecessor, the widow, and consequently possession adverse to the widow is adverse to the reversioners. A successor in office derives his title through his predecessor for purposes of limitation, even though both were appointed independently of each other, by a third person. (1904) 28 M. 197.

1. (c) Adverse Possession—Tacking.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Tacking—Suit for recovery of office of archaka—Defendant in possession for less than 12 years—Possession of predecessors in office—Tacking.

The word defendant in Art. 124 of the Limitation Act includes his predecessors-in-office where the successive persons in possession of the office claim under the same title e.g., appointment by a temple trustee. In a suit for the recovery of possession of an hereditary archaka office, it was found that though the defendant got into possession within twelve years of the suit his predecessors were successively in possession to the exclusion of the hereditary holder for over sixty years under appointments by the temple trustee.

Held, that the suit was barred. The defendant was entitled to tack on the possession of his predecessors in office to his own in establishing a plea of adverse enjoyment. 36 M.L.J. 93=9 L.W. 11=49 Ind. Cas. 393. See also 54 C.W.N. 960.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Tacking—Trusteeship—Adverse possession—Independent trespassers—Derivation title.

Twelve year's continuous possession is necessary under Art. 124 to a right to trusteeship ; if the possession has been in the hands of independent trespassers it would not be regarded as continuous possession on the part of the defendant trespassers; but where the independent trespassers have all derived title from the same source it may be sufficient to justify a court in holding that the possession was continuous. 14 M. 153; 18 M. 1, Foll. 12 M.L.T. 269=16 Ind. Cas. 225=23 M.L.J. 134.

——Art. 124—Adverse possession—Tacking vacant period.

A person in possession of an Hereditary office cannot tack to his possession the vacant period preceding his possessions. His possession becomes adverse only from his actual possession. 9 M.L.T. 485=10 Ind. Cas. 95.

2. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 124—Applicability and scope.

Article 124 is not applicable where the appointment to the office is made by nomination and applies only when the appointment is by succession through inheritance. A.I.R. 1941 All. 1=(1940) A.L.J. 705=I.L.R. (1940) All. 815=1940 A.W.R. 607=193 Ind. Cas. 697.

——Art. 124—Applicability and scope.

There is no distinction as regards limitation between a claim to an office and a claim to the property of endowment. Nor is there any distinction between movables and immovables in a matter of endowment. A.I.R. 1941 All. 1=(1940) A.L.J. 705=1940 A.W.R. 607=I.L.R. (1940) All. 815=193 Ind. Cas. 697.

——Art. 124—Applicability—Lawful holder of office enjoying its emoluments must be deemed to be in possession of office—Interference with performance of his duties—Every time there is fresh wrong and cause of action, Art. 120 or 124 does not apply. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 81=52 L.W. 919=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 990=(1940) M.W.N. 1232=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 275=192 Ind. Cas. 870 (F.B.).

——Art. 124—Applicability and scope—Maharki Vatan.

In the case of a Maharki Vatan, each one claims a share for his branch alone to the exclusion of the others, and the alternate working of a branch year by year is also exclusive of the others. A suit for possession of a share in the Vatan is governed by Art. 124 as the office of Mahar is recognised in the Revenue Rules themselves. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 84=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 151=168 Ind. Cas. 351.

——Art. 124—Explanation—Applicability.

The explanation in Col. 3, Art. 124, lays down a general rule for determining the question of possession in respect of offices and is applicable to cases governed by Art. 120, wherever the claim is in substance one to recover possession of an office. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 449=(1935) M.W.N. 503.

——Arts 124 and 120—Applicability and scope.

A suit for declaration of title to a hereditary office is governed by Art. 124 and not by Art. 120. (1931) M.W.N. 8=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 505=133 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Art. 124—Applicability.

The nature of the suit intended to be covered by Art. 124 must be a suit filed by a plaintiff who claims the office from a person who at that time holds the office himself. Where the plaintiff has not alleged that the office is now being held adversely to him by any other person, the suit is only against the trustee of the Devasthanam for the recovery of the emoluments, incidentally it may be for a declaration that his title to the office was denied. Article 124, therefore does not apply. 109 Ind. Cas. 771=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 377.

——Arts. 124 and 120—Applicability and scope—Claim to office—Hereditary office.

A claim to office and to property appurtenant thereto may be barred by limitation. If the office is not hereditary Art. 120 applies. If hereditary, Art. 124 governs the matter. (1909) 14 C.W.N. 497=11 C.L.J. 304=3 Ind. Cas. 419=37 C. 263.

——Arts. 124 and 134—Scope of. 4 Bom. L.R. 743=27 B. 363.

3. Hereditary office—What is.

——Art. 124—" Hereditary office ".

The words 'hereditary office' in Art. 124 have been used in contra-distinction to cases where the office is to be filled in by nomination. Where there is no suggestion that the appointment of a shebait was to be made by nomination and hence the right of shebaitship vesting on the heirs of the founder, after the death of the person appointed by will, it must be regarded as a hereditary office. A suit for possession of such an office is governed by the 12 years' rule laid down in Art. 124. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 373=1937 O.W.N. 745=13 Luck. 344=168 Ind. Cas. 593.

——Art. 124—Hereditary office, what is—Office claimed for first time.

Where the plaintiff is not a descendant of any of the former holders of the office of Karnam before the villages were re-grouped and is seeking the office for the first time, so to speak, not on the ground of heredity the suit is not one for seeking possession of an hereditary office within the meaning of the Explanation to Art. 124.

The fact that the office will or may become hereditary in the hands of the holder if and when appointed is not material. 99 Ind. Cas. 634=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 148=51 M.L.J. 678.

——Art. 124—Hereditary office—What is—Succession by nomination of successor is not hereditary.

Where succession to a religious office is by nomination by the holder in office of his successor, it is not a hereditary succession by Art. 124. Hereditary succession is succession by the heir to the deceased under the law the office must be transmitted to the successor according to some definite rules of descent which by their own force designate the person to succeed. There need be no blood relationship between the deceased and his successor but the right of the latter should not depend upon the choice of any individual. Therefore the only article applicable to cases of succession after nomination is Art. 120, Art. 144 also is not applicable as the claim to possession is also barred if the claim to office is barred under Art. 120. 97 Ind. Cas. 437=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1012=51 M.L.J. 258.

——Art 124—An hereditary office subject to a temporary incumbency by a person not in the direct line of succession is still an hereditary office. 93 Ind. Cas. 923=22 M.L.W. 870=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 245.

1 " Alienation ".

——Art. 125—" Alienation."

The word " alienation " in Art. 125 has not been used in the restricted sense of a transfer by means of written document. The article applies to all cases in which the widow has directly or indirectly parted with her proprietry right in the estate and passed the same to some third person. Where mutation entries in revenue papers are made in the names of the third persons, followed by their possession, it constitutes alienation of those properties within the meaning of the article. A.I.R. 1939 All. 526=1939 A.W.R. 411=184 Ind. Cas. 169.

——Art. 125—" Alienation."

During the registration proceedings, the daughter of the deceased objected and actually contested the registration of the land being effected in the name of the transferee from her deceased father. But in spite of her objections, it was registered in alienee's name and the daughter did not bring any title suit afterwards. Subsequently, the reversioners of the deceased instituted a suit for declaration that the transfer was void against them and hence should be set aside :

Held, that the mere failure of the daughter to bring a title suit did not amount to constructive alienation for the purposes of Art. 125. Threfore Art. 125 did not apply and the article applicable was Art. 120 and the reversioner's suit brought more than six years after the land registration entry was barred. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 535=3 B.R. 21=165 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 125—" Alienation"—Sir and khudkasht lands.

A perpetual lease of sir and khudkasht fields is an alienation within the meaning of Art. 125. 16 N.L.J. 300=A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 103=149 Ind. Cas. 687.

——Art. 125—Alienation—Bombay Bhagdari Act (V of 1862), S. 3—Mortgagor selling moiety to mortgagee and other moiety to wife for alleged consideration—Subsequent transfer of her moiety by wife to mortgagee.

Where a mortgagor sells in reality a moiety of the properties to the mortgagees for an amount due on the mortgage, and the other moiety is ostensibly sold in the name of the wife for an alleged consideration, the transaction amounts to a sale of an unrecognised portion of a bhag, and if subsequently after the death of her husband, the wife sells her moiety to the mortgagee the subsequent deed of sale cannot be upheld as in effect causing a past dismembered bhag to be re-united, and a suit by reversioner to set aside the above alienation is not governed by Arts. 125, 126 and 141. 54 Bom. 837=32 Bom. L.R. 1013=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 545.

——Art. 125—" Alienation."

A proprietor of a house which was mortgaged by his predecessor inherited the mortgagee's right also. After his death, his widow allowed the property to be redeemed by persons who were not reversioners, Held, that the transaction effected by the widow must be treated as an alienation for the purpose of Art. 125. 111 Ind. Cas. 203=29 P.L.R. 584=10 Lah. 237=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 932.

——Art. 125—Hindu widow—" Alienation"—Declaratory suit—Compromise—Fresh starting point.

In respect of a Hindu widow's alienation there is only one cause of action for a declaratory suit for all reversioners near and remote and when the suit on that cause of action once became barred by the lapse of twelve years under Art. 125. No reversioner (whether in existence or not at the date of the alienation) could afterwards bring such suit. 41 Mad. 659, Foll. The compromise of a litigation by a female owner does not amount to a fresh alienation so as to give rise to a fresh cause of action to the reversioners. To see whether a compromise amounts to alienation, the test is to find out whether the property is claimed by the opposite party on a title before the compromise or whether he has first derived his title thereto under and by virtue of the compromise. 33 All. 356; 33 Mad. 473 Foll. 26 M.L.T. 180=53 Ind. Cas. 171.

——Art. 125—"Alienation"—Limitation—Fictitious award—Hindu widow.

A Hindu widow, plaintiff in a suit to recover property in respect of which she was entitled to a Hindu widow's estate, from the possession of the widows of other members of her husband's family, entered upon a collusive arbitration by which the whole of the property of the plaintiff's husband was divided amongst certain female members of the family, it being declared that each of the parties to the arbitration proceedings took an absolute estate in the share allotted to her.

Held, that this proceeding amounted to an "alienation" of the property so dealt with within the meaning of Art. 125. 4 A.L.J. 160=1907 A.W.N. 33=29 A. 239.

2. Applicability and Scope.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Conditions—Possession by widow irrespective of her status as Hindu or Mahomedan female.

Art. 125 of the Limitation Act can only apply when the possession of the defendant is that of a Hindu or Mahomedan female as such, that is, by virtue of her being a Hindu or Mahomedan, as heir of the last male owner; it does not apply if the defendant's possession is by virtue of a grant or transfer inter vivos or by virtue of a bequest that is to say when her possession is irrespective of her being a Hindu or Mahomedan female. 15 Pat. 151, Foll. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 447.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Void and voidable alienations—Distinction—Alienation by legatees under will of Hindu, both being widows—One heir of testator and another not heir—Suit by reversioners to declare invalid and not binding on plaintiffs—Limitation. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 120 AND 125. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 218.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Void transactions.

Art. 125 of the Limitation Act in plain terms comtemplates a case where an alienation has to be declared void except for the lifetime of the widow. It must be presumed, therefore, that the applicability of this article is limited to cases where an alienation is good so long as that alienor is alive or so long as she does not remarry, a fortiori this article, cannot apply to cases where the alienation is ab initio void, (i.e.), is bad from its very inception or in other words, is a nullity. An alienation by a person who has no power to make it is viod ab initio. 49 P.L.R. 167= A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 290 (F.B.).

——Arts. 125 and 120—Applicability—Female in possession of property under will. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 120 AND 125. 49 P.L.R. 167=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 290 (F.B.).

——Art. 125—Applicability and scope.

Article 125 is not by its wording restricted to suits by reversioners. There is no justification for importing the word 'reversioner' in this article which does not occur there. Consequently, the article governs the suit by certain member of the proprietary body of the village to declare that certain alienation by a widow shall not affect their reversionary rights. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 457=40 P.L.R. 786=178 Ind. Cas. 270.

——Art. 125—Applicability.

Article 125 applies only to suits brought within the lifetime of the female or females whose alienations are to be declar.d void. It cannot apply to suit instituted after their death (1936) M.W.N. 339=44 M.L.W. 208=165 Ind. Cas. 448.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Conditions.

Article 125 applies when the possession is that of a Hindu or Muhammadan female as such, that is to say, by virtue of her being a Hindu or Muhammadan, and does not apply if her possession is by virtue of a grant or transfer made inter vivos or by virtue of a bequest, or, in other words, when her possession is irrespective of her being a Hindu or Muhammadan female. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 323=17 P.L.T. 131= 15 Pat. 151=2 B.R. 658=163 Ind. Cas. 940.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Conditions—A suit for a declaration filed after the death of the widows whose alienation is challenged does not fall under Art. 125. 16 P.L.T. 236=A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 256=1 B.R. 418=155 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Art. 125—Applicability and scope.

Article 125 applies to every case where the female making the alienation is a Hindu or a Mahomedan and the immediate reversioners, who bring the suit, also profess the same faith. It is not necessary that the female making the alienation should be actually governed by the Hindu or the Mahomedan Law. 100 Ind. Cas. 84=8 Lah. 215=28 P.L.R. 341=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 198.

——Art. 125—Applicability and scope.

The article applies to plaintiffs who if the female died at the date of instituting the suit would be entitled to possession of the property in dispute. (1917) M.W.N. 30=5 L.W. 482=38 Ind. Cas. 270, Contra See 41 Mad. 659=46 Ind. Cas. 202 (F.B.).

——Arts. 125 and 120—Applicability and Scope.

Art. 125 covers suits for land only and by first reversioner only. 70 P.R. 1914=260 P.L.R. 1914= 165 P.W.R. 1914=25. Ind. Cas. 463.

——Art. 125—Applicability and Scope—Sale of house without site—Applicability of article.

If a widow alienates house property together with the site on which it stands Art. 125 would apply. But it is doubtful whether the Article applies if the widow alienates only the house apart from the site. 15 P.W.R. 1910=5 Ind. Cas. 842.

2. (a) Nature of reversionary suit.

——Art. 125—Suit for declaration of invalidity of adoption or alienation—Nature of.

A suit by a Hindu reversioner to declare an alienation by the widow invalid is a Representative suit and the remote reversioner has a right to join as plaintiff along with or in substitution for the presumptive reversioner. 38 Mad. 406=17 M.L.T. 435=28

M.L.J. 535=17 Bom. L.R. 468=19 C.W.N. 641=2 L.W. 596=(1915) M.W.N. 555=21 C.L.J. 515=42 I.A. 125=29 Ind. Cas. 298 (P.C.).

3. Starting point.

——Art. 125—Starting point.

The reversioner of a Hindu widow sued for a declaration that a mortgage by the widow and a Court sale in execution of a decree on the mortgage were not operative after the death of the widow so as to be binding on the reversioner.

Held, that limitation ran from the date of the mortg ge and not that of the Court sale,

Held, also that to say that the suit is barred or not according as the prayer is for a declaration that the mortgage or sale is not binding is to allow a quibble with words.

Obiter.—But in some cases the widow may do something in the course of the suit itself, whereby it may be possible to say the decree only amounted to an alienation and not the previous mortgage. 88 Ind. Cas. 578=21 M.L.W. 277=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 567.

——Art. 125—Starting point—Gift made in pursuance of will.

A suit by the reversioner for a declaration that the gift made by the widow is not binding on him is not barred, merely because he does not sue to have an alleged will declared to be void and the time runs from the date of the gift and not of the will, according to directions in which, it is alleged the gift is made. 70 Ind. Cas. 838=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 53.

——Art. 125—Mortgage—Starting point.

For the purpose of Art. 125, land must be taken to include interest in land. Suits referred to in Art. 125 also include suits in respect of mortgages. A mere decree for sale of the mortgaged property cannot be an alienation. In the absence of fraud, limitation against a suit under Art. 125, commences from the date of the alienation and not from the date when the plaintiffs came to know of it. If a suit for declaration as is referred to in Art. 125 in respect of a mortgage is barred, the Court cannot grant a declaration in respect of the decree obtained on the mortgage. 63 Ind. Cas. 417=18 N.L.R. 42=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 197.

——Art. 125—Starting point—Sale by managing member—When limitation commences.

Where there is no registered sale-deed to evidence a sale by the Managing members, limitation begins to run against the members from the date when the purchaser takes possession. 25 M.L.J. 405=6 C.L.J. 383, Foll. 26 Ind. Cas. 383 (Mad.).

——Art. 125—Starting point—Setting aside putni granted to widow—When time begins to run.

In a suit to set aside a putni granted in 1837 by a person who either had no interest in the property or was only acting as the manager of a lady who owned a Hindu widow's estate therein,

Held, that if the putni was void, the period of limitation ran from the date on which it was granted under Regulation II of 1803 as amended by Regulation II of 1805. If it was voidable only by the widow's successor, the right of action arose on the adoption of a son by the widow and time began to run from the date when the adopted son attained his majority in 1856. Under Regulation II of 1803 or Act XIV of 1859, time ran from the date on which the cause of action arose. (1905) 15 M.L.J. 267=9 C.W.N. 673=32 C. 669=2 A.L.J. 794=32 I. A. 80 (P.C.).

4. Suit by adopted son.

——Art. 125—Applicability of to an adopted son.

Art. 125 applies only to a Reversionary heir and is not applicable to the case of an adopted son. 33 Bom. 88=10 Bom. L.R. 1029=1 Ind. Cas. 647.

——Art. 125—Hindu Law—Adopted son, suit by, for declaration—Alienation by adoptive mother before adoption.

The adopted son of a Hindu is entitled to possession of property alienated by his adoptive mother before his adoption only on the widow's death or marriage, and a suit by him for a declaration is governed by Art. 125. (1910) 8 M.L.T. 121=6 Ind. Cas. 443 (1).

5. Suit by female.

——Art. 125—Suit by daughter.

A widow executed a gift of land and a house belonging to her deceased husband to one of her daughters. Plaintiff, the other daughter, brought the present suit for a declaration that the gift should not affect her reversionary rights and was given a decree both as regards the house and the land. The Appellate Court upheld the decree of the First Court in regard to the land but held that Art. 125 did not apply as regards the house.

Held, Art. 125 applies to the suit so far as it relates to the house also. 2 Lah. 5=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 98.

——Art. 125—Applicability of—Nearer heir a female but absolute owner.

Art. 125 covers only suits by person who if the female died at the date of suit would be entitled to possession. 38 M. 406 (P.C.)—Foll. Though this principle does not apply if the nearer heir is a female and only a limited owner it does apply where the nearer female heir is an absolute owner. 40 Mad. 818=21 M.L.T. 93=5 L.W. 334=38 Ind. Cas. 223.

——Art. 125—Alienation by widow—Suit by daughter.

Suit by the daughter for the declaration that gift by her widowed mother shall not affect her interest is governed by Art. 125 of the Act. 58 Ind. Cas. 333 (Lah.).

6. Suit by reversioner.

——Art. 125—Applicability—Suit by reversioner challenging mortgage by Hindu widow dismissed as barred by limitation—Subsequent sale by widow of the same property to pay amount decreed in a suit on that mortgage—Fresh cause of action to reversioner.

Though a suit by a reversioner challenging the mortgage by a Hindu widow is dismissed as barred by limitation, when there is a subsequent sale by the widow of the same property to pay off the amount decreed in a suit on that mortgage, there is a fresh cause of action to the reversioner as the sale is a fresh alienation. I.L.R. 1950 A. 564=1949 A.W.R. 537=A.I.R. 1950 A. 7.

——Arts. 125 and 141—Suit by reversioner.

A reversioner desiring to challenge alienations by a limited female owner can bring a suit for declaration that the alienation is void against him. Such a suit is governed by Art. 125, or he may after the death of the female, sue for recovery of possession of the property by avoiding sale. Such a suit is governed by Art. 141. Where a suit is brought for possession of property alienated by a limited owner on the ground of surrender of life estate, but if the relief for declaration is barred under Art. 125, the declaration cannot be granted. 17 P.L.T. 16=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 105=3 B.R. 403=168 Ind. Cas. 326.

——Art. 125—Suit by reversioner.

Widow and mother of last male holder selling property jointly—Suit by reversioner to declare sale void—Article 125 is applicable. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 760=40 P.L.R. 131=174 Ind. Cas. 935.

——Art. 125—Suit by reversioner.

A suit by a reversioner challenging an alienation by a widow in respect of non-ancestral property is governed for purposes of alienation by Art. 125. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 945=34 P.L.R. 929=146 Ind. Cas. 350.

——Art. 125—Suit by reversioner—Successive transfers.

Three Hindu sisters had inherited the property of their father as daughters ; they sold the property to one of themselves on the footing that what was conveyed to the vendee was the absolute right of the vendors. The vendee subsequently sold the property to a stranger. A reversioner of the deceased male owner brought a suit for a declaration that the last sale was not binding on him,

Held, that Art. 125 applied and that the suit if brought more than 12 years after the first sale, was barred by limitation. 86 Ind. Cas. 1016=A.I.R 1925 Mad. 941.

——Art. 125—Suit by reversioner—Collusive mortgage.

A suit by a reversioner on the allegation that the widow executed a sham mortgage to defeat the reversioner's rights and got the property sold in a collusive suit is governed by Art. 125 of the Limitation Act and the reversioner need not sue to set aside the mortgage. 80 Ind. Cas. 554=19 M.L.W. 564=34 M.L.T. 281=1924 M.W.N. 322=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 617.

——Arts. 125 and 120—Execution of decree against widow—Collusion—Sale—Suit for declaration by reversioners.

A Court sale to which a Hindu widow is a party may be treated as a private sale by her if the Court sale is the necessary result of some collusive arrangement made by her to use the Court as a medium of transfer or in other words if she intended transfer the properties by means of a Court sale and took steps to bring it about. If that is the case a suit by the nearest reversionary heir to declare the alienation void as against him would fall under Art. 125 of the Act. If the Court sale in question is brought about by her as above it cannot be considered as one " made " by the widow and the suit to declare the validity of the sale will be governed by Art. 120 and not 125. 35 M.L.J. 364=8 L.W. 455=(1918) M.W.N. 739=47 Ind. Cas. 578.

——Art. 125—Suit by reversioner—Mortgage by widow—Conversion of mortgage into sale.

A suit by the reversioner, for a declaration that a mortgage by the widow of her husband's property, will not affect his reversionary rights is barred under Art. 125 if brought after 12 years from the date of the mortgage. But, if within 12 years of suit, the mortgage had been converted by the widow into a sale for no further consideration, the sale must be declared to be not binding on the reversioner as having been made without consideration. 25 P.R. 1917=40 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Art. 125—Alienation by Hindu widow—Suit by reversioner for declaration.

A suit by a reversioner during the lifetime of the widow to have an alienation by her declared void except for her life is governed by Art. 125. Semble:—A new cause of action does not arise when owing to the death of the next revisioner, a remoter reversioner becomes entitled to sue. A reversioner whose suit under Art. 125 has been barred may still sue for possession if he survives the widow. 15 W.R. 1=14 B. 612, Foll. (1908) 12 C.W.N.857.

——Art. 125—After-born reversioner—Suit by.

Since the existence of a reversioner at the time of the alienation by a limited owner clothes an after-born reversioner with a right to sue, though an after-born reversioner cannot claim the benefit of S. 6, Limitation Act, in his own right, he cannot be deprived of the benefit of the extended period claimable by a reversioner in existence at the time of the alienation. Hence, when at the time of the alienation, A, the nearest reversioner was a minor and B on his birth after the alienation became the nearest reversioner, B can claim the same period as A to file a suit to have the alienation declared void except for the lifetime of the alienor. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 378=1943 M.W.N. 86=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 157=210 Ind. Cas. 297.

——Art. 125—After-born reversioner—Suit by.

A suit by a Hindu reversioner for a declaration that an alienation by the widow is not binding on him is barred under Art. 125 where the plaintiff was born more than 12 years after the date of the alienation. The cause of action for a suit for a declaration that an alienation by a Hindu widow is invalid beyond her lifetime, arises on the date of the alienation, jointly and simultaneously for the entire body of the reversioners then in existence as well as those coming into existence after the alienation, and the article applicable is Art. 125. If a reversioner who is competent to challenge an alienation or adoption made by a widow does so unsuccessfully or fails to challenge it within the period of limitation allowed by law, the result is binding on his successors in reversion in the absence of fraud, collusion or other invalidating circumstances. 41 Mad. 659=35 M.L.J. 57=24 M.L.T. 115=8 L.W. 62=(1918) M.W.N. 461=46 Ind. Cas. 202 (F.B.).

——Art. 125—Minor reversioner suit by, to set aside alienation—Son not a person claiming through his father.

The cause of action for a reversioner to sue to set aside an alienation by a Hindu widow during her lifetime is distinct from the cause of action for another reversioner to bring a like suit. The fact that one is barred by the law of limitation from bringing a suit cannot be a bar to another reversioner against whom the minority had the effect of extending the time for bringing a like suit. 28 M. 57 ; 22 A. 33 ; 32 C. 62 ; Foll. 27 M. 588 ; 29 M. 390 ; 22 M.L.J. 375 Rel. ; 14 B. 512 ; diss. 25 M. 371 Not Foll. 36 Mad. 570=23 M.L.J. 269=12 M.L.T. 188=(1912) M.W.N. 912=16 Ind. Cas. 839.

——Art. 125—Remote reversioner—Suit by.

Article 125 does not apply to a suit by a remoter reversioner than the immediately next reversioner.

7. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 125—Joint tenant.

A suit by a purchaser from a female heir against a prior purchaser from her co-tenant, to recover possession of the property on the ground that the sale being without legal necessity was binding during her lifetime only, is barred if not brought within twelve years of the death of the latter. 76 Ind. 1. After-born son.

——Art. 126—Son born after transfer.

A son born after an alienation gets no new cause of action on his birth and no rights under S. 6. Nor can he confer any benefit under S. 7 to his elder brothers. 66 Ind. Cas. 938=9 O.L.J. 45=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh. 52

——Art. 126—After-born son.

Where, in case of an alienation within Art. 126, some of the sons of a Hindu alienor were in existence at the time of the alienation and some were born subsequently, the afterborn sons do not acquire a fresh cause of action on their birth to challenge the alienation. 64 Ind. Cas. 757=24 O.C. 330= 8 O.L.J. 667=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 196.

——Art. 126—Suit by—After-born son.

A suit by an after-born son, assuming he has such a right of suit, to set aside an alienation by his father of the entire family property belonging to himself and his son (grown up) is governed by Art. 126. 30 M.L.J. 592=34 Ind. Cas. 794.

——Art. 126—Alienation by father—Setting aside —After-born son.

Where at the time of alienation by a Hindu father only one son was in existence a suit by that and the subsequently born sons to set aside the alienation is maintainable and all the sons are entitled to the relief. 40 Cal. 966=(1913) M.W.N. 661=14 M.L.T. 163=17 C.W.N. 1189=18 C.L.J. 237=15 Bom. 2. Alienee not in possession.

——Art. 126—Alienee not in possession

Article 126 contemplates the case of an alienation where the alienee has taken possession of the property, because limitation only runs from the date when the alienee so takes possession. It is only when such possession has been taken that any cause of action accrues to the plaintiff, so far as Art. 126 is concerned. Son's knowledge of alienation by his father ordinarily arises when he sees the alienee in possession; in case where the alienee never gets possession, no limitation can arise under Art. 126; and in such cases the only right of the son will be to obtain a declaration that the deed is invalid and the limitation prescribed by such a suit is that of six years under Art. 120. A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 33; A.I.R. 1927 All. 702 and 41 Mad. 650, Rel. on. 113 Ind. Cas. 378= 30 Bom. L.R. 1095=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 383.

——Art. 126—Alienee not in possession.

Article 126 is based upon the principle that a son's knowledge of alienation by his father ordinarily arises when he sees the alienee in possession. In cases where the alienee never gets possession no limitation can arise under Art. 126. In such cases, the right of the son will amount merely to obtaining a declaration that the deed is invalid. The limitation prescribed for such a suit is under Art. 120. 41 Mad. 650, Rel. on. 106 Ind. Cas. 377=25 A.L.J. 734= A.I.R. 1927 All. 702.

3. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 126—Applicability and scope—Separate property.

Where the grandfather devised property to his son and grandson not jointly but exclusively to each separately, the property acquired by the son and the grandson is not ancestral property and an alienation by the son of the grandson's property is not governed by Art. 126. 118 Ind. Cas. 481=29 M.L.W. 169= 1929 M.W.N. 124=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 313=56 M.L.J. 332.

——Art. 126—Applicability and scope.

Article 126 applies also to a suit when the alienation was made by the father in conjunction with an uncle. 97 Ind. Cas. 591=A.I.R. 1927 All. 54.

——Art. 126—Applicability and scope.

The language of Art. 91 is almost identical with the description of a suit contemplated by Art. 126 and though the objectives of the suits specified in these Articles are different, the nature of the relief is the same. 90 Ind. Cas. 184=2 O.W.N. 650=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 678.

——Art. 126—Applicability and scope.

Article 126 applies being a special article to a suit by son to set aside alienation by father. On the expiry of 12 years from the date on which the alienee took possession of the property, the right of suit becomes extinguished. 64 Ind. Cas. 757, Foll. 79 Ind. Cas. 1010=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 423=A.I.R. 1924 All. 677.

——Art. 126—Applicability and scope—Annulment of sale.

Where the plaintiff sued for the annulment of the sale by his father and in fact obtained a decree for annulment, Art. 126 applies, and the period of limitation is 12 years. The fact that the plaintiff was not given a decree for possession as well as for annulment of the sale does not make Art. 126 inapplicable. 77 Ind. Cas. 174=3 Lah. 426=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 268.

——Arts. 126 and 44—Applicability and scope.

Where property which belongs to a minor exclusively is sold by his father as guardian and the minor after attaining majority sues to recover the property, Art. 44 applies to the suit. The mere fact that the father joins in the execution of the deed in his personal capacity and also his brother does likewise in order to remove the apprehensions of the vendee does not take away the case from Art. 44. 62 Ind. Cas. 630=13 M.L.W. 416=1921 M.W.N. 255=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 425=40 M.L.J. 475.

——Arts. 126 and 49—Applicability and Scope—Joint family—Sale of movables—Limitation.

A suit to set aside a sale of the Jajmani Bahi forming an ancestral property of a joint Hindu family governed by Mitakshara falls under Art. 126 and not Art. 49 of the Act (1877), as Art. 126 contemplates a suit in respect of moveables as well as immoveable property belonging to a joint Hindu family. 6 A.L.J. 614=3 Ind. Cas. 505.

4. Interpretation.

——Art. 126—'Alienation.'

"Alienation" in Art. 126 includes a mortgage s well as a sale. 64 Ind. Cas. 757=8 O.L.J. 667=24 O.C. 330=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 196.

——Art. 126—Interpretation—'Ancestral'.

The expression 'ancestral' to Art. 126 is used in the ordinary sense in which it is interpreted in the Hindu Law and cannot be given a wider interpretation for the purposes of the Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 397=36 P.L.R. 214=150 Ind. Cas. 963.

——Art. 126—Interpretation—'Set aside'.

"Set asde" in Art. 126 do not include a suit for a declaration that the alienation does not affect the plaintiff's rights. 70 P.R. 1914=260 P.L.R. 1914=165 P.W.R. 1914=25 Ind. Cas. 463.

——Art. 126—Interpretation—"Son".

It would be wrong to hold that the term "son" could be regarded as implying a grandson. Article 126 must be subject to the rule of strict construction, and that article can have no application in terms to a suit a set aside an alienation made by a person's grandfather, as it postulates a suit by a Hindu son governed by the Law of Mitakshara to set aside his father's alienation of ancestral property. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 136=42 Bom. L.R. 208=I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 109=187 Ind. Cas. 663.

5. Redemption suits.

——Art. 126—Mortgage by Hindu Manager—Redemption suits.

A suit for redemption by the surviving members of a joint Hindu family of a mortgage created by the manager is not one to set aside an alienation within Art. 126 its object indeed being to obtain relief under the alienation and not in spite of it. The allegation that any term embodied in the deed of mortgage was ultra vires of the manager of the joint family, the mortgagor, will not change the character of the suit. 8 O.W.N. 1090=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 66=7 Luck. 505=135 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Article 126—Redemption suits.

A redemption suit is one in which the plaintiff, accepting the position of mortgagor or of a person interested in the equity of redemption, asks for possession in accordance with the terms of the mortgage on payment of the amount due under it. But where the plaintiffs the sons of a Hindu do not admit the validity of the mortgage and ask for possession, not in accordance with but contrary to its terms, the suit is not a redemption suit but one of a kind based on the rule of Hindu law that the manager of a joint family is not entitled to alienate joint family property except for certain necessary purposes, and if he does so his act is not binding on the coparceners whose interests are affected. 64 Ind. Cas. 757=24 O.C 330=8 O.L.J. 667=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 196.

——Art. 126—Redemption suits.

A suit for redemption by the surviving members of a joint Hindu family is not one to set aside an alienation within Art. 126, its object being to obtain relief under the alienation and not in spite of it. The allegation that a term embodied in the deed of mortgage was ultra vires of the mortgagor—the manager of the joint family—will not change the character of the suit. 90 Ind. Cas. 184=2 O.W.N. 650=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 678.

6. Starting point.

——Art. 126—Starting point.

Ouster from the actual enjoyment of the property is the starting point for limitation under Art. 126. 79 Ind. Cas. 666=10 O.L.J. 404=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 205.

——Art. 126—Suit for possession by Hindu son—Starting point.

Limitation for a suit for possession by a Hindu son, of the family property sold away by his father, runs from the date of the vendee's possession. 231 P.L.R. 1914=133 P.W.R. 1914=14 P.R. 1915=25 Ind. Cas. 35.

7. Suits after 12 years of possession.

——Art. 126—Purchase by usufructuary mortgage.

Where an usufructuary mortgagee of joint family property, subsequently purchases the same he takes possession as full proprietor from the date of the sale and he no longer remains a mortgagee in possession. A suit, therefore, under Art. 126 must be instituted within 12 years from the date of sale. 112 Ind. Cas. 151 Oudh.

——Arts. 126, 144 and 148—Suit after 12 years—Father mortgaging and then selling equity of redemption—Redemption by alienee—Suit by other members for possession.

A Hindu father and his son mortgaged the family property. The father sold the equity of redemption to the defendant who redeemed the mortgage and continued in possession. The son then sold his share of the equity of redemption to plaintiff who brought a suit for a moiety of the properties on payment of half the mortgage money. The suit was instituted more than 12 years after the defendant obtained possession on redemption.

Held, that Art. 126 applied to the suit and not Arts. 144 and 148 and that the suit was barred. 41 Mad. 650=34 M.L.J. 528=8 L.W. 28=24 M.L.T. 22=(1918) M.W.N. 448=45 Ind. Cas. 867.

——Art. 126—Suit after 12 years of possession.

A suit by a Hindu to set aside his father's alienation of family property more than 12 years after the alienee took possession is barred by Article 126 of the Act. 26 Ind. Cas. 873 (Cal.).

8. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 126—Miscellaneous—Cause of action.

Obiter:—When cause of action for a suit of the nature contemplated by Art. 126, arises in favour of certain persons, the fact that some of them are minors does not affect the question of limitation and the minors can only take advantage of the same cause of action. 90 Ind. Cas. 184=2 O.W.N. 650=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 678.

——Art. 127.

1. Adverse possession.
2. Applicability and scope.
3. Exclusion.
4. Mahomedans.

7. Miscellaneous.

1. Adverse possession.

——Art. 127—Co-tenancy—Adverse possession—Exclusion. See LIMITATION—ADVERSE POSSESSION. 1907 A.W.N. 195=4 A.L.J. 473.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession between coparceners.

Per Chandavarkar J:—Art. 127 governs the question of adverse possession between coparceners Inter se. 37 Bom. 84=14 Bom. L.R. 931=17 Ind. Cas. 657.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession as against a co-owner.

Exclusive possession by a co-owner of property which originally had been admittedly joint does not per se amount to adverse possession as against his co-sharers. As between brothers and sisters inter se the fact of possession by one does not necessarily establish that the possession is adverse possession. (1907) 1908 A.W.N. 239=5 A.L.J. 511.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession—Co-owners.

The equity and possession of land under the common title of one co-owner will not be presumed to be adverse to the others, but will ordinarily be held for the benefit of all, as the possession of one co-owner is in itself rightful and does not imply hostility as would the possession of a mere stranger. A silent possession accompanied by no act which can amount to an ouster or notice to his co-tenant that his possession is adverse, ought not to be construed into an adverse possession. Mere possession, however exclusive or long continued, if silent, cannot give one co-tenant in possession, title as against the other co-tenants. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 735=12 C.W.N. 127=35 C. 961.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession—Joint owners.

Possession of a part of a joint holding by one of several co-sharers is prima facie possession of all. 154 P.W.R. 1909=102 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 965 (1).

——Art. 127—Adverse possession by co-sharer—Clear proof of abandonment necessary.

In the absence of clear proof of abandonment a co-sharer in possession of an absentee's land cannot claim title by adverse possession. The settlement record of 1851 provided that the absentee's land would be restored to him whenever he returned and claimed it. In 1859, while still an absentee from the village, he claimed a share on the death of a female relative in the holding which was in the possession of his co-sharer and his name was entered in the settlement of 1880 as heir. In 1885 he was again shown as absentee but his share was increased on the admission of the co-sharer in possession.

Held, that the abandonment of his right by the absentee was not proved. 18 P.L.R. 1909=120 P.R. 1908=4 Ind. Cas. 912.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession—Suit by co-sharer against lambardar for profits of his share—Nature of possession of lambardar.

Mere non-receipt of profits for 12 years of his share by a co-sharer will not bar a suit for three years past profits before suit, unless the lambardar had set up an adverse claim or had repudiated the title of a co-sharer so that the lambardar's possession might be regarded as adverse. (1904) 1905 A.W.N. 36=2 A.L.J. 107=27 A. 436. Also (1904) 27 A. 348 (1905) A.W.N. 15=2 A.L.J. 110 (N.).

——Art. 127—Adverse possession—between co-sharers—Management when adverse.

Management of joint property on behalf of some of the co-owners without any assertion of hostile title does not constitute adverse possession against another co-owner. (1904) 9 C.W.N. 32=31 C. 970.

——Arts. 127 and 144—Adverse possession—Exclusion from joint property—Joint Hindu family—Coparcener—Suit to recover his share.

P and N were undivided brothers in a joint Hindu family. P died in 1870, leaving a son M (plaintiff) then eleven years old. F died in 1881 leaving behind him a son B and a daughter R (defendant). The whole property then passed into the possession of R to whom N left it by a will, B being a lunatic. B died in 1887. After P's death plaintiff was not in possession of any of the property. In 1897, plaintiff commenced a suit to recover possession of the whole property or in the alternative to recover possession of half share in the property.

Held, (1) that the plaintiff's claim to recover more than his share in the property was barred by limitation; (2) that plaintiff's claim to recover his share in the property was not time-barred; for if Art. 127 be applied, it was clear that no exclusion was proved to the knowledge of the plaintiff and if Art. 144 be applied, it was not proved that the possession of the defendant was adverse to the plaintiff for 12 years, as B died within 12 years of the institution of the suit. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 135.

——Art. 127—Adverse possession—Proof—Coparceners.

Possession to be adverse must be shown to be continuous, public and adequate to the circumstances of the case. In the case of a joint family, where no partition is proved, the possession of one who continued to live in the village is not by itself adverse to other members who went to live elsewhere. In such cases adverse possession must be very clearly established. 3 Bom. L.R. 47=25 B. 362.

2. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

Where in a joint Hindu family consisting of two brothers, one of the brothers was in possession, the other must be deemed to have been in possession through him. Consequently, a suit by the other brother to enforce a right to share in the property is governed by Art. 127. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 177=1942 O.W.N. 639=18 Luck. 439=206 Ind. Cas. 94.

——Arts. 127, 144—Applicability and scope.

Open and continues exclusion by lunatic brother of his joint sane brother—Claim by sane brother—Article 127 applies—Death of lunatic—Court of Wards retaining possession for his widow—Article 144 applies. (1942) A.L.J. 197=A.I.R. 1942 All. 267=1943 A.W.N. 305=I.L.R. (1942) All. 518=202 Ind. Cas. 227.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

Article 127 would not be applicable to a suit between one member of a joint Hindu family and a stranger alienee who is in possession of the property by virtue of a transfer made by another member of the joint family including a father or manager. A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 136=42 Bom. L.R. 208=I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 109=187 Ind. Cas. 663.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

When the claim as to either joint possession or enjoyment by rotation in the right to perform service and worship of the idol is made, the case stands in the same way as a claim to immovable property and the article applicable would be Art. 127 rather than Art. 144. 39 Bom. L.R. 94=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 202=169 Ind. Cas. 81.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Suit for partition—Defence of distruption of family long ago—Finding as to exclusive possession and assertion of title by defendants for more than twelve years—Suit, held barred—Article 127, held governed the case—Even if Art. 127 did not apply, Art. 144 held applied. 2 B.R. 82=A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 68=159 Ind. Cas. 453.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

The income of joint family property, which accrued during the period between the preliminary and final decree in a partition suit constitutes joint family property, and, if that was not divided by the final decree for partition, a suit to enforce a share in such income would be governed by Art. 127 and not by Art. 62. 31 N.L.R. 304=A.I.R. 1935 Nag. 137=156 Ind. Cas. 672.

——Arts. 127 and 144—Applicability and scope—Minor's guardian and Manager alienating property.

Where the manager of a joint Hindu family and a minor coparcener thereof represented by his mother sold property belonging to the family to a stranger in 1904 who sold it to another person in 1917, and the minor sued to recover his share in the property in 1924 after attaining majority in 1921.

Held, that Art. 144 and not Art. 127 applied to the case and the suit was barred. 34 Bom. L.R. 354=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 255=137 Ind. Cas. 367.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

Though the villages were originally joint family property, the effect of separation was that any immovable joint property which continued undivided was no longer joint family property so as to come under Art. 127 and the claim was barred under Art. 144, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 48=35 C.W.N. 438=60 M.L.J. 386=33 L.W. 439=53 C.L.J. 313=14 N.L.J. 56=33 Bom. L.R. 442=27 N.L.R. 131=58 I.A. 106=130 Ind. Cas. 673. (P.C.).

——Art 127—Applicability and scope.

Article 127 pre-supposes the existence of a joint family and the exclusion of a coparcener from his joint family property. 15 O.C. 111 and 24 Cal. 309, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 66=49 All. 763=25 A.L.J. 413=A.I.R. 1927 All. 454.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Sale by coparcener.

Where some of the coparceners sell the joint family property and put the vendees in possession and the surviving coparcener brings a suit for possession of the alienated property, Art. 144 and not 127 applies. It is not necessary under Art. 144 to prove the exact date when plaintiff became aware that he had been excluded from a right to share in the joint property. The date of limitation beginning to run against the plaintiff must be taken as starting from the date when the vendors ceased to cultivate the property that they had alienated. 70 Ind. Cas. 317=15 M.L.W. 294=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 369=42 M.L.J. 364.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Tenants-in-common.

A suit for partition by the heir of one tenant-in-common against the heir of the other tenant-in-common is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 127 of the Limitation Act. If on the death of one of tenants-in-common his heir obtains exclusive possession of the whole property asserting an absolute and exclusive title in the deceased, the possession of the heir is adverse to surviving tenants-in-common. 59 Ind. Cas. 978=43 Mad. 288=38 M.L.J. 149.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Denial of title—Residence and maintenance given to plaintiff—If prevents time running.

Where the plaintiff's claim as coparcener is distinctly denied but the plaintiff is allowed to remain in the family house as a dependant the enjoyment of such residence or maintenance is not sufficient to prevent time running against his claim. Under Art. 127 in the case of minors the knowledge of the guardian is quite sufficient. 37 M.L.J. 256=(1919) M.W.N. 440=10 L.W. 156=52 Ind. Cas. 725.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

The word "Share" in Art. 127 is used as a verb and not as a noun. The suit contemplated by Art. 127 is a suit by a member of a joint family against other members of the joint family to be restored to joint enjoyment on the allegation of having been unlawfully excluded from it. The article does not apply to a suit where the alleged joint family property has passed by sale to a stranger. 15 O.C. 111=15 Ind. Cas. 394.

——Arts. 127 and 129—Applicability and scope—Suit for maintenence—Malabar law.

A suit by a junior member, of a family governed by Aliyasanthana Law, for maintenance out of the property is governed by Art. 127 of the Limitation Act and not by Art. 129 because the latter applies only to suits for maintenance from property belonging to another whereas in the families in question the property belongs to the persons who claims maintenance. 9 M. 266; 24 M. 73; 14 M. 101, Rel. 36 Mad. 203=11 M.L.T. 112=(1912) M.W.N. 109=22 M.L.J. 309=14 Ind. Cas. 383.

——Arts. 127, 120 and 144—Applicability and scope—Joint family property—Nature not ascertained—Suit for recovery of.

A suit for recovery of property alleged to be joint, from the executors of the deceased coparcener is governed by Art. 127 and not by Arts. 120 and 144. 4 S.L.R. 161=8 Ind. Cas. 930.

——Art. 127—Applicability of moveables and immoveables.

A twelve years limitation applies to a suit for partition in regard to properties remaining joint, Art. 127 applies equally to moveable and immoveable properties. 14 C.W.N. 221=3 Ind. Cas. 9.

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Suit for partition of moveables and immoveables.

Period of limitation is the same for moveables and immoveables. (1903) 6 Bom. L.R. 1=31 C. 262=31 I.A. 10=8 C.W.N. 146=14 M.L.J. 8 (P.C.).

——Art. 127—Applicability and scope—Exclusion and knowledge.

Art. 127 requires first, exclusion and, secondly, knowledge of exclusion. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 925.

———Art. 127—Applicability and scope.

In order that Art. 127 may be applied to a case, it must be shown that the property is dispute is joint family property and that the plaintiff had been excluded from the enjoyment thereof. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 355.

3 Exclusion.

———Arts. 127 and 144—Applicability—Co-parcenary of sane and insane co-parcener—Properties held separately—Insane co-parcener in exclusive possession and enjoyment of portions of family property for over 12 years to the knowledge of the sane co-parcener—Suit by heirs of sane co-parcener for possession of such property—Bar of limitation.

Per Fazl Ali and Mukherjea, JJ.—Art. 127 of the Limitation Act presupposes the existence of a joint family and joint family property and can be invoked only when the suit is brought to enforce a right to a share therein by a person excluded from such property. Where it is established by evidence that an insane co-parcener was in exclusive possession of definite portions of the family property (through a guardian) for over twelve years with the other sane co-parcener acquiescing in it, and the cumulative effect of the facts established is to negative the existence of a joint family, Art. 127 cannot be applied to a suit by the heirs of the other sane co-parcener for possession of the property in the possession of the insane brother. Article 144 is the proper Article to be applied. Even if Art. 127 is applied the suit would be barred as the other member was to his knowledge excluded for more than twelve years from the property in question. 1949 F.C.R. 715=A.I.R. 1950 F.C. 142=(1950) S.C.J. 514 (F.C.).

———Art. 127—Exclusion—What amounts to.

The question as to what amounts to exclusion depends upon the facts of each particular case but an intention to exclude is essential. 22 Luck. 522=1947 O.W.N. 421=1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 301=A.I.R. 1948 Oudh 307=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 301.

——Art. 127—" Exclusion ", meaning of.

" Exclusion " in Art. 127, means total exclusion. Where in a litigation concerning a small portion of the joint property, one of the members of the joint family denies the title of the other member, the other member however, winning the case on the plea that the property in litigation formed part of joint property, the denial of title does not amount to " exclusion " within the meaning of Art. 127. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 177=1942 O.W.N. 639=18 Luck. 439=206 Ind. Cas. 94.

——Art. 127—Exclusion.

Where one of the members of joint Hindu family is in exclusive and separate possession of portion of property for more than twelve years, the claim of others for partition is barred by Art. 127. 35 Bom. L.R. 779=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 386=145 Ind. Cas. 780.

——Art. 127—' Exclusion '.

There is no definition of the word " exclusion ", in the Limitation Act and the question whether a person has been excluded from joint family, must depend upon the facts of the particular case. An intention to exclude is an essential element. It is necessary therefore, for the Court to be satisfied that there was an intention on the part of those in control and possession of the joint family property to exclude the person and that exclusion was to his knowledge.

Member of joint family going to live with his maternal uncle voluntarily with consent of eldest male member—Mere fact that joint family did not subscribe towards the maintenance, education or marriage held not sufficient to prove intention to exclude. 118 Ind. Cas. 1=33 C.W.N. 1006=31 Bom. L.R. 1030=50 C.L.J. 135=1929 A.L.J. 1031=30 M.L.W. 514=6 O.W.N. 786=56 I.A. 310=53 Bom. 699=1929 M.W.N. 852=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 231=57 M.L.J. 287 (P.C.).

——Art. 127—Evidence of exclusion.

Mutation proceeding is not a judicial proceeding and does not decide title and is no evidence of exclusion from property. 98 Ind. Cas. 1013=1 Luck. 389=29 O.C. 316=53 I.A 220=48 All. 529=25 A.L.J. 25=28 Bom. L.R. 1409=44 C.L.J. 330=25 M.L.W. 1=3 O.W.N. 623=1926 M.W.N. 716=13 M.L.T. 81=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 100=51 M.L.J. 836 (P.C.).

——Art. 127—Exclusion.

Where the members have been, for convenience of management, living at different places and managing the property at each particular place, there is no exclusion or ouster of one member, so as to disentitle him to his share of the other portions, however long their enjoyment by others. A suit for his share is governed by Art. 127 of the Limitation Act. 72 Ind. Cas. 742=29 P.W.R. 1923=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 569.

——Art. 127—Exclusion.

If exclusion means mere physical exclusion the receipt of maintenance and holding of land out of the estate must prevent its being held that there was exclusion. But is " exclusion " under Art. 127 of the Act, just as in " possession " there is a mental as well as a physical element. Legal or juridical exclusion from an estate by one co-owner of his co-owners is consistent with their physical admission to it. For such mere physical admission to put an end to exclusion it must be possible to infer that it was accompanied by an intention to abandon the position of a right to exclude. No doubt such intention will be inferred where no legal title to excluded is proved to have been set up and maintained, because there is always a presumption in favour of rightful entry and retention. Such presumption is, however, rebuttable. No presumption against indivisibility of possession or title can arise by reason of joint living. 74 Ind. Cas. 225=9 O.L.J. 52=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 61.

——Arts. 127 and 44—Exclusion—Exclusion from specific items—Effect of.

To bar the right of the plaintiff under Art. 127 of the Limitation Act there must be exclusion from the whole of the joint family property, and not merely from specific items of joint family property. 21 Bom. 325, Diss. 42 Mad. 431=36 M.L.J. 612=(1919) M.W.N. 328=52 Ind. Cas. 470.

——Art. 127—Exclusion—Division in Status—Possession.

Where the members of a joint Hindu family are divided in status without a division by metes and bounds they are tenants in common and the possession of one enures to the benefit of another in the absence of actual ouster. Where no ouster is proved by one co-sharer or a tenant-in-common of another Co-sharer there cannot be said to be an exclusion from joint family property within the meaning of Art. 127. 17 M.L.T. 361=29 Ind. Cas. 183.

——Art. 127—Exclusion—Limitation.

Limitation runs against a person from the time he is excluded from enjoyment to his knowledge. 37 Bom. 64=14 Bom. L.R. 923=17 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 127—Exclusion from joint family—Expulsion from caste—Re-admission.

In a suit for partition of joint family property, the defence was that plaintiff's father was expelled from the family for some scandalous conduct and that he had received his share of the property. It was in evidence that the plaintiff re-appeared in the village where the family resided, that he took up his abode there and that he was recognized as a member of the family. Held, that no case of exclusion from the joint property could be made out against him till five or six years before suit and that the suit was in time. 16 C.W.N. 466=15 Ind. Cas. 184 (P.C.).

——Art. 127—Exclusion by third parties.

Art. 127 does not apply when it is not the original co-sharers who have excluded the plaintiff but third parties. 23 P.L.R. 1911=48 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Art. 127—"Exclusion"—Mere non-participation, no exclusion.

Mere non-participation is not exclusion within the meaning of Art. 127. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 364=1910 M.W.N. 511=7 M.L.T. 174=5 Ind. Cas. 924.

——Art. 127—Exclusion—Proof of exclusion required—Mere non-participation not enough.

It is only ouster of a tenant in common for twelve years that can extinguish his right. Mere non-participation in or refusal to live on joint property for the period is insufficient. (1901) 24 M. 441.

4 Mahomedans.

——Art. 127—Mahomedans.

Article 127 does not apply to undivided property of a family governed by Mahomedan Law and not proved to have adopted as a custom the Hindu Law of the joint family. 2 S.D. 582, Diss. from ; 41 Bom. 588 (F.B.) ; 13 All. 282 (F.B.) ; 16 Mad. 61 (F.B.) ; 22 Cal. 954, Foll. 80 Ind. Cas. 118=16 S.L.R. 25=A.I.R. 1921 Sind 177.

——Art. 127—Mahomedans.

Art. 127 does not apply to a case where the parties are Muhammadans. 22 C. 954; 7 C.W.N. 155, Foll. 38 Ind. Cas. 25 (Cal.).

——Art. 127—Mahammadan Family.

Under the Mahammadan Law there is no such thing as joint family property. If the members of a Mahammadan family succeed to property on the death of a relation each of them takes a share of each item of the property and a suit by such a member for a share is governed by Art. 123 and not by Art. 127 of the Limitation Act. 38 Mad. 1099=32 Ind. Cas. 1002.

——Art. 127—Applicability—Muhammadans—"Joint family property"—Meaning of.

By the Full Bench (Shah, J., dissenting).—The article does not apply to the property of a Muhammadan or any other person not a Hindu unless he has adopted as a custom the Hindu Law of the joint family (1885) P.J. 170, Diss. The expression "joint family" and the article must be read as a compound adjective and the expression joint family property must be read as property appertaining to a joint family (Per Beamen and Heaton, JJ.), The words "joint family" involve definite legal notions. incidents and consequences, and must primarily be referred to a Hindu joint family and only secondarily to such groups of non-Hindus, as can prove that they have by custom adopted the Hindu Law of the joint family.

(Per Shah, J.) Quaere.—Whether the Article can apply to person other than Hindus and Muhammandans who are not proved to have adopted as a custom, the Hindu Law of the joint family. 41 Bom. 588=19 Bom.L.R. 579=41 Ind. Cas. 761 (F.B.).

——Art. 127—Muhammadans.

Art. 127 cannot apply to Muhammadans for on the death of a Muhammadan intestate, his estate could not be joint property unless by special family custom it is supposed to be governed by Hindu Law. It is an undistributed estate to be taken in severalty by the heirs, sharers and residuaries. The criterion for the applicability of Art. 127 is that property must be "joint family property" and no such property is known outside the special joint family of the Hindu Law. 38 Bom. 449=15 Bom.L.R. 1044=22 Ind. Cas. 195.

——Art. 127—Applicability—Muhammadans.

Art. 127 of the Limitation Act applies to Muhammadans alone. A suit by the daughter of a deceased Muhammadan to recover by partition the possession of her share in her property is governed by Art. 127 of the Act. 33 Bom. 719=11 Bom.L.R. 1083=44 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Art. 127—Muhammadans.

Art. 127 is not applicable to Muhammadans. (1912) M.W.N. 45=13 Ind. Cas. 791.

——Art. 127—Mahomedan—Suit by a Mahomedan woman to recover her share in her father's property—Limitation.

A suit by the daughter of a deceased Mahomedan to recover her share in his property is governed by Art. 127. (1909) 11 Bom.L.R. 1083=33 B. 719=4 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Art. 127—Muhammadans.

The Article does not apply to Muhammadans who have not alleged that they have by custom adopted Hindu joined family system. 5 N.L.R. 41=2 Ind. Cas. 15.

5 Starting point.

——Art. 127—Starting point.

Although time cannot run against a claim to partition joint family estate unless there has been definite exclusion, yet the fact that when a co-parcener's right to mortgage was challenged 14 years prior to suit and he took no steps, strongly suggests that at that time when evidence might have been more readily available he had no great faith in the value of his claim. 113 Ind. Cas. 897=49 C.L.J. 93=1929 M.W.N. 39=29 M.L.W. 91=6 O.W.N. 104=1929 A.L.J. 9=31 Bom.L.R. 280=33 C.W.N. 435=10 P.L.T. 283=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 1=56 M.L.J. 435 (P.C.).

——Art. 127—Starting point—Suit by son adopted into another family for share after adoption was declared invalid.

Held :—That limitation for a suit by a person adopted into another family, on the adoption being declared invalid, for a share of the properties belonging to his natural family will only run from the date of his exclusion from enjoyment of the properties by the adopted son. An oral renunciation, made on consideration of the reversioners transferring their reversionary interest is invalid, such transfer being imperative under S. 6 (a), T.P.Act. (1906) 30 M. 201=2 M.L.T. 184.

6 Suit after partition.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition.

Article 127 does not apply to a suit to enforce partition of property excluded from previous partition of joint family properties by fraud of other members as it presupposes the existence of a joint family and can have no application where there has been disrupture of the status of jointness since thereafter the members of the family become, tenants-in-common in respect of property left undivided and any exclusion from it would not be exclusion from joint family property within the meaning of that article. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 419=45 Bom.L.R. 825=214 Ind. Cas. 273.

——Art. 127—Applicability—Suit after partition.

A suit for re-adjustment of shares allotted in a previous partition on the basis of mistake is not governed by Art. 127 or Art. 144, but by Art. 96. 34 L.W. 262=61 M.L.J. 430=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 707=54 M. 883=135 Ind. Cas. 9.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition—Suit for setting aside partition—Applicability.

A suit by a co-parcener, that a previous partition between the members of the family was vitiated by fraud reduce the suit to one for setting aside the partition on the ground of fraud and so Art. 127 does not apply. 14 Bom.L.R. 771=17 Ind. Cas. 10.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition.

In 1910 A and his four sons made a partition of joint family property. In 1911 and 1913, A made two gifts of certain of his properties. A suit was filed in 1922 by the sons of A for a declaration that the properties allotted to A at the partition should go after his lifetime to his sons and that the deeds of gift were invalid.

Held, as the property was not joint family property, Art. 120, Limitation Act, applied instead of Art. 127. A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 150; A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 104 and 15 Bom. 135, Rel. on. 124 Ind. Cas. 773=54 Bom. 4=31 Bom.L.R. 1240=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 61.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition—Onus.

In a suit by a Hindu for a declaration of his title to a one half share in certain property, it was common ground between the parties that there was no joint family on the date of the suit it was also admitted by both parties that for the last eight or nine years they had been living and messing separately. According to the plaintiff every joint family property had been divided between them except the property in dispute. Bar of limitation was pleaded in defence.

Held, that the onus lay on the plaintiff to prove the point of time at which the status of the joint family broke and that the alleged partition by which his one half-share to the property was determined did take place within twelve years immediately preceding the institution of the suit. A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 132 and A.I.R. 1926 All. 453, Expl. and Rel. on. 105 Ind. Cas. 410=4 O.W.N. 958 =A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 499.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition.

Where certain money bonds remained joint property even after the partition in a Hindu joint family and one of them was realised by the defendants who were some of the separated members, five years, before the plaintiffs, the other members filed a suit for their share of the money realised,

Held, that Art. 62 and not Art. 127 applied as the latter does not apply to a family which has separated prior to the suit and that the suit was barred by limitation. 75 Ind. Cas. 953=A.I.R. 1924 All. 812.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition.

A suit for the recovery of money realised by one member of the family to the exclusion of another is not governed after separation or partition by Art. 127. The realization in this case had been made while the family was till joint. The suit ought therefore to have been brought within three years from the date of separation or partition. 77 Ind. Cas. 697=26 O.C. 191=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 15.

——Art. 127—Suit after partition—Joint Hindu family—Suit for recovery of share of debt realised by one.

Where after partition, one of its members recovers a debt belonging to the family, a suit by the other members of the family for the recovery of their shares in the money realised would be governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 127, Limitation Act. 6 A. 442; 24 C. 309; 13 A. 282, Rel. 15 O.C. 397=16 Ind. Cas. 882.

——Arts. 127 and 62—Suit after partition—Joint family—Suit by member to recover share of defendant.

A suit by a member of a joint Hindu family to recover back his share of a joint debt realised by another member after division in status, is governed by Art. 62 and not by Art. 127. 32 Mad. 191=5 M.L.T. 49=19 M.L.J. 94=1 Ind. Cas. 408.

7 Miscellaneous.

——Arts. 127 and 142—Conversion to Islam—Suit by convert to recover property of uncle.

In a suit to by a convert to Islam to recover possession of property of joint Hindu family left by his uncle, it must be proved (1) that the separation did not take place more than 12 years before suit, as he ceased to be a member of the joint family on account of his conversion, (2) that he was a member of the joint family within 12 years of the date of the suit; (3) that he could get a share in the ancestral property which was his at his conversion. 57 P.R. 1916=159 P.W.R. 1916=4 P.L.R. 1917= 35 Ind. Cas. 549.

——Art. 127—Miscellaneous—Minor co-parcener.

A suit by a member to enforce a right to share in joint family property is not barred if brought within 12 years of his attaining majority. At the most it can be held that he became aware of his exclusion from the date of the attaining majority. 116 Ind. Cas. 849=1929 A.L.J. 324=A.I.R. 1929 All. 302.

——Arts. 127, 142—Miscellaneous—Onus of proof.

Under Article 127 the onus is on the defendants to prove that the exclusion from the joint family property became known to the plaintiff more than 12 years before the suit. 31 C. 448, explained. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 56.

——Art. 127—Miscellaneous—Possession of co-owner—Distinction between the possession of a member of a joint Hindu family or of a lambardar and that of a member of a Mahomedan family.

A very clear distinction must be made between the case of a non-possession or non-receipt of rents and profits by members of an undivided Hindu family who are co-owners, and the non-possession or non-receipt of rents and profits by a person who was a co-sharer, but entitled to a specific share or interest in the property prior to dispossession or ouster from receipt of rents and profits. Where, therefore, one of two co-owners of a house, who were Mahomedans, left the house, and the other co-owner remained in possession and did not recognise his title for over 12 years.

Held that the other co-owner or his representative could not recover possession of his share in the house. (1905) 1907 A.W.N. 195=4 A.L.J. 473.

——Art. 128—Agreement.

A suit for arrears of maintenance by a widow against her husband's brother, fixed by a mutual agreement is allowed only for the arrears of three years. 75 Ind. Cas. 533=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 176.

——Art. 128—Applicability and scope.

Article 128 also refers to cases in which the claim of the Hindu is based upon his right as a Hindu to avoid an alienation by a female who is in possession as a Hindu, and does not apply to cases where the possession and the claim are independent of the status of the parties. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 323=17 P.L.T. 131=15 Pat. 151=2 B.R. 658=163 Ind. Cas. 940.

——Arts. 128, 129, 115—Word 'Hindu' whether refers to religious persuasion.

The word "Hindu" in Arts. 128, 129, does not refer to the religious persuasion of the plaintiff. It is inconceivable that the Legislature ever intended to provide one period of limitation for a plaintiff of a particular religious faith and another period if he belongs to another faith. Those two articles apply where the maintenance is claimed not on the basis of contract but on the basis of status of the plaintiff under the Hindu Law and a suit for maintenance by even a Hindu under contract is governed by Art. 115. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 158=16 P.L.T. 789=2 B.R. 333 (2)=161 Ind. Cas. 478.

——Art. 128—Applicability and scope.

A claim for maintenance made by the widow in circumstances in which the husband was not, during his lifetime, legally liable to pay any amount can in no sense of the word be described as maintenance and as it is a money claim, Art. 128 does not apply but the general article applicable to ordinary money claims governs the case. 15 P.L.T. 372=12 Pat. 869=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 99=149 Ind. Cas. 738.

——Arts. 128, 129—Applicability.

Right to maintenance revives on cessation of unchastity and suit would be governed by Art. 128, Limitation Act, 14 L. 759=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 747=34 P.L.R. 1082=148 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Art. 128—Scope.

In a joint family, a widow is entitled to claim arrears of maintenance even for 8 years and the Court will not disallow the claim, unless abandonment or waiver is expressed or can be implied from the circumstances. 107 Ind. Cas. 641=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 561.

——Art. 129—Applicability—Suit for share of property or maintenance.

A suit by a widow for possession of a share in certain land left by her husband in lieu of her maintenance or in the alternative for a cash allowance by way of maintenance is not governed by Art. 129. Article 129 is intended to apply to cases where the status of a person on the basis of which maintenance is claimed is denied. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 747=14 L. 759=34 P.L.R. 1082=148 Ind. Cas. 479.

——Arts. 129, 128—"Hindu".

The word "Hindu" in Arts. 128 and 129 does not refer to the religious persuasion of the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 158=16 P.L.T. 789=2 B.R. 333 (2)=161 Ind. Cas. 478.

——Art. 129—Land in lieu of maintenance.

A suit by a junior member of a family governed by rule of primogeniture for a plot of land in lieu of maintenance on the strength of family custom is governed either by Art. 120 or 144, the choice between the two provisions of law depending upon the question whether the suit is treated as one for declaration or for possession. Therefore when on the evidence it is proved that the defendant has been giving grain to the plaintiffs by way of maintenance and that the allowance was stopped two years before the suit, the suit is clearly in time.

Articles 129 and 131 do not apply to such a case as Art. 129 is restricted in its operation to a suit for maintenance in which the right is based on Hindu Law and not upon custom and Art. 131 is confined to a suit in which the plaintiff seeks simply to establish his right to maintenance and does not ask for a consequential relief. 83 P.R. 1906, Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 428=11 Lah. 99=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 872.

——Art. 129—Onus—Denial of right.

Where there is no denial, there is no bar under Art. 129 and proof of denial lies on him who pleads the bar. 26 M.L.J. 205=(1914) M.W.N. 374=23 Ind. Cas. 831.

——Art. 129—Starting point.

The cause of action for maintenance accrues from time to time according to the want and exigencies of the person entitled. 3 Bom. 415 (P.C.); 29 Cal. 557 Foll. Even where suit is barred, the right is not extinguished and a defence of a right to maintenance can prevail. 73 Ind. Cas. 235=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 364.

——Art. 130—Adverse possession—Nature of plea.

The plea of limitation in a suit for possession of lands in a patni depends upon the doctrine of adverse possession and not upon plaintiff's want of possession. 4 C.L.J. 548, Foll. Mere non-payment of rent is not adverse possession. 19 Ind. Cas. 64 (Cal.).

——Art. 130—Applicability—Rent-free tenure.

Unless and until a tenure is found to be a rent-free tenure, Art. 130 of the Limitation Act can have no application to a suit for assessment of its rent. 28 C.L.J. 254=47 Ind. Cas. 420.

——Art. 130—Hindu son's pious obligation when begins.

A Hindu son's liability to pay his father's debt arises when the father fails to discharge his obligations and such a claim is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. 13 Ind. Cas. 530 (All.).

——Art. 130—Limitation for landlord's suit—Tenant not paying rent.

As between the raiyats of an estate and the landlords of an estate, when a raiyat holds land of an estate without payment of rent, limitation against the landlord will only arise 12 years after the landlord has come to know that the defendant possesses the land without payment of rent. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 289=166 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Art. 130—Resumption of life Jagir.

Under Art. 130 a suit for the resumption of a life jagir must be brought within twelve years of the death of the grantee. 71 Ind. Cas. 929=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 298.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment.

If the tenant is in adverse possession of the absolute interest for over twelve years, the landlord's right is completely extinguished. If the tenant is in adverse possession for such a period in respect only of a limited interest as tenant, then whatever may be the effect of it on the question of the landlord's right to khas possession a claim for assessment of rent will not be barred unless as provided for in Art. 130 or Art. 131. 95 Ind. Cas. 622=43 C.L.J. 387=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 883.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment.

Suits for assessment of rent-free lands are governed by Art. 130 and have to be instituted within twelve years from the time when the right to assess the land first arises and this right may arise upon a distinct notice of the tenant's claim to hold it rent-free. 95 Ind. Cas. 622=43 C.L.J. 387=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 883.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment.

Article 130 can have no application unless and until the lands is found to be rent free; the mere non-payment of rent for a period does not bar the landlord's right to have the rent assessed and to recover the rent from his tenant. The right to levy assessment upon rent free lands is governed by Art. 130 and is consequently extinguished under S. 28, if no suit to enforce the right is instituted within the time allowed. On the other hand under Art. 131, the right to levy assessment would, as recurring right, accrue when there has been a demand refusal only in those cases where the relationship of landlord and tenant or landlord and occupant had ever existed. Once that right is established then the non-payment of rent or assessment would not be sufficient to enable the tenant to begin to set up a title by adverse pos session. There must be some overt act such as a refusal to pay the rent or assessment before the time begins to run. This is in harmony with the view that where a tenant claimed land rent free to the knowledge of the plaintiff and no suit for resumption or assessment was brought till after the expiry of 12 years ; the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 130. 72 Ind. Cas. 329=38 C.L.J. 207=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 392.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment.

A right to levy assessment on rent free land is governed by Art. 130 and under S. 28 is extinguished if no suit to enforce the right is brought within the time. 5 Cal. 949, Foll. 61 Ind. Cas. 40=45 Bom. 694=23 Bom. L.R. 314=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 303.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment—Land entered in the records as liable to assessment.

Where, defendants land was, in 1910 been entered in the Record-of-Rights as liable to be assessed with rent, and the recorded landlord brought the present suit for rent. Held, that the entry in the record of rights did not give the starting point of limitation as such entry confers no title (2) the suit was not one for the resumption or assessment of rent free land within Art. 130 of the Limitation Act, but a suit for the assessment of land presumably liable to be assessed (3) the fact that the rent had not been paid more than twelve years before suit is not per se sufficient to support a decree for dismissal of such suit for the right to have the rent assessed must continue so long as the relationship of landlord and tenant continued. Such a relationship and liability could be presumed from the Record-of-Rights and it is for the defendant to rebut the presumption by evidence. 40 C. 173, Rel. on. 22 C.W.N. 685=46 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 130—Suit for assessment—Landlord and Tenant—Adverse possession—Effect of.

Where a tenant claimed land as rent-free to the knowledge of the plaintiff and no suit for resumption or assessment was brought till 12 years after, the suit is barred by limitation. 39 Cal. 453=15 C.L.J. 203=16 C.W.N. 981. Note=13 Ind. Cas. 518.

——Art. 130—Suit to recover assessment—Limitation.

A suit to recover assessment on land held by the defendant adversely to the plaintiff from the year 1888 is barred under Art. 130 of the Act. 40 Bom. 606=18 Bom. L.R. 768=36 Ind. Cas. 505.

1 Applicability.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Suit by Government servant for arrears of salary—Limitation—Periodically recurring right. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 102. (1947) 2 M.L.J. 389=1947 F.C.R. 89=A.I.R. 1947 F.C. 23 (F.C.).

——Art. 131—Applicability—Suit to recover arrears of lawajama—Defendant disputing amount payable on account of deductions claimed by him and not denying right—Limitation.

Art. 131, Limitation Act, only applies when the suit is to enforce a right, such as a right to receive an annual allowance, etc., e.g., lawajama. Where the right is not denied, and what is disputed is only the amount payable under the right (the defendant claiming certain deductions), a suit for arrears of lawajama is governed by Art. 62 or 120, Limitation Act, and not by Art. 131. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 401=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 397=1948 N.L.J. 551.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Suit for declaration of right to share in Toda Giras allowance—Limitation Art. 120.

A suit for declaration of a right to a share in Toda Giras allowance, is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right falling within Art. 131, Limitation Act. The fact that the plaintiff could not institute the suit without first obtaining a certificate from the Collector under S. 6 of the Pensions Act would not make Art. 131, inapplicable. Art. 120 does not apply. I.L.R. (1947) Bom. 421=49 Bom. L.R. 318=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 451.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Kavimera cess.

As long as any person in possession of a village, out of whose income the mera is payable, he is subject to the liability and the liability is not one arising out of his having wrongly made a collection of what he was not entitled to collect but one arising from the fact that out of the collections which as a zamindar he is entitled to make, he is bound to make the disbursement and appropriate only the balance. In that sense and to that extent it is personal liability. It is not one resting on covenant but in the nature of a charge because the payment is one which has to be made out of the profits of immovable property. From the mere fact of its being a charge, it will not follow that it cannot fall under Art. 131. As long as any person continues to be in possession of a village out of whose melwaram the mera is payable, he is liable to pay it as a condition of his tenure as a zamindar, or other person entitled to possession of the melwaram interest. In respect of a claim of this kind, even the suit for payment of arrears due will be governed by Art. 131. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 47=46 L.W. 358=(1937) M.W.N. 899=176 Ind. Cas. 247.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Manibham allowance.

A suit against a zamindar to recover an annual allowance due to the plaintiff from and out of the revenue collection of a village (manibham) is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right and is governed by Art. 131. 44 L.W. 253=(1936) M.W.N. 742=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 704=164 Ind. Cas. 794.

——Art. 131—Applicability.

A suit for rent by a landlord in respect of an anubhavam tenure evidenced by a registered document is governed by Art. 116 and not by Art. 131. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 682=(1935) M.W.N. 866=42 L.W. 596=158 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Arts. 131, 132—Applicability—Malikana.

Article 132 enforces the payment of a money charge on immovable property and malikhana is deemed to be a money charge on immovable property. Consequently a suit to recover malikana is governed by Art. 132 and not Art. 131. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 44=154 Ind. Cas. 1043.

——Arts. 131 and 14—Applicability—Sardeshmukhi.

The plaintiffs had a right to collect Govt. dues in respect of certain villages in Malvan and Devgad taluks and to take two per cent. of the collections. This right was recognised and continued but in 1889, the Collector of Ratnagiri recommended that the basis of payment should be permanently fixed at the average of five years' receipts at the original rates. In 1882-83 Survey Settlements had been introduced in the Malvan village and revision survey was applied to them in 1914-15 and in the Devgad villages, Survey Settlement was introduced in 1892-93. The plaintiff applied in 1900 to fix the percentage of his allowance on the Settlement rates and in 1915 his request was granted as regards the Malvan villages but refused as regards Devgad villages. The plaintiff applied against to fix the percentage on the revised survey figures in the villages. On refusal by Government the superintendent sued on March 23, 1923, for a declaration that he had a right to receive sardeshmukhi as calculated on the basis of the amount of the assessment of the villages that might be fixed from time to time :

Held, that the plaintiff's cause of action accrued after the final orders of the Government were communicated to him in 1915 and that the suit was not barred as it fell under Art. 131, Lim. Act.

Article 14, Limitation Act did not apply to the case as plaintiff did not seek to set aside the order of any Government Officer, but for recovery of his due percentage out of the villages. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 319=34 Bom. L.R. 129=139 Ind. Cas. 796.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Maintenance.

A suit by a junior member of a family governed by rule of primogeniture for a plot of land in lieu of maintenance on the strength of family custom is governed either by Art. 120 or 144.

Articles 129 and 131 do not apply to such a case as Art. 129 is restricted in its operation to a suit for maintenance in which the right is based on Hindu Law and not upon custom and Art. 131 is confined to a suit in which the plaintiff seeks simply to establish his right to maintenance and does not ask for a consequential relief. 83 P.R. 1906, Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 428=11 Lah. 99= A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 872.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Maintenance—Recurring right—Right to maintenance and a right to recover maintenance—Distinction.

A right of maintenance is a right which accrues on the happening of a certain event and is not a recurring right but a constant right till the happening of some other event which determines it. No doubt the right to recover maintenance is a recurring right unless maintenance is fixed by the parties at one consolidated sum, but there is a great difference between a suit to establish maintenance and a suit to recover arrears of maintenance, and even if it be held that Art. 131 would govern a suit to establish a right of maintenance, it cannot be held applicable to a suit to recover arrears of maintenance. 64 Ind. Cas. 892=2 Lah. 243=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 121.

——Art. 131—Applicability.

Where the relation of landlord and tenant or superior holder and occupant is not established, the article does not apply. A suit to recover assessment by Inamdar who claims to have purchased his rights is not governed by Art. 131. 60 Ind. Cas. 892=45 Bom. 638=23 Bom. L.R. 100= A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 175.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Deshmukhi rights.

The right to receive a certain amount for Deshmukhi is a recurring right and, therefore, Art. 131 will apply to such a case. 109 Ind. Cas. 85=11 N.L.J. 62.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Suit to establish right to offerings of temple—Claim for arrears.

A suit for a declaration that plaintiff is entitled to a certain share in the offerings of a temple is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right under Art. 131. Where a person claims to share in the offerings made to a temple he can bring a suit at any time within 12 years from the date when he first asserted his right and did not have it recognised even though his right originated at a previous date. The article has nothinrg whatever to do with a suit to recover arrears. 22 O.C. 346= 6 O.L.J. 677=2 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 19=54 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Art. 131—Applicability and scope—Proof of demand and refusal necessary.

Art. 131 of the Limitation Act would not be applicable to a case unless it is proved that more than 12 years before the institution of the suit, the plaintiff expressly made a demand of the defendants and was refused. 46 P.W.R. 1914=140 P.L.R. 1914=23 Ind. Cas. 445.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Claim to recover water cess—Illegally levied.

A claim to recover water cess illegally levied is not a suit to establish periodically recurring right governed by Art. 131 but the cause of action arises on each occasion where the cess is demanded. 37 Mad. 322=24 M.L.J. 365=13 M.L.T. 235=(1913) M.W.N. 235=18 Ind. Cas. 770.

——Arts. 131 and 132—Applicability—Periodically recurring right—Meaning of—Suit to recover arrears of dower.

A suit to recover arrears of dower directed to be paid by the mortgagee of the owner of immoveable property is not governed by Art. 132 as that is applicable only to cases where it is charged upon property, not Art. 131 because it does not extend to cases of a plaintiff seeking to recover arrears in respect of a recurring right under a Registered contract ; the article applicable to such a case is either Art. 116 or 120 ; 7 A. 502 ; 83 P.R. (1886) Foll. 34 All. 246=9 A.L.J. 297=14 Ind. Cas. 505.

2 Bar of suit.

——Art. 131—Applicability—Annuity in the nature of legacy payable under will—Suit to recover more than 12 years after repudiation of right—Maintainability. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 123 AND 131. 25 Pat. 311=229 Ind. Cas. 348=A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 47.

——Art. 131—Bar of suit—Assessment of rent—Landlord's right, when barred.

Under Art. 131 of the Limitation Act, a landlord's right to have the rent assessed will be barred if there was a demand and refusal more than 12 years before the institution of the suit. 54 C.W.N. 973=A.I.R. 1951 Cal. 330.

——Art. 131—Bar of suit—Bhaoli rent.

Where, in a dispute before the Assistant Settlement Officer during the revisional survey operation, the plaintiffs claimed bhaoli rent, not for the trees over which they had no right apart from the land, but for the land of which they were proprietors, and the defendants denied the liability to pay bhaoli rent, the defendants' denial amounted to really asserting that they were not liable to pay any rent at all. When, therefore, the Assistant Settlement Officer passed the order in such a dispute, the plaintiffs were "first refused the enjoyment of the right" within the meaning of Art. 131, to realise the rent. Consequently, a suit brought more than 12 years after the order of recovery of the bhaoli rent would be barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 201=7 B.R. 277=191 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Art. 131—Bar of suit—Landlord and tenant.

Landlord and tenant—Suit for assessment of rent—Open assertion of hostile title by tenant to retain land rent-free in the presence of landlord—No attempt by landlord to realise rent until 12 years after such assertion—Suit, held barred—Demand is not necessary for applicability of Art. 131. 21 P.L.T. 838=7 B.R. 43= A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 116=190 Ind. Cas. 840.

——Art. 131—Bar of suit.

Mortgage and lease back—Suit for recovery of money with profits more than 12 years after term of lease—Claim for money barred :

Held, that in view of S. 28 and Art. 139, the suit was barred even in respect of the claim for profits. (1935) M.W.N. 207=41 L.W. 398=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 377=157 Ind. Cas. 569.

3 Claim for money.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 10, 61.

——Art. 131—Periodically recurring right—Suit for tastik allowance by pattali.

A suit by a pattali (subordinate archaka) of a temple for tastik allowance is not a suit for enforcing a periodically recurring right within Art. 131, but a suit for wages falling within Art. 102, and the fact that the allowance is paid out of the funds provided by the Government by way of deduction from the land revenue cannot affect the question of limitation. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 149=70 M.L.J. 220=(1936) M.W.N. 156 (2)=43 L.W. 431=161 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 131—Claim for money under recurring rights.

Suit for arrears of tastik—Sums due under a periodically recurring right—Article 131 is applicable. 1936 M.W.N. 156.

——Art. 131—Claim for money under recurring right.

Article 131 applies only to a suit to establish a periodically recurring right. It is not applicable to a suit to recover sums due under such a right. Such a suit is governed by Art. 62. A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 189=33 Bom. L.R. 127=55 B. 193=131 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Art. 131—Claim for money under recurring right.

There is a distinction between a suit to establish a periodically recurring right and a suit for the realisation of sums of money due on the basis of that right and the latter claim is not governed by Art. 131. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 158=16 P.L.T. 789=2 B.R. 333 (2)=161 Ind. Cas. 478.

——Art. 131—Periodically recurring right—Suit for sums due under—Prayer for declaration.

Art. 131 applies to suits to recover monies due under a periodically recurring right, whether or not there is a prayer for declaration that the plaintiffs is entitled to such right. 38 Mad. 916=(1914) M.W.N. 228=15 M.L.T. 226=26 M.L.J. 377=23 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Arts. 131 and 62—Right to recover cash allowance.

Suit for establishing a right to recover a cash allowance comes under Art. 131; but the article applies only to the case of a person originally liable to pay, when the suit is for recovery of arrears under the claim, and Art. 62 applies to the case of a co-sharer. who, has received payment. 34 Bom. 349=12 Bom. L.R. 157=5 Ind. Cas. 869.

4 Interpretation.

——Art. 131—"Recurring right", what is.

Where there is an obligation to pay a fixed sum not dependent upon the varying circumstances each year, there can be said to be a recurring right. 57 M.L.W. 531=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 250=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 20=1945 M.W.N. 17.

——Art. 131—Interpretation—"Recurring right".

A suit to recover assessment is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right within Art. 131. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 174=44 Bom. L.R. 288=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 326=201 Ind. Cas. 120.

——Art. 131—Interpretation.

The words 'a suit to establish a periodically recurring right' are wide enough to include a suit to recover arrears. (1936) M.W.N. 742=44 M.L.W. 253=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 704=164 Ind. Cas. 794.

——Art. 131—Interpretation—"Set aside"—"Establish".

Meaning of the expressions "set aside" and "establish" as occurring in the Limitation Act discussed by Bashyam Ayyangar, J. (1902) 26 M. 291=13 M.L.J. 27.

5 Mutwalli.

——Arts. 131, 120—Mutwalli.

A suit by a mutwalli for declaration that he is entitled to receive the yeomiah allowance which is annually paid and which is attached to the office of mutwalli, is a suit to establish a periodically recurring right alleged to be attached to the office and is, therefore, governed by Art. 131 and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 428=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 587=53 L.W. 325=1941 M.W.N. 232=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 374=199 Ind. Cas. 693.

——Art. 131—Mutwalli.

A suit to which the Secretary of State is made a party, for a declaration that the plaintiff is the duly appointed mutwalli yeomiahdar and katheeb of a mosque and that as he has been discharging the duties, he or his successors alone are solely entitled to receive the yeomiah allowance from the Secretary of State, and for an order restraining Secretary of State by an injunction from paying the allowance to anyone else other than the plaintiff or his successors, in which there is no prayer for recovery of specified sums from the Secretary of State, is not governed by Art. 131, inasmuch as the essential question in such a case is not the liability of the Government to make a payment under a periodically recurring right, but the question whether A or B is the person entitled to receive a payment admittedly due to the office-holder by virtue of his holding a particular office. (1939) M.W.N. 298=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 476=49 M.L.W. 595=A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 570=186 Ind. Cas. 343.

——Arts. 131 and 120—Mutwalli—Perpetual and periodically recurring right—Distinction—Right of mutwalli to yeomiah.

A claim that the plaintiff is the mutawalli of a mosque and as such is entitled to all yeomiah allowance received by a rival claimant is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Article 131 does not apply to a perpetual right to receive an annual or a monthly allowance. The mere fact that sums of money are paid periodically does not make the right a periodically recurring right. Where the right is always vested in some person to receive periodical payments, and being vested in one person at one time, passes away at another time to somebody else, such a right is periodically recurring right in the true sense of the term. 4 Cal. 683, Foll. 39 M.L.J. 492=(1920) M.W.N. 394=12 L.W. 600=58 Ind. Cas. 788.

6 Onus.

——Art. 131—Suit to recover Dusturat—Periodically recurring right—Demand and refusal—Onus.

The plaintiffs having asserted that there was no demand and consequently no refusal, the burden of proof was on the defendants to establish the demand and refusal.

Since the suit was to establish a periodically recurring right in the nature of an interest in an immoveable property it was governed by Art. 131 of the Limitation Act. 19 C.L.J. 118=19 C.W.N. 386=21 Ind. Cas. 179.

7 Rent suits.

——Arts. 131, 110, 120—Suit for recovery of arrears of rent periodically recurring—Express declaration of right not asked for.

If the suit is brought merely for a declaration that the plaintiff possesses a periodically recurring right to get rent from the defendant, then the suit would certainly be governed by Art. 131 and would be barred by time if there had been a refusal of the enjoyment of the right more than 12 years before the suit. But a plaintiff may, in a case where there has been such a refusal more than 12 years before the suit, bring a suit for recovery of the arrears of rent without asking expressly for a declaration of his right to recover rent. A plaintiff cannot be allowed to evade the provisions of Art. 131 by merely not asking for an express relief for a declaration of right.

If, in one and the same suit, both the reliefs for the establishment of a periodically recurring right as well as for the recovery of the arrears as a consequence of such right are claimed, then Art. 131 would apply to the first relief and the appropriate article like 110 or 62 or falling any such article, Art. 120 may apply to the second relief. 1936 A.W.R. 1025=A.I.R. 1937 All. 57=(1936) A.L.J. 1384=I.L.R. (1937) All. 140=166 Ind. Cas. 823.

——Art. 131—Rent suit.

Where the suit is one for a bare declaration of the right to impose full assessment without consequential relief, Art. 131 applies and not Art. 120. Bare declaration would prima facie come within Art. 131, it being one for establishing a periodically recurring right. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 303=(1937) M.W.N. 189=173 Ind. Cas. 307.

——Art. 131—Suit for rent.

Where the plaintiff claims as against the under raiyats-defendants that the relationship of landlord and tenant existed and seeks a relief as to his right to receive rent, the period of limitation to be applied to the case is governed by Art. 131 inasmuch as the right of a landlord to receive rent is a periodically recurring right and the period of limitation is twelve years. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 695=150 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Arts. 131 and 120—Suit for enhancement of rent—Wrong entry in Record of Rights as raiyat—Article applicable.

Art. 131 and not Art. 120 governs a suit for the enhancement of rent if the holding of an occupancy tenant who has been wrongly entered in the Record of Rights as raiyat at fixed rates, and time runs from the date of refusal. 2 Pat. L.J. 124=1 Pat. L.W. 434=(1917) Pat. H.C.C. 108=39 Ind. Cas. 85.

——Art. 131—Periodically recurring right—Suit for rent.

A right to recover rent is a periodically recurring right. A suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to recover rent is governed by Art. 131 of the Limitation Act. 13 A.L.J. 333=28 Ind. Cas. 600.

——Art. 131—Rent suit.

If a decree for rent has been passed within 12 years before the subsequent suit for rent has been instituted, the claim is not barred by time. 12 Ind. Cas. 329 (Oudh).

——Art. 131—"Periodically recurring right"—Liability to pay rent—Excess demand or illegal levy—Suit for declaration by tenant—Landlord and tenant.

Art. 131 is not applicable to a suit by an agraharamdar against his landlord for a declaration and injunction that the landlord is not entitled to recover more than a fixed amount of rent alleged to be legally due by plaintiff. The suit is not one to establish a periodically recurring right. The plaintiff's right to sue for a declaration arises on each excess collection or demand, each exaction, if illegal, being a separate injury giving rise to a new cause of action; and consequently the fact that the illegal levy has been made for over 12 years before suit and acquiesced in by the plaintiff is no bar to the suit. (1909) 19 M.L.J. 734=33 M. 171=3 Ind. Cas. 747.

——Art. 131—Rent suit—Suit to establish right to recover rent. See 14 M.L.J. 477.

8 Start of limitation.

——Art. 131—Start of limitation—Assessment of rent—Denial of right.

If an Inamdar continues to receive per annum certain fixed rent from his tenants for a particular survey number and has made no demand for the actual assessment in excess of amount which the tenants have to pay, that fact would not debar him from claiming assessment if he chose to do so, but once he claims assessment and the right to claim assessment is denied by the tenant limitation begins to run against the Inamdar, and the fact that a fresh survey rate is introduced subsequently would not create a new right in the inamdar to recover that particular rate of assessment from the tenant. 95 Ind. Cas. 851=28 Bom. L.R. 633=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 345.

——Art. 131—Start of limitation—Demand and refusal.

A suit to establish a right to assessment of rent is governed by Art. 131. Limitation under the article does not run until there has been a proper demand and a refusal, and mere exclusion from enjoyment does not cause time to run unless there has been refusal as a result of a demand properly made. 95 Ind. Cas. 622=43 C.L.J. 387=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 883.

——Art. 131—Start of limitation—Enhancement of rent.

A claim to enhance rent is a recurring cause of action and limitation runs from date of refusal. A suit for enhancement brought more than six years after the date of the final publication of the Record of Rights, in which the defendants are entered as raiyats at fixed rates, is not barred by limitation, as such Record-of-Rights does not create or extinguish any rights. Article 120 does not apply but Art. 131 governs the case. 2 P.L.J. 124, Foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 781=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 198.

——Art. 131—Start of limitation—Recurring right—Demand and refusal—Mere omission to exercise right—Effect.

The payment of Dhara or assessment or customary rent is a recurring right within Art. 131; such a recurring right can be time-barred; there must be a definite demand and refusal; mere omission on the part of the person entitled, to exercise it will not start a period of adverse possession. 41 Bom. 159=18 Bom. L.R. 950=38 Ind. Cas. 54.

——Art. 131—Start of limitation—Suit for arrears of malikana.

A party whose right to malikana is denied must sue within 12 years of refusal. The Article does not apply where in a previous suit plaintiff has got a declaration of his title. 2 Pat. L.W. 64=40 Ind. Cas. 864.

——Art. 131—Non-compliance with demand—Starting of limitation.

Mere non-compliance with a demand, is not an express repudiation of claim, so as to set the time running under Article 131. 7 M.L.T. 278=(1910) M.W.N. 485=5 Ind. Cas. 615.

1. Applicability and scope.

——Art. 132—Applicability. See T.P. ACT (4 OF 1882), SS. 100 AND 91. (1948) 1 M.L.J. 284=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 412.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Suit to enforce charge created by decree of Court in favour of plaintiff who redeemed mortgages. 12 B.R. 127 (P.C.).

——Arts. 132 and 181—Applicability—Application under S. 44 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act to enforce charge created in favour of temple under a settlement deed.

Art. 181 of the Limitation Act does not apply to applications other than those under the Code of Civil Procedure.

An application under S. 44 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act to enforce a charge created in favour of a temple under a settlement deed is filed as an application rather than as a suit by reason of the special procedure laid down in that section and the limitation applicable thereto would be the period of limitation applicable to a suit for the same relief, that is to say, the period provided for under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 1947 M.W.N. 519=60 L.W. 570=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 199=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 258.

——Arts. 132 and 147—Applicability—English mortgage executed before 1st April, 1930—Suit thereon—Art. 147 and not Art. 132 applies.

The right of an English mortgagee to file a suit for foreclosure or sale which had vested in him in the case of an English mortgage executed before 1st April, 1930 was not taken away or affected by the amending Act (20 of 1929) and by the amendment of S. 57 (a), T.P. Act, enacted therein and Art. 147, Limitation Act, continues to be the Article applicable to suits filed by English mortgagees where these mortgages have been executed prior to 1st April, 1930. A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 499=48 Bom.L.R. 327=227 Ind. Cas. 135.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Properties purchased by plaintiff in 1920 already attached before judgment in 1917 in suit against owner of properties—Properties eventually purchased by auction-purchaser in execution in 1929—Plaintiff having discharged mortgages on property resisting claim of purchaser to possession, unless he is reimbursed—High Court order of 28th August 1931, directing plaintiff to deliver possession to purchaser but declaring plaintiff's charge—Suit by plaintiff for recovery of amount paid, by enforcing charge filed on 13th August, 1943 held within time.

The suit properties originally belonged to one M who had executed two mortgagees in favour of S in 1910 and 1912. These properties were purchased by the plaintiff in 1920 from the transferee of the original owner. In a suit brought by a creditor of the original owner the suit properties were attached before judgment in 1917 and were eventually sold in 1929 in execution of a decree obtained in that suit. The auction-purchaser proceeded to obtain delivery of possession but were resisted by the plaintiff who alleged that he had paid off the mortgages over the properties in favour of S and one N and, therefore, urged in the execution that he was entitled to remain possession, till he was reimbursed in the amount paid by him to discharge the mortgages subsisting on the property. The execution Court directed the auction-purchasers to pay the amount before they could obtain possession from the plaintiff. The High Court in appeal ordered the plaintiff to deliver possession to the purchasers leaving it open to the plaintiff to enforce his right to recover the amount by other appropriate proceedings. But to safeguard his rights the High Court declared that the plaintiff shall have a charge on the properties in respect of the amount which he had paid for the discharge of the mortgages. The decree of the High Court which was dated 28th August, 1931 also contained the declaration. On 13th August, 1943, the plaintiff instituted the suit for the recovery of the amount by enforcement of charge so declared. It was contended that the suit was time-barred :

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 132, Limitation Act. The plaintiff by reason of the payments had the right to recover them, and this right had become merged in the order of the High Court which specifically declared a charge in his favour. The suit having been brought within 12 years from the date of the High Court's order was within time. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 423=(1946) 1 Mad. L. J. 379=59 Mad. L.W. 302=1946 Mad. W.N. 366.

——Arts. 132, 89, 116—Applicability—Principal and agent.

Where the principal sues the agent to enforce in his favour the charge created by the latter to secure money which might be found due from the agent to the principal, the suit falls within Art. 132 and not under Art. 89 or Art. 116. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 257=72 C.L.J. 480=44 C.W.N. 793=195 Ind. Cas. 151.

——Arts. 132, 147—Applicability—Arts. 121, 139 (Bhopal).

Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, corresponding to Art. 121 of Bhopal Act is not applicable to suits for either sale or foreclosure brought on the basis of any mortgage. The appropriate article for such suits is 147 corresponding to Art. 139 of Bhopal Act prescribing a 60 years' limitation. 188 Ind. Cas. 669 (Bhopal).

——Arts. 132, 75—Applicability—Bond—Ordinary instalment bond and mortgage bond payable by instalments—Difference.

There is an essential difference between an ordinary instalment bond, and a mortgage bond payable by instalment, because the latter is governed by Art. 132, and the former is governed by Art. 75, Limitation Act A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=18 Pat. 459 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Applicability.

Government acquiring portion of mortgaged property under Land Acquisition Act and awarding compensation to mortgagor—Security is substituted—Mortgagee can proceed against compensation money—Such money withdrawn by mortgagor—Mortgagee's original rights as mortgagee are not lost and he can enforce his security against compensation money by bringing a suit within 12 years from the accrual of cause of action under Art. 132. A.I.R. 1938 All. 221=(1938) A.L.J. 313=1938 O.W.N. 433=1938 A.W.R. 188=I.L.R. (1938) All. 513=174 Ind. Cas. 702 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Applicability.

Article 132 will apply only so far as the plaintiff migh. seek to recover the money by sale of the particular property charged and will not govern his right to a decree against the person who has made the collections of melwaram. (1937) M.W.N. 899=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 47=46 L.W. 358=176 Ind. Cas. 247.

——Art. 132—Applicability.

Article 132 will not apply to a case in which the plaintiff does not ask for the enforcement of any charge but simply asks for a money-decree against the defendants. 56 A.

711=(1934) A.L.J. 230=A.I.R. 1935 All. 239=3 A.W.R. 397=155 Ind. Cas. 390.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope.

Under Art. 132, money can become due only when the mortgagee can sue for his money and also the mortgagor can redeem the mortgaged property. (1934) A.L.J. 371=56 A. 496=A.I.R. 1934 All. 152=4 A.W.R. 1535=151 Ind. Cas. 900.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Mortgage decree, nullity—Auction-purchaser's remedy against—Purchaser of equity of redemption.

Where, in a suit on a mortgage brought more than 12 years after due date, the mortgagee did not implead a purchaser of the equity of redemption though he was aware of the purchase and the equity of redemption was wholly unrepresented :

Held, that the mortgage decree so far as the property was concerned was a nullity and the purchaser of the property in execution did not acquire any title to the property and had no remedy against the purchaser of the equity of redemption. Plaintiff, i.e., auction-purchaser's suit for possession against purchaser of equity of redemption, held was rightly dismissed. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 912=60 C. 1193=147 Ind. Cas. 808.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Mortgagor allowed to redeem within three years—Whether gives right of foreclosure to mortgagee—Limitation.

A provision in a mortgage-deed allowing the mortgagor the right to redeem earlier than the stipulated period is one in favour of the mortgagor and for his benefit and does not give to the mortgagee any right of foreclosure before the expiry of the stipulated period. 9 O.W.N. 1081=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 81=142 Ind. Cas. 821.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Hypothecation lien.

Article 132 is the article applicable to a relief asking for enforcement of a hypothecation lien. 107 Ind. Cas. 679=26 A.L.J. 53=A.I.R. 1929 All. 121.

——Arts. 132, 116—Applicability and scope—Personal covenant.

Where upon a sale of the mortgaged property under a mortgage-decree obtained in a suit on a registered mortgage deed there is a deficiency, the preiod of limitation to recover the same under a personal covenant in the said deed is six years under Art. 116. 26 All. 138 and 34 All. 464, Not foll. 116 Ind. Cas. 817=29 M.L.W. 143 =52 Mad. 105=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 53=56 M.L.J. 10 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Dower debt.

Execution of a deed which stipulates payment of dowry on demand and secures its payment by a mortgage of immovable property—Such execution converts a dower debt into a mortgage debt—Six years' rule applies to a suit on such deed after its registration. 99 Ind. Cas. 553=A.I.R. 1927 All. 268.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Purchaser of mortgaged property changing the form of the property—Liability of property in its changed form.

Even if the purchaser of the mortgaged property pulled down the house and utilized the materials for other building or otherwise dealt with them they cannot escape their liability as vendees of the mortgaged property. The mere fact that mortgaged property exists in different shape from that in which it was at the time of mortgage would not extinguish the mortgagee's right against the property in its converted state and if the person who has converted it has appropriated it to his own uses either in the shape of money or in the shape of materials he would still be liable as a mortgagor and the period of limitation in such cases is the usual period of limitation applicable to the case of a mortgage. 91 Ind. Cas. 754=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 343.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Charge.

The mere fact that the charge does not come within the meaning of S. 100 of the Transfer of Property Act does not necessarily imply that it is not a charge within the meaning of Art. 132. 42 Mad. 114 and 43 Mad 786, Expl. 90 Ind. Cas. 551=1925 M.W.N. 722=23 M.L.W. 178=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 141=49 M.L.J. 117.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Pro-note—Subsequent hypothecation.

If a pro-note is first passed for a certain debt and subsequently immovable property is hypothecated for the same debt, the proper article governing the period of limitation for a suit to recover the loan is Art. 132, and though, the creditor's remedy for enforcing the personal obligation of the debtor in respect of the loan is barred, the debt is not extinguished thereby, if the remedy for enforcing the charge on immovable property subsists. 79 Ind. Cas. 942=27 O.C. 268=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 92.

——Art. 132—Applicabiiity.

When in a suit by a mortgagee a defendant claims adverse possession against the mortgagor by virtue of a title acquired after the date of the mortgage Art. 132 is applicable as against him and not Art. 120 nor Art. 134. 36 All. 567, Foll. 73 Ind. Cas. 428=10 O.L.J. 263=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 19.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Mortgage security converted into money.

Where property which represented the security for a mortgage has been converted into money the article applicable to a suit upon the mortgage is Art. 132 under which the plaintiff has 12 years to follow up the proceeds in the hands of the defendants. 33 Cal. 92. Foll. 70 Ind. Cas. 648=45 Mad. 827=16 M.L.W. 485=31 M.L.T. 441=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 76=43 M.L.J. 467.

——Art. 132—Applicability.

Art. 132 of the Limitation Act is wide enough to apply to all cases where there is an effective and binding charge upon immovable property whether created under the T.P. Act, or otherwise. 67 Ind. Cas. 939 (Lah.).

——Art. 132—Applicability.

Where a decree makes a certain sum of money a charge on immovable property, a suit for that money is within the purview of Art. 132. 4 L.L.J. 398=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 292.

——Arts. 132 and 120—Applicability and scope—"Money charged on immovable property"—Suit to enforce puisne mortgage against balance of sale proceeds in the hands of prior mortgage."

Certain lands were subject to three mortgages, the first and third in favour of defendant and the second in favour of the plaintiff. In a suit on the first mortgage, the second mortgagee was made a party but the surplus sale proceeds after satisfying the decree were withdrawn by the first mortgagee in execution of a decree obtained by him on the third mortgage without impleading the second mortgagee as a party. The second mortgagee sued on his mortgage, seeking a decree against the defendant for the amount with interest of the surplus sale proceeds withdrawn by the defendant.

Held, that the surplus sale proceeds represented the security which the plaintiff had under his mortgage and did not cease to represent that security owing to the defendant having wrongfully and in fraud of the plaintiff withdrawn them from the Court and that the suit was governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act.

Quaere :—Whether the said money in the hands of the defendant was soddled with a charge in favour of the plaintiff to the extent of his mortgage. 41 Cal. 654=41 I.A. 45=15 M.L.T. 62=12 A.L.J. 82=18 C.W.N. 345=19 C.L.J. 132=26 M.L.J. 243=16 Bom.L.R. 89=(1914) M.W.N. 38=21 Ind. Cas. 961 (P.C.).

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immovable propeity.

Where a decree for sale on a Mortgage has been converted into immovable property the mortgage of such decree is entitled to the benefit of not only the new security, but also of Art. 132 of the Act. 39 All. 74=14 A.L.J. 1025=37 Ind. Cas. 4.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property—Mortgagee—Right to sue twice.

A mortgagee can sue the sons of a Hindu father to recover the balance with the interest thereon at rate decreed, not recovered from the father under a mortgage decree, even after 12 years from the cause of action. 35 All. 302=11 A.L.J. 402=18 Ind. Cas. 904.

——Arts. 132 and 62—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property charge under T.P. Act, Ss. 82 and 100.

A suit to enforce a charge under T.P.Act under Ss. 82 and 100 on property is governed by Article 132, but a suit for a personal decree for contribution comes within the purview of Article 62 of the Limitation Act and time runs from the date of receipt by the owner, of the surplus sale proceeds. 33 All. 708=8 A.L.J. 854=11 Ind. Cas. 145.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property—Property—Alleged to be undivided ancestral one of plaintiff and mortgagor—Suit for a share of mortgage money—Limitation.

An undivided co-sharer cannot sue for a share of the mortgage money in respect of a mortgage by the other co-sharer of property belonging to them jointly. Such a suit is not under Article 132 of the Limitation Act, one to enforce payment of money charged on immoveable property. (1913) 1 U.B.R. 178=22 Ind. Cas. 959.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged as immoveable property—Mortgage of ancestral land by father—Suit for sale against sons.

A suit for sale of ancestral property mortgaged by the father governed by the mitakshara law, in the hands of the sons and grandsons is a suit to enforce payment of money charged on immoveable property and governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 17 C.W.N. 1022=19 Ind. Cas. 878.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property—Purchase by mortgagee—Revenue sale—Surplus sale proceeds, if mortgagee can proceed against—Scope.

Where a mortgagee in execution of his mortgage decree purchased a portion of the entire estate mortgaged, and subsequently the whole of the estate is sold for arrears of Government revenue a suit by him to recover the money representing the portion purchased by him is not governed by Art. 132, as he having already purchased the property could not be said to be seeking to pursue against the surplus sale proceeds the remedy for the recovery of the money charged on the property. 17 Ind. Cas. 351 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged—Immoveable property—Proceeds of Revenue Sales of mortgaged property.

Where the mortgaged properties are sold for arrears of Government revenue for no default of the mortgagee and the mortgagor draws the surplus proceeds of the sale, the mortgagee is entitled to sue the mortgagor for the sum and the period of limitation for such a suit is 12 years from the date when the surplus proceeds were realised. 14 C.W.N. 165=3 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property—Suit to recover mortgage money wrongfully realised by the defendant—Limitation.

Plaintiffs, daughters of deceased G, sued eleven years after G's death to recover possession of property and for mortgage money wrongfully received by the defendant. The money realised by the defendants was held to represent the security which plaintiff had under the mortgage and the suit was held to be governed by Art. 132, Schedule I of Limitation Act. 1 Lah.L.J. 60=2 U.P.L.R. (Lah.) 114=56 Ind. Cas. 944.

——Arts. 132, 36 and 49—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable propery—Trees cut by third parties—Depreciation in value of the mortgaged property.

Certain trees grown on the mortgaged properties were cut and carried away by third parties in 1905, and the mortgagees sued in 1909 to enforce their security.

Held that (1) It was not a suit to enforce payment of money charged on immoveable property within Art. 132 (2). Plaintiff could only sue for damages for depreciation in the security proving that the security had been rendered insufficient as a matter of fact, (3) Either Art. 36 or 49 applied to the case and whichever applied the suit was time-barred being brought after three years from the date of the cutting and appropriation. 3 L.W. 341=32 Ind. Cas. 901.

——Art. 132—Applicability and scope—Money charged on immoveable property—Charge on rents and profits of land.

Money charged on immoveable property includes money charged on rent and profits of land and the specification of the property on the rental of which (or out of the rents and profits of which) a certain money allowance was to be calculated indicates the stock out of which it was to be paid and was therefore a charge on the property. 18 O.C. 380=3 O.L.J. 20=33 Ind. Cas. 555.

——Arts. 132, 147—Applicability—"Foreclosure or sale"—Mortgage suit—English mortgages—Privy Council—Practice—Uniform current of decisions—Statute—Construction.

Art. 147 does not apply so every suit on a mortgage whether the claim is for foreclosure or for sale. The Article is limited in its application to the class of mortgages in which the suit can be and always is brought for "foreclosure or sale," e.g., English mortgage. In the case of mortgages where the mortgagee is entitled to ask for sale only, Art. 132 is the article applicable. (1907) 9 Bom.L.R. 1104=11 C.W.N. 1005=4 A.L.J. 625=17 M.L.J. 444=30 M. 426=34 I.A. 197 (P.C.).

——Art. 132—Applicability—Mortgage suit against father and sons.

The article applicable to a suit against the father (executant) and his sons is Art. 132. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 294=5 C.L.J. 441=34 C. 184.

——Arts. 132, 120—Applicability—Suit for recovery of surplus sale proceeds by puisne incumbrancer.

Per Genderson and Sale, JJ. (Geidt, J., dissenting:—A suit by a puisne incumbrancer to recover surplus sale proceeds (after sale in execution of prior mortgage decree) in the hands of a person who has withdrawn it, is governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 120. 33 Cal 92=(1905) 9 C.W.N. 989.

——Arts. 132, 116, 120—Applicability—Suit to enforce lien on surplus sale proceeds of mortgaged property—Covenant in deed, effect of, on limitation.

A suit on a mortgage to enforce the charge against the sale proceeds of the mortgaged property in a revenue sale is governed by Art. 132. The fact that there was a covenant in the mortgage deed to the effect that if the mortgage property be sold for arrears of revenue, the plaintiff would have a lien on the surplus sale proceeds of that property, cannot have the effect of diminishing or altering the right which the mortgagee had under the bond, e.g., of diminishing the period of limitation. The mere fact that the mortgagee had the additional right to bring a suit at once, if her security was diminished, would not have the effect of depriving her of the right which she had under the mortgage bond or of altering the period of limitation which she was already entitled to. (1904) 3 C.L.J. 52.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Suit for surplus sale proceeds of mortgaged property sold by Government for arrears—Limitation Act, Art. 131.

The surplus sale proceeds of mortgaged property sold for arrears of revenue represents the mortgaged property itself and a suit by the mortgagee for the surplus is governed by Art. 132, Art. 120 does not apply to the case. (1904) 31 C. 745.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Mortgage—Revenue sale—Surplus—Creditors—Suit to recover amount.

Where a property mortgaged to the plaintiff was sold for arrears of Government revenue and out of the surplus sale-proceeds held in the Colectorate, certain creditors of the mortgagors drew out the amounts of their money decree obtained against the mortgagors, and the plaintiffs sued these creditors for the moneys which they had taken out from the Collectorate with interest.

Held, that having regard to the provisions of S. 73 of the Transfer of Property Act, a suit, like the present, to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property, is governed by Art. 132. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 356

2. Default clause.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ART. 132—INSTALMENT BOND.

——Arts. 132 and 75—Applicability—Suit on simple mortgage bond providing for annual payments and recovery of whole on default—Starting point.

Where a suit is brought on a simple mortgage bond which provided for annual payments and for recovery of the whole amount on default of payment of any instalment, the question as to which part of the claim would be barred has to be decided with reference to Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. According to it, limitation would start from the time the 'money' sued for becomes due. The word 'money' refers to the entire mortgage money and the limitation would not start when only one instalment becomes due. There is no doubt that an option is given to the mortgagee to sue for the entire mortgage money on the happening of a default, but if he does not exercise that option the limitation does not start running. The analogy of Art. 75 would not be applicable because according to that Article the period of limitation of an instalment bond runs from the time when the default is made. 1946 A.L.J. 315=1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 527=1946 A.L.W. 452=A.I.R. 1947 All. 7=230 Ind. Cas. 76.

——Art. 132—Simple mortgage—Default clause.

Under a simple mortgage deed executed in 1916, the mortgagor was to pay the entire amount of the mortgage with interest within one year. In case of default, the mortgagee became entitled to take possession and to realise interest for the period during which he remained out of possession from any other property of the mortgagor. The mortgagor, however, had the right to redeem. The mortgagee had also the option to realise his principal and interest from the mortgagor as well as other property of the mortgagor. On the occurrence of a default the mortgagee sued for and obtained possession of the mortgaged property in 1924. Subsequently on the mortgagor having made an application under U. P. Encumbered Estates Act, 1934, the mortgagee put in a claim including a claim for interest for the period for which he was out of possession. The mortgagor pleaded that the claim in respect of interest was barred by time :

Held, that in the proper construction of the mortgage deed, that the mortgagor intended to give the mortgagee an option as regards the time of suing for interest and that the legal effect could and was bound to be given to this contention, that the mortgage originally simple became usufructuary when the mortgagee obtained possession and under the deed it was open to the mortgagor to redeem and mortgagee to sue for his money at any time and hence his suit for principal and interest was not barred by time. 1944 O.W.N. 509=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 70.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Mortgage for fixed term with proviso that debt would become exigible on default of payment of interest.

Article 132 would come into operation only when the mortgagee is bound to sue and not when he has the option to sue.

Where a mortgage for a fixed period contains a proviso that the debt would become exigible in default of payment of interest annually payable under the deed, a proviso of this nature is inserted in a mortgage deed exclusively for the benefit of the mortgagees and it only purports to give them an option either to enforce their security at once, or, if the security is ample, to stand by their investment for the full term of the mortgage. The mortgagor cannot claim to redeem the property after having broken his own contract by refusing to pay the interest. The mortgagor's default would enure only for the benefit of the mortgagee and unless there is mutuaity the mortgagor could not compel him to sue and consequently the time would begin to run against the mortgagee, under Art. 132, not from the date when the default is made by the morgagor in payment of interest but when the mortgage debt becomes due. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 242=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 515=1939 N.L.J. 333=188 Ind. Cas. 405.

——Art. 132—Default clause.

A mortgage bond payable by instalments is governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 75. 5 B.R. 965=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 433=20 P.L.T. 443=18 Pat. 459=183 Ind. Cas. 523 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Default clause.

There was a stipulation in the mortgage bond executed on 14th April, 1910, that the mortgagee would be entitled to realise certain amount by way of interest every year and in case three years' interest was not so paid, the mortgagee would be entitled to recover the whole amoun by sale of the mortgaged property. No interest was paid as agreed upon and the payment of interest was for the first time made on 28th December, 1921, when a bond for certain amount was executed by the mortgagors in favour of the mortgagee for interest due upto 14th April, 1921. No interest was paid subsequent to this period and on 15th April, 1936, the mortgagee instituted the suit for recovery of the mortgage amount by sale of the property mortgaged. To bring the suit in time, it was sought to avail of the three years' default clause in the mortgage bond :

Held, that the default took place during the first three years and the cause of action arose on 14th April, 1913. Subsequent payment of interest merely gave the mortgagee a fresh start but the terminus a quo could not be altered. The mortgagee, therefore, had only twelve years from the date of the bond, dated 28th December, 1921, within which to sue, and as he did not sue within that period, his suit was clearly time-barred. A fresh period of limitation could be computed from the time when the payment was made and no question of further extension of time by a period of three years, as provided in the case of original default arose in this case. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 570=40 P.L.R. 571=178 Ind. Cas. 597.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Waiver by mortgagee.

The omission to include in Art. 132 a provision similar to the one in Art. 75 does not operate to prevent a plea of waiver being set up by the mortgagee. On default, the amount becomes due only if the mortgagee exercised the option to call in the amount and not if he waived that right. The mortgage money under the hypothecation bond with a defaulting clause does not 'become due' within the meaning of Art. 132 until both the mortgagor's right to redeem and the mortgagee's right to enforce his security have accrued. This would, of course, also be the position if the mortgagee exercised the option reserved to him. Hence where the mortgagee waives such right, the limitation does not run from the date when the instalment is first defaulted. The mortgagee, however, will under such circumstances, be entitled to charge interest only on the instalment which is not paid and not upon the basis that the whole amount of principal became due on default of instalment. (1938) 2 M.L.J. 251=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 836=(1938) M.W.N. 671=180 Ind. Cas. 570.

——Art. 132—Default clause.

Mortgage-deed—Money payable after one year—Mortgagee given option to sue for full amount in case of default of payment of interest after six months :

Held, that the mortgagee need not avail himself of the option. A.I.R. 1935 All. 421=(1935) A.L.J. 515=1935 A.W.R. 543=157 Ind. Cas. 675.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Construction—Mere receipt of a portion of principal after default, effect of.

A proviso in a mortgage deed entitling the creditor to realise the entire mortgage money with interset in case of default of payment of any instalments of interest is one that is exclusively for the benefit of the mortgagee. It purports to give the mortgagee an option either to enforce the security at once or to stand by the investment for the full term of the mortgage and under Art. 132, which governs suits of this kind, the money does not become due until both the mortgagor's right to redeem and the mortgagee's right to enforce the security have accrued.

The fact that the words used in the default clause are 'you shall collect the principal and interest' instead of the words 'you shall have the power to collect' does not make any difference as to the nature of the proviso.

The mere fact that the mortgagee had after default received payment of the interest and a certain portion of the principal does not necessarily lead to the inference that the mortgagee had exercised his option to enforce the default clause. (1935) M.W.N. 995=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 884=159 Ind. Cas. 172.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Default clause entitling mortgagee to sue on default to pay interest—Suit within twelve years of termination of period but beyond twelve years of default to pay interest—Suit, if within time.

A mortgage-deed recited that the principal amount was payable within two years, while the interest was payable at the end of each month and in case of default in the payment of interest, compound interest at a much higher rate and also the principal and interest would become payable. Default was made in the payment of the first instalment of interest. The mortgagee instituted a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property within twelve years from date fixed for payment of principal but beyond 12 years from the date of default of payment of interest :

Held, that the period of limitation for the suit should be computed only from the date of the expiry of the term of the mortgage and the clause empowering the mortgagee to sue on default must be deemed to have been inserted exclusively for the benefit of the mortgagee, and as such, it gave him an option to enforce the security at once or to stand by his investment for the full term of the mortgage, and that the mortgagee had the option to sue within the period of limitation allowed by law computing it from the date of default in payment of interest or from the date of default in the payment of principal and interest. (1933) M.W.N. 331=64 M.L.J. 606=37 L.W. 751=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 227=148 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Mortgage—Instalment bond—Default clause—Option of mortgagee to sue for whole amount on default—Default—Whole amount, if 'becomes due.'

Where in an instalment mortgage bond, a condition is inserted that it will be open to the mortgagee to call in the entire money on default by the mortgagor, the default clause is inserted exclusively for the benefit of the mortgagee and confers no right on the mortgagor. Consequently, the mortgagee has an option to realise the whole amount on default by the mortgagor, even though such option is not expressly mentioned and the whole amount does not become due on such default. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 191=30 N.L.R. 290=152 Ind. Cas. 438.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Agreement to pay in instalments.

Under Art. 132, a suit to enforce a mortgage for a stipulated period can be instituted within twelve years of the expiry of the period, although a default by the mortgagor has occurred during the period and by the terms of the mortgage, the mortgagee thereupon has an immediate right to enforce the mortgage. The money becomes payable within the meaning of Art. 132 only when either the stipulated period has expired, or a default having occurred, the mortgagee has exercised his option to enforce the mortgage.

Where, under the terms of a mortgage-deed, if interest or compound interest for any two periods of six months be not paid in full, the mortgagees had the right, without waiting for the expiration of the period fixed in the mortgage-deed, to recover the whole amount due ; and the mortgagor admitted that he failed to pay in full two instalments of interest and it was also admitted that the mortgagees had exercised their option to enforce the mortgage by sending a registered notice to the defendant demanding payment of the mortgage money within a month :

Held, that the suit for recovery of the whole amount was not premature and was properly instituted. 11 O.W.N. 1141=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 473=151 Ind. Cas 856.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Cause of action when accrues.

Where, under the terms of a mortgage-deed for a specified term it was provided that if interest for any year were not paid, the mortgagee had power to start foreclosure proceedings and enter into possession of the property irrespective of the term :

Held, that the money under the mortgage did not 'become due' under Art. 132 until both the mortgagor's right to redeem and the mortgagee's right to enforce the security had accrued and a suit for foreclosure filed within twelve years of expiry of the term of the mortgage, was not barred under Art. 132, even though default had been made in the payment of interest during the term. 8 Luck. 240=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 66=9 O.W.N. 1202=142 Ind. Cas. 64 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Default clause—Mortgage-deed—Clause empowering mortgagee to sue before expiry of term on default of payment of interest.

By a deed of mortgage dated 26th July, 1912, which purported to be for a period of six years from that date the mortgagor covenanted to pay interest yearly at a certain rate and that in case of default, the mortgagee shall at all times within and after the expiry of the stipulated period of six years aforesaid have the power to realise the entire mortgage money and the remaining interest and compound interest due to him in a lump sum through Court by attachment and sale of the mortgaged share as well as from the person and all other kind of property of the mortgagor. The mortgagor defaulted in the payment of interest for the first year and the mortgagee brought a suit to enforce the mortgage on 28th February, 1928. It was contended for the defendants that immediately upon the default in the payment of interest for the first year the principal moneys 'became due' within the meaning of Art. 132 and that the suit was consequently barred by limitation :

Held, that a proviso of this nature is inserted in a mortgage-deed exclusively for the benefit of the mortgagee and gives him an option either to enforce his security at once on default or if the security is ample, to stand by his investment for the full term of the mortgage and that the mortgage money did not, therefore, "become due" within the meaning of Art. 132, when default in the payment of interest for the first year was made and the suit was within time. 9 O.W.N. 638=63 M.L.J. 187=(1932) M.W.N. 912=A.I.R. 1932 P.C. 207=96 C.W.N. 1017=36 L.W. 246=56 C.L.J. 237=(1932) A.L.J. 913=7 Luck. 442=34 Bom.L.R. 1600=59 I.A. 376=138 Ind. ——Art. 132—Default clause—Mortgage-deed—Provision for suit on default of three consecutive instalments—Starting point of limitation for suit.

A mortgage-deed provided that the amount of the debt was to be paid off within four years by instalments and if the instalments remained unpaid for three consecutive months, the creditor would have the right either to cancel the condition with regard to the period of repayment and to recover the entire amount through Court or to wait until the expiry of the fixed period. In a suit to recover the amount on default of three consecutive instalments :

Held, that limitation ran under Art. 132 from the date of the third consecutive default. 9 O.W.N. 444=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 253=138 Ind. Cas. 145.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Clause in mortgage-deed providing right to redeem to accrue after five years—Construction.

Where, according to one clause of the mortgage-deed, the mortgagor had power to repay the mortgage money during the period of five years following the execution of the deed and according to another clause, the mortgagees had the right to recall the mortgage money and to sue for foreclosure only in the event of the mortgagor's default in redeeming the mortgage on the expiry of the five years ;

Held, that the combined effect of the two clauses was that the mortgagor had neither the right to repay the mortgage money nor to redeem the mortgaged property and the mortgagees had no right to call the mortgage money and sue for foreclosure before the expiry of five years and under Art. 132, time would run from the date of expiry of the five years. 9 O.W.N. 280=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 178=139 Ind. Cas. 61.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Default in payment of interest.

A mortgage bond executed on 12th May, 1912, provided that interest would be paid annually and the principal within five years. There was a further stipulation that in the case of default of payment at the time fixed or on the discovery taking place within the stipulated period of any act of bad faith, the creditor would be entitled to recover his money, principal and interest in any way by filing a suit. A suit to recover the mortgage amount was filed on 9th April, 1929, and it was contended that the suit was barred as the mortgagor had made default of payment of interest in 1913 :

Held, that the mere default in payment of interest could not be regarded as an act of bad faith giving a right to the mortgagee to sue within the period of five years and the suit was not barred. A.I.R. 1931 All. 537=131 Ind. Cas. 547.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Starting point—Waiver.

In cases which are not governed by Art. 75 but by Art. 132 ; if the terms of the bond themselves provide expressly or by implication that it is open to the mortgagee to sue as soon as the first default happens or to sue later, mere abstention to sue as soon as the first default occurs does not amount to waiver. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 285=12 P.L.T. 55=11 Pat. 112=134 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Art. 132—Default clause.

In the case of a mortgage bond with a default clause Art. 132 does not bar the mortgagee's suit if he refrains from bringing a suit or there being a default in payment of any of the instalments and prefers to sue on the expiry of the due date. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 285=12 P.L.T. 755=11 Pat. 112=134 Ind. Cas. 609.

——Art. 132—Default clause in mortgage—Time from first default.

A mortgage-deed made the amount payable by annual instalments and provided that on failure to pay any one instalment for one year after it became due to the whole amount was to become exigible at once. On failure of such one instalment the mortgagee sued to recover his mortgage amounts but the suit was brought twelve years after the day on which the whole mortgage amount became exigible,

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 132. A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 201 ; 37 All. 400 ; A.I.R. 1921 All. 192 ; A.I.R. 1922 All. 37 ; A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 and 24 Cal. 281, Rel. on. 32 Bom.L.R. 683=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 297=125 Ind. Cas. 701.

——Art. 132—Default clause in mortgage—Time from first default.

In a suit on mortgage the limitation begins to run from the date of first default, and the claim to personal relief against the mortgagor is to be brought within six years under Art. 116 although the claim to realization of debt from the property can be brought within 12 years under Art. 132. The mere fact that there is longer period for one relief does not in itself extend the limitation for the other relief. Where therefore a mortgage suit is brought six years after the first default is made the claim for personal decree is barred. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 993=129 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 132—Default clause.

Where a mortgage bond contains default clause, the question arising under O. 2, R. 2, C.P. Code, as to when mortgagee becomes entitled to sue, and the question arising under Art. 132, Limitation Act, as to when the money becomes due both involve the same principle and are indistinguishable. A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 705, Not appr. 120 Ind. Cas. 353=29 M.L.W. 400=1929 M.W.N. 208=A.I.R. 1929 Mad 371=56 M.L.J. 580.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from first default.

The words "when the money sued for becomes due" refer to the earliest date on which it becomes due. Money sued for by a mortgagee must be considered to have become due at the earliest date when it is possible for the mortgagee to enforce payment of it. Where the interest is to be paid annually and there is a stipulation that in case of breach of contract the mortgagee would be entitled to recover the whole mortgage money the starting point for limitation is the date of the first default in payment of interest. 37 All. 400 ; A.I.R. 1923 All 1 ; A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 502 ; A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 539 and A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 289, Rel. on. 6 O.W.N. 925=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 536.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from exercise of option.

Where a mortgage bond contained a provision entitling mortgagee to recover the whole principal and interest " when required " in case of default irrespective of due date of payment,

Held, that the stipulation in question gave only an option to the mortgagee to call in at once the principal amount and interest due on the mortgage bond without reference to the period stipulated for payment, if there was default. It is open to him to exercise it or not as he chooses ; and the time will not run againt him unless he exercises the option. 9 L.W. 479 ; 39 Mad. 981 and 22 Mad. 20, Rel. on. 107 Ind. ——Art. 132—Default clause in mortgage—Time from first default.

A mortgage-deed provided for the payment of the mortgage money with interest thereon within seven years, and further contained a stipulation that the interest accruing due for the half-year shall, if not paid up, be added to the principal amount, and that if interest for any six months remained unpaid, the mortgagee shall have power either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period or to wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest till the expiry of the term fixed. It further stated that both the conditions were left entirely to the choice or option of the mortgagee, that the mortgagee had liberty to act in accordance with either of those conditions, that is to say, either to bring a suit in respect of the entire mortgage money and interest without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period, or to waive the default and wait for the payment of the principal and interest and compound interest agreed till the expiry of the term fixed. The mortgagor further agreed that if at the stipulated time the money remained unpaid, the mortgage-deed shall be treated as a sale-deed, and the mortgage money as the sale consideration.

Held, that Art. 132 applied and that despite the authority given by the contract, the operation of the clause which gave an option to the mortgagee for his own benefit could not be waived so as to prevent or postpone the starting of limitation against him. A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.) ; 30 Mad. 426 (P.C.) and 14 Cal. 730, Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 849=48 All. 302=24 A.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1926 All. 493.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from exercise of option.

Under the article it is open to the obligee to waive the benefit of the provision to recover the amount in the case of first default. Each case is to be governed by the article applicable to it. 15 A.L.J. 313, Appl. 89 Ind. Cas. 383=23 A.L.J. 896=6 L.R.A. (Civ). 532=A.I.R. 1926 All. 142.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from exercise, of option.

Where there was a clause in the mortgage-deed that in default of payment of interest, the whole amount, principal and interest, up to the date should become due and where on a construction of the language of the document it was clear that the option was reserved with the mortgagee to enforce or not the default clause, at his pleasure.

Held, that the period of limitation started to run not on the date of default but on the date when the money became due, under the terms of the contract, under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 9 L.W. 479 ; (1918) M.W.N. 586 ; (1921) M.W.N. 384 ; A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 150, Foll.; A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 412 ; A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 23 ; 37 All. 400 and 43 All. 671, Not foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 1033=49 Mad. 403=22 M.L.W. 67=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 160=49 M.L.J. 394.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Waiver.

Article 132 does not provide for cases of waiver, and there is no case directly deciding that the principle of waiver would apply to mortgage bonds payable by instalments. But the principle indicated in Art. 75 may be applied in determining when the money sued for becomes due with the meaning of Art. 132 and so acceptance of overdue instalments gives fresh period of limitation. 79 Ind. Cas. 271=27 C.W.N. 893=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 139.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Separate causes of action.

The covenant in the mortgage-deed as to repayments was to the effect that the mortgage money with interest would be paid by monthly instalments of not less than Rs. 20 plus interest, the payment being made on the 1st day of November, 1899, and on the first day of every succeeding month, provided that the entire advance together with interest thereon would be fully liquidated within the ten years from the date of the mortgage. It was also agreed that defaults in payment of monthly instalments and interest as agreed should constitute separate causes of action.

Held, by providing that default in the payment of each monthly instalment should constitute a separate cause of action the parties clearly intended that prompt payments should be made and that the period of limitation should run from the date of default unless the payee waived the benefit of the provisions of prompt payment in case of default. Mere forbearance to sue would not stop limitation from beginning to run. 75 Ind. Cas. 1048=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 702.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from first default.

The mortgage deed provided, " in case of non-payment of interest from year to year, the creditor has the option to add the interest to the principal and to charge interest thereon at the aforesaid rate or to recover through Court principal and interest from me and hypothecated property and also from my other movable or immovable property and from my person within the stipulated period. The period fixed shall not bar the claim. In case of non-payment within the stipulated period, the creditor shall have the power to recover the money, principal and interst together with compound interest from me mortgaged property to other movable or immovable property of mine."

Held, that as soon as the first default was made a right accrued to the mortgagee to sue for the whole sum with interest. On default having been made the money certainly did become due at once ; and the mere circumstances that the creditor had the option of not calling in the money cannot wipe out the fact that the money had in fact become due and that the first default having occurred more than twelve years before the suit, money sued for became due then and the claim for the enforcement of the charge is barred by time under Art. 132. (1842) 4 Q.B. 519 ; 37 All. 400 (F.B.), Foll. 69 Ind. Cas. 981=20 A.L.J. 819=45 All. 27=4 L.R.A. Civ. 3= A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from default

The mortgagor by a mortgage-deed of 17th July, 1901, covenanted to pay the interest year by year and the principal within three years of the date of execution, and in case of default of the payment of the annual interest, he empowered the mortgagee without waiting for the expiration of the period fixed for the payment of the principal, to realise the amount due for the principal and interest from the hypothecated property.

Held, the deed means that the privilege of deferring payment of the principal to the 17th July, 1904, was conditional on the punctual payment of the annual interest. No interest was paid at all, so the cause of action arose, on the 17th July, 1902. In these circumstances, the suit which was instituted on the 23rd February, 1916, was time-barred in the absence of acknowledgment. 67 Ind. Cas. 160=20 A.L.J. 346=A.I.R. 1922 All. 524.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from first default.

Under a mortgage bond it was provided that the loan was to be repaid within a certain period. It was further provided that each year the mortgagor must pay a certain sum which was a little over the annual interest. The excess over the annual interest was to be credited towards the principal, if in any year the interest was not paid, the interest might be treated as principal and would carry interst at a certain rate. If there was any defaults in payment of the sum stipulated to be paid annually, the mortgagee was to have power without waiting for the expiry of the stipulated period to set aside all the other stipulations embodied in the document and to bring a suit in Court to realise the entire principal together with interest at costs from the persons of the mortgagors and from the hypotheciated property.

Held, that Art. 132 of the Limitation Act clearly applies and time runs from the first default. 37 All. 400 (F.B.), Foll. 63 Ind. Cas. 441=19 A.L.J. 592=43 All. 596= A.I.R. 1921 All. 296.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from first default.

The bond provided that if the borrower made default in the payment of any instalment of interest the lender could sue for the whole amount, although a period was fixed for re-payment if the borrower re-paid regularly according to the terms of the bond.

Held, that limitation must run from the date of the first default. 37 All. 400, Foll. ; 19 A.L.J. 406, Not foll. 63 Ind. Cas. 886=43 All. 671=19 A.L.J. 712=A.I.R. 1921 All. 192.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from exercise of option.

Where the creditor was given three options in case of default in the payment of two consecutive instalments of interest, namely, either to sue for the principal and interest or to let the interest mount up or to sue for interest only.

Held, that if the creditor did not choose to exercise his option of suing for the whole amount due on default, the time did not begin to run from such abstention. 63 Ind. Cas. 25=19 A.L.J. 456=A.I.R. 1921 All. 171.

——Art. 132—Default clause—Time from exercise of option.

A stipulation in an instalment bond, securing payment of the whole amount due, on failure of any instalment has not the effect of making the whole amount secured by the bond together with interest to fall due as soon as the first default is made.

The cause of action arises from the mortgagee's exercise of his option to demand payment of the whole amount. 36 Mad. 66 and 9 L.W. 479, Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 762= 1921 M.W.N. 884.

——Arts, 132, 135, and S. 31—Default clause—Money charged on immovable property—Covenant to sell in default of payment.

A mortgage document of the year 1879 did not in terms purport to sell the mortgaged property but only contained a covenant by the mortgagor to relinquish all rights in the property if it had been sold, in case there was default in payment of the mortgage money within the stipulated period. A suit for foreclosure in respect of such a document falls under Art. 132 read with S. 31 and not under Art. 135. 30 M.L.J. 338=34 Ind. Cas. 475.

3. Immoveable property.

——Art. 132—Immovable property.

Maintenance of widow is not a charge on immovable property within Art. 132. 12 Pat. 869=A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 99=15 P.L.T. 372=149 Ind. Cas. 738.

——Art. 132—Immoveable property—Standing trees.

Standing trees are immoveable property within Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 1887 A.W.N. 59, foll. 9 Ind. Cas. 478 (All.).

——Arts. 132 and 120—Immoveable property—Turn of worship.

A turn of worship is not an interest in immoveable property and a suit to enforce a mortgage of such a right is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and not by Art. 132. 46 Cal. 455=22 C.W.N. 994=47 Ind. Cas. 25.

4. Instalment bond.

See also LIMITATION ACT, ART. 132—DEFAULT CLAUSE.

——Art, 132—Suit on instalment mortgage bond with exigibility clause—Cause of action, when accrues—Amendment of plaint—Permissibility.

A suit to recover money due under an instalment mortgage bond containing an exigibility clause is governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, and the mortgagee has the option to choose whether he should treat the cause of action as arising on the date of default of the specified instalments when the entire amount became payable in a lump, or on the date when the last instalment fell due. If the mortgagee decides to exercise his option to enforce the exigibility clause and definitely treats the cause of action as arising on the earlier date in the plaint, he must abide by it and will not be allowed to amend his plaint so as to show the cause of action arising as accruing on the later date. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 370= A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 103=1948 N.L.J. 546.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Mortgage-Instalment—When money becomes due—Construction.

A mortgage deed of 1890 provided repayment of principal in instalments with interest and further provided that in case of default in any one of the instalments the whole of the mortgage money would become due and be payable on demand,

Held, that money under the bond became due within the meaning of the Article when the first default was made in 1890 and accordingly the suit was barred. Per Richards, C.J.—Money under a bond becomes due as soon as it is legally recoverable quite irrespective of when the suit is instituted. Per Nanerjee, J.—Upon a true construction of the bond in this case, the money secured by it became due on the expiration of ten years from the date of the bond and the claim was not barred. 37 All. 400=13 A.L.J. 510=28 Ind. Cas. 910.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Cause of action.

When the mortgage bond contains a stipulation to pay the principal and interest at a particular time and on failure a condition that the mortgagor or was to deliver certain produce and on failure to do so, another time was fixed ; limitation runs from the second time. 50 Ind. Cas. 71 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Starting point—Option to mortgagee to sue on default of payment interest or after period fixed.

Where there is an option to the mortgagee to sue for the whole amount on default of payment of interest or to wait until the period fixed, he must sue for the whole amount when the cause of action therefor accrued first. 188 P.R.C. 1883 (F.B.), foll; 30 A. 123, disappr. 153 P.W.R. 1915=31 Ind. Cas. 808.

——Arts. 132 and 75—Instalment bonds.

The principle of Art. 75 cannot be extended to cases under Art. 132. 2 Ind. Cas. 653 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Arrears of interest—Omission to sue, if amounts to waiver.

A mere omission to sue is not sufficient proof of waiver. A mortgage bond of 11th August, 1890, provided that interest was to be payable yearly, the mortgagee being entitled to recover arrears of interest by suit and that after 10 years if the land was not redeemed, he should be entitled to recover principal and interest by suit. Only a small sum having been paid towards the interest in the early years, the mortgagee sued the mortgagor for principal and interest.

Held, that inasmuch as the plaintiff had the option of suing every year the suit was governed by Article 132 of the Limitation Act and plaintiff could not recover interest that had become due 12 years prior to the institution of the suit. 122 P.W.R. 1915=141 P.W.R. 1916 =113 P.L.R. 1916=29 Ind. Cas. 854.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—When accrues Right of action.

A Mortgage executed in favour of a widow dated 1st November, 1888, provided for the period for the payment of the principal on 1st November, 1899, and for the annual payment of interest at 6¼ per year with a stipulation for the payment of principal and interest at 12 per annum from the date of default in payment of the interest " without raising the plea of future instalment on the liability of the mortgage property. In a suit by the assignee of the widow it having been found that the widow could assign away the interest that remained due on the date of the assignment but not the principal debt, and the interest not having been paid as provided for, it was contended that the suit was barred by limitation.

Held, (1) that the mortgagee was not bound to take advantage of the default clause and that the right of action did not consequently accrue until the date provided for payment of the principal arrived (2) The suit being governed by Art. 132 of Sch. I of the Limitation Act, it was not time-barred. 28 I.C. 910, Dis. 39 Mad. 981=4 L.W. 77=20 M.L.T. 174=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 125=31 M.L.J. 865=35 Ind. Cas. 418.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Whole amount on default of one instalment—Limitation.

A mortgage-deed provided for payment of the mortgage money by certain instalments and that if any default took place the contract relating to the payment of future instalments was to be deemed rescinded and the mortgagees were to be entitled to sue for the whole amount and interest.

Held, that a suit brought by the mortgagees on the basis of the above mortgage-deed more than 12 years after the date when the first default in payment was made was time-barred under Art. 132. 5 O.L.J. 419 =47 Ind. Cas. 655.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Mortgage—Default in payment—Right to sue for the whole amount—Waiver, limitation.

A contract which gives the mortgagee one of two options does not bind him to either of them if he chooses to stick to either. It is open to him to waive the benefit of an acceleration if the contract leaves him such an option and that option cannot be taken away by statute unless there is anything to show that the grant of such an option is illegal or forbidden by law. 5 O.L.J. 73 =45 Ind. Cas. 613.

——Art. 132—Instalment bond—Starting point of limitation for default.

The limitation begins to run from the date of first default though the mortgage deed gave the mortgagee the option of not enforcing payment on such date. 32 Ind. Cas. 551 (Oudh).

5. Interest.

——Art. 132—Interest.

The mortgagors covenanted that they would continue to pay interest yearly and if they failed to pay, it should be added to the principal and bear compound interest. The mortgagees allowed to bring a suit to recover interest only in the alternative. The mortgagees brought a suit to recover principal plus arrears of interest.

Held, that the mortgagees can recover interest for a period of 12 years only prior to the suit, as limitation began to run again the mortgagee from the date of the first default to pay interest by the mortgagors. A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.) ; 37 All. 400 (F.B.), Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 249 (All.).

——Art. 132—Interest.

A mortgagee is entitled to treat interest due under a mortgage as a charge upon the mortgaged property in the absence of any contract to the contrary and it is most important that the general rule should not be taken in any particular. A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 183, Foll : A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 273, Not foll., being considered as overruled by A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 183. 92 Ind. Cas. 762=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 530.

——Art. 132—Interest.

Claim for interest being subsidiary or incidental to the claim for the principal the security annexed to the principal must impliedly be available for the interest also. A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 181.

6. Loan in kind.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind.

Where a bond hypothecates property to secure payment of grain, the suit brought upon that bond is a suit to enforce payment of "money" charged upon immoveable property and consequently Art. 132 of the Limitation Act (1908) would be applicable, and the suit being, brought within 12 years after the accrual of cause of action would not be barred. Neither Art. 116 nor 120 of the Act applies to such a case. 24 C.L.J. 348, Not foll. 65 Ind. Cas. 697= 5 N.L.J. 224=18 N.L.R. 111=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 23,

——Art. 132—Loan in kind.

The word "money" is comprehensive enough to include also money which has or will become due on account of non-performance of an agreement that might give rise to a pecuniary liability. A suit to recover the value of paddy charged upon immovable property is a suit to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property within the meaning of Art. 132. 61 Ind. Cas. 539=48 Cal. 625=25 C.W.N. 57=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 172 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Loan in kind.

A suit to recover the value of paddy charged upon immovable property by sale of the latter is governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 48 Cal. 625, Foll. 64 Ind. Cas. 310 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Loan in kind.

Where there is a loan of a certain quantity of paddy with a provision for payment of an additional quantity of paddy as interest, and both the principal and interest are secured on immovable property a suit to enforce the security is governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. 25 C.W.N. 57 (F.B.), Foll. 64 Ind. Cas. 210 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Loan in kind.

A debtor borrowed a quantity of paddy on a mortgage of his property, agreeing to re-pay with interest within a certain time and entitling the mortgagee to realise the money, in case of default by sale of the mortgaged property. On a default by the debtor the mortgagee sued within 12 years of the date of payment for recovery of the money.

Held, a suit was within time. 60 Ind. Cas. 715=32 C.L.J. 221.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Paddy charged on immoveable property—Suit for recovery—Limitation.

A suit to recover the valuable of paddy charged upon immoveable property is a suit to enforce payment of money with Art. 132 of the Limitation Act. "Money charged upon immoveable property" in Art. 132 includes money due for non-performance of an obligation when such money is secured by a mortgage of the immoveable property. 32 C.L.J. 278=25 C.W.N. 57=48 Cal. 625=61 Ind. Cas. 339=25 C.W.N. 57=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 172.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Loan of paddy.

The mortgagor took a loan of paddy and agreed to repay it together with interest thereon at so many kalthas per year and further agreed that on default of payment within the time stipulated the mortgagee would be entitled to realize the money and costs by sale of the property mortgaged to secure the loan, and if that was insufficient to satisfy the debt, by attachment and sale of other properties of the mortgagor.

Held, a suit brought within 12 years from the due date of payment for enforcement was within time under Article 132. 32 Cal.L.J. 221=60 Ind. Cas. 715.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Loan of paddy—Security of land—Limitation.

A mortgage to secure a loan of paddy provided that on default of payment of the paddy the mortgagee would be entitled to attach and sell the mortgaged property and realise the dues, and if that was insufficient, would be entitled to realise them also from other moveable and immoveable property of the mortgagor and from his person.

Held, the mortgagee was entitled to recover money and not to claim specific paddy; and the mortgagee's suit to enforce the bond was governed by Art. 132. 23 C.W.N. 951=58 Ind. Cas. 995.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Loan of paddy—Charges on land—Limitation.

A borrowed a quantity of paddy from B valued in the bond at Rs. 192 agreeing to repay the paddy with interest at a certain date, failing which B was to be entitled to recover the price of the paddy with interest by sale of the mortgaged land.

Held, that Art. 132 of the Limitation Act applied to a suit by B to enforce the bond. 47 Cal. 125=23 C.W.N. 949=51 Ind. Cas. 849.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Loan of paddy.

Art. 132 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit to enforce a mortgage by which certain immoveable properties are hypothecated as a security for the return of paddy borrowed or of the money value thereof. 51 Ind. Cas. 241 (Cal.).

——Arts. 132, 120 and 116—Loan in kind—Payment of paddy secured on lands—Suit to enforce.

Per Teunon, J. (Walmsely, J., contra) A suit to enforce payment of paddy secured by hypothecation of lands is governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 116 or 120 of the Limitation Act. 29 C.L.J. 368=50 Ind. Cas. 608.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Interest in paddy—Nature of mortgage.

A suit on a mortgage for a sum of money on which the interest in payable in paddy is a suit to enforce a charge of money in immoveable property. 46 Ind. Cas. 384 (Cal.).

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Mortgage on loan of rice—Suit on.

Where a mortgage deed on the loan of a certain amount of rice provided that on failure to pay the rice according to the kist the mortgagee would be entitled to recover money at Rs. 6 per map of the rice, by sale of the mortgaged property.

Held, that the suit to enforce the mortgage was a suit to recover money charged on immoveable property and is governed by Art. 132 of the Act. 22 C.W.N. 790=46 Ind. Cas. 78.

——Art. 132—Loan in kind—Interest payable in kind.

Where interest under a mortgage bond is payable in kind, a suit for the interest is governed by Art. 132 as the interest is charged upon the mortgaged premises. 2 Ind. Cas. 111 (Cal.).

7. Malikana.

——Art. 132—Under-proprietary rent in Oudh—S. 132, Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886).

The rent payable by an under proprietor in Oudh does not come within the term 'malikana' occurring in the explanation, to Art. 132, Limitation Act. What an under-proprietor is liable to pay to the superior proprietor is rent and a suit for recovery of it must be brought within three years under S. 132, Oudh Rent Act. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 57=1938 O.W.N. 1368=1939 R.D. 50=1938 A.W.R. 145=14 Luck. 467=179 Ind. Cas. 1.

——Art. 132—Malikana.

Malikana is deemed to be money charged on immovable property—Suit to recover malikana is governed by Art. 132, and not by Art. 131. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 44=154 Ind. Cas. 1043.

——Art. 132—Malikana.

A suit to recover malikana though coupled with an ancillary relief of declaration of right to receive malikana, is governed by Art. 132. 96 Ind. Cas. 188=6 Pat. 51=1926 P.H.C.C. 199=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 340.

——Art. 132—Malikana.

The explanation to Art. 132 does not merely refer to malikana as contemplated by the Bengal Regulations, but it also covers malikana claimable by a sardar ghatwal under a settlement between the Ghatwals and Zamindars.

A share of bastu rent payable to taraf sardar is malikana where the land is not settled with the taraf sardar but direct with the village sardar. 96 Ind. Cas. 188=6 Pat. 51=1926 P.H.C.C. 199=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 340.

——Art. 132—Malikana.

Under Expl. to Art. 132 of the Limitation Act a claim to a malikana allowance must be deemed for the purpose of limitation to be a claim for money charged upon immoveable property. 35 All. 185, Foll. This principle however is subject to the proviso that the plaintiff coming into the Court to claim such malikana allowance must claim it as a charge upon the immoveable property concerned. 41 All. 259=17 A.L.J. 176=49 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Art. 132—Malikana—Suit for malikana—Limitation.

Suit by plaintiff to recover malikana allowance for 11 years and claiming decree against the property on which the allowance is chargeable is governed by Art. 132. 35 All. 185=11 A.L.J. 206 =19 Ind. Cas. 63.

——Art. 132—Malikana—Right to get Nankar.

Right to get cash nankar is a had similiar to one falling under the explanation attached to Art. 132. 19 O.C. 49=33 Ind. Cas. 461.

——Arts. 132, 115—Malikana, suit for—Plaint not seeking to enforce the charge. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 115. 33 C. 998.

——Art. 132—Malikana, suit for—Present and old law.

Under the former law of limitation the right to receive malikana was treated as an interest in land and the claim would be barred if not made within 12 years after the last receipt by the proprietor. A plaintiff who had never been in the habit of receiving any malikana from the year 1845 up to the date of the suit (1902) was barred as under Act XIV of 1859 the malikana was treated as an interest is land and the right to sue accrued from the time of the accrual of the cause of action. A suit for malikana when governed by the present Limitation Act would not be barred because under Art. 142, the right to receive malikana is a recurring right and the right to sue accrues when the money sued for falls due. Payment of malikana to other maliks had not the effect of saving the plaintiff's right to recover malikana. (1905) 10 C.W.N. 151.

8. Redemption suit.

——Art. 132—Where, after prior mortgagee has obtained a foreclosure decree and taken possession without impleading the subsequent mortgagee in his suit and the latter brings a suit for redemption of prior mortgage but more than 12 years after prior mortgagee obtained possession, suit, is not barred being governed by Art. 148 and not by Art. 132. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 205=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 367=172 Ind. Cas. 289.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit.

Suit by representatives of puisne mortgagee to redeem mortgaged property from representatives of prior mortgagee is governed by Art. 148 and not by Art. 132. 1935 O.W.N. 40=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 139=10 Luck. 531=153 Ind. Cas. 808.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit.

Second mortgagee authorised to redeem prior mortgage—Suit for redemption—Article 148 applied and not Art. 132. 14 L. 596=34 P.L.R. 502=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 503=142 Ind. Cas. 805.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By puisne mortgagee.

Where the puisne mortgagee has already obtained a decree for sale on his mortgagee without making prior mortgagee a party, he is entitled to redeem a prior mortgagee in a subsequent suit and the subsequent suit is governed by Art. 148 and not by Art. 132, 14 C.W.N. 439, Expl. and held rightly decided on its facts. 119 Ind. Cas. 135=33 C.W.N. 1067=50 C.L.J. 152=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 609 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By co-mortgagor.

The limitation, which governs a suit brought by a co-mortgagor to redeem the property from the hands of the other co-mortgagor, who had redeemed the entire property mortgaged, is 12 years, and this period is to be reckoned from the date, when the redeeming co-mortgagor sets up his adverse possession. 9 O.C. 91: A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 347 and A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 552, Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 409=6 O.W.N. 305=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 290.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By puisne mortgagee.

Where a prior mortgagee obtains a decree on hi-mortgage without impleading puisne mortgagee, purchases the property in execution and enters into possession, a suit by puisne mortgagee who also purchases the property under his decree, obtained without impleading prior mortgagee for redemption and possession against prior mortgagee is governed by Art. 132 and not Art. 148. 14 C.W.N. 439, Foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 719=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 560.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By second mortgagee.

The second mortgagee's right of redemption cannot be considered to be a right to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property. The second mortgagee in a suit for redemption does not seek to recover the money due to him upon his second mortgagee and so Art. 132 does not apply, but under Art. 148 he has 60 years period. 14 C.W.N. 439; A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 150=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 76, Not foll. 2 L.L.J. 419; A.I.R. 1923 All. 271; and 32 Cal. 891, Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 284=5 Pat. 513=7 P.L.T. 788=1926 P.H.C.C. 310=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 337.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By puisne mortgagee.

Puisne mortgagee cannot redeem prior mortgagee beyond the period fixed by Art. 132. 82 Ind. Cas. 864=20 M.L.W. 620=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 150.

——Art. 132—Redemption suit—By puisne mortgagee.

The right of puisne mortgagee to redeem is only ancillary to right to work out his remedy against the mortgaged estate. He is only permitted to redeem for the purpose of working out his own security. The right of a puisne mortgagee to redeem the prior mortgagee in a case where he had not been joined in a suit on the first mortgage, is a right to redeem that mortgagee, i.e., first mortgagee with a view of enforcing his own mortgagee. His right to redeem the first mortgagee must be considered to be only a means of securing the object of enforcing his own claim by sale. The proper article of the limitation Act applicable to the case is Art. 132. 14 C.W.N. 439, Foll. 84 Ind. Cas. 301=1924 M.W.N. 508=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 76=47 M.L.J. 602.

——Arts. 132, 134, 148—Redemption suit—Suit by prior mortgagee without making puisne mortgagee party—Sale and purchase by himself—Subsequent suit by second mortgagee and pur- chaser by himself—Interest acquired by latter—Suit by him to redeem prior mortgagee purchaser—Limitation.

Where a prior mortgagee sues on his mortgage without making a second mortgagee a party and in execution of the decree obtained by him purchases the property himself, and subsequently the second mortgagee also sues on his mortgage without making the prior mortgagee a party, and purchases the property in execution of his decree, he acquires by his purchase only the interest he previously possessed as mortgagee. He can seek to enforce his rights as such by suit as against the prior mortgagee-purchaser only within the period of 12 years from the due date of his own mortgage as provided in Art. 132, and he cannot claim the benefit of a fresh period of limitation running in his favour from the date of his purchase. A suit brought by him to redeem the prior mortgagee-purchaser more than 12 years after the due date of his mortgage would be barred by Art. 132. (1909) 14 C.W.N. 439=5 Ind. Cas. 877.

9. Security and indemnity bond.

——Arts. 132, 120, 83—Execution purchase subject to a charge.

Certain immovable properties were given by a judgment-debtor as security for a stay of execution of a money-decree against him pending his appeal, after the dismissal of which but before the decree was executed by sale of the properties given as securities, some of these properties were purchased in execution of another decree by another person subject to the said charge. The first decree-holder began executing his decree against other properties and the judgment-debtor brought a suit against the auction-purchaser as defendant No. 1 and the 1st decree-holder as defendant No. 2. He claimed that the property taken by defendant No. 1 be sold and the proceeds applied in satisfaction of the balance of the decree debt due to defendant No. 2 the surplus, if any, be given to him so as to cover the amount already recovered from him by defendant No. 2:

Held, (i) that the security given by the plaintiff in the former litigation was realisable in execution.

(ii) as defendant No. 1 purchased the property subject to the charge of defendant No. 2, there was an obligation on him to indemnify the plaintiff against the incumbrance;

(iii) the indemnity could be enforced against defendant No. 1 even though the entire debt due under a decree to defendant No. 2 had not been paid by the plaintiff:

(iv) the suit being in its nature a mortgage suit the article applicable was Art. 132 and not Art. 83 or Art. 120. (1933) M.W.N. 486=38 L.W. 818=A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 1=66 M.L.J. 4=57 M. 818=149 Ind. Cas. 379.

——Art. 132—Security and indemnity bonds.

A suit against the surety on a simple money bond for the payment of a mortgage debt is not a suit for payment of money charged upon immoveable property and therefore Art. 132 does not apply. 105 Ind. Cas. 168=39 M.L.T. 408=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 945=53 M.L.J. 453.

——Art. 132—Security and indemnity bond.

Art. 132 applies to a suit by shebait of a Thakur against the Tahsildar of the debutter properties of Thakur, for accounts based on a security bond executed by the latter in favour of the predecessor of the plaintiff. 59 Ind. Cas. 126=24 C.W.N. 879.

——Art. 132—Security and indemnity bond.

Where a registered contract to indemnify contains a provision for a charge on immovable property, Art. 132 applies and not Art. 83 or Art. 116. 66 Ind. Cas. 554=14 M.L.W. 99=1921 M.W.N. 472=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 514.

——Art. 132—Security bond—Shebait—Enforcement by successor—Limitation.

The plaintiff shebait sued defendant for accounts on a security bond executed by the defendant in favour of the former shebait.

Held, that the contract entered into between the parties could be sued upon by the present shebait. 24 C.W.N. 879=59 Ind. Cas. 126.

——Art. 132—Security bond—Suit for accounts against Gumastha—Hypothecation of property for due performance of duties—Limitation.

A suit for accounts against a Gumastha who has hypothecated property for due performance of duties is governed by Art. 132. 35 C. 298, Foll. 21 C.L.J. 459=24 Ind. Cas. 18.

——Art. 132—Security bond—Kabuliat by agent.

A Kabuliat executed by an agent providing for a charge on his immoveable property, if he makes default, does not bring a suit by principal against agent for accounts under Art. 132 but the Arts. 89, 115, and 116 apply. 14 C.W.N. 122=5 Ind. Cas. 59.

10. Start of Limitation.

——Art. 132—Suit on mortgage—Limitation—Starting point—Sale to mortgagee of property other than mortgaged in satisfaction of the mortgage—Mortgagee dispossessed of that property owing to defect in vendor's title—Cause of action on mortgage—If revived from date of dispossession.

In 1918, defendant No. 1 executed a mortgage on property A, in favour of plaintiff. In 1928, he executed a second mortgage in favour of defendant No. 2 on properties, A an B. In 1929, defendant No. 1 sold to the plaintiff property, B, in satisfaction of his mortgage. In 1936 defendant No. 2 obtained a decree on his mortgage, purchased property, B, in execution and obtained delivery of possession dispossessing the plaintiff, the plaintiff claimed that according to the terms of the sale-deed he was entitled to enforce his mortgage of 1918 and contended that the period of limitation should be computed under Art. 132 of the Limitation Act from the date of his dispossession.

Held, that the breach of condition of the sale-deed did not have the effect of extending the period of limitation for enforcing the mortgage and that there was no revival of the cause of action on dispossession of the plaintiff in execution of the mortgage decree. The parties could not waive the statute by agreement. An agreement by a person against whom a cause of action had arisen that he would not take advantage of the statute could not affect its operation on the origianl cause of action unless such agreement constituted an acknowledgment of liability which the statute itself provides as an exception to the rule. I.L.R. 28 Pat. 303=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 505.

——Art. 132—Starting point—Mortgage bond—Provision for mortgagee taking possession and to restore it on payment of debt within 5 years—Mortgagor not handing over possession—Suit by mortgagee to enforce mortgage—Limitation—Starting point.

Where, under the terms of a mortgage bond, the mortgagee is to take possession of the mortgaged property and to restore possession to the mortgagor when the latter repaid the money within five years, but the mortgagor fails to deliver possession to the mortgagee, the mortgage debt becomes payable forthwith under section 68 (1) (d) T.P. Act, and the mortgagee must file a suit on the mortgage within 12 years of the date of the mortgage. The fact that the mortgage money is to be paid withi 5 years when the mortgagee is to restore possession to the mortgagor does not postpone the accrual of the cause of action. Once there is failure to put the mortgagee in possessions as provided in the deed, his cause of action to sue arises and if he fails to sue within 12 years thereafter his suit is barred under Art. 132, Limitation Act. 48 Bom.L.R. 629=231 Ind. Cas. 15=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 152.

——Art. 132—Starting point—Due date—Transferee from mortgagor—Suit against—Limitation—Starting point of.

The period of limitation for a suit to enforce a mortgage which is fixed by Art. 132, Limitation Act, cannot be extended by the Court on equitable considerations or on the ground of hardship. The expression "due date" in the Article can only mean the date fixed in the mortgage bond as the date by which the mortgage amount should be repaid, irrespective of the fact that the mortgagor has transferred his interests to another. The due date cannot have any reference to a transfer by the mortgagor which brings into existence before the Court a transferee who was not in existence on the date of the mortgage or on the due date. Even as against a subsequent transferee from the mortgagor, the mortgagee has to bring his suit within 12years from the date fixed,and if the suit is brought after the expiry of that period, it is barred by limitation and must be dissmissed as against the subsequent transferee. The due date is not extended merely because of the trnsfer by the mortgagor to another of his interest in the property. A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 420.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation.

Held, on facts that the limitation started from the date of the decree and the suit brought within 12 years from that date was within time. I.L.R. (1944) All. 654=57 M.L.W. 565=48 C.W.N. 830=A.I.R. 1944 P.C. 85=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 330=(1944) A.L.J. 463=1944 O.W.N. 495=1944 M.W.N. 720=71 I.A. 153 (P.C.).

——Art. 132—Start of limitation.

Instalment mortgage-bond—Mortgagee making demand of entire amount after default—Payment by mortgagor received and accepted by mortgagee—Time does not run until fresh default is made. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 172=57 L.W. 20=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 49=1944 M.W.N. 709.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Penal clause.

Obiter.—In the case of a mortgage bond with a penal clause which the mortgagee may or may not enforce, the time for the enforcement of the mortgage runs on the expiry of the full term of the bond. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 158=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 124=196 Ind. Cas. 565.

——Arts. 132, 57, 59—Start of limitation—No date of repayment mentioned mortgage by conditional sale.

In the case of a mortgage by conditional sale, where no time for payment is fixed, time under Art. 132, runs from the date of the execution of the mortgage-deed which must be deemed to be the date of payment. There is no reason to distinguish between money lent and payable on demand governed by Art. 57 or Art. 59, and money-lent and charged upon land and governed by Art. 132. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 158=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 124=196 Ind. Cas. 565.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Three successive mortgages of same property in favour of same mortgagee.

The mortgagor whose property was mortgaged on March 9, 1918, effected three other successive mortgagees on the same property in favour of the same mortgagee. The third mortgage-deed, dated February 27, 1920, contained a clause: "We agree to pay up the present and the previous mortgage-money after one year." The assignee of the mortgagee instituted a suit on the basis of these mortgages on December 22, 1932, for principal, interest and costs of improvements:

Held, that the suit brought within 12 years from February 26, 1921, was within time and that the article applicable was Art 132, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 145=181 Ind. Cas. 620.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Successive mortgages.

The purchaser of the equity of redemption, in a suit by the first mortgagee to which the second mortgagee whose existence was not known had not been impleaded, gets afresh cause of action to enforce the mortgage against the second mortgagee from the date of the purchase in execution and, consequently, a suit to enforce the first mortgage against the second mortgagee which is instituted within 12 years of the date of purchase would not be time-barred even though it is instituted after the expiry of more than 12 years from the date of the mortgage. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 680=157 Ind. Cas. 1050.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Suspension or revival of cause of action—Submersion of land.

Where the mortgaged property was diluviated for a certain period and the plaintiff in a suit on the mortgage claimed that the period of limitation was suspended during the period the land was under water:

Held, that the fact that mortgaged property went under water did not in any way affect the plaintiff's right to bring a suit upon the mortgage, inasmuch as with due regard to section 68, T.P. Act, it was open to the plaintiff to bring a suit in spite of the fact that the mortgaged property had gone under water. 6 R.P. 297=A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 693=146 Ind. Cas. 856.

——Art. 132—Starting point—Express covenant for peaceful possession—Breach before expiry of term fixed.

Where the mortgage bond stipulates for peaceful possession for a particular period and the mortgagee is dispossessed from the property, although the mortgagee may be entitled to sue for the mortgage money at the end of the term fixed, the cause of action for the suit arises on the date of dispossession and cannot be suspended till the date under the mortgage bond. 35 C.W.N. 103=129 Ind. Cas. 108=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 703.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Successive mortgages payable together—Redemption of one—Suit on the second.

A mortgagor executed two successive mortgage-deeds in favour of the mortgagee, and it was intended that both the debts should be paid together. Mortgagor sued for redemption on the first deed only. Mortgagee contended that the redemption should not be granted until the debt on the other deed also was paid. The Court held that the two mortgages had not been consolidated and decreed the redemption. In his suit on second deed the mortgagee contended that time accrued for his second deed only when redemption money on first deed was paid.

Held, that as regards the other mortgage-deed time began to run only when the debt became payable according to the terms of the deed and not when money was paid in the redemption suit on the first deed. 121 Ind. Cas. 286=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 214.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Mortgage payable in three years—Provision for acceleration in case of transfer—Transfer—Limitation.

A mortgage bond executed on 1st May, 1900, was payable in three years, but it was provided in it that if the mortgagor should transfer the hypothecated property the creditors shall, even before the expiry of the term, be at liberty to institute a suit for recovery of the amount of the bond with full interest. On 8th March, 1911, the mortgagor executed an hypothecation bond and hypothecated a portion of the mortgaged property. The mortgagees brought a suit on the mortgagee in March, 1924, i.e., within 12 years of the date fixed for payment but after 12 years from the date of subsequent hypothecation.

Held, that the suit was within time. 108 Ind. Cas. 152=50 All. 328=26 A.L.J. 41=A.I.R. 1928 All. 159.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Deed of further charge providing for payment of the amount on redemption of original mortgage.

Where a deed of further charge provided that should the mortgagor fail to pay the amount within the stipulated period of one year that amount should be paid at the time of redemption of the original mortgage, the period of limitation for a suit to recover the amount of the further charge cannot commence before redemption is claimed by the mortgagor. A.I.R. 111 Ind. Cas. 106=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 493.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Condition in the mortgage-deed to the effect that the mortgagor shall not be entitled to redeem and the mortgagee to bring the mortgage property to sale till a certain date.

A mortgage-deed, in 1911, provided inter alia that only in 1920 (and not till then) the mortgagor should satisfy his full liability by payment of the principal. It also provided that the mortagee was not to bring the property to sale on account of a default until June, 1920. It further provided that, although the mortgagor was not in any circumstances entitled to pay up the principal and redeem the mortgage before June, 1920, the mortgagee might recvoer at his wish either by mutual settlement or through a suit in Court, the entire principal with interest, compound interest and interest on interest in accordance with the conditions of the deed even before June, 1920. The mortgagee brought the suit to recover his money in May, 1926.

Held, that a suit to enforce payment of money charged upon immovable property in this suit could not have been instituted until June, 1920, for the money, the payment of which was charged upon immovable property, did not become due till June, 1920, and in these circumstances the suit was within time. A.I.R. 1923 All. 1 (F.B.), Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 130=3 Luck 439=5 O.W.N. 385=A.I.R 1928 Oudh 289 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Mortgage-money payable on demand—Suit by mortgagee against purchaser of equity of redemption.

In a suit on a mortgage, the purchaser of the equity of redemption was not impleaded as a party. The mortgagee obtained a decree and purchased the property in execution. The purchaser of the equity of redemption filed a suitagainst the auction-purchasr (i.e., mortgagee) and got a decree. More than twelve years from the date of mortgage, the auction-purchaser filed a suit against the purchaser of the equity of redemption for sale of the property in default of redemption.

Held, the mortgage-deed providing that the money was repayable on demand, limitation began to run from the date of the deed and that the suit was barred. 111 Ind. Cas. 132=6 Rang. 297=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 189.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Payable on demand.

Limitation in the case of mortgage payable on demand run from the time when the loan is made and not from the date of the demand. No actual demand is necessary. 21 Mad. 139. Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 132=6 Rang. 297=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 189.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Payable at any time.

Where the mortgagor is at liberty to pay the mortgage-money at any time and the mortgagee is also equally at liberty to foreclose at any time, his limitation under Art. 132 begins to run at once. 92 Ind. Cas. 656=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 225.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Security for rent.

Where properties were hypothecated to secure the payment of the rent reserved by a lease, time for enforcing the hypothecation runs from the date of the decree for rent that is obtained. 63 Ind. Cas. 504=19 A.L.J. 478=43 All. 539=A.I.R. 1921 All. 301.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation—Renewal.

A mortgage was executed in renewal of a prior mortgage and in consideration of a fresh sum to be advanced. But this sum was not advanced in fact.

Held, that Art. 132 applied to a suit to enforce the later mortgage and time runs from the date of the money became payable under the second mortgage. 4 L.L.J. 478=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 293.

——Art. 132—Start of limitation.

Where a mortgage in plaintiff's favour provided that the mortgagor would pay off the amount on the security of the lands covered by the deed as well as on the security of certain other lands "after discharging" the mortgage thereon to a third party,

Held, that the words 'after discharging' etc., were no intended to postpone the date on which the cause of action for the enforcement of the plaintiff's mortgage was to arise. 70 Ind. Cas. 759=15 M.L.W. 289=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 624=42 M.L.J. 339.

——Art. 132—Starting point of limitation—Mortgage payable on demand.

When a mortgage is payble on demand time begins, to run from the date of its execution, otherwise it will be barred by time. This rule applies equally to a transferee of a mortgage right. 42 All. 70=17 A.L.J. 1068=1 U.P. L.R. (H.C.) 187=53 Ind. Cas. 684.

——Art. 132—Starting point of limitation—Adverse possession against mortgagor not adverse to mortgagee—Suit for sale.

A suit for sale on the basis of a mortgage against a person who came into possession of the mortgaged propety adversely to the mortgagor subsequent to the date of the mortgage is not barred because it is brought beyond 12 years from the date of the dispossession of the mortgagor, if it is otherwise within limitation as being within 12 years from the time on which the money became due. 36 All. 567=12 A.L.J. 982=24 Ind. Cas. 997.

——Art. 132—Starting point of limitation—Mortgagee undertaking to pay prior and subsequent mortgages together—Cause of action.

Where, in spite of a condition in a subsequent mortgage that the mortgagor would pay the amount due under that mortgage along with the earlier one, the earlier mortgage only was redeemed the cause of action was held to have accrued on the date the first mortgage was redeemed. 8 A.L.J. 233=9 Ind. Cas. 482.

——Arts. 132 and 144—Starting point of limitation—Adverse possession against mortgagee—Whether adverse to the mortgagor.

Where a person has mortgaged his property with possession and the mortgagee while in possession ousted by a trespasser, the trespass cannot be adverse to the mortgagor having a right to redeem only at the end of the mortgage period. C. paid B. the amount due on an usufructuary mortgage executed by A with his consent and A, receiving something more acknowledged the receipt as a sale though unregistered. In a suit brought by A, against C 30 years from the date of payment by C to B for redemption. Held, the sale-deed not being registered cannot be received in evidence of ownership, that it is evidence of payment of money, that C had a lien for the money paid to B and the sum paid A not as a mortgagee but as alienor which he might have enforced for 12 years from the date of payment, that after 12 years C was a trespasser and therefore the suit by A against C is barred. 35 Bom. 438=13 Bom.L.R. 867=12 Ind. Cas. 362.

——Arts. 132, 134 and 148—Starting point of limitation.

Where a prior mortgagee sued on his mortgage without impleading the 2nd mortgaged and the property was sold in execution of the decree a suit for redemption brought by a purhaser of the mortgaged property on the second mortgage, against the purchaser of it under the first mortgage, is governed by Art. 132 and not by Arts. 134 or 148. Time runs from the date of mortgage debt and not the date of purchase. 14 C.W.N. 439=5 Ind. Cas. 877.

——Art. 132—Starting point of limitation—"Further charge"—Commencement of limitation—Terms postponing—Validity.

Where a deed of further charge provided that the mortgagor should not be at liberty to redem prior mortgages without first redeeming the deed of further charge and that if in the meantime, the mortgagee wanted money, he should recover it whenever he wanted, Held, in a suit by the mortgagee, to recover the amount on the deed of further charge brought 20 years after date of execution, that the money became due from the date of execution of the deed and that the suit was time-barrred under Art. 132 of th Limitation Act. 2 O.L.J. 46=18 O.C. 86 =27 Ind. Cas. 540.

11. Subrogation.

——Art. 132—Charge declared by decree in favour of subrogee—Suit to enforce charge—Starting point of limitation.

S, a creditor of M, the original owner of certain propreties filed a suit to recover an amount due to him and obtained an attacthment before judgment of the properties of the debtor including the suit properties, which were actually attached in March, 1917. Eventually he obtained a decree in the suit and his legal representatives brought the attached properties to sale and purchased them themelves on 8th April, 1929. X purchased the suit properties in 1920 from N to whom M had alienated the same in 1918. When the auction-purchaser proceeded to obtain delivery of the properties, they were obstructed by X who was in possession under his purhase from N. Meanwhile a mortgagee of M obtained a decree for sale and assigned the decree to Y. There was another mortgage also on the properties. X, claiming to have discharge these encumbrances urged in the execution proceedings for delivery that in any event he was entitled to remain in possession till he was reimbursed in the amount paid by him to discharge the encumbrances subsisting on the property. Ultimately on 28th August, 1931, the High Court ordered that possession should be delivered to the auction-purchasers but made a declaration that X had a charge for the amounts paid by him to discharge the various mortgages. In 1937 the auction-purchasers sold the property to A and on 13th August, 1943, X instituted a suit to enforce the charge declared in his favour. On a question as to limitation.

Held, that the right of X to subrogation became merged in the order of the High Court declaring the charge and the suit to enforce it was in time. In the circumstances it is unnecessary to deal with the difficult question whether the starting point of limitation for a suit to enforce the right of subrogation by a puisne encumbrancer is the date of payment by him in discharge of the prior encumbrance or the date when the prior encumbrance itself became payable. 226 Ind. Cas. 273 =1946 M.W.N. 366=59 L.W. 302=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 423=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 379.

——Art. 132—Subrogation—Suit for recovery of sum paid by subrogee.

When a person becomes subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee by redeeming a mortgage he is in precisely the same position as the mortgagee and must, therefore, bring his suit for recovery of the sum paid by him within twelve years of the original mortgage. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 631=102 Ind. Cas. 316 still held good law and not overruled by A.I.R. 1944 P.C. 24=212 Ind. Cas. 525 (P.C.). (1945) 1 M.L.J. 341=1945 M. W.N. 319 (2)=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 500.

——Art. 132—Subrogation—Suit to enforce right obtained by subrogatuion—Limitation—Starting point.

The limitation for exercise of the right of subrogation is that applicable to the original incumbrance and does not depend on the date of payment. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 402=174 Ind. Cas. 7.

——Art. 132—Subrogation—Suits to enfoce priority.

A claim by a puisne mortgagee who has paid up a prior mortgage to enforce the priority is governed by Art. 132. 8 O.W.N. 522=7 Luck. 26=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 314=139 Ind. Cas. 626.

——Art. 132—Subrogation.

The right to enforce priority on the ground of subrogation cannot be exercised after 12 years have elapsed since the cause of action under the prior mortgage accrues. 39 Cal. 527 (P.C.); 13 N.L.R. 217,Rel. on. 127 Ind. Cas. 881=A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 166.

——Art. 132—Subrogation.

Article 132 applies to a suit by puisne mortgagee to enforce his rights acquired by him under S. 74, T.P. Act, the period of limitation being 12 years from the date the money became due. The money decreed can he said to have become due to the plaintiff and the right to forceclose in default of its payment to have arisen in his favour only when he made the payment and became entitled under the provisions of S. 74 to the rights created by the decree. A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 61, Foll: 13 N.L.R. 217, Overruled. 92 Ind. Cas. 118=8 N.L.J. 232=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 84.

——Art. 132—Subrogation.

Subrogee to the rights of a prior mortgagee must sue within 12 years from the date on which the amount of the prior mortgage falls due. 87 Ind. Cas. 264= A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 21.

——Art. 132—Subrogation.

If the right to enforce the security in the hands of the creditor is barred by limitation an assignee of the security does not stand on any better footing. It may be that the right to enforce the security in his own name arises on the date of the assignment, but the limitation has already commenced to run and will not cease to operate just because the creditor has assigned the security to another person. For an action by a subsequent mortgagee to enforce the security of the prior mortgagee as against the original mortgagor, limitation starts from the date when the cause of action of the prior mortgagee arises against the mortgagee for the mortgage-debt and not from the date when the subsequent mortgagee pays off the prior mortgagee. For a simple action however, for reimbursement of the amount paid off the time will run from the date of payment. 39 Cal. 527 (P.C.), Foll; A.I.R. 1922 All. 153, doubted. 68 Ind. Cas. 707=3 Pat. ——Art. 132—Subrogation money charged on immoveable property—Subrogation, right by—Suit to enforce—Limitation.

Where a third mortgagee pays off the first mortgage to which he becomes entitled by subrogation and claims to enforce his priority against the mesne encumbrancer. the claim is barred if brought more than 12 years after the expiry of the term of the first mortgage. 39 Cal. 527=39 I.A. 68=11 M.L.T. 265=(1912) M.W.N. 367=9 A.L.J. 332=14 Bom.L.R. 280=16 C.W.N. 505=15 C.L.J. 411=22 M.L.J. 468=14 Ind. 12. Suit for contribution.

——Art. 132—Applicability—Suit by redeeming co-mortgagor for contribution—Limitation—Starting point See T. P. ACT, SS. 82, 92 AND 100. A.I.R. 1950 Pat 174.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—One of several heirs of mortgagor or one of subsequent transferees of mortgaged property paying off entire mortgage decree—Suit for contribution against other heirs of transferees.

The period of limitation for a suit by one of several heirs of a mortgagor or by one of the several subsequent transferees of the mortgaged property who has paid the entire mortgage decree for contribution or re-imbursement against the other heirs or transferees in which the sale of the defendant's share in the mortgaged property is sought is twelve years from the date of payment and not from the date when the original mortgage money became payable. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 449=1942 O.W.N. 672=1942 A.W.R. 319=19 Luck. 70=203 Ind. Cas. 285 (F.B.).

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution.

Equitable charge created in favour of a co-vendee paying previous mortgage of property purchased—Right to enforce the charge accrues on the date of payment—Such a suit being real one for contribution falls under Art. 132. 1938 O.W.N. 290.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution.

Co-mortgagors—Redemption by one—Right of contribution against others—Such right is a charge and right to enforce such a charge accrues on the date of payment and Art. 132, applies. (1936) M.W.N. 266=43 L.W. 693=70 M.L.J. 532=A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 500=162 Ind. Cas. 828.

Art. 132—Suit for contribution. Art. 132 of Limitation Act applies to a suit for contributors of maintenance charged on two properties owned by plaintiff and defendant. 1936 O.W.N. 982.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Redemption by co-mortgagor—Enforcement of charge against other—Time when runs.

Mortgage not possessory—Redemption by one of several mortgagors—Charge accrues in favour of mortgagor who redeems—Such mortgagor is entitled to enforce charge against co-mortgagors—Right to enforce it accrues on the date of payment, the claim being governed by Art. 132. (1932) A.L.J. 19=A.I.R. 1932 All. 250=137 Ind. Cas. 86 (2).

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Suit for recovery of payments made by darpatnidar.

A suit for recovery of payments made by a darpatnidar which he need not have made to the zamindar, the usufruct of the property being insufficient, but which he made to save the patni mahal is governed by Art. 132 and not by Arts. 61, 99 or 120. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 493 =35 C.W.N. 678=134 Ind. Cas. 75.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Co-mortgagors.

The case of Raj Kamini Devi v. Mukunda Lal Bandapadhya, 57 I.C. 863 : A.I.R. (Vol. 8) 1921 Cal. 166, was wrongly decided in so far as it was held in that case that a suit by a redeeming co-mortgagor for contribution instituted beyond the period within which the original mortgagee could institute his suit on the mortgagee had it not been redeemed was barred. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 251=35 C.W.N. 409=53 C.L.J. 154=58 C. 1167=130 Ind. Cas. 889.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Co-mortgagor.

A claim to enforce the co-mortgagor's charge is governed by Art. 132. The starting point for limitation is the time when the money sued for becomes due, that is, when payment was actually made to the mortgagee. 7 O.W.N. 401=5 Luck. 727=125 Ind. Cas. 402=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 260.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution.

The right to enforce a charge created in favour of a co-mortgagor by virtue of his satisfying the mortgage arises on payment and under Art. 132, he has 12 year within which to enforce the charge. 109 Ind. Cas 38=50 All. 569=26 A.L.J. 298=A.I.R. 1928 All. 241

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Taxes on property—Co-sharer paying Government Revenue.

One co-sharer paying the Government revenue for whole estate in order to save the estate from being sold is entitled to contribution but there is no charge created in his favour over the property of the defaulting co-sharer. Article 99, Limitation Act, and not Art. 132 will consequently be applicable. The case bears no analogy to the "salvage lien" as the very essence of salvage service is that it must be voluntary. 14 All. 273 (F.B.) ; 14 Cal. 867 (F.B.) Cas. 84=7 Pat. 613=9 P.L.T. 573=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 641.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Co-mortgsgor.

The money paid by a co-mortgagor in redeeming the entire property mortgaged cannot be considered to have become due before it has been actually paid by the said co-mortgagor, and the period of limitation should be considered to commence from the date when he actually makes the payment and not from any earlier period. A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 613, Foll. A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 166, Diss. from. 95 Ind. Cas. 302=4 O.W.N. 783= A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 552.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Co-sharer paying Government Revenue.

Where one of two or more co-sharers owning an estate subject to the payment of revenue to Government pays the whole revenue in order to save the estate, he is by the operation of law entitled to a charge upon the share of each of his co-sharers for the realisation of the latter's share of revenue and therefore a suit by him brought more than three years after the payment is not barred by limitation as it is a suit to enforce a charge and comes within the scope of Art. 132 of the Limitation Act, even where the case is governed by the Madras Estates Land Act. 26 Mad. 686 (F.B.), Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 551=1925 M.W.N. 722=23 M.L.W. 178=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 141=49 M.L.J. 117.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Co-mortgagor.

One of several mortgagor's paying off the amoun of arrears of guzara charged upon immoveable property and decreed by Court has a charge on the share of each of the other co-mortgagors in the property for his proportion of the expense properly incurred in thus redeeming the property and obtaining possession. 28 A. 743 (P.C.) and 26 A. 407, Foll.

The limitation to enforce such a charge against co-mortgagors begins to run from the date of payment to the mortgagee and not from the date of the mortgage because he is not subrogated to the rights of mortgagee. Such a charge cannot however be enforced as against the auction-purchaser where he is a bona fide purchaser, for value without notice. 1 O.L.J. 43, Foll. 92 Ind. ——Art. 132—Suit for contribution—Government revenue—Payment by one shareholder—Charge—Limitation for suit to enforce charge.

A share-holder paying Government revenue due on land has a charge on the land for the amount so paid to the extent to which he is entitled to contribution from the other shareholders and a suit to enforce such charge is governed by Art. 132. 26 M. 686, Foll. (1905) 15 M.L.J. 219=28 M. 493.

——Art. 132—Suit for contribution by one of several mortgagors.

Where a person who had a mortgagor's interest in a decree for sale on a mortgage satisfied the decree and then brought a suit for contribution against his co-mortgagors without having obtained possession of the mortgaged property.

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 132, 1904 A.W.N. 3=26 A. 227.

——Arts. 132, 147—Suit for contribution by one of several mortgagors—Charge, suit to enforce—Limitation.

A mortgagor who has paid out of his own pocket that portion of the mortgage money which his co-mortgagor was bound to pay ,acquires a charge on the mortgaged property, and his suit to enforce the same against the co-mortgagor is governed by Art. 132. He is not a mortgagee within the meaning of Art. 147. 12 A. 110 and (1904) A.W.N. 3, Foll. (1904) 1 A.L.J. 276.

13. Taxes on property.

——Art. 132—Taxes on property—Applicability.

Article applies to both charges created by agreement and by operation of law—House tax and general sanitary cess imposed in form of rate on land or building under Bombay District Municipal Act is charge by operation of law on building or land in respect of which it is levied—Claim to enforce payment of money due on account of aforesaid taxes is governed by Art. 132. 44 Bom.L.R. 849=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 21=204 Ind. Cas. 352.

——Art. 132—Taxes on property.

A suit under S. 177, U. P. Municipal Act to enforce charge for taxes comes within the scope of Art. 132 and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1939 All. 510=1939 A.W.R. 261.

——Art. 132—Taxes on property.

A suit to recover property tax under the Madras District Municipalities Act by enforcing the charge created in respect of such tax by S. 85 of the Act is governed by the period of limitation prescribed by S. 345 of the Act and not by Art. 132, Limitation Act. 41 L.W. 457=(1935) M.W.N. 379=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 378=160 Ind. Cas. 254.

——Art. 132—Taxes on property.

A suit for the recovery of a sum of money due on account of house-tax and water-tax under U. P. Municipality Act is a suit to enforce payment of money charged upon immoveable property within the meaning of Art. 132, Limitation Act. 42 Cal. 625, Rel. on. 123 Ind. Cas. 379=A.I.R. 1930 All. 530.

14. Third party paying mortgage.

——Art. 132—Third party paying mortgagee.

L purchased an oil-well subject to a mortgage in favour of B and right of pre-emption in favour of N. He made payments to the mortgagee B in part satisfaction of the mortgage-decree on the oil-well, such payments being necessary to save the oil-well,

Held, that L had a charge for the amounts paid, as against N who exercised his right of pre-emption as well as against persons claiming through N.

Held, further that Art. 132 applied. 79 Ind. Cas. 766=1 Rang. 714=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 204.

——Art. 132—Third party paying mortgage.

When one person pays off a debt which another is bound to pay, the ordinary relief that the Courts can give is a personal decree, against the defendant for money had and received as S. 69 of the Contract Act does not provide any higher remedy. If that remedy is barred owing to the plaintiff's delay, he cannot extend the period of limitation by asking for an enlarged relief by way of a charge upon the defendant's property. 74 Ind. Cas. 416=17 M.L.W. 254=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 392.

——Art. 132—Third party paying mortgage.

Where a third party has advanced money to the mortgagor to pay off the mortgage on the understanding that a further mortgage would be executed by the mortgagor, the third party has no legal title to the property, and no charge to enforce within the meaning of Art. 132. He is only entitled to a declaration of his right to have a mortgage executed in his favour. His suit is therefore governed by Art. 120. 60 Ind. Cas. 903=45 Bom.597=23 Bom.L.R. 84=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 182.

15. Usufructuary mortgage.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage—Mortgagee entitled but not bound to enter into possession of mortgaged property—Mortgagee permitting mortgagor to receive rent and profits—Cause of action.

Where a mortgagee is not bound by the terms of the mortgage to enter into possession of the mortgaged property and to apply the rents and profits thereof towards the payment of the debts though he has power to do so, the mere fact that the mortgagee permits the mortgagor to receive the rents and profits from a certain years does not give rise to a cause of action. No specific time having been fixed for the payment of the debt the money does not become due and the cause of action does not arise until demand for the payment of the mortgage debt is made by the mortgagee and is refused by the mortgagor. L.R. 57 I.A. 194=34 C.W.N. 854=53 M.L.J. 379=126 Ind. Cas. 417=54 Bom. 495=32 Bom.L.R. 1527=1930 A.L.J. 1338=52 C.L.J. 539=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 188 (P.C.).

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee who is dispossessed of the mortgaged property owing to sale for arrears of revenue afterwards sues for mortgage money or in the alternative for possession, his suit is governed by 12 years' rule of limitation and not by six years rule. 8 Pat. 569=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 209.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage—Simple mortgage usufructuary.

Where the mortgage is a combination of usufructuary with simple mortgage, a suit to recover mortgage money from lands brought after 12 years of the execution of the mortgage-deed is barred by Art. 132. A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 139, Rel. on. 120 Ind. Cas. 91=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 235.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage.

Where under a usufructuary mortgage the mortgagee was to retain possession of the land until repayment of the mortgage money and to appropriate the usufruct in lieu of interest and he continued in possession but was dispossessed by defendant mortgagor.

Held, that limitation for mortgagee's suit for possession or mortgage money began from the date of dispossession. 112 Ind. Cas. 655=8 Pat. 68=10 P.L.T. 41=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 582.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage.

Where a mortgagor covenanted to deliver possession over the mortgaged property, but the mortgagee did not obtain possession, a suit to recover money is governed by Art. 132. 95 Ind. Cas. 100=A.I.R. 1926 All. 551.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage—Dispossession on different dates.

The plaintiff took usufructuary mortgage knowing that some of the villages were already mortgaged. The villages, subject to the prior mortgage, whose possession he had never obtained were sold in execution of a decree of the first mortgagee. He however was content to have the remaining villages as his security. Subsequently he was dispossessed of the remaining villages upon which he depended for security and therefore instituted a suit for mortgage money.

Held, the suit was not barred by limitation. The plaintiff's cause of action arose only when he was dispossessed of the remaining villages which he has accepted as a sufficient security on his mortgage. 64 Ind. Cas. 768=44 All. 77=19 A.L.J. 827=A.I.R. 1922 All. 197.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage.

Where there is no covenant to pay, on the part of the mortgagor, the right of the mortgagee to sue under S. 68 (c) of the Transfer of Property Act arises when the mortgagor fails to deliver possession of property to the plaintiff. 41 Mad. 259 (F.B.), Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 723=13 M.L.W. 434=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 636.

——Art. 132—Usufructuary mortgage.

Where a usufructuary mortgage provides that if the mortgagee is dispossessed, he should be entitled to recover the amount advanced by him, and where the mortgagee does not obtain possession of the property, he is entitled to recover the mortgage-money with interest as stipulated in the bond. Such claim is not with respect to a personal covenant but is to enforce the charge upon the immoveable property under the covenants in the bond itself. Such a suit is governed by Art. 132 of the Limitation Act.

A claim for interest in such a suit is not a claim for damages and Art. 132 and not Art. 116 applies to such a claim. But where the claim is interest at enhanced rate covenanted for in case of dispossession, Art. 116 applies. 63 Ind. Cas. 297=2 P.L.T. 229=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 403.

16. Vendor and vendee.

——Art. 132—Starting point—When "the money, becomes due"—Vendor's lien under S. 55 (4) (b), T.P. Act—Enforcement of—Suit for—Starting point of limitation—Date of sale—"Contract to the contrary"—What is.

Under S. 55 (5) (b), unless there is a contract to the contrary, i.e., unless the seller has agreed to postpone the payment of the purchase-money or part of it either to himself or to a third party, to a future date the amount is payable to him or to such third party on the date of the sale and "becomes due" on that date, within the meaning of Art. 132, Limitation Act which applies to a suit to enforce the lien for unpaid purchase-money, and the statutory charge in respect of the unpaid purchase money must be enforced within 12 years from the date of the sale. When there is no time fixed is the sale-deed for the payment of the amount left with the vendee for payment to the creditor of the vendor, nor is any option given to the vendor to make the payment whenever it suits him, there is no contract to the contrary and the buyer under S. 55 (5) (b) is bound to pay the money to the creditor at the time and place of computing the sale. The money in such a case "becomes due" of the date of the sale, and a suit if not brought within 12 years of the date of the sale-deed, would be barred under Art. 132, Limitation Act. 27 Pat. 898.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee—Unpaid vendor's lien under S. 55, T.P. Act.

An unpaid vendor is given a lien on the property by S. 55, T.P. Act, and that lien continues while the vendor has an enforceable claim against his vendee in respect of the purchase consideration. Hence where in part payment of the purchase consideration the vendee executes a promissory note in favour of the vendor which is kept alive by part payments, a fresh period of limitation runs from the date of the last payment and the unpaid vendor can enforce his statutory lien under Art. 132, Limitation Act within 12 years from that date. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 28=1942 M.W.N. 631=55 L.W. 740=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 482=I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 405=205 Ind. Cas. 293.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee—Statutory charge under S. 55 (b), T.P. Act.

Where a part of purchase-money is left with vendee by the vendor at the time of the sale of his property to him, with a direction that the vendee should pay off a prior encumbrance, a statutory charge for the implied purchase money is created in favour of vendor under S. 55 (4), T.P. Act, and the charge can be enforced for the payment of the amount due if the suit is within 12 years the original sale-deed, for the charge is a statutory charge created by the document and time would begin to run for enforcement of such a charge from the date of that document. A.I.R. 1936 All. 870=1936 A.W.R. 1197=166 Ind. Cas. 908.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee.

Vendor can enforce his charge against property in the hands of vendee within 12 years of the date of sale-deed under Art. 132. A.I.R. 1934 All. 525=(1934) A.L.J. 682=3 A.W.R. 697=148 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee.

Vendor and purchaser—Direction to pay prior mortgage—Default—Suit against vendee—Suit regarding charge governed by Art. 132, and regarding personal claim by Art. 116. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 109=34 P.L.R. 156=14 L. 380=141 Ind. Cas. 435.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee.

Amount left by vendor with vendee for payment to previous creditors is a portion of the unpaid purchase-money and the suit to recover the same is governed by Art 132. 9 O.W.N. 1032=8 Luck. 185=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 33=141 Ind. Cas. 468.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee—Compensation to vendee.

Article 132 is restricted to cases in which payment or compensation is sought to be enforced out of the property on which it is charged, and where the plaintiff is only seeking a personal remedy. Thus where the vendee was to receive compensation from the vendor if on partition less area fell to the share of the vendor, a suit by the vendee is not governed by Art. 132. 72 Ind. Cas. 897=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 23.

——Art. 132—Vendor and vendee—Purchase-money.

Suit to enforce statutory charge for unpaid purchase-money should be brought within 12 years of the sale unless parties have by proper instrument clearly expressed their intention to extend the period. 82 Ind. Cas. 481=20 M.L.W. 484=1924 M.W.N. 75=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 854.

——Arts. 132, 111—Vendor and vendee—Vendor's lien—T.P. Act, S. 55.

The charge which a vendor obtains under S. 55, T.P. Act is different in its origin and nature from the vendor's lien given by English Courts of Equity to an unpaid vendor The article applicable to a suit to enforce the statutory lien is Art. 132 and not Art. 111 and the vendor has for such a suit 12 years from the date of sale. (1905) 29 M. 305.

[This view has been affrmed by the Legislature by the change in Art. 111 Ed.].

——Art. 132—Miscellaneous—C.P. Tenancy Act. S. 38.

Art 132 covers a suit by a first mortgagee against a second mortgagee for dues from the mortgagor, where the second mortgagee had foreclosed the mortgage and then sold it to the Maiguzar under S. 38, C.P. Tenancy Act. 12 N.L.R. 90=34 Ind. Cas. 704.

——Arts. 132 and 135—Miscellaneous—Foreclosure suits—Limitation , prior to Act 9 of 1877—Act 15 of 1871, Arts. 132 and 135.

Foreclosure suits were unknown before the Act 15 of 1877 and suits by a mortgaged for possession by foreclosure were treated either as an enforcement of a charge under Art. 132 or as suits for possession of the mortgaged property under Art. 135 of Act 9 of 1871. 16 O.C. 157=20 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Arts. 132, 147, Ss. 1, 31—Miscellaneous—Applicability of S. 31 to appeal pending before High Court on remand by Privy Council.

A case pending before the High Court on remand by the Privy Council by reason of the latter holding that Art. 147 only applied to English mortgages at the time of the passing of Act of 1908, falls within the benefit of S. 1 of Act, 9 of 1908. (1908) 32 M. 312=5 M.L.T. 287=4 Ind. Cas. 501. After remand by P.C. in 30 M. 426=34 I.A. 187, Supra.

——Art. 132—Miscellaneous—Special Bench, powers of.

A special Bench to which a question involving the reconsideration of a decision of a Full Bench was referred cannot consider the correctness or otherwise of a decision of a Full Bench on another question not referred and which was raised in the course of the argument before the Special Bench. In the present case which came from the Sambalpur District.

Held, that the Full Bench ruling in 14 C. 730 applied, and that the suit which was for the foreclosure of a mortgage by conditional sale was governed by Art. 132 and not by Art. 147, and having been instituted more than 12 years after the due date was barred by limitation. The Special Bench gave effect to the plea of limitation although it was never raised in either of the Courts below nor even in the memorandum of appeal to the High Court, and was taken for the first time before the Special Bench, the majority being of opinion that the point arose on the face of the plaint and there was no question of fact to be enquired into to enable the Court to dispose of it. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 959=6 C.L.J. 237=34 C. 941 (S.B.).

——Art. 133—Applicability.

Where the property transferred is claimed in the suit by a Mahant who alleges that it belongs to a religious institution, the rule of limitation governing the suit depends upon the nature of the property. The absence of finding as to whether the property belongs to the religious institution or is the private property of the alienor makes judgment of lower Court defective and case should be sent back for retrial. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 191.

——Art. 133—Pledge by trustee.

Where an executor pledges trust property with a Bank and the beneficiary sues the Bank for recovery thereof.

Held, that Art. 133 does not apply as it does not include a case of pledge or mortgage. 67 Ind. Cas. 761=24 Bom.L.R. 513=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 155.

1. Applicability.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

The sections have no retrospective application. 11 P.L.T. 403=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 455.

——Art. 134—Applicability—(Before amendment of 1929)—Transfer under which possession is not taken by transferee—Art. 134 does not apply. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 920=(1940) M.W.N. 907=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 409.

——Art. 134—Applicability—Simple mortgage executed by usufructuary mortgagee.

A simple mortgage executed by a usufructuary mortgagee on an assertion that he is the full owner of the property mortgaged, does not come within Art. 134 of the Limitation Act. Under this article, the transfer by the mortgagee must be a transfer with possession to the transferee, at least a transfer which would entitle the transferee to get possession from his vendor. 52 C.W.N. 443=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 461.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

" Transfer " in column three refers to transfer of possession and not merely to conveyance of title—Transfer by mortgagee—Possession not given on date of transfer—Suit for possession and redemption by vendee of original mortgagor—Art. 134 does not apply. (1938) M.W.N. 117=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 101=A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 394=180 Ind. Cas. 468.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

The transfer of property mortgaged contemplated by Art. 134 is something other than an express transfer of the original mortgage. Art. 134 contemplates a transfer by a mortgagee purporting to transfer a larger interest than that given by the mortgagee or at any rate an interest unencumbered by a mortgage. 117 Ind. Cas. 22=51 All. 367=1929 A.L.J. 566=56 I.A. 192=33 C.W.N. 761=31

Bom.L.R. 854=30 M.L.W. 76=50 C.L.J. 74=1929 M.W.N. 676=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 158 (P.C.).

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 34 applies even to transfers by trustee's and mortgagees and there is no distinction between transfers by these two classes. 118 Ind. Cas. 682=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 267.

——Art.134—Applicability—Successive transferees.

Art. 134 is limited to cases where the property mortgaged has been transferred by the mortgagee for a valuable consideration. That article applies only to cases where a transferee for value from a mortgagee, takes that which is de facto a mortgage, upon a representation made to him and in the full belief that it is not a mortgage but an absolute title. The article cannot protect persons who are not transferees from the mortgagees, but are transferees from persons other than the mortgagees or their heirs, e.g., transferees from mortgagee's transferees.

Any person who seeks the protection of Art. 134 must strictly bring his case within that article. 99 Ind. Cas. 280=A.I.R. 1927 All. 177.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

What has to be determined in a case where Art. 134 is relied on by one of the parties is whether any title adverse to that of the original mortgagor has been set up by the deed of transfer concerned and Art. 134 does not apply where the mortgagee only transfers his mortgagee right to a third person. 103 Ind. Cas. 255=A.I.R. 1927 All. 689.

——Art. 134—Applicability—"Transfer" implies transfer with possession.

"Transfer in Art. 134 implies that the transfer must be a transfer with possession, and unless the transferee has been in possession for twelve years a suit against him would not be barred under Art. 134. If the transferee did not obtain possession in pursuance of the transfer, Art. 134 would not apply at all. 40 Mad. 104 (F.B.), Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 922=1 Luck. 529=3 O.W.N. 693=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 594.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 134 controls both Art. 140 and 148. 92 Ind. Cas. 63=47 All. 803=23 A.L.J. 691=A.I.R. 1925 All. 707.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 134 applies only to cases where there is a transfer of possession, and the transferee can claim the benefit of the law of limitation only when he as enjoyed twelve years' possession. 23 Bom. 614; 29 All. 471, Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 1011=3 Rang. 367=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 377.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 134 is intended to protect the rights of persons in possession who might have obtained by transfer from the mortgage larger rights than what he possessed for valuable consideration and who remained in unqualified enjoyment for over 12 years. But the transfer must be with possession of followed by possession with its necessary incidents or ingredients. 18 A.L.J. 995=A.I.R. 1921 A. 389.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 134 has no effect where a mortgagee transfers his rights as such but has effect only where he purports to transfer proprietary rights. 2 O.L.J. 483=82 Ind. Cas. 314.

——Art. 134—Applicability—Transfer of mortgagee's right.

The article does not apply where the right of a mortgagee and not full ownership is transferred. 97 P.W.R. 1913=137 P.L.R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 122.

——Art. 134—Applicability.

Art. 134, only applies in cases where the purchaser is the purchaser of an absolute title and not merely of the mortgagee's right in the land. 16 M.L.J. 358=29 M 501=1 M.L.J. 290.

2. Assignment of mortgage.

——Arts. 134 and 148—Assignment of mortgage—Suit for redemption of mortgage.

The plaintiff's father mortgaged, in 1882 certain land with possession. The original mortgagees remortgaged the lands to defendants in 1883. The plaintiff sued to redeem his mortgage in 1916, when the defendants resisted on the ground that the plaintiff's claim against them was barred under Art. 134, Limitation Act; Held, that the suit was quite in time for it was governed by Art. 148. (Per Maclead, C.J.).—A suit to recover possession is not the same thing as a suit to redeem, the period of limitation for which it is sixty years under Art. 148, will not, defeated merely because his mortgagee transfers the mortgage to another person. 44 Bom. 614=22 Bom.L.R. 802=57 Ind. Cas. 568.

3. Burden of proof.

——Art. 134—Burden of proof—Initial onus of proof of time of knowledge of transfer.

Under Art. 134, the onus initially lies on the plaintiff to prove as to when he came to know of the transfer. He must establish that he had knowledge of the transfer within 12 years of the suit. If he shows this, the onus is shifted to the transferee to prove that the transfer was before 12 years of suit and that the plaintiff had knowledge of it. A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 39=200 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Art. 134—Burden of proof of date of knowledge of transfer.

The question whether notice, actual or constructive, on the part of the transferee that the transferor held only mortgagee rights in the property transferred, is wholly irrelevant for the purpose of Art. 134. The transferee is not bound to satisfy himself that his transferor's title is that of an absolute owner.

Where the right of a mortgagor to redeem the mortgaged property has been extinguished by Art. 134, the amendment introduced in 1929 will not revive the right.

In a suit governed by Art. 134, as it stood before 1929, the onus is on the plaintiff to allege and prove that he knew of the transfer only within 12 years of the suit. 9 O.W.N. 835=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 38=140 Ind. Cas. 182.

4. Date of transfer.

——Art. 134—Date of transfer.

Under the Art. 134 date of transfer is the date of the transfer of the property or title. If the transfer is by registered instrument, that date is the date of the instrument. 24 C.W.N. 690=58 Ind. Cas. 705.

5. Foreclosure decree.

——Art. 134—Foreclosure decree—Property purchased by defendant—Puisne mortgagee suing—Limitation.

A person who had purchased a property in a foreclosure decree obtained by a prior conditional mortgagee without the puisne mortgagee being impleaded as a party in that suit cannot in a suit by the latter against him plead Art. 134 as he is not a transferee from a mortgagee. 36 All. 327=12 A.L.J. 457=23 Ind. Cas. 559.

6. Good faith.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Question of bona fides or notice of transferee.

The meaning of Art. 134 is clear. No question of bona fides or notice of the transferee arises under it. It is the first principle of the interpretation of statutes that nothing extraneous should be considered in interpreting a statute when its meaning is unambiguous on the face of it. A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 39=200 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Arts. 134, 148—Good faith—Transferee not acting in good faith.

In the case of transfer by a mortgagee, only a transferee with a bona fide belief at the time of the conveyance can claim the protection of Art. 134, in other case the suit to redeem against him is governed by Art. 148. 32 P.L.R. 359=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 464=132 Ind. Cas. 184.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Bona fides of transferee, whether material.

Art. 134 is not restricted in its application to transferees in good faith and there is no distinction in this respect between transferees from trustees and transferees from mortgagees.

Art. 134 is, therefore, applicable to a suit to recover property mortgaged and afterwards transferred by the mortgagee for valuable consideration even if the transferee is not a bona fide purchaser. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 129=32 P.L.R. 17=130 Ind. Cas. 780.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Bona fides of transferee, whether material.

Per Costello, J.—In the case of a transfer of immovable property by a mortgagee for valuable consideration, the absence of bona fides on the part of the transferee is immaterial. Therefore, if the transferee has merely constructive notice of the defect of the transferor's title, he is not precluded from taking shelter behind the provisions of Art. 134.

Quaere.—Whether actual knowledge on the part of transferee is immaterial.

Per Suhrawardy, J.—Art. 134 applies both to transferees from trustees as from mortgagees provided the transfer was for valuable consideration and of absolute title and it is immaterial for the purpose of applying Art. 134, whether the transferee had notice or not. 58 C. 234=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 113=34 C.W.N. 961=130 Ind. Cas. 275.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Want of good faith.

A suit for redemption by a purchaser of the interest of a mortgagor against the transferee of the rights of the mortgagee with notice of the right of the mortgagee is not governed by Art. 134 since the article is designed for the protection of the transferee who has been made to believe by the mortgagee that he was transferrring the full proprietary title in the property. 32 Bom.L.R. 687=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 292.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article applicable.

Art. 134 would apply both to transferees from trustee as from mortgagees provided the transfer was for valuable consideration and of absolute title. The question of bona fide on the part of the transferee is immaterial.

Per Costello, J.—Whether actual knowledge on the part of the transferee is immaterial is perhaps a question on which there remains some little doubt. 34 C.W.N. 961=58 Cal. 234=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 113.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article not applicable.

The omission of the words "good faith" from Art. 134 does not entitle a person, who purchases with full knowledge that his vendor's title is merely that of the mortgagee, to the benefit of that article. 118 Ind. Cas. 659 (All.).

——Art. 134—Good faith.

The fact that there was no reason on record for the vendee to believe that his vendor had absolute title to the property which he could transfer, other than the bare assurance of the vendor that he had such title does not necessarily prove that he did not belive that his vendor had such title nor is it a sufficient reason for holding that he bargained for a transfer of a right that did not exist. 119 Ind. Cas. 154=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 417.

——Art. 134—Good faith.

Good faith is immaterial and Art. 134 applies even if the transferee known that the transferor was only a mortgagee. 118 Ind. Cas. 682=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 267.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article applicable.

In the Limitation Act of 1877 as in the Act of 1908 the expressions "bona fide" and "good faith" which found a place in the Acts of 1859 and 1871 have been deliberately deleted from the article. This indicates that the section applies not only to cases of purchase and transfer bona fide or in good faith but also to cases where there are transfers of property either by the trustee to by the mortgagee, whether bona fide or not. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1028.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Absolute transfer necessary.

Before Art. 134 can be held applicable to a case there must be a real transfer and that the transfer must be an absolute transfer of the property itself and not a mere assignment of the mortgage. Where, therefore, the transferee in spite the fact that he knew or had reason to believe that the transferor was only a mortgagee still stipulated for an absolute transfer of the land and obtained it, the mere fact that the transferee knew or had reason to believe that the transferor was merely a mortgagee or a limited owner cannot really affect th queston of the applicability of this article. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1028.

——Art. 134—Good faith.

A purchaser from a mortgagee with conditional sale who dos not enquire as to whether the mortgagee had acquired full proprietary rights by proceeding under Bengal Land Redemption and Foreclosure Regulation is not bona fide purchaser. 96 Ind. Cas. 886=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 676.

——Art. 134—Good faith.

Art. 134 applies only to bona fide purchasers and to other purchasers Art. 148 applies. 96 Ind. Cas. 886=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 676.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice.

Where both the transferor and the transferee knew that the transferor was unable to confer a higher right than that of a sub-mortgagee on the transferee, and neither the transferor nor the transferee honestly believed that the full ownership was being passed, the mere insertion of some words in the document, which might be construed as if they were the words of a person, capable of passing a title of full owner to his transferee, do not confer full ownership on the transferee. 34 M.L.J. 431, rel. on. The question whether the transferee from a mortgagee took an absolute interest or only a mortgage interest is question of intention. 93 Ind. Cas. 276=23 M.L.W. 63=1926 M.W.N. 152=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 311=51 M.L.J. 451.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article applicable.

Art. 134 applies even where a deed of transfer is a sale-deed and what was bargained by the transferee is also an absolute sale though he knew that the transfer has only a mortgagee's interest. A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 175, Foll. The omission of the words "in good faith" which appeared in the Corresponding articles of the Limitation Acts of 1859 and 1871 is not without any significance and the onus is not on a purchaser of the full interest from a mortgagee prove that he acted in good faith before he can plead limtation. 92 Ind. Cas. 342=49 Mad. 29=1925 M.W.N. 866=22, M.L.W. 885=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 81=49 M.L.J. 634.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article applicable.

A suit by mortgagor to recover property from a transferee of absolute title from mortgagee, is governed by Art. 134 and not by Art. 148. 44 Bom. 614, Not foll.

Under Art. 134 the transferee without notice and the transferee with notice are on the same footing. 47 Cal. 866 and A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 234, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 874=1 Luck. 423=29 O.C. 353=3 O.W.N. 674=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 547 (F.B.).

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article applicable.

Art. 134 is not restricted in its application to the purchaser in the good faith, but applies equally to an alienee from a trustee for value, even when he takes the property with full knowledge, that the alienor is acting in excess of his power. 127 P.R. 1908 (F.B.), Foll. 37 All. 660, Not foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 699 (Lah.).

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article not applicable.

Art. 134 does not apply to a suit by a mortgagor to recover possession of the mortgaged property from an alienee of the mortgagee who has taken with notice of the mortgage. Such a suit is governed by Art. 148. 91 Ind. Cas. 87=20 S.L.R. 277=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 145.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article inapplicable.

Art. 134 does not apply to a suit by a mortgagor to recover possession of the mortgaged property from an alienee of the mortgagee who had even constructive notice of the mortgage. Such a suit is governed by Art. 148 of the Act. 44 Bom. 614, Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 189=27 Bom.L.R. 661=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 417.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article not applicable.

Art. 134 applies only against a transferee with a bona fide belief at the time of the alienation while as a gainst other transferees a suit for redemption is governed by Art. 148. 9 Bom. 475 ; 15 Bom. 583 ; 45 Ind. Cas. 975 ; 68 Ind. Cas. 734, Not foll. 80 Ind. Cas. 321=6 L.L.J. 151=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 468.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee without notice.

A transfer by a mortgagee does not stand on the same footing as a transfer by a trustee, where the transfer is made by a trustee for a valuable consideration, the question of good faith becomes practically immaterial for, if the transferee has acquired the property from a trustee in good faith for a valuable consideration without having a notice of the trust, he acquires an immediate title to the property under S. 64 of the Indian Trusts Act ; but if he has not acted in good faith and paid valuable consideration, he acquires and has title after the lapse of the period necessary for extinguishing the right of the beneficiary to follow the trust property in his hands. Where the transferee purchases in good faith and for valuable consideration without having any notice that the transferor had no higher interest than that of a mortgagee, Article 134 protects him from a claim by the mortgagor unless the mortgagor enforces his rights as against such transferee within 12 years from the date of the transfer. 37 All. 660 and 23 O.C. 125, Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 737=26 O.C. 197=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 44.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Transferee with notice—Article not applicable.

Art. 134 could be availed of by a transferee from a mortgagee to resist the suit for possession of the property transferred to him but it has no where been laid down that the transfer itself conveyed a valid title to the transferee. If it can be shown that the transferee from a mortgagee knew that the title of his transferor was not free from doubt and such transferee took no steps whatever to clear up that doubt,he can hardly claim the benefit Art. 134. The omission of the words "in good faith from Art. 134 does not entitle a person who purchases with full knowledge that his vendor's title is merely that of mortgagee, to the benefit of that Article. 71 Ind. Cas. 577=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 219.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Purchaser without notice.

A person who purchases a right which he honestly believes to be a full proprietary right and which is so described in the deed of sale can claim the benefit of the the Article 134, Limitation Act, even though by the exercise of diligence he might have discovered that his transferor was only a mortgagee.

Burden of proving knowldge of the transferee lies on the person who asserts that a transaction was something different from what, on the face of it, it purports to be. 67 Ind. Cas. 572=9 O.L.J. 173=25 O.C. 115=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 7.

——Art. 134—Good faith.

The right of possession of the heirs of the mortgagor against the mortgagee and the vendee from the mortgagee is barred after 12 years from the date of transfer, and no question of bona fides need be enquired into under this article. 12 O.C. 84=2 Ind. Cas. 250.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Knowledge of limited interest.

Knowledge of the limited nature of the transferor's title will not disentitle the transferee from taking advantage of Art.134; but it will be an important piece of evidence in judging what interest the transferee intended to take. C.L.J. 546, Foll.40 Mad. 745=32 M.L.J. 24=40 Ind. Cas. 531.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Purchase of mortgagee's right with knowledge.

The omission of the words "in good faith " in the Limitation Act does not entitle a person, who purchases with full knowledge that his vendor's title is merely that of mortagage to the benefit of Art. 134 of the said Act. 37 All. 660=13 A.L.J. 945=30 Ind. Cas. 956.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Notice.

Under Art. 134, Limitation Act, the transferee without notice and the transferee with notice are on the same footing. The element of hardship in the case of a transferee without notice is minimised by the system of Registration. 47 Cal. 866=24 C.W.N. 690=58 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Alienation of debutter property.

Alienation of debutter property by a shebait though in excess of his powers falls under Art. 134 if the transferee was ignorant of the fact that the transferor had exceeded his powers. 9 Ind. Cas. 133 (Cal.).

——Art. 134—Good faith—Purchaser at a Court sale.

The purchaser need not prove that he purchased " without constructive notice " of the limited title of the vendor". (1917) M.W.N. 5=5 L.W. 250=38 Ind. Cas. 194.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Applicability of article.

Art. 134 of the Act applies only when the transferee from mortgagee obtains the transferee with the belief that the transferor had an absolute title to make the transfer. 1 L.W. 687=(1914) M.W.N. 735=26 Ind. Cas. 1.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Knowledge of limited interest.

If, at the time of purchase the purchaser well knew that he was not acquiring an absolute interest in the property as opposed to the interest of mortgagee he cannot be protected by Art. 134. 23 O.C. 125=7 O.L.J. 319=57 Ind. Cas. 497.

——Art. 134—Good faith—Material question.

The determine whether Art. 134, Limitation Act, applies the question of good faith is very material. If he has not acted in good faith and has paid valuable consideration he acquires a title after the lapse of the period under Art. 134. If the transferee takes the property in good faith without notice of the trust and for consideration no occasion for applying that article arises. The transfer by a possessiory mortgagee of the mortgaged property as it if were his own, stands however, on a different footing. If the transferee has notice that the transferor has no higher interest than that of the mortgagee, he cannot acquire a higher right than that which the transferor actually possessed within his knowledge or curtail the period of limitation provided by Art. 148. Where the transferee purchases in good faith and for a valuable consideration without notice that the transferor had no higher interest than that of a mortgagee, Art. 134 protect him. 6 O.L.J 384=53 Ind. Cas. 168.

7. Involuntary transfer.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, can only apply to a case of transfer, that is to say, case where title is conveyed by act of parties and not by reason of execution of a decree of Court. 52 C.W.N. 443=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 461.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Article 134 does not apply to auction-purchasers in execution of a decree for sale on simple mortgage. 102 Ind. Cas. 891=A.I.R. 1927 All. 619.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Art. 134, Limtation Act, cannot possibly apply to a transfer invitum or by operation of law or in execution. A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1028.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Art. 134 does not apply to auction-purchaser of mortgagor's interest, in a decree against mortgagee. 79 Ind. Cas. 466=19 S.L.R. 268=A.I.R. 1925 Sind. 167.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Where, pending a suit for a declaration of a certain property being subject to a trust, the same was sold in execution of a decree and the auction-purchaser entered into possession.

Held, that the adverse nature of the possession of the auction-purchaser is not affected by the subsequent declaration of trust made in the suit. 74 Ind. Cas. 492=18 M.L.W. 903=40 C.L.J. 20=2 Pat. ——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Art. 134 does not apply to execution sales. 74 Ind. Cas 630=50 Cal. 45=36 C.L.J. 35=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 1.

——Arts. 134, 148 and 144—Involuntary transfer—Mortgagor getting a redemption decree but not executing it—Mortgage by the mortgagee as owner—Sale in execution thereof—Effect on the mortgagor.

In 1861 the mortgagor usufructuarily mortgaged the property to the mortgagee and sued for redemption which was decreed upon payment of a certain amount but the mortgagee remained in possession as the property was not actually redeemed. In 1889 the mortgagee mortgaged it describing himself as absolute owner and the property was sold in execution of a decree on the latter mortgage and purchased by the decree-holder who sold it to be the defendant in 1904. In 1915 the heirs of the original mortgagor sued for redemption of the mortgage of 1851. Held, that Art. 144 and not Art. 148 or Art. 134 was applicable. 18 A.L.J. 995=A.I.R. 1921 A. 389.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

The Article does not apply to forced sales in execution of decree. 7 Ind. Cas. 570 (All.).

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer—Court sale.

The Article does not apply to a purchaser in court auction. 21 M.L.T. 62=5 L.W. 690=32 M.L.J. 85=40 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Art. 134—Involuntary sale—Purchaser by private treaty from auction-purchaser.

A purchaser by private treaty from an auction-purchaser of the rights of a mortgagee is entitled to the protection afforded by Art. 134 if he purchased in the bona fide belief that he was purchasing an absolute proprietary title and the limitation begins to run from the date of purchase by private treaty. 13 A.L.J. 877; Foll. A.I.R. 1930 All. 417=124 Ind. Cas. 408.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer — Purchaser from auction-purchaser—Benefit of Art. 134.

A purchaser by a private treaty from an auction purchaser of the rights of a mortgagee, is entitled to the protetion of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, only if he purchased in the bona fide belief that he was purchasing an absolute proprietary title. 13 A.L.J. 877=30 Ind. Cas. 564.

——Arts. 134, 144 and 148—Involuntary transfer—Alienee from transferee.

A suit for redemption against a purchaser from the motgagee by private sale or a purchaser by private agreement from a Court auction-purchaser whereby the entire interest is transferred is governed by Art. 134 and not by Arts. 144 or 148. (1917) M.W.N. 5=5 L. W. 250=38 Ind. Cas. 194.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer — Execution sale—Purchase of mortgage interest.

A purchaser at an auction sale is not entitled to the benefit of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act even though the sale purports to transfer not merely the mortgagee's rights which the judgment-debtor really possessed, but the entire proprietary rights. 22 O.C. 72=52 Ind. Cas. 159.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer—Redemption suit by subsequent mortgagee — Sale in execution of rent decree—Subsequent mortgagee not made party—Effect

Art. 134 should be construed strictly and it applies only where there has been a purchase from a person who is actually the mortgagee of the property. There must be a subsisting mortgage at the time of transfer and plea of limitation should be specifically alleged. A purchaser in execution of a mortgage decree does not become a mortgagee of the property within Art. 134. A sale of part of a mortgaged property in execution of the rent decree by the first mortgagee without joining the subsequent mortgagee to the suit is altogether void. 20 O.C. 164=39 Ind. Cas. 582.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Art. 134 applies to a case in which the mortgagee has himself voluntarily sold the property and not to a case of a forced sale in execution of a decree nor to a sale of the mortgagee's rights only. (1905) A.W.N. 56=2 A.L.J. 234.

——Art. 134—Involuntary transfer.

Where in execution of a money decree, A's immovable property, in which his real interest is that of a mortgagee, is sold, the auction-purchaser is not a purchaser from the mortgagee within the meaning of Art. 134, though the property was sold as the property of the judgment-debtor without any limitation of his interest therein. Art. 134 only applies to cases where the mortgagee sells voluntarily. 12 M. 316 overruled.

(2) Held by Shephard and Davies, JJ.—In the case of Court sales, the sale is complete, for purposes of limitation, at the date of purchase, and not at the date of its confirmation. 11 M. L. J. 323=25 M. 99 (F.B.).

8. Mortgage by conditional sale.

——Art. 134—Mortgage by conditional sale.

Where a vendor not in possession of a full title, e.g., a mortgagee under a mortgage by conditional sale, purports to convey an absolute title, the transaction constitutes a transfer within the meaning of Art. 134. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 666=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 754=1941 M.W.N. 532=53 M. L. W. 731=198 Ind. Cas. 309.

——Art. 134—Mortgage by conditional sale—Applicability of Article to.

Art. 134 is applicable to cases where the transferee from the mortgagee professedly takes an absolute title to and interest in the property transferred. The deed of conveyance and other evidence must prove this intention. This article is not applicable to cases of mortgage by conditional sale. 34 M.L.J. 431=7 L.W. 482=23 M. L. T. 291=(1918) M.W.N. 334=45 Ind. Cas. 975.

——Art. 134—Mortgage by conditional sale—Transfer by mortgagee—Redemption.

Where plaintiff knew of the sale by his mortgagee within three years of the suit and whether the mortgagee's purchaser had notice of the limited right of his vendor but the vendee from the purchaser had no such notice, held, that the plaintiff was entitled to redeem. Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, 1877, had not been materially altered by the substitution by the Act of 1908 of the words "transferred by" for the words "purchased from". 1 L.W. 687, foll. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 28=3 L.W. 19=32 Ind. Cas. 265.

——Art. 134—Mortgage by mortgagee purporting to be of a proprietary interest in the mortgaged property—Foreclosure.

A person who bona fide purchased from a mortgagee in possession what is represented to him and what he believes to be the absolute interest, is entitled to the protection afforded by Art. 134. The widow of a usufructuary mortgagee in possession made a gift of the mortgaged property to A. H. The donee mortgaged part of the property, the subject of this gift, to P N., purporting to mortgage the full proprietary interest in the property. P.N. took proceedings for foreclosure against A.H. as absolute owner and obtained foreclosure and possession of the property.

Held, on the finding that P.N. acted bona fide and had no reason to suppose that A.H. was not, as he represented himself to be, the full owner of the property mortgaged, that P.N. was entitled as against the representative of the original mortgagor to the protection afforded by Art. 134. 1907 A.W.N. 138=4 A.L.J. 375=29 A. 471.

9. Permanent lease of trust property.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease of trust property.

A permanent lease of properties set apart for a family religious trust cannot be considered as a transfer for consideration contemplated under Art. 134. Article 144 only applies to the case. A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 123 and A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 365, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 1002=21 M.L.W. 256=A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 796.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease — Trust property —Suit for recovery.

The word "transfer" in Art. 134 of the Limitation Act is wide enough to include a lease in perpetuity. 43 Cal. 34 and 40 M. 745, Foll. Under Art. 134 of the Limitation Act the period is to be reckoned from the date of the alienation. 99 P.R. 1919=51 Ind. Cas. 795.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease—Transfer by head of mutt—Knowledge.

A permanent lease at a fixed rent for all time by the head of a mutt is not binding on the successor in the absence of legal necessity even if the rent reserved was adequate at the time of the lease. The head of a mutt holds the property of the mutt as a trustee for the mutt though he has large administrative powers. The sole beneficiary is the mutt according to the general rule, 43 C. 707 (P.C.), Foll. The position of the head of the mutt enunciated in 27 M. 435 and 33 M. 265 is changed by 43 C. 707 (P.C.). 40 Mad. 745=32 M.L.J. 24 =40 Ind. Cas. 531.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease—If a transfer.

A suit by a shebait to recover debutter property granted by his predecessor in office on a permanent lease is governed by Art. 134 and must be brought within 12 years of the transfer. Shebaits are not successive life-tenants in the management of the endowment but from a continuous representation. Limitation runs against them continuously and not as against each shebait as and when he succeeds to the office. 27 C.L.J. 201=44 Ind. Cas. 567.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease—By shebait.

Art. 134 of the Limitation Act of 1877 only applies to the purchase of an absolute interest and not to the grant of a permanent lease. In the Act of 1908, the word "transferred" was deliberately inserted for the word "purchased" in view of the decision on the meaning of the word "purchased" in Art. 134 of Act of 1877. The grant of a permanent lease at a considerable annual rent is a transfer for valuable consideration. 43 Cal. 34= 19 C.W.N. 1082=29 Ind. Cas. 337.

——Art. 134—Permanent lease—Debutter land—Alienation by shebait—Suit by successor—Limitation.

A suit brought by a shebait of some family idols to recover possession of a mouzah found on the evidence to be a debutter and dedicated to the service of the idols, but of which plaintiffs predecessor had granted a permanent lease more than 12 years before suit, is not barred by Art. 134 of the Limitation Act. 36 Cal. 1003, P.C., Foll. 38 Cal. 526= 38 I.A. 76=15 C.W.N. 417=9 M.L.T. 448=8 A. L.J. 528=13 Bom. L.R. 421=14 C.L.J. 238= (1911) 2 M.W.N. 281=21 M.L.J. 1145=10 Ind. Cas. 683 (P.C.).

——Art. 134—Permanent lease — If within Article.

The operation of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act is controlled by S. 10 of the Act. The words "purchaser for a valuable consideration" in Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, 1877, mean that the ownership of the property sold has been absolutely transferred from the vendor to the purchaser in consideration of a price paid or secured by the purchaser to the vendor. The lessee under a mokarrari pattah or permanent lease is not a purchaser of an absolute title. 36 Cal. 1003=10 C.L.J. 284=6 A.L.J. 857 =11 Bom. L.R. 1234=19 M.L.J. 530=14 C.W.N. 1=36 I.A. 148=4 Ind. Cas. 449 (P.C.).

——Art. 134—Permanent lease—Adverse possession.

A mourasi lessee may claim the right by adverse possession if the lease constituted an alienation beyond the powers of the lessors. A mourasi lessee is purchaser within Art. 134 of the Act of 1877. 738=33 C. 511.

[Overruled by 36 I.A. 148=36 C. 1003 and by the new Act].

——Arts. 134 and 144—Permanent lease by trustee of debutter property—Suit to recover property leased. (1906) 3 C.L.J. 306=10 C.W.N. 738=33 C. 511. (Overruled by 36 I.A. 148=36 C. 1003 and by the new Act.)

10. Possession under transfer.

——Art. 134—Possession under transfer—Suit by trustee to recover trust property mortgaged by pedecessors and foreclosed by mortgagee—Muhammadan Law.

A suit by a succeeding trustee to recover possession of trust property, mortgaged by his predecessor and foreclosed by the mortgagee is governed by Art. 134 of the Limitation Act and is barred if brought more than 12 years from the date of the mortgage, from which time limitation began to run and not from the date when the defendant obtained possession of the property.

Per Richardson, J.—A suit to which Art. 134 applies must be a suit to recover possession. The plaintiff must be out of possession and the defendant in possession. The transfers chiefly contemplated are apparently transfers for value in excess of the limited powers of the trustee or mortgagee. Where the transfer is effected by a registered instrument that date is the date of the instrument. To construe the date of the transfer as the date on which the transfer is followed by possession is to import into the Article words which are not there. Where the possession of the trustee is that of a mere manager under a duly constituted trust it is immaterial whether the transferee takes with or without notice of the trust. Under Art. 134 of the Act the transferee without notice and the transferee with notice are on the same footing. Where the transferor is a mere manager he is not the ostensible owner. Nor has the transferee anything corresponding to the English "legal estate" to set over against the prior equity of the beneficial owner; the legal ownership and the prior equity are generally speaking both in the beneficiary. The element of hardship in the case of a transferee without notice is minimised by the system of registration. 47 Cal. 866=24 C.W.N. 690=58 Ind. Cas. 705.

——Art. 134 — Possession under transfer—Limitation—Starting point.

Art. 134 of the Limitation Act is inapplicable to a transfer from a trustee or mortgagee under which possession is not taken by the transferee.

Per Wallis, C.J. and Coutts Trotter, J.—Art. 134 is applicable to a transfer under which possession is not taken by the transferee at the time of the transfer and the starting point of limitation is the date of the transfer and not the date when possession is taken by the transferee. 40 Mad. 1040=33 M.L.J. 320=22 M.L.T. 236=(1917) M.W.N. 609 =6 L.W. 464=43 Ind. Cas. 31 (F.B.).

——Art. 134—Possession under transfer — Starting point of limitation.

If a person takes possession of the property as owner, he holds it adversely to all, from the date of his possession. 93 P.W.R. 1910=7 Ind. Cas. 708.

11. "Purchased."

——Art. 134—'Purchased.'

Where a mortgagee sub-mortgaged as if he was owner and the sub-mortgagee is in possession for over 12 years:

Held (Davies, J., dissenting) that he had purchased within Art. 134. 'Purchaser' includes 'mortgagee'. 24 M. 471 (F.B.).

12. Redemption by one mortgagor.

——Art. 134—Redemption by one mortgagor—Nature of possession — Limitation against co-mortgagors.

G, a Muhammadan, died leaving some property which was under mortgage. He left a son, a widow and a daughter. The son redeemed the entire property and remained in possession. He then mortgaged the property including his sister's share which was subsequently sold by auction. G's daughter's representative brought the suit for redemption:

Held, that the suit having been brought within 60 years of the date of the original mortgage it was not barred by limitation. The possession of the brother or his transferees in respect to the sister's share, was that of a mortgagee and unless there was set up an adverse title to her share the nature of the possession could not change. 7 A.L.J. 95=5 Ind. Cas. 123=32 A. 160.

13. Scope.

——Art. 134—Scope.

A suit for redemption of a usufructuary mortgage from the original mortgagee cannot be a suit within the meaning of Art. 134 of the Act. The article can be applicable only when the suit in question is being brought against the subsequent transferee from the original mortgagee. 90 Ind. Cas. 1011=3 Rang. 367 =A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 377.

——Art. 134—Scope — Purchaser from mortgagor's vendee.

Art. 134 protects a purchaser of the rights of the mortgagor's ostensible vendee from a claim by the mortgagor unless the claim is brought within 12 years from the date of the transfer. 79 Ind. Cas. 274 =26 O.C. 64=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 246.

——Arts. 134 and 148—Scope of.

Where the mortgagee sells the property to a stranger and then repurchases it his possession is not as representative of the repuchaser, but only as a mortgagee and is liable to be redeemed within 60 years. 22 Bom.L.R. 933=58 Ind. Cas. 39.

——Art. 134—Scope of.

The transferee from a trustee or mortgagee can take advantage of Art. 134 so long as the legal title and possession has been transferred to him. 21 M.L.T. 62=5 L.W. 690=32 M.L.J. 85=40 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Art. 134—Scope of — Redemption against donees from mortgagees—If comes under.

Art. 134 does not apply to a suit for redemption against donees from a mortgagee as it applies only to persons who are transferees for valuable consideration. 4 Bur. L.T. 265=13 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Art. 134—Scope of.

A purchaser of a decree for redemption subsequently redeeming the mortgaged property and taking possession, takes possession as mortgagee and cannot defeat the rights of the heirs of the mortgagor who were not parties to the first suit or to a subsequent mortgage of the same property in which the purchaser is also the purchaser of property at a sale in execution of the decree of the subsequent mortgage. 32 All. 160=7 A.L.J. 95=5 Ind. Cas. 123.

14. Starting point.

——Art. 134—Starting point.

The operation of the Articles begins only from the date on which the purchaser takes possession. 1930 M.W.N. 1148.

——Art. 134—Starting point.

Under Art. 134 there must be a valid transfer between the trasferor and the transferee though it might not be operative as against a trust or any other person, and the time runs only from the date of the transfer. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 298=126 Ind. Cas. 279.

——Art. 134—Starting point.

Article 134 ought to be applied, as stated in Limitation Act, from the date of transfer and not from the date of possession. 118 Ind. Cas. 659 (All.).

——Art. 134—Starting point.

Limitation under Art. 134 runs only from the date of the transfer by the trustee or mortgagee and not from the preliminary conveyance, bequest or mortgage. 70 Ind. Cas. 912=24 Bom. L. R. 720=46 Bom. 1009=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 211.

——Art. 134, S. 19—Starting point—Acknowledgment of mortgagee.

When within six years from the date of the original mortgage, the mortgage is acknowledged, a suit to redeem the original mortgage can be brought at any time within sixty years from the date of such acknowledgment. 6 Bom.L.R. 38.

15. Sub-mortgage.

——Art. 134—Sub-mortgage.

As against a sub-mortgagee, as such, the article of the Limitation Act which applies is Art. 148 and not Art. 134. 84 Ind. Cas. 984=2 Rang. 561=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 140.

——Art. 134—Sub-mortgage.

Art. 134 protects all transferees for value including mortgagees. A suit was brought to redeem a mortgage of 1854 from a mortgagee of a mortgage from a representative of the mortgagee, who claimed absolute title in himself. The suit being after 12 years from the date of the mortgage by the mortgagee, was barred by Art. 134. 36 Bom. 146=13 Bom.L.R. 1057=12 Ind. Cas. 737.

——Art. 134—Sub-mortgage — Applicability of article to.

The right of redemption against a Karnavan is not defeated though some members of the Tarwad set up a sub-mortgage in their favour by the Tarwad. Sub-mortgagees are not purchasers of the property but only of the mortgage interest and they cannot claim the benefit of Art. 134. 7 M.L.T. 187=5 Ind. Cas. 932.

16. Transfer of absolute right.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Article 134 does apply even where the mortgagee has ceased to be a mortgagee by getting the equity of redemption and has obtained possession not under the mortgage but under the purchase of the equity. It is immaterial that the mortgagee should have thought that he was absolute owner if in fact he was mortgagee. It is also immaterial whether he gets possession before, under or after the mortgage if in fact he purported to transfer the property to the transferee. 117 Ind. Cas. 22=51 All. 367=1929 A.L.J. 566=56 I.A. 192=33 C.W.N. 761=31 Bom. L.R. 854=30 M.L.W. 76=50 C.L.J. 74=1929 M.W.N. 676=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 158 (P.C.).

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

If a purchaser from a mortgagee honestly and after due care, believed that his transferor was the full owner, it may be presumed that what he intended to acquire was full ownership and therefore Art. 134 would govern his case. 34 M.L.J. 431, Rel. on. 115 Ind. Cas. 149=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 145.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

A transferee for value from a mortgagee, who has taken that which is de facto a mortgage, upon a representation made to him, and in the full belief that it is not a mortgage, but an absolute title, is entitled to the benefit of Art. 134, though the suit is a suit for redemption of the mortgage. 102 Ind. Cas. 135=A.I.R. 1927 All. 807.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Where a person believing that his vendor had an absolute interest in a certain property of which he was only the mortgagee, purchases the same for valuable consideration, the suit brought by the heirs of original mortgagor to redeem the property from such purchaser, if bought more than 12 years after the date of sale, will be barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 7, Foll. In such cases mere constructive notice without actual knowledge is not sufficient to deprive the purchaser of the benefit of Art. 134 and the purchaser who bought what purported to be and what he believed to be full proprietary right cannot be deprived of the benefit of Art. 134 by failure to make inquiries as to the true state of the title. 95 Ind. Cas. 143=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 492.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Article 134 presupposes a transfer with possession. The transferor-mortgagee must have been in possession of the mortgaged property at the time he made the transfer. But the possession which the transferor has at the time of the transfer need not necessarily be acquired under the mortgage originally made in his favour. Even if the mortgage was a simple mortgage and if the mortgagee subsequently gets possession of the mortgage property otherwise, as for example, by purchase in execution of a simple money-decree obtained by another creditor, the article will still appl if it is established that at the time the transfer is made the mortgagee was in possession no matter under what title. Article is designed for the protection of a transferee who has been led by a mortgagee to believe that he is acquiring not merely mortgagee rights but a full proprietary title. 92 Ind. Cas. 63=47 All. 803=23 A.L.J. 691=A. I.R. 1925 All. 707.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Where a mortagee sold the property to another as if he was the owner thereof but the transferee, notwithstanding the fact that he took the sale-deed, admitted the right of the mortgagor, dealt with him on the footing that he was the mortgagor landlord, acknowledged his title, paid him rent and constituted himself mortgagee-tenant and throughout assumed his possession to be that of a tenant,

Held, that the transferee could not rely on Art. 134 in an action against him by the mortgagor.

Held, also that a person claiming from the transferee would not be in a better position than himself. 87 Ind. Cas. 578=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 1127.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

A suit against purchasers from the mortgagee of the whole property and not merely the mortgagee's rights is covered by Art. 134 and the purchaser would be entitled to retain the property if no suit was brought to set aside the sale within twelve years of the transfer. 80 Ind. Cas. 763=26 Bom.L.R. 341=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 417.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Article 141 covers only those cases in which the cause of action is simply the death of the female. Where the cause of action includes a mortgage by the last male holder and a transfer by the mortgagee, Art. 134 will apply.

A Hindu mortgaged his properties in 1866 and thereafter died leaving daughters. The mortgagee sold the properties to the defendant in 1900 and gave him possession. The last surviving daughter died in 1906 and in 1914 her sons brought a suit for redemption and possession.

Held, that the suit was barred under Art. 134. 68 Ind. Cas. 734=44 Mad. 951=14 M.L.W. 116 =1921 M.W.N. 465=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 272=41 M.L.J. 163.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right—Subsequent knowledge of transferee immaterial.

Defendant No. 1 with whom plaintiff's predecessor-in-title mortgaged certain lands, sold as owner the land to defendant No. 2 who was a purchaser for value without notice and gave him possession. Defendant No. 2 came subsequently to know that defendant No. 1 was only a mortgagee and not the owner of the land. In plaintiff's suit, after 12 years of the transfer, for redemption:

Held, it was barred under Art. 134 of the Indian Limitation Act. 67 Ind. Cas. 308=24 Bom.L.R. 319=46 Bom. 903=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 234.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right.

Where a person mortgaged certain properties and the mortgagee treating it as his own, mortgaged it to a third person and that person purchases it in Court sale, in execution of his mortgage decree, and passes title to his vendee, and where a person who buys the equity of redemption from the original mortgagor, brings a suit for redempton against the vendee the suit is governed by Art. 134 or Art. 144 of the Limitation Act, and not by Art. 148. 61 Ind. Cas. 627=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 410.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right — Mortgagee with possession making simple mortgage—Suit by original mortgagor.

Where a mortgagee with possession makes a simple mortgage of the proprietary interest which he believes and professes or pretends to hold in the property and the mortgagee of such interest purchases it in execution of a decree obtained by him on the mortgage of the so-called proprietary interest of his mortgagor, Art. 134 does not apply to a suit by the original mortgagor for possession but Art. 144 applies to such suit. 61 Ind. Cas. 546=43 All. 164 =A.I.R. 1921 All. 389.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right—Mortgage of—Occupancy holding in Zemindari—Transfer by Zamindar—Limitation.

In a suit for the redemption of the mortgage of an occupancy holding made by the tenant to the Zamindar who sold his rights to the defendant.

Held, that the suit was not one to recover possession of a holding from which the plaintiff had been unlawfully dispossessed. Limitation of 12 years from the date of transfer to the defendant applied under Art. 134. 45 Ind. Cas. 549 (All.).

——Arts. 134 and 148—Transfer of absolute right —Mortgagee selling absolute interest in property —Redemption.

A mortgagor's right tc redeem subsists until it has been extinguished by act of parties or order of a Court. Act of parties means, act of parties to the transaction. No assertion of adverse title by a mortgagee during the currency of a mortgage can count for limitation as against the mortgagor whose right to redeem continues for a period of 60 years. Therefore if a mortgagee sells the mortgaged properties out and out to a stranger, the purchaser's possession is not adverse against the true owner, the mortgagor. A suit for redemption would lie under Art. 148. 29 Ind. Cas. 403 (All.).

——Art. 134—Transfer of Absolute right—Transferee re-conveying property to mortgagee — Redemption.

Where a mortgagee sells the property absolutely to a stranger who again reconveyed them to the mortgagee, held, that the mortgagee could not claim the benefit of Art. 134 but was liable to redemption. 22 Bom.L.R. 932=58 Ind. Cas. 39.

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right—Onus.

In a suit for redemption where the defendant pleads that he purchased not the mortgage interest but the property absolutely from the mortgagee and claims the benefit of Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, the onus is on the defendant to prove an absolute purchase affirmatively and not on the plaintiff, to prove that the mortgagee did not purport to transfer more than his mortgage interest. 15 Ind. 609 (Mad.).

——Art. 134—Transfer of absolute right — 'Purchased' meaning of.

'Purchased for valuable consideration' in Art. 134 of the Act of 1877 means that the ownership of the property sold has been absolutely transferred from the vendor to the purchaser in consideration of a price paid or secured by the purchaser to the vendor. (1910) M.W.N. 715=9 M. L. T. 87=8 Ind. Cas. 745.

——Art. 134—Transferee of absolute right.

A transferee, from an usufructuary mortgagee, who obtained possession without foreclosure and sold the property to the tansferee as absolute owner gets an absolute ownership at the end of 12 years. 12 O.C. 84=2 Ind. Cas. 250.

17. Trust property.

See also ART. 134—PERMANENT LEASE OF TRUST PROPERTY.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

Suit to recover possession of trust property after twelve years from execution of lease by person claiming through lessor is barred under Art. 134. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 228=190 Ind. Cas. 405.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Transfer by trustee —Enlargement of time.

If a trustee alienates property he honestly believes to be his own, but which, on a true construction of the deed of trust, belongs to the cestui que trust, time which the trustee allows to pass owing to this mistake counts when computing limitation. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 60=180 Ind. Cas. 462.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

Article 134 cannot be applied to cases of Hindu and Muhammadan religious endowments. The article applies not to sales but only to cases of mortgages. A. I.R. 1937 Lah. 9=39 P.L.R. 222=169 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

The principle laid down by the Privy Council in A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 123 applies to sales and is not confined to permanent leases and the rules enunciated in it apply to the endowments of Muhammadan religious institutions and to alienations made by sajjadanashins or mutawallis.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

Article 134 does not apply to a transfer from a trustee or mortgagee under which possession is not taken by the transferee. Further the article is not applicable to cases where the trustee has a beneficial interest in the trust. 64 M.L.J. 706=37 M.L.W. 737 =A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 533=(1933) M.W.N. 1215= 144 Ind. Cas. 541.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

Where property belonging to the idol is transferred and the rent reserved in favour of the idol of the temple is only eight annas, such rent is not valuable consideration within the meaning of Art. .34. A. I.R. 1930 Mad. 298=126 Ind. Cas. 279.

——Art. 134—Trust property — Adverse possession—Starting point.

In the case of lease of property belonging to a temple, the possession is adverse from the time when the lease is created if the lessee and his successor consistently and unanimously took their stand on the lease and prescribed under it.

If it is a case of out and out-transfer of property whether it is a voluntary sale or a sale in execution, the suit is barred if beyond 12 years from the date of transfer, it is immaterial whether Art. 134 or Art. 144 applies. In the case of temples it does not matter which article is applied; as Art. 144 is only a residuary article one would be right and proper in applying Art. 134, but if Art. 134 does not apply, Art. 144 would apply. In the case of lease of temple property the trustee having beneficial interest he may be still called a trustee and Art. 134 will apply, but if it is a case of a mutt Art. 134 cannot apply and there will certainly be no adverse possession from the date of the lease. Whether there is adverse possession after the death of the lessor would be a matter dependent on the particular facts of each case and no general observation can be laid down. 110 Ind. Cas. 894=A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 614.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Suit by trustee to set aside alienation by prior trustee.

Ordinarily trust property belonging to Hindu religious institutions is not vested in the so-called trustee who is not in the position of an express trustee as understood in English Law and, therefore, a suit by trustee to set aside alienation of trust property by previous trustee is not governed by Art. 134 and even if Art. 144 applies, the period of limitation runs not from the date of alienation but from the date of the accession of the plaintiff trustee to his office. 13 Mad. 277, Foll.: A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 243, Not foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 377=1925 M.W.N. 871=24 M.L.W. 329=A. I.R. 1926 Mad. 193=49 M.L.J. 640.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Suit by trustee to set aside alienation by prior trustee.

Article 134 does not apply to a suit by a Pujari or trustee of a temple as the trustee of temple properties, to recover possession of temple properties sold by a preceding Pujari. A.I.R. 1922 P. C. 123, Appl. 86 Ind. Cas. 231=21 M.L.W. 13=A. I.R. 1925 Mad. 822=48 M.L.J. 114.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

The endowments of a Hindu Math are not "conveyed in trust" nor is the head of the Math a "trustee" with regard to them, save as to any specific property proved to have vested in the head for a specific and definite object; and that consequently Art. 134 of the Limitation Act does not apply where the head of a Math has alienated the properties not proved to be subject to a specific trust. 44 Mad. 831, Foll. 67 Ind. Cas. 401=3 Pat. L. T. 352=1 Pat. 475=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 243.

——Art. 134—Trust property.

The limitation for a suit for possession of endowed property by a successor-in-office of a Mahant who alienated the endowed property runs from the date of the latter's death, as the Mahanth had a life-estate in the endowed properties and time did not begin to run until his death. 63 Ind. Cas. 231=3 Pat.L.T. 264=1922 P.H.C.C. 188=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 178.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Lease without necessity.

The language of S. 10 of the Limitation Act gives the clue to the meaning and the applicability of Art. 134. It clearly shows that the article refers to cases of specific trust, and relates to property "conveyed in trust." Neither under the Hindu Law nor in the Mahomedan system is any property "conveyed", to or vested in a shebait or mutwali, in the case of a dedication. Therefore alienation made by either cannot be treated as an alienation made by a trustee under S. 10. A lease without justification granted by the head of the mutt is valid for his life, and if adopted by his successor would endure during his term of office; but neither the original alienation nor the subsequent adoption would create a bar by adverse possession. Possession of the lessee becomes adverse to the successor only on his accession to the office. 65 Ind. Cas. 161=15 M.L.W. 78=3 Pat.L.T. 245=26 C.W.N. 537=20 A.L.J. 497=24 Bom.L.R. 629=30 M.L.T. 66=48 I.A. 302=44 Mad. 831=1921 M.W.N. 449=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 123=41 M.L.J. 346 (P.C.).

——Arts. 134 and 145—Trust property — Alienation by trustee—Lease—Pro tanto purchase—Suit by succeeding trustee. 5 Bom.L.R. 241=27 B. 373. Now to be considered overruled. 36 I.A. 148=36 C. 1003.

——Art. 134—Trust property — Transfer by trustee—Sale by mahant of property given to him in trust.

Where the property was not conveyed to the Mahant for his personal use but sold to him for the benefit of the mutt the transaction is a conveyance in trust within the meaning of the Art. 134. The head of a mutt is a trustee and not a life tenant or a corporation sole. Where the Mahant of a mutt sued to recover possession of certain lands sold by his predecessor more than twelve years after the sale the suit was barred under Art. 134. 37 M.L.J. 231 =52 Ind. Cas. 914.

——Art. 134—Trust property — Transfer by trustee.

A suit to recover property from the transferees for valuable consideration from express trustees is governed by Art. 134 of the Act. 20 Bom. L. R. 441=46 Ind. Cas. 19.

——Art. 134—Trust property — Transfer by trustee—Alienation for value by mahant—Suit to set aside by successor—Limitation.

Art. 134 of the Limitation Act, applies to a suit instituted by a succeeding mahant of an asthal for setting aside an alienation for valuable consideration made by the preceding mahant in respect of that property. Such a suit must be brought within 12 years from the date of the alienation. Each succeeding mahant does not get a fresh start of limitation in respect of such a suit on the ground of his not deriving his title from the previous mahants. 5 O.L.J. 38=45 Ind. Cas. 292.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Transfer by trustee—Mortgage from Trustee—Limitation for suit for recovery of endowed property.

A suit for possession of an endowed property against a mortgagee in possession of it from the trustees for over 12 years on the ground that the alienation was null and void is barred by limitation. 13 A.L.J. 612=29 Ind. Cas. 292.

——Arts. 134, 144 and 12—Trust property—Transfer by trustee—Right of successor of trustee.

Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—A Matadhipathi can set aside an alienation made by his predecessor within 12 years of his becoming Matadhipathi. 38 Mad. 356=25 M.L.J. 393=13 M.L.T. 498=(1913) M.W.N. 581=19 Ind. Cas. 694.

——Arts. 134, 144 and 124—Trust property — Transfer by trustee — Lease by a Surguro of a Makan—Limitation for possession.

An alienation by a Surguro of a Makan for the time being is valid only during his lifetime and his successor can recover the property alienated within 12 years of his death. In the case of a lease by such a person time would begin to run not from the commencement of the tenancy of the person claiming to hold as tenant but from the date when the claims of the parties become openly and undoubtedly adverse. 36 C. 1003, P. C.; 12 C. 480, P. C.; 34 B. 329, Rel. 37 Bom. 224=15 Bom. L. R. 266=19 Ind. Cas. 558.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Transfer by trustee—Shebait—Alienation — Suit to set aside—Limitation.

Each succeeding Shebait does not acquire a fresh start for the purpose of limitation to bring a suit to set aside a patni granted by a former shebait of a debutter property. 37 C. 885, Rel. 17 C. W. N. 873=16 C.L.J. 349=16 Ind. Cas. 927.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Debutter Mortgage —Adverse possession.

Amritomonohi lands in Orissa being inalienable, an usufructuary mortgagee of such lands may claim title by adverse possession after a period of twelve years. 3 Ind. Cas. 98 (Cal.).

——Art. 134—Trust property—Alienation— Land held on condition of service.

Where the trustees of an endowment property alienate the trust property by way of mortgage which culminates into a sale, a suit by the plaintiffs claiming either as beneficiaries or as mutawallis and impeaching the mortgage and the sale as wholly void, must be brought within twelve years of the alienation. Where the alienation of a trust property is made in violation of the trust, limitation would run against the trust from the date of the alienee's obtaining possession. Where the land, which is held free from a trust on condition of service, is alienated by the holders for the time being, the other members of their family cannot obtain the right to recover the property from the alienees, merely because they (the members) are entitled to perform the service in lieu of the alienors. 5 Bom.L.R. 303=27 B. 500.

——Art. 134—Trust property — Suit to recover possession of immoveable property on behalf of a mutt—Plaintiff succeeding to the trusteeship within 12 years before suit—Property sold by former trustee for valuable consideration.

A suit for possession for and on behalf of a mutt, of immoveable property conveyed in trust and afterwards purchased from the trustee for a valuable consideration is governed by Art. 134 and it is no answer to the bar that the plaintiff succeeded to the office of guru within 12 years from the institution of the suit.

Semble.—A charity is a trust and the article of the Limitation Act, which relates to a trust applies to charitable trusts also. 23 C. 536, 23 A. 482, 6 H. L.C. 180, foll. 4 Bom.L.R. 743=27 B. 363.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Permanent lease of, for consideration, by shebait—Suit to recover possession—Shebait, successor—Limitation.

If a property is valid debutter absolutely dedicated to one or more Thakurs (idols) it falls within the description of property conveyed or bequeathed in trust, and the shebait is a trustee within the meaning of Art. 134. A permanent lessee, e.g., patnidar who paid a bonus for his lease is a 'purchaser'. The expression 'purchaser for a valuable consideration' as used in Art. 134, is in contradistinction to a mere volunteer. A suit to recover possession of debutter property, permanently leased out to the defendant for valuable consideration by a shebait in excess of his powers and in violation of the trust is governed by Art. 134 and must be brought within 12 years of the date of the lease. 23 C. 536, foll. If such a suit is brought by the successor of the shebait who granted the lease, limitation as against him runs, not from the date of his appointment but from the date of the lease. Each succeeding shebait is not entitled to bring an action within 12 years as from the date of his appointment to the office, with a view to question the validity of an alienation made by any of his predecessors. Art. 134, is not restricted in its application to purchasers in good faith, but applies equally to alienees from a trustee for value, even when he takes the property with full knowledge that the alienor is acting in excess of his powers. In order to give the purchaser the benefit of Art. 134, the purchase need not be bona fide in the sense of being without notice of the restricted nature of the transferor's title, but the term 'purchaser' means a person who purchases that which is de facto, a trustee's or mortgagee's limited interest, upon the representation and in the belief that it is an absolute title. Unless the purchaser intends to acquire an absolute interest, that is, an interest in excess of what the transferor is competent to alienate, there is no occasion for the application of Art. 134 as there can be no acquisition by adverse possession of an absolute title, when nothing but a limited interest had been asserted. 2 C.L.J. 546.

——Arts. 134 and 144—Trust property, transfer of —'Purchaser', meaning of—Cause of action—Date of accrual.

When a person accepts a transfer of trust property with full knowledge that the alienation is beyond the powers of the transferor and does not believe that he is acquiring an absolute title, he cannot be regarded as purchaser within the meaning of Art. 134. A suit against such a transferee would be governed by Art. 144, and if it is brought by the successor of the trustee who made the alienation, limitation as against him would run from the date when he succeeded to the office. 2 C.L.J. 448.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

Art. 134 does not apply to Muslim waqfs because neither the sajjadanashin nor the mutawalli has any right in the property belonging to the waqf as the property is not vested in him but in God. 1933 O. W.N. 815=11 Luck. 297=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 425=156 Ind. Cas. 92.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

A suit to set aside alienation by a mutawalli is governed by Art. 144, and not by Art. 134. Time runs, in the case of sale, from the date of alienation. 57 B. 709=35 Bom.L.R. 252=148 Ind. Cas. 385. =A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 217.

——Arts. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

There is no difference between a permanent lease and a sale of wakf property and where a sale by the mutawalli of such property is valid during his lifetime, adverse possession against the mosque commences not from the date of sale but from the date of the death of the mutawalli. 35 M.L.W. 396=A. I.R. 1930 Mad. 582=58 M.L.J. 524.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

Article 134 does not apply to a wakf. 71 Ind. Cas, 646=17 M.L.W. 509=50 I.A. 84=32 M.L.T. 153 =25 Bom.L.R. 670=1923 M.W.N. 441=50 Cal. 329=38 C.L.J. 242=28 C.W.N. 121=A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 44=44 M.L.J. 624 (P.C.).

——Art. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

Art. 144 and not Art. 134 governs a suit to set aside an alienation by a Mutawali of ordinary waqf property gifted for general, pious or religious purposes. Section 10 controls Art. 134 of the Limitation Act of 1908. It clearly shows that the Article refers to cases of specific trust and relates to property "conveyed in trust". There is under Hindu and Muhammadan Law, a distinction between a specific trust and a trust for general, religious or charitable purposes. 65 Ind. Cas. 722=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 271.

——Art. 134—Trust property—Wakf.

Article 134 of the Limitation Act, applies to a suit to recover, on behalf of a trust properties alienated by a mutawalli and the period of limitation commences to run from the date of the alienation. 60 Ind. Cas. 689 (Cal.).

18. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 134—Miscellaneous — Transfer by mortgagee at first sight appearing to be absolute right —Mortgagor can show that it was really of mortgagee right.

Extraneous evidence which includes the knowledge of the parties can be taken into consideration in finding out what was the intention of the parties to the deed. It is admissible for the mortgagor to show that what purports at first sight to be a transfer of an absolute title by the mortgagee was, in the intention of the parties to the deed, only a transfer of mortgagee rights. The burden of proof in such a case lies upon the mortgagor; knowledge of the nature of the title of the transferor is a material piece of evidence for this purpose. Once the nature of the transaction has been determined, whether it was a transfer of absolute title or only an assignment of mortgagee rights, the question of good faith is immaterial. 1945 O.W.N. (C.C) 182=1945 A. W.R. (C.C.) 144=A.I.R. 1945 Oudh 258.

——Arts. 134 and 144—Miscellaneous—Mortgagor of share redeeming whole — If transferee from mortgage.

Art. 134 does not apply to a person, who being interested in part of the mortgage redeems the whole, he being only a charge holder and not a mortgagee.

Held, in the circumstances of the case that the suit was barred under Art. 144 whether the members were joint or separate. 38 All. 138=14 A. L. J. 41=34 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Arts. 134 and 144—Miscellaneous — Suit by trustee against co-trustee for joint possession.

A suit for joint possession of trust property by a trustee against a co-trustee, and an alienee of the trust property from the latter is governed by Art. 134 of the Limitation Act. 51 Ind. Cas. 755 (Lah.).

——Art. 134—Miscellaneous — Transfer from mortgagee, without notice.

Though under Art. 134, the possession derived under a mortgage could be perfected by twelve years adverse possession yet if a new right accrued before the 12 years were over to the ownership of the properties, the adverse possession is broken up. 39 Mad. 879=18 M.L.T. 424=(1915) M.W.N. 873=2 L.W. 989=31 Ind. Cas. 398.

——Art. 134—Miscellaneous—Suit for declaration.

A suit for declaration that a sale by a trustee is invalid is governed by Art. 120, as it is not a suit for recovery of possession. 1914 M.W.N. 581=26 M.L.J. 537=24 Ind. Cas. 369.

———Art. 134-A—Applicability.

Where an owner of property enters upon possession as mutawalli, his position becomes that of a trustee, and Art. 134-A of the Limitation Act becomes applicable to a suit to set aside a subsequent transfer of that property effected by him on the footing that he is a full owner, and the plaintiff has twelve years from the date of his knowledge of the transfer. A plaintiff who derives his title as beneficiary from the deed of wakf and not as the son of the last mutawalli has an independent right of suit. I.L.R. (1946) Lah. 300=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 117=231 Ind. Cas. 421.

——Arts. 134-A to 134-C—Applicability.

The former shebait of a deity mortgaged the property belonging to the deity in 1905 not in his capacity as shebait but as secular owner of the property which he purported to hold in niskar right. The mortgagee obtained decree on the mortgage and purchased the property himself in execution in 1908 and obtained possession. The decree was not against the shebait qua shebait but against him in his own personal capacity. The shebait died in 1932 and in 1934 the present shebait brought a suit for recovery of possession on declaration of title of the deity. The suit was decreed and possession was obtained. One H preferred a claim under O. 21, R. 100, C. P. C., which was allowed. Thereupon the shebait brought a suit under O. 21, R. 103, C. P. Code, for recovery of possession of the property on the allegation that it was a part of the debutter endowment belonging to the deity and H did not acquire any title to it by reason of his purchase at the sale held in execution of a decree obtained by a third party against the representatives of the mortgagee:

Held, that the purchase by the mortgagee in execution of his mortgage-decree was void altogether and the possession of the purchaser was adverse from the date of the sale. Arts. 134-A to 134-C which were introduced by the amending Act of 1929 had no application to the facts of the case. The suit was governed by Art. 144 and was barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 473=224 Ind. Cas. 398=50 Cal. W. N. 629.

——Art. 134-A—Applicability — Adverse possession—Endowed property—Alienation of — Dates from which adverse possession of alienee starts in cases of void and voidable transfer, stated—When transfers are void and voidable, explained.

When an endowed property is alienated by a manager, the possession of the alienee becomes adverse as soon as he is without any title to the property. If the transfer is void ab initio, the possession of the transferee is adverse from the very date of the transfer. If it is not void but it is only voidable at the instance of the succeeding manager, possession cannot be adverse until the office of the alienating mahant ceases.

The alienation is void ab initio when the manager acts in negation of the trust. In the first place, if the alienation is not merely of certain items of the endowed property, but of the endowment as a whole, the possession of the transferee is unlawful from the very beginning and limitation would run from the date of transfer. In the second place, even if the subject-matter of transfer is only particular item or items of endowed property, the question whether the transaction is void or voidable would depend upon the fact whether the shebait or the manager purported to transfer the same in his capacity as manager or in his own individual capacity as the secular owner of the property. A shebait or manager has the right to alienate portions of endowed property for purposes of legal necessity. He may exceed his powers but if the transfer of the deity's property is by the shebait or manager as such the transferee would at least acquire an interest which would be valid during the lifetime of the transferring mahant, but if the manager transfers the property belonging to the deity as his own property asserting his own personal interest in the same, his act itself is adverse to the trust. The transferee in such cases would acquire no title to the property, and his possession would be unlawful from the beginning. The same principle applies to involuntary transfers as well.

A sale of the endowed property in execution of a mortgage decree is governed by the same principle. If the mortgage is executed by the manager qua the manager on behalf of the deity the mortgage is not void altogether, and the purchaser at a mortgage sale would, at least, acquire an interest which will enure during the lifetime of the manager. If the manager asserts his own individual ownership in the property in denial of the rights of the deity and purports to act not as shebait but as proprietor of the endowed property the mortgagee would not acquire any interest by such transaction. The purchaser at the mortgage sale would be a trespasser out and out and his possession would be adverse from the date of his purchase. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 473=224 Ind. Cas. 398=50 Cal.W.N. 629.

——Arts. 134-A; 134-B and 144—(Amended by Act 1 of 1929)—Applicability—Trustee of a temple—Mortgage of certain items and sale of certain other items without authority and falsely representing the items to be his private property—Suit to declare them not binding on trust by successor in office—Limitation.

The appellant, a trustee of a temple, was appointed in 1933 displacing the 1st defendant. He sued in 1940, after seven years after coming into the office of trusteeship, for a declaration that a mortgage created by the 1st defendant or properties described as item 1 and 2 and the sale of item 3 as well as a sale in execution by Court of item 4 were not binding, on the trust and that the appellant was entitled to possession from the alienees. The item 1 and 2 were mortgaged in 1928, on the representation that they belonged to 1st defendant and item 3 again was sold in the same manner. The 4th item had been attached as the private property of the 1st defendant who allowed the sale in 1921, to proceed on that basis. On the question whether the suit against all these alienations was barred by limitation,

Held, (1) that since the alienation by sale of item 3 was made within 12 years of the death, resignation or removal of the transferor the principle of Art. 134-B of the amended Limitation Act applied, and the suit was not time barred.

(2) That so far as the mortgage of items 1 and 2 was concerned Art. 134-A applied and saved limitation.

(3) That in the case of item 4 the article governing would be Art. 144 of the Limitation Act, since the adverse possession did not start from the date of Court-sale but only from the date when the defendant ceased to hold office as trustee. Therefore the suit as regards that item also was not barred. I.L.R. (1947) M. 253=228 Ind. Cas. 470=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 3=59 M.L.W. 448=1946 M. W.N. 529=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 123.

——Art. 134-A—'Plaintiffs'—Meaning—Representative suit.

The word "plaintiff" in Col. 3 of Art. 134-A must, in the case of a representative suit brought on behalf of the general body of worshippers in a village, be understood to refer only to the plaintiffs eo nomine on record and not to every individual member of the community. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 81 =50 M.L.W. 658=(1939) M.W.N. 1137=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 920=189 Ind. Cas. 749.

——Art. 134-A—Suit by Hindu idol restraining transferee from former mahant from disturbing plaintiff's possession.

Where a Hindu idol institutes a suit against a transferee by a former mahant, restraining him from disturbing the plaintiff in its possession, what the plaintiff idol asks for is not only an injunction but setting aside the transfer, and the suit is, therefore, governed by Art. 134-A, Limitation Act. If, however, the transferee files a suit against the idol, no period of limitation would run against the idol in its defence. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 752=178 Ind. Cas. 806.

——Art. 134-A—Starting point.

Where an alienation by shebait is disputed by his successor, the limitation of 12 years runs from the death of the alienating shebait, but where the property is sold in execution of a mortgage-decree,, the limitation runs from the date of the sale. 62 C.L. J. 10=166 Ind. Cas. 859.

——Art. 134-A—Starting point — Mahant of idol granting permanent lease in 1909—Lessee obtaining decree for possession—Suit by successor of mahant in name of idol in 1935 for permanent injunction restraining lessee from dispossessing him—Suit, held governed by Art. 134-A—Initial onus of proving suit to be in time, held was on plaintiff—Injunction, held could only be granted after he gets transfer of 1909 set aside. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 470=40 P.L. R. 184=178 Ind. Cas. 787.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability—Execution sale.

The words "transferred by a previous manager for a valuable consideration" in Art. 134-B of the Limitation Act cannot be construed as covering an execution sale under Court process, and the word "transferor" in that article as extending to the judgment-debtor whose land is sold. 25 M. 99 and 50 C. 49, approved. 77 I.A. 42=29 Pat. 279=1950 A.L.J. 108=A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 44=1950 M. W.N. 170=1950 A.W.R. 230=52 Bom.L.R. 493 =86 C.L.J. 1=63 M.L.W. 110=54 C. W. N. 213=(1950) 1 M.L.J. 243 (P.C.).

——Art. 134-A—Applicability—Transfer of wakf property by manager describing it as his private property.

The fact that while selling wakf property the manager described it as his private property, would not take the case out of the purview of Art. 134-B of the Limitation Act. The relevant words are, "transfer by a previous manager" and to hold that if the manager while making the transfer denies that the property is wakf the article cannot apply, would be to read in the article words like, "manager as such" which do not exist there. A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 233.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability—Endowed property mortgaged by shebait not as shebait but as secular owner in 1905 and purchased in execution of mortgage-decree by mortgagee in 1908 and possession obtained—Suit for recovery of possession by present shebait 1940—Suit is governed by Art. 144 and not Arts. 134-A to 134-C. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 473=50 Cal.W.N. 629=224 Ind. Cas. 398.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability.

A suit for setting aside an invalid alienation by a shebait is barred under Art. 134-B after the lapse of twelve years from the death or removal of the alienating shebait. The right to bring such a suit does not revive on the death or removal of each succeeding shebait. 48 C.W.N. 172 (1)=A. I. R. 1944 Cal. 211=215 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability.

Art. 134-B bars right of shebait as well as of deity to recover possession of debattar property after twelve years from the date of the death or removal of the alienating shebait. 1944 Cal. 211=48 C. W. N. 172 (2)=215 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability.

Before the introduction of Art. 134-B in 1929, suit to set aside alienation by shebait was governed by Art. 144. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 211=48 C.W.N. 172 (2)=215 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability—Alienation by shebait.

Under Art. 134-B, the terminus a quo for a suit to set aside an alienation made by a shebait has been rigidly fixed and begins from the date of death or cessation of office of the alienating shebait and the Legislature has deliberately avoided all questions of adverse possession after the death of such shebait. Therefore, under Art. 134-B, a suit to set aside an invalid alienation by a shebait is barred after the lapse of twelve years from the death or removal of the alienating shebait. The right to bring such suit does not revive on the death or removal of each succeeding shebait. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 211=48 C.W. N. 172 (2)=215 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 134-B—Applicability.

A suit for a declaration that the mortgage of a shrotriem land is not binding on the plaintiff does not fall within the purview of Art. 134-B, Limitation Act. (1940) M.W.N. 404=51 M.L.W. 666 =A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 217.

——Art. 134-B—De facto manager, suit by.

Per Venkatarama Rao and Abdul Rahman, JJ. (In order of reference).—The manager contemplated in Art. 134-B is not necessarily a de jure manager.

It also includes a de facto manager. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 449=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 599=(1941) 1 M. L.J. 644=53 M.L.W. 569=1941 M.W.N. 408=199 Ind. Cas. 225 (F.B.).

——Art. 134-B—Endowed property — Possession by alienee—When adverse—Involuntary transfer —Principle applicable. See ADVERSE POSSESSION—ENDOWED PROPERTY. 50 C.W.N. 629 =A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 473.

——Arts. 134-B, 144—Hindu religious institution —Alienation by manager.

Per Full Bench(Abdul Rahman and Krishnaswami Ayyanger, JJ., dissenting).—Where a manager of a Hindu religious institution makes an alienation of the property of the institution for valuable consideration and the succeeding manager seeks to impeach that alienation by suit, Art. 134-B and not Art. 144, Lim. Act applies when there is an interval of time between the death, resignation or removal of the previous manager and the election or appointment of the subsequent manager.

Even if Art. 144 does apply, the date of the starting point of adverse possession in such a case is the date of death, resignation or removal of the previous manager who effected the alienation and not the date of the election or the appointment of his successor. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 449=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 599=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 644=53 M.L.W. 569= 1941 M.W.N. 408=199 Ind. Cas. 225 (F.B.).

——Art. 134-B—Retrospective effect.

General principle is that the law of limitation applicable to a suit is the law in force at the date of institution of suit—Debutter property alienated before amendment—Suit to recover possession—Right to sue accruing after amendment:

Held, that Art. 134-B applied. A. I. R. 1944 Cal. 211=48 C.W.N. 172 (2)=215 Ind. Cas. 201.

——Art. 134-B—Retrospective effect.

The law of limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the time of the institution of the suit or proceeding unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. Hence Art. 134-B has retrospective effect. 44 Bom.L.R. 146=A.I. R. 1942 Bom. 138=200 Ind. Cas. 889.

——Art. 134-B—Retrospective effect.

The general rule is that the law of limitation applicable to a suit or proceeding is the law in force at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding unless there is a distinct provision to the contrary. The atmost that can be said is that if any prescriptive rights had become vested under the old limitation period, the new Act will not affect such rights. Consequently, to a suit brought in 1930 by sajjadanashin of a Takia for recovery of possession of immovable property comprised in the wakf which had been transferred by trustee de son tort, the article applicable is Art. 134-B. A. I. R. 1937 Lah. 9 =39 P.L.R. 222=169 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Art. 134-B—Scope—Alienation of wakf property.

Succeeding de facto trustee can sue for possession of property alienated by his predecessor. Limitation would begin to run as soon as a new incumbent succeeds the person in charge of the religious institution who alienated the wakf property. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 9=39 P.L.R. 222=169 Ind. Cas. 732.

——Art. 134-B—Scope.

Mahant mortgaging debutter property—Mahant removed and new one appointed—Suit by new mahant for possession within 12 years from date of removal of previous mahant—Suit held within time—Sanction of Collector under Civil P.C., S. 92, not required. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 660=39 P.L.R. 355=172 Ind. Cas. 319.

——Art. 134-B—Starting point—'Removal' — Decree removing mahant from office—Execution pending appeal—Appeal subsequently dismissed—Suit to declare invalid alienation by mahant—Starting point of limitation—Adverse possession—Interruption. 226 Ind. Cas. 60=12 B.R. 656=24 Pat. 208=A. I. R. 1945 Pat. 326.

——Arts. 134-B, 134, S. 28—Transfer, if includes lease.

The 'transfer' referred to in Art. 134-B must be taken to be transfer whether before or after the amending Act came into force. The word "transfer" is wide enough to include a lease. The substitution of the word "transfer" in Art. 134 by the Act of 1908 in place of the word "purchase" for the purpose of bringing transfers other than sale within the operation of Art. 134 is a sufficient indication of the intention of the Legislature when they used the word "transfer" in Art. 134-B also.

If the transfer which comes under Art. 134-B is a transfer of full ownership, the right of the plaintiff to the property is extinguished after the lapse of the statutory period by operations of S. 28. The effect of the lapse of the statutory period under Art. 134 is to protect all transferees contemplated by that Article. It, therefore, follows that in cases of transfer by way of mortgage or a permanent lease which comes within Art. 134, the transferee acquires on the expiry of the period prescribed by that article, the rights of the mortgagee or permanent lessee as if the mortgage or permanent lease had been executed by the original owner. The right of the original owner becomes subject to the rights of the mortgagee or permanent lessee. There is no reason why the same principle should not apply when the right of the Manager of a Hindu or Muhamadan religious endowment to recover possession of endowed property against a transference of such property by the previous manager of the endowment is barred by Art. 134-B. After the lapse of the period prescribed by that article, the transfer, whether by way of mortgage or permanent lease, becomes binding on the endowment. I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 242=41 C.W.N. 693=A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 305=172 Ind. Cas. 315.

1. Alienation by widow.

——Art. 135—Alienation by widow—Reversioner's suit for declaration. See ART. 91. 32 C. 473.

2. Applicability.

——Art. 135—Applicability.

Mortgagee purchasing in Court auction—His possession obstructed by prior purchaser of equity of redemption—Mortgagee unaware of any such purchaser till obstruction—His suit against prior purchaser—Art. 114 and not Art. 135, held applied. A. I. R. 1943 Sind 242=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 315=211 Ind. Cas. 321.

——Arts. 135, 75, Ss. 19, 20 and 21—Applicability.

Two brothers M and S executing two mortgages in favour of A on January 25, 1919—M and S entitled to redeem on any date on payment of principal and interest—Mortgagee entitled to take possession on failure to pay annual interest for a year or more—No interest paid more than five years—On August 28, 1924, M, on behalf of S, mortgaging equity of redemption of previous mortgages to A for Rs. 72 due as interest on previous mortgages. No further interest paid subsequently—A suing on January 11, 1937 for possession of land on basis of original mortgages.

Held, that suit was governed by Art. 135 and was within time—That Ss. 19, 20 or 21 or Art. 75 did not apply. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 212=41 P.L.R. 529.

——Art. 135—Applicability.

Article 135 applies not only where the suit is filed against the mortgagor but also against a person deriving title from the mortgagor under a prior mortgage. 81 Ind. Cas. 581=11 O.L.J. 269=A. I.R. 1924 Oudh 374.

——Art. 135—Applicability — Suit between mortgagees.

Art. 135 has no application to a case when the mortgagor is merely a pro forma defendant and the real dispute is as to whether the puisne mortgagee is entitled to redeem and to take possession of the mortgaged property from the prior mortgagee. 143 P.L.R. 1911=224 P.W.R. 1911=10 Ind. Cas. 20.

3. Default clause in mortgage.

——Art. 135—Default clause in mortgage—Payment of interest after default.

Where a mortgagee is entitled to possession as per terms of the mortgage deed from the date of default of payment of interest, the cause of action for a suit for possession accrues as soon as the default takes place. Subsequent payment of interest cannot stop the period of limitation from running. 40 P.L.R. 48.

——Art. 135—Default clause in mortgage.

A person mortgaged his land with a stipulation that he would be in possession and be paying annual interest failing which the mortgagee would be entitled either to recover interest independently or to add it to the principal sum and obtain possession of land by suit,

Held, that although the mortgagee had option of choosing between two different remedies, as he could pursue them on the happening of a single event namely a given default, the mortgagor's right to possession had determined at the first default date and mortgagee's suit 12 years subsequent to default was barred. 121 Ind. Cas. 190=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 327.

——Art. 135—Default—Suit for possession.

A mortgage-deed contained a clause to the effect that the mortgage-money would be paid by annual instalments, and that on the happening of a default in the payment of any instalment the mortgagee would be entitled to take possession of the property. No instalment was paid. In a suit by the mortgagee for possession of the mortgaged property more than twelve years after the date of the first default, Held, that the suit was barred under Art. 135 of the Limitation Act. 63 Ind. Cas. 579 (Lah.).

——Art. 135—Default—Suit for possession—Limitation—Option to mortgagee—Effect of.

A mortgage deed provided that interest would be paid every six months and on default of such payment, the mortgagee was given the option of either to allow the interest to run on treating the unpaid interest as principal or to take a bond from the mortgagor for the amount of interest accused from up to date or to take possession of the mortgaged property or to sue for the sale of the mortgaged property in lieu of principal and interest then due or to wait till the expiry of the period fixed for the payment of the entire money.

Held, that the mortgagee's right to possession of the property could not be deemed to have determinmined within Art. 135 of the Limitation Act so long as he had not given intimation of any intention to adopt that remedy given by the mortgage. 6 O.L.J. 248=1 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 45=51 Ind. Cas. 985.

——Art. 135—Default—Suit for possession.

If a mortgagor agrees to pay the mortgage money by instalments and on failure to deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee a suit for possession by enforcement of the condition is governed by Art. 135 and must be brought within 12 years from the date of default. 30 P.L.R. 1909 =91 P.R. 1908=156 P.W.R. 1908=4 Ind. Cas. 921.

——Art. 135—Default — Suit for possession of mortgaged property on default by mortgagor in payment of instalment.

When the mortgagor agrees to pay the mortgage money by instalments and stipulates to deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee on default in the payment of instalments, a suit for possession by enforcement of the condition is governed by Art. 135 and must be brought within 12 years from the date of default, the suit not being one for recovery of debt. S. 23 of the Act is not applicable to the case, and payments made after the default do not extend the period of limitation. 30 P. L. R. 1909=91 P. R. 1908=4 Ind. Cas. 921.

4. Foreclosure suit.

——Arts. 135 and 144—Foreclosure suit—Limitation—Rights of assignee of mortgage.

If a mortgagee under a mortgage by conditional sale does not sue for foreclosure within 12 years from the date fixed for payment he is barred by limitation from suing for possession as owner. (35 P.R. 1899; 94 P.R. 1912 R.) An assignee of a mortgage can sue the mortgagor for possession though the assignor had erroneously thought that his right of foreclosure is taken away by the Punjab Alienation of Land Act, if it was an incident of the mortgage-transaction. 59 P.W.R. 1917=39 Ind. Cas. 242.

——Arts. 135 and 144—Foreclosure after 12 years —Suit for possession barred — Regulation 17 of 1806.

In a mortgage by conditional sale, the mortgagee was entitled to immediate possession but never took possession. He did not take foreclosure proceedings under Regulation 17 of 1806 within 12 years of the date fixed in the deed of mortgage for payment of mortgage money. After the expiry of 12 years he took foreclosure proceedings and then sued for possession as owner.

Held, the suit was barred by limitation either under Art. 135 or Art. 144 of the Limitation Act. 35 P.R. 1899, foll. 94 P.R. 1912=237 P.L.R. 1912 =178 P.W.R. 1912=15 Ind. Cas. 275.

5. Mortgage by conditional sale.

——Arts. 135 and 144—Mortgage by conditional sale—Suit for possession as full owner after expiry of year of grace—Limitation.

When under the terms of a mortgage deed, the mortgagee is entitled to possession of the mortgaged property without first taking foreclosure proceedings the right to the possession of the mortgagor determines on the date of default but when under the terms of the mortgage deed the mortgagee as such has no right to possession, the right to the possession of the mortgagor does not determine and his possession does not become adverse until foreclosure proceedings have been perfected and the year of grace has expired. 52 P.W.R. 1918=25 P.L.R. 1918=79 P.R. 1918=45 Ind. Cas. 563.

——Arts. 135; 144—Mortgage of 1861—Novation of contract—Adverse possession.

A mortgage which purported to be a usufructuary mortgage was executed on the 14th May; 1861; the ostensible consideration being a sum of Rs. 4,800; but, in fact, only Rs. 2,270 out of the nominal consideration were paid. On the 11th April, 1862, another deed was executed between the parties by which the mortgagee surrendered to the mortgagor a portion of the mortgaged property. At the same time the mortgagor entered into a covenant, the effect of which was to alter the transaction into a mortgage by conditional sale. In 1882 the mortgagees attempted to get possession of the remaining portion of the mortgaged property but their suit was dismissed as barred by limitation. In 1900 the mortgagees sued for foreclosure.

Held, that the suit was barred by limitation whether Art. 135 or Art. 144 Act 9 of 1871 or S. 1 (12) of Act 14 of 1859 prescribed the rule of limitation applicable. 26 A. 4=1903 A.W.N. 175.

6. Mortgagor in possession.

——Art. 135—Mortgagor not in possession.

There is no reason why a puisne mortgagee should be compelled to file a suit for possession within twelve years from the date of his mortgage, when the property is not in the possession of the mortgagor, but is in the possession of a third party or a prior mortgagee. 63 Ind. Cas. 679=4 L.L.J. 13=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 91.

7. Payment of interest.

——Art. 135—Payment of interest, whether acknowledgment of mortgagee's right to possession on default.

A mortgage deed contained a forfeiture clause whereby the mortgagee might obtain possession of the land in default of payment of the first or subsequent instalments of interest:

Held, that the payment of interest could not possibly be construed as an acknowledgment of the mortgagee's right to enforce his right to possession under the default clause; and that he had a right to secure possession as soon as the first default occurred. The fact that any subsequent default also gave him a right of possession was not insufficient to prevent time from running against him. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 993=156 Ind. Cas. 42.

8. Right to possession.

——Art. 135—Right to possession — Determination of.

The mortgagor's right to possession determines even when a mortgagee is in possession by his executing a usufructuary mortgage. 2 O.L.J. 488=8 O. C. 280=32 Ind. Cas. 341.

9. Starting point.

——Art. 135—Starting point under—Mortgagor's right to possession—When determines.

Under Art. 135 time begins to run against the mortgagee when the mortgagor's right to possession determines. The mortgagor's right to possession determines at the time when the terms of the mortgage entitle the mortgagee to take possession. But if the parties agreed expressly or impliedly that the mortgagor should continue in possession, it would determine when such agreement comes to an end. 1950 A.W.R. 284.

10. Submersion of land.

——Art. 135—Submersion of land.

In a suit brought more than 12 years after the mortgage by mortgagee for possession of mortgaged property which was submerged under water after the execution of the mortgage,

Held, that as the time began to run from the date of the mortgage, the subsequent submersion of the land under water cannot have the effect of stopping it and, therefore, the suit was barred. 92 Ind. Cas. 178=7 L.L.J. 509=26 P.L.R. 729=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 627.

11. Suit by mortgagee.

——Arts. 135 and 142—Suit by mortgagee—Limitation.

A suit by a mortgagee against the mortgagor or his succeessors in title is governed by Art. 135. 117 P.R. 1919=50 Ind. Cas. 762.

——Art. 135—Suit by mortgagee—Puisne Mortgagee—Suit for possession—Cause of action.

The time for a puisne mortgagee to sue for possession begins to run from the date of redeeming the prior mortgagee who was in possession of the property. He need not file a suit within 12 years from the date of his mortgage. 8 P.W.R. 1919= 48 Ind. Cas. 916.

——Arts. 135 and 118—Suit by mortgagee for possession—Nature of suit—Not for specific performance,

A mortgage deed contained recital that the mortgagors had received the mortgage money and put the mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged property. Though possession had not been given, the suit of the mortgagee for possession was not a suit for specific performance of a contract of mortgage but a suit for possession and was governed by Art. 135 and not by Art. 113. 7 Ind. Cas. 646 (All.).

——Art. 135—Suit by subsequent mortgagee against mortgagor for recovery of possession.

For the purpose of Art. 135, the mortgagor must either have actual possession or an unconditional right to recover possession from somebody who has in fact got it, and unless and until he has the right, time does not start to run.

Consequently, where possession is outstanding in a prior mortgage at the date of a subsequent mortgage, time for a suit for recovery of possession against the mortgagor runs against the subsequent mortgagee, not from the time of that mortgage but from the date when possession is recovered by the mortgagor from the prior mortgagee. 35 Bom.L.R. 956=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 439=57 B. 393=147 Ind. Cas. 919.

——Art. 136.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability.
2. Construction.
3. Decree—Interpretation.
4. Decree-holder.
5. Limitation.
6. Starting point.
7. Suit for partition
8. Transfer by successive vendors out of possession.

1. Applicability.

——Arts. 136 and 141—Applicability—Suit by purchaser from Hindu entitled to possession on death of Hindu female—Limitation—Starting p int.

Art. 141, Limitation Act, refers to a suit by a Hindu entitled to possession of immovablle property on the death of a Hindu female and strictly, therefore, that article would not cover the case of a purchaser from such a person. But by reason of Art. 136 of the Act he would be in precisely the same position as his vendor and time would begin to run against him, as it would against the vendor, from the date of the death of the Hindu female. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 506.

——Arts. 136 and 141—Applicability — Suit by assignee of reversioner to recover immoveable property. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 141. 8 C.W.N. 802.

——Arts. 136, 141 and 144—Applicabil'ty — Suit for possession of immoveable pr perty by reversioner's assignee — Vendor cut of po session at date of transfer.

Where a suit by an assignee from a Hindu reversioner, who was out possession at the date of assignment, was brought within 12 years from the death of the Hindu female, upon whose death the reversioner became entitled to the property,

Held, that Arts. 136 and 141 should be read together and the suit was not barred. 8 C.W.N. 535.

——Arts. 136 and 127—Applicability—Suit by purchaser from member of a joint Hindu family alleged to have been out of possession—Limitation.

"Possession" in Art. 136 includes such possession as a member of joint Hindu family is presumed to have in the family property until excluded from it. A suit by a purchaser of property from a member of joint Hindu family, who is alleged to have been out of possession at the time of sale comes under Art. 136 and not under Art. 127. 9 M.L.T. 397=(1911) 2 M. W. N. 175=9 Ind. Cas. 495.

——Arts. 136, 138 and 144—Applicability.

P purchased certain property from B who had purchased it in execution of a rent-decree against a judgment-debtor. The property was not in possession of the judgment-debtor at the time of its purchase by B but was in possession of one C as a statutory mortgagee under S. 171, Bengal Tenancy Act:

Held, that as P's vendor B was not entitled before the money deposited by C was realised either from the usufruct of the property or by payment made by the judgment-debtor, a suit by P for possession within 12 years from the date on which the money deposited by C was realised was not barred by time under Art. 136 or Art. 144. Art. 138 did not apply. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 790=67 C.L.J. 294= 180 Ind. Cas. 215.

——Art. 136—Applicability.

Possession contemplated by Art. 136 is not confined to actual occupation only; it also includes constructive possession. The expression "out of possession," as used in this article implies that some person is in possession adversely to the vendor, some person holding in a character incompatible with the idea that ownership remained vested in the vendor. Time does not begin to run under this article until the property is held in possession adverse to the vendor. In fact the question for decision in applying this article is, whether, if there had been no second sale, and the vendor had brought the suit for possession, he would have succeeded. If he would have succeeded, then the vendee must succeed in the suit brought by him. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 223=151 Ind. Cas. 357.

——Arts. 136 and 137—Applicability—Suit by representative in interest of auction-purchaser—Possession of Judgment-debtor at date of sale—Burden of proof.

A suit for recovery of possession by a representative in interest of an auction purchaser must be commenced within 12 years, from the date when the judgment-debtor is first entitled to possession, if he is out of possession, and 12 years from the date when the sale becomes absolute if he is in possession, and the burden of proving such possession is on the plaintiff. 19 C.L.J. 209=23 Ind. Cas. 811.

——Arts. 136 and 137—Applicability.

The articles do not apply to suit against vendors or judgment-debtors but apply to suit against third persons or trespassers. 5 Ind. Cas. 273 (All.).

——Art. 136—Applicability — Suit by vendee for possession. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 11. 4 Bom.L.R. 513=26 B. 730.

2. Construction.

——Art. 136—Construction.

The words "when the vendor is first entitled to possession" in the third column of Art. 136 relate to the beginning of dispossession referred to in the first column of Art. 136. 36 Bom.L.R. 284=58 B. 410=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 273=154 Ind. Cas. 824.

——Art. 136—Construction — 'Vendor', meaning of.

The expression "vendor" in Art. 136 means a vendor other than the auction-purchaser mentioned in Art. 23. 8 C.W.N. 476=31 C. 681 (F.B.).

——Art. 136—Construction.

The expression 'out of possession' in the first column of Art. 136 implies that some person is in possession adversely to the vendor. 36 Bom.L.R. 284=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 273=58 B. 410=154 Ind. Cas. 824.

——Art. 136—Construction—'Out of possession'—Meaning of.

The expression "out of possession" in Art. 136 of the Limitation Act implies that some person is in possession adversely to the vendor, some person holding in a character incompatible with the idea that the ownership remained vested in the vendor. The possession in Art. 136 of the Limitation Act includes such possession as a member of the joint family is presumed to have, in the family property, until excluded therefrom. 29 C.L.J. 241=51 Ind. Cas. 123.

3. Decree—Interpretation.

——Arts. 136, 144 and 148—Decree—Interpretation.

A decree directing that A should obtain possession on payment of a certain sum to B does not create any mortgage or charge and the suit for possession by C (a purchaser of A's interest) is governed by Art. 136 and not by Art. 144 or 148. 2 O.L.J. 500=32 Ind. Cas. 353.

4. Decree-holder.

——Arts. 136, 138 and 144—Decree-holder—Sale—Auction-purchaser—Possession through Court—Formal possession — Obstruction by judgment-debtor who has continued to be in possession — Limitation.

Arts. 136, 137 and 138 obviously refer to cases where no possession, formal or actual, has been obtained through Court. None of these articles contemplate the case of an auction-purchaser or his assigns who has obtained formal possession and is disturbed by the judgment-debtor or his heirs, who continue in actual possession. Such a case is governed by Art. 144. 25 B. 275=2 Bom.L.R. 1021.

5. Limitation.

——Art. 136—Limitation — Title of vendor not extinct at the time the vendee's suit is brought.

In Art. 136 the words in the third column relate to the beginning of the dispossession referred to in the first column and the meaning of the article is that if the vendor's title would be alive at the time the vendee's suit is brought supposing no sale had taken place, such suit is not barred; but on the other hand, when the vendor's possession had ceased more than twelve years before the vendee's suit, such a suit would be too late. In a suit, such as is contemplated by Art. 136, when the purchaser succeeds in showing that the exclusion of his vendor from possession took place within twelve years of the institution of the suit, he succeeds in showing that his suit is within time. 1901 A.W.N. 137=23 A. 442.

6. Starting point.

——Art. 136—Starting point.

Under Art. 136 a person in his capacity of a private purchaser has 12 years' limitation to sue for possession of immovable property sold to him by his vendor when out of possession at the date of sale, the starting point of limitation being the date when the vendor was first entitled to possession; and the mere circumstance that the purchaser takes five years to complete his title against his vendor cannot give him a fresh starting point of limitation as he can only sue in the right of his vendor. 2 N.L.R. 32, Rel. on. 116 Ind. Cas. 70=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 298.

7. Suit for partition.

——Arts. 136 and 144—Suit for partition—Exclusion for more than 12 years—Onus.

In a joint Hindu family consisting of father and sons one of the sons agreed in consideration of the assignment of certain immovable properties by the father for maintenance without powers of alienation, not to demand partition of the family properties but the son enjoyed the properties assigned to him only for one year and thereafter was driven out of the family by the father and was refused maintenance and a suit for partition was filed more than 12 years afterwards.

Held, that there was exclusion of the son from the joint family properties, and whether Art. 136 or 144 applied the plaintiff must show that he brought the suit within 12 years from date of exclusion. (1915) M.W.N. 29=26 Ind. Cas. 904.

8. Transfer by successive vendors out of possession.

——Art. 136—Transfers by successive vendors out of possession—'Vendor'—Meaning.

Where there have been transfers by successive vendors, all out of possession, the term 'vendor' includes the first in the series of vendors entitled to sue for possession. 24 Ind. Cas. 216 (Cal.).

——Art. 137—Applicability.

There is no warrant for limiting the application of Art. 137 to cases in which the Court sale has taken place without an antecedent attachment, as for instance, in execution of a mortgage-decree. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 456=49 M.L.W. 671=(1939) M.W.N. 488=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 802=I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 803=182 Ind. Cas. 999 (S.B.).

——Arts. 137, 144—Co-mortgagor redeeming property—Sale of entire property—Representative in interest of non-redeeming mortgagor suing for recovery of possession on payment of porportionate amount—Article applicable.

The land originally belonged to four persons. The share of one of them, i.e., L was bought by M at a Court auction. At that time, the land was under usufructuary mortgage in which all four original owners had joined. This mortgage was redeemed by the co-mortgagors other than those representing L's interest on a date after the Court-auction and on the same date they re-mortgaged a large proportion of the land to some other person. This mortgage they again redeemed. Finally these co-sharers relinquished their interest in the land by selling it to a third party. M brought his suit for recovery of possession of his share on payment of proportionate amount. The suit was brought more than 12 years after the redemption of the joint mortgage by L and his co-mortgagors but within 12 years of sale of the entire property to the third party. The defendants contended that the suit was barred by time and that Art. 137 applied:

Held, that the co-mortgagors on redeeming this land and coming into possession thereof did not hold adversely to the non-redeeming partner. They either held a charge or obtained the rights of the original mortgagee over the share belonging to M. Although they dealt with the land as they would their own and mortgaged it, redeemed it, and mortgaged again none of these acts would make their possession adverse to that of the plaintiff. It was not until they sold the whole of the land including the plaintiff's share that they exercised claims adverse to those of the plaintiff's: therefore the plaintiff must bring his suit within 12 years of the date of sale. Article applicable was Art. 144 and not Art. 137. A. I. R. 1938 Rang. 65=176 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Art. 137—Construction—"Entitled to possession".

The words "entitled to possession" in Art. 137, mean able to exercise his right of possession and the words "out of possession" imply that the judgment-debtor at the time of the sale was not in a position to exercise his right of possession. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 65=176 Ind. Cas. 923.

——Art. 137—Construction—'Out of possession'—'First entitled to possession'—Meaning of.

The words "out of possession" in Art. 137, Limitation Act, Column 1, imply that some person is in possession adversely to the judgment-debtor some person holding in a character incompatible with ownership remaining vested in the judgment-debtor.

The words "when the judgment-debtor is first entitled to possession" in the third column of the article, relate to the beginning of the dispossession referred to in the first column. If therefore, in case no sale had taken place, the judgment-debtor's suit would have been alive at the time when the auction-purchaser brings his suit, such suit will not be barred. If on the other hand, at the date of the auction-purchaser's suit the judgment-debtor was out of possession for 12 years and had thereby lost his right to recover possession, then the suit of the auction-purchaser would be barred. 48 Bom. L. R. 800=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 206.

——Art. 137—Mortgage decree.

Article 137 does not apply to purchasers at sale held in execution of mortgage-decrees. 99 Ind. Cas. 831=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 160=50 M.L.J. 183.

——Art. 137—Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Adverse possession against a mortgagee is generally ineffectual against the mortgagor, especially when it begins at a time when the mortgagee is in possession of the mortgaged property and asserts a title which is hostile not only to the mortgagee but which also assails the title of the mortgagor and the mortgagor allows 12 years to elapse, the title of the trespasser will become indefeasible not only against the mortgagee but also against the mortgagor. 107 Ind. Cas. 612=A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 147.

——Art. 137—Possession—Whether means actual or constructive.

Article 137 was framed precisely to deal with cases where a person was not in possession at the date of sale. The possession referred to in the article is actual possession, and not constructive or symbolical possession. Hence where a purchaser in execution could not obtain possession of the property on account of a subsisting lease by judgment-debtor, a suit by him for possession within 12 years of the expiry of the lease but after 12 years from the date of purchase is within time. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 413=56 M.L.W. 136=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 207 =1943 M.W.N. 147=203 Ind. Cas. 559.

——Art. 137—Rent decree—Purchaser in execution of.

Plaintiffs were owners of a miras tenure and under them was a darminars tenure held by the defendants. This under-tenure was sold in execution of a rent decree and purchased by a stranger who never obtained possession. In execution of a rent decree obtained against the stranger the under-tenure was again sold more than twelve years after and purchased by the plaintiffs who sued for possession, Held, Per Walmsley, J. (Woodroffe and Suhrawardhy, JJ., contra). Art. 137 applied to the case and the suit was barred.

Per Suhrawardy, J.—Article 140 or Art. 144 applied to the case.

Per Woodroffe, J.—None of the articles of the Limitation Act applied to the case but the suit was barred under S. 167 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. 26 C.W.N. 985=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 544.

——Arts. 137, 138 and 142—Scope of—Trespass and adverse possession.

Art. 138 of the Limitation Act applies only to the case of a judgment-debtor or those claiming through him who remain in his possession after purchase at an execution sale and not to a case where the defendant, bases his claim to title and possession as a trespasser relying upon adverse possession. Art. 137 has no application to the facts of a case where possession remained with predecessors-in-title of the plaintiff, up to the time symbolical possession was given to the plaintiff. In such a case, Art. 142 only applies. 4 Pat.L.J. 463=(1919) P.H.C.C. 298=51 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Art. 137—Symbolical possession—Delivery of, starting point.

Delivery of symbolical possession is operative against the judgment-debtor but is wholly ineffectual to affect the title or interrupt the actual possession of others. 22 C.L.J. 574=29 Ind. Cas. 84.

——Arts. 137, 136 and 144—Symbolical possession given—Suit for actual possession.

A suit for actual possession of property obtained in execution of a decree when symbolical possession was given, falls under Art. 144 and not Arts. 136 and 137. They do not apply to a case where Court has already given possession. 35 Ind. Cas. 87 (Pat.).

——Art. 137 — Symbolical possession—Time, when begins to run.

Where an auction-purchaser at a Court sale has obtained judicial possession, he or his assigns may sue the judgment-debtor for actual possession within 12 years from the date of obtaining such possession. When adverse possession is pleaded in a suit for possession during the limitation period the question of limitation becomes a question of title and the plaintiff, must first furnish proof of subsisting title at the date of the commencement of his suit before the defendant is required to establish his adverse possession. 17 Ind. Cas. 518 (All.).

——Art. 137—Suit for khas possession by mortgagee purchaser in execution of mortgage decree, against mortgagor and his tenants. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 144, 137 AND 142. 53 C.W.N. 899=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 92.

——Arts. 137 and 139—Suit for recovery of possession—Auction-purchaser.

Art. 137 applies to an auction-purchaser of the rights of a judgment-debtor not in possession at the date of the sale, while Art. 138 applies where he is in possession at the date of the sale. Under Art. 137 the suit must be brought within 12 years from the date when the judgment-debtor is first entitled to possession; in latter case the suit is in time if brought within 12 years from the date when the sale becomes absolute. 25 Bom. 275 Foll. 26 C.L.J. 339=22 C.W.N. 319=42 Ind. Cas. 709.

——Arts. 137, 142 and 144 — Suit for possession by auction-purchaser.

Property purchased in a suit in 1891 was in the posession of a trespasser and the plaintiff purchasser was given only formal possession under his purchase in 1897: the defendant obtained possession of the property under a decree but he did not derive his possession from or through the first trespasser but was himself a trespasser as regards the plaintiff. In 1908, the plaintiff sued defendant for possession. Held, that Art. 144 applied, that in 1897, when the defendant obtained possession, the plaintiff had a subsisting right, that the defendant could not add the period of adverse possession of the first trespasser to his possession, and that, therefore, the plaintiff's claim was in time. Art. 137 does not apply to a suit against the judgment-debtor or his representative. Art. 142 does not apply as the plaintiff was never in actual possession and was never dispossessed. 33 All. 224=7 A.L.J. 1184 =8 Ind. Cas. 1095.

——Arts. 137 and 138, 142—Vacant site—Suit for possession—Limitation.

Where a property was a bare site, plaintiff's symbolical possession is equivalent to actual possession and therefore the suit was prima facie governed by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act and not Art. 137 or 138: defendants could defeat the claim only by shewing adverse possession for more than twelve years. 106 P.L.R. 1918=76 P.R. 1918=156 P.W.R. 1918=47 Ind. Cas. 411.

4. C. P. Code.
5. Exclusion of time—If should be asked for in plaint.
6. Mortgage pending attachment.
7. Possession.
8. Scope.
9. Symbolical delivery of possession.

1. Adverse possession.

——Art. 138—Adverse possession.

The auction-purchaser must institute a suit for possession of the property purchased by him in execution of a decree within 12 yenrs from the date when the sale becomes absolute and any question of adverse possession in favour of person holding against him is irrelevant. 96 Ind. Cas. 173 (All.).

2. Applicability.

——Arts. 138 and 144—Applicability — Auction-purchaser at Court sale obtaining formal delivery —Subsequent suit for possession — Limitation — Time taken in proceedings to set aside sale—Exclusion of—S. 16.

Art. 144 of the Limitation Act and not Art. 138 applies to a suit for possession by an auction-purchaser of property at a Court sale after he has already obtained formal or symbolical delivery of possession. The suit is not by him as auction-purchaser, but as owner. S. 16 of the Limitation Act cannot apply so as to entitle him to deduct the period taken in proceedings for setting aside the sale. S. 16 can only be helpful to a plaintiff where he has not gone to the executing Court to obtain possession and the time from which limitation starts is the date when the sale becomes absolute. But when the purchaser at the execution sale has gone to the executing Court and obtained delivery of possession, whether formal or actual and is then dspossessed, a suit for recovery of possession by him is not a suit by him as auction-purchaser but an ordinary suit for possession by an owner on title. In such a case Art. 144 applies and there is no scope for invoking S. 16. 24 Pat. 717=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 202.

——Art. 138—Applicability — Auction-purchaser obtaining symbolical possession.

Art. 138 of the Limitation Act does not apply to the case of a plaintiff who has obtained possession, even though symbolical, in execution of his decree. A suit by such a plaintiff would not be by an auction-purchaser. It would be an ordinary suit for possession by the owner of the property whose title had become complete and effective by the confirmation of the sale and delivery of symbolical possession. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 50.

——Art. 138 and 95—Applicability.

Suit by mortgagee of tenure to set aside sale for arrears of rent—Allegation of fraud, held unnecessary.

Held, suit was for possession and Art. 138 applied and not Art. 95. 3 B.R. 296=A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 331=167 Ind. Cas. 481.

——Art. 138—Applicability.

P purchasing property from B who had purchased it in execution against judgment-debtor—Property at time of purchase in possession of statutory mortgagee under S. 171, Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885—Suit for possession by P—Art. 138 does not apply but Art. 136 or 144. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 790=67 C.L.J. 294=180 Ind. Cas. 215.

——Arts. 138 and 144—Applicability — Suit by auction-purchaser of mortgage decree against auction-purchaser of money-decree.

In pursuance of a mortgage decree passed in 1888 and affirmed in appeal in 1903, the mortgage property was purchased by B in 1912. The sale was confirmed in 1912 and B obtained writ of delivery of possession in 1915. But in attempting to take possession, he was resisted by R who had purchased the same property in 1890 in execution of a money-decree after the suit on the mortgage and the decree thereon. In 1927, within twelve years of his obtaining the writ of delivery of possession, B instituted a suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession against R:

Held, that the plaintiff being the purchaser in execution of the mortgage decree, had a superior title:

Held, also, that Art. 138 did not apply, the plaintiff having obtained a writ of delivery of possession from the executing Court, but Art. 144 governed the case, and the defendant's possession became adverse from the date of delivery of possession and not from the date of sale or date of confirmation of the sale. 13 P.L.T. 121=A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 145=11 Pat. 165=142 Ind. Cas. 246.

——Arts. 138 and 180—Applicability — Suit for possession by auction-purchaser—Limitation.

A suit by a purchaser in a Court auction for recovery of possession of the properties, after confirmation of the sale is governed by Art. 138 and not by Art. 180. 47 Ind. Cas. 844 (Pat.).

——Art. 138—Applicability.

The article applies to a suit by the auction-purchaser though the sale took place before the passing of the Act provided the plaintiff had time enough under that article after the passing of the Act to bring his suit. 38 Ind. Cas. 609 (Cal.).

——Art. 138—Applicability.

Obiter.—Word 'purchaser' is limited to stranger. A.I.R. 1936 Pesh. 85.

——Art. 138—Applicability.

Article 38 applies only to suits between the auction-purchaser and the judgment-debtor or his representative in interest. 35 All. 432=11 A.L.J. 642=18 Ind. Cas. 465.

——Art. 138—Applicability — 'Purchaser' includes decree-holder purchaser.

Per Jwala Prasad, J.—The Limitation Act is a law relating to procedure in pari materia with the Civil P.C. and both must be taken and construed together. Art. 138 applies to decree-holder purchasers as well as stranger-purchasers.

Per Wort, J.—Even a third party purchaser may be a party to the suit. 12 P.L.T. 423=A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 241=10 Pat. 670=138 Ind. Cas. 337. (F.B.).

——Art. 138—Applicability.

The expression "purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree" in Art. 138 does not cover the case of a judgment-creditor who purchases the property in execution of his own decree. 99 Ind. Cas. 677 =50 Mad. 403=25 M.L.W. 61=1927 M. W. N. 8=38 M.L.T. 156=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 288=52 M.L.J. 1.

——Arts. 138 and 180—Applicability — Suit for possession by decree-holder purchaser — Limitation.

The period of limitation prescribed by Art. 180 of the Limitation Act has reference to applications made under the C.P. Code (1908). The period for bringing a suit for possession by a decree-holder purchaser is that prescribed by Art. 138 of the Limitation Act. (1919) P.H.C.C. 354=4 P.L.J. 716=52 Ind. Cas. 711.

——Art. 138—Applicability to a purchaser who is a decree-holder.

(Per Stanley, C.J. and Knox, J.)—Art. 138 is a general provision applicable to strangers and cannot be held to apply to an application by a decree-holder purchaser. 31 All. 82=5 M.L.T. 185=6 A.L.J. 71=1 Ind. Cas. 416.

——Art. 138—Applicability — Suits against are not deriving title from judgment-debtor.

Article 138 of the Limitation Act applies to suits brought against the judgment-debtor or persons who have derived title from him. It has no application to a suit brought against a person who has not acquired a title from the judgment-debtor. 12 C.L.J. 378=6 Ind. Cas. 467.

——Art. 138—Applicability — Suit against judgment-debtor's co-tenant.

When a purchaser at Court sale sues the co-tenants of the judgment-debtor, Art. 138 will not apply for that Article applies only against judgment-debtor and persons claiming through him. The suit will be governed by Art. 144. 117 Ind. Cas. 593=33 C.W.N. 46=56 Cal. 616=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 250.

——Art. 138—Applicability — Suit against trespasser.

Article 138 has no application to suit for possession by a Court auction-purchaser against person who claims title independent of the judgment-debtor. The article applicable is Art. 144 and under Art. 144 a trespasser cannot tack on his possession with that of previous trespasser.

Where the defendant claims through the judgment-debtor, Art. 138 would apply but when symbolical possession has been given to the auction-purchaser it will be equivalent to actual possession against the defendant and thereupon Art. 142 will apply to the case. 70 Ind. Cas. 602=27 C.W.N. 259=36 C.L.J. 140=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 176.

——Art. 138—Applicability — Suit by vendee in execution sale — Judgment-debtor in possession. See 29 A. 463.

——Art. 138—"Auction-purchaser"—Assignee.

Art. 138 applies to the case of a person claiming through the auction purchaser, and not merely to the auction purchaser alone. 8 C.W.N. 476=31 C. 681 (F.B.).

3. Chota-Nagpur Tenancy Act.

——Art. 138—Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act—Bengal Rent Recovery Act, S. 11—Auction-purchaser, right of—Suit for possession.

If a purchaser under a sale held under Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act fails to obtain possession of the property under S. 11 of Bengal Rent Recovery Act, he can bring a suit in the Civil Court within 12 years of the sale under Art. 138, Sch. I, Limitation Act. 37 Ind. Cas. 955 (Pat.).

——Arts. 138 and 142—Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act—Suit to recover tenure by auction-purchaser from tenant. See BENGAL ACTS—CHOTA NAGPUR LANDLORD AND TENANT PROCEDURE ACT, S. 37. 7 C.L.J. 560=12 C.W.N. 617.

4. C. P. Code.

——Art. 138—C. P. Code—Scope and effect.

Article 138 must be read along with the provisions of the C. P. Code. 99 Ind. Cas. 677=50 Mad. 403=25 M.L.W. 61=1927 M.W.N. 8=38 M.L.T. 156=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 288=52 M.L.J. 1.

——Art. 138—C. P. Code, S. 47.

Decree-holder auction-purchaser can bring a suit for recovery of possession of the property purchased at the auction sale within twelve years of the sale as provided in Art. 138—Such a suit is not barred by S. 47, Civil P. Code. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 80=10 Pat. 670=136 Ind. Cas. 49.

——Art. 138—C. P. Code, S. 47 — Scope and effect of.

Article 138 of Limitation Act cannot override the provisions of S. 47 of C. P. Code. 95 Ind. Cas. 494 =53 Cal. 781=43 C.L.J. 345=30 C.W.N. 649 =A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 798 (F.B.).

——Art. 138—C. P. Code, S. 47—Scope and effect of.

Art. 138 of the Limitation Act, should be read with S. 47, C. P. Code. The one does not override the other. When the auction-purchaser is also a party to the suit, his claim for delivery of possession should be determined in the execution department. But when he is a third party, he can bring a suit for possession and such suit will be governed by Art. 138 of the Limitation Act. Where the execution is barred at the date of suit, the suit cannot be treated as a proceeding in execution. 35 Bom. 452=13 Bom.L.R. 661 =11 Ind. Cas. 987.

——Art. 138—C. P. Code, S. 47—Effect of.

The effect of Art. 138 is not to override the special provisions of S. 244, C. P. Code (O.C.) It may be applicable to a stranger-purchaser who is not entitled to prove under S. 244. Per Stanley, C. J. But see contra, p. 90. Per Majority of the Full Bench. 6 A.L.J. 71=1 Ind. Cas. 819=31 A. 82.

——Art. 138, C. P. Code, O. 21, Rr. 35, 36, 95 and 96—Judgment-debtor in possession — Formal possession with purchaser—Effect of.

Formal possession by the Court-auction purchaser at a Court-sale cannot prevent limitation running in favour of a judgment-debtor when the latter is in actual possession and the property is not in the possession of a tenant or any other person, entitled to occupy it. Symbolical possession is not equivalent to real possession and though the former kind is specified and recognised in O. 21, Rr. 35 and 36, it is not prescribed either by O. 21, R. 36 or 96. 25 B. 275; 25 B. 358, overruled. 36 Bom. 373=14 Bom. L. R. 115=14 Ind. Cas. 447.

5. Exclusion of time—If should be asked for in plaint.

——Arts. 138, 142, S. 14—Exclusion of time; if must be asked in point—C. P. Code, S. 50.

Art. 138 refers more to questions between the auction-purchaser and the judgment-debtor, and the present case fell under Art. 112. The period during which a suit was prosecuted bona fide in a court without jurisdiction was properly excluded in computing the period of limitation although the plaintiff in his plaint did not expressly ask for an extension of time on that ground. 12 C.W.N. 617=7 C.L.J. 560.

6. Mortgage pending attachment.

——Art. 138—Mortgage pending attachment.

Where property is usufructuarily mortgaged during pendency of an attachment and it is subsequently sold, the purchaser must sue for possession within 12 years from the date when he took symbolical possession. Nor could he ever sue for redemption. 97 Ind. Cas. 718=24 M.L.W. 263=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 966=51 M.L.J. 143.

7. Possession.

——Arts. 138, 142 and 144—Possession — Suit by auction-purchaser—Limitation.

A sale was confirmed by the Court on 30th May, 1898 and formal delivery of possession given on 15th May 1899, and the suit for possession by the purchaser was brought on 1st June 1910; Held, that the suit was brought under Art. 138. Where however plaintiff alleged that he obtained possession on 15th May, 1899 and lost it in July following. Art. 142 applies, and Art. 144 is not applicable in either case. 10 A.L.J. 13=15 Ind. Cas. 10.

——Art. 138—Possession of third persons.

Where the purchaser at an auction sale brought a suit for possession within twelve years from the date of sale against the defendant who was not the judgment-debtor but was in possession of the land from before the date of sale and for more than 12 years under an independent title held that Art. 138 did not save plaintiff's claim from limitation. 40 Ind. Cas. 662 (Cal.).

8. Scope.

——Art. 138—Scope.

A suit against judgment-debtor, or persons deriving title from him, is governed by Art. 138 but a suit against a person, who has not derived his title from the judgment-debtor, is not governed by this article. 12 C.L.J. 378=6 Ind. Cas. 467.

——Art. 138—Scope.

The case of a stranger auction-purchaser is not the only case within scope of Art. 138. 46 P.L.R. 357=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 402=217 Ind. Cas. 147= I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 252 (F.B.).

9. Symbolical delivery of possession.

——Art. 138 — Symbolical delivery of possession to purchaser—Effect — Transferee from judgment-debtor.

Symbolical delivery of possession amounts to a momentary interruption of the enjoyment, not only of the judgment-debtor, but also of person who claims through him. A suit for possession within twelve years after the symbolical possession is within time even against the person who claims through the judgment-debtor. 58 M.L.W. 408=(1945) 2 M. L. J. 205=1945 M.W.N. 509=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 484.

1. Adverse possession by tenant.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession by tenant — Building and occupation by tenants of buildings appurtenant to their holding not adverse so long as they are tenant. (1906) A.W.N. 243=3 A.L.J. 619. See also 3 A.L.J. 627.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession by tenant.

The possession of a tenant becomes adverse to his landlord if, after the determination of a lease for a certain period, he pays no rent or if there is no such assent on the part of the landlord to constitute a tenancy within the meaning of S. 116, T. P. Act; and a suit for ejectment must be brought within 12 years from the date of the determination of the tenancy. 1 A.L.J. 201.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession by tenant.

Possession of tenants of lands encroached upon by them could only commence to be adverse when a title adverse to the landlord is asserted or the landlord becomes aware of the encroachment. Acts indicative of possession must vary according to the nature of the property over which possession is exercised. 1865 B.L.R. Sup. Vol. 182=3 W.R. 73 followed: and in the case of birt or waste lands, the cutting of grass and grazing of cattle would be the ordinary acts by which possession would be asserted. 31 C. 397.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession by tenant.

A tenant cannot acquire a right by prescription against his landlord. 6 C.L.J. 218.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession by tenant when adverse to landlord—Tenant holding over—Possession, when will be adverse—Landlord's right to sue.

When there is a current lease, and the tenant is dispossessed by a third party, time does not commence to run against the landlord until the expiration of the lease. 9 C. 367 and 13 C. 101, Foll. But when the lease has expired and the tenant is holding over with the landlord's consent, and the possession of such third party is adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is possession adverse to the landlord, the latter is not precluded from determining the tenancy and suing the trespasser in ejectment, and his right to sue will be barred after twelve years of such possession. 10 C. W. N. 343.

——Art. 139—Adverse possession — Lease for definite period—Holding over—Starting point. 20 M.L.T. 131=8 M.L.T. 100=5 Ind. Cas. 907.

2. Applicability.

——Arts. 139 and 144—Applicability — Suit by landlord against ex-tenant on title for possession after termination of tenancy—Limitation.

A suit based upon title by a landlord against his ex-tenant for recovery of possession of the demised property after the expiration of the tenancy is governed by Art. 139 and not by Art. 144, of the Limitation Act. Art. 144 is a residuary article, and when there is a specific article dealing with a specific subject that article has to be applied in preference to a general and residuary article. If therefore, in a suit for possession, it is established that there was a relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties, and that that relationship has come to an end, then the only article that can apply, is Art. 139, and not Art. 144. 61 I. ——Art. 139—Applicability of Act to Agra Tenancy Act.

The provisions of the Limitation Act do not govern suits and applications provided for by the Agra Tenancy Act. Therefore, a suit for ejectment of a grove holder after the grove has ceased to exist is not governed by Art. 139, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1938 All. 213=(1938) A.L.J. 208=1938 R.D. 367 =1938 A.W.R. 145=175 Ind. Cas. 20.

——Art. 139—Applicability.

Art. 139 does not refer to adverse possession and does not, in any way, take away the effect of S. 116, Evidence Act.

(Interpretation and scope of the Article indicated). A.I.R. 1945 Pesh. 16=220 Ind. Cas. 227.

——Arts. 139, 142 and 144—Applicability.

House leased by P to B, father of D, in 1893—Rent-note executed by B agreeing to pay monthly rent regularly—P to get house vacated in case of default of rent for three months—B dying in 1910—Rent not paid by any one since 1900—Suit by P against D in 1931 for possession and mesne profits—Rent-note, held created tenancy for indefinite period and it reduced itself into tenancy-at-will on three months' arrears—Tenancy ended on death of B as he was tenant-at-will and D's possession was adverse from 1910—

Suit was time-barred whichever of Arts. 139, 142 or 144 applied—Possession of D was not permissive and D not estopped under S. 116, Evidence Act. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 269=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 506=1936 N. L. J. 317=182 Ind. Cas. 581.

——Art. 139—Applicability.

Lease for a period of less than one year cannot be said to be lease for definite period and the suit for ejectment in such a case was not covered by Art. 139—Tenancy held was monthly lease determinable on 15 days' notice. 45 P.L.R. 454.

——Arts. 139, 144 and 146—Applicability.

The khoti land in dispute was alienated by the tenant in 1887 without the consent of the khot. In 1909, the plaintiff became the managing khot and accepted "dhara" and "jaida" from the alienee. The alienee was shown as a tenant in 1916 in the Record of Rights. In 1927, the plaintiff brought a suit impeaching the alienation:

Held. that the suit was barred by limitation Art. 139 did not apply, for, the relation between the khot and his tenant was not strictly that of a landlord and tenant, since the khot is not a landlord, but in theory, at any rate, a farmer of the land revenue. The starting point of limitation in this case, if Art. 143 applied would be the date of the sale in 1887, and that would make the suit long time barred. Under Art. 144, time would begin to run from the point when the possession of the defendants became adverse to the plaintiff, when the latter was fixed with the knowledge of alienation about the year 1909, and considered in this way also, the suit would be barred. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 98=36 Bom. L.R. 1253=156 Ind. Cas. 339.

——Art. 139 — Applicability — Lessees claiming permanent right.

The mukarrari istimrari granted to the original Mukarraridars conveyed only a life-interest. But it was claimed by their representatives that the interest which the mukarrari istimrari lease conveyed was of a permanent character. Such interest was expressly asserted in the sale-deed executed by the mukarraridars at the time. The defendants expressly claimed throughout to hold under the sale-deed as permanent mukarraridars.

Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 139, but by Art. 144 as the defendants had made a definite assertion of an adverse right more than twelve years before the suit. 84 Ind. Cas. 586=1924 P.H.C.C. 313=6 P.L.T. 12=4 Pat. 139=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 216.

——Art. 139—Applicability — Vendor holding over—Purchaser from — Suit against.

Where the plaintiff purchased half of a field but the vendor remained in possession under a rent-note for one year executed on the same day, the vendor held over and afterwards sold the entire field to defendant and gave up possession in his favour, a suit by plaintiff for possession of the moiety sold to him is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 139. 60 Ind Cas. 589=23 Bom.L.R. 60=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 462.

3. Cause of action.

——Art. 139—Cause of action.

Under Art. 139 the cause of action in cases in which the Malabar Tenants Improvement Act applies, does not arise till the value of Improvements is paid to the tenant. (1916) 2 M.W.N. 324=38 Ind. Cas. 651.

——Art. 139—Claim for more than twelve years by tenants from year to year of permanent occupancy rights to knowledge of landlord—Determination of lease.

A person who has lawfully come into possession of land as tenant from year to year or for a term of years, or as mortgagee, cannot by setting up; during the continuance of such relation, any title adverse to that of the landlord, or mortgagor, as the case may be, inconsistently with the real relation between them and thus, however notoriously and to the knowledge of the other party, acquire by the operation of the law of limitation title as owner, or any other title inconsistent with that under which he was let into possession. In the case of a mortgage, the title of the mortgagor will be extinguished only at the expiration of the period prescribed for the redemption of the mortgage, and in the case of a lease, the landlord's title can be extinguisehd only at the expiration of period prescribed by Art. 139. The onus of proving that a person derived a permanent right of occupancy from the proprietors is on the person setting up such right. If, after the determination of the tenancy, the tenant remains in possession as trespasser for the statutory period, he will, by prescription, acquire a right as owner or such limited estate as he might prescribe for. A person coming into possession of land under a lease which is invalid or void as against the person seeking to eject him is really a trespasser, and, as such, after the expiration of the period prescribed by Art. 145, acquires by prescription the limited right under the lease. 12 M.L.J. 119=25 M. 507.

4. Denial of title.

——Art. 139—Denial of title—Time runs only from termination of tenancy.

Where a tenant repudiates the title of the landlord; he is liable to eviction at the latter's option; but till the landlord indicates that he intends to exercise the option, the tenancy subsists, and time runs, under Art. 139, against the landlord from the time the tenancy is determined. This principle applies to tenancies from year to year. 24 M. 246=10 M.L.J. 415. Also 26 M. 488.

5. Ejectment.

——Art. 139—Ejectment—Suit.

After the expiration of a lease for a fixed term, time for a suit for enjectment begins to run against the lessor under Art. 139, to extend time, the lessor must prove payment of rent or admission of his title by the lessee. 5 Ind. Cas. 350 (All.).

——Art. 139—Ejectment—Title.

The plaintiff, with whose grandfather, the ancestors of the defendants had mortgaged a house sued for ejectment and recovery of rent. The defendants failing to establish title for more than 12 years, the suit was held to be within time. 57 Ind. Cas. 269 (Lah.).

6. Encroachment and erection of buildings.

——Art. 139—Encroachment and erection of buildings.

Encroachment and putting up of new buildings by tenants more than 12 years before suit—Plaintiff is not entitled to claim demolition thereof but only to a declaration of his rights of property in the sites. 66 Ind. Cas. 603=A.I.R. 1922 All. 210.

7. Forfeiture.

——Arts. 139 and 143 — Forfeiture — Suit for ejectment—Limitation.

A lease granted for the reclamation of certain jungle lands provided that the lessee should hold the lands rent free for six years and that in the beginning of the seventh year he should cause the lands to be measured and a settlement of rent made in respect of the reclaimed lands—failing which the landlord would be entitled to possession. Held, that a suit by the lessor for ejectment on the ground of the lessee's failure to comply with the above-mentioned provision in the lease was governed by Art. 143 and not by Art. 139. 11 C.W.N. 661.

——Art. 139—Forfeiture beyond 12 years.

Forfeiture before 12 years of suit is ineffectual as the basis of a suit. 7 M.L.T. 188=5 Ind. Cas. 933

8. Grant for maintenance.

——Arts. 139 and 140—Grant for maintenance—Suit for recovery of property after death of grantee.

Suit for recovery of possession of lands given for maintenance by the grantor after the death of the grantee comes under Art. 139 and not Art. 140, where the grantees' heirs are tenants with consent of grantor. 37 Cal. 674=6 Ind. Cas. 339.

9. Holding over.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Tenancy for fixed term—On expiry of term, tenant continuing in possession without paying rent and without assent of landlord—Landlord's suit for possession beyond twelve years from expiry of term is barred. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 410=42 P.L.R. 535=191 Ind. Cas. 289.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Lease expiring but tenant continuing in possession without paying rent—Possession not shown to be with landlord's assent—Landlord's suit beyond 12 years after expiry, held barred irrespective of effect of S. 116, Evidence Act. 41 P.L.R. 457=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 455=185 Ind. Cas. 858.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Railway Company leasing land to employee on certain terms—Tenant remaining on land after expiry of last of the annual leases but under the same terms:

Held, that there was no period of time from which it could be said that the statute of limitation ran so as to debar the plaintiffs from their remedy for the recovery of the property and that the defendant was not in adverse possession as from the date of expiry of the last date of the lease. 1935 O.W.N. 379=1935 A.W.R. 459=1935 R.D. 165=1 B.R. 425=A.I.R. 1935 P.C. 59=(1935) M.W.N. 434=68 M.L.J. 552=41 M.L.W. 617=39 C.W.N. 552=61 C.L.J. 147=37 Bom.L.R. 390=37 P.L.R. 331=154 Ind. Cas. 945 (P.C.).

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Where a tenant for fixed period continues to hold over on the expiry of the term of lease, he continues as a tenant at sufferance and time will not in such a case begin to run until the tenancy at sufferance thus coming into existence, terminates. 122 Ind. Cas. 865=1930 A.L.J. 594=A.I.R. 1930 All. 177.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

A tenant is estopped from denying the title of his landlord during the continuance of the tenancy, but when there is a particular term fixed by the Kirayanama and after the expiry of that term the tenant continues to hold the leased premises without payment of any rent, he does so in the capacity of a tenant by sufferance, and his position is practically that of a trespasser, and time against the landlord begins to run from the moment that the term fixed by the Kirayanama expires, under Art. 139. A.I.R. 1922 All. 318 and 31 All. 514, Foll. It follows, therefore, that if no rent was paid within 12 years prior to the institution of the suit, the suit is time-barred. 102 Ind. Cas. 231=A.I.R. 1927 All. 821.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Landlord's remedy to recover possession of his property from his tenant becomes barred by limitation where such tenant continues in possession of such property after the termination of the lease for the full term of the statutory period without payment of rent and without any express or implied agreement between him and the landlord that the tenancy to continue. 105 Ind. Cas. 859=29 Bom. L. R. 1332=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 650.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

A tenant who holds on to the land after the expiry of term of the lease cannot be said to be holding 'adversely' to the landlord. So long as he is in possession, he cannot deny that it was from lessor that he got the land. But where the tenant holds on after the expiry of the lease, time begins to run against the landlord from the date of the expiry of the lease, under Art. 139 of the Limitation Act. After the expiry of 12 years, the title of the landlord must cease by the application of S. 28 of the Limitation Act. With the cessation of the right to recover the land his right to the property is also extinguished. Art. 144 of the Limitation Act has nothing to do with the case. 85 Ind. Cas. 550=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 254=A.I.R. 1925 All. 698.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Neither Art. 139 nor Art. 144 contemplates that lessee or a tenant-at-will or a tenant at sufferance should give up possession of his property before the period of limitation commences to run. 79 Ind. Cas. 59=A.I.R. 1925 Sind. 36.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

A tenant by sufferance is in by laches of the landlord and is entitled to the benefit of the law of limitation. Where the heirs of the grantees are in uninterrupted possession without paying rent to the landlord a suit beyond 12 years for their ejectment is barred. 18 Bom. 256, Diss. 78 Ind. Cas. 511=3 Pat. 534=1924 P.H.C.C. 159=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 572.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Per Mullick, J.—Article 139 only applies where the tenancy has been determined.

Per Jwala Prasad, J.—Where persons were holding over as tenants under S. 116, T. P. Act and were not trespassers, Art. 139 is not applicable. 83 Ind. Cas. 741=3 Pat. 403=6 P.L.T. 315=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 560.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

A tenancy by sufferance would not by itself make the possession of the holder rightful, so as to prevent limitation from running. But the proposition is subject to one important qualification and that is that if the landlord or the person entitled to resume the tenancy does anything to indicate his assent to the continuance of the tenancy, that would itself be sufficient to convert the tenancy by sufferance into a tenancy from year to year. 71 Ind. Cas. 570=4 P. L. T. 123=1923 P.H.C.C. 54=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 201.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

The transferee as also landlord who cannot convey to his transferee a better title than he himself has, must sue for ejectment of the tenant holding over, within twelve years after the termination of the tenancy, the article of Limitation Act applicable to the suit being 139. 68 Ind. Cas. 750=20 A.L.J. 696=A.I.R. 1922 All. 423.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

When a tenancy at sufferance has existed for twelve years the landlord's right of entry is barred by statute, and the tenant becomes the absolute and complete owner of the property.

Per Stuart, J.—The defendants cannot be permitted to deny the plaintiff's title. The plaintiff is undoubtedly the landlord and the defendants are tenants by sufferance, but once having recognized that the tenants are so estopped, the fact still remains that the suit has been instituted beyond the period of limitation, and is therefore barred. 75 Ind. Cas. 454=44 All. 583=20 A.L.J. 593=A.I.R. 1922 All. 318.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

Applying the principle of S. 116 of the T. P. Act, held that the payment of rent by the defendants and the acceptance of the same by the plaintiff resulted in the renewal of the lease every year until the disputes arose and as the suit was instituted within two years of such dispute, it was not barred under Art. 139 of the Limitation Act. 53 Ind. Cas. 212 (Nag.).

——Art. 139—Holding over — Adverse possession.

An intention to hold adversely to the landlord need not necessarily follows from a holding over, though the running of time against the landlord will not be interrupted in such a case. 3 L.W. 408=30 M.L.J. 492=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 79=34 Ind. Cas. 6.

——Art. 139—Holding over — Adverse possession.

A tenant continuing in possession after expiry of the lease cannot be said to be in adverse possession unless he actually surrenders possession to his landlord. (1914) M.W.N. 728=25 Ind. Cas. 109.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

A tenant holding land after the lease period without rent and without the permission of the landlord is a tenant by sufferance and the landlord's ejectment suit against him is barred if brought after 12 years from the determination of lease. 16 Ind. Cas. 546 (Mad.).

——Art. 139—Holding over—Limitation.

In the case of lease for a definite period which is not a lease from year to year, time runs against the lessor from the date the term expires. 20 M.L.J. 131=8 M.L.T. 100=5 Ind. Cas. 907.

——Art. 139—Holding over.

For a suit to recovery possession from tenant-on-sufferance, time begins to run, under Art. 139 Limitation Act, 1877, from the expiry of the term of the lease. 31 All. 514=6 A.L.J. 584=3 Ind. Cas. 566.

——Art. 139—Holding over—Limitation.

If a lessee holds over after the expiry of the lease and if no subsequent arrangement is arrived at between him and his lessor by which a new tenancy is created, time begins to run under Art. 139, against the lessor from the date of the expiry of the lease. 22 B. 893; 24 B. 504; 2 B.L.R. 491 foll. 8 M. 424 diss. from. 7 C.L.J. 615.

10. Landlord and tenant.

——Art. 139—Landlord and tenant—Permanent tenancy, acquisition of, by tenant—Prior decree in favour of landlord for khas possession.

A farmer may acquire by prescription the right of a permanent tenant by setting up such higher right adversely to the zemindar. If a defendant (tenant), notwithstanding a decree and writ of possession being taken out against him, continues to be in possession of the land comprised in the decree, such possession would be adverse to the plaintiff decree-holder (landlord), from the date of the writ and the tenant would ordinarily prescribe for the title asserted by him in the prior suit. 9 C.W.N. 292.

——Art. 139—Landlord and tenant—Possession of the tenant is possession of the landlord—Landlord trespasser and tenant real owner.

The doctrine that the possession of the tenant is possession of the landlord applies even where the tenant is really entitled to the land, but mistakenly takes a lease from a trespasser. 6 C.W.N. 617=4 Bom. L.R. 537=29 I.A. 104=29 C. 518 (P.C.).

11. Non-occupancy tenant.

——Art. 139—Non-occupancy tenant.

Article 1 (a) of Schedule 3 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, does not apply to suits to eject persons, who were not in law non-occupancy raiyats of the land. Article 139 of the Limitation Act applies to such suits. 66 Ind. Cas. 337=35 C.L.J. 506=3 Pat. L.T. 197=1922 M.W.N. 410=26 C. W. N. 833=1 Pat. 340=49 I.A. 81=31 M.L.T. 231=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 142=43 M.L.J. 55 (P.C.).

12. Non-payment of rent.

——Arts. 139 and 143—Non-payment of rent—Option to lessor to eject tenant on non-payment of rent.

In the Punjab in a case of lease which gives option to a lessor to eject a tenant on non-payment of rent, the mere non-payment of rent in the absence of lessor's intention to determine the tenancy does not determine the tenancy and the right to recover rent or possession is not lost for ever, if no rent is paid within 12 years prior to the institution of the suit or no suit for ejectment is instituted within 12 years of the first default. To such a case, neither Art. 139 nor Art. 143 applies. 43 P.L.R. 261=A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 248=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 252=197 Ind. Cas. 58.

——Arts. 139 and 144—Non-payment of rent and denial of title—Limitation.

In certain settlement proceedings in 1894, the defendants alleged to be the tenants of plaintiff denied plaintiff's title as landlord and their liability to pay rent. The settlement officer concluded that rent was not being paid and in the Record-of rights the defendant was recorded as holder of a Jote without rent. Plaintiff sued for possession in 1910, held that the suit was barred. 36 Ind. Cas. 829 (Cal.).

——Arts. 139 and 144—Non-payment of rent—Mortgagor and mortgagee.

Where a usufructuary mortgagor gets into possession of the property as a lessee under the mortgagee and continues after the expiration of the tenancy in possession without paying any rent for over 12 years, a suit by the mortgagee for possession will be barred under Art. 139 of the Limitation Act. 18 Ind. Cas. 899 (All.).

——Art. 139—Non-payment of rent does not create adverse possession. 7 C.L.J. 615.

——Art. 139—Non-payment of rent.

The tenants must show by clear and conclusive evidence that the contract has been determined or they must satisfy the Court that the parties never intended that the contract should be acted upon. 3 C. 314; 3 C.L.R. 119, followed. 6 C.L.J. 72.

——Art. 139—Non-payment of rent — Lease by mortgagee to mortgagor for 5 years—No payment of rent after 5 years—Adverse possession. See T. P. Act, S. 67. 31 A. 318=6 A.L.J. 239.

13. Possession of site for over twelve years.

——Art. 139—Possession of site for over 12 years — Easements Act, S. 60—License—Revocation—House of a permanent character.

The plaintiff was recorded Zemindar of Dariganj in the Municipality of Allahabad. The wajib-ul-arz provided that the Zemindar was entitled to Dhik (royalty) in case the house of any tenant was sold. Certain houses were attached and advertised for sale as the property of the defendant judgment-debtor. The Zemindar brought this suit for declaration of his right. It was found that for 35 years the judgment-debtor and his predecessor-in-title, who did not cultivate any land were in possession of the houses and the site and had never acknowledged the plaintiff's right nor had paid him any rent. Held, that they acquired a title by prescription in the site as well as the houses and their rights could be sold. Per Stanley, C.J.:—If a license was granted by the Zemindar to the predecessors-in title of the judgment-debtor and they acting upon that license built a house which was of a permanent character the Zemindar could not revoke the license and seek possession of the site. 1906 A.W.N. 305=3 A.L.J. 760=29 A. 133.

14. Purchaser in rent decree.

——Art. 139—Purchaser in rent decree.

Art. 139 of the Limitation Act is applicable only where the purchaser acquires the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor. But the rights of a purchaser at a sale under a decree for rent must be governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act. Where a rent-decree has been properly obtained the tenure itself passes to the purchaser and not the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor only. The rights of the purchaser must be determined by the provisions of the B. T. Act under S. 158-B and S. 159. 26 C.W.N. 985=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 544.

15. Socpe.

——Art. 139—Scope.

The general provisions of Art. 139, Limitation Act are abrogated by the provisions of S. 5, Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act. A. I. R. 1938 Mad. 581=47 M.L.W. 236=(1938) M.W.N. 241=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 313=182 Ind. Cas. 68.

——Art. 139—Scope. See MALABAR LAW. 25 M. 452.

16. Stranger dispossessing tenant.

——Arts. 139, 140, 142 and 144—Stranger dispossessing tenant.

The landlord must sue a stranger dispossessing his tenant, from year to year and holding the land absolutely against them both within 12 years from the date of such dispossession, especially when the tenant has quitted his land for more than 12 years before the suit. The cause of action to such a suit does not arise on the day of notice to quit the land by the landlord to the tenant. It is a question whether the time against the owner would begin to run from the date of dispossession by a stranger of the tenant before the expiry of his lease. (1912) M.W.N. 669 =15 Ind. Cas. 146.

17. Suit against tenant's representative.

——Art. 139—Suit against tenant's representative.

Where, after termination of such tenancy by the death of the tenant, his representatives continue to pay rent to the landlord, the occupation of the leased premises by the representatives must be deemed to be in the capacity of tenants and the landlord would be entitled to a decree for possession provided the possession of the defendants as tenants is traced within twelve years of the date of the suit. A.I.R. 1941 All. 306=1941 O.W.N. 747=(1941) A.L.J. 327=1941 R.D. 542=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 191 and 515=195 Ind. Cas. 515.

——Art. 139—Suit against tenant's representative.

Tenancy terminable at landlord's will and for indefinite period—It enures for life-time of tenant and is not heritable—Suit for possession by landlord against representatives of deceased tenant—Held, that Art. 139 applied. (1941) A.L.J. 327=1941 R.D. 542 =A.I.R. 1941 All. 306=1941 O.W.N. 747=1941 A.W.R. (H.C.) 191 and 515=195 Ind. Cas. 515.

——Art. 139—Suit against tenant's representative.

Art. 139 and not Art. 144 applies to suits brought against the representatives of the original tenant after the determination of the tenancy to recover the property leased. 86 Ind. Cas. 933=1925 M.W.N. 589 =A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 446=48 M.L.J. 185.

——Art. 139—Suit against tenant's representatives.

The word 'tenant' in Art. 139 includes the tenant's representatives in interest. Art. 139 governs a suit by a landlord to recover possession from a tenant as well as from his representatives-in-interest. 33 Mad. 260=7 M.L.T. 289=19 M.L.J. 732=(1910) M.W.N. 145=4 Ind. Cas. 1080.

——Arts. 139 and 144—Suit against tenant's representative.

The repre entatives of a tenant by sufferance who enter after his death are not tenants within the meaning of Art. 139; and a suit against them is governed by Art. 144. (1908) 18 M.L.J. 26=31 M. 163.

18. Suit for possession by landlord.

——Art. 139—Suit for possession by landlord—Article applicable, whether Art. 139 or 144—Limitati n, when starts.

Art. 139 Limitation Act, applies to a suit by a landlord to recover possession from a tenant and the terminus a quo is the date on which the tenancy was determined. This is the specific article for a suit between landlords and tenan s and must be used in all suits of that nature, in preference to Art. 144 which is a general article. It follows that the question in such a case is whether the lease has been put an end to within 12 years of suit, and not whether there has been adverse posse sion. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 382=37 Bom. L.R. 593=159 Ind. Cas. 378.

——Art. 139—Suit for possession of demised properties.

A suit for possession of properties leased must be brought within 12 years from the date on which the tenancy determined. 31 All. 318=6 A.L.J. 239=1 Ind. Cas. 208.

19. Tenancy determined.

——Art. 139—Tenancy determined — Landlord alleging continuati n of tenancy must prove it.

Art. 139, Limitation Act bars any suit to recover possession from the tenant after the expiration of twelve years from the date when the tenancy is determined. Burden is on the tenant to prove when the question of limitation is involved, when the tenancy was determined.

Where, even after the determination of the lease, the lessee continues to be in possession of the leased property for more than twelve years and it is not shown that he paid any rent or that the landlord assented to his possession after the expiry of the lease or that the lessee had accepted the title of the landlord, the suit of the landlord is barred under Art. 139. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 73=46 M.L.W. 848=176 Ind. Cas. 84.

20. Tenancy from year to year.

——Art. 139—Tenancy from year to year.

In the case of tenancy from year to year, limitation runs in favour of a person asserting permanent right in the property only from the date of the termination of the tenancy under Art. 139. 9 M.L.T. 224=21 M. L.J. 166=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 36=9 Ind. Cas. 141.

21. Tenancy at sufferance.

——Art. 139—Tenancy-at-sufferance.

A tenancy on sufferance does not fall within Art. 139 and on the expiry of a tenancy on a fixed term, time runs against the landlord unless a novation is proved and the tenancy for a fixed term was shown as succeeded by a tenancy-at-will. 97 P.R. 1915=193 P.W.R. 1915=32 Ind. Cas. 35.

14. Suit by lessor against trespasser.

1. Adverse possession.

——Art. 140—Adverse possession against life-tenant.

No adverse possession can run against a person till he becomes entitled to the possession of the property. An adverse possession for any length of time against a tenant for life is similarly ineffectual against the reversioner or remainderman whose right to possession only accrues on the death of the tenant for life. 92 Ind. Cas. 63=47 All. 803=23 A.L.J. 691=A.I.R. 1925 All 707.

——Arts. 140 and 141—Adverse possession—Possession of one trespasser when can be tacked on to that of another.

The pos ession of one trespasser can be tacked on to that of another and a continuity of adverse possession may result thereby only when the interests of both are not different and antagonistic. Art. 140 applies to the case of a person succeeding to an estate as an heir and not to cases where having succeeded he creates a life estate in favour of some other person himself and then comes in as a remainderman; Art. 141 on the other hand applies only to a case of a person succeeding as a reversioner entitled to succeed on the death of a female heir who has succeeded as such and not in any other capacity. 119 P.L.R. 1914=72 P.W.R. 1914=22 Ind. Cas. 855.

2. Alienation by widow.

——Arts. 140, 141 and 144—Alienation by widow—Next heirs not contesting alienation—Suit for possession by remote heirs after death of nearer heirs.

On the death of N, his widow succeeded to the land in suit and sold it in 1890. On her death H who was entitled to claim the land did not claim it nor did his son D. D's widow too made no claim and died in 1907. Plaintiff after her death, became entitled to the land and sued for possession. Held, that the right to sue accrued to the plaintiff on the death of D's widow and the suit was not barred. 172 P.W.R. 1912=208 P.L.R. 1912=17 Ind. Cas. 503.

——Art. 140—Alienation by widow—Suit to set aside by reversioner — Ouster of widow—Effect.

The limitation for a reversioner to bring a suit to set aside an alienation by the widow is 12 years of the widow's death and no ouster of the widow affects that right. A widow is not said to be ousted when she sells all interest in the property, but if such an event occurred, the defendant must prove it. 13 C.W.N. 931=3 Ind. Cas. 415.

3. Cause of action arising in life-time of last full owner.

——Arts. 140, 141 and 142—Cause of action arising in life-time of last full owner—Subsequent interposition of life estate.

If the cause of action arose during the lifetime of the last full owner, the subsequent interposition of a life estate or a widow's estate would not bring into operation either Art. 140 or Art. 141, on the principle formulated in S. 9. Art. 142 would apply, time running from the date of the dispossession. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 702=62 C.L.J. 49=40 C.W.N. 115=63 C. 155=159 Ind. Cas. 1101.

4. Ejectment.

——Art. 140—Ejectment — Grant — Usufructuary mortgage by grantee.

The suit of the grantor of a mokarari for life to evict the usufructuary mortgagee of the grantee, after his death is not governed by Art. 140 of the Act. 32 Ind. Cas. 827 (Cal.).

5. "Estate."

——Arts. 140 and 141—"Estate"—Life estates—English law.

"The estate" referred to in Art. 141 need not be one created in the same way as the particular estate on which the estate in remainder or reversion in Art. 140 leans; nor need it be one having the same incidents as the particular estate. Art. 141 applies to suits to recover estates, which were once in expectancy and which have now become vested in the heir of the last male owner after the life-estate of the Hindu or Mahomedan female. It does not apply to suits by persons claiming through the female, obviously therefore it does not apply when the female holds absolutely. Limited-estates taken by Hindu females are not the same as life estates under English Law but for purposes of Limitation, they are treated on the same principle. 18 O.C. 289=3 O.L.J. 45=33 Ind. Cas. 371.

6. Possessory title.

——Art. 140—Possessory title.

A plaintiff who relies solely on his possessory title and cannot prove his title to succeed to the last holder of the estate cannot invoke the aid of Art. 140 or 141. 93 Ind. Cas. 454=5 P.L.T. (Sup.) 1=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 68 (F.B.).

7. Property of absconder.

——Art. 140—Property of absconder—Land sold under Ss. 81, 87 and 88, Cr. P. Code—Suit for possession—Time runs from date of absconder's death.

If an absconder's land is sold by order of the Magistrate under Ss. 87 and 88 of the Cr. P. Code a suit for its possession is governed by Art. 140 of the Limitation Act, under which the starting point is from the time when the estate falls into possession, which means from the date of absconder's death. If the plaintiff is not able to show that his suit is brought within 12 years of the absconder's death the suit must fail. 66 Ind. Cas. 1=4 L.L.J. 59=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 124.

8. Property devised.

——Arts. 140 and 144 — Property devised—Suit for possession from devise—Limitation.

Art. 144 applies when the purchaser of the rights of a devisee sues to obtain possession of the property if the devisee or his transferee has once obtained possession and Art. 140 applies if the devisee has not obtained possession. 56 Ind. Cas. 929 (Nag.).

——Arts. 140 and 144—Property devised—Suit by one devise against co-devisees for possession.

Where two of three devisees are in possession, and there is no evidence of an intention that they hold adversely, a suit for possession by the third devisee not in possession, is not governed by Art. 140. 5 M.L.T. 103=2 Ind. Cas. 311.

9. Punjab agricultural land.

——Arts. 140 and 141—Punjab agricultural land.

A remote reversioner suing to recover possession of property improperly alienated can do so within 12 years from the time when the right to possession accrues to him, Arts. 140 and 141 are inapplicable because the reversioners were not entitled to claim possession when the limited owner died, nor did the estate at that time fall into their possession. 106 P.R. 1906, overruled. 34 P.L.R. 1911=33 P.W.R. 1911=26 P.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 300.

10. Remainderman.

——Art. 140—Remainderman, who is.

A person claiming only an equity of redemption does come within the meaning of remainderman. 117 Ind. Cas. 22=51 All. 367=1929 A.L.J. 566=56 I.A. 192=33 C.W.N. 761=31 Bom.L.R. 854=30 M.L.W. 76=50 C.L.J. 74=1929 M.W.N. 676=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 158 (P.C.).

11. Reversioner.

——Art. 140—Reversioner's suit for possession. See ART. 136. 8 C.W.N. 535.

See ARTS. 118 AND 119. 26 M. 291=13 M.L.J. 27.

——Art. 140—'Reversioner'.

The terms "reversioner", etc., in Art. 140 are used in the technical sense of the English Real Property Law. A reversion arises where the grantor grants a particular estate to a person and does not dispose of the remainder. That which is not deposed of resides in the grantor and is called a reversion. It is the interest in land undisposed of which reverts to the grantor after exhaustion of the particular estate; if the fee simple granted is "conditional" or "determinable" what is left in the grantor is not a reversion but "a possibility of reverter". The case of "a possibility of reverter" is clearly not comprehended within the terms of Art. .40. See HALSBURY'S 'LAWS OF INGLAND', Vol. 24, p. 212. 82 Ind. Cas. 812=3 Pat. 880=5 P.L.T. 513=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 721.

12. Scope.

——Art. 140—Scope.

Article 134 controls both Arts. 140 and 148. 92 Ind. Cas. 63=47 All. 803=23 A.L.J. 691=A.I.R. 1925 All. 707.

——Art. 140—Scope.

Where the plaintiff became entitled to possession only after the determination of the limited or particular estate held by her mother-in-law, whatever its precise nature might have been, and that estate did not fall into possession until her death, which took place within 12 years before the suit.

Held, that Art. 142 cannot apply as the plaintiff was never in fact dispossessed; nor can Art. 144, as possession of a trespasser cannot be deemed adverse against a person not entitled to be in possession at that time. There was thus no bar to the application of Art. 140. 34 C.L.J. 129, Foll. 65 Ind. Cas. 866=34 C.L.J. 141=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 687.

——Art. 140—Scope.

Article 140 of the Act contemplates a suit by a remainderman or reversioner for possession of immovable property when his estate falls into possession. 65 Ind. Cas 826=34 C.L.J. 129.

13. Starting point.

——Art. 140—Starting point of limitation.

If a life-tenant be dispossessed, the reversioner or remainderman is in time if he institutes the suit for possession of immovable property within 12 years of the death of the life-tenant, and if successive life estates had been created, the remainderman or the reversioner will be in time if he institutes the suit for possession within 12 years of the death of the last life-tenant. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 702=63 C. 155 =62 C.L.J. 49=40 C.W.N. 115=159 Ind. Cas. 1101.

——Arts. 140 and 141—Starting point.

Where the plaintiff brings his case prima facie under Arts. 140 and 141, if the defendants want to avoid the operation of these articles, they must prove the necessary facts, namely that limitation began to run from the time of the full owner, that is to say, he was dispossessed when he was the full owner. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 702=62 C.L.J. 49=40 C. W.N. 115=63 C. 155=159 Ind. Cas. 1101.

——Art. 140—Starting point.

The reversioner's right to sue accrues due from the time of the death of the widow and possession for 12 years as a gift from the widow during her lifetime does not bar the suit. 70 Ind. Cas. 635= A.I.R. 1922 All. 401.

——Art. 140—Starting point.

Even where the remainderman is in possession on behalf of the holder of a life-interest, limitation begins only when the holder of the life-interest dies. A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 337.

14. Suit by lessor against trespasser.

——Arts. 140, 142, 144 and 139—Suit by lessor against trespasser.

Article 140 governs suits against a trespasser by a lessor for the recovery of his leased out lands, as it does not necessarily postpone limitation till it falls into possession. But the case is different when the trespasser asserts his right of tenancy only. The limitation runs against the landlord from the expiry of the lessee's tenancy if the lessor's right is complete; and if no right against tenant, is acquired by adverse possession under the statute by the trespasser. Art. 144 is applicable because his possession would be considered adverse against the lessor after the termination of the lease. This Art. 140 also governs the suits by remainder-man and reversioners against all persons including trespassers and not merely those holding a limited estate on the termination of which the remainder or reversion falls in. This Art. 140 has no application against a tenant as Art. 139 governs suits against him. (1912) M.W.N. 669=15 Ind. Cas. 146.

1. (a) Applicability—General.

——Art. 141—Applicability — Property held by widow under award for her maintenance.

A Hindu widow was given certain properties by an award for her maintenance. Her interest was expressly limited to her lifetime. The award went on to provide that the widow would be entitled to adopt and that, in case she did not make any adoption and became unchaste, the surviving brothers of her deceased husband would be entitled, to take possession of the property allotted to her for maintenance. The widow was not empowered to alienate the property given to her except to a member of the family. The widow became unchaste in 1910 or 1912 and died in 1929. The present suit was brought on November 26, 1932 by the heirs of the brothers of her deceased husband on the simple allegation that the property given to the widow under the award was for her life and that they were entitled to possession on her death:

Held, that the suit was within time, the cause of action being the death of widow in 1929 and the article applicable being Art. 141 and not Art. 143;

Held, also, that a person entitled to the benefit of forfeiture can waive it and if he has a right to the property wholly apart from forfeiture, that title cannot be affected by the fact that he could have enforced the forfeiture clause but has waived it. On the widow's becoming unchaste, the plaintiffs might have sued for the enforcement of the forfeiture clause in the award. It was open to them to forego the benefit which such clause conferred upon them and to wait till she died when they acquired a fresh right to sue for possession of the estate, in terms of the last clause of the award. ——Art. 141—Widow of taluqdar claiming only limited estate—Suit by rightful heir.

Where the widow of a Hindu taluqdar takes possession of the estate as claiming only the limited estate of a widow, her possession is not adverse to the absolute title of the heir-at-law whose right to sue is governed by Art. 141, and accrues on the death of the widow. 11 O.W.N. 351=9 Luck. 484=A. ——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner.

Where a widow is found to have been lawfully holding her husband's estate for life, whether under a will or under the provisions of S. 22 of Act 1 of 1869, no question of adverse possession arises and the suit for possession by a reversioner is govened by Art. 141 of the Limitation Act. 26 I.A. 71 and 56 Ind. Cas. 267, Foll. 7 O.W.N. 1010=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 481.

——Art. 141—Applicability — Female succeeding as reversioner.

A Hindu female succeeding as a reversioner to another Hindu female owner does come under Art. 141, under which article the period of limitation runs from the death of the last female-owner. A.I.R. 1937 All. 188=1936 A.W.R. 1279=167 Ind. Cas. 527.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner — Starting point—Hindu Law—Suit by daughter.

Suit by daughter for a share in her father's property on her mother's death, falls under Art. 141, and time runs from the date of mother's death. 38 All. 117=14 A.L.J. 11=32 Ind. Cas. 127.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner — Daughter—Limitation.

A suit by a Hindu daughter for possession of her father's property after her mother's death falls under Art. 141 and not under Art. 127 or Art. 142 of the Act, and time begins to run from her mother's death no matter who was in possession of the property during the period between her father's and mother's death. 11 A.L.J. 333=20 Ind. Cas. 179.

——Arts. 141 and 119—Suit for possession as adopted son on death of Hindu widow.

A suit for a declaration that plaintiff is the owner of certain property on the death of a Hindu widow on the strength of his adoption and for possession of it is governed by Art. 141, as Art. 119 applies only to a suit under S. 42, Specific Relief Act, for a declaratory decree that an adoption is invalid or did not take place. Time begins to run from the date of the widow's death. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 110=36 Bom. L.R. 185=58 Bom. 280=149 Ind. Cas. 674.

——Art. 141—Defendant not in possession on date of female's death.

Article 141 contemplates suits for recovery of possession in respect of property of which the reversioners were out of possession at the death of the female and which was in the possession of another person from whom they sought to recover it. Where no one was in possession on the date of the death of the female, the reversioners must be taken to have been in possession and Art. 141 would not apply. 36 C. W. N. 326=A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 504=138 Ind. Cas. 349.

——Art. 141—Bengal Tenancy Act (8 of 1885), Sch. 3; Art. 3.

Article 3, Sch. 3, Bengal Tenancy Act, does not in any way control the provisions of Art. 141, Limitation Act, and consequently where a Hindu widow who is in possession of her husband's estate which comprised a holding is dispossessed therefrom by the landlord, that dispossession cannot avail against the reversioner, so as to bar his right to the suit for recovery of possession by Art. 3 if such suit is not brought within two years from the date of the dispossession of the widow. 9 Pat. 634=11 P.L.T. 714=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 573=128 Ind. Cas. 131.

——Art. 141—Share in partnership.

Article 141 is the correct article to apply to a suit for declaration and possession of a share in the partnership assets consisting of immovable property, where the plaintiff becomes entitled thereto on the death of a Hindu female. The plaintiff has a period of twelve years from the date of death of the prior female owner to bring the suit. Article 120 does not apply. 124 Ind. Cas 19=1930 A.L.J. 1517=A.I.R. 1931 All. 225.

——Arts. 141 and 134—Mortgage by full owner.

Article 141 covers only those cases in which the cause of action is simply the death of the female and the only obstacle to the reversioner seeking to obtain possession is either an act of the female or her inaction.

Where the cause of action includes a mortgage by the last male holder and a transfer by the mortgagee, Art. 134 will apply. 68 Ind. Cas. 734=44 Mad. 951=14 M.L.W. 116=1921 M.W.N. 465=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 272=41 M.L.J. 163.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Suit for possession on declaration of title by plaintiff as reversionary heirs on his mother's death against defendants.

The plaintiff was a minor when his mother died in 1897. He attained his majority in 1911. He, in 1913 as the reversionary heir on the death of his mother brought a suit for possession on the establishment of his title to a share of certain property alleging to be joint family property against defendants. The defence was that the suit was time barred. Held, that Art. 144 would apply only if the mother was dispossessed; in that case only the question whether the suit was brought within three years of his attaining majority would arise. 23 C.W.N. 977 =30 C.L.J. 512=47 Cal. 274=56 Ind. Cas. 141.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Co-widows—Suit by reversioner—Limitation.

Of two Hindu co-widows, one who had two daughters, alienated her husband's property on 10-3-1897 and died on 11-7-1902. The other widow died on 17-1-1903. One of the daughters gave birth to a son (plaintiff) in 1905 and died in 1907. The other daughter died in 1911. The plaintiff having filed the suit on 13-1-1915 to set aside the alienation, Held, that the suit was not governed by Art. 141 of the Limitation Act in asmuch as the plaintiff claimed as the heir of his mother and the suit was not one brought by a Hindu entitled to the possession of immovable property on the death of a Hindu female. The suit was in time, under Art. 144, for the vendee's possession, however adverse against widows could not be regarded as adverse against the plaintiff. 42 Bom. 714=20 Bom. L.R. 762=47 Ind. Cas. 153.

——Art. 141—Suit for share of inheritance.

A suit for the share in inheritance is barred after lapse of twelve years of the death of the last male owner. 85 P.W.R. 1916=84 P.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 742.

——Art. 141—Applicability—Reversioner's suit.

Art. 141 is extension of Art. 140 and specially refers to reversioners succeeding to the estate after widow's death. 40 Bom. 239=18 Bom. L.R. 14=33 Ind. Cas. 484.

——Art. 141—Applicability of — Succession vesting jointly in two female heirs—Suit by one on death of another, nature of.

Where succession vests jointly in two female heirs between whom no partition of the property is made, a suit by one on death of the other for the property cannot be said to be one for recovery of possession and Art. 141 could not bar the suit. 27 Ind. Cas. 83 (Cal.).

——Arts. 141 and 134—Surrender by widow.

A suit by a purchaser of the equity of redemption from a mortgagee to whom it has been surrendered is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 134 as the former cannot be considered to have "purchased mortgage property" within the meaning of the latter article. Art. 134 will apply only when the purchaser acts in the bona fide belief that he is purchasing the whole estate and not merely a mortgage interest. 1 L.W. 687=(1914) M.W.N. 735=26 Ind. Cas. 1.

——Art. 141—Applicability —Reversioner's suit—Adoption by widow—Death of adopted son as a major twelve years before suit.

A, a widow, adopted one K in 1857. K died a major in 1862. S, his widow, died in 1898, and the suit was brought to set aside alienations made by A, the mother of K. Held, that the suit was barred, and that Art. 141 did not apply. 24 W.R. 183; 4 C. 523, doubted. (1904) 32 C. 165.

——Arts. 141, 136 and 91—Suit by an assignee of reversioner to recover possession of immoveable property to which the reversioner became entitled on the death of a Hindu widow.

A suit by an assignee of a reversioner, to recover possession of the immoveable property to which the reversioner became entitled on the death of a Hindu widow, is governed by Art. 141, read with Art. 136 and not by Art. 91. (1904) 8 C.W.N. 802.

——Arts. 141 and 118—Suit to recover possession of immoveable property—Finding on adoption essential for the determination of the case. See ART. 118. 25 B. 26=2 Bom. L.R. 495.

——Arts. 141 and 118—Suit to recover immoveable property on the death of a Hindu widow—Adoption—Validity of, collaterally involved—Limitation—Conflict of decisions. See ART. 118. 9 C.W.N. 222.

——Art. 141. See ART. 118. 30 M. 308=17 M.L.J. 182.

1. (b) Applicability—Female holding as full owner.

——Art. 141—Females holding as full owner

Article 141 does not apply where the Hindu or Muhammadan female has been in possession of a full estate. 18 O.C. 289 and 21 O.C. 1, Foll. 75 Ind. Cas. 626=20 O.C. 133=10 O.L.J. 535=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 185.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Applicability—Possession of property held by a female as full owner.

Art. 141 of the Limitation Act, lays down a rule of limitation of suits in which it is sought to recover estates which having once been estates in expectancy, have been vested in the heir of the last male owner in determination of a limited estate held by a Hindu or Mahomedan female. It does not apply to cases in which the Hindu or Mahomedan female had been in possession of the full estates. 41 Mad. 538=44 Ind. Cas. 308.

——Arts. 141, 140—Applicability of — Female having absolute estate.

Art. 141 does not contemplate the same kind of estate as one under Art. 140 i.e., by grant or devise Art. 141 applies to suit for recovery of estates which were once estates in expectancy but which have become vested in the person suing as heir of last male holder on the death of Hindu or a Muhammadan female. The person suing must have an independent title in the same way as remainderman or reversioners under Art. 140 and not a title derived from the female. Art. 141 applies to cases of reversioners or remainderman, who claim the estate under a title independent of the Hindu or Muhammadan female and does not apply at all when such female has absolute estate. 18 O.C. 289=3 O.L.J. 45=33 Ind. Cas. 371.

——Art. 141—Female trustee of debutter property.

For all purposes other than succession a debutter estate during the incumbency of a female trustee, resides in her as fully and effectually as it does in a male trustee, and in such a case, the male trustee who succeeds as reversionary heir, cannot claim the benefit of the principle on which Art. 141 is founded. (1907) 6 C.L.J. 621.

1. (c) Applicability—Movable property.

——Art. 141—Movables.

Article 141 does not apply to movable property. 112 Ind. Cas. 496=55 Cal. 903=32 C.W.N. 913=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 670.

——Art. 141—A suit by a Hindu reversioner to recover movable property on the death of a Hindu female is governed by Art. 120 of the Act and time begins to run from the death of the female. In the case of immovable property the Article applicable is 141. 64 Ind. Cas. 980=49 Cal. 45=33 C.L.J. 421=25 C.W.N. 585=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 321.

1. (d) Applicability—Proof required of plaintiff.

——Art. 141—Applicability — Proof required of plaintiff.

All that the plaintiffs need prove to bring the case within Art. 141, Limitation Act, is that they are Hindus or Mahomedans entitled to the estate on the termination of a limited interest of a Hindu or Mahomedan female. Once that is established they have made a prima facie case that Art. 141 applies and to take the case out of that article the defendants must show that the time had begun to run as against the full owner and that it was actually running when the limited interest came into effect. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 506.

——Art. 141—Art. 141 is restricted to suits by plaintiff whose title and right as the heir of the last full owner to sue for possession accrues upon the death of a female holding a woman's qualified estate under the Hindu or Muhammadan Law. To claim the benefit of the article the plaintiff must prove first that there was a qualified estate in the Hindu female and secondly that he was entitled to possession after the death of the female as the heir of the last male holder and further it must be shown that having regard to the existing law the plaintiff was entitled to the possession of the properties in dispute at the date of the suit. Art. 141 cannot be construed as altering the law of the land. The words "entitled to the possession of immovable properties" refer to the then existing law. 83 Ind. Cas. 812=3 Pat. 880=5 P.L.T. 513=A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 721.

1. (e) Applicability—Suit against alienee.

——Art. 141—Art. 141, Limitation Act, merely refers to a suit for possession and does not suggest that the reversioner has got to set aside any transaction before he becomes entitled to possession. A. I.R. 1939 Mad 824=50 M.L.W. 260=(1939) M. W.N. 848=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 388=I.L.R. (1939) Mad 917=188 Ind. Cas. 751.

——Art. 141—Suit to set aside sale by Hindu female.

A suit by a reversioner to set aside a sale by a Hindu female brought within 12 years of her death is within time under Art. 141. A.I.R. 1936 All. 557=1936 A.W.R. 691=(1936) A.L.J. 1230=164 Ind. Cas. 193.

——Art. 141—Bequest by widow found to be invalid—Donee's possession is as trespasser from the date of the death of widow—Suit by reversioners is governed by Art. 141. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 633=35 P.L.R. 494=152 Ind. Cas. 773.

——Art. 141—Suit alleging wrongful possession by alienee—Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (1920), Art. 2.

Where in a suit for possession the reversioners do not, in the plaint, admit or seek to set aside any alienation made by the deceased Mahomedan widow in favour of the alienee, but simply allege wrongful possession by him, Art. 2 of the Schedule annexed to the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (1920) does not govern limitation. The general rule of limitation contained in Limitation Act Art. 141, applies. 11 L.L.J. 465=1930 Cr.C. 95=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 111=125 Ind. Cas. 502.

——Art. 141—Alienation by widow and mother.

Where mother and the widow both hold property of the deceased jointly without proprietary rights in the same but with rights of survivorship a suit by reversioner impeaching alienations made by the survivor of the two on the death of the survivor is governed by Art. 141. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 339=7 O.W.N. 711=126 Ind. Cas. 657.

——Art. 141—Alienation of bhag—Bombay Bhagdari Act (5 of 1862), S. 3 — Mortgagor selling moiety to mortgagee and other moiety to wife for alleged consideration—Subsequent transfer of her moiety by wife to mortgagee.

Where a mortgagor sells in reality a moiety of the properties to the mortgagees for an amount due on the mortgage, and the other moiety is ostensibly sold in the name of the wife for an alleged consideration, the transaction amounts to a sale of an unrecognized portion of a bhag, and if subsequently after the death of her husband, the wife sells her moiety to the mortgagee the subsequent deed of sale cannot be upheld as in effect causing a past dismembered bhag to be re-united, and a suit by reversioner to set aside the above alienation is not governed by Arts. 125, 126 and 141. A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 545=54 Bom. 837=32 Bom.L.R. 1013=127 Ind. Cas. 897.

——Art. 141—Remote reversioner.

Possession of alienee from a widow becomes adverse on his death to all the reversioners whether next or remote. The remote reversioner cannot contend that the possession of an alienee became adverse only after expiry of twelve years from the death of the widow. It would be absurd to hold that a remote reversioner should have twelve years for a suit for possession, such period commencing to run after expiry of twelve years from the death of the widow. 121 Ind. Cas. 70=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 211.

——Art. 141—Under Art. 141, limitation begins to run from the death of the widow; consequently dealings with the property by the female or by her alienees during her lifetime do not affect her husband's heirs whose title comes into existence only on the death of the female. 78 Ind. Cas. 65=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 164.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Gift to daughter's son.

A suit by reversioners to set aside a gift to the daughter's son in the Punjab is governed by Art. 141 of the Indian Limitation Act and not by the Punjab Limitation Act. 156 P.L.R. 1914=29 P.R. 1914=24 Ind. Cas. 212.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Applicability—Person in possession by redeeming mortgage created by female—Suit by reversioner.

Art. 141 applies only when a reversioner is entitled to possession on the death of the female; it does not apply to a suit by him to recover possession from a person who had come into possession thereof by redeeming a mortgage created by the female. The article applicable to such a case is Art. 144 and time will run from the date of such redemption. A mere entry in a khewat of a person's name as proprietor does not amount to his having got possession. 11 A.L.J. 179=18 Ind. Cas. 811.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Gift by widow.

A suit by reversioners for possession of property gifted by a widow is governed by Art. 141 of the Act. 52 P.R. 1912=177 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 71.

——Art. 141—Suit by Reversioner—Possession—Mortgage by sonless proprietor—Subsequent sale by widow—Limitation.

A suit for possession by a reversioner against a purchaser from a Hindu is governed by Art. 141 of the Limitation Act (15 of 1877) and the period of limitation is 12 years from the death of the widow. 33 P.R. 1911=190 P.L.R. 1911=11 Ind. Cas. 392.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioners—Gift by widow—Collaterals in Punjab.

The collaterals can recover the gifted property within 12 years from the date of the widow's death under Art. 141 of the Limitation Act, and the donee's possession does not become adverse as long as she is alive. 238 P.L.R. 1911=40 P.W.R. 1911=32 P. R. 1911=10 Ind. Cas. 387.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Suit by daughter for possession of immoveable property against alienees from her mother after mother's death.

There is no authority that if a daughter succeeds as heir to her father's estate, her daughter cannot succeed to her. According to custom prevailing among Rajputs of Hoshiarpur District, daughters and after them their daughters are entitled to inherit as against remote collaterals. According to custom daughter's daughters can question alienations made by their mothers without necessity. A daughter's daughter may sue within 12 years from her mother's death for possession of immoveable property from the alienees from her mother. The fact that no suit was brought during the life-time of the mother to set aside the alienation does not shorten the perioed of twelve years. 121 P.L.R. 1909=10 P.L.R. 473=3 Ind. Cas. 984.

——Art. 141—Applicability of—Suit to declare unauthorised alienation void and for recovery of property.

A suit to recover immoveable property alienated by the plaintiff's mother acting as his guardian during his minority, and for a declaration that the alienation is invalid is governed by Art. 141 as it is essentially a suit to recover immoveable property the prayer for declaration being merely ancillary. Art. 91 does not apply as the plaintiff is not seeking relief against his own deed. 32 All. 392=7 A.L.J. 337=5 Ind. Cas. 585.

——Art. 141—Alienation by widow—Suit by son adopted by widow. See 1907 A.W.N. 148.

——Arts. 141 and 91—Reversioner's suit on the death of a Hindu female for possession—Property alienated by widow—Void or voidable election—Widow's estate.

A suit by the reversioner to recover property alienated by the widow is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 91 and the fact that he prays for a declaration that the alienation is inoperative does not affect the matter. The fact that a document is voidable and not void against a person entitled to possession of property covered by such document does not shew that it is incumbent upon such person to sue to set aside such document before recovering possession. (1906) 5 C.L.J. 334=4 A.L.J. 329=11 C.W.N. 424 =34 C. 329=17 M.L.J. 154=34 I.A. 87=9 Bom. L.R. 602 (P.C.).

——Arts. 141 and 91—Hindu Law—Reversioner's suit for possession of property alienated by widow for no legal necessity. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 636=33 C. 257=1 C.L.J. 408.

——Art. 141—Mortgage by Hindu widow—Partly valid—Suit by reversioner after 12 years—Mortgagee entitled to possession of—Some properties only under the deed of mortgage, effect of. See. 4 Bom.L.R. 465.

1. (f)—Applicability—Suit by limited owner barred.

——Art. 141—Suit by widow, barred — Suit by Reversioner also, if barred.

So far as a Hindu widow is concerned she cannot for the purposes of limitation be considered to represent the entire estate, so as to bar a suit of a reversioner when her own suit happens to be barred. This rule would be applicable not only in the case of a Hindu entitled to the possession of the estate after the death of a female, but also to the case of a Mahomedan occupying a similar position. The wording of Art. 141, Act 15, 1877 and of the present Act 9 of 1908 make this amply clear. 108 Ind. Cas. 817=1 L.C. 733=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 155.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Widow barred—If reversioner barred — Limitation Act (14 of 1859), S. 12.

A decision against a widow who does not establish her right to recover the estate of her husband within 12 years of the death of the latter does not operate as res judicata as against the reversioner as his title to possession accrues only on the death of the widow. Though the widow's right of suit was barred, the reversioner's suit would not be barred under Art. 141 of the Limitation Act. 32 M.L.J. 627=42 Ind. Cas. 228.

2. Adverse possession against limited owner.

——Art. 141—Suit for possession by remainderman after widow's death—Limitation—Defendants in adverse possession against widow.

A suit for possession of immovable property brought by a remainderman entitled to possession after the death of a widow within twelve years of her death is within time under Art. 141, Limtation Act. Any period of adverse possession by the defendants against the widow can be of no assistance to them in defeating the title of the plaintiff which accrued upon the death of the widow. Pak. L.R. 1949 Lah. 737=A.I.R. 1949 Lah. 252.

——Art. 141—Right of reversioner to sue for possession—Inaction of limited owner.

The omission by the daughter or any one of them inheriting immovable property from their father to institute a suit for possession against the trespasser or their allowing the suit for possession to be barred by time does not deprive the reversioner of the right to sue for possession of the property under Art. 141 in the absence of a decree of the Court, binding on him because the inaction is personal and not as representing the estate. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 193=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 213=1943 N.L.J. 237=206 Ind. Cas 335.

——Art. 141—Applicability — Adverse possession against limited owner.

Where, on the death of a bhagdar, his bhag lands were held by his widow, mother and his daughter and subsequently the widow remarried in 1905, and the mother died in 1920, and a reversioner of the bhagdar instituted a suit for recovering possession of the lands in 1925 and the daughter pleaded adverse possession:

Held, (i) that the suit was governed by Art. 141, and that the suit would not be barred till 12 years after the mother's death in 1920;

(ii) that the mother had a right to hold the lands and consequently, the adverse possession of the daughter even if it were adverse to the mother would not bar the reversioner. 34 Bom. L.R. 385 =A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 434=139 Ind. Cas. 28.

——Art. 141—Adverse possession against widow.

A suit for possession by the reversioners is governed Art. 141 and adverse possession against the female heir in not effective and binding on the reversioner. 120 Ind. Cas. 447=A.I.R. 1930 All. 307.

——Art. 141—Adverse possession against a Hindu widow cannot be tacked to the adverse possession against a person or his predecessor-in-title through whom he claims, when the predecessor-in-title has inherited disputed property not from the Hindu widow but from her husband whose reversionary heir he was. A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 670, Not foll. 123 Ind. Cas. 444=50 C.L.J. 260=57 Cal. 289=A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 165.

——Art. 141—Adverse possession against a woman holding a widow's or a daughter's estate is binding against the reversionary heir.

Per Curiam.—The state of the law created by the case in. 52 I.A. 322 is unsatisfactory. 51 C.L.J. 23.

——Art. 141—Adverse possession against widow.

Adverse possession for over 12 years against the widow does not affect the right of the reversioner and the reversioner is, therefore, entitled to twelve years from the widow's death for a suit to recover possession of immovable property where there has been no decree against the Hindu widow or other act in the law in the widow's lifetime depriving the reversioner of the right to possession on the widow's death. 51 I.A. 439 (P.C.), Foll. 9 Pat. 634= 11 P.L.T. 714=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 573=128 Ind. Cas. 131.

——Art. 141—No decree or other act depriving widow's right by adverse possession—Title barred in widow's lifetime—Heir can still rely, on widow's death, on Art. 141.

Where there has been no decree against widow or other act in the law in the widow's lifetime depriving the reversionary heir of the right to possession on the widow's death, the heir is entitled after the widow's death, to rely upon Art. 141 for the purpose of the determination of the question whether the title is barred by lapse of time. 23 Bom. 725 (P.C.), Foll. 117 Ind. ——Art. 141—Per Full Bench.—Where a widow has entered into possession as a Hindu widow and has either voluntarily parted with possession or been dispossessed against her consent, a suit by the reversioner brought for possession after her death is governed by Art. 141 and not by Art. 144 and a suit brought within 12 years of the death of the widow is not barred by limitation. 14 All. 156, Affirmed: 23 Bom. 725 (P.C.), Foll. 112 Ind. ——Art. 141—Where it is not shown that adverse possession began in the lifetime of the deceased (the original owner of the property) a suit by his reversioners on the death of the widow of the deceased to recover possession from a person in occupation would be governed by Art. 141. 68 Ind. Cas. 177 =36 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 106.

——Art. 141—Limitation does not bar a suit by the reversioners within 12 years of the death of the last surviving widow to set aside an alienation by which the widows were conferred occupancy rights or to challenge the title acquired by adverse possession by any person against the widows. 68 Ind. Cas. 299=2 L.L.J. 573.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner—Hindu widow—Adverse possession against.

Possession taken by a trespasser during the lifetime of a Hindu widow or a Hindu female with a life interest is not adverse as against the reversioner until after the death of the widow. 41 All. 154= 17 A.L.J. 44=47 Ind. Cas. 222.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Suit by reversioner—Hindu widow—Adverse possession.

Adverse possession which begins in and runs its course before the termination of a widow's life-estate does not affect the rights of the reversioners. The special period provided by Art. 141 overrides the general provision of Art. 144. 42 Bom. 69=19 Bom. L.R. 919=43 Ind. Cas. 233.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Suit by reversioner—Adverse possession against widow not effeftive against a reversioner—Limitation Acts of 1859 and 1908.

Art. 141 of the Limitation Act applies to a suit by a Hindu reversioner for possession of properties to which he became entitled after the death of a limited female owner. The reversioner has a fresh cause of action on the date of the death of the limited owner. Under the present Limitation Act unlike the Act of 1859, adverse possession against the widow does not extinguish the title of the reversioner. 23 Bom. 725 (P.C.); 20 M. 493; 23 A. 448; 25 A. 435, foll. 18 M. L. T. 226=2 L.W. 751=30 Ind. Cas. 991.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner — Adverse possession against widow.

A suit by the reversioners on the death of the widow for recovery of possession of property in which she had a life-estate of inheritance and was held adversely to her more than 13 years by a stranger is not barred by limitation as the plaintiff's claim as the heirs of the last male owner and not as the widow's heirs. 17 Ind. Cas. 136 (Mad.).

——Art. 141—Reversioner claiming under a family arrangement on death of a Hindu female — Adverse possession against the female, how far binding on reversioner.

Adverse possession against a Hindu female with only life interest will not affect a reversioner even when he claims not as heir to her husband but under a family arrangement by which she was to have only a life interest in her husband's estate and after her it was to go to the claimant and his heirs. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 893.

——Art. 141—Hindu Law—Adverse possession—Suit by reversioner to estate held by a Hindu female.

Under Art. 141, a suit can be brought by a reversioner for possession of immoveable property, to the possession of which a female heir has been entitled within twelve years from the date of the death of the female heir, although she may have been out of possession for more than twelve years. 23 B. 725, ——Art. 141—Applicability of — Adverse possession against daughters.

Where a Hindu governed by the Dayabagha law died leaving him surviving 2 daughters and a widowed daughter-in-law and the daughter-in-law took possession of the estate of the last male owner to the exclusion of the daughters and continued in possession of the estate for more than twelve years: Held, that the possession of the daughter-in-law was adverse and that since the survivor of the 2 daughters came in on the death of her sister not by way of inheritance but by way of survivorship, Art. 141 would not apply. 18 C.W.N. 904=27 Ind. Cas. 250.

3. Adverse possession against male owner.

——Art. 141—Adverse possession against last male owner.

Where adverse possession commences to run against the last male-owner himself, the intervention of the limited estate will not prevent time running and will not enable the reversioner coming after the limited owner to say that he has got a fresh cause of action on the death of the owner of the limited estate. A. I.R. 1942 Oudh 303=1942 O.W.N. 191=1942 A. W. R. (C.C.) 139=200 Ind. Cas. 265.

——Art. 141—Last full owner dispossessed — Time commenced to run, if arrested by succession of his widow.

Article 141, Limitation Act applies only to cases where it is proved that the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death. If he himself was dispossessed and time began to run against him the operation of the law of limitation would not be arrested by the fact than on his death he was succeeded by his widow. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 632=197 Ind. Cas. 756.

——Art. 141—Time commencing to run against last male-holder—Owner succeeded by female entitled to woman's limited property—Time is not suspended.

When time has once fommenced to run against the last male-holder, it continues to run and is not suspended or, in any way affected by the mere circumstance that the owner is succeeded by a female entitled to the usual woman's limited estate. After 12 years have run out from the date of the original entry of the trespasser, which happened in the lifetime of the last male-owner, all persons claiming through or under him are barred. Art. 141, Limitation Act is inapplicable to such a case. A. I.R. 1941 Lah. 271=43 P.L.R. 308=195 Ind. Cas. 712.

——Art. 141—Art. 141 will not give the reversioners a right to sue when the period of adverse possession in the lifetime of the propositus added to the period of adverse possession since the death of the widow exceeds 12 years. 86 Ind. Cas. 725=12 O.L.J. 77=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 400.

——Art. 141—Time commenced to run against last full owner—Article inapplicable.

Article 141 is inapplicable when time has once commenced to run against the last full owner as in such a case, it continues to run and is not suspended or in any way affected by the mere circumstance that the owner is succeeded by a female entitled to a woman's qualified estate after the statutory period has run out, all persons claiming through the owner are barred. (See Rustomji's Limitation Act, 2nd Edition, p. 449). The article makes it clear that the reversioner has 12 years after the death of a Hindu or Mohammadan female to establish his right as heir to the last full owner and it lies upon the party in possession to prove that he has got a better title. 77 Ind. Cas. 479=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 364.

——Art. 141—Art. 141 applies only where the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death. Where time has begun to run against him, it would not be arrested by the fact that on his death he was succeeded by a limited owner. 67 Ind. Cas. 246=45 Mad. 370=1922 M.W.N. 132=30 M.L.T. 143=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 59=42 M.L.J. 319.

——Art. 141—Applicability of — Adverse possession against last full owner.

Art. 141 applies only to cases where it is proved that the last full owner was in possession at the time of his death, if he himself was dispossessed and time began to run against him, the operation of the law of Limitation would not be averted by the fact that on his death, he was succeeded by the widow, daughter or mother. Under the law as it stood before the passing of the limitation Act of 1871, adverse possession which extinguished the title of the female heir also extinguished the title of the reversioner. 21 C. L. J. 157=19 C.W.N. 1280=27 Ind. Cas. 954.

4. Death of female.

——Art. 141—Death of female—What amounts to —Influx of time or inaction.

There is no warrant for the contention that the death of a female referred to under Art. 141 of the Limitation Act includes death by influx of time though it may include civil death. 224 Ind. Cas. 537=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 120=1946 O.W.N. 195 =1946 A.L.W. (C.C.) 144=(1946) O.A. (C.C.) 120=A.I.R. 1946 Oudh 213.

——Art. 141—Date of death—Onus of proof.

Where plaintiff brought a suit on the 5th May, 1914 and the last female holder died in May, 1902 and where the date of death was not known it was held that defendants were bound to prove that the female died before 5th May, 1902. 1 Lah. 554=114 P.L.R. 1920=2 Lah. 48=56 Ind. Cas. 742.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner — Death of a female—Burden of proof.

In a suit by reversioners entitled to property on the death of a particular female which would be governed by Art. 141, the burden of proof is on the plaintiffs to show that the suit was brought within 12 years of the death of the female. 13 N.L.R. 16=39 Ind. Cas. 21.

——Art. 141—Onus of proof as to the date of widow's death—Widow lost heard of prior to 12 years suit—Presumption as to time of death—Evidence Act, Ss. 107, 108.

In a suit by a reversioner for possession of lands on the death of a widow the onus is on the plaintiff to show that the suit is brought within 12 years from the widow's death. Where it was proved that the widow was last heard of on a date prior to 12 years before suit:

Held, that it lay upon the plaintiff to prove that the widow died within twelve years prior to suit; and in the absence of such proof his suit should fail. When the question is not one of death, but death at a particular time, there is no presumption as to such time, but the party who has to make out death at a particular time must make it out by evidence. (1904) 14 M.L.J. 464.

5. Interpretation.

(a) Entitled.
(b) 'Female'.
(c) 'Hindu'.

5. (a) Interpretation—'Female'.

——Art. 141—More than one female in succession.
Where there has been more than one female in succession, the suit must be brought within 12 years of the death of last female-holder. 20 N.L.J. 278.

——Art. 141—Art. 141, though it uses the word "female" in the singular, clearly covers a case where the Hindu reversioner is entitled to the property on the deaths of more than one female heir inheriting jointly. And when the last column speaks of "when female dies" it clearly means in such a case "after the deaths of all the female co-heirs". 60 Ind. Cas. 135=1921 M.W.N. 29=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 246=43 Mad. 855=39 M.L.J. 567=12 L.W. 656=28 M. L. J. 272.

5. (b) Interpretation—'Hindu'.

——Art. 141—'Hindu'—Meaning of.
The word "Hindu" in Art. 141 of the Limitation Act means not only a person who is ethnologically a Hindu but also a person who has the legal status of a Hindu and is governed in the matter of inheritance by the Hindu Law. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 159 =1946 N.L.J. 690=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 277.

5. (c) Interpretation—'Entitled'.

——Ar. 141—Interpretation—'Entitled'.
Per Sulaiman, Ag. C. J.—The arguments that the word "entitled" in Art. 141 necessarily means "entitled under the law and not extinguished by limitation," and that the article applies only to a suit brought by the first Hindu entitled to possession on the death of the first female heir are not supportable. 112 Ind. Cas. 801=51 All. 188=26 A. L.J. 1049=A.I.R. 1928 All. 561 (F.B.).

6. Starting point.

——Art. 141—Suit for possession on death of widow—Starting point of limitation.
Where a testator has made provision for the junior widow, and she has remained in possession until her death, the cause of action for the suit for possession arises only after her death. (1945) O. W.N. 174=49 C.W.N. 485=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 113 =12 B.R. 94=1945 M.W.N. 626=(1945) 2 M.L. J. 393=1945 A.W.R. 25 (P.C.)=59 M.L.W. 46= (1945) A.L.J. 520=220 Ind. Cas. 458 (P.C.).

——Art. 141—On death of widow, person having no title to property obtaining possession—Person subsequently becoming entitled to share in property along with reversioner—Character of possession is not changel—Suit by reversioner for possession more than 12 years from widow's death is barred. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 102=50 L.W. 571= (1939) M.W.N. 1225=187 Ind. Cas. 376.

——Art. 141—Suit by reversioner for possession of immovable property on death of Hindu female —Question as to validity of adoption to be decided.
A suit by a reversioner for possession of immovable property on the death of a Hindu female is governed by Art. 141, even if it is necessary to decide in the suit whether an adoption was or was not valid. The suit is not thereby converted into a suit for possession on the ground that the appointment of an heir is invalid or never in fact took place.
The reversioners have the option of treating the adoption as a nullity, and to bring a suit for possession, whether the transaction in question was void or voidable. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 213 (2)=35 P.L.R. 338=149 Ind. Cas. 434.

——Art. 141—Hindu widow surrendering to daughter—Succession opening on the death of daughter to her father's male reversioners—Suit by next reversioner 12 years after daughter's death is barred under Art. 141. A.I.R. 1934 P.C. 105=11 O.W. N. 596=1934 M.W.N. 414=39 M.L.W. 607=1934 A.L.J. 433=38 C.W.N. 697=59 C.L.J. 354=67 M. L.J. 20=36 Bom.L.R. 563=15 P.L.T. 497=57 Mad. 749=61 I.A. 200=3 A.W.R. 729=148 Ind. Cas. 828 (P.C.).

——Art. 141, Ss. 6, 8, Sch. 1—Alienation by widow—Adoption—Death of adopted son during minority—Succession of mother—Suit by reversioner within 12 years of mother's death—Limitation—Accrual of right to sue.
A Hindu widow sold in 1899 certain properties which she had inherited from her husband. She adopted a boy in 1905 but the latter died while still a minor in 1909. The widow who succeeded him as his mother died in 1921 without avoiding her alienation. The reversioners instituted a suit in 1923 for recovery of possession of the property:
Held, that time began to run only from the death of the widow and suit was not barred. (1930) M.W. N. 811=59 M.L.J. 949=33 M.L.W. 378=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 273=129 Ind. Cas. 460.

——Art. 141—Suit by co-widow—Starting point.
In a suit by co-widow to set aside a gift of husband's property by her co-widow, the limitation begins to run from the date of co-widow's death. Art. 1 of the Second Schedule of the C. P. Tenancy Act does not apply. 101 Ind. Cas. 822=10 N.L.J. 90= A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 226.

——Art. 141—Time once begun to run.
The father of plaintiff filed a suit during the lifetime of the widow to set aside alienations by her. The suit was held to be not maintainable as he was held not to be the nearest heir, but another B. After the widow's death B brought a suit to recover possession of the properties. But he was found not to be a reversioner at all. Then plaintiff filed another suit for possession of the properties more than 12 years after the death of the widow.
Held, that limitation when it once begins to run cannot stop running except in the particular exception mentioned in S. 9 of the Limitation Act that the time began to run from the date of the death of the widow and that the suit was barred. 70 Ind. Cas. 446=16 M.L.W. 529=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 108 =44 M.L.J. 87.

——Art. 141—Where an alienation was made by the daughter of the properties of the last male owner during the lifetime of the widow and after the death of the last female holder, the reversioner sues for possession of the properties.

Held, that time ran from the death of the last female owner. 69 Ind. Cas. 389=16 M.L.W. 752= A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 168.

——Art. 141—Time begins to run against the transferee from the death of the widow and not from the date of transfer by widow. 68 Ind. Cas. 601=1922 P.H.C.C. 313=2 Pat. 75=4 P.L.T. 267 =A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 72.

——Art. 141—Co-widows—Surrender of her interest by one in favour of the others—Alienation by surenderee—Suit by reversioner—Limitation.

Where one of two co-widows surrendered her interest in her husband's estate in favour of the other and the surrenderee alienated the property, a suit by a reversioner to recover possession of the alienated property within 12 years of the death of the survivor of the widows would be in time. The reversioner is not bound to sue within 12 years of the death of the surrenderee. Under Art. 141 time begins to run only on the death of all the female co-heirs. There can be no acceleration of the right of a reversioner without his knowledge and consent by any agreement between the female co-heirs. 39 M.L.J. 567=28 M.L.T. 272=12 L.W. 656=43 Mad. 855=60 Ind. Cas. 135=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 246.

——Art. 141—Starting point—'Time runs from death of limited owner'.

As against reversioners time runs from the death for female holder after which event the reversion vests in them. 11 N.L.R. 116=31 Ind. Cas. 290.

——Arts. 141 and 143—Starting point—Remarriage of Hindu widow—Suit by reversioner.

A suit by the reversioners to set aside an alienation by the widow of her deceased husband's property brought more than twelve years after her remarriage is barred under Arts. 141 and 143. On the remarriage, the widowhood ceases and the property vests in the reversioners. 11 N.L.R. 86=29 Ind. Cas. 612.

——Art. 141—Starting point.

Limitation begins from the death of the widow of a deceased co-sharer for his self acquired property. 6 P.R. 1912=218 P.L.R. 1911=204 P.W.R. 1911= 12 Ind. Cos. 453.

——Art. 141—Starting point.

The starting point is the death of the last surviving widow. The daughter-in-law's possession will not prevent time running unless it is shown that it was permissive. 29 C. 664, Foll. 33 All. 312=8 A.L.J. 57=9 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Arts. 141 and 144—Suit by reversioner—Hostile title by Limited owner.

Though time does not run against the reversioner owing to possession or dispossession of female, so long as she holds as heir of the last male-holder, yet if she holds under some claim of title independent of her possession is hostile to the rightful heir or reversioner. 6 C.L.J. 490; 23 B. 725 (P.C.); 22 Cal. 345, Foll. 9 C.L.J. 236=6 M.L.T. 362= 4 Ind. Cas. 44.

——Art. 141—Starting point—Suit for possession —Limitation when runs.

A suit by a Hindu reversioner entitled to possession of immoveable property on the death of a Hindu female is governed by Art. 141, Limitation Act. (1877) and the period commences from the date of the female's death. 34 C. 329 (P.C.), foll. 6 A.L.J. 723=6 M.L.T. 180=3 Ind. Cas. 536.

——Art. 141—Reversioners' suit—Patilki Vatan—Suit for declaration.

Among sudras, governed by the Mitakshara, an illegitimate son is not entitled to succeed collaterally in the family of his father. G, the holder of a Patilki Vatan, died in 1893. He left him surviving his widow R. In 1899, the defendant representing himself as the heir of G, got his name entered in the Collector's books as the next Vatandar R died in 1903. The plaintiffs, the heirs of G, filed a suit in 1906, praying for a declaration that they were the heirs to the Vatan and not the defendant. The lower Courts held that the claim was not barred under Art. 120. —Held, confirming the decree, that the plaintiffs right to sue for a declaration would not accrue until R's death whose existence at any time between G's death and her own would have defeated the suit for a declaration by the plaintiffs, on the ground that she had a vested right as the nearest heir of the last Vatandar. (1909) 34 B. 321=12 Bom.L.R. 204. =5 Ind. Cas. 964.

——Art. 141—Reversionary suit—Last female not holding as heir of last male—Limitation when begins to run.

Although the statute of limitation can never begin to run against the reversioner in consequence of possession or dispossession of a female, so long as she holds as heir of the last made, if she holds under some claim of title independent of him, her possession is hostile to the rightful heir or reversioner from the time it begins. 26 I.A. 71; 6 C.L.J. 490. foll. (1908) 9 C.L.J. 236=4 Ind. Cas. 44.

7. Miscellaneous.

——Art. 141—Effect—Limitation Act of 1871 and 1877.

The effect of Art. 142 of the Limitation Act of 1871 and Art. 141 of the Act of 1877 was to create a fresh rule in regard to limitation in all cases in which the prospective right arising out of adverse possession had not already ripened into an absolute title. 1942 A.W.R. ——Art. 141—Reversioner added as party after limitation.

Though a suit by one reversioner to recover possession of his share from the alinee from a Hindu widow would be barred under S. 28 read with Art. 141 as being beyond twelve years form the death of the widow, yet when a suit is brought within the proper period of limitation by another reversioner and the other reversioner is made defendant in it and he in his written statement claimed possession of his share, such a claim would not be barred by limitation in spite of the fact that the written statement itself was presented after the lapse of 12 years. 34 Bom. 91, Foll. 119 Ind. ——Art. 141—Attachment — Effect on possession of true owner.

If during the attachment, the seisin or legal possession is in the true owner the attachment does not amount to either dispossession of the owner or the discontinuance of his possession. 108 Ind. Cas. 89=7 Pat. 319=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 260.

——Art. 141—Limited owner—Nature of estate.

Limited estates taken by Hindu females are not the same as life-estates under English Law but for purpose of limitation, they are treated on the same principle. 18 O.C. 289=3 O.L.J. 45=33 Ind. Cas. 371.

1. Applicability and scope.

(a) Art. 142.
(b) Arts. 142 and 144.
(c) Art. 144.

1. (a) Applicability and Scope—Art. 142.

——Art. 142 — Applicability — Constructive dispossession.

Art. 142 of the Limitation Act covers cases of actual and constructive possession and dispossession. A person can remain in possession of a property through a licensee or a tenant. He is not in actual possession but his possession in law is there. Such a person can certainly be dispossessed and his dispossession in such a case would occur immediately his title is repudiated. There is no reason why Art. 142, should not apply to a case like this. 16 Lah. 442 (F.B.), foll. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 55.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff resting his case on constructive possession.

Where plaintiff, in a suit for possession never had actual possession but rested his case on constructive possession, Held, that Art. 142 cannot apply. 68 Ind. Cas. 320=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 2.

——Art. 142—Applicability — Mortgage decree for sale—Execution—Sale of property not covered by mortgage or decree—Delivering of possession to purchasers—Suit for possession by judgment-debtor—Limitation. See C. P. CODE, S. 47. 52 Bom. L. R. 358=A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 346.

——Art. 142—Applicability — No allegation of dispossession.

Art. 142 of the Limitation Act has no application where there is no allegation either of dispossession or discontinuance of possession in the plaint. I.L.R. (1949) Nag. 883.

——Art. 142—Muhammadan widow in possession in lieu of dower debt dispossessed by trespasser—Suit by widow or her heirs for possession—S. 9, Specific Relief Act, effect of.

There is nothing in the provisions of S. 9, Specific Relief Act, which in any way militates against the principle that previous possession enjoyed peaceably by a Muhammadan widow in lieu of her dower debt —or anybody else who has obtained possession even for a period short of the statutory period of 12 years—entitles the person who has been in such possession to a decree for possession in a suit against a trespasser provided the suit is brought within 12 years of the date of dispossession and since the right to retain possession by the Muhammadan widow in lien of her dower debt is heritable, the heirs of the widow can institute a suit for possession against the trespasser under Art. 142. A.I.R. 1944 All. 36 =(1943) A.L.J. 590=1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 288= I.L.R. (1944) All. 68=211 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 142—Question of applicability of particular article—Duty of Court.

In order to determine the particular article applicable to a suit, it is the duty of the Court to consider the facts and circumstances admitted and proved in the case. Where there is no allegation of dispossession in the plaint but the facts show that the defendants entered or must have entered on the land while it was in the possession of the plaintiff, the article applicable would be Art. 142. It would be absurd to hold that a plaintiff, can, at his sweet will, avoid the operation of Art. 142 by framing his suit in such a manner as if there was no dispossession. A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 134=1939 O.W.N. 1005 =1939 A.W.R. 270=15 Luck. 157=185 Ind. Cas. 736.

——Art. 142—When plaintiffs allege their possession and dispossession in a suit for possession, Art. 142 applies. (1940) 42 P.L.R. 531.

——Art. 142—Suit to set aside contract made void by statute—Claim for restitution—Addition of ancillary relief—Transacaion embodied in two instruments—Claim for restitution in respect of separable part:

Held, that Art. 142 was applicable. A.I.R. 1938

Nag. 335=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 1=177 Ind. Cas. 6 (F.B.).

——Art. 142—Where property in dispute consists of lands actually cultivated or of house capable of actual occupation and the plaintiff sues for possession of such property on the allegation that he was dispossessed by the defendant, Art. 142 is undoubtedly applicable and the plaintiff must show that his dispossession occurred within twelve years before the institution of the suit. But where the property is of such a nature that it is not capable of actual physical possession or where the property, though capable of physical possession, is in the occupation of one through whom the plaintiff can be in constructive possession, different considerations apply. In considering the question whether the plaintiff was dispossessed within twelve years, or whether his possession discontinued within twelve years, the nature of the property and the position of those actually occupying it, if it is capable of actual occupation must be taken into consideration:

Held, that where the property (a tank) and its appurtenances are not capable of enjoyment and there is no suggestion that the defendants so conducted themselves in relation to the tank purchased by them as to amount to the plaintiff's dispossession, the plaintiff's possession must be taken to have continued till the defendants' possession became adverse as regards continuity and extent. 1935 A.W.R. 728 =1935 R.D. 267=A.I.R. 1935 All. 774=(1935) A. L. J. 828=155 Ind. Cas. 824.

——Art. 142—Where the claim to property is not based on possession and subsequent dispossession, Art. 142 does not apply. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 576=36 P. L. R. 269=151 Ind. Cas. 490.

——Art. 142—If an owner sues 12 years after dispossession from land, he cannot set up admission made by the trespasser as giving him further time in which he may bring his suit unless those admissions come within S. 19, Limitation Act. Under Art. 142, the suit must be brought within 12 years of dispossession. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 414=60 C. 404= 144 Ind. Cas. 177.

——Art. 142—Length of defendant's possession, if material.

Article 142 applies only to those cases in which the plaintiffs rely on their possession as opposed to lawful title. Peaceful possession is itself a good title against all the world except a person who can show a better title and such possession is an interest which can be sold and devised. If a person, though not the owner, is, while in the enjoyment of his peaceful possession, ousted, he has a right to claim to to be restored to possession. It is to such cases that Art. 142 applies. Under Art. 142 the question of limitation does not depend on the length of the defendant's possession but on the question whether plaintiff was dispossessed or he discontinued his possession. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 274=30 N.L.R. 18=150 Ind. Cas. 679.

——Art. 142—Applies only to suits on possessory title (i.e.), possession and subsequent dispossession.

Article 142 is restricted to cases in which the relief for possession sought by the plaintiff is based on what may be styled as possessory title and the burden of proving the fact that the plaintiff was in possession and was dispossessed within 12 years of the date of the suit lies on the plaintiff and on proving these facts, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree unless the defendant establishes that he is the true owner of the property in dispute. 119 Ind. Cas. 6=1929 A.L.J. 1106= 51 All. 1042=A.I.R. 1929 All. 753.

——Art. 142—Applicability.

Where there is a clear finding that the plaintiffs were either dispossessed or had discontinued possession of a holding for more than 12 years before suit, the claim of the plaintiffs is clearly time-barred under Art. 142. 119 Ind. Cas. 8 (All.).

——Art. 142—Suit for possession — Ancillary prayer for the removal of the trees—Suit is governed by Art. 142. A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 47, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 199=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 89.

——Art. 142—Where the defendant admits dispossession of the plaintiff in a suit for recovery of possession, the suit is governed by Art 142. 96 Ind. Cas. 568 (Cal.).

——Art. 142—Article 142 has no application to claims which neither in terms nor in substance are claims to possession made necessary, by reason of dispossession or discontinuance of possession. 87 Ind. Cas. 386=21 M.L.W. 398=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 834.

——Art. 142—Defendant basing his possession on deed of gift—Gift not proved.

Where defendant bases his possession on a deed of gift which he fails to prove, the conclusion is not that his possession is permissive but that it is that of a trespasser. Such a suit is governed by Art. 142. 73 Ind. Cas. 41=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 341.

——Art. 142—Scope — Simple mortgage—Mortgagor continuing in possession.

Article 142 cannot be interpreted to include within its scope a case where a simple mortgage was executed and the mortgagor continued in possession as before. 74 Ind. Cas. 630=50 Cal. 49=36 C.L.J. 35=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 1.

——Art. 142—Where there is no reliable proof of un-equivocal acts of ownership, the case must be decided on the proof of possession. Having regard therefore to the definite findings that the plaintiffs were dispossessed by the defendants, and that the defendants have been in possession for a period of 16 years before the suit, the suit must be held to be barred by limitation. 67 Ind. Cas. 1005=27 C.W.N. 340=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 224.

——Art. 142—Where the plaintiffs have not proved their possession and dispossession within 12 years and defendants have proved adverse posession, Art. 142 applies to a case of this description. 59 Ind. Cas. 891=3 L.L.J. 72=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 202.

——Art. 142—True owner obtaining possession by force—Limitation.

Possession of the true owner however obtained, counts in his favour for the purpose of Art. 142 of the Limitation Act, in a suit brought by him for the recovery of possession on estasblishment of title. 45 Ind. Cas. 548 (Cal.).

——Art. 142 — Applicability — Possession and dispossession.

If the plaintiffs allege possession and dispossession, the case is governed by art. 142. 2 Ind. Cas. 381 (Cal.).

——Arts. 142 and 91—Suit for cancellation of deed—Relief for confirmation of possession or for possession in alternative—Suit barred under Art. 91—Relief of possession also barred—Article 142 held, not applicable. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 500=65 C.L.J. 34 =172 Ind. Cas. 755.

——Arts. 142 and 120—Encroachment of gallery on another's land.

Where a gallery of a person's house encroaches upon another's land, he is unquestionably a trespasser in view of the maxim "whosoever has the soil, also owns to the heavens above and to the centre of the earth." Hence where in such a case, the owner of the land trespassed brings a suit for relief under S. 54, Specific Relief Act, coupled with a claim for possession of land below the gallery, to which the opposite party has asserted his title, the suit is not governed by Art. 120 but by Art. 142. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 197=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 580=1939 N.L.J. 297=186 Ind. Cas. 155.

——Arts. 142 and 120—Where the suit is on the face of it one for recovery of possession of immovable property who had taken unlawful possession thereof and had planted new trees thereon,

Held, that the suit is governed by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. A prayer for removal of the recently planted trees is merely ancillary to the claim for possession will not take the case out of Art. 142 and make Art. 120 applicable. 66 Ind. Cas. 799=9 O. L. J. 17=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 47.

——Arts. 142 and 120—Non occupancy ryot, suit by, for recovery of possession—Specific Relief Act, S. 9.

Held, by F.B. (Prinsep, J. dissentiente);—that the remedy in S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act is not the only remedy which the legislature has provided for a non-occupancy raiyat who has been dispossessed otherwise than in due course of law. 7 C.W.N. 218, overruled. The period of limitation applicable to the case of a non-occupancy ryot who has been dispossessed from his holding otherwise than in execution of a decree is either 6 or 12 years as provided in Art. 120 or Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. (1904) 8 C.W.N. 446; 31 Cal. 647 (F.B.).

——Arts. 142 and 138—Where the defendant claims through the judgment-debtor, Art. 138 would apply, but when symbolical possession has been given to the auction-purchaser it will be equivalent to actual possession against the defendant and thereupon Art. 142 will apply to the case. 70 Ind. Cas. 602=27 C.W.N. 259=36 C.L.J. 140=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 176.

——Arts. 142 and 140—Life-estate granted by agreement by B to his adoptive mother—Dispossession of latter—B predeceasing mother—A adopted by B's widow—Suit by A after attaining majority for declaration of title and recovery of possession on ground of dispossession of grandmother—Held, Art. 142 and not Art. 140 applied. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 228= 60 C.L.J. 391.

1. (b) Applicability and scope—Arts. 142 and 144.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Scope and applicability

In a suit for possession of a house the main allegations made by the plaintiff in the plaint were that he was the owner of the house, that he had let it out to the defendants 10 or 11 years before the institution of the suit, and that the defendants had not paid any rent since 1939. The defendants alleged that they were the owners of the house, that the plaintiff was not its owner and that they had never been the plaintiff's tenants. The defendants further pleaded that the plaintiff had never been in possession of the house within 12 years prior to the institution of the suit, and that they had been in adverse possession of the house for over twelve years. The Court held that the plaintiff had succeeded in proving his title to the house, that the defendants had been in uninterrupted possession of the house since 1918 and that the plaintiff's allegation that the defendants had ever paid rent to him was false.

Held, that on the findings of fact arrived at, Art. 142 of the Limitation Act applied to the case and that the suit was barred. A plaintiff cannot, by cleverly drafting the plaint, evade the burden of proof which Art. 142 casts upon a person who is suing for possession on the ground of dispossession. As a matter of fact, the allegations made in the plaint in the present case do amount to an allegation that the plaintiff has been dispossessed while in possession of the property in dispute. The allegation that the defendants had been in occupation of the house as the plaintiff's tenants amounted to an allegation that the plaintiff was in possession of the house through his tenants. The allegation that the defendants had not paid any rent since 1939 amounted to an allegation that the defendants had dispossessed the plaintiff.

Held, further, that Art. 144, being a residuary article, was not applicable unless it was found that no other article was applicable to the suit. I.L.R. (1946) All. 178=1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 216=1946 O.W.N. (H.C.) 188=1946 A.L.W. 196=223 Ind. Cas. 467=A.I.R. 1946 All. 389.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability—Test.

Per Ray, J.:—Arts. 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act have to be interpreted as they stand in deciding as to whether a particular case attracts the provisions of this article or that article. So far as Art. 142 is concerned, it is not stated there that the suit should be one in which the plaintiff should allege that he has been in possession and dispossessed. It it not the form of allegations of the plaintiff which will determine the nature of the suit, but it is the substance and the actual facts found by the Courts which will go to decide whether the suit is one which comes within the purview of either Art. 142 or Art. 144. 222 Ind. Cas. 378=12 B.R. 260=27 P.L.T. 217=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 185.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Mere licensee, whether can sue in his name for possession—Arrangement to enjoy usufruct of immovable property described as license, held created interest in immovable property—Suit to enjoy usufruct of property under arrangement held one for possession and maintainable. A. I. R. 1943 Cal. 143=75 C.L.J. 236=206 Ind. Cas. 311.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit by licensee.

Articles 142 and 144 are not limited to suits for possession based on proprietary title; but they certainly contemplate suits for possession in which some interest in immovbable property is claimed. A mere licensee has no interest in immovable property and is not therefore entitled to maintain an action for possession. But when the so-called license is coupled with an interest in immovable property, the licensee can maintain a suit for possession. 206 Ind. Cas. 311=75 C.L.J. 236=A.I.R. 1943 C. 143.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Where, in a suit for possession, the plaintiff alleges that the defendant's possession is permissive under a license but the defendant denies the same, the suit is governed by Art. 142 and not by Art. 144.

(Distinction between dispossession and discontinuance of possession pointed out.) 1942 N.L.J. 99.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Dispossession or discontinuance of possession not alleged in plaint but alleged in evidence.

The plaintiff in his plaint did not expressly allege dispossession or discontinuance of possession but he stated clearly alleged dispossession in evidence. Art. 142 applied to the suit and not Art. 144 Limitation Act and if the plaintiff did not prove possession within 12 years before suit he could not succeed. 1942 O.W.N. 753=18 Luck. 624=204 Ind. Cas. 377.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Whether the land belongs to a community or not if one person takes sole and exclusive possession of it, and excludes all others who have a right to occupation, from possession, then the trespass is not a continuing trespass but is dispossession falling under Arts. 142 and 144. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 145=1939 N.I.J. 153=182 Ind. Cas. 613.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Distinction between

Per Rangnekar, J.—Article 142 applies in cases where a plaintiff sues to recover possession on the allegation that he was in possession and that his prior possession is lost by dispossession or discontinuance. The sole question under that article is, has the plaintiff alleged that he was in possession and that he has been dispossessed whereas the sole question under Art. 144 is, is the plaintiff owner of the property in question? In other words, has the plaintiff set up his title to the property, leaving it open to the defendant to say that although the plaintiff is the owner, the defendant is in possession which is adverse to him? Under Art. 142, there must be an allegation of prior possession and subsequent dispossession or discontinuance, and it is for the plaintiff to prove that such dispossession or discontinuance has taken place within the period of limitation provided in that article. It does not matter whether he is dispossessed by the defendant or any one else, for Art. 142 does not mention the word "defendant" as Art. 144 does. If it is the plaintiff's case that he was in possession of certain property but that possession is lost by dispossession or discontinuance, then if the dispossession or discontinuance took place more than 12 years prior to the suit, the suit would be barred. All that is necessary is the actual possession of a stranger beyond the minimum period of 12 years. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 322=41 Bom. L.R. 631=184 Ind. Cas. 23.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Distinction in applicability.

The two articles, Art. 142 and Art. 144 apply to two different sets of circumstances. Article 142, on the face of it is restricted to a suit based on the plaintiff's prior possession lost by dispossession, and in order to bring the suit within Art. 142, the plaintiff must allege that he was originally in possession of the property which is the subject-matter of the suit, and that he has been dispossessed by the defendant. In other words, he must prove that he was dispossessed within 12 years. The whole question under Art. 142 is, whether more than 12 years have elapsed since the plaintiff was dispossessed; and, if the plaintiff fails to prove that—the onus obviously being upon him—the defendant is not called upon to set up his adverse possession. Article 142 makes no reference to the defendant or to his possession. That is done in Art. 144. Article 144 is a residuary article, and only applies if no other article is applicable. The article applies only when there is no allegation in the plaint that the plaintiff has been in possession and has been dispossessed. It applies when the suit is based on the ground that the plaintiff is the owner of the property and the defendant is a trespasser having no right to remain in possession. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 210=40 Bom. L.R. 166=175 Ind. Cas. 93.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for possession—Denial of ownership — Dispossession prior to suit—Art. 142 governs claim.

Where, in a suit for possession plaintiff admits that defendant denied his ownership and that defendant entered into possession of plaintiff's share even prior to the suit, the suit is one for recovery of possession on the ground of plaintiff's dispossession and is governed by Art. 142, Limitation Act and not by Art. 144. A.I.R. 1937 All. 124=1936 A.W.R. 1014=167 Ind. Cas. 371.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for possession based both on plaintiff's title and possessory title, invite the application of Arts. 142 and 144, according to the varying circumstances of each case. Article 142 applies to a case in which relief for possession sought by the plaintiff is founded on what may be styled as his possessory title. The burden of proving the fact of possession and dispossession lies upon the plaintiff. On the other hand, when a plaintiff sues for possession of property on the basis of his title, the proper article is 144, and the plaintiff is entitled to a decree on proof of his title unless the defendant succeeds in establishing his adverse possession for a period of more than 12 years immediately preceding the suit. 30 S.L.R. 472=A.I.R. 1937 Sind 226=170 Ind. Cas. 621.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Pleadings should be scrutinised.

In all cases in which the applicability of Art. 142 or Art. 144, is in controversy, it is necessary to scrutinise the pleadings of the plaintiff and to ascertain exactly the allegations on which the plaintiff has come into Court and the reliefs sought by him. Sometimes the pleas raised in defence by the defendant are also relevant to the enquiry. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 507=37 P.L.R. 171=157 Ind. Cas. 399.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Where the plaintiff's pleadings show that his case is based upon the fact of his possession and subsequent dispossession by the defendant, the case comes within the purview of Art. 142. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 507=37 P.L.R. 171=157 Ind. Cas. 399.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Assertion of title but no assertion of possession or dispossession—Article applicable.

Where there is a clear assertion of title and there is nowhere any assertion of possession by the plaintiffs or of their dispossession by the defendants, then Art. 142 cannot be applied. It is unnecessary for the plaintiffs to show in their plaint that the case is of a nature to which Art. 144 applied. That article is a residuary article and must be applied unless some special article applies. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 133=158 Ind. Cas. 968.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff co-sharer with defendants — Dispossession by transferees of latter.

Where a plaintiff, who was a co-sharer with some of the defendants who transferred a part of the property to third parties admits in the plaint that he was dispossessed by the transferees some time prior to the institution of the suit, Art. 142 of the Limitation Act, applies and not Art. 144.

There is no justification for limiting the scope of Art. 142 to suits in which the belief for possession sought by the plaintiff is based on what may be styled as possessory title.

Per Mukerji, J.—The proposition that Art. 144 applies to all cases where the plaintiff has proved his title is too wide. (1934) A.L.J. 973=A.I.R. 1934 All. 993=18 R.D. 541=4 A.W.R. 821=57 A. 278 =152 Ind. Cas. 1 (F.B.).

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Applicability — Reference to—Pleadings.

Where, in a suit for possession, the defendant had denied the plaintiff's title, had claimed title in himself and had set up adverse possession, the suit is governed by Art. 144, and if the defendant fails to establish his adverse possession for 12 years, the plaintiff is entitled to a decree for possession. Article 142 has no application to claims which neither in terms nor in substance are claims to possession made necessary by reason of dispossession or discontinuance of possession. "Dispossession" implies the coming in of a person and the driving out of another from possession. "Discontinuance" implies the going out of the person in possession and his being followed into possession by another. The onus of establishing title to property by adverse possession lies on the person asserting it. In order to bring a suit within purview of Art. 142 it must be shown that the suit was in terms as well as in substance based on an allegation of the plaintiff having been in possession and having subsequently lost it either by dispossession or by discontinuance of possession.

The question whether the article of limitation applicable to a particular suit is Art. 142 or 144 has to be determined by a reference to the pleadings. Where there is no allegation in the pleadings about the plaintiff having lost possession either by dispossession or by discontinuance of possession, and the suit is based on title, the suit is governed by Art. 144, and not by Art 142 of the First Schedule of the Limitation Act. Where there is hardly any evidence of an unequivocal character which can justify a presumption that the plaintiff must have known that the possession of the defendant has been in assertion of a hostile title it cannot be held that the title by adverse possession has been perfected. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 21=11 O.W.N. 104=147 Ind. Cas. 805 (D.B.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Article applicable depends to some extent on allegation—Where plaintiff's dispossession is admitted, article applicable is 142 and where it is denied, article applicable is 144. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 593=1 B.R. 153=16 P.L.T. 109=152 Ind. Cas. 906.

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Defendant in possession for a long time, not with leave or license of plaintiff.

When the defendant is proved to be in possession for a long time, and that not with the leave and license of the plaintiff, a suit by the plaintiff for possession is governed by Art. 142 and not Art. 144. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 413=149 Ind. Cas. 1120.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability — Reference to pleadings.

Article 142 is restricted to suits for possession on dispossession or on discontinuance of possession. In order to bring a suit within the purview of that article it must be shown that the suit was in terms as well as in substance based on an allegation of the plaintiff having been in possession and having subsequently lost it either by dispossession or by discontinuance of possession. Article 144, on the other hand, is a residuary article applying to suits for possession not otherwise provided for. Suits based on the plaintiff's title in which there is no allegation of prior possession and subsequent dispossession or discontinuance of possession must fall within this article. The question whether the article of limitation applicable to a particular suit is Art. 142 or 144 has to be determined by a reference to the pleadings.

Mere possession for any length of time does not per se create any title by adverse possession. In order to acquire such title, the possession must not only be open and exclusive but it must also be shown to have been adverse for the full statutory period. Notoriety of possession may, in some cases, justify a presumption that the true owner was aware of the character of the possession being adverse. But whether in the absence of direct proof of actual knowledge on the part of the true owner such a presumption should be raised against him or not must depend upon the special facts and circumstances of each case. 8 O.W.N. 1153=A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 46=7 Luck. 250=137 Ind. Cas. 678.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Discontinuance of possession—Possession not resumed—Article applicable is 142 and not 144. 9 O.W.N. 43=A.I.R. 1932 P.C. 55=36 C.W.N. 250=35 L.W. 217=(1932) A.L.J. 186=55 C.L.J. 136=62 M.L.J. 296=34 Bom. L.R. 463=13 P.L.T. 279=11 Pat. 272= (1932) M.W.N. 660=59 I.A. 130=136 Ind. Cas. 798 (P.C.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Where the plaintiff alleges his possession over immovable property and dispossession by the defendant and where it is found that the possession of the plaintiff was discontinued when defendant entered into possession not as a tenant of the plaintiff but in his own rights, the article of limitation applicable to such a suit is Art. 142 and not Art. 144. 8 O.W.N. 349=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 177=136 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Frame of suit determines the article applicable as also facts proved.

No doubt whether Art. 144 or 142, Limitation Act, applies depends directly on the frame of the suit. But the plaintiff has to justify the frame of the suit and he cannot merely by framing his suit in a particular manner refuse to allege dispossession when the facts of the case show that there was dispossession and thereby shift the onus on to the defendant. 126 Ind. Cas. 800=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 330.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Usufructuary mortgagee dispossessed—Suit for possession or mortgage money.

Where a usufructuary mortgagee who is dispossessed of the mortgaged property owing to sale for arrears of revenue afterwards sues for mortgage money or in the alternative for possession, his suit is governed by 12 years' rule of limitation and not by six years' rule. 8 Pat. 569=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 209.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Dispossession — Usufructuary mortgagee put in possession and subsequently ousted.

Where an usufructuary mortgagee was put in possession but has subsequently lost it, a suit by the mortgagee to recover possession is governed by Arts. 142 or 144 as the case may be. 9 N.L.R. 179= 22 Ind. Cas. 65.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adopted son not in possession of his deceased father's estate for more than 12 years after the father's death except for an unauthorised and forcible entry for a short time after 12 years—Son's suit to recover possession after 12 years is time-barred. 110 Ind. Cas. 180=5 O. W. N. 515=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 348.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Defendant in possession of plaintiff's property from 1897 for management—Defendant asserting hostile title in 1915—Plaintiff suing in 1922 for recovery of possession—Plaintiff's suit was held not time-barred as his title was not extinguished by the defendant's adverse acts. The article applicable in the case was 144, and not 142 or 143. 117 Ind Cas. 532=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 582.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Difference between.

If the suit is for possession by a plaintiff who says that while he was in possession of the property he was dispossessed or has gone out of possession then he must show possession within 12 years. But in every other case in which a plaintiff claims possession of immovable property, it must be a case under Art. 144 because it is a case not otherwise specially provided, and in such a case limitation only begins to run where the defendant's possession becomes adverse. The result of that is that the onus lies on the defendant to plead and prove that his possession became adverse and continued adverse for more than 12 years before the suit. 41 All. 669 and A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 21 Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 814=25 A.L.J. 802=A. I. R. 1927 All. 799.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Difference between.

Where the plaintiff alleges that he was dispossessed or discontinued possession or where it is proved that the plaintiff had been dispossessed or had discontinued his possession, Art. 142 applies. But in the absence of either allegation by the plaintiff or proof that he was dispossessed or discontinued possession, Art. 144 shall govern. 100 Ind. Cas. 477=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 236.

——Arts 142 and 144—Suit based on dispossession is governed by Art. 142.

A suit for possession on the ground that the plaintiff has been in possession by using the site up to two years before suit when the defendant built a wall and ousted her, is governed by Art. 142 and not 144. 16 Cal. 743 (P.C.), Foll. 93 Ind. Cas. 1004 (Lah.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff alleging possession—Art. 142 and not 144 applies.

Every suit for possession of immovable property in which the plaintiff alleges that he has had possession, must fall under Art. 142. It is only where the plaintiff does not allege that he had ever been in possession that the case would fall under Art. 144. 39 Bom. 335; 14 N.L.R. 82; 16 Cal. 473 (P.C.) and A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 557, Foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 1023= A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 370.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Obiter:—To a suit for possession involving the question as to whether possession of certain property by a Hindu widow is in lieu of her maintainance or is adverse, the article applicable is Art. 144 and not Art. 142. 87 Ind. Cas. 164=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 669.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Discontinuation of possession.

Where the circumstances showed that the possession of the plaintiffs was discontinued when the defendant entered into the possession of the house in suit,

Held, that Art. 142 and not Art. 144 applied. 79 Ind. Cas. 964=27 O.C. 130=11 O.L.J. 251=A. I. R. 1925 Oudh 42.

——Arts 142 and 144—Suit in ejectment by person dispossessed — Plaintiff must show his possession within 12 years—Possession of independent trespassers without interval will bar true owner's title—Any interval, however will cause restoration of true owner's title—Adverse possession.

Discontinuance of possession takes place where the person in possession goes out and is followed into possession by another person. In all cases, where the person, who was in possession at one time and discontinued possession or was dispossessed, seeks to eject a person in possession, he has to show that he was in possession within 12 years before the suit.

In order that the title of the true owner may be barred by the adverse possession of a trespasser or a series of trespassers the possession by them must be continued, and so long as it is continuous it is immaterial whether they claim through one another or independently; but if a period of time should elapes, however short, after the abandonment of one trespasser who has not been in for the full statutory period and the entry of another, the title of the true owner is, as from the time of such abandonment, restored to him without any entry or act done on his part, for the statute does not apply to a case of want of possession by true owner but only to the cases where the owner is out of possession and another is in possession for the prescribed time. 67 Ind Cas. 246=1922 M.W.N. 132=45 Mad. 370= 30 M L.T. 143=A I.R. 1922 Mad. 59=42 M.L.J. 319.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability of—Suit for possession of immoveable property.

In a suit governed by Art. 142 the plaintiff must prove has possession within twelve years from the date of suit and on failure to do so, the suit should be dismissed without going into the question of the defendant's title, but in a suit governed by Art. 144 the plaintiff has only to prove his title and the defendant would then have to prove his allegation of adverse possession. 12 Bur.L.T. 234=56 Ind. Cas. 951.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability of—Suit by heir to recover possession from trespasser—Limitation—Tacking of adverse possession.

When an owner of a property has died in peaceful possession of the estate which is then seized by a trespasser before the lawful heir has entered in possession, a suit by the latter to recover the estate is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. Distinction between Arts. 142 and 144 pointed out. Though an heir can tack on the possesion of the predecessor-in-title to his own a trespasser cannot be allowed to add to his possession the possession of another previous trespasser whom he dispossessed. 14 N.L.R. 82=43 Ind. Cas. 943.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability of—Burden of proof—Possession and dispossession.

Where the plaintiff alleges possession of land and it is found that part of the land is de facto in the possession of another person, the suit must fall under Art. 142. It is only where the plaintiff does not allege that he has ever been in possession that the case will fall under Art. 144. In the former class of cases the plaintiff is bound to show that the dispossession or discontinuance of possession which gives rise to the starting point of limitation was within 12 years of the date of the suit. 39 Bom. 335=17 Bom.L.R. 141=28 Ind. Cas. 24.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Discontinuance of possession—Co-sharer — Possession by mutual consent in ignorance of right—Adverse possession.

Where two persons are in a joint possession of a land by mutual consent for 12 years in ignorance of the fact that one is entitled to the whole, limitation against the latter by discontinuance of possession under Art. 142 or by adverse possession under Art. 144 arises. The mere fact, of consent does not prevent the possession from being adverse. 17 C.W.N. 595=18 Ind. Cas. 869.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability of.

Where, in execution of a money decree against N; A attached certain properties, for the possession of which N, had obtained a decree against B, (who was in possession as N's guardian but laid claim to the properties in her own right) but had allowed the execution thereof to become barred by litimation and X who had dispossessed B, intervened and got the attachment removed, and A brought a suit under S. 283 of the Old Code of Civil Procedure, Held, (1) that A must prove that N, had a subsisting right to the property and that the suit must be tried as if it were a suit for possession by N, the judgment-debtor, (2) that though the decree obtained by N, had become incapable of execution the right established by it still remained, (3) that there was no dispossession or discontinuance of possession by N, and that therefore the suit is governed not by Art. 142 but by Art. 144, of the Limitation Act. 35 Bom. 79=12 Bom.L.R. 956 =8 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Applicability of Dispossession.

Art. 144 applies to a suit where no allegation either of ever having been in possession or of having been dispossessed is made. 14 C.W.N. 317=11 C.L.J. 373=3 Ind. Cas. 15.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Suit on award for possession of immovable properties—Art. 142 or 144 applicable?:—See 4 C.L.J. 162=33 C. 881.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Distinction and applicability—Suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code.

A suit under O. 21, R. 63, Civil P. Code, by a judgment-creditor for a declaration that suit lands are the properties of judgment-debtors was held in the circumstances of the case as not governed by Art. 142 but by Art. 144 even though the judgment-debtors of the creditor had not possession of the lands for 12 years before suit. Per Chandavarkar, J.—Discontinuance of possession contemplated by Art. 142 implies that the person discontinuing has given up the land and left it to be possessed by any one choosing to come in. 14 Ch. D. 537, followed. Per Heaton, J.—Article 142 has no application to claims which neither in form nor in substance are claims to possession, made necessary by reason of dispossession or discontinuance of possession. As a general principle any one suing in ejectment must prove possession within twelve years. The reason for this is that possession commonly the effective assertion of title which is relied on; but it is not the only one. There is another, which in some cases is equally good, and that is an assertion of title made in court and established by a decree. That is good against those who are party defendants to the suit; and if the same title is re-asserted and made good in a later suit against other opposing parties it is good against them also and entitles to possession whether the title claimant has or has not been in possession within twelve years, unless the opponent can defeat the title by adverse possession. (1910) 12 Bom.L.R. 956=35 Bom. 79=8 Ind. Cas. 639.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit on award for possession of immoveable properties.

A suit on an award for possession of immoveable properties is governed by Art. 142 or 144 of the Limitation Act. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 162=33 C. 881.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit by widow to recover husband's moveables and immoveables in joint estate. See 14 M.L.J. 8=31 Cal. 262=31 I.A. 10 (P.C.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Mirasi rights, claim for—Limitation applicable.

A claim to mirasi land is subject to the same laws of limitation as regulate suits to recover other immoveable property. 12 B.H.Cr. at p. 93, foll. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 801.

1. (c) Applicability and Scope—Art. 144.

——Art. 144—Scope.

Article 144 being a residuary article cannot be applied when some other article is applicable. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 129=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 254=171 Ind. Cas. 271.

——Art. 144—Art. 144 applies only where other articles do not. (1902) 12 M.L.J. 119=25 M. 507.

——Art. 144—Applicability — Chur land becoming fit for enjoyment — Adverse possession against rightful owner—When commences.

A rightful owner, who is only presumed to be in possession till a chur becomes fit for enjoyment, is not dispossessed by his not taking possession as soon as it becomes so fit, till another person occupies it and begins to till, and such a case would come within Art. 144, Limitation Act, and a defendant pleading that the suit against him is barred under that article must prove adverse possession for 12 years or over before suit. 2 D.R. 265.

——Art. 144—Article 144 only properly applies to a case in which the defendant is holding adversely to the plaintiff without title. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 147 =2 B.R. 349=161 Ind. Cas. 585.

——Art. 144—Agreement to convey certain area of land—Limitation.

Where parties entered into a compromise in 1918 under which the defendant agreed to give a certain area of land to the plaintiff and the plaintiff sued in 1929 for recovery of the land:

Held, that as the area had not been selected, Art. 144 had no application to the suit. 32 P.L.R. 761= (1932) Lah. 75=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 24=135 Ind. Cas. 203.

——Art. 144—Applicability.

Article 144, is applicable only to a possessory suit by the owner of the property claimed against a person holding adversely to him without title. 35 C.W.N. 953=61 M.L.J. 78=A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 196=8 O.W.N. 905=(1931) A.L.J. 783=34 L.W. 411=33 Bom.L.R. 1390=10 Pat. 851=13 P.L.T. 1=58 I.A. 279=133 Ind. Cas. 705 (P.C.).

——Art. 144—Uncle and nephew creating trust at partition between them and managing by rotation —Will by uncle authorising his sons and nephew or his sons after him, to manage—Nephew dying after will, and uncle becoming sole trustee—Will takes effect after uncle's death and his sons can claim management under it—Suit for establishing such right would be governed by Art. 144. 105 Ind. Cas. 194= 39 M.L.T. 214=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 948.

——Art. 144—Gift of mukarrari rent—Suit to set aside, is governed by Art. 144. 97 Ind. Cas. 637=8 P.L.T. 87=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 49.

——Art. 144—Suit for possession—Trespasser allowed to remove the building constructed on the land trespassed on—Suit not changed into one for injunction.

Suit is by an owner for possession of his wall which has been deliberately encroached upon and built upon by the defendants.

Held, that the suit was essentially one for possession and that incidental fact that under the law applicable to such a case in this country it is usual to give to the defendants an opportunity of removing the building, they have constructed on the land encroached upon in no way makes the suit one for injunction. The defendants, if they so choose, need not remove the construction in question and if so it will fall to the owner of the wall to deal with it. The suit is clearly one for possession to which limitation of 12 years applies. 105 Ind. Cas. 286=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 400.

——Art. 144—Purchaser from Government—Adverse possession against.

Where a purchaser of land from Government sued to recover possession within sixty years or but more than 12 years from the commencement of adverse possession but within 12 years of purchase.

Held, that the suit was barred. Article 144 applied and there was only 12 years' limitation. Under S. 2 (8) the period runs as against plaintiff's predecessor-in-title, viz., the Government in this case, should be reckoned against plaintiff. 81 Ind. Cas. 675=28 C.W.N. 66=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 394.

——Art. 144—Vendor and Vendee—Suit for possession—Failure to give possession by vendor.

When the vendor fails to deliver possession of part of the property sold the vendee's remedy is not a suit for specific performance but a suit for recovery of possession and Art. 144, applies. 18 P.R. 1911=45 P.W.R. 1911=92 P.L.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 238.

——Art. 144—Art. 144 does not apply to suits for pre-emption. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 10. 3 Bom. L.R. 707=5 C.W.N. 888=24 A. 17= 28 I.A. 248 (P.C.).

——Arts 144 and 12—Applicability — Suit by third party to set aside a Court sale—Art. 144 applies.

Where the plaintiff in a suit for possession of property sold in execution of a decree was the original owner of the property and was not a party to the decree under which the sale took place nor a representative of any of the parties and was consequently in a position to ignore the sale altogether,

Held, Art. 12 has no application and the suit falls under Art. 144. Article 91 also is not applicable, as it provides for the cancellation or setting of an instrument not otherwise provided for, and it binds only the parties to the instrument and not strangers. 71 Ind. Cas. 822=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 396.

——Arts. 144 and 12 — Setting aside execution sale — Stranger to execution proceedings—Art. 144 applies.

In execution proceedings against a minor son of the judgment-debtor the application for the appointment of a guardian of the minor was not accompanied with an affidavit and the guardian did not appear and act for the minor and certain property of the minor was sold. After attaining majority the minor brought a suit to set aside the execution sale.

Held, as the application for the appointment of guardian was not made in accordance with O. 32, R. 3 (3), the minor was no party to the execution proceedings and hence the suit to set aside the sale is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 12. 67 Ind. Cas. 547=5 L.L.J. 44=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 447.

——Arts. 144 and 14—Land not belonging to estate allocated to one of the members on partition — Rightful owner can sue within 12 years.

If property which did not fall in any way within the estate which was being partitioned was allocated to one of the persons, who was a party to the partition proceedings, it seems incredible to suggest that the person, to whom that property so allocated rightly belonged, could not within 12 years from the date when his right of action accrued, bring a suit for a declaration of his title and if necessary for recovery of possession of that land in question. Further it matters not whether such claimant was an outsider; that is to say, a person who was not a party to the partition proceedings, or a person who was a party to the partition proceedings. In such a case there is no act or order of an officer of Government in the official capacity which could be regarded as bringing the period of limitation within the purview of Art. 14. 96 Ind. Cas. 632=6 Pat. 73=7 P.L.T. 779=1926 P.H.C.C. 236=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 421.

——Arts. 144 and 91—Where the allegations in the plaint that the sale was a sham transaction or a mere paper transaction are correct, a suit for possession of the property based on those allegations must be governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 91.

——Arts. 144—The fact that the suit is one for possession will not bring the suit within the 12 years' rule in a case of undue influence inasmuch as an action for possession cannot succeed in such a case unless the plaintiff gets the instrument cancelled. (1931) A.L.J. 909=A.I.R. 1932 All. 63=135 Ind. Cas. 232.

——Arts. 144, 92 and 93—Plaintiff claiming possession of property apart from will in favour of defendants—Limitation.

Where the plaintiff claims possession of certain property as the widow of the deceased proprietor of the property against various persons whose substantial defence is that they are entitled under the terms of a will and the plaintiff claims quite apart from the will, there is no obligation on the plaintiff to join to her claim another claim for a relief which she does not seek for and does not need. Articles 92 and 93 do not apply to the case. The proper period of limitation in the case is the period that relates to the cause of action as actually brought and being a suit for possession will attract the application of Art. 144. 42 L.W. 535=A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 709=(1935) M.W.N. 1154=158 Ind. Cas. 121.

——Arts. 144 and 118—Article 118 has no application in a suit where the relief sought is possession of property and the validity of factum of adoption is incidentally in issue. 78 Ind. Cas. 284=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 319.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Applicability — Award creating title to immovable property—Suit for possession of such property—Limitation. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 120 AND 144. 50 Bom. L. R. 604=A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 64.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Applicability — Arbitration—Award—Suit for possession on basis of—Limitation—Award, if creates interest in property. See LIMITATION ACT, ARTS. 120 AND 144. 49 Bom. L.R. 731=A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 101.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Cause of action.

Dispute about the family property referred to arbitration decree in terms of the award. The award directed that the defendant G should take possession of the whole of the property subject to maintenance of T who also was given some non-vatan lands. Accordingly, possession of the property was handed over. Later on P attained majority and applied to the revenue authorities for entering the family property in his name in revenue records. G also applied to the same effect but the revenue authorities, however, referred them both to the Civil Court G preferred a civil suit against B and P for a declaration that adoption of P by B was illegal and that P had no right to dispossess him and for injunction restraining B and P from interfering with his possession. G obtained a decree which was upheld by the High Court but was reversed by the Privy Council. P and B filed a suit to recovery possession of the property and sought to bring it within limitation by relying on Ss. 14 and 15, Limitation Act. G's contention was that the suit was barred by limitation:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 144, Limitation Act, and not by Art. 120, and the suit was therefore barred by time. Time began to run against P when possession of G became adverse to P and B, when G obtained possession in accordance with the award or at any rate from time when P attained majority, and could sue G for possession. It could not be said that the cause of action accrued to P on the decision of the Privy Council merely because the validity of his adoption was challenged and it was declared to be valid by the Privy Council. Time had begun to run against P even before suit was instituted by G and it could not be held that merely because he was restrained from obstructing G in his enjoyment of the property, that a cause of action would accrue to him when the temporary injunction was issued against him. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 1=40 Bom. L.R. 1134=I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 173=179 Ind. Cas. 178.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Suit for plot of land in lieu of maintenance on strength of family custom is governed by either Art. 120 or 144 and Arts. 129 and 131 do not apply to such case.

A suit by a junior member of a family governed by rule of primogeniture for a plot of land in lieu of maintenance on the strength of family custom is governed either by Art. 120 or 144 the choice between the two provisions of law depending upon the question whether the suit is treated as one for declaration or for possession. Therefore when on the evidence it is proved that the defendant has been giving grain to the plaintiffs by way of maintenance and that the allowance was stopped two years before the suit the suit is clearly in time.

Articles 129 and 131 do not apply to such a case as Art. 129 is restricted in its operation to a suit for maintenance in which the right is based on Hindu Law and not upon custom and Art. 131 is confined to a suit in which the plaintiff seeks simply to establish his right to maintenance and does not ask for a consequential relief. 83 P.R. 1906, Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 428=11 Lah. 99=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 872.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Applicability — Injunction—Suit for injunction to remove chhappar erected by defendant on plaintiff's land—Art. 120 applies.

Where the plaintiffs claiming to be joint owners of a certain courtyard, alleged that the defendants had erected certain chappars or thatched sheds in front of their house and asked for a perpetual injunction to issue to them directing them to remove the said chappars and restore the courtyard to its former condition.

Held, that the suit was essentially a suit for the issue of an injunction and although the injunction would have had the effect of restoring the courtyard to a state in which the plaintiffs might have been able to have a more extensive use of it than they actually had, the suit would not be covered by Art. 144 but Art. 120 would apply. 60 Ind. ——Arts. 144 and 123—Suit by Mahomedan heir against manager for possession—Art. 144 applies.

The word "distribution" has a peculiar meaning of distribution of an estate which has vested in an executor or administrator. Article 144 and not Art. 123 therefore applies to a suit to recover a share by a Mahomedan heir from a person in management of the property. A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 56, Foll. 118

——Arts. 144 and 123—Suit by Muhammadan co heir for possession of his legal share is not governed by Art. 123, but by Art. 144.

Article 123 applies only when the suit is brought for a share of an estate which it is the legal obligation of the defendant to distribute. Where a Muhammadan dies intestate, his estate vests in his heirs as tenants-in-common and no one is charged by law with its distribution, and if a suit is brought by one of the heirs to recover his share, Art. 144 and not Art. 123 applies. 34 Mad. 511 and A. ——Art. 144—Co-parcenary property — Adverse possession against sole co parcener for 12 years—Subsequent adoption by widow of another deceased co parcener — Right of adopted son to recover co-parcenary property.

The title of a person whose possession for more than twelve years has been adverse to the sole co-parcener is good against the co-parcenary property and an adoption made by a widow of another deceased co-parcener after the rights of the co-parcenary have become barred by limitation cannot give the adopted son any right to recover possession of the co-parcenary property from him. ——Art. 144—Suit for possession — Defendant's construction of a permanent character in existence on the land for over 12 years prior to suit—Effect on plaintiff's rights.

Where in a suit for possession of land it is found that the defendant had made certain permanent constructions on the land which had remained in existence for over 12 years prior to suit, and the circumstances are such as not to suggest any temporary occupation, the plaintiff cannot succeed. 1947 A.L.J. 108=1947 A.W.R. ——Art. 144—Possession under claim of title—Entry in revenue records as occupier—Possession of claimant and her successors adverse to plaintiff for over forty years—Plaintiff's suit within twelve years of the original claimant's death—If in time.

Though it is a general principle that a Court will always attribute possession to a lawful title where that is possible, there is no room for drawing any such presumption in a case where the circumstances under which the adverse possession was assumed are known. A lady on the death of her father in 1890 took possession of the property under a claim of title derived under her father's will and though she failed to satisfy the Revenue authorities as to her title, the fact that she was in possession was accepted by them and her name was entered as occupier. There was nothing to show that she ever withdrew her claim to title under the will of her father. She died in 1919 and after that the names of her daughters were entered in the revenue records. The plaintiff filed a suit on 28th October, 1931, twelve years all but a day after the death of the lady and claimed that the lady as the heir of her father was entitled to possession of the property under the maintenance grant to him and that her right ceased on her death in 1919, and thereafter, her daughters were in wrongful possession for a period of one day less than twelve years.

Held, that the essential fact was that the lady and her successors had remained in possession for some forty years prior to the institution of the suit and that they took possession under a claim of right adverse to the title of the plaintiff. In those circumstances the claim of the plaintiff was barred under Art. 144 of the Limitation Act. 73 I.A. 223=I. L.R. (1946) Nag. 917=1946 A.L.J. 472=1946 O. A. ——Art. 144—Plaintiffs out of possession basing claim on adverse possession.

Where, in their plaint the plaintiffs who are out of possession do not claim that they were bona fide purchasers for value but base their case mainly on adverse possession of the disputed property, the finding that they were bona fide purchasers for value alone would not be sufficient to entitle them to a decree but they can only succeed on the strength of their own title. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 1=I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 434=73 C.L.J. 475=200 Ind. Cas. 822.

——Art. 144—Land passing by revenue sale.

If it be once shown that the lands in dispute passed by revenue sale, there can in law be no presumption that contrary to the purchaser's rights, the old proprietors remained in receipt of rent from the agricultural tenants. Any possesssion which the old proprietors may have exercised after the sale would no doubt be adverse to the purchaser, but they must, prove that they continued in possession and it is not possible for them to prove possession save by proving that they received rents from the tenants notwithstanding the sale. No doubt, if at some date, rent was received by them in respect of a previous period subsequent to the sale, a question may arise whether this receipt does not evidence possession by the tenants on behalf of the old proprietors since the date of the sale; but proof of receipt of rent will be necessary if the old proprietors are to make out a case that the purchaser's title has come to an end by reason of their adverse possession. Proof of receipt of rent may be indirect, for example, public records showing that A. B. was in possession of the maliki interest and this may or may not be sufficient in any particular case. 18 P.L.T. 257 =3 B.R. 368=A.I.R. 1937 P.C. 69=1937 O.W. ——Art. 144 — Widow holding life estate—Widow's daughter in possession after her death—Plaintiff's failure to sue for possession for more than twelve years after widow's death—Title, if completed by adverse possession against plaintiff.

One Mst. R held the estate for her life; she died in August, 1891, and then the share which stood mutated in her name went into the possession of her daughter who continued in possession till her death in February, 1920; A and his successors became entitled to the properties on the death of Mst. R but they did not sue within 12 years from the date on which the daughter obtained possession:

Held, that the claim of A and his successors was barred by limitation under Art. 144 which applied to the case. 11 O.W.N. 736=A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 265 =10 Luck. 35=150 Ind. Cas. 519.

——Art. 144—Trespasser — Mother taking possession in presence of widow—Adverse possession—Mortgage by mother—Effect.

On the death of a childless owner, leaving his mother and his widow, the mother, though not the rightful heir took possession of the pdoperty and held it for more than twelve years as such and mortgaged it after the expiry of twelve years of possession:

Held, that the possession of the mother being adequate in continuity, publicity and in extent, was adverse to her son's widow and to persons who were entitled to get the property after the faher's death and that the mere fact that mutation was ordered on condition that she would have no powers of transfer did not affect her title to the property. 10 O.W.N. 42=17 R.D. 104=A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 427 =143 Ind. ——Art. 144—Conditional decree for possession—Failure to execute.

When a conditional decree for possession has not been executed, the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff and that adverse possession matures into ownership after the expiry of twelve years. 13 L. 311=32 P.L.R. 786=A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 46=133 Ind. Cas. 555.

——Art. 144—The original owner of a property died in 1896. Soon after, the entire property was the subject of alluvial action by a river. When it emerged a trespasser took possession of it. In 1899 the defendant, one of the members of the joint family entitled to the property, instituted a suit against the trespasser and recovered possession under a compromise decree. He subsequently sued and recovered rent from persons in possession of the land. The joint family became divided in 1912 or 1913, but the defendant was left in exclusive possession of the said property. The other members of the family having instituted a suit to recover their shares of the property:

Held, that there was ouster of the plaintiffs and the defendant had obtained title by adverse possession. 8 O.W.N. 710=132 Ind. Cas. 539.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Watan lands.

There is nothing in the nature of a watan estate which prevents the bar of adverse possession against one holder of a watan from operating as a bar against the succeeding watandar. A succeeding watandar derives his title as son and heir of the watandar which is capable of being barred and extinguished by adverse possession. 32 Bom.L.R. 1398=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 24.

——Art. 144—Hindu widow—Acquisition of title

Where a Hindu widow remained in possession of the property for more than 12 years as of right. Held, that she had acquired a title by adverse possession. 8 O.W.N. 6=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 89.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Title by adverse possession.

A was malikan qabza in a village and as such was not entitled to any share in the shamilat, but he managed to take possession of portions of the shamilat before 1880. He was not shown to have acknowledged B as landlord by attornment, payment of rent or otherwise. His possession which was neither lawful nor permissive at its inception continued for over 40 years. During this period he had been exercising all rights of ownership.

Held, that on these facts A has succeeded in establishing adverse title to the lands in his possession. 46 Ind. Cas. 964, Foll. 31 P.L.R. 243=11 Lah. 410 =A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 991.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession against District Board through Collector — Collector also President of District Board—Effect of.

Where Government enjoyed an exclusive right of fishery for over twelve years adversely as against a chatram and the District Board which managed the the chatram did not sue to recover possession within that period and when a suit was filed later it was sought to be argued that the Collector who prescribed for the Government was also the President of the District Board and that consequently there was no adverse possession,

Held, that the District Board not having exercised its right of suit apart from the President, the character of the Government's enjoyment remained affected in spite of the Collector holding dual capacities, Held, also, that there was not a suspense of the right of action which the District Board had because of the position occupied by the Collector. 31 L.W. 508=1930 M.W.N. 328=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 679= 121 Ind. Cas. 545.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Defendant not a tenant—Suit against him beyond 12 years is barred.

In 1865 certain villages were leased by plaintiff's predecessor to defendant's predecessor on "Mukarrari istemrari" at an annual rent of Rs. 344. In 1879 the original lessee assigned his interest in the villages. The original lessee died about 1891 and afterwards his assignee remained in possession of the village who, it appeared, had paid rent to a mortgagee of the lessor up to 1898, but no rent was paid to the original lessor or his successors. Notices to quit were served in 1915 and again on 20th August, 1919, but the defendants remained in possession, and accordingly, the suit for ejectment was brought in 1920.

About the year 1903, the assignee from lessee apparently, was willing to pay rent to the plaintiff's predecessor-in-title, provided that his name was entered as the holder of the mukarrari interest and that he was given receipts made out in his own name. The plaintiff's predecessor-in-title refused to do this, but expressed his willingness to receive rent and give marfatdari receipts. The assignee refused to accept marfatdari receipts, and consequently no rent was paid by him to the original lessor, Held, that the payment of the rent to the mortgagee was not sufficient to create a tenancy between the mortgagor and the assignee and, after the termination of the lease for lives, there was no recognition by the plaintiff or his predecessor-in-title so as to constitute the defendants or their predecessors-in-title, tenants. That the plaintiff failed to prove that the relationship of landlord and tenant was in existence within 12 years prior to the institution of the suit, and that, therefore, the plaintiff's suit for possession was barred by the Limitation Act. 109 Ind. ——Art. 144—Lessee from Government for a term of years—After the term his possession is adverse.

When a zamindar of a thok allowed his revenue to fall into arrears, the areas were taken under the direct management of the Collector and were subsequently made over to a co-sharer of the mahal in which the thok was situated for certain years on his payment or agreement to pay the arrears of revenue to Government,

Held, the co-sharer's possession was that of a lessee of the particular area from Government and when he held over at the end of those years his possession became adverse. A suit to recover possession instituted beyond 12 years from the expiry of the lease is barred. 95 Ind. Cas. 103=A.I.R. 1926 All. 584.

——Art. 144—Malikana qabza remaining in possession of shamilat plots—Landlord's title not acknowledged—Title by adverse possession.

Where the plaintiffs were shown to be malikan qabza in the village who were not entitled to any share in the shamilat but who managed to take possession of portions of the shamilat before 1880 and it was proved that they continued in possession without acknowledging the defendants as landlords, Held, that the plaintiffs had acquired title by adverse possession. 12 L.L.J 161=11 Lah. 410=31 P.L.R. 243=123 Ind. Cas. 278=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 991.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Adverse possession—What extinguishes right of the real owner—Continuous possession.

In order to extinguish the right of the real owner the adverse possession must be continuous. Acts of possession exercised at intervals over different portions of land in different years cannot amount to adverse possession. 57 Ind. Cas. 716 (Cal.).

——Art. 142—Dispossession — Successive trespassers—Title by whom acquired.

Of successive independent trespassers who have been continuously in possession for the statutory period, the first trespasser gets the title and not the last who is in possession at the time when the title of the real owner is extinguished. 21 M.L.T. 62=5 L. W. 690=32 M.L.J. 85=40 Ind. Cas. 50.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Plea of adverse possession in suit on title.

The onus is on defendant to plead and prove adverse possession for the statutory period in a suit for declaration of title based on the defendant's allegad repudiation of it. 39 M. 617, Foll. 37 Ind. Cas. 794 (All.).

——Arts. 144 and 149—Acquisition of title—Prescription—Proof of—Onus — Possession for less than prescriptive period—Onus not shifted.

Islands formed on the bed of the sea within the territorial waters of the Indian Empire vest in the Crown. If Islands so formed are constituted a reserved forest by the Government those who claim them are in the position of plaintiffs claiming a declaration of their title. They must positively prove that they or their predecessors in title have been in possession adversely to the Crown for sixty years under Art. 149. Proof of possession on the part of the claimants for less than the statutory period does not shift the onus on the Crown to show that the claimant's possession commenced or became adverse within sixty years. 39 Mad. 617=31 M.L.J. 324 =20 C.W.N. 1311=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 224=14 A. Long possession of a plot gives rise to no presumption of a license for building purposes even where the defendant has constructed structures thereon. 14 A. L. J. 115=34 Ind. Cas. 952.

——Art. 144 — Acquisition of title—Absentee owners—Suit for recovery of possession by.

It is the duty of persons possessing rights to keep an eye over their rights. Any overt act of adverse possession by the person in possession of property starts adverse possession as against the absentee owner thereof. 49 P.L.R. 1915=240 P.W.R. 1915 =27 Ind. Cas. 610.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Statutory period—Presumption.

Where 11 years and 5 months before a suit for possession of a tract of jungle, the final record of rights was published showing the defendants to be in possession at the time, having regard to the well-known practice of the settlement department, the defendant must have been found to be in possession at least 7 months before that record was published. 27 Ind. Cas. 802 (Cal.).

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Adverse possession — Knowledge — Principal affected by agent's knowledge.

Where a person who claimed ownership was classed as non-ocupancy tenant by the collector and no appeal was preferred and also where in a subsequent settlement and partition proceedings the area was called and recorded as shamilat Kasba, estoppel arises and as 12 years have elapsed the suit will be barred by time, even though in the partition proceedings it was only the agent who appeared. Knowledge of the agent must be imported to his principal. 151 P.W.R. 1912=163 P.L.R. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 891.

——Arts. 144, 139, 140 and 142—Acquisition of title—Prescription.

A person's possession even in cases governed by Art. 144 is held to be in his own right unless any contrary evidence is adduced or there is a relationship between the parties or the circumstances throwing the burden of proving his own right are present. (1912) M.W.N. 669=15 Ind. Cas. 146.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Hindu Law —Widow—Compromise by relinquishing rights disputed—Effect of—No alienation.

Plaintiff's father brought a suit against first defendant's father for a third share in the plaint zemindari, obtained a decree and died before division was carried out in execution. Plaintiff's mother was brought on record as the father's legal representative, but her right to execute was contested. The District Court and the High Court decided in her favour, but leave to appeal to the Privy Council was obtained by 1st defendant's father and stay of execution applied for. Plaintiff's mother and defendant's father compromised the dispute, by which plaintiff and her heirs were to relinquish all their rights under the decree for a consideration. Plaintiff, on attaining majority, brought this suit for a declaration that the "alienation" by her mother was invalid and inoperative beyond her mother's lifetime and for recovery of a third share of the zemindari. Held: That there was no transfer of right by the compromise and that the compromise did not effect an alienation by the mother of rights which she possessed so as to make the possession of the 1st defendant's father a possession derived from her; and that the suit was barred by limitation, as the defendant and his father had been in possession adverse to the plaintiff and her father for over twelve years, no possession having been obtained by plaintiff's father under the decree obtained by him. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 204=5 Ind. Cas. 640=1910 M.W.N. 60=7 M.L.T. 340=33 Mad. 473.

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Cornice, building of — Overhanging land of neighbour—12 years' prescription—Trespass — Right prescribed for.

If a man erects any building overhanging the land of another, he commits trespass and an action will lie against him; and unless a suit is brought against him within time he would prescribe a title to the space occupied by the building. Whether such trespasser acquires a right only to the space occupied by the projection or also to the space above and below the protrusion depends upon the value of the possession and the other circumstances of the case. The defendant in the case built a cornice projecting from his wall over the ground belonging to the defendant more than twelve years before suit. The cornice was meant partly as decoration and partly as a protection from rain. Held, that the defendant had prescribed a title to the space occupied by the projection. (1906) 16 M.L.J. 281=29 M. 511.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession—Extinguishment of title of true owner—Subsequent possession—No effect.

If the title of the true original owner has been completely extinguished by adverse possession, even if he should reacquire possession, he is not thereby remitted to his original title. (1904) 6 C.L.J. 621.

2. (b) Acquisition of title—Limited interest.

——Art. 144—Presumption as to right prescribed for—Person in cultivating possession—U. P. Tenancy Act (17 of 1939), S. 180.

S. 180 of the U. P. Tenancy Act shows that where a person is in possession by cultivating a plot or plots of land in an agricultural area, the presumption is that he is prescribing for a tenancy right, although there is no contract of tenancy between him and the owner of the land. His possession is in the capacity of a tenant and not in the capacity of a proprietor. A.I.R. 1950 All. 496=1950 A. W. R. 547.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of limited interest—Landlord and Tenant.

If a person occupies the land for a period of 12 years, he may acquire, if he so chooses, an absolute interest in the land, and it is only because he chooses to assert only a limited interest that he acquires only such interest. Therefore, whether the landlord chooses to make himself acquainted with the facts that the man in possession asserts his own title to the land or not, limitation will run against the landlord. An assertion of title cannot operate against the landlord unless it is made to his knowledge and a purchaser who only pays rent in the name of his vendor cannot be said to assert his own title as a tenant. Marfatdari receipts are by no means confined to unrecognised purchasers, and the party who obtains them puts forward not his own title but that of the person on whose behalf he makes the payments. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 458=150 Ind. Cas. 102.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Void lease—Possession under — Lessee's rights can be acquired by adverse possession—See Bombay Bhagdari Act (1862), S. 3.

Where a person goes into possession of an unrecognised sub-division of a bhag under a void lease and remains in possession for upwards of twelve years, he acquires title by prescription to the limited interest under the lease and cannot be evicted during the period of the lease. 30 Bom. L.R. 980, Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 930=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 443.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Limited interest—Rent-free tenure—Adverse possession.

Where in a suit for assessment of rent the plaint proceeds on the assumption that there was no relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties and the evidence also shows that the defendants were in possession not as tenants but wrongfully and without any right, and the defendants, have been in possession for more than 12 years on their own account to the knowledge of the plaintiff though they claim no more than a rent-free title, the suit is barred by limitation. 22 C.L.J. 153=30 Ind. Cas. 948.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession as rent free holder.

Where in a suit for rent the plaintiff treats the defendants as tresspassers and the defendants are found to have been in adverse possession as rent-free holders, for over a century, the suit is barred by limitation. 22 C.L.J. 126=24 Ind. Cas. 319.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Limited interest—Adverse possession — Interest in immovable property.

There may be adverse possession of immoveable property as well as of any interest in it under Art. 144. Though a tenant is bound to treat an encroachment as land held under a tenancy, the landlord is not bound to do so. The tenant however may acquire by adverse possession a limited interest so as to bar the landlord's claim for possession. 16 C.W.N. 634 =14 Ind. Cas. 212.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession—Claim to hold as minor tenant—Adverse possession of limited interest.

The rights of successive holders of hereditary and impartible estates not governed by ordinary rules of inheritance, but subject to the condition that Government shall approve of the heir, may be barred by adverse possession. Where in an ejectment suit by an inamdar, it was shown that the defendants, for more than twelve years before the suit, openly asserted their claim to hold as permanent minor tenants:

Held, that the defendants had acquired a title to the limited interest claimed by them and could not be ejected. (1909) 12 Bom. L.R. 208=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 329.

——Art. 144—Limited owner—Title acquired by widow when enures to estate of her husband.

The title acquired through adverse possession by a widow who claims and holds a widow's estate enures to the estate of her deceased husband and descends upon her death accordingly. But it is not in every case, whenever a Hindu widow is found in possession of a property without title, that her possession must be regarded as that of a widow's estate, but the determination of the question as regards adverse possession must be based on circumstances of each case. 7 O. W. N. 1082=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 25.

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Adverse possession of limited interest—Rights of permanent lessee.

A limited interest such as the interest of a permanent lessee, can be acquired in law by adverse possession. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 469=3 M.L.T. 187.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession of limited interest.

Per Batty, J.—If the tenant not only openly asserts to the knowledge of the owner an adverse interest, but proceeds to enjoy benefits claimable only on the basis of that interest, his possession at once becomes adverse and limitation begins to run against the owner from that time. The fact that such assertion and enjoyment are not challenged does not change their adverse character, when once the necessity for challenging them has arisen. Per Starling, J.:—There can be an adverse possession of a limited interest in property as well as of the full title as owner. (1903) 27 B. 515=5 Bom. L.R. 274.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Limited interest—Landlord and tenant.

A partial interest in land may be lost as well as the whole interest. Though adverse possession for 12 years of a limited interest may be a good plea to a suit for ejectment, it is good only to the extent of such interest. The nature and extent of possession must depend upon the nature and extent of the rights asserted by the over-conduct or express declaration of the person relying on it. There can therefore be no acquisition by adverse possession of an absolute title when it is found that nothing but a limited interest has been asserted. Art. 144 can only apply to bar suits for interests which have been openly claimed or exercised by the person in possession. It cannot begin to operate as a bar to a claim for possession or to any other interest in immoveable property unless and until it be shown that the adverse possession set up was in the assertion or exercise of a right which would either exclude altogether and absolutely the interest claimed by the plaintiff or would exclude it in the circumstances shown to exist at the time of the suit. The mere fact of possession by defendant is no bar under Art. 144 It must be shown to be adverse and if it is shown to have been adverse only to a limited extent and not absolutely, then it can operate as a bar to that limited extent alone, and the precise extent of its operation must be ascertained before it can be made a basis for judicial decision. Even if the tenants have been holding for the statutory period of twelve years in the assertion of title to a permanent tenancy and so far adverse to the right of the inamdar-landlord to eject them at will, yet unless it be also established that their possession has been similarly adverse to the right of such landlord to enhance the rent within the limits allowed by usage, that right cannot be affected merely by the length of their possession under a tenancy which, though permanent and at a rate hitherto unenhanced, did not originate and has not been claimed as a tenure exempt from liability to such enhancement. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 186.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession by Hindu widow or daughter as life estate holder—Estate prescribed for.

If a man obtains possession of land claiming under a deed or will, he cannot afterwards set up another title to the land against the deed or will though it did not operate to pass the land in question, and if he remains in possession till 12 years have elapsed and the title of the testator's heir is extinguished he cannot claim by possession an interest in property different from that which he would have taken if the property had passed by the will or deed. A Hindu widow or daughter succeeding to a Dharmakartaship held by the last male owner cannot by possession for over 12 years claim any more interest in the Dharmakartaship than a life estate which is the interest they would have ordinarily taken if the same had passed to them by will or deed. (1908) 18 M.L.J. 409=31 M. 321=4 M.L.T. 5.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession of wakf property—Prescription for right of mutawalli.

In the generality of cases the claim to the office of mutawalli and to the property appurtenant thereto go together and are inseparable. This would depend upon the terms of the foundation or settlement. A person in adverse possession of property claiming to hold it as mutawalli does not prescribe for more than a mutwalli's right in such property and may acquire to that extent the status of a mutawalli. The right to the office and the right to the possession of property are distinct jural concepts. A.I.R. 1930 All. 866=129 Ind. Cas. 375.

——Art. 144—Limited interest — Acquisition by adverse possession.

A limited interest in property can be acquired by adverse possession as well as absolute interest and the quantum of interest acquired depends upon the animus with which possession is held by the person in actual possession of the property. Consequently, where it is found that there was an agreement to execute a usufructuary mortgage and that it was under that agreement that the mortgagee came into possession, then, though the usufructuary mortgage contemplated had not been executed, it must be taken that the mortgagee had been in possession only as a usufructuary mortgagee for the amount of the loan advanced. 123 Ind. Cas. 195 (Mad.).

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Limited interest—Presumption.

Where a person is in possession of land in the open assertion of a definite and specific right as mortgagee, it is not open whether the mortgage really existed or not, to the owner of the land to question his right after the expiry of more than 12 years from date when such assertion was made within his or his peedecessors-in-title's knowledge. 20 O.C. 208=41 Ind. Cas. 862.

——Art. 144—Acquisition of title—Limited interest—Possession of mortgage for over 12 years—Sale to mortgagee.

Two out of three co-sharers mortgaged the whole property with possessin. Subsequently the land was sold by one of them with the other's consent, to the mortgagee. In a suit by the remaining co-sharer for possession it was held that as the mortgagee had possession as mortgagee for more than 12 years, the mortgage could not be ignored but as the suit was brought within 12 years of the sale his suit so far as the equity of redemption was concerned was not barred. 23 P.L.R. 1911=48 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Prescriptive title—Possession as usufructuary mortgagee.

Possession for over the statutory period as usufructuary mortgagee will give a prescriptive title as such over persons against whom the mortgage deed itself cannot be pleaded in priority or otherwise. The fact that such usufructuary mortgagee has been claiming for some time before suit under an invalid sale cannot make his possession less adverse. (1902) 26 M. 72=12 M.L.J. 410.

——Art. 144 — Possession under unregistered document—Nature of right acquired.

Where a person got into possession of properties under an unregistered agreement to the effect that he would be entitled to remain in possession on condition he kept the properties in proper repairs and remained in possession for more than 12 years, held that he acquired title as per the terms of the agreement by adverse possession. 115 Ind. Cas. 141 (All.).

——Art. 144 and S. 3 — Acquisition of title — Limited interest.

The words "possession of the defendant" do not by reference to the definition in S. 3 include the possession of a co-defendant, still in possession under a different title. The adverse possession of a defendant must be of the same nature as that sought by the plaintiff. Thus possession as permanent lessee is not adverse as against proprietor in a suit by proprietor. 17 C.W.N. 748=19 Ind. Cas. 367.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Adverse possession of limited interest.

Adverse possession of a limited interest, though a good plea in answer to a suit for ejectment is good only to the extent of that interest. 2 C.L.J. 125, foll. Held, also that in the particular case, the plaintiff's title to recover actual possession was barred even though his title to receive rent was not. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 636=7 C.L.J. 499=35 C. 470.

——Art. 144—Trusteeship with power to appoint a successor.

M was the trustee of certain temples and after him his son and then his grandson. Then the grandson's brother succeeded and appointed his sister and her husband as successors. The husband died and the sister was trustee for over twenty-four years. She appointed her sister's son who held office for twenty years, and appointed by will a great grandson of M as his successor. The plaintiffs on behalf of themselves and other worshippers sued for a declaration that the appointment was illegal and void. Held, that the sister and her successor acquired a trusteeship with power to appoint a successor. She had acquired a valid title to the trusteeship by prescription and had entered under a will which gave her power to appoint a successor, and she had done so, and given her successor a power to appoint a successor. The title, so acquired was not a hereditary trusteeship passing necessarily to their heirs, but one with power to appoint a successor. A trusteeship with power to appoint a successor in an estate is recognized by the law and could be prescribed for. (1900) 24 M. 219=11 M.L.J. 1.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Trustee in possession of trust funds and own funds—Acquisition of property — Presumption — Spending money on constructions over trust property—Presumption.

When a trustee or another person holding a fiduciary character who is in possession of funds belonging to himself as well as the trust acquires property in his own name and it is not established that in the acquisition of the property he has utilised the trust funds, it cannot be said that the acquisition was made for the benefit of the trust. But if such a trustee spends money in making constructions over the property of the trust the presumption is that he is spending the money belonging to the trust for the improvement of the trust property. There is no presumption that the expenditure was made from his own funds or that the constructions were made in breach of faith in order to make the property his own. A.I.R. 1950 All. 316.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Proof of—Animus—Trustee asserting hostile title.

A trustee cannot by his declaration that he has committed or is about to commit breach of trust, prejudice the rights of the beneficiaries and claim that as from the date of his declaration he began to hold adversely to the trust. I.L.R. (1946) Lah. 300=A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 117=231 Ind. Cas. 421.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession against one of two joint trustees—Bar against the other.

Held, that if the right of one of two joint trustees to recover the trusteeship and the trust properties from a third person holding them adversely becomes barred by limitation, the right of the other joint trustee becomes likewise barred although the latter sues within three years of his attaining majority. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 421=34 Mad. 284=6 Ind. Cas. 992.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession against Cantonment Board.

There is no provision in the Cantonment Act or in the Limitation Act which prevents adverse possession running against a Cantonment Board. I. L. R. (1950) A. 118=A.I.R. 1950 All. 43.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for possession of property gifted by husband—Husband in possession of gifted property within 12 years of suit—Possession, whether on behalf of wife or adverse to her.

Where in a suit for possession of property gifted to the plaintiff by her husband the plaintiff's case is based on possession as owner within 12 years of the date of suit, it is open to her to prove her possession by adducing evidence showing that she was in actual physical possession or that she was in possession as owner through her agents, managers or relations. Where the plaintiff and her husband were living together and the husband was in continued possession of the property gifted to her by him, his possession must be construed to be on behalf of the wife as her agent and not adverse to her. Having taken up or continued management of his wife's property on her behalf a mere secret change of intention or the act of the husband such as a mortgage deed executed without the knowledge of the plaintiff, will not help him to prescribe against the plaintiff. I.L.R. (1948) Nag. 824=A. I. R. 1948 Nag. 328.

——Art. 144—Hindu lady on disappearance of her husband coming into possession of his property—Her possession, if adverse to her husband.

The nature of title which a person acquires by prescription depends upon the nature of his assertion. Where a Hindu lady acquires by prescription title to immovable property on the assertion that she had been possessing it as a Hindu widow, that is, as heir to her husband, that property becomes a part of her husband's estate. It does not become her stridhan and on her death, it would be inherited, not by her heirs, but by the heirs of her husband. If a Hindu widow by prescription acquires only a title for her husband's estate, the nature of the assertion involved in her possession is the assertion of her husband's title. She, in claiming the widow's estate, does not cherish any animus to exclude her husband—On the other hand, her animus is one of recognition of her husband's title. Wife's possession on disappearance of her husband is accordingly possession not adverse to her husband. It must necessarily be on his behalf. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 498=47 C.W.N. 9=202 Ind. Cas. 551 (S.B.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Permissive possession—Possession of husband after—Conveyance of property in satisfaction of mohur.

In 1898, the plaintiff's husband sold to her two houses by a registered document in satisfaction of her mohur (dower). In one of the houses the plaintiff's husband continued to reside as before till his death in 1911. On his death the defendants, having forcibly taken possession of the house, the plaintiff sued for possession. The Lower Courts rejected the claim first, on the ground that the document was without consideration, and secondly, that the claim was barred by time. Held, that the document being a document of advancement, no consideration was necessary. The suit was in time, for the residence by the husband from 1898 to 1911 was permissive and on behalf of the plaintiff and not adverse. 41 Bom. 5=18 Bom. L.R. 810=36 Ind. Cas. 715.

——Art. 144 — Adverse possession — Possession of Hindu widow of the estate of her husband whom she supposed to be dead but who was not in fact dead—If adverse to the husband who is found to be alive.

Where on the supposed death of her husband, his widow entered on her widow's estate in the undivided share of an estate which belonged to her husband and she thereafter enjoyed it for a period much exceeding the twelve years, on the question whether her possession was adverse to her husband, who was in fact alive.

Held, that possession must be adverse to a living person and as the widow was possessing under a mistake as to her husband's death she cannot claim that by her possession she was asserting a right adverse to one whom she regarded as dead. 73 I.A. 246=51 C.W.N. 98=1946 A.W.R. (P.C.) 182=1947 M. W. N. 7=1946 O.A. (P.C.) 182=49 Bom. L.R. 246=I.L.R. (1947) Kar. (P.C.) 85=A.I.R. 1947 P.C. 19=227 Ind. Cas. 177=1946 A.L.J. 441=13 B.R. 68=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 442 (P.C.).

——Art. 144—Hindu widow — Adverse possession—Tests—Proof.

When the possession of a Hindu widow is adverse, it has to be decided what was her animus possidendi; did she assert an absolute title in herself or did she claim to hold as the heiress of any person? The latter would be the ordinary presumption and those who claim for her anything more than a widow's limited interest must prove since when she began to assert her absolute title in herself. The test is always to be found in the origin of the widow's possession. When she enters on land under a title as heir, which is necessarily a limited title under the Hindu Law, very cogent evidence is necessary to show that she afterwards asserted a title as absolute owner. A. I. R. 1946 Bom. 193=47 Bom. L.R. 962.

——Art. 144—Hindu widow as limited heir cannot prescribe for absolute title by adverse possession.

Where a widow governed by Hindu law has entered on the estate as a qualified heir she cannot subsequently prescribe by adverse possession an absolute title to it. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 277=1946 N.L.J. 690=I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 159.

——Art. 144—Limited owner—Widow's possession—If adverse to reversion.

Where a widow who is only entitled to a maintenance out of her husband's estate, enters into possession of the property of her husband who was a member of a joint Hindu family at the time of his death, her possession of the share of her husband is prima facie adverse unless it can be shown that it was the result of any arrangement with the reversioners or that she took possession of the property prescribing only for the limited share of a Hindu widow. 7 O.W.N. 1082=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 25.

——Art. 144—Property bequeathed subject to mortgage—Executor to pay off mortgage and deliver property to legatee—Lease of property by executor before redeeming mortgage is not claim adverse to legatee. ——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Minor.

Sale by mother acting as guardian of minor son—Suit for setting aside sale—Subsequent suit for possession—Question of adverse possession:

Held, that as the plaintiff was a minor, no question of adverse possession arose and the suit was not barred by time. 35 Bom. L.R. 630=57 B. 456=A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 398=148 Ind. Cas. 116.

——Art. 144—Guardian — Adverse possession against minor.

The possession of a de facto guardian or of his mortgagee as a derivative owner cannot be legally deemed to be adverse to the minor, but when the de facto guardian effects a sale of the minor's property, the possession of purchasers would become adverse since the date they got into possession. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 708.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Guardian and minor.

Possession is never to be considered adverse if it can be referred to any lawful authority. Where a Hindu mother on her husband's death entered into possession of properties which vested in her minor son and she herself had the custody of the minor as his guardian, her possession must be taken to have been one on behalf of the minor. 17 M.L.J. 14=30 M. 145.

——Art. 144 — Guardian's possession — Will—Registration — Adverse possession.

The grand-mother of a minor girl managed her property as her guardian and continued to do so even after the minor girl married and went to live with her family in 1884. In 1885, the grand-mother made a registered will leaving all properties to the minor as if the minor's properties belonged to her but with this addition that even without the will she would have taken the properties. In 1891 the guardian revoked the will and left the properties to the defendant who got into possession. The plaintiff who purchased the property from the grand-daughter brought this suit to recover it in 1898.

Held, that the suit was not barred as the possession of the grand-mother was permissive and did not become adverse merely by the registration of the will of 1885. (1901) 3 Bom.L.R. 673.

——Art. 144 — Adverse possession of lunatic's property—Lunacy does not prevent limitation running but only gives Lunatic right to sue within 3 years of the ceasing of the disability.

Lunacy would not by itself prevent limitation from running against a lunatic. Where a person entering into possession of a lunatic's property was in no fiduciary relationship to the lunatic but entered into possession for his own benefit and in assertion of a title hostile to the lunatic, limitation would begin to run from the date when he so took possession though the lunatic would be entitled to sue for recovery of the property within 3 years from the date when his disability ceases, if he dies a lunatic leaving his widow as legal representative, then she could sue within three years of his death; but if the widow fails to sue within the said period for recovery of the property, the reversioners to the estate of the lunatic, would also be barred and they cannot reckon limitation from the death of the widow. 70 Ind. Cas. 678 =1922 M.W.N. 136=15 M.L.W. 382=45

Mad. 361=30 M.L.T. 128=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 12=42 M.L.J. 262.

——Arts. 142, 144 and 134—Sale of equity of redemption by Muhammadan mother—Redemption by purchaser—Adverse possession by purchaser—Suit by sons for redemption and for accounts.

In 1905, Y acting as the guardian of plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 sold an equity of redemption to S. In 1907, S redeemed the mortgage and got possession. In 1924, more than three years after they attained majority, the plaintiffs brought a suit for taking of accounts on foot of the mortgage and alternatively for redemption of seven-eighths share in the property. There was no dispute as to the good faith of S who redeemed the mortgage and the mortgagee who had given up possession:

Held, (i) that Art. 134 of the Limitation Act was not applicable as the mortgagee did not purport to do anything outside or opposed to his mortgage and there was no transfer by the mortgagee in the sense in which that word is used in Art. 134;

(ii) that as the purchase by S was in his own absolute right and he had been holding as owner from 1907 and not on behalf of the mortgagor or mortgagee, his possession was adverse to the knowledge of the plaintiffs and the suit was barred under Art. 144;

(iii) that the suit for accounts as such without setting aside the sale-deed was not maintainable. 33 Bom. L.R. 603=A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 23=134 Ind. Cas. 366.

——Art. 144—Possession of joint estate.

Possession of a joint estate is adverse to any claim to such an estate as a separate one and possession by a joint family may by lapse of time become adverse to a separate estate. 24 M. 387, Foll. 32 Bom.L.R. 314=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 333.

——Art. 144—Permissive possession—Uncle managing for nephew—Inference.

The property governed by the rule of primogeniture had come into ownership of a Mahomedan boy of tender years living with his uncle and other members of the family. By family custom the uncle used to see to the management of the property.

Held, that, it is impossible to hold by way of inference that the uncle's possession in its inception was adverse and hostile to the legal title of his nephew or that its continuance for more than twelve years had the effect of extinguishing that title. 7 O.W.N. 988=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 510.

——Art. 144—Father's possession for the joint benefit of co-owners who are his children is not adverse.

A Buddhist father on his re-marriage made over the land in suit to his four children by the first wife by a registered deed towards their mother's share of inheritance in full satisfaction. He continued to be in possession but managed the land for the joint benefit of the co-owners. The husband of one of his daughters sued for his share and mesne profits after more than 12 years of the execution of the deed.

Held, that the deed constituted an outright transfer and the father was holding the property for the joint benefit of all and that the suit was not barred by limitation as limitation does not begin to run until possession becomes adverse to the plaintiff. 105 Ind. Cas. 598=5 Rang. 576=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 13.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — By father against daughter—Mahomedan Law.

Held, that there was no adverse possession in the case. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 625=2 A.L.J. 513=2 C.L.J. 179=15 M.L.J. 261=27 A. 320=32 I.A. 86 (P.C.).

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Possession by father of minor son's properties.

Where a minor receives by a registered deed of gift from his divided uncles, their undivided shares in an ancestral property owned by them jointly with the minor's father and the possession of the whole remains with the minor's father, the father cannot thereby be regarded as setting up a possession adverse to his infant son, nor can the donor's assent to his continuance in possession be garded as an understanding on their part that the possession was adverse either to themselves or to the child. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 754=27 B. 31.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Possession of a daughter of undivided uncle—Nature of possession. See LIMITATION ACT, ART. 127. 4 Bom.L.R. 135.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—By father of minor daughter's property—Nature of possession of father.

When a father takes possession of his minor daughter's property, it may be taken that he takes it as her natural guardian and there is no adverse possession against the daughter in such a case. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 601.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession against donee's reversioners.

Held, that the plaintiffs, reversioners of the donor, were barred from recovering possession of the gifted land from the defendants who took possession of the land after the death of the donee's widow as next heirs for the gift was alleged by the plaintiffs to have been made for the life-time of the donee only and consequently the possession of the donee's widow and of the defendants after her death for a period of more than twelve years operated to extinguish the right of the plaintiffs, which ordinarily accrues to the donor or his heirs on the donee dying without lineal heirs. 110 P.L.R. 1909=149 P.W.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 1006 (1).

——Art. 144—Adverse possession of Government against Court of Wards representing private persons—Court of Wards, position of — Chur land, suit to recover—Gradual formation—Proof that any portion formed within period of limitation—Onus.

The Government and the Court of Wards are not identical bodies, nor can the latter be regarded as merely a department of the former. The latter is a statutory body and the mere fact that in this province the Board of Revenue is the Court of Wards does not make the possession by Government of newly formed chur land during the time the claimant's property was under the direction of the Court of Wards, possession by the latter on behalf of the claimants. Held, on the evidence, that Government was in adverse possession of the disputed land as against the Court of Wards representing the claimants. 2 N. W. P. 379

(1870), approved. In a suit for recovery of possession of chur land, which commenced forming more than 12 years before the suit, the onus is on the plaintiffs to prove that any portion of the chur formed within 12 years of the suit. (1909) 14 C.W.N. 317=3 Ind. Cas. 15=11 C.L.J. 373.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession by donee under invalid gift—Attornment by tenant to donee.

Mere attornment and payment of rent by a tenant to the donee of the land from the lessor under a gift rendered invalid for want of registration will not make the possession of the donee adverse to the lessor or his representatives until the termination of the lease. (1908) 19 M.L.J. 255=6 M.L.T. 166=3 Ind. Cas. 122.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — By stranger against landlord.

Possession during the term of lease cannot be adverse to the Zamindar, at least so long as he does not become entitled to immediate possession. Where the defendant purchased certain plots of land from the lessee, but continued to pay the rent to the Zamindar.

Held, that his possession could not become adverse as there was nothing to put the Zemindar on enquiry. 1907 A.W.N. 185=4 A.L.J. 726 =29 A. 593.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Vendor's possession when adverse. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, S. 55 (3). 17 M.L.J. 450 =30 M. 524=3 M.L.T. 10.

——Art. 144—Manager—Agent—Overt act.

In order to entitle a person who originally comes into possession of property in the character of manager or agent, to succeed on a title by wrongful detention, it is necessary that he must prove first that he gave notice of his adverse holding to the owner or that he set up his adverse title to his knowledge. Secondly, that he dealt with the property after that as his own. In other words the repudiation of the former capacity as manager or agent must be followed by wrongful taking or unlawful detention, which means some active assertion of an adverse right. Mere repudiation to the knowledge of the owner will not do unless it is accompanied by some overt act. (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 836.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Possession under a widow—Proof that it was adverse to reversioner.

Adverse possession must be strictly proved by the person setting it up. So where a person held possession under a widow who he alleged had no right to possession he must prove that the possession of the widow was adverse to the reversioners, and that her possession was not by reason of any agreement with the reversioners. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 312=26 B. 617.

3. (b) Adverse Possession—Evidence.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Proof of—Animus in the case of the person in possession standing in fiduciary relationship with the owner.

In order to prove adverse possession, it is necessary to show that the person claiming adverse possession had an animus to possess the thing in question in his own right and against the right of the rightful owner. In the case of possession of a person who is a manager or an agent or stands in a fiduciary relationship with the owner, such animus will not be readily presumed and so long as such a person does not divest himself of that character, his possession will be attributed to the consent express or implied, of the rightful owner. A.I.R. 1950 All. 316.

——Arts. 142 and 144—A trespasser does not displace the rightful owner's title unless he intends to prescribe for a hostile title and he does not necessarily intend so to prescribe simply by remaining in occupation. All the usual presumption about possession being adverse and so forth do not arise except in favour of the person in possession and those who claim through him. If the rightful owner succeeds in getting into possession and an attempt is made to oust him by those who do not, claim through the trespasser then the presumptions are in favour of the rightful owner. 1942 Nag.L.J. 431.

——Art. 144—"Wrongful possession".

It is not necessary that possession, in order to be wrongful, must have been obtained in consequence of some improper act. A.I.R. 1939 All. 529=1939 A.W.R. 344=1939 R.D. 292= (1939) A.L.J. 433=184 Ind. Cas. 91.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Essentials—Physical and continuous possession is necessary.

For the purpose of adverse possession regard should be had to the actual physical possession of the person making the claim, provided that that claim has been put forward during the whole period to be entitled to the right which is claimed by adverse possession. Therefore a person claiming adverse possession can add the period of his possession as usufructuary mortgagee to the period of his possession as a vendee from his usufructuary mortgagor. 125 Ind. Cas. 33=A.I.R. 1931 All. 18.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession by defendant—Entry in Record of Rights in favour of plaintiff.

An entry in the record of rights that the land was subject to the rights of the plaintiff does not amount to a tacit recognition of the plaintiff's rights on the part of the defendant. If the defendant was in adverse possession for over the statutory period his title is not prejudiced by any such entry. 16 Cal.W.N. 929 overruled; 22 C. L.J. 309, Approved. 57 Cal. 796=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 25.

——Art. 144 — Essentials of — Adverse possession—Mere user.

Possession is not the same thing as adverse possession. Where a person has been using the roof belonging to another as a courtyard; sleeping there by night, sitting there by day and using it for occasional ceremonial purposes; such mere user cannot be taken as a definite assertion of proprietary rights and does not constitute adverse possession. A.I.R. 1931 Sind 1=25 S.L.R. 257=130 Ind. Cas. 546.

——Art. 144—Animus Possidendi—Ouster of the real owner is necessary for adverse possession.

If the person possessed of a legal title to an estate is also in the enjoyment of the profits of that estate more or less his title cannot be held to have been extinguished by reason of the physical possession of the estate held by another person who had no title to it. Such person cannot put an end to the possession of legal owner by any secret intention in his mind. There must be an ouster or equivalent to an ouster. 7 O.W.N. 988=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 510.

——Art. 144—Definite assertion of adverse possession if always; necessary — Enjoyment of property as owner.

It is not necessary in every case that there should be a definite assertion of adverse possession by the party who pleads a prescriptive title. His conduct as an owner can be looked into. Where a co-sharer who had no interest left in a shamilat on partition, but was under an impression that he had such interest was in cultivating possession of land in shamilat and there was nothing to show that the co-sharer consented to such possession, Held, that the possession was adverse as to ripen into ownership by cultivation for more than twelve years. A.I.R. 1930 All. 845=128 Ind. Cas. 820.

——Art. 144—An admission of another's title by a person claiming land adversely cancels the effect of any overt act that he has committed and it cannot be inferred or presumed that that admission carries with it an assertion of adverse title. 106 Ind. Cas. 814=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 317.

——Art. 144—Possession — Nature of property and capability for direct possession to be considered.

In considering the question of possession the Court will have to consider the nature of the property. How far the property is capable of being possessed directly will have to be considered. If, for instance, the property is a land covered all over with wood, water, etc.; even if the man in possession proved that he has been in possession in a clearer manner than the man with the title the adverse possessor may not succeed. 44 Mad. 883 (P.C.), Foll. 85 Ind. Cas. 578=47 All. 389=23 A.L.J. 244=6 L.R.A. Civ. 184=A.I.R. 1925 All. 454.

——Art. 144—Trespass—Planting of trees.

Planting of trees on land belonging to another is an act of active trespass, and the owner of the land can sue for removal of the trees so planted and for recovery of possession of the land at any time within twelve years. 75 Ind. Cas. 266=46 All. 52=A.I.R. 1924 All. 443.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession.

Planting of trees on another person's land is active trespass—Suit by owner for possession—Article 144 applies. 70 Ind. Cas. 483=A.I.R. 1922 All. 50.

——Art. 144—Lawful possession — Presumption.

Possession may either be lawful or unlawful, in the absence of evidence it must be assumed to be the former. 51 C.L.J. 424.

——Art. 144—Trespasser abandoning possession —Possession vests back in rightul owner.

If a person enters upon the land of another and holds possession for a time, and then, without having acquired title under the statute, abandons possession, the rightful owner, on the abandonment is in the same position in all respects as he was before the intrusion took place. There is no positive enactment or any principle of law which requires him to do any act or issue any notice or to perform any ceremony in order to rehabilitate himself. 13 A.C. 793 at 798, Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 905=11 L.B.R. 381=1 Bur.L.J. 251=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 23.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession must be adequate, continuous and exclusive—Acts of possession by owner though not continuous will destroy adverse possession.

Adverse possession, contemplated by Art. 144 must be adequated in continuity, in publicity, and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor. Standing a title in A, the alleged adverse possession of B must have all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness which should qualify such adverse possession. The onus of establishing these things is upon the adverse possessor. Accordingly when the holder of title proves that he too has been exercising, during the currency of his title, various acts of possession, then the quality of these acts, even though they might have failed to constitute adverse possession as against another, may be abundantly sufficient to destroy that adequacy and interrupt that exclusiveness and continuity which is demanded from any person challenging by possession the title which he holds. 66 Ind. Cas. 451=26 C.W.N. 666=24 Bom.L.R. 669=30 M.L.T. 42=48 I.A. 395=44 Mad. 883=14 M. L. W. 721=1921 M.W.N. 847=A.I.R. 1922 P. C. 181=41 M.L.J. 650 (P.C.).

——Art. 144—Temporary user, without objection by owner is not adverse possession.

The owner of a vacant plot not requiring it for his present use, it was used by his neighbour for more than twelve years without objection,

Held, that mere user of land for temporary purposes without objection would not amount to an assertion of ownership so as to give title by adverse possession. 68 Ind. Cas. 263=4 L.L.J. 168=35 P.W.R. 1922=62 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 82.

——Art. 144—Possession derived from a lessee not necessarily adverse as against the lessor.

Held, that possession acquired by defendant during the continuance of a lease will not ordinarily be adverse possession as against the lessor until at any rate such time as the lessor becomes entitled to possession. 27 A. 395 and 13 C. 131, (10 W.R. 15) 9 C. 367; 10 C. 577 and 23 C. 863, foll.; 14 W.R. 395; 17 W.R. 377 (9 C.L.R. 347) and 26 C. 460, Not Foll. 1907 A.W.N. 185=29 A. 593=4 A.L.J. 726.

——Art. 144—Possession—Nature and effect of.

The nature and effect of possession must depend upon the nature and extent of the rights asserted by the overt conduct or express declaration of the person relying on it. (1906) 12 C.W.N. 636=35 C. 470=7 C.L.J. 499.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Essentials.

Possession of property by one party cannot be adverse to another within the meaning of the Limitation Act unless the claims of the parties are hostile and adverse to each other. 12 C. 484, Foll. (1905) 5 C.L.J. 62.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Essentials.

The party claiming title should have been in possession and have exercised rights of possession over the disputed tract. (1904) 5 C.L.J. 71.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Essentials of.

It is of the essence of the title by adverse possession that it must relate to some property which is recognised by law. (1904) 6 Bom.L.R. 428 =28 B. 399.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Possession of trespasser—Nature of.

The possession of the intruder, ineffectual for the purpose of transfering title, ceases upon its abandonment to be effectual for any purpose. It does not leave behind it any claim on the title of the rightful owner. (1904) 32 C. 287.

——Art. 144—Mistake common to all parties.

Adverse possession is not less adverse because it commenced under a mistake common to ail parties as to the real party entitled to the property. 4 Bing. 100, followed. (1903) 5 Bom.L.R. 674 =28 B. 87.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Definition of.

Adverse possession is possession which is wrongful. Quaere.—Whether possession which on commencement was rightful can become adverse subsequently. (1903) 27 B. 408=5 Bom.L.R. 269.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Acts amounting to—Nature of—Legal origin.

Acts required by law to constitute a title by adverse possession must be of an unequivocal character and they must be such that no legal origin can be ascribed to them. 4 Bom.L.R. 964.

——Art. 144—Possession begun lawfully—Conversion into wrongful possession.

Courts are loath to convert possession lawfully obtained into a wrongful and adverse possession. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 355. See also 27 B. 408.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—What amounts to.

Adverse possession means possession by a person holding the land on his own behalf or some person other than the true owner having a right to immediate possession. There ought to be nothing equivocal in a possession which is relied upon as a bar. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 312=26 B. 617.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Essentials.

There must be both absence of possession by the person who has the right and actual possession by another whether adverse or not, to be protected, to bring the case within the statute. Consequently, limitation does not continue to run against the rightful owner the moment the intruder loses possession before his title is perfected by limitation though it be by vis major, 13 A.C. 793; 29 I.A. 541, Foll. (1902) 26 M. 410.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Nature of—Evidence of—Bar of limitation.

Possession must be in some way or other ostensibly adverse before it can cause limitation to run, and when there is no actual deprivation of any right, there must be a manifest and known assertion of a title incompatible with that of the disseizee. Where there is no ouster or open or notorious act of taking possession, the person relying on his possession to defeat title must show that it was of such a nature, and involved the exercise of rights so irreconcilable with those claimable by the plaintiff, as to give the plaintiff occasion to dispute that possession (or in other words, that it was such as to give a cause of action or right to sue for possession) throughout the twelve years next preceding the suit. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 721 =27 B. 43.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession of a mere right—Nature of—Evidence of—Adverse possession of equity of redemption.

The adverse possession of a right may be entirely distinct from the adverse possession of tangible immovable property; a right to sue in respect of the former arising possibly on open and avowed assertion or manifest adverse exercise of such right, while, the right to sue in respect of the possession can commence only when the possession itself (and not a mere claim to some minor right) becomes adverse to the rights of the person alleging title, which it cannot be as long as that person is not entitled to claim possession. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 721=27 B. 43.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Essentials and character of.

Where a person claimed adverse possession of the equity of redemption by reason of an agreement entered into by him with the mortgagee to the effect that he will retain possession and pay the interest due on the mortgage, but there was nothing to indicate to the real representative of the mortgagor the character under which the usurpers were holding the lands:

Held, that the position of persons claiming adverse possession was in no way better than if they had taken an assignment from the mortgagees of his interest. (1902) 27 B. 43=4 Bom.L.R. 721.

——Art. 144—Evidence of possession of certain specific property treated as evidence of possession as regards an appendage to such property, though no definite acts of possession were proved as regards the appendage—Limitation.

Where on the right to the produce of certain trees being called in question, it was found that the plaintiffs had not for twelve years previous to the filing of the suit done any specific acts indicating directly their possession of the trees, but that the trees nevertheless grew out of a wall which surrounded a garden in possession of the plaintiffs, it was held that the possession of the garden imported possession of the garden wall and of the trees springing out of the wall and the suit was not barred by limitation. 1902 A.W.N. 45=24 A. 294.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Partial possession by real owner—Effect of.

To constitute a title by adverse possession, the possession required to be proved must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent, and it is displaced by evidence of partial possession by the party against whom the title by adverse possession is claimed. (1901) 4 Bom.L.R. 28=26 B. 410. Also 3 Bom.L.R. 47=25 B. 362.

3. (c)—Adverse possession—Interruption.

See also NOTES 4 AND 29.

——Art. 144—Interruption — Unsuccessful application under O. 21, R. 97, C. P. Code.

An application under O. 21, R. 97, C. P. Code for delivery of possession against a person in possession which was subsequently dismissed will not interrupt adverse possession in his favour. (1945) 2 M.L.J. 173=58 M.L.W. 383=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 454.

——Art. 144—Suit under O. 21, R. 63, C. P. Code.

Although an order for attachment does not interfere with adverse possession, the filing of a suit for a declaration of the right to attach property against the person in possession does. It would be a negation of the right given by O. 21, R 63, C. P. Code to hold that when the suit has been filed in time, the person wrongly in possession of the property can get a little by adverse possession after the institution of the suit. The institution of the suit arrests the running of time in favour of the person in possession. Hence a suit under O. 21, R. 63, before 12 years of adverse possession entitles the plaintiff to a declaration of the rights of the parties as at the date of suit. 56 M. ——Art. 144—When a trespasser is in possession, and the Court makes a declaration showing that his possession is wrongful, that does not affect the quality of his possession, but merely advertises the fact that it is adverse. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 44=43 Bom.L.R. 971=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 14=198 Ind. Cas. 550.

——Art. 144—Break of adverse possession—Dismissal of claim petition.

Obiter.—The dismissal of a claim petition does not operate as a break of adverse possession. Such an order stands on a different footing from symbolical delivery or the decision of a survey officer. 44 L. W. 617=(1936) M.W.N. 1113=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 44=(1937) 1 M. L. J. 642=166 Ind. Cas. 308 (2).

——Art. 144—Rejection of claim petition by a person in adverse possession does not disentitle a person from relying on his possession from the date of rejection order. He is not required to prove that he got into possession again after rejection order. 44 L.W. 617=(1936) M.W.N. 1113=A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 44=(1937) 1 M. L J. 642=166 Ind. Cas. 308 (2).

——Art. 144—Whether a prior decree to which a defendant is a party operates as breaking the continuity of possession of the defendant or not must necessarily depend on the nature of the decree. Where, however, the decree is in favour of a plaintiff for possession as owner and is passed against a defendant who is in possession, it would break the continuity of the possession of the defendant and prevent him from relying on his prior possession for the purposes of limitation under Art. 144. A.I.R. 1932 Sind 35=26 S.L.R. 127=140 Ind. Cas. 228.

——Art. 144—Lease for term—Tenant continuing in possession without paying rent—Adverse possession if interrupted by paper decree.

The original owner of certain property leased it for eleven months on 16th July, 1899. In 1905 the property was partitioned between the sons of the lessor. In 1912 one of them filed a suit for rent and obtained a decree but did not execute the same. On September 12, 1925, the other brother sued to recover possession of his share of the property,

Held, that the possession of the lessee became adverse from 1900, that adverse possession was not interrupted by the decree obtained by the other brother in 1912, and that the suit was barred by limitation. 32 Bom. L. R. 695=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 400.

——Art. 144—Declaratory decree—Effect on assertion of adverse title.

Where there is assertion adverse title and ouster of a party, declaratory decree obtained by him does not prevent limitation from running. 120 Ind. Cas. 486=11 L. L. J. 553=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 297.

——Art. 144—Execution sale pending suit for declaration as to property being subject to trust—Subsequent declaration does not affect adverse possession of auction-purchaser under the execution sale. 74 Ind. ——Art. 144—Mortgage.

The mortgage by a mortgagor does not stop running of time against him or any one claiming through him. 50 C.L.J. 317=34 C.W.N. 519=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 313=126 Ind. Cas. 257.

——Art. 144—Co-owners — Ouster — Subsequent acquisition of joint ownership—No interruption.

Where a person has begun to hold possession of land adversely to two co-sharers, each being the owner of a moiety, and before the expiration of the statutory period of limitation succeeds to one moiety upon the death of its owner, his possession continues to be adverse to the owner of the other moiety, although he has become jointly interested with the other. 43 Mad. 244=46 I. A. 285=38 M.L.J. 313=27 M.L.T. 6=22 Bom. L.R. 144=18 A.L.J. 274=24 C.W.N. 346=(1919) M.W.N. 724=10 L.W. 679=53 Ind. Cas. 901 (P. C.). [Affirming 19 M.L.T. 52=

——Art. 144 — Possession pending suit—Not adverse.

Possession after institution of suit is not adverse. 17 M.L.T. 347=29 Ind. Cas. 168.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Adverse possession—Order under Land Registration Act (Bengal Act) if amounts to dispossession.

During the pendency of a defendant's appeal one of the plaintiff-respondents died and his rights and liabilities in respect of the disputed properties vested by survivorship in accordance with the Mitakshara Law in the remaining plaintiff's-respondents.

Held, that an application by the appellant to have the surviving plaintiffs-respondents, noted as the legal representatives of the deceased comes within S. 362, of the C. P. Code, (1813) and is governed by Art. 179, S. 362, C. P. Code, is not limited in its application to cases where the right to sue (or appeal) survives against the surviving defendants (or respondents) not as the legal representatives of the deceased but by reason of a right vested in them antecedent to the suit. An order under the Land Registration Act refusing to register an applicant's name does not in law amount to a dispossession of the applicant and the putting in possession of the party upon whose objection the application was refused. When the party, whose application for the registration of his name was refused, continued in actual possession, no suit for the recovery of possession within Art. 144 would lie at his instance, and a suit to have his title to the land declared would be governed by Art. 120. 1 C.L.J. 73, foll. (1906) 11 C.W.N. 186=4 C.L.J. 568.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Formal possession obtained by auction-purchaser.

Held, that formal possession obtained by an auction-purchaser of an undivided share saves. limitation not only as against the judgment-debtor but as against the co-sharers with whom he is in joint possession. 1906 A.W.N. 278=3 A.L.J. 659.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Delivery, effect of—C.P. Code, S. 244.

Delivery of formal possession in execution of a decree for possession gives a cause of action against a defendant who remains in occupation of the premises, which may be enforced in a regular suit. The defendant who remains in actual possession notwithstanding execution must be regarded as a trespasser who commits a fresh act of djspossession and this gives a fresh cause of action. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 49 (D.B.).

——Art. 144—Adverse possession, termination of—C. P. Code, S. 331.

Held, that adverse possession of the claimant terminated with the initiation of proceedings under Chapter 19, C. P. Code (1882), before the expiration of twelve years from its commencement and that cannot be counted in favour of the adverse holders till the date of registration of proceedings in the form of a suit. (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 667=30 Bom. 115.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession — Attachment by holder of decree against owner—Owner's title not barred on date of attachment—Barred at date of suit.

The attachment of property by a decree holder does not arrest the running of time in favour of a trespasser holding the property adversely to the judgment-debtor. Defendants 1 to 3 were holding the plaint properties adversely to defendants 4 to 7. The trespasser's title had not perfected in 1894 when the properties were attached by the plaintiff as belonging to defendants 4 to 7. But at the time of filing this suit for declaration that the properties belonged to defendants 4 to 7 and were liable to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, more than 12 years of adverse possession had elapsed. Held, that the attachment did not interrupt the acquisition of the title by prescription and that the suit was barred. (1901) 11 M.L.J. 344. See also 5 C.W.N. 160=28 C. 86.

4. Auction-purchaser and decree-holder.

——Art. 144—Suit for actual possession by auction-purchaser who has obtained symbolical possession—Defaulting proprietor remaining in adverse possession.

Symbolical possession if delivered under the C. P. Code, even though erroneously, operates as actual possession against the judgment debtor and his representatives. The same principle will apply to the case of a defaulting proprietor. If symbolical possession has been delivered, it will be as effective against him as if actual possession had been delivered. There will be a fresh start for the period of limitation and the purchaser will be in a position to sue for possession on the basis of his title by purchase to sue within 12 years of the delivery of possession to him if the defaulting proprietor remains in adverse possession. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 50.

——Art. 144—Applicability — Suit for actual possession by landlord obtaining symbolical possession in execution of ejectment decree against tenant—Limitation—Starting point.

If a landlord obtains symbolical possession through Court in execution of an ejectment decree against his tenants but the tenants continue to remain in actual possession, the landlord must be taken to have obtained possession, on the day when he was given symbolical possession and kept out of possession from the next day. The possession of the tenants therefore becomes adverse to the landlord from the next day and limitation begins to run against him from that date in respect of any suit for possession that he might afterwards bring against them. 53 C.W.N. 899=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 92.

——Art. 144—Applicability — Suit for actual possession by person who has obtained symbolical possession—Limitation.

Where in execution of a decree symbolical possession is delivered of immovable property to the person entitled to actual possession thereof, the symbolical possession should be deemed equivalent to actual possession as against the judgment-debtor, and a subsequent suit by the decree-holder for actual possession instituted within 12 years from the date of the symbolical possession must be deemed to be within time. A.I.R. 1950 Pepsu 22.

——Art. 144—Applicability — Suit for actual possession by Court auction-purchaser who has obtained symbolical possession — Limitation—Starting point.

Symbolical possession under O. 21, R. 95, C. P. Code, is equivalent to actual possession as against the judgment-debtor or his representative, and a suit for actual possession by the person to whom symbolical possession has been delivered will be in time if brought within 12 years from the date of the symbolical possession. 27 Pat. 267=A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 416.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Bar of remedy and extinguishment of right — Decree-holder's purchasing share of judgment-debtor's property in execution —Failure to obtain actual possession within 12 years—Effect.

When a decree-holder purchasing the share of his judgment-debtor's property in execution fails and neglects to obtain actual possession of it within 12 years, he not only loses his remedy, but his right is also extinguished. 1947 A.L.J. 202 =1947 A.L.W. 232=1947 A.W.R. (H.C.) 229 =A.I.R. 1947 A 296.

——Arts. 144, 138 and S. 16—Suit by auction-purchaser for possession after formal delivery of possession—Art. 144 and not Art. 138 applies—S. 16 does not apply.

Where an auction-purchaser brings a suit for recovery of possession after he has obtained formal delivery of possession, it is not a suit by him as an auction-purchaser but as an owner of the property purchased and is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 138. Section 16 has no application in such a case and hence the period during which a proceeding to set aside the sale has been prosecuted cannot be excluded. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 202=24 Pat. 717.

——Arts. 144 and 120—Decree against manager of joint Hindu family—Sale of property—Property described in sale certificate—Suit by auction-purchaser for possession.

In the execution of an award obtained by a co-operative credit society against the surety who was a manager of joint Hindu family some joint Hindu family property was attached and sold. The boundaries of the area so sold were set out in the certificate for sale issued to the auction-purchaser who had purchased the same with the necessary permission. The auction-purchaser who got only a symbolical possession and not actual possession filed a suit for possession against the manager (Surety defendant):

Held, that Art. 144 applied and not Art. 120. A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 192=47 Bom.L.R. 1102= I.L.R. (1946) Bom. 109=224 Ind. Cas. 206.

——Art. 142—Sale for arrears of rent—Auction-purchaser obtaining receipt of delivery of property from Revenue Inspector without physically evicting tenant—Suit for possession within 12 years of delivery of receipt is in time. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 698=1942 M.W.N. 543=55 L.W. 548=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 305=204 Ind. Cas. 382.

——Art. 142—Suit by auction-purchaser in execution of mortgage decree, to eject a person in possession of property.

When the owner mortgages his property, part of his interest passes to the mortgagee, but when the property is sold at a Court auction, the purchaser has vested in him the full title of the mortgagor as it existed before the mortgage and the law which applies to the mortgagor applies to him. Art. 142, therefore applies even to a case where a purchaser at an auction-sale held in execution of a mortgage decree brings a suit to eject a person in possession of the property purchased by him. (1940) 2 M.L.J. 190=52 L.W. 149=(1940) M. W.N. 747=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 798=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 953=192 Ind. Cas. 488 (F.B.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—C. P. Code, O. 21, R. 35 (1) — Delivery of possession — Whether gives fresh starting point for limitation for suit for possession.

Where possession of property has been delivered to a decree-holder under O. 21, R. 35 (1), C. P. Code, the decree-holder can claim a fresh period of twelve years from the date of delivery for a suit for recovery of possession. It is immaterial that the judgment-debtor was not apprised of the fact of delivery of possession. 33 P. L.R. 1082=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 22=140 Ind. Cas. 530.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Purchase of undivided share—Formal delivery of possession—Suit by purchaser.

In execution of his decree, M, the decree-holder purchased an undivided share of S in certain plots on August 21, 1905, and got formal delivery of possession on February 19, 1907. In 1914, M filed a suit for partition and separate possession against L defendant in the present suit the other sharer. Partition was refused but M got joint possession which was obtained on September 1, 1915, M on August 15; 1916; sold his rights and interest to the father of the plaintiff, who applied for mutation of names. The application was unsuccessfully resisted by defendant; a suit was brought by the plaintiff alleging that since August 15, 1916, his father was in joint possession and after his death, up to his dispossession by defendant, he remained in joint possession. Denying the plaintiff's allegation the defendant pleaded the bar of limitation for 12 years.

Held, that in order to establish adverse possession by one tenant-in-common against his co-tenants, there must be exclusion or ouster and the possession subsequent to that must be for the statutory period. But these proposition have no application to the facts of the present case. In the present case if the controversy had been between the defendant and S's sons, it may have been impossible for defendant to successfully put forward the plea of adverse possession, but the plea of limitation raised by defendant against the claim of the plaintiff was unanswerable. There has all along been an open denial by defendant of the title of the plaintiff and of his predecessors-in-title; neither the plaintiff nor his predecessors-in-title ever succeeded in obtaining actual possession of the plots. Consequently, there has been an ouster of the plaintiff and of his predecessors-in-title from the year 1905. Whether there is an actual turning out or keeping excluded of the party entitled to the possession, there is an ouster. The resistance on the part of defendant and the members of his family had the effect of preventing the plaintiff's predecessors-in-title from obtaining actual possession and this coupled as it was by an open denial of their title, amounted to their ouster. Therefore, time began to run against M from 1st September, 1915, the date on which he obtained formal delivery of possession in execution of the decree obtained by him for joint possession over the plots in dispute. 55 A. 173=(1933) A.L.J. 33=A.I.R. 1933 All. 173=17 R.D. 933=149 Ind. Cas. 819.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Sale in execution—Delivery of symbolical possession to purchaser—Suit by purchaser for possession.

The plaintiff purchased a property in execution of a decree in 1911. He applied for delivery of possession and the dakhalnama showed that possession was delivered to him 'as required by law' in 1913. The plaintiff filed a suit in 1925 for recovery of possession; alleging that he was dispossessed in 1914. The lower Appellate Court found that there was no actual delivery of possession by removal of the judgment-debtor and that the suit was, therefore, time-barred:

Held, (i) that the lower Appellate Court was entitled to come to such a finding on the evidence and the finding could not be set aside in second appeal;

(ii) that on that finding the suit was time-barred and rightly dismissed by the lower Appellate Court. (1931) A.L.J. 12=130 Ind. Cas. 706.

——Art. 142—Decree-holder obtaining formal possession.

A decree-holder who obtained formal possession under O. 21, R. 96, C. P. Code must obtain partition or establish his right in some other manner within 12 years therefrom. The delivery of formal possession gave him only a fresh start for the computation of limitation but did not make him owner in possession. 124 Ind. Cas. 767 (All.)= A.I.R. 1931 All. 234.

——Art. 142—A decree-holder auction-purchaser sold the property before obtaining possession from the judgment-debtor who was alleged to have remained in possession as licensee of the decree-holder. The purchaser from decree-holder sued for possession,

Held, that if the judgment-debtor was in possession as licensee as alleged then the suit would be governed by Art. 142. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 586 =51 C.L.J. 560=34 C. W. N. 1059=128 Ind. Cas. 244.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Delivery of properties given to judgment creditor through Court—Judgment-debtor continuing in possession—Limitation —Starting point.

Even if the judgment-debtors continue to be in the possession of the properties in spite of the delivery of the properties made through Court, yet, as against the judgment-debtors to the suit and persons represented by them, the effect of such delivery should be taken to be that the decree-holder is in possession; and consequently a fresh cause of action arises against the judgment-debtors, and limitation begins to run only from the date of the delivery made through Court. 122 Ind. Cas. 164=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 206.

——Art. 144—Applicability—Auction-purchaser.

When a purchaser at Court sale sues the co-tenants of the judgment-debtor, Art. 138 will not apply for that Article applies only against judgment-debtor and persons claiming through him. The suit will be governed by Art. 144. 117 Ind. Cas. 593=33 C.W.N. 46=56 Cal. 616=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 250.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Formal possession under O. 21, R. 95, C. P. Code—Suit for possession is governed by Art. 142.

Where the auction-purchaser of only a share in a certain property, who has obtained under O. 21, R. 95 possession by beat of drum, sues for recovery of possession on the ground that he has not obtained actual possession the suit is governed by Art. 142 and not Art. 144; and the possession of the judgment-debtor who has remained in actual possession in spite of the formal delivery of possession through Court, should be deemed to have become adverse only from the date of such formal delivery. 110 Ind. Cas. 70=5 O.W.N. 372=3 Luck. 506=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 251 (F.B.).

——Art. 144—Formal possession given — Fresh cause of action.

Formal possession of property in previous suit duly given—Fresh denial of his title to that property gives him a fresh cause of action to establish such right. 109 Ind. Cas. 561=A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 910.

——Arts. 142, 144 and 121—Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 80—Purchaser at revenue sale suing for possession—Suit within 12 years from symbolical possession—Defendants defaulting proprietors—Suit is governed by Art. 142 or 144 and not by Art. 121 and is within time. 44 Cal. 412, Appl. 115 Ind. Cas. 606=32 C.W. N. 778=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 870.

——Art. 142—Possession delivered under decree —Suit for possession within 12 years is not barred.

Where a decree-holder has been granted possession by ousting those who were already in possession, his possession is not sham or symbolical and a suit by him for possession within 12 years of such delivery is not barred as the persons in possession must be deemed to be dispossessed on the date of delivery. 105 Ind. Cas. 170=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 144.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Formal delivery of possession—Effect of—Against previous purchaser from judgment-debtor.

Although the formal delivery of possession under O. 21, R. 95, C. P. Code, may have the effect of actual possession as against the judgment-debtor himself, such formal delivery of possession cannot take effect as actual possession as against a purchaser of the rights of the judgment-debtor who has previously obtained actual possession. 111 Ind. Cas. 362=5 O.W.N. 616=3 Luck. 668 =A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 391.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Time begins to run from the date of formal delivery.

Where the auction-purchaser of only a share in a certain property, who has obtained under O. 21, R. 95 possession by beat of drum, sues for recovery of possession on the ground that he has not obtained actual possession the suit is governed by Art. 142 and not Art. 144; and the possession of the judgment-debtor who has remained in actual possession in spite of the formal delivery of possession through Court, should be deemed to have become adverse only from the date of such formal delivery. 110 Ind. Cas. 70=3 Luck. 506 =5 O. W. N. 372=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 251 (F. B.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—When amounts to actual possession.

In a suit for possession when the plaintiff has been given symbolical possession in execution of a decree if the defendant is bound by the decree, the symbolical possession delivered against him amounts to eviction. If the defendant is not bound by the decree he is to show that his right by adverse possession has been perfected as against the plaintiff under Art. 144 of the Limitation Act. In either case, the plaintiff is entitled to base his cause of action from the date of the delivery of symbolical possession to him. 96 Ind. Cas. 481 =A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1172.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Delivery of formal possession gives fresh starting point. 96 Ind. Cas. 591=A.I.R. 1926 All. 691.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Symbolical possession will give fresh starting point — Possession. 73 Ind. Cas. 920=20 A.L.J. 641=A.I.R. 1922 All. 463.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Time runs from date of formal delivery.

One R left a widow P and two daughters J & K. P made a gift of the estates of R to K. J, sued for her half share and got formal possession. J's legal representatives brought a suit for possession, Held, that limitation began against her from the date of her taking formal possession. 70 Ind. Cas. 488=A.I.R. 1922 All. 55.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit in ejectment — Dispossession within twelve years—Possession of open sites—Possession will presumably follow possession of property to which they adjoin—Presumption of possession following title.

The plaintiff who purchased at a Court sale a shop and two open pieces of land in front of it and was placed in possession, sued to eject from the land the defendant who claimed to be a subsequent purchaser from the judgment-debtor,

Held, if the plaintiff established his title over the property he can rely upon the presumption that possession went with the title in absence of satisfactory evidence in rebuttal. As under Art. 142 time begins to run from the date of the dispossession; if the plaintiff alleges his dispossession within twelve years of the suit, then the question must arise according to the circumstances of each case how far the plaintiff has correctly fixed the date of dispossession and how far the onus lies on the defendant to show that that date was wrong. In a suit for ejectment it is for the plaintiff to prove possession prior to the dispossession which he alleges. On the question of evidence however, the initial fact of the plaintiff's title comes to his aid. Possession of open sites goes naturally with the possession of the property to which they adjoin. If the defendant asserts his rights, he must show that he has been in possession adversely against the owner of the property. 66 Ind. Cas. 764=46 Bom. 920 =24 Bom.L.R. 373=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 243.

——Arts. 142 and 138—Suit by auction-purchaser against trespasser—Art. 138 does not apply—Independent trespassers cannot tack on their possessions—When Art. 142 applies.

Art 138 has no application to a suit for possession by a Court auction-purchaser against a person who claims title independent of judgment-debtor.

The article applicable is Art. 144 and under Art. 144 a trespasser cannot tack on his possession with that of previous trespasser.

Where the defendant claims through the judgment-debtor, Art 138 would apply but when symbolical possession has been given to the auction-purchaser it will be equivalent to actual possession against the defendant and thereupon Art. 142 will apply to the case. 70 Ind. Cas. 602=27 C.W.N. 259=36 C.L.J. 140=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 176.

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Symbolical possession—Gives a fresh cause of action for possession.

Symbolical possession is as effective as actual possession against the judgment-debtors; and if the judgment-debtors continued in possession even after symbolical possession is delivered to the auction-purchaser, their possession becomes adverse against such purchaser from that very day. The purchaser therefore has a fresh cause of action for instituting the suit for possession against the judgment-debtor; and such a suit would not be one governed by Art. 138, which evidently refers to a case where the purchaser has not obtained delivery of possession, but Art. 144 would apply, and in such case the period during which an application to set aside sale continued cannot be excluded. 70 Ind. Cas. 420=26 C.W.N. 364=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 385.

——Art. 144—Formal delivery to auction-purchaser—No fresh starting point of limitation.

Where upon an execution sale possession has been delivered in accordance with the provisions of the law, that is, in accordance with S. 318 or 319 of the old Code as the case may be, having regard to the nature of the property, or under O. 21, R. 95 or R. 96, the auction-purchaser gets a fresh start for the compensation of limitation. But where such possession has not been delivered, the mere fact of formal delivery of possession does not save limitation. 63 Ind. Cas. 212=43 All. 520=19 A.L.J. 469=A.I.R. 1921 All. 9 (F.B.).

——Art. 144—Starting point — Symbolical possession—Adverse possession.

The possession of a transferee from the mortgagor is adverse to the mortgagee decree-holder from the date on which the court sale in the latter's favour was confirmed, and not from the date on which he got symbolical possession of the property. 21 A. 269, approved. 4 O.L.J. 481 =42 Ind. Cas. 192.

——Art. 144—Starting point — Symbolical delivery of possession against Government—Ryotwari Tenants — Continuance of possession—Prescription.

Where possession of inam lands wrongly classed as Ryotwari by the Govt. and for which pattas were issued to the ryots is decreed to the inamdar and symbolical delivery is made in execution of the decree a suit brought to oust the ryotwari tenants within 12 years of the delivery of possession which was acquiesced in by the tenants is not barred by limitation.

(Per Spencer, J.)—The Ryotwari tenants, when they attorned to Government could not simultaneously prescribe for any title which could enure after the title of the Govenment was negatived in the suit of a third party, and so long as they were tenants of the plaintiff or her predecessors-in-interest, their possession was not adverse to that of the landlord. A Ryotwari Pattadar does not acquire any rights against the Government greater than what he gets at the initial grant of Patta.

Per Phillips, J —The original possession of the Ryotwari tenants having been terminated by delivery in execution any fresh title could be acquired by actual possession only after the expiry of 12 years after the symbolical delivery. 41 Ind. Cas. 167 (Mad.).

——Art. 144—Starting point — Symbolical delivery — Onus on defendants.

Where plaintiff had obtained symbolical possession in execution of a decree against the defendants the onus of proving that the defendants have been in adverse possession for the statutory period is upon the defendants. 2 Lah.L.J. 91.

——Art. 144—Starting point—Revenue Sale—Bengal Revenue Sales Law Act (11 of 1859)—Purchaser if claims through defaulter—Adverse possession against defaulter if adverse against purchaser.

A purchaser under the Revenue Sale Law purchases the share and not the right, title and interest of the defaulter. He does not claim under or through the defaulter and hence in a suit for possession by a purchaser who has not been in possession since his purchase, the defendant must show adverse possession for more than 12 years against the plaintiff as the adverse possession against the defaulter cannot be tacked on to adverse possession against plaintiff. 15 C.L.J. 436 =16 C.W.N. 587=14 Ind Cas. 219.

——Art. 144 — Starting point — Symbolical possession—Effect of.

Symbolical possession is effective against a judgment-debtor though not so against a stranger to the suit. 17 C.W.N. 324=18 Ind. Cas. 751.

——Art. 144—Starting point — Symbolical delivery — Decree-holder—Suit for possession against judgment-debtor—Limitation.

Where the decree-holder in execution of a decree for possession is given formal possession the judgment-debtor remaining in actual possession, the possession of the decree-holder is deemed actual or legal possession in the eye of law and he can bring a fresh suit for possession within 12 years. 19 A. 499, Appl. 10 Ind. Cas. 319 (All.).

——Art. 144—Starting point — Symbolical possession—Effect on trespasser's possession.

An auction-purchaser was given formal but not actual possession of the judgment-debtor's property which was at that time in possession of a trespasser; the judgment-debtor subsequently recovered the property;

Held, the auction-purchaser can recover the same within 12 years of the date on which the judgment-debtor obtained possession from the trespasser. 5 Ind. Cas. 273 (All.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for possession by vendee from mortgagee-purchaser against a vendee from mortgagor not impleaded in suit—Symbolical possession, delivery of.

Delivery of symbolical possession does not operate as an ouster against a stranger in possession, and a suit for possession by a purchaser from the mortgagee-purchaser against a purchaser from the mortgagor who, though in possession, has not been impleaded in the suit, is barred if not brought within 12 years from the date of the mortgage decree. (1907) 7 C.L.J. 640.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit by auction-purchaser for possession—Symbolical possession — Starting point.

Time begins to run not from the date of sale at which the plaintiff purchased the property but from the time when the plaintiff obtained symbolical possession of the same, and a suit brought by the plaintiff within twelve years from such date for establishment of his right by purchase is not barred by limitation. (1906) 5 C.L.J. 55.

——Art. 144—Symbolical possession—Judgment-creditor and judgment-debtor—Limitation.

As between the judgment-creditor or his assigns on one side and the judgment-debtor or his heirs on the other, symbolical possession under the execution of a decree is as good as actual possession to give the purchaser or his assigns the right to bring his suit for possession within twelve years from that date. (1900) 25 B. 358=2 Bom. L. R. 1087. Also 27 M. 262; 7 C.L.J. 640.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Decree for possession — Failure to execute—Effect of.

Though a decree for possession has become incapable of execution on account of failure to apply for execution within limitation, the right established by the decree remains. 35 Bom. 79, Foll.

But the right cannot be the basis of a subsequent suit, and the plaintiff, who has neglected to execute the decree till it is time-barred, cannot any the more on that account bring another suit for possession whether founded on the decree or on the continued occupation of the property by the defendant. 5 Bom. 382, Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 269=30 Bom.L.R. 1583.

(a) General.
(b) Adverse possession.
(c) Possession within twelve years.

5. (a) Burden of proof—(General).

——Art. 142—Plaintiff out of possession—Need for proof of subsisting title.

A plaintiff out of possession cannot succeed in a suit for possession without proof of title. This title which he must prove is not title anterior to the suit. It would not be enough to prove that plaintiff had title say 15 or 20 years before suit. It should be a subsisting title. A subsisting title would involve proof of title in addition to possession within 12 years. If, therefore, a plaintiff bases the case on the permissive character of his defendant's possession and fails to prove it, he may succeed if his title and possession within 12 years have been proved. It is only on proof of subsisting title that a defendant can be called upon to prove his adverse possession. It would not be necessary to go into the question of defendant's adverse possession if plaintiff has not proved his subsisting title in the suit property. I. L. R. (1940) Mad. 953 (F.B.), Foll. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 55.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Proof that plaintiff has subsisting title—Necessity of — Plaintiff alleging ownership and prior possession—Defendant claiming title by transfer—Presumption.

When a man sues for the possession of property, which is in the possession of another, he must show that he has a subsisting title to the property. It is not enough for him to show that he once had a title to that property. One of the ways in which he can show that he has a subsisting title is to bring evidence to show that he once owned the property, and that at the time he was unlawfully dispossessed, he was still the owner of that property. It cannot be said that the presumption always is that where a man has once been the owner of land, he continues to be owner of the land.

Where the plaintiff to a suit for possession alleges prior possession and ownership and the defendant puts forward a title to land by way of a definite transfer, no presumption can arise in favour of the continuance of the plaintiff's anterior ownership, and on his failing to prove the permissive nature of the occupation, the plaintiff cannot succeed without at first showing that he had been in possession within twelve years of bringing the suit. 8 Rang. 516=A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 124 =161 Ind. Cas. 833.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for possession—Plaintiff proving title.

It cannot be said that in every suit for possession where the plaintiff had established his title, it lies on the defendant to prove his adverse possession, even though the plaintiff had come into Court alleging his possession and dispossession. 8 R. L. 879=A. I. R. 1936 Lah. 208=17 L. 449=38 P.L.R. 988=162 Ind. Cas. 330.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Suit based on title—Burden of proof of adverse possession.

When a plaintiff comes into Court relying upon his title, it is not necessary for him, as in a case falling under Art. 142, to prove that he had been in possession at a period within twelve years prior to the commencement of the suit. It is sufficient if the plaintiff establishes a prima facie title and it is then for the defendant to substantiate the plea of adverse possession. 34 P.L.R. 163=A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 105=141 Ind. Cas. 234.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Suit on title—Onus.

A suit based on title and not prior possession and dispossession falls under Art. 144 and not under Art. 142 and it is not necessary for the plaintiff, whose title has been established, to prove his own possession within twelve years. The onus is on the defendant to prove adverse possession.

Art. 142 is restricted to suits which are in terms and substance based on the plaintiff's prior possession which he has lost by dispossession or discontinuance of possession. 15 R.D. 566=8 O. W. N. 921=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 382=134 Ind. Cas. 599.

——Arts. 142 and 144—In cases falling under Art. 142, the claimant must prove his possession within 12 years next preceding the date of the institution of the suit and in cases of that nature, an enquiry into the question of adverse possession is irrelevant.

In cases falling under Art. 144, where the defence is one of title acquired by adverse possession for more than 12 years. it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove his possession within 12 years from the commencement of the suit. A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 177=8 O.W.N. 349=136 Ind. Cas. 642.

——Art. 144—Where plaintiff claims as heir to a life-holder who is not heard of since over 7 years and defendants are in possession for over 12 years. Art. 144 applies and plaintiff must prove date of death within 12 years of suit. 12 M.I.A. 342; 5 Cal. 36, Appr. 93 Ind. Cas. 280=5 Pat. 312 =53 I.A. 24=24 A.L.J. 105=1926 M.W.N. 203 =7 P.L.T. 163=3 O.W.N. 335=43 C.L.J. 249 =28 Bom.L.R. 855=30 C.W.N. 721=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 9=50 M.L.J. 289 (P.C.).

5. (b) Burden of proof—Adverse possession.

——Art. 144—Plaintiff establishing relationship of landlord and tenant—Defendant must prove ouster.

Where in a suit for ejectment the Court finds that the defendants' occupation is not independent of the plaintiff that is to say, not on his own independent title but as a tenant under the plaintiff it is necessary for the defendant, in order to succeed, to establish ouster, that is, assertion of hostile title as against the plaintiff and claiming title on his own account and after such assertion to the knowledge of the plaintiff, his remaining in possession for the statutory period of 12 years or more. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 185=12 B.R. 260=222 Ind. Cas. 378.

——Art. 144—Burden of proof—Adverse possession.

Per Malik, J.—It is for the person claiming adverse possession to prove that such possession was adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent. (1945) A.L.J. 11=I.L.R. (1945) All. 75=A.I.R. 1945 All. 121=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 414=222 Ind. Cas. 196.

——Art. 144—Plea of ouster.

Suit for mandatory injunction for removal of construction—Plaintiff proving dispossession within 12 years—Plea of ouster—The burden is on defendant to establish exclusive possession from a date beyond 12 years. 1942 O.W.N. 281 (All.).

——Art. 144—The burden of establishing title to property by reason of possession for a certain requisite period lies upon the person who asserts such possession. It would be contrary to all legal principles to permit the squatter to put the owner to a negative proof upon the point of possession.

Where during the course of pleadings the acquisition of tenancy is expressly given up, a person having a title can no doubt be defeated by proving adverse possession but it must be shown how and when possession began adversely for the period of twelve years, otherwise the title-holder succeeds. 19 N.L.J. 78=167 Ind. Cas. 801.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Suit by proprietary body against occupiers of shamilat.

Where, in a suit by some of the proprietors of a village for ejectment of the defendants who had been cultivating portions of the shamilat for a considerable time, the defendants denied the title of the proprietary body and claimed the land as theirs:

Held, that the suit was governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 142, and the onus was on the defendants to prove adverse possession for 12 years.

In a suit which does fall under Art. 142, the fact that the date of dispossession is not given or proved is immaterial, for, if the plaintiff can show possession within twelve years, the fact that he is not in possession at the time he institutes his suit establishes that sometime in the interval he has been dispossessed. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 245=144 Ind. Cas. 72.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Onus.

Per Wort, J.—In a case under Art. 144, the onus is upon the defendants to show that they had got a title at the time of action by adverse possession. 13 P.L.T. 121=11 Pat. 165=A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 145=142 Ind. Cas. 246.

——Art. 144—Burden of proof — Plaintiff basing claim on title—Onus is on defendant to prove adverse possession.

The rule that the onus is upon plaintiffs to prove their possession prior to the time when they were admittedly dispossessed applies only to the case of a plaintiff basing his claim on dispossession. Consequently, where plaintiff bases his claim on title it is for the defendant to establish his adverse possession over a period of twelve years. 41 All. 669, Foll. 122 Ind. Cas. 81=31 P.L.R. 231 A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 608.

——Art. 144—Suit for possession based on title— Suit is governed by Art. 144 and if defendant sets up adverse possession, burden is on him to make out his case, not for plaintiff to make out possession, within limitation. 7 O.W.N. 504=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 310 =126 Ind. Cas. 703.

——Art. 144—Plea of adverse possession—Defendant must prove.

In a case where the suit is resisted on ground of acquisition of title by adverse possession, it is not for the plaintiff to prove his possession within 12 years. The paramount question is of title and if the title vests in the plaintiff he is entitled to succeed, even if he fails to establish any alleged tenancy or license by the defendant, unless the defendant is able to establish his adverse possession under Art. 144. A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 32; A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 70 and A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 21, Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 384 (Lah.).

——Art. 144—Suit on title—Defendant to prove adverse possession.

Plaintiffs were the owners of the land in suit and the defendants were in possession. Plaintiffs filed a suit for possession. The defendants contended that they held land in their own rights by adverse possession for more than 40 years. It was found that the land remained uncultivated from the year 1907 to 1919 and the suit was brought on 31st August, 1921. All along in the Jamabandi the plaintiffs had been described as owners and defendants as in possession,

Held, that the onus of proving adverse possession lay on the defendants and the suit was governed by Art. 144, and not by Art. 142. A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 21, Foll. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 596.

——Art. 144—Burden of proof—Adverse possession.

The onus of establishing title to property by reason of possession for a certain requisite period lies upon the person asserting such possession. A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 21, Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 336=9 L.L.J. 9=28 P.L.R. 55=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 777.

——Art. 144—Where in a case under Art 144 plaintiff's title is proved, the burden of proving adverse possession is on the defendant. 97 Ind. Cas. 135=8 P.L.T. 129.

——Art. 144—Plaintiff proving title — Defendant must prove adverse possession for 12 years. A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 286 and 30 Mad. 617 (P.C.) Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 855 (Oudh).

——Art. 144—Title of plaintiff proved or admitted—Defendant must prove adverse possession for 12 years.

Where a plaintiff sues on the strength of his title without any reference to prior possession or dispossession in such a case it would seem that on the proper construction of Art. 144, the plaintiff would be entitled to succeed on proof of his title, unless the defendant is able to displace it by proof of adverse possession by himself or his predecessor-in-title for the whole statutory period. In a suit falling within Art. 144 the initial onus on plaintiff is to establish his title and he is not under an obligation to prove his possession within 12 years of the suit. On the contrary, when the plaintiff's title has been proved or is admitted, the burden is on defendant to establish that he, or persons through whom he claims has or have been in possession adverse to the plaintiff for over 12 years before the suit. The defendant must also prove when his possession became adverse. It is settled law that the onus of establishing title to property by reason of possession for a certain requisite period lies on the person asserting such possession. 39 Mad. 617 (P.C.), Foll. 92 Ind. Cas. 825=29 O.C. 131=13 O.L.J. 400 =A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 313.

——Art. 144—Plaintiff need prove only title—Onus is on defendant to prove adverse possession for 12 years.

In cases falling under Art. 144 where the defence is one of title acquired by adverse possession for more than 12 years it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove his possession within 12 years from the commencement of the suit. So far as the onus on the claimant in such a case lies it is satisfied by proof of title, and it is then for the defendant to establish his plea of adverse possession before the suit can be dismissed as barred by limitation. 39 Mad. 617 and 41 All. 669, Foll. 79 Ind. Cas. 964=27 O.C. 130=11 O.L. J. 251=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 42.

——Art. 144—Where the title was shown to be with the plaintiffs.

Held, it was for the defendants to prove their adverse possession. 5 L.R.A. Civ. 354=A.I.R. 1924 All. 924.

——Art. 144—When the dispossession by defendants is within 12 years of the suit the onus of proving adverse possession is on the defendants. 79 Ind. Cas. 1038=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 977.

——Arts. 144 and 142—Adverse possession—Burden of proof.

Where the plaintiff was a reversioner of the persons who were previously in possession of the property,

Held, that title was with them and it is for the defendants who seek to avoid that title on a plea of adverse possession to establish it. 77 Ind. Cas. 705=A.I.R. 1923 All. 563.

——Art. 144—Title of plaintiff proved—Onus is on defendant to prove adverse possession—Possession to be adverse must have all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness. 77 Ind. Cas. 564=36 C.L.J. 472=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 82.

——Art. 144—Plaintiff proving title—Defendant to prove adverse possession.

In a suit by an inam certificate-holder to recover possession of lands alienated by the predecessor, defendant admitted the title of the plaintiff's predecessors, but sought to show that title was extinguished by adverse possession.

Held, that Art. 144 of the Limitation Act is applicable and it was for defendant to show when his alleged possession under the article became adverse. 59 Ind. Cas. 473 (Nag.).

——Art. 144—Proof of title—Adverse possession.

Proof of identity together with the absence of evidence by the defendant does not establish a title to property, when the plaintiff claiming it was absent for 40 years. He must let in strong and cogent evidence to satisfy the court as to his title. 50 Ind. Cas. 870 (Cal.).

——Art. 144—Proof of title—Onus.

In a suit for possession without dispossession, the burden of proof is on plaintiff to prove title and that defendants' possession is not adverse, is shifted by a prima facie case but not by a mere entry of his name in the revenue record. 42 Ind. Cas. 890 (L.B.).

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Onus.

Where Art. 144 applies it is for the plaintiff to prove his title and then the onus of adverse possession lies on the defendant. 9 Bur.L.T. 84=32 Ind. Cas. 568.

——Art. 144—Adverse possession—Onus.

To invoke the aid of Art. 144, it lies upon the defendant to show that his possession became adverse to the plaintiff not less than twelve years before suit. (1903) 5 Bom. L. R. 742. Also (1910) 34 Mad. 402=20 M.L.J. 323=5 Ind. Cas. 491.

——Art. 144—Time when adverse possession commences—Onus.

When in a suit for possession a defendant sets up adverse possession under Art. 144, Limitation Act, he must show when the adverse possession commenced. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 99=26 Bom. 442.

5. (c) Burden of proof—Possession within twelve years.

——Art. 142 — Suit or possession — Burden of proving dispossession within 12 years of suit.

Where a plaintiff suing for possession has been found to have been dispossessed or his discontinued possession on a certain date, the burden lies on him to prove that the suit was brought by him within twelve years of that date, and upon his failure to discharge the burden, his suit is liable to be dismissed by reason of Art. 142, Limitation Act. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 57.

——Art. 142—Proof of possession within 12 years of suit—Declaratory decree.

A declaratory decree pure and simpliciter or even a decree for possession not effectively executed cannot satisfy the requirement of proof of possession within 12 years of suit which is laid down by Art. 142. 1949 M.W.N. 252=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 673=62 L.W. 253=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 428.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff alleging dispossession by defendant—If can succeed on proof of discontinuance of possession.

In a suit governed by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act, the plaintiff has to establish that his suit is within 12 years from the date of his dispossession or discontinuance of possession on his part. If he avers in the plaint that the cause of action for the suit took place on the date he was dispossessed by the defendant, the question of discontinuance of possession does not arise for consideration. If he fails to prove dispossession by the defendant on the date alleged, the requirements of law will be satisfied if it is found that the plaintiff was in possession till some time within twelve years of the suit. In such a case the plaintiff is in fact allowed to prove a case of discontinuance of possession rather than dispossession. It would be more a question rule of pleadings and fairness of the trial rather than a question of law to determine whether the plaintiff should be permitted to take a stand on an alternative provided by law but not pleaded by him. Even if a case of discontinuance of possession be acceded to him, he will have to prove specifically how and by what act of the defendant and when the discontinuance of possession took place. A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 391.

——Art. 142—Possession within statutory period—Proof — Possession shown in Record of Rights—Value of—Presumption as to continuity of possession.

A plaintiff suing for possession alleging dispossession by the defendant, must prove his possession within the statutory period. If he relies on the Record of Rights, the actual presumption of correctness which it carries is merely that he was in possession at the time the record was made. The general rule of evidence in favour of presuming the continuity of things shown to exist at a prior date cannot be availed of in suits for ejectment. A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 475.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff must prove possession within twelve years of dispossession.

A suit for possession by the plaintiff alleging possession of his predecessor-in-interest, till dispossession by the defendant falls under Art. 142 and the plaintiff must prove his possession within twelve years of the alleged dispossession. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 632=197 Ind. Cas. 756.

——Art. 142—Dispossession—Onus.

Where the plaintiffs come to Court on a case of dispossession, Art. 142 is applicable. The onus is on the plaintiffs to prove that they were in possession within twelve years of the suit. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 193=72 C.L.J. 320=44 C.W.N. 935=195 Ind. Cas. 412.

——Art. 142—Burden is on plaintiff.

Art. 142 applies to a suit for possession based on title where the plaintiff alleges his dispossession and the plaintiff has to prove his possession within 12 years of the suit. 1941 O.W.N. 615=1941 R.D. 466=A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 415=193 Ind. Cas. 686.

——Art. 142—In a suit to which Art. 142 applies the onus lies on the plaintiffs having established their title to prove that they had been in possession, whether actual or constructive within 12 years before the institution of the suit. A.I.R. 1940 All. 428=1940 A.W.R. 387=191 Ind. Cas. 602.

——Art. 142—Onus is on plaintiff.

Where a plaintiff who has purchased a tenure in a certificate sale brings a suit for possesion on the ground that he had obtained khas possession but was subsequently dispossessed by the defendants and the defendants maintain that they had been in possession as tenants under the original owner and have continued in possession ever since, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that he was in khas possession of the land within 12 years of the date of the suit. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 194=70 C.L.J. 539=189 Ind. Cas. 540.

——Arts. 142 and 144—The plaintiff must prove his possession within twelve years of the institution of the suit for possession. (1940) 42 P.L.R. 497.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Co-sharers — Possession within 12 years—Onus on plaintiff.

Even in the case of a suit by a co-sharer it is incumbent on the plaintiff to prove that he was in possession of the land in dispute within twelve years before the institution of the suit. (1940) 42 P.L.R. 497.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Onus is on plaintiff—Possession within 12 years.

A plaintiff who is suing for possession of property in the occupation of another cannot rest his case on title alone. He must show that he has exercised rights of ownership by being in possession within 12 years of suit. The burden then lies upon the plaintiff to prove that he was in possession within 12 years of suit and not upon the defendant to prove adverse possession for a period of 12 years. (1940) 2 M.L.J. 190=52 L.W. 149 =(1940) M.W.N. 747=A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 798=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 953=192 Ind. Cas. 488 (F.B.).

Overrules (1) A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 287=99 Ind. Cas. 312. (2) A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 834=87 Ind. Cas. 386.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff to prove possession.

If a plaintiff sues for possession alleging dispossession (and if the cause of action is dispossession, he must truthfully allege it), he must, all question of title apart, prove possession within 12 years or his suit is barred by time. The defendant need not in that case, prove adverse possession. It is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove possession on a particular day; proof of possession within twelve years is enough. A.I.R. 1940 Sind 49 =188 Ind. Cas. 107=I. L. R. (1939) Kar. 793.

——Art. 142—Independent trespassers in continuous possession for more than twelve years—Suit by owner falling under Art. 142 is barred.

The wording of Art. 142 shows clearly that the burden of proving that he has been in possession of the property in dispute within twelve years of the institution of his suit rests on the plaintiff and he cannot be held to have discharged this burden by showing that the defendant had not been in possession for a period of twelve years, but that trespassers other than the defendant had occupied the land within a period of twelve years from the institution of the suit. If independent trespassers have been in continuous possession without a break for more than twelve years, the plaintiff's suit falling under Art. 142 is barred by limitation. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 217=41 P.L.R. 538=I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 399=184 Ind. Cas. 179.

——Arts. 142 and 144—In a case which falls under Art. 142, the plaintiff must prove not only title but also possession within 12 years of suit. But before that article can apply, it must be shown either that the plaintiff was dispossessed or that he discontinued the possession. This can be established either by the facts admitted in the plaint or pleadings, or if not admitted there, then by the facts actually found. But unless that is done, the case cannot come under Art. 142 and so the residuary Art. 144 would apply. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 7=1938 N.L.J. 418=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 655=181 Ind. Cas. 203.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff proving his title—Onus to prove dispossession, if shifts on defendant.

Where a suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession of certain property is brought by the plaintiff on the ground that while in possession of the property, he was dispossessed by the defendants within 12 years of the date of the suit, it is governed by Art. 142.

In cases under Art. 142, although the plaintiff's title is proved, the onus is on the plaintiff to show that he was in possession within 12 years of the suit. The onus is not on the defendants to show that the plaintiff lost his title by adverse possession on the part of the defendants.

Where a suit for possession is brought about 11 years 11 months and 26 days from the date of the dispossession, and the defendants have admittedly been in adverse possession for over 11 years 11 months, the onus lies heavily on the plaintiff to show that he was in possession within 12 years of the date of the suit. 66 C.L.J. 359=A. I. R. 1938 Cal. 206=175 Ind. Cas. 247.

——Art. 142—Nature of proof.

A plaintiff who comes into Court and asks for possession is bound to disclose a title to the property or at the very least prior possession and a vague statement to he effect that the land "came into the ownership of the plaintiff" without disclosing how, is not a disclosure of title, not even of possessory title.

Art. 142, Limitation Act, applies to a suit brought for possession of property after its dispossession by the defendant, and the article applies, irrespective of the allegation in the plaint, the moment the plaintiff establishes dispossession or discontinuance of possession though he can assign no date to it. The onus is on the plaintiff to prove not only his title but also possession within 12 years of suit. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 129=I. L.R. (1937) Nag. 254=171 Ind. Cas. 271.

——Art. 142—Nature of proof—Land capable only of occasional occupation.

Though, in a suit for ejectment, the plaintiff must prove his possession within 12 years of the suit, the nature of proof will vary according to the nature and circumstances of the land in suit. If the land is of such a nature that it can hardly only be occasionally occupied, then it will be impossible for the plaintiff to prove continuous possession over it, and in such a case, the presumption of title following possession is available to the plaintiff. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 422=3 B.R. 711=170 Ind. Cas. 385.

——Art. 142—Suit by owner alleging dispossession — Possession and dispossession within 12 years mus' be proved. 38 P.L.R. 365.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff's case for possession based on dispossession.

Where the plaintiff's case is one for possession based on dispossession, it falls within the terms of Art. 142, and the burden is upon the plaintiff to establish his possession within limitation. 1935 O.W.N. 8=1935 R.D. 12=10 Luck. 513=A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 88=153 Ind. Cas. 371.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff proving his title —Defendant may prove adverse possession—Plaintiff failing to prove possession though asked to do so:

Held, plaintiff cannot object that burden was wrongly put on him and claim that his possession should be presumed from title. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 1019 (2).

——Arts. 144 and 142—Suit based on title—Possession within twelve years of date of suit—Whether should be proved by plaintiff.

A suit for possession of immovable property based on the plaintiff's title and alleging that shortly before the plaint his title was denied by the defendant who was in posssion and who alleged that he himself was the owner is governed for purposes of limitation by Art. 144 and not by Art. 142. In such a suit, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove that he has been in possession within twelve years of date of suit. (1933) A.L.J. 105 =55 A. 209=A.I.R. 1933 All. 775=143 Ind. Cas. 497.

——Art. 142—Where, in a suit for possession, the plaintiff alleges that he has been recently dispossessed, the suit falls within Art. 142, and it is not for the defendant to prove his adverse possession for more than twelve years but for the plaintiff to prove his possession and dispossession by the defendant. A. I. R. 1933 Lah. 627=143 Ind. Cas. 428.

——Art. 142—Date of dispossession, proof of.

Where the plaintiff claimed legal title to certain lands and alleged that the defendants had entered upon these lands and interrupted her possession:

Held, that in order to enable her to sue for recovery, it was incumbent upon her to show not only that she had a good title but also that the date of dispossession was less than twelve years from the date of filing the suit; and that as the plaint clearly alleged title and dispossession, Art. 142 applied to the case and not Art. 144. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 48=144 Ind. Cas. 274.

——Art. 142—Suit for possession — Possession within twelve years — Onus of proof—Proof of title — Neither party able to prove possession — Onus, whether discharged—Presumption of possession from title.

As a general rule where the plaintiff seeks on the strength of title and dispossession to oust defendant in possession, he must prove possession within 12 years of suit.

But when each party who claims possession is unable to prove any act of effective possession and, therefore, the normal method of possession is not referable to any such act, possession must follow title, since the defendant is no more able than the plaintiff to claim effective possession for 12 years before the suit. Possession in such circumstances is with the party holding title and he should not be deprived of what he has acquired merely because he, equally with the other side, has exaggerated his case in the pleadings by alleging definite act of possession and has failed to prove this. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 644=33 L.W. 747=61 M.L.J. 224=54 M. 622=133 Ind. Cas. 9.

——Arts 142 and 144—If, in a suit for possession, the plaintiff fails to show that he was in possession of the property within 12 years from the date of the filing of the plaint, the suit must be held to be time-barred. 8 O.W.N. 797=134 Ind. Cas. 475.

——Art. 142—Claimant must prove his possession within 12 years—Inquiry into question of adverse possession is irrelevant.

In cases falling under Art. 142 the claimant must prove his possession within 12 years next preceding the date of the institution of the suit and in cases of that nature an inquiry into the question of adverse possession is irrelevant. It is not enough for the claimants to show an anterior title. The burden of proof is on him to prove possession at some time within 12 years next preceding the suit and this would shift the burden on to the defence to show that they were entitled to retain possession. 121 Ind. Cas. 84=6 O.W.N. 908=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 46=5 Luck. 410.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Burden of proof—On whom lies.

In suit under Art. 142 burden of proof lies on plaintiff and in suit under Art. 144 it lies on defendants—Suit for possession of land — But defendants proved to be owner at one time—Plaintiff in possession for last 15 or 20 years—

Plaintiff claiming that defendant obtained possession from him—Suit falls under Art. 142 and so if defendant's possession is not proved to be permissive, plaintiff must prove that he was in possession within twelve years of suit. 117 Ind. Cas. 591=7 Rang. 85=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 153.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff sued for possession on the ground that he was the owner of a house which, he alleged was lent to the defendant for temporary use. The latter denied the fact and the plaintiff was unable to prove it.

Held, that the plaintiff ought to have proved possession within 12 years of the suit and the onus was not on the defendant to prove adverse possession. 41 All. 669, Not Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 534=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 896.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Encroachment by defendant—Plaintiff to prove possession within 12 years—Plaintiff's title—Effect of.

In a case of encroachment it is undoubtedly for the plaintiff to establish that his possession was within 12 years but that in the question of evidence the initial fact of the plaintiff's title comes to his aid, with greater or less force according to the circumstances established in evidence. 16 Cal. 473 (P.C.) and 8 Bom.L.R. 400 (P.C.), Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 420=10 L.L.J. 517.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit to eject defendants—Plaintiff to prove possession within 12 years of suit.

Where in a case for possession by ejectment of the defendants who, it was alleged, had taken forcible possession of the lands two years before the institution of the suit, it was expressly stated in the plaint that the defendants had no right whatsoever dispossess the plaintiffs,

Held, that the burden of proving possession by the plaintiffs within 12 years of the institution of the suit was on them. 109 Ind. Cas. 320=9 L. L.J. 334=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 32.

——Art. 142—Burden of proof—Extent — Proof of possession within 12 years and dispossession by defendant, is sufficient—Actual date of dispossession need not be proved.

In a suit for possession under Art. 142 what has to be shown is possession and dispossession within twelve years, and to do so it is sufficient to prove possession within twelve years, which can usually be done by the revenue records, if unrebutted, and further, the absence of possession or rather the possession of the defendant on date of suit. The actual date of dispossession need not be proved. 109 Ind. Cas. 266=8 Lah. 655 =29 P.L.R. 77=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 98.

——Art. 142—In a suit for possession instituted on the allegation of possession and subsequent dispossession it is incumbent on the plaintiffs to establish that they had been in possession within 12 years before the institution of the suit, and proof of an anterior title cannot relieve the plaintiffs from showing their possession at some time within the statutory period of 12 years. 108 Ind. Cas. 732 (Cal.).

——Art. 142—Plaintiff must prove dispossession within 12 years before suit.

The onus is not on defendants to prove that dispossession of the plaintiffs by defendants took place further back than 12 years from the beginning of the suit but it is for the plaintiffs to prove dispossession within that period. 110 Ind. Cas. 623=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 653.

——Art. 142—Suit for possession alleging possession and dispossession by the defendant —Plaintiff must prove his possession within 12 years, and not that defendant should prove adverse possession for over 12 years. 108 Ind. Cas. 374=A. I.R. 1928 Lah. 704.

——Art. 142—Burden of proof is on plaintiff.

Where the plaintiffs allege possession and dispossession the onus of proving that they had been in possession within 12 years before suit is on them: and the fact that the land remained uncultivated for some harvests does not show that defendants were not in possession for that period. 107 Ind. Cas. 779 (Lah.).

——Art. 142—Burden of proof — Land incapable of possession — Plaintiff must prove posseession within 12 years — When land is incapable of possession plaintiff must prove his title as well, and show that no one else was in possession.

In an action for ejectment under Art. 142 the plaintiff has always to show that he was in possession within twelve years of suit. But in the case of land which cannot be availed of at all, such as jungle land, the plaintiff may show that he was in possession before 12 years and make a case by showing as an additional fact either that the land in question was incapable of possession by any one or that in fact no one was interfering with his right during the 12 years before suit. It is possession, not user, that has to be shown. 105 Ind. Cas. 309=31 C.W.N. 806=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 118.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Burden of proof is on plaintiff — Declaratory decree in favour of plaintiff is not possession.

Plaintiffs, owners of a one-third shares in the land in suit, instituted a declaratory suit in respect of that share, founding their cause of action on a denial of their title in partition proceedings The suit was decreed. Plaintiffs subsequently instituted the suit for the possession of their one-third share. It was alleged in the plaint that after the previous suit had been decreed the plaintiffs had been receiving their share of the produce of the property till about a year before the date of the present suit. The plea of the defendants was adverse possession for more than twelve years.

Held, that in order to succeed it was necessary for the plaintiffs to prove that they have been in possession of the property in suit at some time within twelve years from the institution thereof and that the mere fact that they had obtained a declaratory decree was not sufficient if they had not followed the declaratory decree by any action to make their title perfect by obtaining possession. 45 P.R. 1914 and A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 175, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 956=8 L.L.J. 572=28 P.L.R. 48.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Claimant must prove possession within 12 years of suit—Enquiry as to adverse possession is irrelevant. A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 42, Foll. 98 Ind. Cas. 1061 (Oudh).

——Art. 142—Suit for possession and dispossession — Plaintiff must prove his possession within 12 years—Ejectment. 98 Ind. Cas. 912=31 C. W.N. 60.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Suit for ejectment—Plaintiff must show that he was in possession within 12 years of suit. 5 P.L.J. 592, Expl. 97 Ind. Cas. 267 (Pat.).

——Art. 142—Entry of defendants' name as a tenant-at-will in Revenue Records—If plaintiff entitled to succeed.

Where a plaintiff sues for possession alleging in the plaint dispossession he must prove that the dispossession took place within 12 years of suit. The entry of the defendant as tenant-at-will in the Revenue Records does not entitle the plaintiff to a decree on the ground, his possession cannot be adverse. 89 Ind. Cas. 687 (Lah.).

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff, a zamindar, sued for possession of a house. It was known dennitely that it was occupied at one time by a person who was not a tenant or raiyat of the zamindar. Furthermore, it was known that at no time the plaintiff had actual possession of it. At no time had the defendant or his predecessors acknowledged the title of the zamindar or paid any rent, Held, that the suit could not succeed unless plaintiff proved possession within the statutory period. 89 Ind. Cas. 466=23 A.L.J. 874=6 L. R.A. Civ. 501=A.I.R. 1926 All. 82.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Onus of proof of possession is on plaintiff — Question of adverse possession is irrelevant. 16 Cal. 473; 17 Cal. 137, Foll. 79 Ind. Cas. 964=27 O.C. 130=11 O.L. J. 251=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 42.

——Art. 142—Presumption of possession following title—When arises.

Where the plaintiff sued for possession on the allegation of dispossession.

Held, that Art. 142 is applicable and he is bound to prove possession within 12 years before suit. In order to prove this, he may rely on the presumption that possession of the lawful owner continues as long as the land is incapable of actual possession. But if he relies on this presumption he must prove that the land was incapable of actual possession with twelve years before suit. 78 Ind. Cas. 679=51 Cal. 669=28 C.W.N. 637=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 855.

——Art. 142—Burden of proof—Dispossession of defendant within 12 years.

Where the plaintiffs have not been in possession for more than 12 years, of land beyond the boundary line in dispute, determined by order of Revenue Officers 12 years back unless they can show that they had since that date dispossessed defendants, their suit is barred by limitation with respect to this land. 66 Ind. Cas. 471=1922 P. H.C.C. 114=3 P.L.T. 617=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 96.

——Arts. 142 and 144 — Possession within 12 years must be proved.

In a suit by plaintiff for possession of land on the declaration of plaintiff's title to the same, plaintiff must show his possession with 12 years even assuming that the title is with him. 65 Ind. Cas. 914=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 286.

——Arts. 142 and 144—Plaintiff must prove possession within 12 years. 69 Ind. Cas. 883=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 95.

——Art. 142—Where the plaintiff has been dispossessed and the suit is one for recovery of possession, the onus is upon the plaintiff to prove that he was in possession within 12 years of the suit. 67 Ind. Cas. 673=26 C.W.N. 724=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 557.

——Art. 142—Plaintiff to succeed has to prove that he has a subsisting title at the date of the suit and not only that he is entitled to possession, that is, he has to prove that he had been dispossessed or had discontinued his possession, within a period of twelve years. 69 Ind. Cas. 171=4 L. L.J. 382=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 432.

——Art. 142—In a suit for possession after dispossession, the plaintiff must show possession within the statutory period of 12 years. A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 33.

——Arts. 142 and 144—If the plaintiff, in a suit for possession on a declaration of title, fails to prove that he ever exercised possession within 12 years before suit, and there is nothing to show that the land was not capable of ordinary occupation or cultivation, his suit is barred and the defendant need not prove adverse possession for 12 years. 62 Ind. Cas. 707 (Cal.).

——Art. 142—In a case for ejectment, the plaintiff where the defendant is proved to be in possession must in addition to proving his title, make out that the dispossession took place within 12 years of the suit, that is to say, that he was in possession and dispossessed within that period. 2 P.L.T. 55=1921 P.H.C.C. 118=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 158=58 Ind. Cas. 773.

——Art. 142—Dispossession — Proof of within 12 years.

When a plaintiff sues for possession on the allegation that while in possession he was dispossessed by the defendant he must show the time of dispossession and he must bring the suit within twelve years from that date. 56 Ind. Cas. 40 (Pat.).

——Art. 142—Suit for alluvial land—Burden of proof.

Where a plea of limitation and denial of plaintiff's title is set up in a suit for possession to accretions by alluvion, the onus is on plaintiff, to prove title and possession within limitation. To prove the latter however it is sufficient to prove accrual within limitation or that though it had accrued before limitation it had remained within the limitation period waste land raising a presumption that possession followed title. 15 C.W.N. 887, foll. 34 All. 612=10 A.L.J. 190=17 Ind. Cas. 94.

——Art. 142—Onus.

In a case governed by Art. 142 the onus is on plaintiff to show dispossession within 12 years before suit. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 306=6 Ind. Cas. 667.

——Art. 142—Suit by vendee for possession of immovable property—Vendor out of possession—Burden of proof.

Where a vendee of immovable property sues for possession, his vendor not having been in possession at the time of the sale, it lies upon the plaintiff to show that his vendor was in possession at some period within twelve years prior to the date of the suit. 16-B. 343, foll. And when in such a case the property sold was a share in a house belonging to two spearated brothers. It was held that the possession of one of the brothers could not be taken to be on behalf of the absent vendor. (1904) 28 A. 479=1906 A.W.N. 95=3 A.L.J. 334.

——Arts. 142, 144—Circumstances under which they apply—Onus of proof—Adverse possession.

Where a plaintiff has been dispossessed, he must show possession and dispossession within twelve years; but where there is no allegation of original possession in the plaintiff lost by dispossession or discontinuance of possession, then the party relying on adverse possession to displace a proved or admitted title must show such adverse possession to have commenced and continued from twelve years prior to suit. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 721=27 B. 43.

6. Co-heirs.

——Art. 144—Person in possession as co-heir—Article 144 applies to such a case—But if he is in possession as customary heir, his possession is adverse from the beginning. A.I.R. 1944 Pesh. 45=216 Ind. Cas. 267.

——Arts. 144, 120, 106, 123—Administration suit by Muhammadan heir against his co-heirs as regards immovable property.

To a suit for administration against certain Muhammadan co-heirs by a person entitled to part of the interest of an heir, neither Art. 106 nor Art. 123, Limitation Act is applicable . The heirs of a Muhammadan succeed to his estate in specific shares as tenants-in-common and such suit is governed as regards immovable property by Art. 144 and as regards movables by Art. 120. A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 215=7 B.R. 210=53 L.W. 1=43 P. L.R. 63=45 C.W.N. 226=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. (P.C.) 410 (Sup.)=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 594=I.L.R. ——Art. 144—Possession by one co-heir—Nature of—Evidence—Duty of Court—Limitation Act (Bhopal) 1901, Art. 134.

For a suit for possession and declaration of title, the cause of action arises when the title is denied and the possession refused. Section 6, Limitation Act, has no application when the plaintiff, all along her minority, was under the impression that the possession of the defendant was on her behalf. It is when the plaintiff demands possession from the defendant and when the defendant refuses it, that the cause of action for suit arises. Under these circumstances, according to the nature of the suit, the limitation period under Art. 134 Bhopal Limitation Act, which is equivalent to Art. 144 of British Limitation Act, is 12 years and its commencement would be from the time when the defendant's possession became adverse to that of the plaintiff's . Where in such a suit the defendant has not proved adverse possession at all but on the contrary, he has indicated his readiness to give the plaintiff her share according to Muhammadan Law and the plaintiff has been admittedly in possession of a portion of the house in dispute, the question of adverse possession does not arise. Therefore, the right of suit during minority accruing to the plaintiff is not correct. The Court should first of all decide what the nature of the possession of the defendant is. Where the defendant himself claims to be also an heir of the plaintiff's father, and the plaintiff is also an heir according to the Muhammadan Law and both of them are in possession, the question of limitation does not arise. The possession of heirs under the Muhammadan Law will not be adverse till an heir is dispossessed of the property. 188 Ind. Cas. 872 (Bhopal).

——Arts. 144, 123: Obiter.—As between co-heirs, the possession of one is prima facie the possession of the others, and consequently the suit by one co-heir against another to recover his share in the property is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 221=186 Ind. Cas. 843.

——Arts. 144, 120—Suit for share against co-heirs in possession and management of estate consisting of immovables and business.

An estate partly consisted of immovable property and partyl of business. A suit was brought beyond 12 years of the death of the ancestor, for share in the estate of this deceased ancestor, against heirs in possession and management of the same :

Held, that so far as the suit related to immovable property it was barred under Art. 144 and it was also barred under Art. 120, so far as it related to taking an account of the business. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 407= 166 Ind. Cas. 504.

——Arts. 144, 123—Muhammadan co-heirs—Suit by one against others for his share of deceased's estate.

A suit by one of the heirs o a deceased Muhammadan against his co-heirs for recovery of possession of his share out of the joint property left by the deceased is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 123. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 784 (2)=14 L. 794=35 P.L.R. 121=148 Ind. Cas. 1143.

——Art. 144—Muhammadan co-heirs.

Where a Muhammadan dies leaving a number of co-heirs and only one of the heirs remains in possession of the property, his possession is not adverse to the other co-heirs in the absence of a clear denial of title and an overt act amounting to ouster, and the onus of proving adverse possession lies upon the party which urges that plea.

Where the title of the heirs relates to a number of properties, any assertion of adverse title with reference to any one of the properties, whether they are included in the plaint or not, might have some bearing upon the question of adverse possession.

Registration per se does not amount to notice to all the world.

Mere hostile feeling cannot amount to adverse possession or ouster.

The mere granting of lease by one of several co-heirs is not an ouster of the others. (1930) A.L.J. 1456= A.I.R. 1931 All. 193=131 Ind. Cas. 211.

——Art. 144—Childless proprietor—Sale to some collateral heirs—Declaratory decree that sale is not binding on other collaterals—Death of proprietor—Failure of other collaterals to sue for possession—Effect.

The property in dispute was owned one-half by the predecessors-in-interest of the plaintiffs and defendants Nos. 18 to 22 and the other half by A. a collateral of the aforesaid persons and defendants Nos. 1 to 17. In 1903, A sold his half share with other properties to the fathers of plaintiffs Nos. 1, 2 and 3. The predecessors-in-interest of defendants Nos. 1 to 17, who were collateral heirs of A obtained a decree in 1907, declaring that the sale was not binding on them. The possession, however, continued with plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 3, A died in 1919, and the estate of A devolved on the plaintiffs and defendants as collateral heirs. Defendants Nos. 1 to 17 applied for partition. The plaintiffs instituted a suit for a declaration in 1923 :

Held, (1) that as the sale by A was only to plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 3 the provisions of Art. 2 (b), Punjab Limitation Act (I of 1920), read with S. 28, Limitation Act, could not be availed of by the other plaintiffs who had to prove adverse possession for over 12 years :

(2) the possession of plaintiffs Nos. 1 to 3 since the sale in 1903 was not adverse till 1919, as A was alive till then and defendants Nos. 1 to 17 had no right to possession ;

(3) their possession subsequent to 1919 was that of co-heirs and was not adverse as there was no ouster of the defendants and the plaintiffs were not entitled to a declaration of sole ownership. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 439 =131 Ind. Cas. 105.

——Arts. 144 and 123—Applicability—Suit by co-heir—One Mahomedan co-heir suing another co-heir for possession—Article 144 applies.

When a Mahomedan owner dies leaving several heirs, they all become co-owners and tenants-in-common. A joint owner is legally entitled to retain possession of joint property. Even if he is in exclusive possession of such joint property his possession is ordinarily to be referred to his legal title. The other co-owners are accordingly in constructive possession of the property. If therefore, the co-owner in actual possession dispossesses any one of the other co-owners, the suit that is brought for recovery of possession is not a suit for a distributive share of the property of an intestate but is a suit to recover possession of the defined, though undivided, share of the co-owner in the possession of the other co-owners. Such a suit is not covered by Art. 123 at all and must fall under the general Art. 144, limitation running from the date when the defendant's possession became adverse. A.I.R. 1928 All. 467 (F.B.), Foll. 121 Ind. Cas. 785=7 Rang. 744=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 72.

——Art. 144—Muhamedan co-heirs are presumably co-tenants until ousted. (1912) A.C. 230; A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 195, Foll; 89 P.R. 1888; 84 P.R. 1916; A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 519; A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 790; 97 P.R. 1890, held overruled. 118 Ind. Cas. 905=10 Lah. 849=31 P.L.R. 179=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 464.

——Arts. 142, 144 and 123—Applicability of co-heirs.

The appropriate article for suits instituted by co-heirs for a share in the corpus of an inheritance is Art. 123, but if it can be shown that whoever holds the property is holding with the consent, express or implied, of all the heirs on behalf of them all, then Art. 142 or 144 would apply. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 155; A.I.R. 1916 P.C. 145 and A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 228, Foll. 106 Ind. Cas. 828=5 Rang. 582=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 6.

——Art. 144—Muhammadan Law—Co-heir in possession dispossessing another co-heir—Latter's suit for possession is governed by Art. 144 and not Art. 123.

When a Mahomedan owner dies leaving several heirs they all become co-owners and tenants-in-common. A joint owner is legally entitled to retain possession of joint property. Even if he is in exclusive possession of such joint property, his possession is ordinarily to be referred to his legal title. The presumption therefore is that his possession is lawful and therefore on behalf of all the co-owners. The other co-owners are accordingly in constructive possession of the property. As distinct shares have devolved on them, they all are presumed to have taken their legal shares although possession still remains joint. If therefore the co-owner in actual possession dispossesses any one of the other co-owners, the suit that is brought for recovery of possession is not a suit for a distributive share of the property of an intestate, but is a suit to recover possession of the defined, though undivided, share of the co-owner in the possession of the other co-owners. Such a suit is not covered by Art. 123 at all, and must fall under the general Art. 144, limitation running from the date when the defendant's possession became adverse. A.I.R. 1926 All. 748, Reversed. 111 Ind. Cas. 809=51 All. 101=26 A.L.J. 1041=A.I.R. 1928 All. 467 (F.B.).

——Art. 144—Co-heir alienating comon property without other's consent—Time runs from date of alienation.

An alienating co-heir is to be regarded as an agent of the other co-heirs so that an alienation by him of common property without the consent of the rest is adverse to their interest and limitation runs from the date of alienation and not from the date of suit for partionti of common property. A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 40 and (1893-1900), L.B.R. 132, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 691=5 Rang. 93=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 158.

——Arts. 142, 144 and 123—Applicability of—co-heirs.

Where a distributive share in the estate of a deceased is claimed, whether against an Administrator or a co-heir, or a person merely in possession, the article applicable is Art. 123. Where co-heirs agree to enjoy the property left by the deceased jointly without effecting a partition, Art. 142 or Art. 144 of the Limitation Act will apply. A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 155 and A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 233, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 514=5 Bur.L.J. 4=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 95.

——Art. 144—Co-heirs in common enjoyment of property—Subsequent exclusion of some—Article 142 or 144 and not Art. 123 applies—Karen Christians are within this rule—Limitation Act, Art. 142.

Article 123 applies to a case of a claim to a share against co-heirs in possession of an estate when there was intestacy. But an exception should be made in respect of cases where the whole body of the heirs agree to enjoy jointly the property left by the deceased, without effecting a partition. In such cases Art. 142 or 144 would apply.

There is nothing to prevent the heirs of Karen Christians from taking possession of the estate and agreeing to enjoy it in common. Their title beomes complete when they take possession of the property, and when thereafter any of them are excluded from enjoyment, the cause of action arises on such exclusion and the article applicable is Art. 142. 88 Ind. Cas. 609=4 Bur.L.J. 76=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 233.

——Art. 144—Heirs of a Mahomedan are co-sharers and unless express ouster is proved to the knowledge of the other party no limitation starts against the other party. 79 Ind. Cas. 174=46 All. 377=22 A.L.J. 307=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 257=A.I.R. 1924 All. 384.

——Arts. 144 and 123—Co-heirs living as tenants-in-common—Art. 144 applies.

Where the members of a Mahomedan family continue to live as tenants in common without dividing the estate of a deceased ancestor, limitation will not run from the time of his death, and the article applicable for a suit for distributive share is Art. 144 and not Art. 123. 44 Bom. 942, Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 780=45 Bom. 519=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 56.

——Arts. 144 and 123—Co-heirs—Suit for possession by one heir against another—Whether Art. 123 or 144 applies.

A suit for recovery of possession by one heir against another is governed by Art. 144 and not by Art. 123, 34 M. 511=19 A. 169, Foll.; 15 M. 60, Diss. 17 O.C. 157=1 O.L.J. 225=24 Ind. Cas. 45.

——Art. 144—Co-heirs—Suit by Mahomedan for share of inheritance.

A suit by a Muhammadan for a share of the wife's property in possession of another sharer more than 12 years after the wife's death is governed by Art. 120, if the property is moveable and by Art. 144 if it is immoveable, 15 M. 60, Dissented from. 34 Mad. 511=(1910) M.W.N. 447=20 M.L.J. 288=8 M.L.T. 4=6 Ind.
